Ieſuits and other hypocrites are great mountbankes of their owne vertue, thanking God that they be not as other are, but men of a better conuerſation, and more pure note; ſaying nothing but truth, and doing nothing but right; that as [s] Auguſtine writes of Fauſtus the Manichee: Si hoc eſſet iuſtum eſſe, iuſtificare ſeipſum: if this were to be iuſt to iuſtifie themſelues, aſſuredly this generation of Vipers had long ſince flowne vp into heauen; but examine their actions, and you ſhall finde that they [t] trauell with miſchiefe, conceiue ſorrow, and bring forth vngodlineſſe. Their throat is an open ſepulchre, they flatter with their tongue, there is no faithfulneſſe in their mouth, their inward parts are very wickednesſe, as Dauid in Pſal. 5. The Ieſuits eſpecially ſuppoſe that the [u] fee ſimple of all mens acts, words, thoughts, are in their gift to raiſe and let the price of all at their deuotion. All their [x] entia be tranſcendentia; ſance peeres, in all things [y] abſolute ſuperlatiues, euen their [z] ſots are Salomons, their black-birds are ſwannes, and their ſilents are politicks: in a word, the [a] offall of this old Phariſee, who was his owne trumpeter and crier, I am not as other men are, &c.

[s] Contra Fauſt. Man. lib. 5. cap. 7

[t] Pſal 7 15.

[u] Watſon quodlibet 1. art. 5.
[x] Ibidem art 6.
[y] Quodlibet 3 art 7.
[z] Idem in his Sparing Diſcourſe.
[a] Quodlibet 5. art. 1.

I faſt twice in the weeke, I giue tithe of all that I poſſeſſe] [b] Aquin hath obſerued truly, that howſoeuer all ſinne may be ſaid to be in the deuill, ſecundum reatum; yet only pride and enuie is in him ſecundum affectum. He is guiltie of other ſins, as tempting men to euery ſin: but pride is his own proper fault, his darling, his Rimmon, and (as [c] Bernard ſpeakes) his character. It was the firſt ſin that euer was in the world, and it ſhall be the laſt; for as other infirmities in vs decreaſe, ſecret pride doth increaſe. That the Phariſee went vp into the Temple to pray, that he was not an extortioner, vniuſt, adulterer, that he faſted and paied his tithe duly, were things exceeding commendable: but his pride like [d] Coloquintida, ſpoiled the whole pot of pottage. [e] Mille virtutibus affluens propter arrogantiam felicitatem amiſit. As God reſembling a Bee gathered honie out of ranke weeds, extracting from the ſinnes of the Publican humilitie, which is a mother vertue: ſo the deuill as a ſpider gathering poiſon out of ſweet flowers, euen of the Phariſees vertue, begat inſolent pride, which is a monopol of miſchiefe. [f] As an hen doth cackle, when ſhe laieth an egge, by which it is inſtantly taken away from her: in like manner, aſſoone as the proud man performes any good deed, he will preſently boaſt of it; I faſt twice in the weeke, I giue tithe of all that I poſſeſſe: being (as [g] one ſaid wittily) proditor virtutis: A traytor to himſelfe. This Phariſee brought forth a great many of egges (as it ſhould ſeeme) but he could not

[b] Part 1. quæſt. 63. art 2.
[c] Tract. de paſſione Dom. cap. 19.
[d] 2 Kings 4. 39
[e] Chryſoſt. in Mat Hom. 65.
[f] Bonauent. diæt ſalut. cap. 2.
[g] Pet. Rauennas.

not carrie them vnto a good market, becauſe of his cackling: Vna ſuperbia deſtruit omnia. [h] Fœlix inſolens infœlix.

The Publican ſtanding a farre off would not lift vp his eies to heauen, but ſmote his breaſt, ſaying, God be merciſull to me a ſinner] [i] Simon the Sorcerer held, that himſelfe was ſome great man: [k] Iulian the blaſphemous Apoſtata conceiued ſtrongly, that himſelfe was Alexander the great; and in our age, there was a ſchiſmatike, who ſaid, himſelfe was Elias the Prophet: euen ſo many which are in a damnable ſtate, profeſſe themſelues exceeding iuſt, in compariſon of other. On the contrary, the faireſt Saints haue thought themſelues the fouleſt ſinners, as S. Paul, that he was not worthie to be called an Apoſtle: S. Auguſtine, that he was not worthie to be called a Biſhop: the prodigall childe, that he was not worthie to be called a ſonne: the woman of Canaan, that ſhe was not worthie to be reputed a childe: the bleſſed martyrs in their confeſſions euermore, that they were not worthy to be ſeruants vnto God, and witneſſes of his truth: and the Publican here, though he were moſt deare to God, yet he durſt not come neere to God, he ſtood a farre off, and would not lift vp his eies to heauen, [l] that is, to God in heauen, as Luke 15. 18. Father, I haue ſinned againſt heauen and before thee, &c.

The Publicans hand, like the bellowes, did blow the fire of contrition to his heart; his heart like a limbecke, diſtilled the ſoueraigne water of repentance into his eies; his eies as a full ceſterne being vnable to looke vpward, returne the ſtreame backe againe to the heart; that ouercharged, driues the floud of his affection to his tongue; his tongue like Aarons Cenſer conuaies the ſweet perfume of this pretious diſtillation into the preſence of God himſelfe, ſaying, O God be merciſull to me, &c. The which heauie ſong or melancholike dittie conſiſts of three parts: a Treble, which is exceeding high, O God; a Meane, be merciſull; a Baſſe, to me a ſinner. [m] Orauit paucis, ſed affectu multo: Couching much deuotion in a little roome. For all the vertues of a true penitent, (as namely, [n] confeſſion, contrition, faith, amendment) are found in this one paterne. For confeſſion and contrition: his hand ſmote his breaſt, and his heart moued his tongue to ſing the baſſe, to me a ſinner. In which action, theſe three did concurre, the heart, hand, ſound: the heart ſignifying he had thought amiſſe: the hand ſignifying he had done amiſſe: the ſound ſignifying he had ſaid ſomething amiſſe. Concerning faith, he relied [o] altogether vpon grace, firſt, imploring, O God be merciſull: then applying the mercies of God in Chriſt, to me a ſinner. And as for amendment of life; the text ſaith, he went home iuſtified more then his fellow. Now then as Chriſt to the Lawyer, Luke 10. 37. ſo I to you, goe and doe thou likewiſe. Thou art but a man; and therefore call vpon God: a ſinfull man; and therefore pray to thy merciſull God. It is no ſhame to be ſorrowfull, crie, O God. It is no diſcredit to beg grace, pray him to be merciſull. It is no reproach at all to confeſſe thy fault, tell him thou art a ſinner. If thy ſinne paſt vtterly diſpleaſe thee, thy preſent ſinne ſhall neuer hurt thee, ſaith [p] Auguſtine. Foure words of this Publican, yea, [q] three ſyllables of Dauid, [r] peccaui, proceeding from a liuely faith, and a contrite ſoule, obtained pardon for all his offences: in ſo much, as [s] Hierome writes excellently: Qui prius me docuerit virtutibus ſuis quo modo ſtans non caderem, docuit per pœnitentiam quo modo cadens reſurgerem. Our heauenly Father is ſo pitifull toward his [t] loſt childe returning home, [u] that he will not haue patience to ſtay till his ſonne doth open the parlour doore, but he will runne and meet him vpon the way, falling on his necke, and kiſſing him. Albeit thou be ſo great a ſinner as a Publican, yet if thou ſmite thy breaſt, and crie, God be merciſull to me a ſinner; if thou ſhalt heartily repent, and vnfainedly beleeue, the Lord will put all thy wickednes cut of his remembrance, and thou ſhalt go home to the houſe of thy conſcience iuſtified.

I tell you this man departed home to his houſe iuſtified more then the other] You haue heard the Phariſees pride and the Publicans humilitie: now you ſhall heare Chriſts iudgement of both. He did condemne the Phariſee who iuſtified himſelf, but

[h] Reuſner. in Symbol.

[i] Acts 8. 9.

[k] Pet. Martinius præfat in miſopog. Iuliani.

[l] Maldonat. in loc. Idem. Marlorat. in Luc. 15. 18.

[m] Bucer.

[n] Church hom. of repent. part. 2. & Tyndal prolog. in Matth.

[o] Sarcerius, Caluin. Culman in loc.

[p] Zoares tract. 6. in Matth.

[q] Ambroſ. exhort. ad pœnit. agendam.

[r] 2 Sam. 12. 13.

[s] Epitaph. Fabiol ad Oceanum.

[t] Luke 15.

[u] Hieron proem. com. in Abdiam.

but iuſtifie the Publican who condemned himſelfe. The Phariſie did exalt himſelfe in reſpect of his vertue, but the Publican humbled himſelfe for his ſinne. [x] Videte fratres, magis placuit humilitas in malis factis, quam ſuperbia in bonis factis. Of the two, the Publican renouncing his owne merits, and laying hold on Gods mercie, was iuſtified more then the other. [y] That is, and not the other.

[x] Auguſtin.

[y] Euthym. in loc.

Here then our [z] moderne Diuines obſerue that the Phariſie truſting in himſelfe that he was perfect, is a type of all Iuſtitiaries, hoping to be ſaued by the righteouſneſſe, of the Law: and that the Publican confeſſing his ſinnes and vnworthineſſe, is a type of all true Chriſtians, holding iuſtification only by faith in Chriſt, apprehending his merits, and making his righteouſneſſe our righteouſneſſe. For application then of Chriſts application, I ſay with [a] Auguſtine; Audiſti ſententiam, caue ſuperbiam. And pray with the Church:

[z] Melanct hon. Culman. Heming. Zepper.

[a] Serm. 36. de verbis Dom. ſecundum Luc.

O God, which declareſt thy Almighty power, moſt chiefly in ſhewing mercy and pitie, giue vnto vs abundantly thy grace, that we running to thy promiſes, may be made partakers of thy heauenly treaſure, through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

FINIS.

Walafridus Strabo lib. de rebus Eccleſiaſticis.

Si quid in hoc (lector) placet, aſſignare memento id Domino: quicquid diſplicet, hocce mihi.

THE TWELFTH SVNDAY AFTER TRINITIE.

The Epistle. 2. Cor. 3. 4. Vnto p. 10

Such trust haue we through Christ to God-ward; not that we are sufficient of our selues, &c.

ALL holy Scrippture ioyntly considered is called not vnfitly Gods [a] Testament: as being his reuealed [b] will, and as it were [c] written Indenture, containing his couenants and conueyance concerning our [d] eternall inheritance which is aboue. But the Gospell apart considered, is termed in this Text, a new Testament: as neuer waxing old, [e] but alway continuing new, though it were from the beginning: Iesus Christ yesterday, and to day, the same also for euer, Heb. 13 8. And now, for that it is imprinted after a new manner otherwise than the letter of the Law: written not with inke, but with the Spirit of the liuing God; not in tables of stone, but in the fleshly tables of the heart. And new, for that it maketh vs new creatures in Christ, 2. Cor. 5. 17. According to that of [f] Augustine; Dicitur nouum propter nouitatẽ spiritus, quæ hominem nouum sanat à vitio vetustatis: It is new, for that it teacheth vs how to cast off the old man, and to put on the new man, Ephes. 4 22. 24. S. Paul therefore commends here the worthie function of such as are made able to minister the new Testament two wayes:

1. Positiuely, Such trust haue we through Christ to God-ward, &c.

2. Comparatiuely, preferring the preaching of the Gospell before the ministerie of the Law, in respect of
- Grace: For the letter killeth, but the spirit giueth life; the Law being the ministration of condemnation, but the Gospell the ministration of righteousnesse.
- Glorie: If the ministration of death through the letters figured in stones was glorious, &c. how shall not the ministration of the spirit be much more glorious?

Such trust] Our Apostle did esteeme the Corinthians his [g] glorie, the [h] seale of his Apostleship; and as it were the verie letters testimoniall of his sinceritie. For thus he speakes in this present Chapter at the second verse, Ye are our epistle. [i] Such as are false teachers, need epistles of recommendation vnto you, and letters of recommendation from you: but I, [k] Siluanus and Timothie desire not the like, for that the Church of Corinth is our certificate, your selues are our walking pasport:

[a] Optatus lib. 5. aduers. Parmenian. Idem August. in Psal. 21 expo.
[b] Matth. 6. 10.
[c] Ardens in loc.
[d] Heb. 9. 15.
[e] Deering Lect. 1. Heber.
[f] De spirit. & lit. Cap 20. Idem contra duas epist. Pelagian. lib. 3. cap. 4. & in Psal. 88.
[g] 2. Cor 1. 14.
[h] 1. Cor. 9 2.
[i] Erasm. Paraph.
[k] Caluin. [l] Hieron. epist. ad Furiam.

paſport: [l] Detrimentum pecoris ignominia paſtoris: It is the Paſtors infamie when the people grow worſe, but his [m] honour when they be rich in the graces of Chriſt, and in all kinde of knowledge, 1. Cor. 1. 5. Whereas therefore your faith and holy conuerſation is renowned in all the world, ye be to vs [n] inſtead of an Epiſtle: yea better then any letters commendatorie; for they runne in and out of our eyes and eares, here and there: but ye are written in our heart, that is, in our [o] conſciences, hauing this teſtimonie, not as other about vs only, but in vs alſo, reſiding euer in our boſomes. And whereas [p] other Epiſtles in Hebrew, Greeke, Latine, are read of none but ſuch as vnderſtand their ſeuerall Idiome; this Epiſtle is vnderſtood and read of all men. It is ſo plaine, that (as the Prophet [q] Abacuk ſpeakes) he may runne that readeth it: in that ye are manifeſt to be the Epiſtle of Chriſt miniſtred by vs, [r] as Gods pen, and written not with inke, but with the Spirit of the liuing God, not in tables of ſtone, but in the fleſhly tables of the heart. Ye are Chriſts Epiſtle primarily, [s] principaliter & authoritatiuè, for [t] one is our Doctor, and that Doctor is Chriſt: but our Epiſtle, and [u] worke ſecondarily, being inſtructed by vs [x] as the Miniſters of Chriſt, and diſpoſers of the ſecrets of God. He [y] writes in you, but it is through our [z] miniſterie, not as the falſe Apoſtles imperfitly with inke, but with the Spirit of the liuing God, whereby you that are his Epiſtle are [a] ſealed vnto the day of redemption He writes his grace, not as the Law was written in tables of [b] ſtone: but in fleſhly tables of the heart. According to his word vttered by the mouth of [c] Ezechiel: I will take away the ſtonie heart out of your bodie, and I will giue you an heart of fleſh. That is, (as Anſelmus vpon this place notes) a good vnderſtanding to know, and a ready will to keepe my Commandements. [d] As farre then as Gods Spirit doth excell inke, and mans heart a ſtone; ſo farre the Goſpell excels the Law.

Now leſt our Apoſtle ſhould ſeeme to commend his miniſterie too much, he [e] corrects himſelfe thus in my Text: ſuch truſt haue we through Chriſt to Godward, &c. [f] As if he ſhould ſay, we ſpeake confidently that ye are Chriſts Epiſtle, and our Epiſtle, not arrogating this excellencie to our ſelues, as if we were ſufficient of our ſelues: but aſcribing all the glorie to God, from whom as the fountaine, through Chriſt, as the conduit pipe, commeth euerie good and perfect gift. If we be able vnto any thing, the ſame commeth of God, which hath made vs able to miniſter the new Teſtament. And therefore we truſt not in the [g] princes of darkeneſſe, [h] nor in any childe of man: but our hope, yea helpe ſtandeth in the name of the Lord, which hath made heauen and earth, Pſal. 121. 2. all our truſt is in God through Chriſt.

The Papiſts attribute too much vnto the Prieſts office; carnall Goſpellers and worldly Politicians aſcribe too little. The Pope forſooth is eſteemed of his Paraſites a [i] Vice-god, [k] another Chriſt, aſſuredly they might ſay better an Antichriſt. Nay the Papiſts hold their vnderling maſſe-prieſt ſuch an omnipotent creature, that whereas in the ſacrament of Order (as they call it) Almightie God makes the Prieſt: in the ſacrament of their Altar horreſco referens, the Prieſt (ſay they) makes Almightie God, as it were by magicall Art tranſlating Cœlum in cœnam, pulling heauen out of heauen, and impriſoning Chriſts bodie with all his dimenſions in a little box.

Statiſing worldlings on the contrarie thinke that Preachers of the word are nothing elſe but as a poſt, on which Iniunctions of the King, and mandates of the Court-Chriſtian are fixed: Ornaments and Miniſters of State, not inſtruments and meſſengers of God; and ſo [l] Religion turned into Statiſme proues Atheiſme. We muſt therefore goe betweene both, Atheiſts on the left hand, and Papiſts on the right, medium tenuere beati. We muſt acknowledge the Goſpels miniſterie to be [m] the power of God vnto ſaluation. He could otherwiſe regenerate men, as being able out of ſtones to raiſe vp children vnto himſelfe, Mat. 3. 19. but it pleaſeth him (as our Apoſtle teacheth [n] elſewhere) by the fooliſhneſſe of preaching to ſaue them that beleeue. God hath reconciled vs vnto himſelfe by Ieſus Chriſt, and hath committed vnto his Apoſtles, and their ſucceſſours his faithfull Paſtours,

[l] Hieron. epiſt. ad Furiam.
[m] Oecumen in loc.
[n] Theophylact. Anſelm. Aquin.
[o] Hierom. & Primaſius.
[p] Caietan.
[q] Cap 2. ver. 2.
[r] Engliſh. Gloſſ.
[s] Aquin.
[t] Matth. 23. 8.
[u] 1. Cor 9. 1.
[x] 1. Cor 4. 1.
[y] Heb. 8 10.
[z] 1. Cor. 3. 5.
[a] Ephes 4. 30.
[b] Exod 31. 18.
[c] Cap 36. 26.
[d] Theophylact.
[e] Marlorat.
[f] Anſelm.
[g] Epheſ. 6. 12.
[h] Pſal. 146 2.
[i] See Tortura Torti pag 361.
[k] 2. Cor. 11. 4. Matth. 24. 24.
[l] B. of Lin. anſwer to a name leſſe Cath. pag. vlt.
[m] Rom. 1. 16.
[n] 1. Cor. 1. 21.

Paſtors, the word and miniſterie of reconciliation, and they being appointed Ambaſſadours for Chriſt, as though God did beſeech you through them, intreat you in Chriſts ſtead that you be reconciled to God, 2.Cor.5.18,19,20.

If this one leſſon onely were well vnderſtood and learned in England, namely, that the [o] tongue of the preachers is the pen of a readie writer, whereby men are made Chriſts Epiſtle, written not with inke, but with the ſpirit of the liuing God, and ſo ſealed vp vnto the day of redemption; we ſhould not need to giue thankes at our meales, as that odde Prieſt in old time:

[o] Pſal.45.2.

* Deo gratias,
quod nos ſatias
bonis ruſticorum contra voluntatem eorum, Amen.

* Caſparus. Fenckius, Orat Paneg.2. pag.19.

For all ſutes of vnkindneſſe againſt our perſons, and all quarrels about tithes and and other duties incident to our place, would inſtantly ſurceaſe. Then the [p] feet of ſuch as bring glad tiding of peace would be reputed beautifull, and all good people in vntained zeale turne [q] Galathians, if it were poſſible, willing to pull out their eyes, and to giue them for their Paſtors good.

[p] Rom 10.15.

[q] Galat.4.15.

This alſo may teach all Cleargie men to be faithfull and painefull in their calling, that they likewiſe may finde ſuch confidence towards God, as Paul had, euen letters teſtimoniall of their indefatigable diligence written in their owne conſciences. It is an eaſie matter in a corrupt age to be well beneficed aut errore hominis, aut arte Simonis; as one wittily: but to play the part of a good Paſtor, (as [r] Gregorie the Great ſaid) is ars artium, & ſcientia ſcientiarum. A Prelate therefore muſt not lay a Biſhopricke vnder his feet, making one dignitie a ſtep vnto another: but he muſt lay it vpon his ſhoulders, and remember that as Biſhops enioy honour by their place, ſo they ſuſtaine a burthen in their office.

[r] Paſtoral. part. 1.cap.2.

Not that we are ſufficient of our ſelues to thinke any thing as of our ſelues: but if we be able to doe any thing, the ſame commeth of God.] A pregnant Text againſt the [f] Pelagians, [t] affirming that our good actions and cogitations proceed onely from free-will, and not from Gods ſpeciall grace. Secondly, this maketh againſt the Semipelagians, I meane the Papiſts, [u] holding that man hath a power of free-will in his owne nature, which being ſtirred and helped, can and doth of it ſelfe co-operate with grace. So writes [x] Andradius plainely: The motion of free-will, and applying of it ſelfe to righteouſneſſe, doth no more depend vpon the graces of God, then the fires burning of the wood doth depend vpon the power of God: Intimating that our will adioyneth it ſelfe vnto Gods grace, not by grace, but as carried thereto by the force of nature. we teach on the contrary, that freedome of the will to turne to God, and to worke with him, is no power of nature, but the worke of grace. For our ſelues are not ſufficient as of our ſelues to thinke [y] much leſſe to ſpeake, leaſt of all to doe that which is good. [z] Indeed we will, but it is God that worketh in vs the will; we worke, but it is God that worketh in vs to worke, according to his good pleaſure. Thus it behoueth vs to beleeue, thus alſo to ſpeake, that God in our humble confeſſion and ſubmiſſion may haue the whole. [a] For we liue in more ſafetie if we giue all vnto God, rather then if we commit our ſelues partly to our ſelues, and partly to God. Our ſelues are not ſufficient to thinke any good, [b] either in part or in whole. We cannot ſay that it is [c] ours in part, and Gods in part, ſeeing of him, and through him, and for him are all things: [d] Et magna & media & minima. See S. Auguſtine de bono perſeuerant. cap.13. & contra duas epiſt. Pelagian. lib 4.cap.6.epiſt.46.& 47. de gratia & libero arbitrio ad Valentin. & ad eundem de corrept. & gratia, cap.1. 2.3.8.14. Caluin. Inſtit lib.2.cap.3.4.5. B. Iewel Defenſ. Apolog.part.1.c.2.diuiſ.3. Dr. Morton appeale.l 1.c.2.§.10. Perkins reformed Cath.tit. Free-will: & Dr. Abbat ibidem pag 100 101.

[f] Aquin. Anſelm. Rhem. in loc.
[t] Aug. Hæreſ. 88. & retract. lib 1.cap.9.
[u] Pelican apud Mayorat. D. Fulk. Kilius in loc.
[x] Orthodox. explicat lib 4.
[y] Primatius.
[z] Aug. de bono perſe.c.13.
[a] Idem vbi ſup. cap.6.
[b] Ardens in loc.
[c] Chryſoſt. in 2.Cor.Hom.6.
[d] Aug. retract. lib.1.cap.9.

Thirdly, this may ſerue to confute the [e] Noueliſts inueighing againſt our Communion Booke, for that in the Collect appointed to be read this day wee pray thus: Almightie and euerlaſting God, which art wont to giue more then wee deſire, deſire, or deſerue: powre downe vpon vs the abundance of thy mercie, forgiuing vs thoſe things whereof our conſcience is afraid, and giuing vnto vs that, that our prayer dare not preſume to aske, through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord. And in another Collect after the Offertorie: Thoſe things which for our vnworthineſſe we dare not aske, vouchſafe to giue vs for the worthineſſe of thy Sonne Ieſus Chriſt our Lord. Theſe paſſages (as they ſay, who dare ſay any thing) carrie with them a note of the Popiſh ſeruile feare and ſauour not of that confidence and reuerent familiaritie, that the children of God haue through Chriſt with their heauenly Father. [f] Anſwer is made, that acknowledging of our vnworthineſſe is the ground of humilitie, and that humilitie is a principall ornament of Prayer, and in a ſuiter ſuch a commendable vertue, [g] that the teſtification thereof argueth a ſound apprehenſion of his ſupereminent glorie before whom we ſtand, and putteth alſo into his hands a kinde of bond or pledge for the ſecuritie againſt our vnthankefulneſſe: the verie naturall root whereof is alwayes either ignorance, diſſimulation, or pride. Ignorance, when we know not the Author from whom our good comes: diſſimulation, when our hands are more open then our eyes vpon that we receiue: pride, when we thinke our ſelues worthy of that, which vndeſerued fauour and meere grace beſtoweth. And therefore to abate ſuch vaine imaginations in our prayer, with the true conceit of vnworthineſſe, is rather to preuent, then commit a fault; and it ſauoureth not of any baſeneſſe or ſeruile feare; but rather of great truſt in Gods mercie: for thoſe things which we for our vnworthineſſe dare not aske, we deſire that God for the worthineſſe of his Sonne, would notwithſtanding vouchſafe to grant, The knowledge of our vnworthineſſe is not without faith in the merits of Chriſt; with that true feare cauſed by the one, there is coupled true boldneſſe and incouragement ariſing from the other. Euen our verie ſilence, which our vnworthineſſe putteth vs vnto, doth it ſelfe make requeſt for vs, and that in great confidence: for albeit looking inward we are ſtricken dumbe, yet looking vpward we ſpeake and preuaile. So the [h] publican praying in the Temple, would not come nigh, nor lift vp his eyes; and yet you know what Chriſt pronounced of him, and what a generall rule he grounded vpon that particular example, to wit, Euery man that exalteth himſelfe ſhall be brought low, and he that humbleth himſelfe ſhall be exalted. So the [i] prodigall childe ſaid to his owne father, and that after he was receiued into fauour, euen after his father had embraced and kiſſed him, I am no more worthy to be called thy ſonne. So S. Paul writes here, We are not ſufficient of our ſelues to thinke any thing as of our ſelues: and yet he ſaith our truſt is in God through Chriſt.

[e] T.C.lib.1. pag.136.

For the Letter killeth, but the Spirit giueth life] [k] As a man; ſo the Scripture conſiſts of a bodie and a ſoule. The [l] ſuperficiall ſound of the Letter is the bodie, but the true ſenſe is the ſoule. The Letter then of the Bible not vnderſtood, often killeth [m] Heretickes and Iewes, and carnall Goſpellers: it is the Spirit onely that giues light and life to ſuch as ſit in darkeneſſe and in the ſhadow of death. It is a notable ſaying of [n] Hierome: Non in verbis eſt Euangelium, ſed in ſenſu: non in ſuperficie, ſed in medulla; non in verborum foliis, ſed in radice rationis. And therefore we muſt in reading holy writ apply our ſelues ad ſenſum rei, more then ad ſonum vocabuli, ſaith [o] Tertullian. According to this expoſition [p] ignorant Clergie men are moſt vnable to miniſter the new Teſtament, vnderſtanding neither the Spirit, nor yet ſo much as the Letter. As [q] one ſharply taxed an illiterate Biſhop in his age.

Magne pater clamas, occidit litera; in ore
Hoc vnum, occidit litera ſemper habes.
Cauiſti bene tu, ne te vlla occidere poſſit
Littera, non vlla eſt littera nota tibi,
Nec fruſtra metuis ne occidat litera, ſcis non Viuificet qui te ſpiritus eſſe tibi.

But S. Auguſtine and [r] other Interpreters haue more fitly conſtrued this according to Pauls intent of the Goſpell and the Law, ſhewing that the Law is the Letter

[f] Dr. White defen. of his anſwer to the admonit. pag 493.
[g] Hooker. Eccl. ſ. polit. l. 5 §. 47.
[h] Luke 18.13.
[i] Luke 15.21.
[k] Origen. peri-archon, lib. 4. cap. 2.
[l] Auguſt. Ser. 70. de temp.
[m] Idem Ser. 100 de temp.
[n] Expoſit. priet. in epiſt. Gal. c. 1.
[o] Lib. contra Prax. cap. 3.
[p] Ardens in loc.
[q] Thomas Morus epigram.
[r] Lib. de Spirit. & Lit. cap. 5. 6. & ſequent. Ambroſ. Hieron. Anſelm.

Letter as being figured in ſtones, and written with inke by the miniſterie of Moſes; and that the Goſpell is the Spirit, as being firſt publiſhed vnto the world by the comming downe of the Holy Ghoſt, and imprinted in our hearts by the Spirit of the liuing God.

There is a ſpirit in the Law; for[t] the commandement is holy, iuſt, and good: and there is a letter in the Goſpell, and that a killing letter, euen the [u] ſauour of death vnto death in all rebrobate: but in [x] this text we muſt exactly conſider the Law and the Goſpell as they ſtand in oppoſition each one with other, and ſo the [y] proper office of the law is to threaten, accuſe, terrifie, condemne, kill. As Luther peremptorily lex non damnans eſt ficta & picta lex. On the contrarie, the proper office of the Goſpell, is to preach [z] glad tidings vnto the poore, to comfort all that mourne, to binde vp the broken hearted: In a word to conuert ſoules, and to giue life. So [a] S. Iohn in his Goſpell expreſly, the law was giuen by Moſes, but grace came by Ieſus Chriſt. And thus accurately to diſtinguiſh betweene the Law and the Goſpell is ſapientiarum ſapientia, the wiſdome of all wiſdome, quoth [b] Martine Luther. It is obſerued pretily, that the ceremonies of the Law were firſt in their prime mortales; after in Chriſts age, mortua; laſt of all in our time, mortiferæ. But it may be ſaid as truly that euery letter of the morall Law, yea iot or tittle thereof, is able to kill all mankinde; for it is, ſaith the Apoſtle, the miniſtration of death.

And that in foure reſpects, as
1. [c] Reuealing our ſinne, Rom. 3. 20.
2. [d] Encreaſing our ſinne, Rom. 7. 8.
3. Accuſing vs of ſinne, Ioh. 5. 45.
4. Condemning vs for ſinne, Rom. 6. 23.

But the Goſpell is the miniſtration of righteouſneſſe, like Iohn the Baptiſt, pointing out the Lambe of God, who taketh away the ſinnes of the world; aſſuring our conſcience that [e] there is no condemnation to them that are in Chriſt. As [f] Auguſtine moſt diuinely: Quod lex operum minando imperat, hoc fidei lex credendo imperat. [g] When the Law calleth vpon thee for thy debt; crying, pay that thou doſt owe: the Goſpell acquits thy bonds and ſaith vnto thy ſoule, Thy ſinnes are forgiuen thee. For the Law of the ſpirit of life which is in Chriſt Ieſus, hath freed thee from the law of ſinne and death: Rom. 8. 2. See Epiſtle Sunday following.

If the miniſtration of death] As the Goſpell is more gracious then the Law; ſo likewiſe more glorious, and that in reſpect of
- Countenance: [h] For it is more honourable to bee the Miniſter of Mercie, then an executioner of Iudgement. A deaths-man is accounted baſe, but the very feet of ſuch as bring glad tidings are beautifull.
- Continuance: For Moſes glory is aboliſhed and done away, but the Goſpels miniſterie remaineth. All Moſes glory was but a [i] type of Chriſts glorie: now the ſubſtance being come, the ſhadow vaniſheth. [k] All the Prophets and the Law prophecied vnto Iohn: but truth and grace came by Ieſus Chriſt, Iohn 1. 17. [l] Looke then how farre the Sunne doth obſcure the leſſer lights; euen ſo farre the Goſpell exceeds in glorie the Law. For when that which is perfect is come, that which is imperfect is aboliſhed, 1. Cor. 13. 10.

[t] Rom. 7. 12.
[u] 2. Cor. 2. 16.
[x] Caluin.
[y] See Luther loc com. tit. de legis vſu theologico & ſpirituali.
[z] Eſay 61. 1.
[a] Cap. 1. ver. 17.
[b] Loc. com. tit. de neceſſitate diſcrim. inter Legem & Euangel.
[c] Aquin.
[d] Caietan Nitimur in vetitum.
[e] Rom. 8. 1.
[f] De ſpirit. & lit. cap 13.
[g] Luther loc. com tit. de diſcrim. inſt. legal. & Euangel.
[h] Aquin.
[i] Ambroſ. Anſelm. Marlorat. in loc.
[k] Matth. 11. 13.
[l] Theodoret apud Oecumen & Primaſius in loc.

The Goſpell. MARKE 7. 31. vnto y^e ende

Ieſus departed from the Coaſts of Tyre & Sydon, and came vnto the ſea of Galile, through the middeſt of the ten Cities, and they brought vnto him one that was deafe, &c.

AMong many, there be [m] two maine demonſtrations of Chriſts diuinitie: the words of his Prophets, and the workes of himſelfe. Both are met together in [n] this place; for it is shewed here by S. Marke, that he wrought at [o] one time, with one accord, and that a [p] little word, two great wonders; and that according to the prediction of his Prophet [q] Esay, Then shall the eyes of the blinde be lightned, and the eares of the deafe be opened. If any then want euidence to proue that Christ is God, let me say to him, as it was once said vnto Peter and Andrew, [r] Come and see.

[m] Scotus prolog. 1 ſent.

The whole may be diuided into three principall parts, answerable to three principall parties expressed in the text, namely, the party
- Cured: One that was deafe, and had an impediment in his speech.
- Curing: Christ, And when he had taken him aside, &c.
- Procuring: Who brought the patient vnto Christ, and prayed to put his hands vpon him.

Iesus departed from the Coasts of Tyre and Sidon, and came vnto the sea of Galile.] Christ was not a perpetuall resident in one benefice; but hee [s] went about from Coast to Coast, doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the deuill, By which example we may learne to be [t] diligent and industrious in our seuerall callings, and that [u] we should not expect vntill other vpseeke vs, but that we should seeke, yea [x] serue them in loue, doing good vnto all men, especially to them which are of the household of faith, Gal. 6. 10.

And they brought vnto him.] In these neighbours of the deafe man, [y] interpreters haue noted a liuely patterne both of faith and of loue: First of faith, in that hearing of Christ they beleeued, and in beleeuing they came to him, entreating fauour, not for themselues onely, but for their sicke friend also: being assured that the worlds Sauiour could with a touch easily cure him. [z] Here then are foure degrees of a iustifying faith, according to that, Rom. 10. 13. Whosoeuer shall call vpon the name of the Lord shall be saued: but how shall they call on him, in whom they haue not beleeued? And how shall they beleeue in him, of whom they haue not heard? and how shall they heare without a Preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent? The first step is to heare Christs word; the second, so to heare, that we beleeue; the third, so to beleeue, that we dare [a] goe boldly to the throne of grace; calling on him in whom we beleeue: the fourth is, so to call and aske, that our request may be granted, and our selues saued. Againe, their action was full of loue; first, in that they brought him vnto Christ. [b] Secondly, for that they deferred not this good worke, but instantly brought him, as soone as Christ was in the midst of their Coasts. Thirdly, for that they were not cold suiters in his behalfe, but earnest petitioners vnto Christ, that he would put his hands vpon him. Hereby [c] teaching vs how to demeane our selues toward our sicke neighbours, and distressed friends: insinuating that it is not enough to wish well, or speake well, except we doe well vnto them: and that we must not only labour to helpe them our selues, but also when need shall require to procure other of greater skill and abilitie to giue them further contentment and ease. There be many motiues vnto this good office; but especially two; namely, Gods precept, and promise. Precept. [d] Be ye mercifull, as your Father is mercifull Promise, [e] Blessed is he that considereth the poore and needy, the Lord shall deliuer him in the time of trouble. See Gospell Sund. 4. and Epist. Sund. 2. after Trinitie.

One that was deafe and had an impediment in his speech,] As dumbe he could not aske, as deafe he could not heare counsell and comfort for his good. [f] In which respect he was in a more miserable case then either the blinde, or the Leper, or the lame: for they made their griefe knowne to Christ in crying, O Iesu the sonne of Dauid haue mercy vpon me; and heard also what he said vnto them; O sonne, be of good cheere, thy sinnes are forgiuen thee. Whether we construe this of spirituall or bodily deafenesse, it was occasioned by [g] Satan, and bred by sinne. The deuill as a murthering theefe, comming to steale from vs our soule, the most precious iewell in all our house, laboureth especially to stop our eares, lest

[n] Vega in loc.
[o] Ferus ser. 3. in loc.
[p] Verbulo minimo: Cosser in loc.
[q] Cor. 35. v. 5.
[r] Iohn. 1. 39.
[s] Acts 10. 38.
[t] Kilius in loc.
[u] Ardens
[x] Gal 5 13.
[y] Luther. Heming, Culman.
[z] Sarcerius.
[a] Heb. 4. 16.
[b] Ferus serm. 3. in loc.
[c] Zepper con. 1. in loc.
[d] Luke 6. 36.
[e] Psal. 41. 1.
[f] Ardens Cosser.
[g] Theophylact.

leſt we ſhould heare that which is for our good, and to cloſe our mouthes, leſt we ſhould call for that which is for our good. In which regard Satan is termed in [h] another text a dumbe and a deafe deuill. Not [i] formaliter (as the Schoole doth ſpeake) for he is a roaring Lion: but [k] cauſaliter, as making other dumbe. See Goſpell 2. Sunday in Lent.

Satan then is impellens cauſa, but Adam our firſt parent [l] contrahens. He was deafe when he did not obey Gods expreſſe commandement; and dumbe, when he did not reprehend his ſeduced and ſeducing wife. Deafe, when he did not heare the voice of God, Adam, where art thou? Dumbe, when he did not vpon that ſummons ingenuouſly confeſſe his ſinne. Now the [m] Scripture telleth vs plainely, that in Adam all men haue ſinned, and therefore all of vs are by nature [n] borne deafe, and dumbe, not able to heare, much leſſe to ſpeake what we ſhould, as we ſhould, vntill Chriſt open our dull eares, and vnlooſe our ſtammering tongue with his Ephata from aboue.

[o] Some Poſtillers obſerue Saint Markes order and method; firſt mentioning a leſſer euill, one that was deafe: then a greater, and had an impediment in his ſpeech: according to that of the [p] Wiſeman; he that contemneth ſmall things, ſhall fall by little and little. The [q] Preachers of the word are they who bring this deafe and dumbe man vnto Ghriſt; he therefore that hath eares to heare, let him heare. For [r] that man is deafe who ſtops his eares at the Goſpell; and mute, who will not open his lips that his mouth may ſhew forth God praiſe. Concerning their eſtate which are corporally deafe and dumbe: men ought to iudge charitably knowing that the [s] wayes of God are paſt finding out; who being infinitely rich in mercie, doth exact but little where he gines a little. The [t] ſpirit of the Lord haply ſpeakes vnto them, and [u] cryeth in them Abba father; [x] helping their infirmities, and [y] witneſſing with their ſpirit that they be the ſonnes of God. See Hierom. expoſit. prior in Galat. cap. 3. Concil. Carthag. 4. Can. 76. Zepper. con. 3. in loc.

They prayed him] A [z] patterne of the precept, [a] pray one for another. It is [b] neceſſitie makes a man pray for himſelfe; but it is charitie moues a man to pray for another. [c] Now that deuotion is moſt acceptable, which is not forged by diſſimulation, nor forced by conſtraint; but ariſeth out of pure zeale to God, and meere loue to men. It is our dutie therefore to pray, not for our ſelues only, but for others alſo, for [d] all men, euen our [e] enemies, earneſtly beſeeching Chriſt to put his bleſſed hands vpon them, albeit they deſire to lay their violent curſed hands vpon vs.

To put his hands vpon him] There is a twofold ἐπίθεσις τῶν χειρῶν mentioned in holy Scripture; [f] confirmatoria, & curatoria: the firſt vſed in ordaining Presbyters, as 1. Tim. 4. 14. and 1. Tim 5. 22. The ſecond in bleſſing and healing the people, Matth. 9. 18. and 19. 13. Now the friends of this patient intreated Chriſt to put his hand vpon him; [g] either knowing that he cured other impoſitione manuum, as the blinde man, Marke 8. 23, 25. and the crooked woman, Luke 13. 13. or elſe for that the Prophets and holy men of God vſed in helping and healing the ſicke, to lay their hands vpon them. A ceremonie not vnknowne vnto the Gentiles, as it is apparent by the ſpeech of [h] Naaman the Syrian; I thought with my ſelfe, the Prophet will ſurely come out, and ſtand, and call on the name of Lord his God, and put his hand on the place, and heale the leproſie.

[i] And when he had taken him aſide from the people] ſundrie Diuines haue ſundry deuices in expounding this clauſe. Litterally, [i] ſome thinke that he carried him aſide from the preaſe, that he might the better attend the buſineſſe out of the throne. [k] Other, for that among ſo many, ſome would be regardleſſe and irreuerent ſpectators. [l] Other, that he might pray more deuoutly, while he did the cure. [m] Moſt are of opinion, that he did ſo to ſhun all oſtentation and vaine-glory. [n] Miſtically, none are cured by Chriſt, but ſuch as he puts apart, drawing them out of Babylon, Apocalyp. 18. 4. out of Sodome, Gen. 19. 6. from out of the broad way, Matth 7. 13. to his little flocke, Luk. 12. 32. that they may be men in the world, not of the world, Ioh. 15. 19. and 17. 16.

He

[h] Luke 11. 14.
[i] Ludol. de vit. Chriſt. part 1. cap. 73.
[k] Caietan. in Luc. 11.
[l] Vide Hieron. & Panigarol. in loc.
[m] Rom 5. 12. & 1 Cor 15. 22.
[n] Melanct & Kilius in loc.
[o] Pontan. Diez
[p] Eccle 19. 1.
[q] Euſeb. Emiſ. Hom. in loc.
[r] Arboreus in loc
[s] Rom. 11. 33.
[t] 1. Iohn 2. 1. 7. Apocalyp 2 7.
[u] Galat 4. 6.
[x] Rom 8. 26.
[y] Ibidem. verſ 16.
[z] Kilius in loc.
[a] Iames 5. 16.
[b] Chryſoſt. Homil. 14. ex Matt. cap 6
[c] Thom 22. queſt. 82 art. 7.
[d] 1. Tim 2. 1.
[e] Matth. 5. 44.
[f] B Barlow ſermon at Hampton Court. Sept. 21. 1605. in Act 20 28.
[g] Maldonat.
[h] 2 King 5. 11.
[i] Sarcerius.
[k] Euthymius.
[l] Caluin apud Marlorat.
[m] Chryſoſt apud Thom. Theophylact. Ardens. Ianſen.
[n] Hieron. Euſeb. Emiſ. Culman. Vega.

He put his fingers into his eares, and did ſpit, and touched his tongue] Chriſt could haue cured this man, as he did many, with his bare word; according to that of the [o] Centurion, ſpeake the word onely, and my ſeruant ſhall be healed: but he did vſe feet, finger, ſpettell, tongue; [p] to ſhew that all the parts of his humane nature being vnited vnto the diuine, were ſalutiferous, euen the true meane whereby men are holpen in all their ſickneſſe. He [q] carried all our ſorrowes, and cured all our ſores. Or haply Chriſt vſed theſe things, at this time, [r] leſt we ſhould tempt God in neglecting ordinarie meanes. Or to [s] ſhew that it was the finger of God, as Luke 11.20. If I by the finger of God caſt out deuils. And ſo this man was healed euen by the ſame hand that made him. Or inſinuating that he wrought this cure by his [t] power and wiſdome: the firſt ſignified by his finger, the ſecond by ſpettle. Myſtically, the finger of God is the ſpirit of God: for whereas [u] S. Luke ſaith, If I by the finger of God caſt out deuils, [x] S. Matthew hath, If I caſt out deuils by the ſpirit of God. Our bleſſed Sauiour therefore did put his fingers into the deafe mans eare, [y] to ſignifie that the preaching of the word to mens outward eares only, without the ſecret operation of the ſpirit, ſpeaking inwardly to their hearts, is not auaileable to ſaluation. Albeit Paul plant, and Apollos water, only God giueth encreaſe, 1. Cor. 3.6. Here ſome Friers are ſo conceited, as to tell all the fingers on Chriſts hand, and euery ioynt of the ſame: but I cannot finger this leſſon, I referre you therefore to Iacob de Vorag. ſer. 1. in loc. Pontan. Bibliothec. Concion. tom. 4. fol. 199.

And looked vp to heauen] [z] To ſhew that he was our mediatour and aduocate with God our Father in heauen. Or [a] intimating that euery good and perfect gift is from aboue, comming downe from the Father of lights: and therefore we muſt in all our ſickneſſe expect health and eaſe from heauen, ſaying with Dauid, [b] I will lift vp mine eyes vnto the hils, from whence commeth my helpe: my helpe commeth euen from the Lord, which hath made heauen and earth. Or he looked vp to heauen: [c] hereby teaching vs to ſet our affections on things which are aboue, Coloſſ. 3.2. In this [d] vale of miſerie we are ſubiect to deafeneſſe, and dumbneſſe, and infinite other infirmities of minde and body: but in Hieruſalem aboue, there [e] is no more dying, nor crying, but all teares ſhall be wiped away from our eyes, and ſorrow from our hearts. And therefore let our conuerſation be in heauen, as hauing in it our beſt friend, our beſt treaſure, beſt helpe, beſt home.

Haply ſome will obiect, that lifting vp of the eyes, and ſighing, are geſtures of one that prayeth, and makes a ſuit: but Chriſt could haue wrought this miracle without prayer; or helpe from other. It is true, Chriſt could, and often did cure without prayer: yet in ſome caſes, and at ſome times he did vſe to pray for two reaſons eſpecially. Firſt, that all the world might know that he was ſent from God, euen from the boſome of his Father in heauen. And this reaſon is rendred by himſelfe, Ioh. 11. 41, 42. Ieſus lift vp his eyes, and ſaid, Father, I thanke thee, becauſe thou haſt heard me. I know that thou heareſt me alwaies; but becauſe of the people that ſtand by, I ſaid it, that they may beleeue that thou haſt ſent me. Secondly, for our [f] example, teaching vs how we ſhould deſire God to looſe our ſtammering tongues, and open our dull eares: [g] inſtructing Phyſitians alſo to pray while patients are vnder their cure, that the God of heauen would bleſſe their handie worke.

And ſighed] He did not this as doubting of his cure, but to ſhew firſt, that he was very [h] man, ſubiect to weeping and paſſion as we are, yet without ſinne: Hebr. 4. verſ. 15. Secondly, to manifeſt his [i] compaſſion and pittie towards diſtreſſed men; he that ſaid, [k] Bleſſed are the pitifull, is ſuch an high Prieſt [l] as is touched with the feeling of our infirmities. And by this example teaching [m] vs alſo to weepe for the weakneſſe and wickedneſſe of our brethren. Thirdly, to demonſtrate the [n] greatneſſe and grieuouſneſſe of ſinne, which is not cured but by the ſighing and ſuffering of the Sonne of God. In more particular, [o] ſome note that Chriſt did not ſigh vntill he touched the patients tongue, which is an vnruly euill, an [p] open ſepulchre, [q] full of deadly poyſon, a world of wickednes.

And

[o] Matth. 8.8.
[p] Theophylact. Euthym. Arborius.
[q] Eſay 53.4.5.
[r] Sarcerius.
[s] Vega.

[t] Ponigarol.
[u] Cap. 11.10.
[x] Cap. 12.28.

[y] Ferus ſer. 4. Zepper. ſer. 1. in loc.

[z] Euſeb. Emiſ. & Vega in loc.
[a] Beda. Ianſen. Pontan.
[b] Pſal. 121.1.

[c] Ludolphus, Iacob de Vorag.
[d] Pſal. 84.6.
[e] Apocal. 21.4.

[f] Beda. Theophylact. in loc. Idem Greg. Hom. 10. in Ezechiel.
[g] Euthym in loc.
[h] Beda: Quaſi Deus curauit. quaſi homo ingemuit.
[i] Ferus, ſer. 4. in loc. Idem Beza.
[k] Matth 5.7.
[l] Heb. 4.15.
[m] Ludolphus, Ianſen.
[n] Iacob de Vorag ſerm. 1.
[o] Vega.
[p] Pſal. 14.5.
[q] Iam. 3.8.6.

And ſaid vnto him, Ephata, that is to ſay, be opened] He did ſigh as a man, but [r] command as God: vſing neither the ſubiunctiue, nor optatiue, but [f] imperatiue moode: Be opened. The word Ephata, was vulgar in that countrey; [t] by which it doth appeare, that he did not vſe it as a charme, placing extraordinarie power or confidence therein: but that it was his owne will, and proper vertue that wrought the miracle. This (as [u] Maldonate the Ieſuite cenſureth) is a mad gloſſe. Yet his old friend [x] Ianſenius is ſo well in his wits as to receiue it, and ſo would he too, but that it maketh againſt their ſuperſtitious vſing of the word Ephata in their popiſh exorciſme before Baptiſme. The Papiſts, as being maſters of ceremonies, or rather indeed ſlaues, obſerue 22. ceremonies in their adminiſtration of holy Baptiſme: namely, twelue going before Baptiſme, fiue in the action, and other fiue following after, as Bellarmine doth marſhall them in his booke De Baptiſmo, cap. 25, 26, 27. Now the ninth ceremonie before Baptiſme, is applying to ſpittle to the noſtrels and eares of the Infant, and ſaying, Ephata, be opened. And for the lawfulneſſe of this ceremonie, [y] they cite Chriſts example, and S. Ambroſes authoritie. To the firſt our men anſwer, that it is an apiſh tricke, rather in ſcorne, than imitation of Chriſt. And therefore the noble mother of our gratious Soueraigne K. Iames, enioyned the popiſh Archbiſhop at his Baptiſme, to forbeare this idle ceremonie; ſaying, that [z] ſhee would not haue a pockie Prieſt to ſpit in her childs mouth. Our bleſſed Sauiour here did not adminiſter the Sacrament of Baptiſme; why then, I pray you, ſhould they not annoint the eyes of the baptized infant with clay, ſo well as his noſtrils with ſpittle? for Chriſt in the [a] Goſpell opened the eyes of a blinde man with clay; the which is ſo ſignificant, and haply more ſweet than vnſauourie ſlauer of an vnwholſome ſhaueling. Againe, ſuppoſe this action of Chriſt were ſacramentall (a thing which neither they can aske modeſtly, nor we grant iudiciouſly) yet herein [b] they doe not imitate Chriſt; for he did apply ſpittle to the mouth of this patient, but they doe this vnto the noſtrels of the childe to be baptized. As for S. Ambroſes authoritie, there be two places in his workes vrged in this argument. The firſt is cited by [c] Bellarmine, and that is in Tom. 4. Ambroſ. lib. De iis qui myſteriis initiantur, cap. 1. Where by way of preface only the learned Father [d] exhorteth his auditors that they would open their eares vnto his ſpeech, as the deafe man had his eares opened in the Goſpell. The ſecond is quoted by the Rhemiſts in their Annotations vpon this text, and that is lib. 1. de Sacramentis, cap. 1. Where S. Ambroſe mentioneth indeed a needleſſe ceremonie vſed in his age, namely, that the Prieſt touched the noſtrels and eares of him that was baptized; and the truth is [e] euen at that time, there were many ſuperfluous and burthenous rites in the Church; of which Auguſtine complained in his 118. and 119. Epiſtle to Ianuarius. But S. Ambroſe ſpeakes not in that Chapter of exorciſmes vſed in the miniſtration of Baptiſme, nor of ſpittle, nor of the word Ephata: which as [f] one ſpeakes, are nugæ palam in Baptiſmi probrum effræni licentia inuectæ.

And ſtraight-way his eares were opened, and the ſtring of his tongue was looſed, and he ſpeake plaine] [g] Two things illuſtrate Chriſts omnipotent power in acting this miracle: Celeritie, for that he did it ſo ſuddenly, Perfection, for that he did it ſo ſoundly. For the firſt, it is ſaid in the Text, ſtraight-way. Otherwiſe it might haue beene thought that his diſeaſe went away of it ſelfe, or that it was cured by ſome other. And for demonſtration of the ſecond, his thicke eares were opened, and the ſtrings of his ſtammering tongue looſed in ſuch ſort, that he did not onely ſpeake, but ſpeake plainely, that is, rightly and readily. For he that ſaid in the beginning: Let there be lights in the firmament, and it was ſo: let the waters be gathered together, and it was ſo: let the earth bud, and it was ſo: ſaid here, Be opened, and immediatly the deafe did heare, and the dumbe ſpeake. [h] Myſtically, men are looſed from the ſhackles of ſatan and ſinne by the commandement of Chriſt, and preaching of his word. And therefore Chriſt in healing this patient, firſt opened his eares, and then vntied the ſtring of his tongue: [i] becauſe we muſt heare well, before we can ſpeake well. He that will open his lips that

[r] Poſtil. cum Gloſſis & figuris Idem Beda, Ferus, & alij.
[f] Zuinglius. Ianſen. Maldonat.
[t] Bullinger apud Marlorat.
[u] Com in loc.
[x] Concord. euang cap. 62.
[y] Bellarm. de baptiſmo, cap. 25. & Rhem. in loc. ——
[z] Thus his Maieſtie reports: premonition, pag. 33.
[a] Iohn 9.
[b] Epiſc. Eli. reſponſ. ad Card. Bellarm. Apol. pag. 154.
[c] Lib. de Baptiſmo, cap. 25.
[d] Exhortatio auditorum, vt aures aperiant: vt eſt in argument. eiuſdem capitis.
[e] Dr. Fulke in Marke 7. 34
[f] Caluin. Inſtit. lib. 4 cap. 15. §. 19.
[g] Maldonat. in loc.
[h] Heming.
[i] Pontan.

that his mouth may shew forth Gods praise, must be swift to heare, slow to speake, Iames 1.19.

And he commanded them that they should tell no man] Hereby shewing the difference betweene the giuer of a benefit, and the receiuer. He that doth a good turne must instantly forget it: he that receiueth, alway remember it. According to that of [k] Seneca: Beneficium qui dedit taceat, narret qui accepit, [l] Hæc scilicet inter duos beneficij lex est, alter statim obliuiſci debet dati, alter accepti nunquam. Againe, there is a time for all things, a time wherein Christ would haue his miracles knowne, and a time wherein he would haue them vnknowne.

[k] De ben. lib. 2. cap. 11.
[l] Eiusdem lib. cap. 10.

But the more he forbade them, so much the more a great deale they published] The particular publishing of this miracle, contrary to Christs expresse commandement, was rather immoderate [m] zeale, than an imitable vertue. See Gospell, 3. Sunday after Epiph. But their generall praising of God, in saying he hath done all things well, is very commendable.

[m] Caluin. Heming. Zepper.

For God is good { In himselfe: Matth. 19.17. None good but God. / Toward other, in his [n] workes of { Creation. / Preseruation. / Redemption. / Glorification.

[n] Pontan.

In his Creation all well, making of nothing all things, and those good, yea [o] very good. In consideration whereof [p] Augustine said sweetly; Cùm opera Dei considero, moueor ineffabiliter laude Creatoris illorum, qui prorsus ita magnus est in operibus magnis, vt minor non sit in minimis. In his preseruation all well, [q] ordering all things comely, disposing not onely that which is good, but also that which is euill, yea the very deuill, vnto good ends. [r] Etiam spiritibus malis bene vtitur Dominus, ad vindictam malorum, vel ad bonorum probationem. In his redemption all things well, and farre better than in his creation. [s] Illic sua nobis dedit hic vero seipsum contulit, non tam in dominum, quàm in pretium & sacrificium. All things well, yea best of all in his glorification, giuing vs a [t] great reward, yea so great as [u] mans eye neuer saw, neither eare heard, neither heart conceiued.

[o] Gen. 1.31.
[p] Contra Faust. Man. lib. 21. c. 5.
[q] Wisdom 8.1.
[r] August. ad Simplic. lib. 2. quæst. 1.
[s] Granat. in euangel. Dom. 1. Aduent.
[t] Matth. 5.12.
[u] 1. Cor. 2.9.

The Gospell and Epistle well agree: The spirit giueth life saith Paul: the deafe man had his eares opened by the finger of Christ, saith Luke. By the Gospels ministerie men are made Gods Epistle, saith Paul: by the word of Christ the deafe did heare and the dumbe speake, saith Luke. If we be able vnto any thing, the same commeth of God, saith Paul. He hath done all things well, saith Luke. Let vs therefore pray with the Church.

Almightie and euerlasting God, which art alwayes more readie to heare, than we to pray, and art wont to giue more than either we desire or deserue: powre downe vpon vs the abundance of thy mercie, forgiuing vs those things whereof our conscience is afraid, and giuing vnto vs that, that our prayer dare not presume to aske, through Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Epistle. GALAT. 3.16. vnto v. 23.

To Abraham and his seed were the promises made, &c.

THis Epistle consists of three parts: a { Proposition, To Abraham and his seed were made the promises, &c. / Exposition, This I say, &c. / Opposition, Wherefore then serueth the Law, &c,

The maine drift of all this Epistle to the Galathians, is, to shew * that a man is not iustified by the workes of the Law, but by faith in Iesus Christ. Which our Apostle proues accurately: 1. by reasons of [x] experience: 2. from [y] Abrahams example: 3. by manifest text of [z] holy writ: lastly, by manifold apt similitudes and testimonies humane; [a] Brethren, I speake as men doe. The first whereof is the comparison

* Cap. 2 v. 16.
[x] Ibid. ver. 20.
[y] Cap. 3 6.
[z] Ibid. vers. 11. 12.
[a] Vers. 15.

compariſon of a mans will; and his argument is from the [b] leſſer vnto the greater (as Logicians ſpeake.) The teſtament of a man after it is confirmed, may not be broken or abrogated; Ergo, much leſſe the teſtament of God. He doth argue therefore thus:

The Teſtament of God confirmed, cannot be diſanulled.

The promiſes made to Abraham and his ſeed, which is Chriſt, are his Teſtament confirmed: Ergo, they cannot be diſanulled.

[c] Hence we may learne, that it is lawfull to ſpeake in Sermons as men doe, citing teſtimonies of humanitie for illuſtration of points in Diuinitie, reaſoning from things earthly, to things heauenly. So Chriſt in the [d] Goſpell, If ye which are euill can giue to your children good gifts, how much more ſhall your Father which is in heauen giue good things to them that aske him? So Peter, Acts 5.29. We muſt obey men; Ergo, much more God. So the Prophet [e] Ieremie, ſpeaking in the Lords name, The Recabites obeyed their father; how much more ought ye to haue obeyed me? [f] Philoſophers are the Patriarkes of Heretickes, enemies of the Goſpell, as [g] not vnderſtanding the things of the Spirit of God: and therefore to conuince their conſcience by naturall reaſon, is to cut off Goliahs head with his owne ſword, ſaith Saint [h] Hierome. [i] When thou ſhalt goe to warre againſt thine enemies, and the Lord thy God ſhall deliuer them into thine hands, and thou ſhalt take them captiues, and ſhalt ſee among the captiues a beautifull woman, and haſt a deſire to take her for thy wife, then ſhalt thou bring her home to thine houſe, and ſhe ſhall ſhaue her head, and pare her nailes. Humane learning is the Grecian Helena, full of admirable beautie; [k] Cuius facies ſi videri poſſit, pulchrior eſt quam lucifer aut heſperus. And therefore we may not admit her into the Diuinitie ſchooles [l] vntill her haire be ſhaued, and her nailes pared; vntill her ſuperfluous idle conceits, and vnprofitable trickes of ornament are taken away. [m] But when of a Moabite thou haſt made her an Iſraelite, accompanie with her and ſay; [n] her left hand is vnder my head, and her right hand doth imbrace mee. Let vs aſcribe to Philoſophie, ſumma ſed ſua. For the wiſdome of man, to ſpeake the beſt of it, is but a learned kinde of ignorance, which yet being bridled and guided by the Spirit of God, may be wrought (as [o] one well obſerued) to ſpeake like Baalams Aſſe to good purpoſe. To quote then in the Pulpit authorities of Poets, and Philoſophers; or as here Saint Paul, the poſitions of Lawyers and politicians, is not ſo common as commendable, when it is done reuerently without oſtentation, and iudiciouſly for the better vnderſtanding of the text, [p] and more cleere declaration of the truth.

To Abraham and his ſeed] We reade of [q] three teſtaments in holy Bible; to wit, Abrahamicall, Gen. 12. Moſaicall, Exod. 24. and the new Teſtament, Ier. 31. Hebr. 8. Now the firſt and laſt howſoeuer they differ in [r] circumſtance, yet they be the ſame for ſubſtance. So Zacharias in his hymne, Bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael, for he hath viſited and redeemed his people, as he ſpake by the mouth of his holy Prophets euer ſince the world began; to performe the mercie promiſed to our forefathers, and to remember his holy couenant, to performe the oath which he ſware to our forefather Abraham, &c. And the bleſſed Virgine in her Magnificat; He remembring his mercie hath holpen his ſeruant Iſrael, as he promiſed to our forefathers, Abraham and his ſeed for euer. Chriſt is the Paſchall Lambe, 1. Cor. 5. 7. ſlaine from the beginning of the world, Apocalyp. 13. 8. And ſo the Patriarkes and old Fathers were ſaued by faith, [s] in Chriſtum promiſſum: as we now by faith in Chriſtum miſſum.

Were the promiſes made] Saint Paul ſpeakes plurally, [t] becauſe they were made ſometime to Abraham, and ſometime to his ſeed, and ſometime to both: or becauſe they were [u] repeated often to Abraham, as Gen. 12. 4. Gen. 15. 5. Gen. 22. 18. And therefore called promiſes in the plurall, although in ſubſtance they were but one promiſe.

He ſaith not in his ſeed, as many; but in thy ſeed, as of one, which is Chriſt] The Iewes except againſt this interpretation of Paul, and ſay, that the ſingular number [b] Sorerius. Caluin. Paretius.

[c] Luther & Perkins in loc.

[d] Matth. 7. 11.

[e] Cap. 35.

[f] Tertull aduerſ. Hermogen.

[g] 1. Cor. 2. 14.

[h] Epiſt ad Magnum orat. Roman. Deut. 21. verſe 11, 12, &c.

[k] Æneas Siluius Epiſt. Sigiſmund. Duc. Auſtriæ.

[l] Hieron vbi ſup & Aquin. lect 6. in Gal. 3.

[m] Hieron. conſolat. ad Pam. tom. 1 fol. 165.

[n] Cant. 2 6.

[o] Edes ſer Dutie of a King.

[p] M. Deering lect. 20 Heb.

[q] Illyric. Clau. ſcript. verb. teſtament.

[r] Temporis diſtantia, pateſactionis perſpicuitate, promiſſi benedicti ſeminis exhibitione. Illyric vbi ſup.

[s] Kilius in loc.

[t] Perkins in loc.

[u] Anſelm. & Aquin. in loc.

ber is here put for the plurall, one for many. So Saint [x] Hierome doth auow, that he could neuer finde this word in the plurall number; and therefore Paul in this argument may ſeeme to ſpeake more ſubtilly then ſoundly. Yea, that which is worſe, the Ieſuite [y] Em. Sa thinks him (as he ſpeakes of himſelfe, 2. Cor. 11. 6.) rude in ſpeaking. [z] Anſwer is made, that our Apoſtle wrote Apoſtolically, conſtruing the Scripture by the [a] ſame ſpirit by which it was originally penned. And whereas it is obiected that the word ſeed is a Noune collectiue, ſignifying all Abrahams poſteritie; [b] Diuines anſwer, that it is vſed often onely for one, ſo well as for all, or many. For Eue ſaid of Seth, God hath giuen mee another ſeed, Gen. 4. 25. that is, another ſonne. Secondly, the [c] Scripture reports expreſly, that Iſmael, Abrahams ſonne, was caſt out, and not made heire with the bleſſed ſeed. See Galatin. de arcan. cat. verit lib. 5. cap. 13. & Marlorat in loc. Or as [d] other acutely, there is ſemen redimendum, and that is collectiuum; and ſemen redimens, and that is vnicum.

We receiue therefore this expoſition of Paul, acknowledging Chriſt to be this one particular ſeed and ſonne of Abraham, in whom, and by whom the nations of the world are bleſſed: eternall inheritance being firſt granted vnto him, and ſo conuaied vnto ſuch as [e] beleeue in him. As our Apoſtle concludes in this [f] Chapter, If ye be Chriſts, then are ye Abrahams ſeed and heires by promiſe. See Benedictus.

This I ſay] Paul in the former verſes hath laid downe two propoſitions; one, that teſtaments of men confirmed may not be broken: another, that the promiſes were made to Abraham and his ſeed, which is Chriſt. Now what of all this, may ſome ſay? He doth expound himſelfe therefore, this I ſay; that is, the drift and intent of all my ſpeech is to ſhew that the couenant or teſtament ratified by God cannot be fruſtrated. And ſecondly, though it might ſo be, yet that the Law could not abrogate the ſame: which he proues by two reaſons eſpecially.

Firſt, from the circumſtance of time: the law which began foure hundred and thirtie yeares after doth not diſanull, &c.

Secondly, from the nature of a teſtament, donation or legacie: for if inheritance come of the Law, it commeth not of promiſe; but God gaue it to Abraham by promiſe.

The Law which began afterward] The Iewes obiect and ſay, that God miſtruſting his owne promiſes as inſufficient to iuſtifie, further added a better thing; that is to ſay, the Law, whereby men may be made righteous. Our Apoſtle doth anſwer by demonſtration. Abraham obtained not righteouſneſſe before God through the Law, becauſe there was no Law when he liued; and if no Law, then aſſuredly no merit. What then? Nothing elſe but the meere promiſe, which Abraham [g] beleeued, and it was imputed to him for righteouſneſſe. [h] If a rich man not conſtrained thereunto, but of his owne good will, ſhould adopt one to be his ſonne, whom he knoweth not, and to whom he doth owe nothing, and ſhould appoint him heire of all his lands and goods, and then after certaine yeares ſhould lay vpon him a Law to doe this or that; he cannot now ſay that he deſerued this benefit through his owne workes, ſeeing he receiued it of meere fauour many yeares afore: ſo God could not reſpect our deſerts going before righteouſneſſe, for as much as the promiſe was made 430 yeares afore the Law. Wherefore ſaith [i] Luther, if thou wilt rightly deuide the word of truth, accuſtome thy ſelfe to ſeparate the promiſes and the Law ſo farre aſunder as heauen and earth, as the beginning of the world and the latter end; that when the Law commeth and accuſeth thy conſcience, thou maiſt anſwer; Lady law, thou commeſt not in ſeaſon, for thou commeſt too ſoone; tarry yet vntill 430. yeares be full expired, and when they are paſt, then come and ſpare not. But if thou come then, it will be too late, for then hath the promiſe preuented the 430. yeares; to which I aſſent, and ſweetly repoſe my ſelfe in the ſame. Therefore I haue nothing to doe with thee, for I liue now with the beleeuing Abraham; or rather ſince Chriſt his ſeed is reuealed and giuen vnto me, I [k] liue in him, who is my [l] righteouſneſſe, ſanctification and redemption. Inheritance commeth on Gods part by promiſe, not on our part by performance.

It

[x] Expoſit. prior. in Epiſt. ad Gal. cap. 3.

[y] Notat. in loc.
[z] Luther in loc.
[a] Caietan. in loc.

[b] Illyric. vbi ſupra in verb. ſemen.
[c] Gen. 21. 10 & Galat 4. 30
[d] Aretius in loc.

[e] Oleuian de ſubſtantia ſæd. part. 1. art. 1. 1. Eraſm. paraphra. in loc Seminis enim nomine non Chriſtus per ſe, ſed cum ſuo corpore coniunctus eſt intelligendus. Beza.
[f] Verſ 9. & 29.

[g] Gal 3 6.
[h] Luther in loc.

[i] Vide ſup.

[k] Gal. 2. 20.
[l] 1. Cor. 1. 30.

It is obiected against this accurate computation of time, Gen. 15. 13. Know for a suretie that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs foure hundred yeeres, and shall serue them. Answer is made by [m] S. Augustine, and [n] other, that Moses in that Text speakes of the time that was from the beginning of Abrahams seed, or birth of Isaac, to the beginning of the Law: but Paul in this Text, of all the time that was betweene the giuing of the promise, and the giuing of the Law. Now the promise was made to Abraham, when he was seuentie and fiue yeares old, Genes. 12.4. And Isaac was borne when Abraham was an hundred yeares old, Gen. 21.5. that is, twentie fiue yeares after the first promise. And from the birth of Isaac, vntill the children of Israel were deliuered out of Egypt, at which time the Law was giuen (as Oecumenius, Aquinas, Aretius, exactly reckon according to Gods owne records) were foure hundred and fiue yeares, in all foure hundred and thirtie, as Moses, Exod. 12.40.

[m] Decimit Dei lib. 16. cap 24.
[n] Oecumen. Aquin Caietan in loc.

For if the inheritance come of the Law, it commeth not now of promise, but God gaue it, &c.] This argument is plaine: for naturall reason, although it be neuer so blinde, compelleth vs to confesse, that it is one thing to promise, and another thing to require; and one thing to giue, another thing to take. The [o] Law requireth and exacteth of vs our workes; on the contrary, the promise doth offer vnto vs the spirituall and euerlasting benefits of God, offert & adfert, and that freely for Christs sake. Therefore we cannot obtaine inheritance by the Law [p] for as many as are of the workes of the Law, are vnder the curse: but by the promise; for it saith, [q] in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed. [r] If they which are of the Law be heires, our faith is made vaine and the promise void, and God a lier. Eternall life is the [s] gift of God, conueyed by testament as a [t] legacie, which is not an exaction, but a donation. Heires looke not for lawes or any burthens to be laid vpon them by their fathers will, but for an inheritance confirmed thereby. Now that we may receiue this legacie, we must bring vnto God nothing but hunger and thirst after it, making suit for it by asking, seeking, knocking. For albeit in our selues all of vs are most vnworthy: yet shall it suffice for the hauing of this blessing, if our names be found in the testament of God.

[o] Luther.
[p] Gal. 3 10.
[q] Gen 22.18.
[r] Rom. 4.14.
[s] Rom 6 23.
[t] Perkins.

God gaue it to Abraham by promise] That is, as afore, to Abraham and his seed, For this gift is not priuate, but a publike donation, and Abraham here must be considered as a publike person, and that which was giuen vnto him, was in him giuen to all that should beleeue as he did. If then thou beest indued with faith [u] as much as is a graine of mustard seed, thou art [x] blessed with faithfull Abraham. Inheritance of eternall happinesse is as surely thine, as it was his when he beleeued: and if thou continue faithfull vnto the end, thou shalt [y] sit downe with Abraham, Isaac and Iacob in the kingdome of heauen, and after this life rest in the [z] bosome of Abraham euermore. For whatsoeuer was done to him as the [a] Father of the faithfull, is done to them also that walke in the steps of his faith.

[u] Luke 17.6.
[x] Gal 3.9
[y] Matth. 18.11.
[z] Luke 16 22.
[a] Rom. 4. 11, 12

Wherefore then serueth the Law?] You haue heard of the proposition, and exposition of our Apostle. Now there followeth an [b] opposition against his doctrine, containing a twofold obiection. The first in the 19. verse: Wherefore then serueth the Law? The second, verse 12. Is the Law then against the promise of God? To the first, answer is made, that the Law was added because of transgressions. [c] Not for iustification, but for transgression, namely to suppresse, and expresse sinne. The ciuill vse of the Law is to punish transgression, and to restraine villanie. Good men are a [d] Law to themselues, and so, the Law is not giuen vnto the [e] righteous man. But Almightie God hath ordained Magistrates, Parents, Ministers, Lawes, bonds, to bridle the wicked, at the least to binde Sathan that he rage not in his bond-slaues after his owne lust. And therefore Politicians and Stats-men haue much esteemed and honoured the very senselesse instruments of iustice. Baldwin the great Lawyer, called the Gibbet lignum benedictum; and the the good Emperour [f] Maximilian whensoeuer he passed by the Gallowes, vsually putting off his hat saluted it thus: [e] All haile holy iustice.

[b] Aquin. Aretius. Kimius.
[c] Primasius in loc.
[d] Rom 2 14.
[e] 1. Tim. 1 9.
[f] Max I. Salue sancta iustitia.

The spirituall vse of the Law is to reueale sinne, that a man as in a glasse may behold behold his ignorance, misery, blindnesse, infirmitie, iudgement, death, hell: As as [g] a corosie laid vnto an old sore, not to heale it, but to stirre it vp, and make the disease aliue, that a man may feele in what perill he stands, and how nigh to deaths doore. [h] For our natures are so corrupt, that we could not know them to be corrupt without the Law. Rom. 7. 7. I knew not sinne (saith our Apostle) but by the Law; for I had not knowne lust, except the Law had said, Thou shalt not lust. [i] Is not my word euen as fire, saith the Lord, and like a hammer breaking stones? It is that [k] mightie strong winde, and that terrible earth-quake, renting the Mountaines, and cleauing the Rockes asunder, that is, the proud and obstinate hypocrites. Eliah as being not able to abide these terrours of the Law, which by these things are signified, couered his face with a mantle. Thus as you see, the Law was added because of transgressions, that is, to restraine them ciuilly, [l] but especially to reueale them spiritually, that men might vnderstand the greatnesse of their sinnes, and the iust wrath of God for the same.

Vntill the seed came to whom the promise was made] If the dayes of the Law should not be shortned, no man should be saued: and therefore certaine bounds are limited to this Tyrant, beyond the which he cannot raigne, namely, The Law was added because of transgressions, vntill the seed came: [m] That is, vntill the time of grace, till Christ in the fulnesse of time was borne. This may be construed literally; for albeit the Law serues to reueale sinne till the worlds end; [n] yet in respect of the Mosaicall manner of reuealing transgressions, it is added but vntill Christ. For the Law before Christ did conuince men of sinne not onely by preceps and threatnings, but also by Rites and Ceremonies, as by washings and sacrifices; all which assuredly were reall confessions of sinne, and as [o] Paul speakes, an hand-writing against vs, vntill Christ tooke them away, and fastned them vpon his crosse. [p] The Prophets and the Law did endure till Iohn, and from the time of Iohn the Baptist vntill this day, the kingdome of heauen suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force. Spiritually the blessed seed is [q] come when once Christ [r] dwelleth in our hearts by faith. Here we must begin to say, [s] Now leaue off Law, thou hast terrified and tormented our consciences enough: [t] All thy waues and stormes are gone ouer vs. Lord turne not away thy face from thy seruant. [u] Rebuke me not I beseech thee in thine anger, neither chasten me in thy displeasure. When these terrours and troubles come, let the Law then be packing out of the conscience, which indeed is added to discouer and increase sinne, yet no longer but vntill the seed come to which the promise was made. Now must he deliuer vp his kingdome to another, euen to Christ, whose lips are gracious, speaking of farre better things then doth the Law, [x] bringing glad tidings of saluation vnto the poore, binding vp the broken hearted, preaching libertie to the captiue, comforting all that mourne giuing beautie for ashes, and the garment of gladnesse for the spirit of heauinesse.

Is the Law then against the promise of God?] If the Law conuince men of sin, then it serues not to giue life, but to kill: and so by consequent is against the promise giuing life.

To this obiection our Apostle doth answer negatiuely: with
- Detestation, God forbid.
- Attestation, producing out of Gods owne booke sufficient witnesse against their cauillers. If there had beene a Law giuen which could haue giuen life, then no doubt righteousnesse should haue come by the Law, but the Scripture concludeth all vnder sinne, &c.

God forbid] In that Paul auoids an hereticall and blasphemous obiection with an absit, (which is [y] abominantis oratio) we may learne to [z] reiect things said or done to the dishonour of God, with loathing and detestation. [a] Caiaphas supposing that Christ had blasphemed, rent his garments: and Iob suspecting his children had done the like fault, sanctified them, Iob 1. 5. [b] What reason is it to spare great ones, iniuring Christ the greatest one? For as wise men we must discouer,

[g] Tyndal prol. in Exod.
[h] Kilius.
[i] Ier. 23. 29.
[k] 1. King 19. ver. 11, 12, 13.
[l] Luther.
[m] Oecumen. Aquin. Ardens.
[n] Perkins.
[o] Coloss. 2. 14.
[p] Matth. 11. 12.
[q] Kilius.
[r] Ephes. 3. 17.
[s] Luther.
[t] Psal 42. 9. & 69. 2.
[u] Psal. 6. 1.
[x] Esay 61. 1, 2. 4
[y] Aretius in Rom. 6. 2.
[z] Perkins.
[a] Matth. 26 65
[b] Magdeburg. epist. præfix cent. 7.

diſcouer, and as learned men leaue, but as good men abhorre ſuch as are hereticall. And therefore we muſt hate the [c] deteſtable dreames of Iewes affirming that the Meſſias is not yet come, becauſe our ſinnes hinder his comming. As if God ſhould become vnrighteous, becauſe of our vnrighteouſneſſe; or made a lier, becauſe men are liers. It is ſaid here that God is one, [d] that is, euer the ſame, being alway iuſt and true. God forbid then a man ſhould thinke that the Law ſhould be againſt his promiſe; for he doth not ſlacke his promiſe becauſe of our ſinnes, or haſten the ſame for our righteouſneſſe and merits, he regardeth in it neither the one nor the other.

[c] Luther.

[d] Marlorat.

For if there had beene a Law giuen which could haue giuen life, then no doubt righteouſneſſe ſhould haue come by the Law.] [e] If the Law were contrarie to the promiſe then it ſhould execute the promiſes office: but that it cannot doe, for it is the promiſes office to giue life, but the Lawes office to kill. And therefore the Law is not againſt the promiſe, but rather a [f] preparation to receiue the promiſe. This argument is an hammer to beat downe the Popiſh opinion of merit: That which doth giue righteouſneſſe, doth firſt giue life; the workes of the Law cannot giue life: Ergo, they cannot giue righteouſneſſe, or iuſtifie. See Luther & Perkins in loc.

[e] Aretius.

[f] Caietan.

But the Scripture concludeth all things vnder ſinne, that the promiſe by the faith of Ieſus Chriſt ſhould be giuen to them that beleeue] Things ſubordinate, whereof one ſerues for another, are not one againſt another: but the Law is ſubordinate to the promiſe, concluding all vnder ſinne, that we might haue recourſe to Chriſt the [g] propitiation for our ſins. [h] Ideo enim datur præceptum vt præcipientis quæratur auxilium. It humbleth a man, and in humbling him it maketh him to ſigh, and to ſeeke the helping hand of the Mediator, [i] ſweetning his mercies, and making his grace gracious and ineſtimable. The prouerbe is true, that hunger is the beſt Cooke. [k] Like then as the drie ground doth couet raine: euen ſo the Law makes troubled and afflicted ſoules to thirſt after Chriſt, and in this reſpect it is our ſchoole-maſter to bring vs to Chriſt. [l] A ſchoole-maſter hath two ſpeciall offices; one to correct, another to direct. It correcteth in ſhutting vs vp in the priſon of ſinne; and it [m] directeth alſo, for that it occaſioneth vs hereby to hunger and thirſt after the righteouſneſſe of Chriſt.

[g] 1 Iohn 2.2.

[h] Leo ſerm. 11. de quadrageſima.

[i] Pſal 109.20. Sweet is thy mercie.

[k] Luther.

[l] Aretius in Galat. 3.24.

[m] Photius apud Oecumen. in loc.

The Scripture] ἡ γραφὴ That Scripture, [n] namely the Scripture mentioned afore, meaning [o] eſpecially the written Law of Moſes, including all vnder ſinne: Deut 27.26. Curſed is euery man that continueth not in all things which are written in the booke of the Law to doe them. Euery man is bound to keepe the whole Law: [p] Claudit ergo ſub peccato ſubditos ſibi, præcipiendo ſiquidem, & non adiuuando. But this may be conſtrued of [q] Euangelicall Scripture ſo well as of the Law; for if all men had not beene ſubiect vnto the courſe by ſin, for what end ſhould the bleſſing by Chriſt haue beene promiſed, becauſe [r] the whole need not a Phyſition? And ſo both Goſpell and Law ſhut vp all vnder ſin, [s] that God might haue mercie on all.

[n] Perkins.

[o] Caluin. apud Marlorat. in loc.

[p] Caietan.

[q] Luther.

[r] Matth. 9.12.

[s] Rom. 11.32.

Concludeth] Ergo the Scripture muſt be Iudge for the determining of controuerſies in Religion. For (as [t] Optatus and [u] Auguſtine note) God hath dealt with vs as an earthly father is wont with his children, who fearing leſt they ſhould fall out after his deceaſe, doth ſet downe his will in writing vnder witneſſes, and if there ariſe debate among the brethren, inſtantly they goe to the teſtament. All of vs are brethren, and [x] therefore wee ſhould not contend: but if any queſtion be made concerning our Fathers inheritance, wee muſt examine the words of his teſtament, and [y] teſtimonie, for that as a Iudge concludeth all things.

[t] Lib. 5. contra Parmenian.

[u] In Pſal. 21. expoſit 2.

[x] Gen. 13.8.

[y] Eſay. 8.20.

All things] [z] as if he ſhould ſay, not all men only, but all things alſo, which all men can doe toward their ſaluation, euen [a] all the world culpable before God vnder ſinne.

[z] Marlorat.

[a] Rom. 3.19.

That the promiſe by the faith of Ieſus Chriſt ſhould be giuen to them that beleeue] There is [b] neuer a word in this clauſe but is a ſufficient argument againſt our merit: promiſe, faith, Ieſus Chriſt, giuen, beleeue. Sauing faith is called here the faith of Ieſus Chriſt, becauſe Chriſt is both author and obiect thereof. Euerie man therefore ſhall not be ſaued in his owne faith and religion, but only ſuch as are of the faith of Chriſt.

[b] Beza in Lc.

Almightie and mercifull God, of whoſe only gift it commeth that thy faithfull people doe vnto thee true and laudable ſeruice: grant we beſeech thee, that we may ſo run to thy heauenly promiſes, that we faile not finally to attaine the ſame through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

The Goſpell. Luke 10. 23. vnto v. 38.

Happie are the eyes which ſee the things that ye ſee, &c.

THis Text hath two parts:
- One concerning the Goſpell: containing a
  - Propoſition: Happie are the eyes, &c.
  - Reaſon: For I tell you, &c.
- Another touching the Law: wherin foure points are remarkable:
  1. A ſupplication: Maſter, what ſhall I doe, &c.
  2. A replication: What is written in the Law? how readeſt thou? &c.
  3. An explication: A certaine man deſcended: &c.
  4. An application: Goe and doe thou likewiſe.

Happie are the eyes which ſee the things that ye ſee] Chriſt in the words immediately going a fore deliuered this doctrine: No man knoweth who the Sunne is, but the Father, neither who the Father is, ſaue the Sonne, and hee to whom the Sonne will reueale him. And then turning about to his Diſciples, he ſaid ſecretly, Bleſſed are the eyes which ſee the things, that is, theſe things [d] hidden from the wiſe and learned, but opened vnto you: for this is [e] eternall life, to know God, and whom he hath ſent Ieſus Chriſt. [f] Some did ſee Chriſt only with corporall eyes of the fleſh, as Iudas and the Iewes who Perſecuted him. Other only with ſpirituall eyes of faith, as the Patriarkes in old time: Iohn 8. 56. Abraham reioyced to ſee my day, &c. and all true beleeuers in our time, faith being an euidence of things not ſeene, Heb. 11. 1. But the Diſciples here ſaw Chriſt with both, and therefore bleſſed were their eyes, &c. Such as beheld Chriſt only with their carnall eye, were [g] not happie therefore, but the worſe: for, ſaith our Sauiour in the [h] Goſpell, If I had not come and ſpoken vnto them, they ſhould not haue had ſinne, but now haue they no cloake for their ſinne. Such as ſee Chriſt only with the ſpirituall eye, be more happie; for [i] Bleſſed are they that haue not ſeene, and yet haue beleeued. Such as looked vpon Chriſt ſpiritually and corporally too were moſt happie, The firſt ſort ſaw Chriſt, but they did not beleeue: [k] they conſidered him as a meere man, but they did not conceiue that he was the onely begotten Sonne of God, Iohn. 1. 14. they reputed Chriſt on the Croſſe to be [l] reus not Deus, a ſinner, not a Sauiour. The ſecond ſort beleeue, but not ſee: they beleeue that which was from the beginning, but they cannot ſay with [m] Saint Iohn, which we haue heard, which we haue ſeene with our eyes which we haue looked vpon, and our hands haue handled of the Word of life. The third ſort did ſee more then the firſt, and beleeued ſo much at the leaſt as the ſecond: and therefore Chriſt might ſay well, Happie are the eyes, &c,

For I tell you, that many Prophets and Kings haue deſired to ſee thoſe things which ye ſee] That ought to be reſpected highly, which great men and good men affect: but I tell you, that many Princes and Prophets haue deſired to ſee thoſe things

[d] Theophylact. Idem Cyril. apud Veg in loc.
[e] Iohn 17. 3.
[f] Arden. Graueten. Zepper.
[g] Heming.
[h] Iohn 15. 22.
[i] Iohn 20. 29.
[k] Aretius in loc.
[l] Ambr. ſer. 45.
[m] Epiſt. 1. 1.

things which ye see, and haue not seene them; and to heare those things which ye heare, and haue not heard them. For the Messias is called in holy Scripture, The [n] desire of all Nations: Haggai 2.8. Of whom the Prophets enquired, searching when or what time the spirit which was in them should declare the sufferings that should come to Christ, and the glorie that should follow: 1. Pet. 1. 10. 11. When Balaam had prophesied of Christ [o] There shall come a Starre of Iacob, and a Scepter shall arise of Israel, &c. he brake forth into this passion; Alas who shall liue when God doth this? As if he should haue said; Happie men are they, who shall see that glorious Starre and Sunne of righteousnesse, comming out of his chamber as a Bridegrome, giuing light to such as sit in darkenesse, and in the shadow of death. Oh that thou wouldest breake the heauens and come downe, said the Prophet [p] Esay. Good old [q] Simeon waited for the consolation of Israel. [r] Augustine wished he might haue seene three things especially, Rome in her glorie, Paul in the pulpit, and Christ in the flesh, If the [s] Queene of Sheba reputed the seruants of Salomon happy, for that attending about his throne they heard his wisdome, discoursing of trees [t] from the Ceder that is in Lebanon, euen vnto the Hyssop that springeth out of the wall: how blessed and happie were the disciples in hearing a [u] greater then Salomon, and in seeing him who was [x] fairer then the sonnes of men, in whom are hid all treasures of wisdome and knowledge? Coloss. 2. 3.

[n] Vide Riber. in Hag. 2 num. 19. Gal de arcanis lib. 4. cap. 9. Lorin in 1. Pet. 1. 10, 11.
[o] Num 24. 17.
[p] Cap. 64. 1.
[q] Luke 2. 25.
[r] Pontan. in Euang. Dom. 13. post Trin.
[s] 1. King 10. 8.
[t] 1. King 4. 33.
[u] Matth. 12. 42
[x] Psal. 45 3.

Here the Gospell and Epistle meet: Happie are the eyes which see those things which ye see; for Christ is the promised seed of Abraham, in whom all the nations of the world are blessed. And for application it fits our text and time, to say, Blessed are our eyes, and blessed our eares in this great light of the Gospell. For we now [y] see Christ in his Sacraments, and heare Christ in his word. He liueth at this houre, [z] non solum inter nos, sed etiam intra nos: not among vs onely, but in vs also, dwelling in our hearts by faith, Ephes. 3. 17. Galat. 2. 20. The Scriptures are as a prospectiue glasse, wherein he that hath eyes of beleefe is able to behold Christ crying in his cradle, dying on his crosse, buried in his graue, raised from the dead, transfigured on the mount, ascended farre aboue all heauens, and there sitting as our Aduocate with God the Father. O that men would therefore declare the goodnesse of God, in [a] shewing vs the light of his countenance, reuealing the [b] great mysteries of godlinesse, which in [c] other ages was not opened vnto the sonnes of men after such a manner as it is now. For I tell you many good Clerkes, and great Kings of England haue desired in old time to see those things which ye see, and haue not seene them: and to heare those things which ye heare, and haue not heard them. And at this day there be many learned men among the Iewes, and mightie men among the Turkes, and goodly men among the barbarous and superstitious nations of the world, which vnderstand not as yet those things which appertaine to their peace.

[y] Vide Chrysost. Homil 24 in 1. Cor.
[z] Coster in loc.
[a] Psal. 67. 1.
[b] 1 Tim. 3. 16.
[c] Ephes. 3. 7.

And behold a certaine Lawyer stood vp and tempted him saying: Master what shall I doe to inherit eternall life? A [d] wittie Rabbine was wont to say, that he learned much of his master, more of his fellowes, but most of his schollers. And so surely this ambitious Doctor might haue got somewhat by questioning, albeit he tooke Christ haply for his inferiour. But his intent was not to be taught, but to tempt, ἐκπειράζων αὐτὸν [e] vsing all possible meanes, and all plausable cunning to snare Christ in his conference. For as [f] Herod the fox asked the Priests and enquired of the Magi diligently when and where Christ was borne; not to worship, but to worrie that innocent lambe: so many men heare the word, and in reading the Bible moue many doubts vpon the text, not to consult, but insult. As [g] one notes vpon this place, non vt sciant, sed vt sciantur. The Lawyers preamble was courteous, Master, and his quare not idle, like the contentions of many Lawyers in our time, De lana caprina, touching the tithing of mint and rue; but concerning our eternall inheritance, what shall I doe to inherit euerlasting life? but his spirit was proud, and his heart false, standing vp to tempt, hauing Master

[d] P. Fagius capitul pat. pag. 41.
[e] Aretius.
[f] Matth. 2. 4. 7.
[g] Pontan.

in his mouth, hatching miſchiefe in his minde. I will therefore turne that old ryme vpon him:

Mel in ore, verba lactis.
Fel in corde, fraus in factis.

What is written in the Law? how readeſt thou?] [h] Didacus de la Vega, who was a Spaniſh Frier of Toledo, notes here that the Bible teacheth all things exactly, which are neceſſarie to ſaluation, in his owne Text: Sacra pagina docet nos perfectiſſimè quæ ſunt ad ſalutem neceſſaria. The Ieſuit Coſterus in his ſermon preached vpon the Goſpell, affoords alſo the Scripture this praiſe, that it is ſpeculum & regula vitæ. Chriſt therefore ſent the Lawyer vnto the Law for the reſolution of his doubt; What is written? how readeſt thou? So Luke 16.29. They haue Moſes and the Prophets, let them heare them. And Eſay 8.20. To the Law, to the teſtimonie. De rebus fidei perſuadere debemus ex literis fidei, ſaith [i] Tertullian. It is an old prouerbe, that the letters of Princes are to be read thrice, but the Scripture (which is [k] Gods Epiſtle) muſt we reade [l] ſeuen times thrice; yea ſeuentie times ſeuen times. Infinities, as Luther ſpeakes in the words of a [m] Poet, Nocturna verſate manu, verſate diurna. That delighting in the Law of the Lord, we may meditate thereon day and night, Pſal.1.2. For it is not ſufficient to reade curſorily [n] ſine delectu & intellectu: we muſt [o] examine the Text, and [p] ſearch the Scriptures, And therefore Chriſt here ſaid not only, what is written in the Law? but, how readeſt thou? That is, how doſt thou vnderſtand and conſtrue Gods holy word.

Loue the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy ſoule, and with all thy ſtrength, and with all thy minde] This commandement is the [q] firſt and the greateſt of all the Law:

Wherin 2. points are regardable:
- The cauſe why God is to be loued, and that is [r] becauſe
  - Dominus Deus, the Lord.
  - Tuus, thy Lord.
- The manner how, with all thy
  - Heart.
  - Soule.
  - Strength.
  - Minde.

The ſaying of [t] Bernard is true: Cauſa diligendi Deum Deus eſt: as being moſt louing, and louely: Louing, in that he loued [u] vs firſt, euen in our election and creation, when we could not; in our redemption, when we would not loue him. [x] Ipſe dilexit nos & tantus & tantùm & gratis tantillos & tales. Louely, being indeed the [x] center of all our loue; for we moſt loue nothing but good, and euery good is from aboue comming downe from the Father of lights. As when [y] Eliah ſaid, If the Lord be God, follow him: in like manner if the Lord be God, loue him. Againe, thou muſt loue the Lord, becauſe thy God: for euery man loueth his owne; his owne children, his owne friends, his owne goods, his owne conceit, Non quia vera, (ſaith [z] Auguſtine) ſed quia ſua: Now nothing is ſo properly thine owne as God, being [a] thy portion for euer. It is obſerued by [b] Picus Mirandula ſubtilly, that in the creation of the world, God gaue the Water vnto the Fiſh, Earth vnto the Beaſt, Ayre vnto the Fowles, Heauen vnto the glorious Angels: and then after all theſe goodly ſeats were beſtowed, Almightie God made man according to his owne likeneſſe and image, that he might ſay with the Prophet, Pſalme 73. 24. Whom haue I in heauen but thee? and there is none vpon earth that I deſire in compariſon of thee. Thou Lord art my lot and inheritance, the ſtrenth of my heart, and ſaluation of my ſoule. [c] Si eſuris, panis tibi eſt; ſi ſitis, aqua tibi eſt; ſi in tenebris es, lumen tibi eſt, &c.

The manner how to loue God, with all thy heart, with all thy ſoule, with all thy minde. That is, as [d] Auguſtine, with all thy vnderſtanding, [e] neuer ſpeaking or thinking of him erroniouſly: with all thy will, neuer contradicting him obſtinatly: with all thy memorie, neuer forgetting him obliuiouſly: louing him [f] perfectly,

[h] Con. in Euangel. Dom. 12. poſt Pentecoſt.
[i] Lib. de præſcript. aduerſ. hæret.
[k] Gregor. epiſt. lib. 4. Epiſt. 84.
[l] Luther loc. com. tit. de ſac ſcript.
[m] Horat.
[n] Coſter in loc.
[o] Act. 17. 11.
[p] Iohn 5. 39.
[q] Matth. 22. 38.
[r] Heming.
[t] Tract. de diligendo Deo in prin.
[u] 1. Iohn 4. 19.
[x] Bernard vbi ſupra.
[x] Vega.
[y] 1. King. 18. 21.
[z] Confeſſ. lib. 12. cap. 25.
[a] Pſal. 73. 25.
[b] Vti Diez con. 2. Dom. 12. poſt Pentecoſt.
[c] Aug. tract. 13 in Ioan.
[d] De doctrina Chriſt. lib. 1. cap 21. & de ſpirit. & anima cap. 35. Idem Lombard 3. ſent. diſt. 27.
[e] Michael. de Hung. Ser. 9.

[f] perfectly, purely, perpetually. Or as [g] Bernard, with all thy heart wisely, resisting the subtile suggestions of the deuill: withall thy soule sweetly, mortifying all carnall lusts of the flesh: with all thy minde constantly, ouercomming all crosses and troubles of the world. Or as [h] Gregorie Nyssen, with all the faculties of thy soule, vegetatiue, sensitiue, ratiocinatiue, for in him we liue, and moue, and haue our being, Acts 17.28. He gaue all, and therefore good reason he should haue all. Or as [i] Dauid ioyntly, with all that is within thee. [k] For the multiplying of so many termes, heart, soule, strength, minde, is only to shew that we must perfectly loue God aboue all, euen with all the [l] strength of all our heart, soule, minde. Modo sine modo, saith Bernard, tract. de diligendo Deo.

Haply some will obiect, if we must loue God with all our heart, soule, minde, might, it is not lawfull to loue any thing else besides him. Answer is made that we may loue something præter Deum, sed omnia propter Deum: [m] Other things beside God, if we loue them in God and for God. As the words following intimate, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe.

In which obserue [n] the { Causes, Measure, Order, } of our loue toward our neighbour.

The causes are two: { Commandement in Scripture: Iohn 13.34. and 15.12. This is my Commandement, that you loue one another. Bond of nature; because man is neighbour to man, in respect of creation and conuersation.

Angels fight not against Angels, but against the fell [o] Dragon. Birds of a feather flie together. One beast is not cruell vnto another of the same kinde. for Cocks (as many coniecture) fight not out of malice, but magnanimitie, rather out of iealousie then antipathy. Most vnnaturall then is it for one man to wrong another of his owne kinde, yea kinne. For whereas Almightie God made not all Angels of one Angell, nor all beasts of the great Elephant, nor all fish of the huge Whale, nor all birds of the maiesticall Eagle; he made all mankinde of one Adam, [p] hereby teaching vs to loue as brethren, and to be all as one, because we did proceed all from one.

For the measure of thy loue, the text saith here, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. Now the [q] schoole Diuines obserue, that as is a note of similitude, not equalitie. The Law doth require that thou loue thy neighbour as thy selfe, for the manner of thy loue: [r] but not as much as thy selfe, for the measure of thy loue: because charitie begins with it selfe, making a man to loue first himselfe, then his neighbour as himselfe, that is, [s] In quo seipsum & ad quod seipsum, in that, and for that he loues himselfe, namely louing him in God, and wishing him all good. Other [t] Interpreters haue gone further, affirming, that according to the rigour of law thou must loue thy neighbour as thy selfe, not onely with the same loue, but also with the same degrees of loue. Now then how thou loueſt thy selfe, thou doest know best thy selfe. But howsoeuer some learned Authors haue denied degrees of intention, all acknowledge that there be degrees of extention in our charitie. For, as God is the God of loue; so likewise the God of order: And therefore whereas all men in the world cannot be partakers of our temporall goods and spirituall graces alike, [u] such as are neereſt ought to be dearest vnto vs. I say neerest, [x] in spirituall or carnall alliance: For the first, it is said expressly, [y] doe good to all, especially to those which are of the houshold of faith, of Gods owne family the [z] Church, among whom the Ministers of the word are the [a] chiefest. According to this rule, Christ in the Gospell honoured his spirituall allies afore his naturall brethren and kindred; for when one told him, Behold thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to speake with thee, Christ stretched forth his hand towards his Disciples and said, [b] Behold my mother and my brethren: for whosoeuer shall doe my Fathers will which is in heauen, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother. [c] Est enim sanctior copula cordium, quàm corporum,

Yet [d] (all other things being alike (we must affect and respect our owne wife before

[f] Heming.
[g] Ser. de diligendo Deo. Idem Ludol. de vita Christi, part. 2. cap. 36.
[h] Lib. de homin. opif. cap. 8.
[i] Psal. 103. 1.
[k] Theophylact. Gregor. Aretius.
[l] Bernardinus de bustis Rosar part. 2. ser. 5.
[m] Lutber post. maior in loc. Idem Thom. 22. quæst. 44. art. 4. & Bonauentura in 3 sent dist. 27.
[n] Heming.
[o] Apoc. 12. 7.
[p] Aug. de bono Coniugal. cap. 1. & Lombard 2. sent. dist. 18.
[q] Thom. ab Argentin. & Ric. de media villa in 3. sent. dist. 29. Idem Tho. 22. quæst. 6. art 4.
[r] Iansen. con. cap. 81.
[s] Iacob de Verag. serm. 2. in loc. Idem. Lombard 3 sent. dist. 27.
[t] Caluin. apud Marlorat. in Matth 22. 39.
[u] Aug de doc. Christ. l. 1 c. 28.
[x] Heming.
[y] Gal. 10 6.
[z] Caietan.
[a] Luk.
[b] Matth. 12. 49.
[c] Lombard 3. sent. dist. 29.
[d] Altissiodor. aur Sum. fol. 141. ex Amb.

before our owne children, our children before kinſmen, our kinſmen before ſuch neighbours as are not of of our bloud, our neighbours before ſtrangers, and ſtrangers of our owne Countrey before forrainers of another Nation. Of this order in our loue we finde a precept in [c] Paul, He that prouideth not for his owne, namely, for them of his houſhold, is worſe then an Infidell: An example in Ioſeph, who preferred Beniamin his owne brother by father and mother too before the reſt of his vnkinde brethren: in his feaſt, Beniamins meſſe was [f] fiue times as much as any of theirs: at his farewell, other had change of raiment and money, but vnto Beniamin [g] he gaue three hundred peeces of ſiluer and fiue ſuits of apparell. Our bleſſed Sauiour himſelfe being the true Ioſeph, euen the truth and the way, loued his owne Diſciples more then other men, and S. Iohn more then other of his Diſciples, termed in the [h] Goſpels Hiſtorie, The Diſciple whom Ieſus loued. I conclude in the words of [i] Lombard, Omnes homines diligendi ſunt pari affectu, ſed non pari effectu. See Tom. 2. 2e. queſt. 26. art. 6. 7. 8. Caietan, & Dominic. Ban. ibidem. Altiſſiodor. Thom. ab Argentina. Ric. de media villa, reliquoſq; ſententiarios in 3. ſent. diſt. 29

Thou haſt anſwered right, doe this and thou ſhalt liue.] For the better vnderſtanding of this clauſe [doe this and thou ſhalt liue] conſider I pray, to what, and to whom Chriſt made this reply. Firſt, to what. [k] It is not demanded here by what meanes a man might obtaine life euerlaſting, but by what doing, or by what kinde of workes; and therefore Chriſt anſwered accordingly; what is written in the Law? doe this, and thou ſhalt liue. Secondly, to whom, he did now deale with a Doctor of the Law, with a Phariſee, with one who was willing to iuſtifie himſelfe: he did therefore ſend him to the Law, not vnto the promiſe. [l] But ſpeaking of eternall life to penitent ſinners, he ſaith, [m] I am the way: promiſing in generall, [n] Come to me all ye that are wearie and laden, and I will eaſe you: performing his word in particular; O woman, thy faith hath ſaued thee, Luk. 7. 50, Chriſt then in ſaying, Doe this and thou ſhalt liue, ſhewes the Lawyers [o] hypocriſie, who thought he could doe this; and not a poſſibilitie to doe this: [p] as if he ſhould ſay, thou didſt neuer in all thy life fulfill the whole Law, nor yet one letter thereof as thou ſhouldeſt perfectly: thou muſt therefore thinke of [q] another way to the kingdome of heauen. Here the Goſpell and Epiſtle meet againe. The Law cannot giue life (ſaith Paul) The Leuite and Prieſt of the Law, did not helpe the wounded man halfe dead (ſaith Chriſt) The Scripture concludeth all things vnder ſinne, that the promiſe by the faith of Ieſus Chriſt, ſhall be giuen to them that beleeue, ſaith our Epiſtle. Chriſt ſends a Iuſticiarie to the Law, that ſeeing his owne wretchedneſſe and wickedneſſe in it, he might come to Chriſt the louing Samaritane, to binde vp his wounds, and to powre wine and oyle into them, as it is in our Goſpell. If Papiſts in old time were not impudent in conioyning theſe two Scriptures as parallel, aſſuredly the [r] Papiſts in our time as ſomewhat impudent in making the doctrine of theſe two ſo contrarie: that which God and the Church hath coupled together, let no man put aſunder.

A certaine man] The Doctors of the Law conſtrued the Commandement, loue thy neighbour, thus: [s] loue thy friend and hate thine enemie. Chriſt therefore ſhewes by this parable that euery man is our neighbour, of what condition or country ſoeuer, euen our greateſt enemie: For the [t] Iew did hate the Samaritane, accounting him as a dogge, and yet the Samaritane performed all neighbourly duties vnto the Iew, for that he did not commit any worke of crueltie, nor omit the worke of mercie toward him.

In an [u] allegorie, this man is euery man, who ſinning in Adam, deſcended from Ieruſalem to Iericho: that is from Gods Citie to the dominions of Satan. And fell among theeues: into manifold tentations and noyſome luſts. Which robbed him of his rayment: of his [x] righteouſneſſe, and holineſſe, wherewith Almightie God in his creation adorned him. And they wounded him and departed. For ſinne wounding the conſcience leaues a man in a deſperate caſe. The Prieſt and the Leuite looking on him paſſed by. For the Law being the miniſtration of [y] death, is rather a corasie then an healing medicine, procuring rather ſorrow then ſolace to the [c] 1. Tim. 5. 8.

[f] Gen. 43. 44.
[g] Gen. 45. 22.
[h] Iohn 19. 26. 20. 2 21. 7. 20.
[i] Vbi ſup.
[k] D. Fulke, & Sarcer. in loc.
[l] Heming.
[m] Iohn 14. 6.
[n] Matth. 11. 28.
[o] Melanct. Sarcerius, Zepper.
[p] Luther.
[q] Aretius
[r] Rhem. & Pontan in loc. Non quid credendo, ſed quid faciendo.
[s] Matth. 5. 43.
[t] Ioh. 4. 9. vide Ioſeph. antiquit. lib. 11. ca. 7. & 8.
[u] Ambroſ. Euthym. Luther. Melanct. Aretius, & alij.
[x] Epheſ. 4. 24.
[y] 2. Cor. 3. 7.

the diſtreſſed ſoule. But a certaine Samaritan tooke compaſſion, &c. Chriſt [z] touched with the feeling of our infirmities, out of his pittie [a] bound vp his wounds, and poured in oyle and Wine: preaching repentance, which as wine doth ſearch; and grace, which as oyle doth ſupple our ſores. Hee ſet him on his owne beaſt: [b] hee tooke on him our owne nature, [c] bearing our owne ſinnes, in his body, ſuffering for vs in the fleſh. And brought him to a common Inne. That is, the Church, as a common Inne receiuing all ſorts of men, being trauellers and [d] Pilgrims on earth, albeit their [e] Burgeſhip be in heauen. And made prouiſion for him. As long as he liued among vs, he did good, and [f] healed all that were oppreſſed of the deuill. On the morrow when he departed: leauing the world and aſcending vp on high, he committed the wounded man vnto the Hoſt; namely, to the Preachers of his word, [g] appointing Apoſtles, Prophets, and Euangeliſts, and Paſtors and Teachers. Vnto which he gaue two pence, that is, the two Teſtaments, as [h] Euthymius; or as [i] other, the two Sacraments: or as [k] other, the two great Commandements: or as [l] other, wholeſome doctrine and holy conuerſation: or [m] iuriſdiction and order; [n] or the word and the Sacraments: all which are Gods ordinary meanes vnto ſaluation. And ſaid, take care of him. He doth not inioyne the Miniſter to cure, but only to take care for the wounded man. As [o] Bernard excellently, Petitur à te cura, non curatio. For if the wounded man, as [p] Babylon, will not be cured, [q] he ſhall die for his iniquitie, but thou haſt deliuered thy ſoule. Thou haſt done thy part, and thou ſhalt aſſuredly receiue thy reward. As Chriſt himſelfe promiſed here, When I come againe I will recompence thee; Then he will ſay to the good Steward, [r] It is well done truſtie ſeruant, thou haſt beene faithfull in little, I will make thee Ruler ouer much, enter into thy maſters ioy.

Goe and doe likewiſe] For if thou know this, and doe not this accordingly, [s] thou doeſt not loue thy neighbour as thy ſelfe, and he that loues not his neighbour as himſelfe, cannot loue God with all his heart, withall his ſoule, &c. Let vs therefore be followers of Chriſt [t] as deare children, louing his as he loued vs: opening our bowels of compaſſion towards all ſuch as mourne in Sion, binding vp the wounds of his diſtreſſed members vnder the Croſſe, [u] ſeeking not our owne, but one anothers good, that when he comes to iudgement we may heare and haue that happy doome: Come ye bleſſed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you: For I was an hungred, and yee gaue me meat; I thirſted, and ye gaue me drink; I was a ſtranger, and ye lodged me; I was naked, and ye cloathed me, &c. For in as much as ye haue done it vnto one of the leaſt of theſe my brethren, ye haue done it vnto me.

[z] Heb. 4 15.
[a] Eſay 61. 1. Ezech. 34 16.
[b] Phil 2.7.
[c] 1. Pet 2.24.
[d] 1 Pet. 2.11.
[e] Phil 3.20.
[f] Acts 10.38.
[g] Epheſ. 4.11.
[h] In loc. Idem Ambroſ. Theophylact. Emiſ.
[i] Aretius.
[k] Auguſt. apud Thom in loc.
[l] Panigarol. ham. in Euang. Dom. 12 poſt Pen. part. 2.
[m] Idem ibid.
[n] Idem ibid
[o] Lib. 4. de conſiderat.
[p] Ier 51.9.
[q] Ezech 33.9.
[r] Matth 25 23
[s] Euthym.
[t] Epheſ 5.1.
[u] 1. Cor. 10. 24

The Epiſtle. GALAT. 5. 16. Vnto v. 25

I ſay, walke in the ſpirit, and fulfill not the luſts of the fleſh, &c.

THis Epiſtle may be diuided into two parts: a
- Generall exhortation, to walke in the ſpirit; and that in reſpect of a double benefit: namely, becauſe the ſpirit deliuereth vs from the
  - Luſts of the fleſh, ver. 16. Walke in the ſpirit and ye ſhall not fulfill the luſts of the fleſh. And ver. 24. They that are Chriſts, haue crucified the fleſh, &c.
  - Liſts of the Law, ver. 18. If ye be led of the ſpirit, then are yee not vnder the Law.
- Particular enumeration of the workes of the fleſh, and fruits of the ſpirit.

In

- In the bed-roll of vices obſerue their
  - Condition: The deeds of the fleſh are manifeſt.
  - Kinds: as being againſt
    - Faith: Idolatrie. Witchcraft. Hereſie.
    - Good manners, eſpecially
      - Chaſtitie: Adulterie, Fornication, Uncleanneſſe, Wantonneſſe, as the daughters of luxury. Gluttony. Drunkenneſſe, as the mother.
      - Charitie: Hatred. Variance. Zeale: or wicked emulation. Wrath. Strife. Seditions. Enuying. Murder.
  - Puniſhment: They which commit ſuch things, ſhall not be inheritors of the kingdome of God.
- In the catalogue of vertues obſerue likewiſe their
  - Propertie: Fruites of the ſpirit
  - Kindes: quantum ad
    - intra: for the
      - Doing of good: loue, ioy, peace.
      - Enduring of euill: long ſuffering, gentleneſſe.
    - extra: reſpecting
      - God, faith
      - Our neighbours, goodnes.
      - Our ſelues, temperance.
  - Benefit: Againſt ſuch there is no Law.

Concerning our Apoſtles exhortation; I haue ſhewed [x] elſe-where what it is to fulfill the luſts of the fleſh, as alſo what it is to walke in the Spirit: and [y] that all ſuch as are led of the Spirit, are not vnder the Law. Pardon mee then in paſſing ſicco calamo, from the firſt vnto the ſecond part.

The deeds of the fleſh are manifeſt] As being knowne to God: vnto whom all things are [z] naked, euen the ſecrets of our [a] hearts and reines. And notorious in the ſight of men: hatred appearing in open court; gluttonie ſitting in open Hall; drunkenneſſe reeling in open ſtreet; murther ſwaggering in open high-way; ſeditions in open field; emulation in open Schoole; worſhipping of Images in open Temple; ſects in open Pulpit. Adulterie, fornication, and other ſecret ſinnes of the chamber, albeit the night be neuer ſo darke, the curtaine neuer ſo cloſe, the doore neuer ſo faſt, are notwithſtanding vſually brought to light alſo. Whereupon the Poets in old time painted Venus the mother of wontonneſſe, naked; [b] inſinuating that this iniquitie cannot be long couered. And manifeſt [c] as being committed againſt conſcience: for as an [d] hereticke; ſo the drunkard, witch, adulterer is damned of his owne ſelfe: Yea the very Gentiles hauing not the Law, were notwithſtanding in this reſpect a [e] Law to themſelues. [f] Hence we may learne not to conceale, but freely to confeſſe our ſinnes before God and before men alſo when need ſhall require. Whether a man acknowledge them or no, they be manifeſt, and the ingenuous vncouering of them is the way to couer them. Agnoſce tu, ſaith [g] Auguſtine, & Deus ignoſcet: I ſaid I will confeſſe my wickedneſſe [x] Epiſt. Sund. 8. after Trin.

[y] Epiſt Sund. after Chriſtmas and Epiſt. 4. Sun. in Lent.
[z] Heb 4.13.
[a] Pſal. 7.10.
[b] Fulgentius mytholog. l. 2. in fabula Veneris.
[c] Aretius in loc.
[d] Tit. 3.11.
[e] Rom 2.14.
[f] Perkins in loc.
[g] Serm. 88. de Temp.

wickednesse vnto the Lord, and so thou forgauest the punishment of my sinne, Psalme 32.6.

Adulterie, fornication, vncleannesse, wantonnesse.] These sinnes are named first, [h] becausse the flesh is most prone to commit them. Old [i] Lot did burne with flames of lust, whom all the fire that consumed Sodome could not once touch. [k] Ambrose said of Sampson: Qui leonem etiam suis manibus strangulauit, amorem suum suffocare non potuit, &c. And a [l] moderne Poet of Hercules

Lenam non potuit, potuit superare leænam:
Quem fera non valuit vincere, vicit hera.

Adulterie, when both or one of the parties delinquent are married, as the notation of the word intimates, [m] adulterium, quasi ad alterius torum. Fornication, is betweene such as are single, so called à [n] fornicibus, of the place wherein common harlots vsed to prostitute their bodies. Uncleannesse, is incontinencie against [o] nature: [p] where these sinnes were knowne, there they were named particularly by Paul: as among the Romans, Rom. 1.27. and to the Corinthians, 1.Cor.6 9. but in Galatia where they were not knowne, they be mentioned in generall only, lest by naming of them he should after a sort teach them. Wantonnesse in [q] lasciuious attire, vnchaste talke, petulant behauiour, is an [r] instrument, and as it were the bellowes to blow the coales of lust in all.

Idolatrie, witchcraft.] [s] It is plaine that Paul calleth here flesh whatsoeuer is in all the powers of an vnregenerate mans soule. The workes of the will that lusteth, are adulterie, fornication, vncleannesse, and such like: the workes of the will enclined to wrath, are hatred, variances, seditions, enuying, &c. The workes of vnderstanding or reason, are Idolatry, witchcraft, heresie. The which are distinguished [t] thus: Heresie, when we serue the true God with a false worship. Idolatrie, when we worship false gods, supposing them to be true. Witchcraft, when we adore false Gods, knowing them to be wicked and false. For the ground of that blacke Art is either an open or secret [u] league with Satan the prince of darkenesse, and so witchcraft (as our iudicious [x] Soueraigne well obserued) is the height of Idolatry.

Adulterie, fornication, vncleannesse, gluttonie, drunkennesse, are manifestly knowne to be workes of the flesh, [y] euen to such as commit them: but Idolatrie doth appeare so spirituall, [z] as that it is manifest vnto the faithfull onely to be a deed of the flesh. A Turke beleeues nothing lesse then that his Alcaron, his washings and other ceremonies are workes of the flesh. A Popish Monke when he leades a single life, saith Masse, prayeth on his beads, is so farre from holding himselfe an Idolater, or that he fulfileth any worke of the flesh; as that he calls himselfe a spirituall man, and is assuredly perswaded that these things are spirituall meanes of his saluation. He talketh of the Spirit, and thinketh he walketh in the Spirit. Nay the sinne of Idolatrie, though it be more reprehended in Gods word, and more punished in his workes, then other vices: yet it cleaueth so fast vnto flesh, [a] as that the best men in the world easily fall into it, and hauing once delighted therein, are most hardly drawne from it. Idols are called by the Prophet [b] Esay, [c] delectable things. Ezechiel in the 23. Chapter of his Prophecie compareth Idolaters vnto a woman inflamed with loue toward some goodly young man, on whom she hath cast her eyes, and fixt her affection, and forgetting all modestie sendeth messengers for him, and bringeth him into the bed of loue. Saint Iohn in his [d] Apocalypse accurately describes the superstitious and Idolatrous Church of Antichrist by a whore, whose doctrines, as the wine of her fornication, hath intoxicated the Kings and inhabitants of the earth; her cup is of gold, her selfe is araied with purple and scarlet, and guilded with gold, and precious stones and pearles. Hereby counterfetting the glorious ornaments of Christs owne spouse, the true Church: whose [e] shining is like to gold, and stones most cleare and precious, her lips like [f] scarlet, and her loue much better then wine.

Let vs then aboue all other workes of carnalitie, take heed of Idolatrie, which is so secret a vice, that it is discouered of none but such as haue crucified the flesh, and

[h] Marlorat.
[i] Albinus quæst. in Gen.
[k] Apolog. Dauid. cap. 4.
[l] Owin Epigram.
[m] Isiodor. Etym. lib. 5. cap. 26 Idem Altenstaig. & alij.
[n] Isiodor. Etym. lib. 10. & Anselm. in loc.
[o] Aquin. Caietan.
[p] Perkins.
[q] Aretius.
[r] Caluin.
[s] Luther.
[t] Aduanc. of learning, lib. 2 pag. penult.
[u] Aug de doct. Christ. lib. 2. cap 20. Vide Altenstaig. ex verb. ars mag ca.
[x] Demonolog. lib. 3. cap 6.
[y] Hieron. in loc.
[z] Luther.
[a] See Arrow against Idolatry, cap 2.
[b] Cap 44 9.
[c] Quæ maxime amant Idolatræ. Vatablus ibid.
[d] Cap. 17.
[e] Reuelat 21. 11.18.
[f] Cant. 4.3.10.

and are led of the ſpirit. And for this cauſe let vs haue the commandement alwaies in our eye, thou ſhalt haue none other gods but me. Forbidding foure things eſpecially: firſt, the hauing of ſtrange gods, and not the true: as had the [g] Gentiles. Secondly, the hauing of ſtrange gods with the true: as the [h] Samaritans had. Thirdly, the hauing of no gods at all, as the [i] fooliſh Atheiſts. Fourthly, the not hauing of the true God a right, according to his owne word and will, as the congregations of Heretickes and Antichriſts.

[g] Acts 14.11. 12.15.
[h] 2.King.17.33.
[i] Pſal.14.1.

Hatred, variance] In this enumeration of ſinnes againſt charitie, the firſt is hatred, and the laſt, murther. [k] Quia ab hoc peruenitur ad illud. If we ſtop not hatred in the beginning, it will breake forth into contentious words; and brawling ſpeeches, haply miſled by diſtempered zeale, will grow to ſeditions and ſchiſmaticall actions, and theſe breed enuying, and enuie begets murther; according to that of [l] Cyprian, Inuidia fons cladium, after which there follow [illegible]. For this one fault, is [m] toxicum charitatis, & oſtium iniquitatis; as it were the death of amitie, and doore of enmitie, the very [n] matter of all miſchiefe, and [o] hell of the ſoule. Concerning gluttonie, ſee before Epiſt.1.Sunday in Aduent: and of drunkenneſſe, hereafter Epiſt.20.Sunday after Trinitie.

[k] Aquin.
[l] Ser de liuore & zelo.
[m] Holcot.
[n] Materia culparum, vbi Cyp. vti ſup.
[o] Alanus.

And ſuch like] Paul added this clauſe, [p] leſt any ſhould imagine that there be no more deeds of the fleſh: as if he ſhould ſay, by [q] theſe yee may conceiue what the reſt are, for it is [r] vnpoſſible to reckon vp all. If Paul numbring the ſinnes of his time, was conſtrained to breake off his catalogue with an &c., how ſhall the Preachers at this day deliuer vp a true inuentorie? For, as now and then all humours of the whole bodie fall downe into the legs, and there make an iſſue: ſo the corruption of all ages paſt, haue ſlid downe into the preſent, to the choking and annoyance of all that is good. The worlds end doth afford the ſame faults and the like to them in the beginning, yea doubtleſſe many monſters of ſinne, which our forefathers of old could neuer paralell.

[p] Caietan.
[p] Primaſius.
[r] Luther.

Of the which I tell you before, as I haue told you in times paſt] [s] Hence Miniſters are taught often to forwarne the people of the future iudgements of God for their ſinnes: [t] if preſent, by word: if abſent, by writing: Eſay 58. 1.Mich.3.8. When a man otherwiſe cannot hit the marke, he muſt draw the bow to the eare and ſhoot home: little chiding and once rebuking will doe no good with ſuch as haue ſtonie hearts and brazen faces, it is our dutie therefore to threaten, yea thunder againe, and againe, ſaying with Paul, as I told you before, ſo ſtill I forewarne you [u] while ye may take heed, repent and returne from your wicked courſe, That they which commit ſuch things, ſhall not be inheritors of the kingdome of God. Not all they which haue ſuch impure motions ariſing in their minde: but they which commit ſuch actions in their life, τοιαῦτα πράσσοντες, ſuch as doe. Not all ſuch as haue done thoſe things once, twice, thrice: for [x] in many things we ſinne all, and euery age, euen in the [y] faithfull, hath his peculiar fault and follie. Luſt aſſaults a man moſt in his youth, ambition in his middle age, and couetouſneſſe in his old age. [z] Such then as haue done theſe things, and after haue heartily repented, are not excluded from the kingdome of God: but only ſuch as doe, [a] noting a preſent and a continued act of doing amiſſe. The [b] godly men often falls into the workes of the fleſh, and being admoniſhed thereof recouers himſelfe, he doth [c] not ſtand in the way of ſinners, although he ſometimes enter into it. On the contrarie, ſinners irrepented and obſtinate, when they fall, lie ſtill in the filthineſſe of the fleſh, hating reformation, and heaping to themſelues wrath againſt the day of wrath, Rom.2.5. All they which doe this, and die thus without a liuely faith and vnfained repentance, ſhall not be inheritors of the kingdome of God.

[s] Oecumen.
[t] Pelican apud Marlorat.
[u] Anſelm.
[x] Iames 3 2.
[y] Luther.
[z] Bullinger.
[a] Perkins.
[b] Marlorat.
[c] Pſal.1.1.

The fruit of the ſpirit is] [d] Interpreters obſerue generally Pauls altering of his phraſe; whereas he called acts of ſinne workes of the fleſh, he termes vertue the fruit of the Spirit. He ſpeakes of the one plurally, The workes of the fleſh are: but of the other ſingularly, The fruit of the ſpirit is. [e] Ad ſignificandum quod malum contingit ex ſingularibus defectibus, bonum autem ex integra cauſa. To ſignifie that that good is the effect of an entire cauſe, whereas euill comes of defects in many particulars. Or haply to ſhew that our vices exceed in number our vertues.

[d] Oecumen. Anſelme. Aquin. Aretius.
[e] Caietan.

Chriſtian vertues are fruits, [f] as bringing with them excellent commodities, enriching ſuch as haue them, and alluring other alſo by their example to receiue the Goſpell and Faith of Chriſt. And fruits of the Spirit, as begun, continued, ended according to the motions and admonitions of the Spirit: begun in faith, acted in obedience, ending in Gods honour. A good man is [g] like a Tree planted by the waters ſide, that will bring forth his fruit in due time. The Church is the [h] Garden of God, Preachers are the planters, 1 Cor. 3. 6. 9. beleeuers are [i] Trees of righteouſneſſe, the ſpirit of God is the ſap and [k] life of them, and good workes are the fruits which they beare. From [l] hence we may learne to diſtinguiſh aptly betweene Chriſtian vertues in the profeſſors of the Goſpell, and ciuill vertues in heathen men. Ioſeph is chaſte, and ſo was Xenocrates. In Ioſeph it was an eſpeciall fruit of the regenerating ſpirit, but in Xenocrates it was a work proceeding only from Gods generall prouidence. For there is a gift of regeneration able to mortifie corruption: and a gift of reſtraint which ſerues only to keepe in corruption.

Loue, ioy, peace, &c.] It had beene ſufficient to haue named onely loue and no more: for as it is ſhewed, Epiſt. Quinquageſ. Sund. charity doth extend it ſelfe vnto all the fruits of the ſpirit, [m] notwithſtanding our Apoſtle ſets it here by it ſelfe among other vertues, and in the firſt place, to ſignifie that it is the very [n] fountaine from which all the reſt are deriued. And therefore that Chriſtians ought before other things affectionately tender the good of their brethren, [o] Giuing honour one to another, euery man eſteeming better of another then of himſelfe, and ſo [p] ſeruing one another in loue. The world in this age wants exceedingly this one vertue: for among the roaring Gentlemen it is but a word and a wound; among ciuill men, it is but a word and a writ. Yea that which is worſt of all, among ſuch as ſeeme Saints of the greateſt puritie, there be ſo many ſects and ſchiſmes euen about matters of Gods holy ſeruice; that if our Apoſtle were now liuing, he would cenſure them as he did the Corinthians in his time, [q] when one ſaith I am Pauls: and another, I am Apollos, are yee not carnall?

Againſt ſuch there is no law.] Againſt ſuch vertues, and againſt perſons indued with ſuch vertues, there is no law: that is, no law to [r] condemne, no law to [s] compell them. As if he ſhould ſay, Such as are led by the ſpirit are a free people, ſeruing the Lord without conſtraint. If there were no puniſhment in this life, nor hell in the next for adultery, drunkenneſſe, murther, gluttonie, yet they would abſtaine from theſe works of the fleſh out of meere loue to God and goodneſſe. For they that are Chriſts, haue crucified the fleſh. In this crucifying foure points are to be conſidered:

1. Attachment.
2. Arraignment.
3. Iudgement.
4. Execution.

Firſt, we muſt attach and bring our ſelues into Gods preſence, ſaying with the [t] prodigall ſonne, I will goe to my father. Secondly, we muſt indite our ſelues of our ſinnes at the barre of Gods iudgement: I haue ſinned againſt heauen, and before thee. Thirdly, we muſt [u] iudge our ſelues, that we be not iudged of the Lord: I am no more worthie to be called thy ſonne. Fourthly, we proceed to the lawfull execution of the fleſh, vſing the meanes for the crucifying of it, and they be principally [x] three: The firſt is applying of Chriſt crucified, and that is to beleeue not only that Chriſt was crucified for vs; but that we likewiſe were crucified with him.

The ſecond is to beat downe the fleſh by the ſword of the ſpirit, propounding in our daily repentance the ſeuerall Commandements and threatnings of God againſt our ſeuerall affections and luſts. As it were ſlaying murther with

[f] Luther. Ardens.
[g] Pſal. 1 3.
[h] Cant 4.12.
[i] Eſay 61.3.
[k] Galat. 2.20.
[l] Perkins.
[m] Luther.
[n] Ardens. Anſelm. Aretius.
[o] Rom 12. 10.
[p] Gal 5.13.
[q] 1 Cor 3.4.
[r] Rom. 8. 1.
[s] 1 Tim. 1. 9. Vide Melanct. ibid.
[t] Luke 15.18.
[u] 1 Cor. 11. 31.
[x] Perkins.

commandement, Thou ſhalt not kill: and robbing the theefe with another arrow taken out of Gods quiuer, Thou ſhalt not ſteale.

The third is to cut off the firſt beginnings of euill, and to fly the preſent occaſions of euery ſin. With theſe ſpirituall nailes (as [y] Luther ſpeakes) a Chriſtian may faſten all carnall deſire vnto the Croſſe; ſo that although the fleſh be yet aliue. yet can it not performe that which it would doe, for as much as it is bound hand and foot, and made ſubiect to the ſpirit.

[y] In loc.

Almighty and euerlaſting God, giue vnto vs increaſe of faith, hope, and charitie: and that we may obtaine that which thou doſt promiſe, make vs to loue that which thou doeſt command, through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord.

The Goſpell. Luke 17. 11. vnto v. 20.

And it chanced as Ieſus went to Hieruſalem, that he paſſed thorow Samaria and Galile: and as he entred into a certaine towne, there met him ten men that were Lepers, &c.

COncerning Chriſts diligence, going about to doe good: obedience, ſending the Lepers vnto the Prieſts of the Law: power and pitie, curing ſuch an incurable diſeaſe. Concerning alſo the faith and fact of the Lepers in confeſſing and adoring Chriſt, I haue ſpoken enough in mine expoſition of the Goſpell, allotted for the third Sunday after Epiphany. There remaineth in all this hiſtory, but one point only to be further examined, and that is the gratitude, rather ingratitude of theſe Lepers:

- Number of the thankſgiuers: one among ten, and that one not a Iew, but a Samaritane.
- In which obſerue the
  - Nature of the thankſgiuing: adorned with many commendable vertues, as
    - Obedience.
    - Deſire to be with Chriſt.
    - Praiſing of God.
    - Humilitie.
    - Loue.
    - Faith.

[z] Culman. Sarcerius. Aretius.
[a] Luk. 12. 32.
[b] Matth. 13.
[c] Diez. Coſter.
[d] Dan. 2.

One of them when he ſaw that he was cleanſed] [z] Hence we may learne, that the number of true beleeuers is but a [a] ſmall flocke, and that among much [b] ſtony, more thorney, there is but a little good ground. Many men in the world [c] reſemble [d] Nebuchadnezzars Image, whoſe head was of fine gold, his breaſt and his armes of ſiluer, his thighes of braſſe, his legs of iron, and his feet part of iron, and part of clay: the beginning of all theſe Lepers was golden, and their proceedings as purified ſiluer; all beleeued, all prayed, all obeyed Chriſt: but their end was dirtie, forſaking the word, and embracing the world. Hypocrites are like the Plaice, which hath a blacke ſide ſo well as a white: when once their turnes be ſerued by the white, they can and will inſtantly ſhew the blacke. While theſe men had their grieuous diſeaſe, they came to Chriſt, and cried to Chriſt, Ieſus Maſter, haue mercie on vs: but feeling themſelues healed, they forget him, and that which is worſe, they ſide with the Prieſts againſt him. Among ten, one man only was thankfull, and continued faithfull vnto the end. And this one was a ſtranger and a Samaritane. Wherein our Euangeliſt doth taxe their ingratitude, by [e] comparing one with nine, and a Samaritane with a Iew. [f] Teaching vs alſo not to boaſt of our progeny, though neuer ſo godly, nor to deſpaire though neuer ſo wicked. In the buſineſſe of our ſaluation oft it comes to paſſe, [g] that the firſt are the laſt, and the laſt are the firſt. In [h] Chriſt there is neither Iew nor Grecian, but in [i] euery Nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteouſneſſe, is accepted with him.

[e] Caluin. Ianſen.
[f] Theophylact.
[g] Luk. 13. 30.
[h] Gal. 3. 28.
[i] Act. 10. 35.

The

The thankfulneſſe of the Samaritane is accompanied with many notable vertues, as firſt obedience; for although he knew that he was, as he went cleanſed of his leproſie: yet according to Chriſts expreſſe commandement he ſhewed himſelfe to the Prieſts. And when he was with them, he was not ſeduced of them as the reſt of his company. For whereas the Prieſt (as [k] it is thought) had corrupted and perſwaded thoſe other nine, that they were cured by the Lawes obſeruation, and not by Chriſts either might or mercie: the Samaritane beleeued vnfainedly that Chriſt was a Prieſt for euer after the order of [l] Melchiſedec, euen an high Prieſt which is touched with the feeling of our infirmities, Heb. 4. 15. and therefore leauing the legall Prieſts, he was deſirous to be with Ieſus his Sauiour. Euery man goeth aſtray, but the good man is [m] regrediens, returning againe to Chriſt which is the way. Being now come to Chriſt, he performes his dutie to God, and man. To God, in praiſing him with a loud voice, which argueth his [n] deuotiotion, and in falling on his face at Chriſts feet, which argueth his [o] humilitie. To man, for whereas Chriſt ſaid vnto him. Are there not ten cleanſed? but where are thoſe nine? he made no reply, but held his peace; [p] ſignifying hereby that he came backe againe to remember his owne thankes, and not to tell tales of others ingratitude. Theſe good things ariſing from a liuely faith, are well pleaſing to God: and therefore Chriſt diſmiſſed him accordingly, Goe thy way, thy faith hath made thee whole.

Let vs imitate the Samaritane in his [q] perſeuerance, being neuer weary of [r] well-doing. The which one point (as [s] Cyprian and [t] Auguſtine haue noted) is almoſt all the contents of our Lords prayer. For in ſaying, hallowed be thy name, thy kingdome come, thy will be done, &c. what doe we deſire, but that Gods name may be ſanctified of vs alwayes, his kingdome propagated alwayes, his will fulfilled alwayes. If at any time we fall into ſinne, we muſt returne againe by faith and repentance to Chriſt, humbling our ſelues at his feet, and ſeruing him in holineſſe and righteouſneſſe all the dayes of our life.

The Goſpell and Epiſtle parallel, for ſinne is a ſpirituall leproſie, the ſpots whereof are adulterie, fornication, vncleanneſſe, idolatry, &c. Chriſt is the Phyſitian of our ſoule, who came into the world to ſaue ſinners, 1 Tim. 1. 15. I, euen I, (ſaith the Lord) am he that putteth away thine iniquities, Eſa. 42. 25. The Preachers of his word are his mouth, as it were, to [x] pronounce, that all ſuch as truly repent, and vnfainedly beleeue his holy Goſpell, are cured of their leproſie: but himſelfe alone [y] cleanſeth vs from all ſinne. Giuing vs his ſanctifying Spirit alſo, whereby we put off the old man, and walke in newneſſe of life. For as leprous [z] Naaman after he waſhed in Iordan, had new cleane fleſh in ſtead of his old rotten fleſh; euen ſo ſuch as are Chriſts, and are led of his ſpirit, in the places of their ancient vices, hatred, variance, ſedition, enuying, murther, &c. haue contrary vertues, as loue, ioy, peace, long-ſuffering, gentleneſſe, &c. If Iob bleſſed God for a wound giuen; what thankes owe we to God for our wounds healed, and our ſinne forgiuen? [a] O ineffabilis myſterij diſpoſitio! peccat iniquus, & punitur iuſtus; delinquit reus, & vapulat innocens; offendit impius, & damnatur pius; quod meretur malus patitur bonus, quod committit homo ſuſtinet Deus.

Pro ſeruis Dominus moritur, pro ſontibus inſons.
Pro ægroto medicus, pro grege paſtor obit.
Pro populo rex mactatur, pro milite ductor;
Pro opere ipſe opifex, pro homine ipſe Deus.
Quid ſeruus, ſons, ægrotus, quid grex populuſque,
Quid miles, quid opus, quid homo ſoluet? amet.

[k] Lyra. Cuſanus. Arctius.
[l] Heb. 7. 17.
[m] Bertrandus in loc.
[n] Ludolph.
[o] Panigarol.
[p] Ianſen. Coſter. Toman.
[q] Melanchthon.
[r] Gal. 6. 9.
[s] Ser. de Orat. Dom.
[t] De bono perſeuerantiæ, cap. 2.
[u] See poſtil. cum gl. iſis. & Feria ſex. 5. Dom. 15. poſt. Pentecoſt.
[x] Zepper. con. 1. in loc.
[y] 1 Ioh. 1. 7.
[z] 2 King. 5. 14.
[a] Auguſt. medit. cap. 7.

The Epistle. GALAT. 6. 11. vnto ỳ end

Ye see how large a letter I haue written vnto you with mine owne hand, &c.

THis Epistle to the Galathians hath three principall parts: a

- Preface: setting downe the
  - Saluters: Paul and the brethren, &c
  - Saluted: The Churches of Galatia.
  - Salutation: Grace be with you, &c.
- Treatise: concerning
  - Doctrines of holy faith: from verse 6. of the first chapter, vnto vers. 13. of the fifth Chapter.
  - Rules of good life: from vers. 13. of the fifth Chapter, vnto verse 11. of the sixth.
- Conclusion: in the Text read, wherein three points are to be considered: a
  - Insinuation: You see how large a letter I haue written, &c.
  - Recapitulation: As many as desire, &c.
  - Valediction: The grace of our Lord, &c.

Ye see how large] Saint Paul insinuates himselfe into the mindes of the Galathians by a two-fold argument. First, from the largenesse of his Epistle. Secondly, for that he wrote it with his owne hand. Interpreters haue construed the word large diuersly; [b] some referring it to the greatnesse of the character. Hyperius to the depth of his matter. [c] Hilarie to the lostinesse of his stile. [d] Theophylact to the badnesse of his hand. [e] Anselmus on the contrary, to the faireneſse of his writing. But the word signifieth [f] quantitie so well as qualitie: Heb. 7. 4. Iames 3. 5. Whereupon Beza translates here, videtis quàm longis literis and Vatablus, Quanta vobis epistola scripserim. Our English Bibles accordingly, so large, that is, as Erasmus in his paraphrase, so prolix. The plaine meaning then is, that he neuer wrote so [g] long an Epistle with his owne hand vnto any Church as vnto them. He writ indeed to Philemon with his [h] owne hand, but that Epistle was exceeding short in comparison of this: and he writ larger Epistles vnto the Church of Corinth and Rome; but by his Scribes, and not with his owne hand. Wherefore, seeing this letter is the most long and large that euer himselfe penned, it ought to be more regarded and better accepted; [i] as his paines were greater in writing, our diligence should be greater in reading and obseruing the same.

With mine owne hand] Haimo saith, it is the Doctors opinion, that Paul wrote not all this Epistle with his owne hand, but only from hence to the end; which assertion is contrary to the Text, and truth. It is euidently confuted in the Text, for that our Apostle speakes of the whole letter in the time past, I haue written. Or if of any part more then of another, it is of the former part rather then of the latter. Againe, the most ancient Doctors affirme, that himselfe penned it from the very beginning to the end with his owne hand. [k] Saint Ambrose saith, Vbi holographa manus est, &c. Where the whole writing is his owne hand, there can be no falshood. [l] Primasius vseth the word perscripsi. [m] Theophylact brings in Paul speaking thus; I am enforced euen with mine owne hand to write this Epistle to you. [n] Oecumenius cals it ἰδιόχειρον ἀσπασμὸν, [o] Anselme, non notarij manu sed mea. This then is [p] a testification of his exceeding great loue and care toward them, and it is a president for Pastors how they should be diligent in their ministerie both absent and present; if resident vpon their charge, they must be faithfull in winning Gods people to the Gospell: if non-resident vpon lawfull occasions (as Paul here) fearefull lest their mindes should be carried from the truth vnto contrary doctrine, that being absent in body, yet they may

[b] Apud Hieron. exposit. prior. in loc.
[c] In Psal. 118.
[d] In loc. Idem Oecumen.
[e] Bene formatis literis.
[f] Erasmus. Atq. in loc.
[g] Luther in loc.
[h] Philemon, vers 19.
[i] Caluin.
[k] In loc.
[l] In loc.
[m] In loc.
[n] In loc.
[o] In loc.
[p] Theophylact. Anselm. Aretius.

may be [q] preſent in ſpirit, and preſent by letters, hauing a greater care of the flocke then of the fleece.

As many as deſire with outward appearance] Here begins the recapitulation, in which our Apoſtle like a good Orator artificially repeats all thoſe things he would haue eſpecially remembred in the whole diſcourſe; now the maine propoſition of all this large letter vnto the Galathians is, [r] that a man is not iuſtified by circumciſion, or any works of the Law; but by the faith of Ieſus Chriſt. The which is al one with his aſſertion here, that Chriſt crucified is the ſole means of our ſaluation, and only ground of our ſpiritual reioycing. Neither Circumciſion, nor vncircumciſion auaileth any thing at al, but a creature renued, that is, endued with [f] faith working through loue. He doth accuſe therefore ſuch as obtrude [t] another Goſpell, an oppoſite doctrine, but bleſſe Gods Iſrael, euen as many as walk according vnto this rule.

The falſe teachers are deſcribed by [u] fiue properties, as firſt, They deſire with outward appearance to pleaſe carnally. Secondly, they conſtraine men to the ſtrict obſeruing of their owne deuiſed religion. Thirdly, the marke they ſhoot at is to ſhun ſtormes and perſecution for the Croſſe of Chriſt. Fourthly, they compell men to keepe that law which they will not obſerue themſelues. Fifthly, they pretend Gods honour, but intend only their owne vaine glorie, that they might reioyce in your fleſh. [x] Other reduce theſe fiue to foure: Flatterie, Cowardiſe, Diſſimulation, Boaſting. [y] Other to three: firſt, ſhunning of the croſſe: ſecondly, ſeeking of their owne glorie: thirdly, teaching of that themſelues vnderſtand not. All haply may be referred vnto their hypocriſie; for notwithſtanding their faire ſhewes and outward appearance, they ſeeke not herein their brethrens good, and Gods glory; but their owne honour and eaſe, that they might haue Cum dignitate otium, a Lordly liuing and a lazie life. Sike Church-men are like the Church pinnacle pointing vpward, poiſing downward.

In this deſcription of falſe Doctors, if thy ſight be quicke, thou maiſt apprehend the liuely picture both of a Schiſmaticke and Hereticke, who though outwardly they ſeeme neuer ſo great, yet are they the leaſt in the Church of God. According to that of Chriſt, [z] Whoſoeuer ſhall breake one of the leaſt Commandements and teach men ſo, ſhall be called the leaſt in the kingdome of Heauen. As [a] Auguſtine paraphraſtically, Qui ſoluerit & docuerit, id eſt, docuerit verbis quod ſoluerit factis, minimus erit.

If any ſhall demand how the falſe brethren in vrging Circumciſion had the world at will, and were made free from perſecution; [b] Anſwer is made, that the Roman Emperours, Caius, Octauian, Tiberius, had giuen libertie to the Iewes to liue according to their owne law, without moleſtation or diſturbance thorowout all the Roman Empire. So that if a Iew turned Chriſtian, he had the priuiledges of a Iew ſo long as he kept the ceremoniall rites of Moſes: whereas they who taught that ceremonies were abrogated, and that men were iuſtified only by faith in Chriſt, wanted thoſe priuiledges, and ſo were perſecuted of the Iewes, and of the Gentiles too, [c] Chriſt crucified being a ſtumbling blocke vnto the Iewes, and vnto the Grecians fooliſhneſſe. Now the [d] pſeudo-Apoſtles here, leſt they ſhould ſuffer affliction for the croſſe of Chriſt, inuented a new goſpell, and made an hotchpotch of religion. For as the Chriſtians in the countries of [e] Preſter Iohn and in Auguſtines age the [f] Symmachiani receiued both Circumciſion and Baptiſme: ſo they conioyned in the matter of ſaluation Meſſias and Moſes, iuſtification by faith, and iuſtification by workes, hereby ſeeking carnally to pleaſe both the Chriſtian and the Iew: the Chriſtian in preaching Chriſts croſſe: the Iew by preſſing circumciſion of the Law. Deſiring to ſerue two contrary maſters at one time, God and Mammon, as it is in the Goſpell appointed to be read this day. The Papiſt then in being a [g] mingle mangler, is branded with this infallible character of a corrupt teacher, and ſo is the mungrill in religion according fire and water, Antichriſtians and Chriſtians in the chiefe Oracles and Articles of holy faith, and ſo are carnall Goſpellers who deſire to haue Chriſt, but they will none of his Croſſe: They would be with him vpon Mount Tabor, but not vpon Mount Caluerie.

[q] 1 Cor. 5. 3.

[r] Cap. 2. v. 16.

[f] Cap. 5. 6.

[t] Cap. 1. 6.

[u] See ſupplement of Mr. Perkins Com. Galat. in loc.

[x] Aretius in loc.

[y] Luther in loc.

[z] Matth. 5. 19

[a] Contra lit. Petil lib. 2. cap. 61.

[b] Hieron. Primaſius, Aquin. in loc.

[c] 1 Cor. 1. 23.

[d] Anſel in loc.

[e] Matth. Dreſſerus, vita Io. Pory deſcript. of Africa pag 400.

[f] Auguſtin. contra Creſ. lib. 1. cap. 31.

[g] B. Latimer.

God forbid that I should reioyce but in the Crosse of our Lord Iesus Christ] The sufferings of the faithfull for Christ, are termed often the sufferings of Christ: 2 Cor. 1.5. as the sufferings of Christ abound in vs, &c. And Colossians 1. 24. I fulfill the rest of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh for his bodies sake, which is the Church. And so Christ himselfe witnesseth in saying, [h] Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? Saul did no violence to Christ, it was all done to his Church: but he that toucheth it, toucheth the [i] apple of his eye. There is a more liuely feeling in the head then in other members of the body; for the little toe being hurt, instantly the head sheweth it selfe by the countenance to grieue thereat: so Christ our head is touched with the feeling of our infirmities, euer suffering, while we suffer which are his body. [k] Some Diuines therefore by the Crosse of Christ, vnderstand Pauls affliction for preaching Christ crucified. As if he should say, let other boast as they list in auoiding persecution for the Gospell, herein I will reioyce, that I am esteemed [l] worthy to suffer rebuke for the name of Christ, [m] I take delight in reproches, in necessities, in tribulations, in anguish for Christs sake. But because the words (εἰ μὴ) are both exceptiue, making the sense thus, I will glorie in nothing but in the crosse of Christ: and exclusiue, onely in the crosse of Christ, and in nothing else: I subscribe to [n] Augustine, [o] Chrysostome, [p] Hierome, and [q] other who construe this of Christs all-sufficient Sacrifice for our sinnes on the crosse, whereby the world is crucified to vs, and we to the world, Christ himselfe being our [r] redemption, wisdome, righteousnesse: that as it is [s] written, he that glorieth should glorie in the Lord, and make boast of him all the day long, as it is Psal. 35. 28.

As their exposition is most agreeable to the letter, so most answerable to Pauls intent: as if he should haue written thus, Although other make their reioycing in circumcision, I will reioyce in nothing else but in the crosse of Christ, which [t] abrogates circumcision. And well might he speake so, for that in Christ crucified are hid not only the treasures of wisdome and knowledge, Coloss. 2. 3. but of fulnesse and grace, Iohn 1. 16. and of euery spirituall blessing, Ephes. 1. 3. In a word, all [u] things of which vsually men boast, are in Christs crosse. Doth any man glorie in wisdome? [x] Paul desired to know nothing but Christ crucified, as being assured, That this knowledge is eternall life, Iohn 17. 3. Doth any boast of riches and honour? by Christ all true beleeuers are made Kings and Priests, Apocal. 1. 6. Doth any reioyce in libertie? by Christ we are deliuered from the bonds and hands of our enemies, Luke 1. 74. Doth any delight in the Princes fauour? behold the King of Kings [y] accepteth of vs in Christ. All men desire comfort and content, and therefore let vs (as Paul here) reioyce in Christ crucified, in whom only we are [z] compleat, and by whom also we haue right to those things which eye hath not seene, eare hath not heard, neither can the heart of man conceiue.

Gods Israel walking according to this rule, though they beare the markes of affliction in their bodie: yet haue they peace of conscience in their soule. For being new creatures in Christ, the world cannot crucifie them any way more then they crucifie the world. As the world accounts them the [a] filth and off-scouring of all things: euen so they repute all things of the world as [b] dung, to winne Christ, and to glory in his Crosse.

Brethren, the grace of our Lord Iesus Christ be with your spirit] In this adieu our Apostle concludes his Epistle with a great Emphasis, euery word being a strong reason to confound his aduersaries, opposing first our Lord Iesus Christ the master of the house, to Moses who was but a [c] seruant in the house. Secondly, the grace of Christ to the merit of inherent righteousnesse, [d] insinuating that we are saued by grace, freeing vs from circumcision and other workes of the Law. Thirdly, the [e] spirit, which is the obiect of grace, to the flesh, in which the enemies of Christs crosse gloried so much. And lastly, noting in the word brethren, his lowly, but their lordly carriage toward the Churches of Galatia. The briefe of all is, [f] I haue taught you Christ purely, deliuering vnto you wholsome doctrine touching faith and good manners, I haue entreated you, chidden you, threatned you,

[h] Acts 9. 4.
[i] Zach 2. 8.
[k] Luther. Aretius.
[l] Acts 5. 41.
[m] 2 Cor. 12. 10.
[n] Tract. 43. in Ioan.
[o] In loc.
[p] Com. posterior. in loc.
[q] See B. Bilson tract vpon this text in the beginning of his conclusion to the Reader.
[r] 1 Cor 3. 31.
[s] Ieremy 9. 24.
[t] Theophylact. in loc.
[u] Aquin. in loc.
[x] 1 Cor. 2. 2.
[y] Ephes. 1. 6.
[z] Coloss. 2. 10.
[a] 1 Cor. 4. 13.
[b] Philip. 3. 8.
[c] Heb. 3. 5.
[d] Theophylact. Anselm. Caietan.
[e] Primasius.
[f] Luther.

you, letting passe nothing which I thought profitable for you. I can say no more, but that I heartily pray, that our Lord Iesus Christ would blesse my labours, and gouerne you with his holy Spirit for euer. See the peace of God in the Liturgie.

The Gospell. MATTH. 6. 24. vnto y^e end

No man can serue two masters.

THis Gospell is parted into a { Generall rule: No man can serue two masters. Particular instance: Yee cannot serue God and mammon. Whereupon is inferred that we may not be carefull what we shall eat or drinke, but that we should rather seeke first the kingdome of God, and the righteousnesse thereof, and then all these things shall be ministred vnto vs.

[g] Euthym & Rupert. in loc. Idem Iansen. con cap. 42.

No man can serue two masters] There is no rule so generall but hath exceptions, and so this common prouerbe is confined within his lists and limits, as Interpreters obserue. For one man may serue two well agreeing masters enioyning the same thing, as the men of Tyrus [h] hewing Cedar trees out of Lebanon for the Temple, serued both Hiram and Salomon. Againe, this axiome must be construed [i] in sensu composito, not diuiso: for otherwise we may serue diuers masters at diuers times, as [k] Zacheus at the first serued the world, yet afterward he followed Christ. The meaning of this adage then is, that no man at one time, can serue two masters enioyning [l] contrary duties. As for example, God and the flesh are two such masters, I see (saith [m] Paul) another Law in my members rebelling against the Law of my minde: for the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh, and these two are contrarie one to the other: Galat. 5. 17. We cannot serue these two, but we must loue the one and hate the other, or else leane to the one and despise the other: we must be seruants vnto God, and not vassals vnto lust.

[h] 1 King. 5. & 2 Chron 2.
[i] Pont. in loc.
[k] Luke 19.
[l] Theophylact. Euthym. Anselm.
[m] Rom. 7. 23.

Concupiscence is like to a fire, and our body like to a seething pot. Now the pot is cooled foure wayes especially: first, by taking away some of the fuell vnder the pot: euen so the lesse we drinke or eat, the lesser is the heat of our lust. It is fasting spettle that kils this serpent, [n] incrementum gastrimargiæ initium luxuriæ: howsoeuer [o] delectatio venereorum be the end, yet gulling is the matter and beginning of incontinence. The Poets faigned Venerem natam ex exectis Saturni virilibus, to [p] signifie that saturitie is the father of wantonnesse, and vncleannesse the [q] daughter of surfetting. [r] Sine Cerere & Baccho friget Venus: Lady Venus dwels at the signe of the Iuie bush: where there is cleannesse of teeth, vsually there is no filthinesse of body: but if we stuffe our corps like cloake-bags, making our mouthes as tunnels, our throats as wine-pipes, our bellies as barrels; if we fill them full of strong drinke and new wine, there must follow some vent, according to that of [s] Hierome: Ventrem distentum cibo & vini potionibus irrigatum voluptas genitalium sequitur, nam pro ordine membrorum ordo vitiorum.

[n] Cassianus, Collat. 5.
[o] See Thom. 2. 2. quæst 153. art 4. & Caiet. in ibid.
[p] Fulgent. Mytholog lib. 2. fab. de Venere.
[q] Greg. Moral. lib. 21. cap. 31.
[r] Terent. in Eunucho.
[s] Epist. Amande, tom. 3 fol. 135.

Secondly, the pot is cooled by stirring of it; so the furious heat of lust is much abated by the stirring of our bodies, and exercising of our mindes. Vnchaste follie for the most part is begot of an idle braine, hatched in a lazie bodie.

[t] Quæritur Ægistus quare sit factus adulter?
In promptu causa est, desidiosus erat.

[t] Ouid.

The Crab fish when as the Oyster doth open, flings into her a little stone, so that she cannot shut her selfe againe, and so the Crab deuoureth the Oyster: [u] Our aduersarie the deuill is like the Crab, and we like the Oyster, if he finde vs idle and gaping, he takes his opportunitie to confound vs, Otia pulvinar Satanæ, Cupid shoots in a slugge, and hits none but the sluggish. Albeit Rome was so well occupied as to make Idlenesse a diuine soueraignty: yet there was neuer a Temple within the Citie dedicated quieti & otio, sed extra Collinam portam illi ignauo numini templum dedicârunt. To signifie thus much (as our reuerend x Dr. Humfred. in vita Iuelli. pag. 47.

[u] Hicrome.

[x] Iewel

y Beza in vita Caluini.
z Reusner. in symbolis.
a Gen. 27.
b Ambros. de Cain & Abel, lib. 1. cap. 4.
c 1 Sam. 30.

x Iewel obserues) that no man borne in Rome, or Gentleman well brought vp, should vouchsafe Idlenesse any honour. y Caluin was wont to say, that a lazie life was of all other most tedious vnto him. And euery generous spirit resolues as z Maximinus: Quo maior sum, eo magis laboro, & quo magis laboro, eo maior sum. In holy a Bible we reade that Iacob vnder the name of Esau, which signifieth b working, obtained his fathers blessing, and that none shall receiue reward at the last day, but such as haue beene labourers in the Lords Vineyard: Matth. 20. 8.

Thirdly, we may coole the pot by casting cold water into it: in like manner abundance of teares is a good meanes to quench outragious flames of this vnruly fire. The Amalakites, as we finde in c sacred Historie, burned Ziklag, and tooke their wiues and children prisoners: then Dauid and the people lift vp their voices, and wept vntill they could weepe no more. After that Dauid asked counsell of God, and followed after them, and smote them (as it is in the Text) euen from the twilight vnto the euening of the next morrow, so there escaped not a man of them saue foure hundred young men which rode vpon camels and fled. Lust is an Amalekite, it burnes our Ziklag, and sets on fire this little Citie, captiuating our senses, and making them prisoners vnto it: but if we with Dauid shall weepe, so that we can weepe no more; if we cast cold water into the pot, if our eyes be a fountaine of teares, if we lament day and night the slaine of the daughter: assuredly we shall pursue the brutish Amalakites, and ouercome our vntamed affections, we shall smite them from the twilight of our youth, vntill the euening of our old age. Some young men may escape, that is, some vaine words and vncleane thoughts as yet may remaine in vs: but as for the old Amalekites, I meane grosse faults and foule transgressions, God will grant vs power and grace to kill all them, and so we shall recouer all that the Amalekites had taken, we shall rescue our wiues and daughters; our affections most deare to vs, heretofore captiuated vnto lust, shall now doe good seruice to God, acknowledging this infallible rule, that no man can serue two masters, God and the lust of the flesh.

Fourthly, the pot is cooled by taking it altogether from the fire; so we may the sooner coole this hot lust which so boyleth in vs, if we shun opportunities and occasions of sinne. Saint Paul willeth vs to resist and fight against other vices, d but as for fornication he saith, flee fornication, 1 Corinth. 6. 18. Cupid is a boy, therefore his shoot cannot be good; and blinde, therefore his aime must needs be bad: he can hit none but such as stand right afore him, and make themselues a Butt for his arrowes. It is a strange, yet a true rule:

Tu fugiendo fuga, nam fuga sola fuga est.
And as good counsell,
Ne sedeas, sedeas: ne pereas, per eas.

d Io. Saresb. policrat. lib. 8. cap. 6. Idem Aquin. Anselm. Caietan. in 1 Cor. 6.

e It was as great a miracle that Ioseph in his Mistresse armes should not burne with lust, as it was for the three children to walke in the firie fornace without any scorching. Young men of a little flame make a great fire; whereas the fault is not so much in our yeeres as in our selues. For Daniel a young man reproued the lasciuious Elders; Ioseph a young man resisted the temptations of his owne Mistresse; Iohn the blessed Euangelist a young man, f admodum adolescens & pæne puer, and yet as the g Scripture witnesseth, he was the best beloued Disciple. But young men in our time runne and ride to the Wood for fuell to make the fire greater, vsing strange cates and delicates, meats and medicines, rather poisons to encrease the flames of concupiscence, bragging of much villanie done, yea boasting of more then was done. Such a Gallant h Augustine was in his vnruly youth, vntill Almightie God effectually called him home by a voice from heauen, crying, i Tolle & lege, tolle & lege: Take the booke and read: and taking vp the Bible, the first Text he lighted on was that of Paul, Rom. 13. 13. Walke honestly as in the day, not in gluttonie & drunkennesse, neither in chambering & wantonnesse: but put ye on the Lord Iesu Christ, and take no thought for the flesh to fulfil the lust of it. After this Augustine was no more seruile to sin, but a true seruant e Luther. tom. 4. in Gen.

f Hieron. aduers. Iouin lib. 1.
g Iohn 19. 26. 20. 2.
h See confess. lib. 2. cap. 3.
i Confess lib. 8. cap. 12.

ſeruant vnto Chriſt: he now well vnderſtood my text, that he could not ſerue two maſters, God, and the luſt of his fleſh.

I know S. Auguſtine had afterward his infirmities, as himſelfe confeſſeth ingenuouſly: but he was not [k] giuen ouer vnto wantonneſſe, to worke all vncleanneſſe euen with greedineſſe. It is true, that concupiſcence ſo long as we are clothed and clogged with fleſh, is not extinguiſhed throughly. [l] The children of Iuda could not caſt out the Iebuſites, but they dwelled at Hieruſalem vntill this day. Luſt is a very Iebuſite, it will dwell with vs ſo long as we dwell in houſes of clay: the beſt man liuing may confeſſe with [m] Paul, I doe not the good things, which I would, but the euill which I would not, that doe I. Which I would not I doe, becauſe [n] whoſoeuer is borne of God ſinneth not, abſolutely with plenarie conſent: his will in ſinning is not voluntas, but velleitas, as the [o] Schoole diſtinguiſheth. A Mariner in a tempeſt doth caſt his goods into the water; a true man aſſaulted on the high-way giues his purſe to the theeſe, yet not with full conſent: euen ſo the children of God in the ſinne of incontinencie tranſgreſſe wittingly, yet with reluctation afore, and repentance after: whereas other men in a reprobate ſenſe, both approue their filthineſſe afore, and boaſt of it after. Lucretia, the faire Ladie of Rome, was aſſaulted violently by Tarquinius: [p] Auguſtine writing of this rape, ſaith excellently, Duo fuerunt, & vnus adulterium admiſit. There were two actors, but one adulterer, there was a coniunction of bodies, but a diſtraction of mindes. A regenerate mans cauſe is like that of Lucretia, ſinne is rather done de illo quàm ab illo.

I ſpeake not this to incourage any in their vncleanneſſe, God forbid. Let euery man, in the feare of God, vſe the meanes afore preſcribed for the cooling of intemperate luſt boyling in his fleſh, and then if he cannot expell this Iebuſite, he cannot caſt out this deuill by faſting and prayer, if he cannot extinguiſh this outragious fire with watrie teares; let this be his comfort, that God requires only, that luſt be not our maſter, that it raigne not in our mortall bodies, Rom. 6. 12. The [q] Greeke Fathers obſerue well vpon that place, that Paul ſaid not, let not ſinne tyrannize, but let not ſinne raigne. Be not ſinnes voluntarie ſouldiers, in [r] giuing your members as weapons of vnrighteouſneſſe vnto ſinne: but if ye be ſinnes preſt ſouldiers againſt your will, it is not you that offend, [ſ] but the ſinne that dwelleth in you. Luſt may command as a tyrant, and yet we may performe good ſeruice to God: but if we ſubmit our ſelues vnto it as our king, if we ſuffer it to raigne, making our members ſeruants to vncleanneſſe and iniquitie, then aſſuredly luſt is our lord and ioue: for my Text muſt be true, No man can ſerue two maſters.

As God and the fleſh, [t] ſo God and the deuill are two contrarie maſters: for the one is truth it ſelfe, I am the way, and the truth, Iohn 14. 6. the other is a liar, and the father thereof, Iohn 8. 44. ſo that all ſuch as ſpeake the truth from their heart dwell in Gods tabernacle, Pſal. 15. but ſuch as delight in lying, are fit for the deuils ſeruice. Now there is [u] materiale mendacium, and formale: the which diſtinction is more plainly deliuered by the Grammarians, who make a difference betweene the reporting of an vntruth, and the forging of a lie. For, as Nigidius in [x] A. Gellius, he that doth lie deceiueth other; he that reports an vntruth is deceiued himſelfe: and as [y] Lombard, a man may be true that relates a thing vntrue: for as Philoſophers and Diuines haue determined, mentiri eſt contra mentem ire, [z] to ſpeake that with our mouth, which we thinke not in our minde. Enunciatio falſa cum [a] intentione fallendi. The ſeruant of God often vtters that which is falſe, and yet he is verax, for that he thought it had beene true; and the deuils ſeruants ſometime ſpeakes the truth, and yet he is mendax, for that he thought it to be falſe, as Auguſtine and Lombard haue well obſerued.

Thou maiſt eaſily diſcerne by this cognizance, to what maſter the ſeruant of ſeruants and his retinue belong, namely, to Don Beel-zebub, the mint maſter of equiuocation and forgerie. Not to meddle with their old Legend, and new Calender of Saints, in which are more lies than leaues. To paſſe by their Paſquils and [k] Epheſ. 4. 19.

[l] Ioſ. 15. 63.
[m] Rom. 7. 19.
[n] 1 Ioh 3. 9.
[o] Thom. part. 3. queſt 21. art. 4.
[p] De Ciuit. Dei, lib. 1. cap. 19.
[q] Theodoret. apud Oecumen. Theophylact. & ely.
[r] Rom. 6 13.
[ſ] Rom 7 20.
[t] Auguſt lib 2. de ſer. Dom. in mont. Idem Anſelm. Vega, Calmet. in loc.
[u] Thom 2 2. queſt. 110. art. 1
[x] Noct. At. lib. 11. cap. 11.
[y] Sent. lib. 3. diſt 38
[z] Auguſt. enchirid cap. 22.
[a] Auguſt. contra mendat ad Conſen. cap. 12.

and inuectiue libels, as their [b] Theatrum credulitatum, the relations of Caietan, annexed to Genebrards Chronologie, Stapletons trees Thomæ, Mer. Gallobel. mundus furiosus, Giffords Caluino turcismus, together with the seditious pamphlets of Allen, Sanders, Campian, Bristo, Rob. Parsons; all which are not only hyperbolici, but as [c] one wittily, hyperdiabolici. Not to mention here their vnsufferable correcting, yea corrupting of all Authors, onely giue me leaue to remember how the Iesuits impudently deliuered in pulpit and [d] print, that old Beza was dead, and that forsooth he died a Roman-Catholike; and how they play the iuglers in the businesse of Pope Ioane. Marianus Scotus, lib. 3. Chron. ad ann. 854. [e] Sigesbertus Gemblacensis, [f] Martianus Polonus, the penner of the Chronicle called Fasciculus temporum in fol 65. Volateran, Com. [g] lib. 22. Iacobus Bergomensis de Claris mulieribus, cap. 143. [h] Sabellicus, Ioannes Lucidus de emendatione temporum, lib. 8. [i] Ranulphus, [k] Boccace, [l] Platina, Nauclerus, and [m] other arrant Romanists affirme directly, that there was a Pope Ioane: who being an [n] harlot, well became the seat of the Babylonian whore. Yet Auentius annal Boior. lib. 4. Onuphrius annot. in Platin. Genebrard. in Chron. ad ann. 854. Bellarm. de Rom. Pont. lib. 3 cap. 24. and all our moderne Iesuited Papists obstinately contradict this historie, seeking against their owne knowledge, to perswade the world, that it is a meere fable. By which it is apparant, that they gaine more by this one literall Art of lying, than they doe by the seuen liberall Sciences.

As God and the flesh, and God and the deuill, so to giue Christs instance, God and the world are two [o] contrary masters. And therefore whereas [p] some desire to serue God only, some the world only, some both: in their deuotion as it were [q] carried vp to the heauen, in their auarice downe againe to the deepe: our blessed Sauiour saith peremptorily, Yee cannot serue God and mammon. [r] He doth not say, yee cannot haue God and mammon; for Marie and Martha may dwell together, righteousnesse and riches may stand together: but yee cannot serue God and mammon; for he that is the seruant of God must be the master of his money.

The children of Israel, as it is recorded Exod. 14. walked vpon dry ground thorow the red Sea, because, saith the text, the waters were deuided: but the cruell Ægyptians pursuing after Gods people were drowned, because the Sea returned againe to his course [s] Mystically, such as diuide their worldly substance, distributing to the poore, lending to the needie, passe through the maine streame of the worlds current safely, their riches and honour being vnto them, as the waters vnto the children of Israell, a wall on the right hand, and a wall on the left: but hold-fast Ægyptians, auarous oppressors, being more cunning in substraction than in diuision, are drowned in the puddle. When S. Peter casteth his net ouer them, alas they runne themselues so deepe in the mudde, as that it cannot get vnder them to drag them out.

Mammon is a Lord in opinion only, [t] Nos facimus te fortuna deam, &c. and as [u] Plinie speakes, Omnibus locis, omnibus horis, omnium vocibus fortuna sola inuocatur, &c. [x] But Almighty God is by right and indeed a Lord of all things, of all men especially. For as [y] Diuines obserue) God is not called Lord in the Scripture till he created man. In the beginning God created the heauen and the earth, and God said, Let there be light, &c. Againe, God said, Let there be a firmament, &c. but after man once was made, the [z] text often calleth him Lord: The Lord God made the man of the dust of the ground, & the Lord God planted a garden east ward, and the Lord tooke the man and put him in the garden of Eden, commanding him, and saying, Thou shalt eat freely, &c. We must therefore serue none but this [a] one Lord, first seeking his kingdome, making him our master, and Mammon our seruant: for if we serue God most, and seeke his kingdome first, [b] respecting his glory and honour afore all other things, aboue all other things: then all other things, as Christ promiseth here, which are necessarie for vs, shall be ministred vnto vs. See Epist. 3. Sunday after Trinitie.

Thus I haue shewed how no man can serue two masters, as two, but [c] as one. For [d] euery man is either a willing or vnwilling seruant: if willing, he shall hate the [b] Per Ric. Verstegan. Antuerp.

[c] Dr. Sutlif.
[d] Viuarius epist.
[e] Chron. ad ann. 854.
[f] Supputat. ad ann 855.
[g] Col. 657. Lugdun.
[h] En. 9. lib. 1.
[i] Polychron. lib 5 cap. 32.
[k] Lib. de Claris mul.
[l] In vita Ioan. 8.
[m] See D. Morton apolog cat. lib. 1 cap. 19. & Alex Cocke, Pope Ioane p. 3
[n] Nam Papa pater patriæ peperit paruulum puerulum.
[o] Iam 4. 4.
[p] Aldens in loc.
[q] Psal 107. 26.
[r] Chrysost. Hieron. Aret. in loc.
[s] Anton. de Rampen. in fig. Biblicis.
[t] Iuuenal.
[u] Lib. 2 cap. 7.
[x] Aret in loc.
[y] Tertul cont. Hermogen. Idem Vega in loc.
[z] Gen. 2.
[a] Ephes 4. 5.
[b] Aug. de ser. Dom. in monte lib. 2. Idem Euthym. Anselm. Marlorat. in loc.
[c] Caietan. in loc.
[d] Gloss & Ian. sen. Con. cap. 42.

There was a Pope Ioane by the Papists owne confession.

the one, and loue the other: if vnwilling, he will [e] endure the one, and despise the other. And yet, as I said in the beginning, one man may serue diuers masters at diuers times, albeit they require diuers, yea contrary seruice. Matthew sometimes an instrument of Sathan, afterward Christs Apostle. Salomon sometime seruing God, sometime seruing his lusts. The blessed theefe, seruant to the world in his life, was the childe of God at his death. All sinne is [f] either a thought, a word, or a deed, against the diuine Law. Who did euer offend in thought more than Paul? [g] breathing out threatnings against the Disciples of the Lord. Who did euer offend in word more than Peter? [h] forswearing his owne master. Who did euer offend more in deed than [i] Dauid? who bound two great sinnes together, adulterie and murther: And yet the God of compassion and father of mercy, retained all these sinners againe in his seruice. The which examples are recorded in holy Bible, partly for instruction of such as stand, and partly for the consolation of such as haue fallen. [k] Instruunt Patriarcha non solum docentes sed etiam errantes. If Noe was drowned himselfe with wine, who foretold the drowning of the world with water; if Sampson the strongest was ouercome by the weaker vessell; if Salomon the most wise committed follie, [l] let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. Againe, these things are registred in Scripture for the comfort of such as haue fallen already. Did God forgiue Lots incest, Pauls butchering of the Saints, Aarons idolatrie? then a weake conscience from these premises, and vpon Gods gratious promises may conclude, my sinnes are no greater, and Gods mercy can be no lesse.

When Theodosius excused a foule fact, because Dauid hath done the like: [*] S. Ambrose made this answer: Qui secutus es errantem, sequere pœnitentem. Hath thy mouth blasphemed with Peter? let thine eyes then weepe with Peter. [m] Either thou must be a Sodomite, or a Niniuite; a Sodomite suffering for sinne, or a Niniuite repenting for sinne. Yet fortie dayes and Niniue shall bee destroyed, Ionas 3.4. Niniue was ouerthrowne, and yet not ouerthrowne, as [n] S. Hierome sweetly, Quæ peccatis perit, fletibus steterit. It was ouerthrowne by sinne, but builded vp againe by repentance. Euersa est Niniue quæ mala erat, & ædificata bona quæ non erat, saith [o] Augustine. Let vs not looke to Sodome, but set our eyes on Niniue; for if we will resist our spirituall enemie, we must arme our selues with sackcloth, and put on head-peeces of ashes: if we meane to serue but one master only, let vs renouncing all other seruices, instantly with all haste, and with all our heart turne to the Lord our God. [p] It is sufficient that we haue spent the time past after the lust of the Gentiles, in wantonnesse, gluttonie, drunkennesse, &c. Let vs now spend as much time as remaineth in the flesh, after the will of God. It is a monstrous absurditie, that seruing but two masters all our life, we should sacrifice the best of our dayes vnto the worst, and then offer vp the worst of our dayes vnto the best. Againe, let vs, I beseech you, repent with all our heart throughly, [q] powre out thy soule like water before the face of our Lord. If thou powre out milke, the colour remaineth in the pan: if wine, the tent remaineth in the vessell: if honie, some taste remaineth in the pot. He therefore that will not [r] ipsius pœnitentiæ pœnitere, [t] must not powre out his heart like milke, least he be knowne still by his colour: nor like wine, least he smell of wicked imaginations: nor like honie, least he keepe a smacke of his old tricks: but like cleane water, that no taste, or smell, or colour may remaine. If Mammon be thy master, obserue him; if God be thy Lord, follow him: [t] halt not betweene two opinions, sit not vpon two stooles, lie not downe betweene [u] two burthens, serue not two masters, either you must hate the one, and loue the other, or else leane to the one, and despise the other.

Preached at Pauls Crosse, Febr. 8. Anno, 1600. the very same houre, that Robert, Earle of Essex, entring the Citie with his vnfortunate troupe, found by wofull experience the words of my Text true, that no man can serue two masters.

The

[e] Patietur, tit. August. sustinebit: vti vulgar.

[f] Augustine.

[g] Acts 9.1.

[h] Mat. 26.72.74.

[i] 2 Sam. 11.

[k] Ambros. de Abraham, lib. 1. cap. 6.

[l] 1 Cor. 10.12

[*] Theodorit. hist. lib. 5 cap 17 & Bellarm. de gemitu colum. lib. 1 cap. 11.

[m] Aug. de Ciu. lib 21 cap 24.

[n] Epist. ad Damasum tom. 2. fol. 133.

[o] Vbi supra.

[p] 1 Pet. 4.3.

[q] Lament. 2 19

[r] Saluian lib. 5. de gubernat. Dei

[t] Bonauent. Diæt. cap 11.

[t] 1 Kin. 18.21.

[u] Gen 49.14.

The Epistle. EPHES. 3. 13. vnto yᵗ end

I desire that yee faint not, because of my tribulations, &c.

THis Epistle containeth a double requeſt of Paul:

- One to men: I desire that yee faint not, because of my tribulations: And that in respect of the
  - Cause: for that I suffer for your sakes.
  - Consequent: for that it is your praise.
- Another to God: For this cause, &c. consisting of a - Petition: I bow my knees vnto the Father, &c.
  - Thanksgiuing: Vnto him that is able, &c.

I desire] The [x] Syriac hath it thus: I desire that my spirit faint not in my tribulations. And the bare words of the Greeke in [y] Hieromes opinion, afford the same sense. But if we shall examine the precedent part of this Chapter, I Paul am the prisoner of Iesus Christ for you Gentiles, &c. and the subsequent, I bow my knees vnto the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, &c. That yee may be strengthned with might by his spirit in the inner man; it will appeare most euidently, that this Text ought to be construed as our English translation here readeth, I desire you that yee faint not; it being one, yea the only [z] maine point of all this Epistle, which is nothing else but an exhortation vnto perseuerance.

That I suffer for your sakes] An argument from the cause of his affliction: as if he should say, Yee men and brethren of Ephesus are [a] both efficient and finall cause that I suffer, and therefore no reason that yee should faint because of my tribulation. Efficient, being a prisoner in Rome for the [b] Gospell, euen for that doctrine which I taught you. Finall, enduring this imprisonment for your [c] good, and [d] example, that yee likewise may continue constant in the sincere profession of Christianitie. Paul then suffered not for his owne fault, nor yet for their faction: it was only for defending the truth, euen for preaching [e] Christ crucified, vnto the Iewes a stumbling blocke, and vnto the Grecians foolishnesse. And therefore such as subscribe to the Confession of our Church, acknowledging all our Articles of Religion orthodoxall and pure; cannot in suffering a little crosse for certaine questions about matters of indifferencie, gaine to themselues or their followers any true glory. For they know that [f] B. Ridley went to the stake cheerfully, wearing a Tippet of veluet, and a corner cap: and yet as that good old man Father Latymer prophecied, at his burning there was such a candle lighted in England, as shall neuer be put out. Iohn Philpot was an Archdeacon, and Doctor [g] Rowland Taylor vsed the Seruice-book to his comfort all the time of his imprisonment, and commended it at his death, as the last token of his loue, to his deare wife: yet these men (let enuie be iudge) were the Diamonds of the Churches ring in that age. Whereas if the daily martyred B. Farrar, or that vigilant Pastor B. Hooper had sacrificed their liues in the quarrell against Clericall habits, and other comely ceremonies inioyned by their religious Soueraigne King Edward the sixt: iudicious Fox would neuer haue numbred them among the glorious Martyrs of Christ. I say then vnto such as boast of their persecution in this kinde, not for the bodie, but only for the swadling clouts of holy religion, as [h] Paul once to the Corinthians in another case, your reioycing is not good. See Epist. 2. Sunday after Easter.

Which is your praise] This clause may be referred (as [i] Interpreters obserue) both to Pauls affliction, and their perseuerance. To Pauls affliction, it is your glory that yee haue such a Pastor as is the [k] prisoner of Iesus Christ, in bonds not for any scandalous crime, but for [l] conscience towadrs God, euen for preaching among the Gentiles the vnsearchable riches of Christ, as it is vers. 8. of this present Chapter. If yee rightly consider my tribulation, it is to make you [m] glorious, and it cannot dismay, [n] but rather incourage you, knowing that God will [o] reward our light

[x] Vide Zanchiū in loc.
[y] Exposit prior in loc.
[z] Aretius in loc. Idem Aquin. & Marlorat. argument. huius epist.
[a] Zanchius.
[b] Caietan.
[c] Aquin. Kilius.
[d] Anselm. Sarcerius.
[e] 1 Cor. 1. 23.
[f] Master Fox in the martyrdome of Bishop Ridley and Latymer.
[g] Master Fox in the martyrdome of Doctor Rowland Taylor of Hadley.
[h] 1 Cor. 5. 6.
[i] Caietan. Zanchius.
[k] Ephes. 3. 1.
[l] 1 Pet. 2. 19.
[m] Sarcerius.
[n] Aretius.
[o] Primasius.

light affliction which is but for a moment, with a farre more excellent and eternall weight of glorie: 2 Cor.4.17. And if my trouble for the truth, occasion vnto you such praise; [p] how much more glory shall your owne constancie procure before God and men, if ye faint not vnder the Crosse, but continue faithfull vnto the end? The Church is like Abrahams Ram tied in a bush of thornes, Gen.22.13. Tribulations for the Gospel are the markes [q] of the Lord Iesus, in which our [r] Apostle took great pleasure, being more proud of his iron fetters, then a bragging Courtier of his golden chaine. If they be blessed who die in the Lord, how blessed are they who die for the Lord? Their deaths are not mortes, but [f] immortalitates. As [t] Iulian honoured all those who were slaine in his warre: so Christ and his Church honour such as are martyred in the Lords battell, Celebri potius laude quam luctu: right deare in the sight of the Lord is the [u] death of his Saints, vndergoing in Christs cause Christs crosse.

For this cause I bow my knees vnto the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ.] As if he should say, [x] Because you cannot doe this of your selues, I pray for it, and that not coldly but [y] earnestly, bowing my knees of the body with [z] Stephen, and of the heart with [a] Manasses, not vnto any Saints in heauen, much lesse to their senselesse Images on earth, [b] hauing mouthes and speake not, eyes and see not, eares and heare not: but vnto him only that is able to doe exceeding abundantly aboue all that we can aske or think, to the Father of [c] mercies, and God of [d] all grace, from whom commeth [e] euery good and perfit gift. [f] Infirmitatis nostræ est deficere, sed Dei reficere: To God then I bow my knees, and yet not to God simply, [g] but to God, as the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, [h] in whom he is well pleased. To him I make my request, able, because God; willing, because the Father of Christ, to heare me and helpe you.

Which is father of all that is called father in heauen and in earth] According to the present Text of our Communion booke, the meaning of Paul is, that God is the Father of all fathers in earth. As of the Prince which is our ciuill Father, because [i] by him Kings raigne: of the Pastor which is our Ecclesiasticall [k] Father, because Preachers and Teachers are his [l] ordinance: of the Parent which is our naturall Father, because [m] children are the gift of the Lord. And Father of all our [n] fathers and progenitors in heauen, Abraham, Isaac, Iacob, &c. and Father of the glorious Angels also, which are fathers, as is [o] supposed one to another, and all of them vnto [p] vs in respect of their tuition and illumination, as being the ministers of God for our bodily [q] preseruation and spirituall [r] erudition. And so God being πατρικῶς πάντων, may be termed, and that not vnfitly, the Father of all that is called father in heauen and in earth, [s] hac ratione est omnium pater, & ab eo patres cæteri nominantur. Our translation here then is not so senselesse, as [t] they who did except against it.

Our latter English Bibles I confesse read better, of whom is named the whole family that is in heauen and in earth. And of whom (as [u] Interpreteters obserue) may be referred vnto God the Father, and vnto Christ his Sonne. To the Father, [x] who did adopt the whole family, that is, all the Church in Christ. To Christ Iesus our Lord: [y] for the Catholike Church as well triumphant in heauen, as militant on earth, consisting of all nations, peoples, tribes, hath her name from him. [z] As all of Cæsars family were called Cæsarians, and all of the tribe of Israel, Israelites: euen so such as are of Gods house professing Christ, are named Christians. In Christ all men and Angels are contribules of one kindred, [a] their is neither Iew nor Grecian, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Iesus. [b] Here then is another argument enforcing our Apostles exhortation. If all of vs haue receiued this honourable stile to be called Christians of Christ, in that we professe Christianitie; let vs not be faint but feruent, not wauering but constant in our faith vnto the end, and in the end. For if we professe Christ in words, and [c] deny him in our workes, assuredly we shall haue nothing but a name, nomen inane crimen immane: but if any turne Turke or Iew, [d] defying Iesus, he shall not haue so much as a name.

[p] Theophylact.
[q] Galat.6.17.
[r] 2 Cor.12.10.
[f] Clerus Rom. apud Cyp. epist. 21.
[t] Ammian. Marcel. hist. lib. 20.
[u] Psal.116.13.
[x] Anselm. Sacer.
[y] Theophylact.
[z] Acts 7.60.
[a] In his prayer
[b] Psal.115.5.
[c] 2 Cor 1.3.
[d] 1 Pet.5.10.
[e] Iam.1.17.
[f] Reynol. in loc.
[g] Zanchius.
[h] Matth 3.17.
[i] Prou 8.15.
[k] 1 Cor 4.15.
[l] Ephes 4.11.
[m] Psal.127.4.
[n] Zanchius.
[o] Sedulius. Aquin.
[p] Anselm. Reynol.
[q] Psal 91.11.
[r] Galat.3.19.
[s] Theophylact. Primasius. Sarcerius.
[t] Defens. for not subscrib. part 1. cap 18.
[u] Marlorat. Zanchius.
[x] Beza.
[y] Caluin.
[z] Caietan.
[a] Galat.3.28.
[b] Aretius.
[c] Tit.1.16.
[d] 1 Cor.12.3.

That he would grant you according to the riches of his glory] The [c] Greeke fathers conioyne this and the subsequent verse, making both one request: I desire the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, that he would grant you according to the riches of his glory, that ye may be so strengthened with might by his spirit in the inner man, as that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith. [f] Other haue distinguished these petitions, in the first whereof obserue these fiue circumstances especially:

1. Who doth giue? The Father of our Lord Iesus Christ.
2. What? That ye may be strengthened with might.
3. Out of what coffer? Out of the riches of his glory.
4. By what instrument? By his spirit.
5. In what part? In the inner man.

The word grant or giue doth exclude [g] humane merit, and shew that our perseuerance proceeds only from the riches of Gods glory, which our Apostle calleth in the second chapter of this epistle, verse 7. exceeding riches of his grace. But he tearmeth it here glory, [h] because the constant resolution of the faithfull is Gods glory, for as much as his power is made perfect through their weakenesse, 2 Cor. 12.9. Or it may be [i] thus expounded according to the precise letter; It is not for a great man of an opulent fortune to giue sparingly, wherefore God out of the riches of his glory giueth vnto all men [k] liberally, [l] for if he spared not his owne sonne, but gaue him for vs all to death, how shall he not with him giue vs all things also? The King of glory cannot [m] ex opulentia gloriosa giue but exceeding abundantly, aboue all that we aske or thinke. Pauls addition is more remarkable, the riches of his glory: For as he sheweth elsewhere, the goodnesse of God toward vs, it is not a bare but a [n] rich mercy: not a little, but a [o] great loue: not a naked or a single, but a [p] sufficient, yea [q] superabundant grace. So long then as God is rich in mercy, saith [r] Bernard, I cannot be poore in merit.

That ye may be strengthened.] [f] Here we may learne that the Church of God militant on earth is not in her full strength, it is alway growing and [t] increasing more and more, we may profit, but we cannot be perfect till this corruption hath put on incorruption; the most resolute Souldier in the spirituall war, hath euery day need to be strengthened, and that with might; because we fight not against weaklings, but against powers and spirituall potentates in high places, Ephes. 6.12. Our aduersaries are so mighty that we cannot ouercome them, except the Spirit of God which is [u] the spirit of fortitude, strengthen vs in the inner man, that is, in the [x] soule, [y] that albeit our body which is our outward man, perish: yet our spirit which is the inward man may be renewed daily. He doth not pray for the wealth of the world, or health of the body which affoord comfort outwardly: [z] but he desireth vpon his bowed knees, the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, that his Ephesians may haue sound inner parts, as it is in the [a] Psalme, all glorious within: it is then an idle conceit to thinke that a Pastor benefits his people more by a little skill in Physicke and law, then by a great deale of Diuinity: for hauing charge of their soules, and not of their bodies or goods, he must especially labour that the inner man may be strengthened with might against our Aduersary the Deuill.

That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith, that ye being rooted and grounded in loue.] These three Metaphors of our Apostle, dwell, rooted, grounded: are most emphaticall, and pertinent to his purpose; the faithfull are [b] Gods house, Christ therefore doth not only [c] sup with them as a guest, but [d] dwell with them as head of the family, [e] not only παροικεῖν, but κατοικεῖν, [f] non hospitari modò sed habitare.

An [g] house surely founded is able to withstand the winds blowing, and waues bellowing. A tree deepely rooted is not ouerthrowne with a tempest: euen so, such as are grounded in faith, and rooted in loue, continue stedfast in their profession in the middest of all afflictions and persecutions for the word; but such as haue [h] no root, beleeue but for a season, and so Christ is in their hearts only for a season. If for the Gospell any stormes arise, they be suddenly cast downe, yea

[c] Theophylact. Oecumen.
[f] Zanchius.
[g] Marlorat.
[h] Sarcerius. Aretius.
[i] Royard. in loc.
[k] Iam. 1.5.
[l] Rom. 8.32.
[m] Beza maior annot. in loc.
[n] Ephes. 2.14.
[o] Ibid.
[p] 2 Cor. 12.9.
[q] Rom. 5.20.
[r] Serm. 81. in Cant.
[f] Caluin. Marlorat.
[t] 1 Thess. 4.1.
[u] Esay 11.2.
[x] Anselm. Caluin. Zanchius.
[y] 2 Cor. 4.16.
[z] Caietan.
[a] Psal. 45.14.
[b] Heb. 3.6.
[c] Apocal. 3.20
[d] Iohn 14.23.
[e] Beza maior annot. in loc. & in Matth. 2.23.
[f] Caietan.
[g] Matth. 7.24.
[h] Matth. 13.21

yea carried away, with euery blast of contrary doctrine. The [i] Galathians had begun in the spirit, and yet afterward they were bewitched and [k] remoued away to another Gospell. In [l] Salomon the Spirit was quenched, and iniquitie for a time got the vpper hand: and Bishop [m] Latymer is bold to terme such new spirits, who say that we cannot lose the Spirit: and therefore let vs vpon bowed knees humbly beseech Almighty God out of the riches of his mercy, to strengthen our inner man by his Spirit. Christ dwelleth in our heart by faith; [n] as long then as faith is aliue, Christ [o] liueth in vs, and we in him: if our faith once be dead, then Christ which is our [p] life departs out of our heart. Now faith without good workes is [q] dead, it must therefore [r] worke through loue, we must be grounded and rooted in charitie.

Might be able to comprehend with all Saints, what is the bredth, length, depth and height.] [s] Some by bredth, vnderstand the broad way, Matth. 7. 13. by length, eternall life; by depth, hell; and by height, heauen: as if he should haue said, If ye be grounded in faith, and rooted in charitie, then ye may soone know which of these to loue or leaue. But it is better expounded [t] either of our loue toward other, or of Gods loue in Christ toward vs. Of our loue, [u] which hath a bredth, in louing all men, euen our enemies. A length, in that loue neuer fals away, 1 Cor. 13. 8. An height, in louing our superiours. A depth, in louiug our inferiours: or an height in louing God aboue all, and a depth in reuerencing the deepnesse of his riches, Rom. 11. 33. The loue of God towards vs [x] hath a length, in respect of his eternitie, Psal. 102. 12. A bredth, in respect of his infinite goodnesse shewed vpon all his workes, Ecclesiasticus 1. 10. An height, in respect of his excellent nature, being high aboue all people, Psal. 99 2. A depth, in respect of his vnsearchable wisdome, which is a profound deepnesse, Ecclesiastes 7. 26 herein alluding as it may seeme to that of [y] Iob, Canst thou by searching finde out God? Canst thou finde out the Almightie to his perfection? The heauens are high, what canst thou doe? It is deeper then hell: how canst thou know it? Or as [z] other, Christs loue toward vs hath a length, in that his mercie doth endure for euer and euer, euen from euerlasting predestination, vnto euerlasting glorification. A bredth, in that he would [a] all men should be saued; Iewes, Gentiles, Grecians, Barbarians, afore the Law, vnder the Law, after the Law, from the beginning vnto the worlds end. A depth, in that he descended into hell, openly triumphing ouer Satan in his owne kingdome. An height, in that he did ascend [b] farre aboue all heauens, and there sitteth at the right hand of God as our Mediator and Aduocate. [c] Other haue discoursed of the foure woods, and dimensions in the materiall Crosse of Christ more subtilly then soundly. For the plaine meaning of these words is, that our redemption is a [d] great mysterie. To know Christ crucified is [e] the bredth, length, height, depth of all our knowledge, in comparison whereof all other things are to be reputed as [f] dung and drosse. Some trouble themselues and other about round and square, long and short, blacke and white, spending the strength of their wits in examining the lawfulnesse or vnlawfulnesse of certaine ceremonies vsed in the Church of England: whereas if they were grounded in faith and rooted in loue, they would endeuour rather to comprehend with all Saints, what is the bredth, length, depth, height of Christs loue toward vs, and in fine to be fulfilled with all fulnesse which commeth of God.

[g] Some thinke that the Church is this fulnesse, increasing daily till the number of Gods Elect is accomplished. [h] Other construe this of the blessed Trinitie: but because [i] the fulnesse of the Godhead dwels in Christ, and the Saints are compleat in him: I take the clause (that ye may be fulfilled with all fulnesse of God) to be nothing else but an [k] explanation of the former words, as if he should say, this I meane by bredth, length, depth and height; that he which hath Christ, hath all things absolutely compleat to perfection: I pray therfore [l] not that ye may be fully God, but that ye may be full of God, full of his [m] grace with all the liuing Saints in [n] this world, and full of his glory with all the Saints departed in the world

[i] Gal 3.3.
[k] Gal. 1.6.
[l] Deerin. lect. 4 Heb.
[m] Serm. 7 before King Edw.
[n] Bernard. ser. 2 de resur. Dom.
[o] Galat. 2 20.
[p] Col 3 4.
[q] Iam 2.17.
[r] Gal 5.6.
[s] Apud Primas. & Hieron. expositi post. in loc.
[t] Zuichius.
[u] Aquin. Reyard.
[x] Caietan. Aquin.
[y] Iob 11.7,8.
[z] Photius apud Oecum. & Hieron. tom. prior in loc.
[a] 1 Tim 2.4.
[b] Ephes. 4.10.
[c] Anselm. Aquin.
[d] 1 Tim. 3.16.
[e] Mayorat.
[f] Philip. 3.8.
[g] Aretius.
[h] Apud Theophylact. in loc.
[i] Coloss. 2.9,10
[k] Caluin.
[l] Anselm.
[m] Eng. Glosse. Hieron. Sareer.
[n] Aquin.

to come, that ye may so faithfully serue God here, as that ye may fully see God hereafter, euen face to face.

[o] Aretius.

[o] Motiue: Gods abundant liberalitie, being able and willing to giue moe things, and more plentifully then either we doe aske, or thinke.

[p] Aquin.

[p] Matter: Be praise, or glory: mans body within the elements is closed, the bloud within the body, the spirits within the bloud, the soule within the spirits, the minde within the seule, and God resteth in the minde: so that this world was made for man, man for the soule, soule for the minde, and the minde for God: that as of him, and through him, and for him are all things: euen so to him might be praise for euermore.

Vnto him that is able] In this thanksgiuing of our Apostle three points are considerable, namely, the

[q] Sarcerius.

[r] Zanchius.

[s] 1 Tim. 3. 15.
[t] Matth. 16. 18.
[u] Theophylact.

Manner in respect of
- Place: In the congregation, [q] as being Gods Tabernacle dedicated to prayer and praise, [r] knowing and participating Gods vnsearchable riches in Christ. Other assemblies haue their beginning and end, but the Church is the [s] piller of truth, against which [t] hell gates are not able to preuaile. [u] The Church then enduring for euer and euer, only can and will honour God euer and euer.
- Person: by whom our thankes are conueyed vnto God, by Iesus Christ, as being the Mediator betweene God and man, by whom alone the graces of God descend downe to vs, and our prayers ascend vp vnto God.
- Time: Throughout all generations, &c.

[x] Primasius.

For as the mercies of God toward vs are for euer and euer: in like manner our praises to him ought to be for euer and euer: [x] Immensa beneficia laudibus immensis celebranda. See the conclusion of the Pater Noster in the Liturgie.

The Gospell. Luke 7. 11. vnto v. 18.

And it fortuned that Iesus went into a citie called Naim, &c.

[y] Heming.

THis Gospell is an Embleme of the
- [y] Miseries of man: In this afflicted woman accompanying her childe, and that a sonne, and that her only sonne to his graue, dying in the - Spring of his youth, euen at that age when he was most able to comfort her.
  - Winter of her widowhood, when she did most want him.
- [z] Mercies of God: In Christ, who did pitie the distressed [a] in
  - Thought, ἐσπλαγχνίσθη, Hee had compassion on her.
  - Word, Weepe not.
  - Deed, He raised the dead, and deliuered him to his mother.

[z] Melancth. Culman.
[a] Iansen. Concor. cap 46.
[b] See Ferus ser. 3. in Euangel. Dom. 17. post. Pent.

The [b] mourning troupe in Naim is a liuely representation of our estate by nature, subiect to sickenesse, infirmitie, death, damnation, horror, hell: our whole life being as it were nothing else but a widow weeping, and a sonne dying.

[c] One

[c] One doth cry, Let the day perish wherein I was borne, and the night when it was said, there is a man-childe conceiued; why died I not in the birth? and why did I sucke the breasts? for so should I now haue lien and beene quiet, I should haue slept then and beene at rest. [d] Another doth crie, Woe be to me that I am constrained to dwell with Mesech, and to haue mine habitation among the tents of Kedar. [e] A third crieth, O wretched man that I am, who shall deliuer me from the body of this death. All, as it were with one voice crie, [f] Man that is borne of a woman is of short continuance and full of trouble. But Christ and his followers on the contrary resemble our estate by grace, wherein is ioy, peace, life, health, happinesse, heauen. In this troupe [h] one saith, O death where is thy sting? O graue where is thy victorie? the sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the Law, but thanks be vnto God, which hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Iesus Christ. [i] Another doth say, Blessed be God, euen the father of our Lord Iesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten vs againe to a liuely hope, by the resurrection of Iesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance immortall and vndefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserued in heauen. A [k] third doth say, We know that we are translated from death vnto life. All sing and say with Zacharie, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people.

[c] Iob 3.3.
[d] Psal 120.4.
[e] Rom.7.24.
[f] Iob 14.1.
[h] 1 Cor.15.55.
[i] 1 Pet.1 3.
[k] 1 Iohn 3.14.

Behold there was a dead man carried out] The word [l] behold in the Scriptures is like an hand in the margent of a booke, pointing out alway some remarkable thing, and it is here like that hand [m] Balthazar saw writing vpon the walls of his Palace, for as that forewarned him of his vtter ruine; so this admonisheth vs of our last end. Behold a dead man carried out. This dead man was a young man, as it is expressed in the text, I say to thee young man arise, and a rich or honourable man, as [n] some gather out of the text, in that much people were with his mother. And it is worth our obseruing, that Christ in the Gospell is said to raise none from the dead, but only such as were rich and young, as the daughter of [o] Iairus a Ruler of the Synagogue, being about twelue yeeres of age: [p] Lazarus a man honoured in his Nation, and as [q] Epiphanius reports about the yeeres of 30. and in my text, a young sonne of a widow well affected in the place where shee dwelt. Hereby teaching vs, that such often die who least expect death, and are most embraced of the world. Poore men and old men haue their passport, as they begin to leaue the world, so the world is content to part with them. At their carrying out to be buried vsually there is lesse weeping, because their friends are comforted, in that departing in peace they be now deliuered from the burden of the flesh, and infinite miseries of this life. But death is the [r] way of all flesh, and [s] all flesh is grasse, and all the grace thereof as the flower of the field. Per natiuitatem viret in carne, [t] per iuuentutem candescit in flore, per mortem aret in puluere. By birth a man is greene in his flesh, by youth he is white in his blossome, by death he is withered in the dust. For death as a fisherman incloseth all kinde of fish in his net, great, small, good, bad, old, young: which the Poets insinuate in the fable of Death and Cupid, who lodging at a time both in one Inne, interchanged each others arrowes: and so from that day to this, it comes to passe that sometimes old men dote, and young men die:

[u] Sic moritur iuuenis, sic moribundus amat.

[l] Vega in loc.
[m] Dan.
[n] Maldonat. Cosser.
[o] Luke 8.41.
[p] Iohn 11.
[q] Haref. 66. c. contra Manichæi dogmat.
[r] Ios 23.14.
[s] Esay 40.6.
[t] Greg. in Psal 5 pœnitent.
[u] Ioachim Belleius.

Which was the onely sonne of his mother, and shee was a widow] Children are walking images of their parents, euen flesh of their flesh, and bone of their bone, the wealth of the poore man, and honour of the rich. It was then one step vnto weeping Crosse, that this woman had lost a childe, for nature by grace is not abolished but perfected, not murthered but manured, her impressions are not quite razed, but suted to the colours of faith and vertue, Dauid a man according to Gods owne heart did weepe for his [x] sicke childe, cry out for his dead sonne, [y] O Absolon my sonne, my sonne Absolon: would to God I had died for thee, O Absolon, my sonne, my sonne. [z] S. Ambrose reports a tragicall accident, how that in his time there was a poore man in extreme necessitie constrained to sell one of his sonnes into perpetuall bondage, that he might hereby saue the rest from a presēt famine. Who calling all his deare children vnto him, and beholding them as oliue branches round about his table, could not resolue which he might best spare. His eldest sonne was the strength of his youth, euen he that called him first father, and therefore not willing to part with him. His youngest boy was the nest chicke, the dearely beloued of his mother, and therefore not willing to part with him. A third most resembled his progenitors, hauing his fathers bill, and his mothers eye, therefore not willing to part with him. One was more louing, another more diligent then the rest, and so the good father in conclusion among so many could not affoord to part with any.

[x] 2 Sam 12.
[y] 2 Sam.18 33.
[z] Lib. de Naboth, cap. 5.

[a] Pontan in loc.

It was another step vnto griefe in this widow, that her dead childe was [a] a sonne. For daughters in respect of their sex being weaker vessels, are not so fit for businesse and imploiment: whereas a good sonne, albeit in obedience a childe, yet in counsell often proues a father, and is in stead of an husband to his widow mother. But it was an higher step vnto griefe, that this one sonne was her onely sonne, μονογενὴς, first begotten, and [b] only begotten, and her selfe not a yeung wife, but an old widow without hope of issue. Now what kinde of sorrow this was, is expressed in holy Scripture: [c] Make lamentation and bitter mourning as for thy only sonne. And Zachar. 12. 10. They shall lament for him as one mourneth for his onely sonne, and be sorry for him as one is sorry for his first borne. Syrophanes hauing buried his only sonne, caused his statua to be set in his house, [d] Sed dum tristitiæ remedium quærit, seminarium potiùs doloris inuenit.

[b] Iansen.

[c] Ierem. 6 26.

[d] Fulgent. mytholog lib. 1.

This in briefe was the widowes misery: now ye shall heare of Christs mercy. When she was hapelesse and hopelesse, he had compassion on her, and did exceeding abundantly aboue all that she did aske or could thinke, as it is in the select Epistle for this Sunday. [e] Before she did call, he did answer, granting her desire before she moued her sute. [f] Teaching vs hereby that euery good gift is from aboue, not pulled downe of merit, but powred downe by preuenting grace.

[e] Esay 65 24.
[f] Cuman.

God is a father of the fatherlesse, and defendeth the causes of [g] widowes: Eliah in a great famine by Gods appointment releeued the widow of [h] Zarephath, and Elizeus euen by the same diuine goodnesse, increased another distressed widowes oyle, 2 Kings 4. Peter, Acts 9 comforted a whole congregation of weeping widowes, in raising Dorcas againe from the dead: and Christ here tooke pitie on the deepe sighing of a widow. [i] By which all men may learne, Magistrates especially, to [k] iudge the fatherlesse, and defend the widow; not only when the widow doth importunatly call and crie, Doe me iustice, Luk. 18. 3. but euen while she doth hold her peace, [l] magis enim petit qui petere non audet, & plus da. qui dat non rogatus.

[g] Psal. 68. 5. & 146. 9.
[h] 1 Kings 17.
[i] Ferus serm. 1. in loc.
[k] Esay 1. 17.
[l] Maldonat. in loc.

Weepe not] [m] Abraham the father of the faithfull bewailed his dead wife Sara, Ioseph an holy man of God mourned many daies for his father Iacob, all the people for [o] Moses, and Christ himselfe for [p] Lazarus. His ne fleto then, is not a prohibition forbidding at funerals all weeping: but an inhibition only forbidding too much weeping, that she should not be sorrie for the dead, [q] as they which haue no hope. As if he should haue said vnto her, as he did in the like case to Martha, Iohn 11. 25. I am the resurrection and the life, whosoeuer beleeueth in me though he were dead, yet shall he liue. [r] I wound and make whole, [s] bring downe to the graue and raise vp againe. And his workes are correspondent to his words, he came nigh and touched the coffin, and said, Young man, I say vnto thee, arise, and he that was dead sate vp, and began to speake, and he deliuered him vnto his mother. In which he shewed himselfe to be very God and man; in walking with his Disciples, in talking with this widow, comming nigh to the gate of the citie, touching the coffin, a very man in raising the dead, and making him to sit vp, and speake, [t] (not as the Prophets and Apostles in anothers name, but by his owne power in a commanding fashion, I say to thee young man [u] arise) to be God, euen the Lord of life, Acts 3. 15.

[m] Gen. 23. 2.
[n] Gen 50.
[o] Deut 34. 8.
[p] Iohn 11 35.
[q] 1 Thess. 4. 13
[r] Deut 32. 39.
[s] 1 Sam 2. 6.
[t] Eutlym. Brent us. Caietan.
[u] E lectulo mortis, in quo mollius ille dormit, qui durius in vita se gesserit, Ambr serm. 28.

About the fall of the leafe men ordinarily be more subiect to sickenesse and mortalitie then at other times of the yeere; wherefore the [x] Church hath allotted fitly fitly this Scripture for this season, as a sicke mans salue to comfort vs against diseases and death. Intimating that Christ is the only health of all the liuing, and euerlasting life of all such as die in him.

[x] Zepperus, 2. in loc.

And there came feare on them all, and they gaue the glory to God.] Our Euangelist here describes a [y] double fruit of the miracle: the one befalling such as were present, the other extended vnto many men absent, in that the rumour of it went forth throughout all Iury, and throughout all the regions which lie round about. The miracle wrought in the present beholders a two-fold effect, Intus timor, foris glorificatio: Reuerence within, and glorifying of God without, for they conceiued hereby faith in the Messias, and so feared God, glorifying him with true worship, and acknowledging his mercies in visiting his people. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet againe, Paul would haue them ascribe praise to God in the congregation from time to time: these spectators accordingly, beholding the riches of Christs grace who did exceeding abundantly aboue all that the poore widow did aske or thinke, gaue the glory to God, saying, A great Prophet is risen vp among vs, and God hath visited his people.

[y] Heming.

[z] Caietan.

Hitherto concerning the letter of this Historie: Now let vs (as the [a] Fathers and [b] other Interpreters) examine the mysticall exposition or allegorie, considering these fiue points in order:

1. Who is dead, and carried out to be buried.
2. What is the Coffin and Tombe wherein he is enclosed.
3. What they be that carry him to the graue.
4. What is that gate out of which he was carried.
5. What is that widow lamenting his death.

[a] August. tract. 49 in Ioan & de verbis dom. ser. 44. Ambr. Beda in loc.

[b] Luther. Arborens. Heming.

He that is dead and carried out to be buried is an obstinate sinner, for the [c] wages of sinne is death, and euery man irrepentant without faith and feeling of his sinnes is dead (as the [d] Scripture) descended into Hell (as [e] Ambrose speakes) euen while he liueth:

In [f] three things especially resembling a Corse being { Cold. Heauie. Stinking.

[c] Rom. 6. 23.

[d] 1 Tim. 5. 6.

[e] De bono mortis, cap. 12.

[f] See Iacob. de Varag serm. 1. in loc.

Cold, as being infected with the venome of the [g] Serpent, and wanting the powerfull heat of Gods holy Spirit which is [h] quenched in them. Heauie, because sinne is a burthensome load, Matth. 11. 28. pressing downe, Heb. 12. 1. hindering our ascending and seeking the things aboue, Col. 3. 1. For howsoeuer it be true, that if all the mountaines in the world should fall together vpon one iust man, he would notwithstanding be stedfast and keepe his ground: according to that of the [i] Poet,

Si fractus illabatur orbis,
Impauidum ferient ruinæ.

Yet sinne is so heauie, that it cast downe Dathan from earth, and Lucifer out of heauen into the bottomlesse pit of hell. Stinking, because the slanderer hath an vnsauorie breath, his [k] throat being an open sepulcher. The wickednesse of adulterers is [l] filthinesse. The goods of the couetous hoorded vp, and not laid out, are a very [m] dunghill, and euery sinne is an [n] vncleannesse, stinking in the nostrels of the Lord.

[g] Apocal. 12. 9.

[h] 1 Thess 5. 19.

[i] Horat. Car. lib. 3. od 3.

[k] Psal. 14. 5.

[l] Ephes. 5. 4 & Gal 5. 19.

[m] Bonauent. diet. salu. ca 6.

[n] 1 Thess 4 7.

Now for the Coffin and Tombe wherein this cold, heauie, stinking Corse lieth: as there be three kinds of death, one of the body, which is the naturall death, another of soule, which is spirituall death, a third both of body and soule, which is eternall death: euen so there be three kinds of Tombes accordingly: the Tombe of the body is the Graue, the Tombe of the soule is the body, [o] σῶμα quasi σῆμα, or as [p] Ambrose, tumulus iste mores mali, the Tombe both of body and soule dying in sinne is Hell, Luk. 16. 22. The rich man died and was buried in Hell. And the sinner is borne to Hell by [q] foure Porters especially, detaining him in irrepentance; namely,

1. Hope of longer life.

[o] Theophylact. in loc. Idem Plato in Crat.

[p] In locum.

[q] Heming.

2. Looking

2. Looking vpon the faults of other men.
3. Presumption vpon Gods mercy.
4. Flatterie of lewd company.

These feure carrie the sinner out of the gate toward hell: as for example, when he doth lust with his eye, the dead man is carried out by the [r] gate of his sight, per oculorum beneficium infert animæ veneficium. If he delight in back-biting and slandering, the dead man is carried out by the gate of his mouth. If he take pleasure in hearing tales and ill reports of his neighbour, the dead man is carried out by the gate of his eares. And the widow lamenting his death (as [t] Theophylact thinkes) is the soule, but as [t] other generally the Church of God, for as there is ioy in heauen for one sinner that conuerteth: euen so griefe to such as haue their conuersation in heauen, when a sinner will not returne from his wicked way, but is giuen ouer in a reprobate sense, to worke all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse, Ephes. 4. 19. The three sorts of dead raised by Christ aptly resemble, saith [u] Augustine, three sorts of sinners A sinner is dead in the house like Iairus daughter, when he doth imagine mischiefe in his minde: carried out of the gate like this young man here, when he [x] brings forth vngodlinesse in word or deed: stinking in the graue like Lazarus, if he sinne habitually without any remorse, [y] drawing iniquitie with cords of vanitie, speaking good of euill and euill of good, [z] heaping vp wrath against the day of wrath, and of the declaration of the iust iudgement of God. Now then as there was weeping for the dead Damosell in the house, more weeping for this man carried out of the gate, but most weeping at Lazarus graue, Martha wept, and Mary wept, and the Iewes wept, and Christ himself wept and groaned in the Spirit: so we must be sorry for the beginnings of sinne, more sorry for the proceeding and increase, most sorry when a man [a] stands in the waies of the wicked, and sits in the seat of the scornfull. It may be well applied vnto Christs Academy, which [b] Demosthenes once said of Athens, in our Diuinitie schoole we weepe more for the lewd liues of the bad, then for the deaths of the good.

As the Church of God hath three kindes of Planctus ouer the dead: so the deuill and his companie three kindes of [c] Plausus. Our aduersarie reioyceth a little when we sinne in the house, conceiuing an euill thought: but more glad if that a man be carried out of the house, breaking out into scandalous actions; and yet most merrie when a sinner continueth in his filthinesse, as Lazare stinking in his graue. Let vs then [d] awake from sleepe, and stand vp from the dead; Christ in his word, in his Sacraments, in his iudgements, in his Preachers instantly cals vnto you daily, Young man arise, Damosell arise, Lazarus arise. Wherefore let vs I beseech you sit vp, and speake; that we may comfort the Church our afflicted mother on earth, and be well accepted of God our Father in heauen. Amen.

[r] August. ser. 31 ad fratres in eremo.
[t] In locum.
[t] Ambros. Beda Panigarol.
[u] Ser. 44 de verbis Dom.
[x] Psal. 7. 15.
[y] Esay 5. 18.
[z] Rom. 2. 5.
[a] Psal. 1. 1.
[b] Guevara epist.
[c] Iacob de Voragine in. 1. in loc.
[d] Ephes. 5. 14.

The Epistle. Ephes 4. 1. vnto v. 7.

I (which am a prisoner of the Lord) exhort you, that ye walke worthie of the vocation wherewith ye are called, &c.

After sundry dogmaticall conclusions touching matters of holy faith in the three former chapters: our Apostle comes now to patheticall [e] exhortations concerning good manners in this present, beseeching his Ephesians in generall to walke worthie of the vocation whereunto they were called; in more particular to support one another through loue, keeping the vnity of the spirit in the bond of peace. Pressing this one point with seuen arguments in our text:

1. There is but one bodie.
2. But one spirit.
3. But one hope.

4. But

[e] Sarcer. Caietan. Aret.

4. But one Lord.
5. But one faith.
6. But one baptisme.
7. But one God, and father of all, which is aboue all, and through all, and in you all.

As if he should argue thus: If the Church your Mother be but one, God your Father but one, Christ your Lord but one, the holy Spirit your Comforter but one, if your hope but one, faith one, baptisme one: I see no cause why you should not liue together and loue together all as one, endeuouring to keepe the vnitie of the spirit through the bond of peace.

First, there is but one bodie: that is, one Church: for albeit there be threescore Queenes, and fourescore Concubines, and the number of Damosels be without number, yet as [f] Salomon speakes in the person of Christ, my loue, my doue is alone. As then in the naturall bodie there is a perpetuall sympathie betweene all the parts: [g] If one member suffer, all suffer with it: if one member be had in honour, all reioyce with it: euen so in Christs mysticall bodie, The eye must not say to the hand, I haue no need of thee: nor the head againe to the feet, I haue no need of you: for if the Magistrates should bend themselues against the Ministers, and the Ministers against the Magistrates, and the Commons against both: assuredly God would be against all. And therefore we must alway remember our Apostles saying, 1 Cor. 12. 20. that there is but one bodie, though there be many members. One, not as tied vnto any one place, much lesse to any one person. The Donatists in the daies of [h] Augustine, would haue tied the Church to Cartenna in Africa. The Papists in our time tie the Church to Rome in Italie. Contradicting herein the Creed, in which the Church is stiled Catholique: that is, vniuersall, extended (as Chrysostome notes vpon my Text) to all places, and all times, and as [i] Bellarmine more fully, to all faithfull persons, not onely those which are now liuing, but also those which haue beene from the beginning, and shall be to the worlds end. And so the popish Antichristian crue, which haue nothing so much in their mouthes, as the Church, the Church, infringe the liberties of the Church exceedingly. For all of them haue made the Catholique Church to be nothing else but the Roman Church, and some of them haue made the Roman Church to be nothing else but the Pope. Papa virtualiter est tota ecclesia, saith [k] Harueus, As Anabaptists imagined a Church like a Spider, or [l] Plinies acephali, all bodie and no head: so Papists haue framed a Church like the Toad-stoole, all head and no bodie. To borrow a phrase from Charmides in [m] Plautus: Hic quidem fungino genere est, capite se totum tegit. If Cardinals and Iesuits be reputed monsters, as being men of [n] all professions, order, degree, offices, benefices; then what a monster of monsters is the Pope, which is all of these, and none of these, both head and bodie too?

[f] Cant 6.8.

[g] 1 Cor 12.26.

[h] Epist. 48.

[i] Catec cap 3. in expos. Credo eccles. Cat.

[k] De potest. Papæ cap. 23

[l] Nat. hist. lib. 7. cap 2.

[m] Trinum act. 4. scen. 1.

[n] Vignier. answer to Baron.

One spirit] S. Paul saith, 1 Cor. 12. that there are diuersities of gifts but one spirit: to one is giuen by the spirit the word of wisdome: to another the word of knowledge by the same spirit: to another is giuen faith by the same spirit: to another the gift of healing by the same spirit: to another prophecie, to another discerning of spirits, to another interpretation of tongues: all these worketh one and the same spirit, diuiding to euery man as he will seuerally. Now the Spirit which is the [o] Comforter of the Church in her widow-hood euer since Christs ascension, and as it were tutor to leade her into [p] all truth, on Whitsunday descended in visible shapes vpon the blessed Apostles assembled, as the [q] Text speakes, ὁμοθυμαδὸν ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτό, all together in one place with one accord. Where there is vnitie of spirit, there doth rest the spirit of vnitie: but where there is babling, there followeth instantly Babel, vpon Diuision alway Confusion.

[o] Ioh. 15.26.

[p] Ioh. 16.13.

[q] Acts 2.1.

One hope] As the Decalogue teacheth how to loue, and the Creed how to beleeue: so the Pater Noster how to pray. Shewing vs exactly what we must hope and desire namely, first Gods glory, then our owne good. Gods glory, for that is Alpha and Omega, the first thing we must aske, Hallowed be thy name: and the last laſt thing we muſt performe, for thine is the kingdome, the power, and the glory. Now concerning our owne good: we deſire and hope for eſpecially the kingdome of heauen, Thy kingdome come. On which all other petitions depend, for we pray thy will be done, for this end onely, that we may be ſubiects in his kingdome of grace, and Saints in his kingdome of glory. And his will is done by depending on his might and mercy, for things temporall and ſpirituall; in regard of the one, we pray, giue vs this day our daily bread; and for the other, forgiue vs our treſpaſſes, leade vs not into temptation, deliuer vs from euill. And by conſequence, Gods kingdome is the center of all our wiſhes, and totall ſumme of all our hopes. And becauſe the wiſe man euer begins at the end, our great Doctor hath inioyned in things concerning our ſelues to beg this firſt of all, which is indeed the end of all. Seeing then all of vs walke in one way, all of vs haue one guide in the way, all of vs when we come to our iourneyes end expect one and the ſame reward: it is very meet all of vs ſhould endeuour to keepe the vnitie of the ſpirit in the bond of peace.

One Lord] It is reported by [r] Suetonius, that the Emperour Caligula tooke off the head of his great god Iupiter, and ſet on another of his owne. The Papiſts in their interpretations and gloſſes, haue ſmitten off Chriſt Ieſus the onely head of the Church, and haue ſet on the Pope. Suppoſe (for thought is free, and impoſſibilities may be ſuppoſed) I ſay ſuppoſe, S. Peter was Pope, and the other eleuen Apoſtles his Cardinals, as [f] Ioannes de Turrecremata doth auow. Suppoſe he was at Rome, ſuppoſe he was Biſhop of Rome, ſuppoſe the Pope ſucceeds him more lawfully than the Patriarch of Antioch, (all which a Proteſtant will not grant, and they cannot proue) yet I would faine learne of a Schoole Papiſt, who was this one Lord, and one head of the Church after the death of S. Peter immediatly. Whether Linus, or Cletus, or Anacletus, or Clemens: theſe are foure good men and true, let them chuſe whom they will.

Clemens Romanus an old new Father, whom the learned conceiue to be the Popes own childe, writes in his [t] Apoſtolicall conſtitutions euidently, that Linus was the firſt Biſhop of Rome made by S. Paul, and that Clemens after the death of Linus was the ſecond, ordained by Peter: if this relation be true, the Pope ſits not in the chaire of Peter, but in the ſeat of Paul, for he created the firſt Pope. Franciſcus Turrianus in his [u] apologeticall annotations vpon the text of Clemens, anſwereth that Linus was not Biſhop of Rome, but only Lord Suffragan or Vicar-generall, executing Epiſcopall iuriſdiction in S. Peters non-reſidence. The like is recorded of Cletus by [x] Marianus Scotus in the life of Peter. But by their good leaue, the Roman Martyrologie makes both Linus and Cletus Biſhops of Rome: and Cardinall Baronius in his annotations vpon theſe ſeuerall martyrdomes, and in his Eccleſiaſticall Annals, [y] tome 1. maintaines againſt all commers, that Linus was the firſt, Cletus the ſecond, and Clemens the third Biſhop of Rome after S. Peter: Cæſar Baronius in the ſame place thinks that Cletus and Anacletus were all one, but Cardinall [z] Bellarmine contradicts him, and ſhewes by diuers reaſons accurately, that they were two. And indeed this Roman Kalendar allotteth Anacletus a feſtiuall vpon the 13. of Iulie, and Cletus another vpon the 26. of Aprill. Whereupon [a] Tritenhemius and the Popiſh Hiſtoriographers hold, that Clemens was the fourth Pope after S. Peter. So then as you ſee ſome write that he was the firſt, other that he was the ſecond, other that he was the third, other that he was the fourth.

Bellarmine who ſhuffled the cards laſt, and is the beſt gameſter at the Popes primero, takes vpon him to compoſe the difference. But as [b] Auguſtine ſaid of Petilian, vbi reſpondere conatus eſt, magis oſtendit quod non poterit reſpondere: indeed, ſaith [c] he, Clemens by right was the firſt Pope, but he ſuffered out of his humilitie Linus and Cletus to execute his office, ſo long as they liued. But [d] Damaſus, and Sophronius, and Simon Metaphraſtes, affirme that Linus died before Peter. Here Bellarmine anſwers not a word, but contemnes theſe writers which he magnifieth elſe-where, placing them among learned and Catholike Authors in his

[r] In vita Caligulæ.

[f] Sum lib. 1. cap. 80.

[t] Lib. 7. cap. 47.

[u] Antuerp. ann. 1578.

[x] Ex epiſt. Decretal. Leon. 2.

[y] Ad ann. 69. Ita numerat Optatus, in lib 2. contra Parmenian, Linus, Clemens, Anacletus.

[a] De Rom. Pont. lib. 2 cap 5.

[z] In vita Clementis.

[b] Contra lit. Petil lib. 3. cap 50.

[c] Vbi ſupra, §. ceterum Pet. mortuo & ſequenti.

[d] Apud Bellar. ibidem § neque multum me mouet.

his second [c] Tome. But for auoiding of tediousnesse, let it be granted that Clemens being an honester man than Popelings in our time, poisoned not his Predecessors, but suffered them to liue and die in peace: yet if there were three Popes aliue at once, who was this one head, and one Lord? then there were three Lords, not one Lord, the Lord Cletus, the Lord Linus, the Lord Clemens; and haply this may be one reason why the Pope hath three Crownes, one for Cletus, one for Linus, and the third for Clemens.

[c] In Catalog. Theolog annex. tom. 2. Contro.

Thus (as [f] one said) the Papists in the points of their religion are vntrussed, and lie open to the whip. They boast of their succession of Bishops, and they cannot agree among themselues and tell their owne tale who was the first, second, third, or fourth Pope of Rome. Here the words of the Lord are verified, Esay 19.2. Concurrere faciam Ægyptios aduersus Ægyptios, I will set Ægyptians against Ægyptians, euery one shall fight against his neighbour, Citie against Citie, and Kingdome against Kingdome, popish Councels against Councels, Vniuersities against Vniuersities, Schoolemen against Schoolemen, the Iesuits against the Priests, and the Priests against the Iesuits, Baronius against Bellarmine, and Bellarmine against Baronius, one against another, God and the truth against all.

[f] Mr. Philpot. vt Fox in his Martyr.

It is wittily noted by [g] S. Augustine, Petrus erat oculus in corpore, Peter was not head of the Church, but an eye in the head. God grant the Pope so much grace as to become an eye, or to stand in stead of an hand, yea of a finger, to further the building of Gods house. Head he is not, head he was not, so much as in opinion, for the space of 500. yeeres after Christ; head he cannot be, for there is but one Lord, one head, one sheepfold, one shepheard, Ioh. 10. 16.

[g] Tract. 13. in Ioan.

Let vs examine therefore what this one Lord is: our Apostle saith [h] elsewhere, that there be many Gods and many Lords. Many gods in title, many gods in opinion: in title, either authoratatiuè or vsurpatiuè: by right, and so Kings are stiled gods in the [i] Psalme; by vsurpation, and so the Pope is called god, [k] Dominus Deus noster Papa, as the Canonists impiously blaspheme. Many gods in opinion, and so the Scripture tells vs, that gold is the [l] couetous mans god, and the [m] belly the gluttons god, and so there be many gods in heauen, and in earth, and in hell too. For it is written that the people of Calicute worship the deuill. The Gentiles were so vaine in their [n] imaginations, [o] amentes mentes, hauing their vnderstanding so blinded, that as [p] Prudentius writes vnto Symachus, euery thing that was good was esteemed a god: in so much that πολυθεότης was ἀθεότης, they had so many gods, as that indeed they had no God. Thus you see there bee many gods, and many lords, yet vnto vs but one Lord. Vnto vs who know the truth (as it is here said) there is but only one Lord in truth. Other lords are domini titulares: our Lord is Dominus tutelaris, a Lord protector indeed. Other by men are made gods: but our Lord is the God who made all men, an absolute Lord of himselfe, and in himselfe [q] Dominus dominantium, the Lord of all other lords, and God of all other gods. And in this acceptation Lord is vsed in the holy Bible sometimes essentially, signifying the whole Deitie: as in the first Commandement, I am the Lord thy God; and Psal. 50.1. The Lord euen the most mighty God: & sometime personally, for Christ the second person in the blessed Trinitie, Luk. 17.5 The Apostles said to the Lord: and 2 Cor 13.13. The grace of our Lord Iesus Christ: and so I take it to be taken here, there is one Lord, that is, one Christ, master of vs all, and head of his whole Church.

[h] 1 Cor 8.5.

[i] Psal. 82.2.

[k] Extrauagant. Grat. Ioh 22.

[l] Coloss. 3.5.

[m] Philip. 3.19.

[n] Rom. 1.21.

[o] De ciuit Dei lib 1. cap 32.

[p] Lib. 1. aduer. Sym.

[q] 1 Tim. 6. 15.

Now Christ is one in himselfe, and one to vs: in himselfe one, for albeit he be God and man; yet he is not two but one Christ. [r] Non alter ex patre, alter ex matre: sed aliter ex patre, aliter ex matre. One (as Orthodoxall Athanasius in his Creed) not by conuersion of the Godhead into flesh: but by taking of the manhood into God: one not by confusion of substance, but by vnitie of person: for as the reasonable soule and flesh is one man, so God and man one Christ. Againe, Christ is one to vs, as being [s] yesterday, and to day, and the same for euer.

[r] Emisen. hom. 2. de nat. Dom.

[s] Heb 13 8.

Idem,

Idem, { Obiectiuè, Subiectiuè, Effectiuè.

Obiectiuè, the same in his word, for he that yesterday was shadowed in the Law, is to day shewed in the Gospell: as [t] Augustine said, the new Testament is clasped in the old, and the old is opened in the new. One Christ crucified being the center of all the Bibles circumference. Idem subiectiuè, the same in his attributes, in his power, in his authoritie, being alway the Lord of his people, the shepheard of his flocke, the head of his Church. Idem effectiuè, the same in his goodnesse and grace, for he who was yesterday the God of Abraham, Isaac, Iacob, is to day and shall be for euer Iesus, [u] that is, a Sauiour of his people: he is as well now the light of the Gentiles, as he was before the glory of his people Israel: he that was present and president among the blessed Apostles, hath promised also to come vnto vs, to comfort vs, to be in the middest of vs, as ouer all, and through all; so likewise in vs all, as followeth in the text.

[t] Super Exod. quæst. 73.

[u] Matth. 1. 21.

If then this one Lord be present with vs in his word, present in his Spirit, present in his power, in all the same yesterday and to day, and for euer: I see no cause why he should need another Lord, deputy Lieutenant, or Vicar generall to execute his office: for Christ may be considered of vs as a Lord [x] two wayes:

1. As God.
2. As God and man.

[x] See Perkins Reformed Catholike tit. supremacie.

As God by right of creation, he is an absolute Lord ouer all men, and all things in heauen and earth. As God and man, or as the redeemer of man, he is soueraigne Lord of the whole Church in more speciall manner.

Now then, as Christ is God with the Father and Holy Ghost, he hath his Deputies on earth to gouerne the world; namely, Kings and Princes, therefore called Gods: but as he is a Mediator and Lord of his redeemed ones, he hath neither fellow, nor Deputie. No fellow, for then he should haue beene an imperfect Mediator: no Deputie, because no creature is capable of this office: the performance whereof ariseth of the effects of two natures concurring in one action, namely the Godhead, and the Manhood. And therefore howsoeuer Preachers are his actiue instruments, his messengers, his Ministers, (if you will) his vnder Vshers to teach his schollers in this great Vniuersitie: yet none can properly be called his Vicars, or Deputies to doe that in his stead which personally belongs to him. In this sense there is but one Lord, and this one Lord is the Lord, euen the Lord of Lords, Christ Iesus God and man.

Wherefore seeing all of vs march vnder the colours of one Captaine, all follow one Master, all serue one Lord, whose title is [y] loue, whose [z] liuery is loue, whose chiefe commandement is loue, whose doctrine is the doctrine of [a] peace, whose Ministers are the [b] messengers of peace, whose followers are the [c] children of peace: it behoueth vs (if it be possible) to haue peace with all men, endeuouring to keepe the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace.

[y] 1 Iohn 4. 8.
[z] Iohn 13. 35.
[a] Ephes 2. 17.
[b] Rom. 10. 15.
[c] Luke 10. 6.

One faith] The Turke hath his faith, the Iew his faith, the Gentile his faith, Heretikes haue their faith, and Schismatikes their faith. In some countries (as it is reported) there are almost as many Creeds as heads, at the least as many sects as Cities. It is [d] written of Poland, that if any man haue lost his religion he shall be sure to finde it there, or else he may giue it gone for euer. How then is it true that there is but one faith?

[d] Relation of religion in the West parts of the world, sect. 43.

Answer is made, that to speake properly these are not faiths, but factions; all of them being either vnbeleefes, or misbeleefes. And therefore when the Disciples asked the Lord to [e] increase their faith, it must be construed of increase in measure, that we may grow from vertue to vertue, from knowledge to knowledge, from faith to faith, vntill we be of full growth in Christ Iesus: not increase in number, for in regard of the manifold rents and diuisions in the Church, it is our duty contrariwise to pray the Lord, that he will decrease not increase our faith in number, which is and must be but one.

[e] Luke 17. 5.

For

For the further handling whereof, obserue with Augustine and [f] Lombard that among manifold acceptions of faith in holy Scripture, it is taken especially vel pro eo quod creditur, vel pro eo quo creditur: either for the doctrine of faith, or else for the grace whereby we beleeue this doctrine. For the doctrine of faith, as Tit. 1.13. Rebuke them sharply that they may be sound in the faith; And Galat. 1.22. He that persecuted in time past, now preacheth the faith, that is, the Gospell. And in this sense there is but one onely true Catholike and Apostolike faith: if any man on earth, or Angell from heauen, shall goe about to deliuer another Gospell, let him be accursed, Galath. 1.8.

[f] Sent. lib. 3. dist. 23.

Secondly, faith signifieth the gift and grace whereby we beleeue and apply this doctrine, fitly termed by Diuines Glossa Euangely. For as loue is the best exposition of the Law: so faith is the best interpreter of the Gospell: not glossa ordinaria, but as it were catena aurea, containing all that must and may be beleeued. In which respect, it is truly called sauing and iustifying faith. And this (as the [g] Schoole distinguisheth) is diuersa, ratione subiecti: sed vna, ratione obiecti. Faith is, and must be diuers in regard of diuers beleeuers, for euery man must liue by his [h] owne faith. Paul cannot be saued by the faith of Peter, nor Peter iustified by the faith of Iohn. As euery one must haue [i] oyle of his owne in his owne lampe: so euery one must haue faith of his owne in his owne heart. Yet faith in regard of her obiect, is but one, for there is but one only diuine truth, which is the generall obiect of faith, and but one only Christ Iesus crucified, who is the speciall obiect of iustifying and sauing faith. One only faith, because one onely Lord, her owne only obiect. Albeit faith be diuers in diuers men, and hath diuers degrees in one man: yet it is but of one kinde in all. And here we may learne how faith is said to iustifie, non vt mediator, sed vt medium; not as a meritorious or efficient cause, for that were to make our faith our Christ: but as an instrumentall or spirituall hand apprehending Christ who doth iustifie. For as our [k] Church aptly, faith is like Iohn the Baptist, it points out Christ and faith vnto vs, Behold the Lambe of God that taketh away the sinnes of the world. Nay, faith is like S. Thomas, first handling, and then applying the wounds of Christ in particular, Thou art my Lord and my God. This in number is but one vertue, yet in a Christians account vpon the point, it is the only vertue: for lose faith and lose all, hold faith and hold Christ who is all in all.

[g] Thom. 2. 2æ. quæst 4. art. 6.

[h] Habacuc. 2.4.

[i] Matth. 25 9.

[k] 2 Part hom. of saluation.

The Papists haue martyred the text in magnifying the wooden Crucifix; but a man by faith may behold Christ crucified almost in all the workes of God, either in vs or vpon vs.. Doest thou reade the Bible? there is a Crucifix, and as it were a speaking picture of Christ. So himselfe said in the [l] Gospell, Search the Scriptures, for they witnesse of me. Doest thou behold a brother in distresse? there is another Crucifix, in him Christ is naked, hungrie, sicke, harbourlesse. Doest thou come to the Lords table? there is another Crucifix, the consecrated bread and wine are dumbe sermons of Christs passion. Art thou tempted and afflicted? then thou maist behold Christ crucified as thy partner and thy patterne. Thy partner, who pitieth thy cause, and hath [m] compassion on thee. As thy patterne, 1. Pet. 2.21. Christ suffered for vs, leauing vs an example, that we should follow his steps, who when he was reuiled, reuiled not againe: when he suffered, threatned not; but committed the vengeance to him that iudgeth righteously. So that it may be said of faith as well as of originall sinne, vna est essentia, sed multiplex efficientia: In essence but one, but in efficience, loue, patience, hope, and many vertues: euen [n] the victorie that ouercommeth the world, the shield whereby we may quench all the fierie darts of the deuill, Ephes. 6.16. the very speare which killeth our last enemie, for a true beleeuer in his deaths-bed is readie to sing with old Simeon, Lord now lettest thou thy seruant depart in peace, for mine eyes haue seene thy saluation: and to say with [o] Paul, O death where is thy sting? O hell where is thy victory? the sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the law, but thankes be giuen to God, which hath giuen vs victorie through Iesus Christ our Lord.

[l] Ioh 5 39.

[m] Heb 4.15.

[n] 1. Ioh. 5.4.

[o] 1. Cor 15.55

[p] Salomon because he was a King, desired wisdome aboue all things; [q] Dauid being

[p] 1 King 3 9.
[q] Psal 27.4.

being a little restrained from the Temple, desire aboue all things to behold the beautie of the Lords house; Mydas aboue all things desired gold; Alexander aboue all things desired honour; Epicurus aboue all things desired pleasure: but if we will make but one wish vnto God, let vs begge and pray for a liuely faith, O Lord increase our faith. He that hath this one gift is learned enough, religious enough, rich enough, honourable enough, eased enough, pleased enough, against which no euill on earth, no deuill in hell shall finally preuaile.

[r] Thucydides.

For as [r] one called Athens Greece of Greece: so faith is the grace of all grace; without which (as our Apostle teacheth) euen our good workes are sinnes, Rom.14.23. Whatsoeuer is not of faith is sinne.

Wherefor to conclude this point, seeing a liuely faith is the key of heauen, and as it were the spirituall hand to take out of the coffers of God all his rich treasure, without which one vertue, all other are no vertues; without the which the Gospell is no Gospell, God is no God, Christ is no Christ vnto vs: it behoueth euery man aboue all things in this life, to labour for increase of this one gift, without which all other are rather curses then blessings vnto vs And because there is but one doctrine of faith, and one kinde of iustifying faith it is the duetie of all such as professe the one and haue comfort by the other, to keepe the vnitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

[r] In Epitaphio Nepotian.

One Baptisme] Here with accurate [r] Hierome praising Nepotian, I must intreat you to behold in a little map, that world of matter which might haue beene shewed at large.

Baptisme then is either
- Proper: as bare cleansing and washing, Heb.9.10.
- Figuratiue:
  - Metaphoricall, as affliction, Matt.20.22.
  - Allegorical, as repentant teares, Ps.7.38.
  - Synecdochicall, and so it is put for the whole doctrine of Iohn, Matth.21.25.
  - Catexochen; and so it is taken for that we call vsually Christening, and this as the [t] Schoole teacheth is of three sorts:

[t] Tom part.3. quæst.66.art.9.

Baptisma
- Flaminis.
- Fluminis.
- Sanguinis.

But of all these there is but one only Sacrament of Baptisme, the which is one in three regards.

Vnum quia
- Ad vnum.
- In vnum.
- Per vnum.

[u] Aquin. Caietan.
[x] Hieron. expos. prior in loc.
[y] Marlorat. in Aquin.
[z] Melanct. in Mat.3. Idem Caluin. Chemnitius, & cæteri protestant. apud Bellarm. de sac bap. lib.1. cap.20
[a] Vide Lombard sent.4. dist.3.
[b] Dionysius Carthus. Caietan.
[c] Iohn 3.16.
[d] Rom.8.15.
[e] Deut.32.6.
[f] Gorran. in loc.

First, vnum ad vnum, one in one man, once truly receiued, neuer to be [u] reiterated; as we teach against the [x] Valentinians in old time, And Anabaptists in our age. Here might I shew that Bishopping is not a new Baptisme, but as the word imports, a confirmation only, wherein a Christian in his owne person doth performe that which heretofore by other he did promise.

Secondly, vnum in vnum, one Baptisme, [y] for that all of vs are baptized into one faith of one Lord, for Iohns and Christs Baptisme differ not in substance, but in circumstance: Iohn baptized [z] in Christum passurum. Christs Apostles in Christum passum.

Thirdly, vnum quia per vnum, one [a] in regard of the water and words wherewith we baptize, we may not vse any other element but water, nor any other words, but I baptize thee in the name of the Father, of the Sonne, and of the Holy Ghost. [b] one matter, one forme essentiall in holy Baptisme.

One God, and Father of all, which is aboue all, and through all, and in you all.] The map whereof in briefe is, God as Father of [c] Christ by nature, of Christians by [d] adoption, of all men and all things by [e] creation: Ouer all, and through all, and in you all, may be [f] construed either with appropriation to the seuerall Persons in the blessed Trinitie; and so God the Father is the Person ouer all, God the the Sonne the Person through all, God the Holy Ghost the Person in vs all. Or else of the whole Dittie without appropriation, and so God is ouer all excellentia dignitatis, through all præsentia maiestatis, in all gracia inhabitationis.

For finall conclusion of this and all the rest: seeing all of vs haue beene borne, and now liue in one and the same Church, all of vs haue beene comforted often by one and the same Spirit, all of vs expect one and the same crowne, all of vs acknowledge one and the same Lord, all of vs hold one and the same faith, all of vs are sanctified with one and the same baptisme, all of vs adore one and the same God. who is the Father of all, ouer all, through all, in vs all. I beseech you men, brethren, and fathers, let me speake to you in the words of [g] Paul, Marke them diligently which cause diuision and offences, contrary to the doctrine which ye haue learned, and auoid them. For they that are such, serue not the Lord Iesus Christ, but their owne bellies, and with faire speech and flattering deceiue the hearts of the simple.

[g] Rom. 16. 17.

As Christ, so the[h] Church is crucified betweene two malefactors: on the right hand Schismatikes, on the left Papists: the one doe [i] disrumpere charitatis vincula, vntie the bonds of peace; the other doe corrumpere fidei dogmata, vndoe the vnitie of the Spirit. The first are different in things indifferent, the second almost indifferent in matters different, concerning the publike exercises of our Religion, and yet each of them spurne at the poore Church, as at a common foot-ball, being herein[k] like [l] Sampsons foxes, seuered in their head, but tied together by the taile with fire-brands betweene them, able to set the whole Land in combustion and vproare. The Schismatikes vnderstand that the bonds of peace are not one policy, one discipline, one ceremony: but as it is here said, one Lord, one Faith, one Baptisme. Wherefore seeing both of vs agree in the maine matters, it is a verie fruitlesse contention to quarrell about by-points.

[h] Tertullian.
[i] August. apud Calain. Institut. lib. 4. cap. 2. §. 5.
[k] Oxford Ans. to the Puritans Petition.
[l] Iudg. 15. 4.

Againe, the Papists acknowledged heretofore that our Bible, and booke of Diuine Seruice, doe containe doctrine sufficiently necessarie to saluation, and so much (as I haue[m] read) Pope Pius Quintus (who could not erre) signified in a letter to our late Soueraigne of famous memory Queene Elizabeth. Vpon what credit I speake this, I suppose most know. If any mistrust that great reporter, I can easily shew him a parallel in Brisloes[n] motiues. The Protestants are Apes of the Papists, the very Communion booke is made altogether out of the Masse booke, and so are other Church-bookes also taken out of ours, as it is well knowne to all who know both. If this be true, then his Collection is not false, who censured their not communicating with vs, to be a point not of deuotion, but of state, namely, to maintaine the Popes supremacie. To speake plainely, which I thinke sincerely, the people of the Puritans, and the Priests of the Papists, are the true left why both endeuour not to keepe the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace. For the first, Schismatikes are like the vaine Philosophers in old time, [o] Populares aurae mancipia venalia, certaine creatures bred of the peoples breath; hoc ipso placere cupiunt quod placere contemnunt, they reake not to be condemned of the learned for ignorant; so they may be commended of the ignorant for learned. And therefore when Plato saw the people pitying Diogenes, for ducking himselfe in cold water on a frosty morning, he said vnto them, If you depart to your lodgings and leaue gazing on him, he will I warrant you presently come out of the riuer and keepe himselfe warme. Yea, but how shall we carrie away the people from looking on Diogenes? as [q] Socrates did Alcibiades, make them pitchers and so carrie them away by the eares, instruct them in season, out of season. Because some of their Pastors haue put out their owne light, I beseech you let vs that are conformable, supply their silence by our diligence. For albeit some of that humour be malicious, and incorrigible, yet other (as [r] Salnianus writes) errant, sed bono animo errant: impij sunt, sed hoc putant veram esse pietatem. And as [s] Euthymius, quidam Pharisaei semimali. So that if we cast our net on the right side of the ship dexterously, we may peraduenture catch them, and draw them to fruitfull knowledge and dutifull obedience.

[m] Iudge Cooke charge at Norwich, an 1606.
[n] Mot. 34. pag. 144.
[o] Hierom. Epist. ad Pammac.
[p] Hierom. Epist. ad Eustoc.
[q] Plutarch. in vita Alcibiadis.
[r] De guber. Dei lib. 5.
[s] In Luc 14.

It was an excellent speech of our late [t] Diocesan (whose memorie I assure my self is so sweet as [u] hony in your mouthes, and musicke in your eares) He is not worthy to hold two Benefices, who doth not preach one sermon at the least euery Sunday, As there be many wholesome iniunctions touching Cap and Cope: so likewise many good orders for the reuerent administring of the Sacraments, and diligent preaching of the word. God forbid, the one should be Canons, and the other made Pot-guns onely. I confesse that Diuines which are Counsellours, or Prelates, or attendants in Court, or Students in Vniuersities, or necessarie Residentiaries in Cathedrall Churches, or imployed in writing, or ambassages, may profitably spend their time otherwise: but the Country Pastors occupation is to feed his flocke, by preaching to Christs sheepe, and catechizing his lambes. If it be said of him who will, but cannot preach, that he is a dumbe dogge: I thinke it may be said of him who can and will not, that he is a dumbe deuill. It is a beastiall rudenesse, saith reuerend [x] Hooker, alluding to the first of Iob, vers. 14. that Oxen only should labour, and Asses feed: that good schollers should preach, and dunces be preferred. But it is a greater inconuenience for the Church, that Oxen should onely feed, and Asses take all the paine: who though haply they be resident at their Cure, yet for the most part non-resident from their Text, or if they come neere it (as Luther was wont to say) they make a martyr of it.

Will you haue the factious Nouelists cut off with little griefe to the Prelates, and no hurt to the people? then let vs that are comformable liue in our studies, and die in the pulpit: that when our great Lord shall come to reckon with vs for our stewardship, he may not take vs (as [y] Aristophanes said of Cleon) with one foot in the Court, and another in the Citie, none in our Cure: but (as those two great Diuines Iewel and Caluin were wont to wish) he may finde vs in his owne house, doing his owne businesse.

Concerning the Papists: I hold the Priests among them most inexcusable. The people are like the sea, and the Priests are like the winde, the sea of it selfe would be calme, if the winde did not set it in agitation: but so long as Priests and Arch-Priests, Iesuits and Seminaries raigne ouer this our goodly Forrest, seeking for their prey: well may the Courtiers haue their goods, and the Countrie their persons, but I feare the Pope will haue their hearts, and the deuill in conclusion their soules. It is great pittie that many piercing wits of England can see nothing but thorow the spectacles of Statizing Iesuits, and so hauing but two paire of eyes, one of their Confessours which is nequam; and another of their owne, which is nequicquam; the wilfull blinde leading the wofull blinde, they fall both into the ditch. If they could put on eyes either of Religion or reason, they should easily see that their Priests doctrine is preiudiciall to Christ, and their liues hatefull to all Christendome. For this saying is ingrossed in their owne bookes, [z] That of all Christians, Italians are the worst: of all Italians, the Romans: of all Romans, the Priests: of all Priests, the Cardinals: and commonly the most lewd Cardinal is elected Pope. Nay, some maintaine this opinion, [a] Hominem non Christianum posse esse Romanum Pontificem. That a man which is not a member of Christ, may notwithstanding be head of the Church. As for our home-bred, but farre taught Gunpowder men, aske the Secular Priests what the Iesuits are, and they will, and that in [b] print, tell you, that they be Statists; [c] Machiauillians, [d] Atheists, [e] so many Iesuits, so many Iudasses. Aske the Iesuites what the Secular Priests are, and they will tell you, that they are Drunkards, Dunces, Fooles, the very [f] refuse of the Church. If these things be true, then they be both monsters of men: if false, most malicious deuils.

God of his infinite goodnesse grant, that we and they and all may seriously labour for a perfect vnion, not only of law, but of loue, for an vnitie of the spirit, knit with the bond of peace: that all of vs following the truth in loue, we may maintaine one and the same faith, and hereafter attaine one and the same kingdome of glory.

Preached at Ashford in Kent, at the Lord Arch-bishops Metropoliticall visitation, Ann. 1607. Septem. 11

The

[t] Arch-bishop Whitegift.
[u] Eccles. 49. 1.
[x] Eccles. polit. §. 81. pag. 262.
[y] Melancth. in Rom. 12. Tom 3. fol. 1025.
[z] Relat of Religion in the West part of the world, § 36
[a] The sparing Discourse, pag 41.
[b] Ibid. pag 7.
[c] Important con. pag. 3.
[d] Quodlibet. 3. art. 3.
[e] Iesuit Cat. lib. 1. cap. 1.
[f] Quodlibet. 1. art. 2.

The Gospell. LVKE ~~7. 11.~~ 14. vnto v. 12

It chanced that Iesus went into the house of one of the chiefe Pharisies, &c.

IN this Gospell obserue the
- Mercy of Christ, toward the
  - Master of the feast, in comming to his house, for his good, albeit a Pharisie, yea, a chiefe Pharisie.
  - Guests,
    - Impotent, in healing a man which had the dropsie.
    - Impudent, instructing such as contended for place, verse 7, 8, &c.
- Malice of the Pharisies, infolded in one word, They watched him, against all rules of entertainement and hospitalitie, making their table a snare to catch him.

It chanced] [g] S. Basil is of opinion, that chance and fortune are words of Heathens, and not of Christians. Ignoratio causarum nomen fortunæ confinxit. Ignorance made fortune a Goddesse. The Gentiles as [h] blinded in their vnderstanding admit and admire this vncertaine Ladie, [i] Huic omnia expensa, huic omnia feruntur accepta, & in tota ratione mortalium sola vtramque paginam facit: but such as are taught in Christs Vniuersitie, know that all things come to passe by diuine prouidence, without our heauenly Father a sparrow doth not fall from an house, nor an haire from our head, Matth. 10.29. and therefore Saint Augustine was exceedingly displeased with himselfe for often vsing in his writings the word fortuna, and haply some will except against our translating, ipsum, it chanced, and in the Gospell appointed for the last Sunday, Luke 7. 11. it fortuned; as also cauill at those words in the Collect, among all the changes and chances of this mortall life. For answer then vnto this obiection, and for clearing of our text: you must vnderstand, that albeit nothing be casuall in respect of Gods knowledge: [k] yet many things are casuall in respect of our ignorance. Which [l] Aquine doth exemplifie thus: A master sendeth about one errand two seruants, one being ignorant of the others iourney: this concourse of the two seruants in respect of themselues is casuall, and the one may wonder to see the other imployed about his businesse in the same place: but yet in regard of the master who did preordaine this, it is not casuall. Almightie God seeth and fore-seeth all things, vno actu, yea, vno ictu, semel & simul: and therefore to him as being all eye, nothing is old, nothing is new: but vnto men it may be said truly, that there be so many chances as there be changes inuoluntarie. Herein wee doe not ascribe any thing to blinde Forune, but all vnto Gods all-seeing prouidence; yet so, that the diuine prouidence take not away free will and contingence: for this good act of Christ as it happened not by fortune; so likewise it came not to passe by fate, not, I say, by [m] fatall destinie, for God according to the common axiome of the Schoole, non necessitat sed facilitat, he doth induce the good to doe good with alacritie, not inforce them against their will. Quoniam probitate coacta gloria nulla venit. As then in regard of God, ipsum is well translated, it came to passe: so in regard of vs, as well, it chanced. As it was prouidence in God, it come to passe, as contingence in Christ being man, it chanced. For he might haue visited a Publican so well as a Pharisie, but it fell out so, that Iesus went into the house of one of the chiefe Pharisies.

Christ conuersed with men of all sorts, and all sexes, sometime blessing [o] little children, sometime conferring with silly [p] women, sometimes eating with the [q] Publicans, esteemed the greatest sinners, and here dining with the Pharisies accounted the greatest Saints; he dispised none, who came to saue all. He [r] cried in the streets among the preasse, powring out his minde and saying, [s] Come to me all ye that are wearie and laden and I will ease you. And at his death his hands on the Crosse were stretched out, his head bowed downe, his breast

[g] Apud Cal. instit. lib. 1. 16 §. 8.
[h] Ephes 4.14.
[i] Plin. hist. lib. 2. cap. 7.
[k] Caluin. vbi sup § 9.
[l] Part. 1. quæst. 116. art. 1.
[m] Si quis Dei voluntatem appellat nomine fati, sententiam teneat linguam corrigat. Aug. de Ciuit. lib. 5. cap. 1.
[n] Prudent. in Hamartigema.
[o] Marke 10. 16.
[p] Iohn 4.
[q] Matth. 9. 10. Luke 19. 9.
[r] Prou. 1. 21.
[s] Matth. 11. 28.

open, as readie to redeeme and receiue such as would beleeue in him. [t] Homo Deum contemnens à Deo discessit, Deus hominem diligens ad homines venit, dilexit impium vt faceret iustum, dilexit infirmum vt faceret sanum, dilexit mortuum vt faceret viuum.

One of the chiefe Pharisies] It is apparent in the Gospels historie, that the Pharisies were the greatest enemies vnto Christ, and therefore this being a chiefe Pharisie, was haply one of Christs chiefe enemies. And [u] yet Christ being inuited, as it should seeme, to his house formally, comes friendly, without any further examination of his intent, and being come, benefits him and his in vttering a parable and acting a miracle, seeking to [x] winne them all vnto the truth. [y] Hereby teaching to blesse such as hate vs, embracing all occasions of loue whereby we may be reconciled vnto our mortall enemies. In malice there is nothing else but miserie, whereas a common vnion begets a communion of all good things. [z] Habet proximus aliquam gratiam? ama illum & tua est: habes tu aliam? amet te & sua est. Hath thy neighbour any rare grace? loue him and it is thine: hast thou any notable gift? if he loue thee, then it is his. And therefore Christ, albeit he did hate the pride, yet louing the person of this pharisie, said and did also good to him and all his companie.

Againe, in that this Pharisie was a Chiefe, we note that there was among them, as in euery setled Societie, distinction of offices and orders. In the great booke of Nature we finde that the Bees haue their Master, Cranes their Captaine, Sheepe their Belwether. In holy write also we reade of [a] chiefe Publicans, chiefe [b] Rulers, chiefe [c] Priests. Hell it selfe, though it be the kingdome of confusion, admits of some degrees and order, otherwise Belzebub could not be [d] prince of the wicked, and [e] chiefe of the deuils, And therefore tumultuous Anabaptists, and all such as would haue no differences and degrees among men in Church and Common-weale, seeme to haue lesse reason than beasts, and lesse Religion than either the most wicked men, or the most wretched deuils. Order is the beautie of nature, ornament of Art, harmonie of the world. Now, shall euery thing be in order, and the Church of God only without order? It is a [f] garden inclosed, and a garden must be kept in order. It is an [g] armie with banners, and an armie must be marshalled in order. It is the [h] house of God, and Gods house must be gouerned in order. A popular equalitie was so burthensome to the seditious Anabaptists in their rebellion, as that contrary to their owne doctrine they did admit [i] Iohn Matthew for their Captaine, and Iohn Aleyd for their King. And so there was a kinde of order in their hurlyburly disorder: as there were some chiefe Pharisies, euen so some chiefe Anabaptists.

To eate bread] [k] Three sorts of bread are mentioned in the Bible: Sacramentall, 1. Cor. 11. 28. Let a man examine himselfe, and so let him eat of this bread, &c. Doctrinall, Ioh. 6. [l] Labour not, saith our Sauiour, for the loaues and for the meat which peerish, but for the meat and bread that endure to life euerlasting. Corporall, Matth. 4. 4. Man shall not liue by bread only, but by euery word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. Now the bread here spoken of, is neither mentall nor sacramentall, but corporall. And this kinde in a strict acception is the loafe made of wheat, or some like graine: Gen. 14. 18. Melchisdee King of Salem brought forth bread and wine. But in a more generall and large signification, it is vsed in holy Scripture [m] pro omni comestibili, for all kinde of food. As Genesis 3. 19. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat [n] bread: and in the Lords prayer, Giue vs this day our daily bread: where panis, is pan, euery thing necessarie for this our life. See 1. Sam. 14. 24. 2. Sam 9. 10. Prou. 31. 14. Ierem. 11. 19. It is then a weake conceit of Ardens, and the counterfet Eusebius Emissenus, to note from hence the moderate diet of Christ on the Sabbath day, whereas [o] eating of bread is as much as feasting or dining with the Pharisie. For if there had beene nothing but drie bread on the boord, haply there would haue beene lesse contending for place.

On the Sabbath day] The Pharisies in inuiting, and our Sauiours comming on this

[t] Fulgent. serm. de duplici nat. Christ.

[u] Cyril apud Aquin in loc.

[x] Marlorat.
[y] Ardens.

[z] Aug. hom. 15.

[a] Luke 19. 2.
[b] Ioh 12. 42.
[c] Matth. 2. 4.
[d] Iohn 12 31.
[e] Matth. 12, 24.

[f] Cant. 4. 12.
[g] Cant. 6. 9.
[h] 1. Tim. 3. 15.

[i] Lanquet ad ann. 1534.

[k] Ludolphus de vita Christi part. 1. cap 37.
[l] Verse 26. 27. 32. 34.

[m] Cyril. apud Panig. in loc.
[n] Nomine panis intelligitur omne necessarium ad alimentum Aquin. & Carthusian ibid.
[o] Caluin. Aret. Vega.

this day, to this dinner, euidently demonstrate that it is not vnlawfull to feast on the Lords day. For if the Iewes might entertaine neighbours and friends on their Sabbath: how much more Christians on our Sunday, being assured, that God is worshipped euen on this day [P] rather with workes of hospitalitie and charitie, then by fond macerating of our bodies. I write not this against godly fasting, nor yet for vngodly feasting. Moderation is the best dish at the table, for immoderate fasts exceedingly dull vs: and on the contrarie, sanctified feasts in good companie, make vs more fit for deuotion and other duties on the Sabbath, especially when Christ is in presence, when a good man is moderator at the boord, whose speech is [q] powdred with salt [r] that it may minister grace to the hearers, edifying his host and all his house. Christ herein shewed himselfe thankfull and faithfull, he did not bite his host in present, nor backbite him absent, but in requitall of his good cheere gaue good words, and better aduice. Christ was faithfull also, for whereas it is the fashion of parasites and trencher-Chaplaines to flatter, or at the least humour great men at their table: he did not deuoure the faults of the chiefe Pharisie with his fowles, and his sinne with his sauce, but correct him and his, [f] instructing their soules while they fed his bodie. This ought to be the center of all our couersation and conference, to make those which are bad, good; and those which are good, better. So did Noe conuerse with them of the old world; so Lot with them of Sodome; so Iob with them of the land of Vz; and so [t] Paul with all men, vsing all meanes to saue some.

The Pharisies had [u] two faults especially, misconstruing of the Scripture, and pride. Christ here doth rectifie their error in both, in healing a sicke man on the Sabbath, he doth instruct them in the true meaning of the fourth Commandement, according to the present occasion offered; and in his parable to the guests, he deliuereth an excellent document concerning their ambition. He could haue cured this man, as he did many, with his bare word onely; [x] but to shew that all handy workes, as these of charitie, and other of necessitie, as to pull a beast out of a ditch, are not vnlawfull for the Sabbath, he touched him, and by touching healed him.

Two circumstances amplifie Christs exceeding rich mercies in acting this miracle: first, for that he did it vnasked freely: secondly, for that he did it with hazard of his credit stoutly. He did helpe the [y] Centurions seruant, but vpon entreatie: the [z] womans daughter of Cana, but after a long and earnest suit: the blinde [a] Bartimeus, but after much crying, O sonne of Dauid haue mercie vpon me: the [b] lunatike, but his father vpon bowed knees asked this boone, Master haue pitie on my sonne: Whereas this man is cured instantly, without any request of his friends, or prayer of himselfe. Againe, Christ vndertooke this cure with hazard of his honor, whereas other miracles vsually wrought his glorie. When he raised from dead the widowes son in Naim, all that were present praised God and said, [c] A great prophet is risen vp among vs, and God hath visited his people: when he cured two blinde men, Matth. 9. They spread abroad his fame throughout all that land: when he fed about fiue thousand with fiue barley loaues and two fishes, all that saw the miracle, said, [d] This of a truth is the same Prophet that should come into the world: when he made the deafe to heare, and the dumbe to speake, such as were spectators euen with open mouth as it were cried, [e] He hath done all things well: but in helping this man after this manner on the Sabbath, he knew that the Pharisies on the contrarie would obiect that he had done ill: and yet he first acted the miracle, then makes an Apologie for it, answering their secret malice, which of you shall haue an oxe or an asse, &c. [f] Teaching vs hereby that we should not cease to proceed in well doing, though an infinit number of potent enemies on euery side combine themselues against vs.

[g] Some for the further amplifying of Christs abundant goodnesse, imagine here that the sicke man was a parasite to the Pharisies, and that he came to this feast of his owne accord as a bait to catch Christ, and not with an intent to be cured

[P] Culman. in loc.

[q] Coloss 4. 6.
[r] Ephes 4. 29.

[f] Iansen in loc.

[t] 1. Cor 9. 22.

[u] Pontan.

[x] Ardens. Iansen.

[y] Luk 7.
[z] Matth 15.
[a] Mar. 10.
[b] Matth. 17.

[c] Luke 7. 16.

[d] Iohn 6. 14.

[e] Mar. 7. 37.

[f] Heming.

[g] Panigarol. part 1. hom. in locum.

cured of his Sauiour. [h] Other hold this improbable, conceiuing that he made no suit but held his peace, rather out of [i] feare, then out of loue to the Pharisies: he did haply beleeue in heart, but least the Pharisies should excomunicate him, he durst not openly confesse with his mouth that Iesus is the Lord. As [k] Dauid in another case, I held my tongue, and spake nothing, I kept silence, yea euen from good words, but it was paine and griefe to me. Howsoeuer it was, here we may behold the riches of our Sauiours exceeding great loue, curing the dropsie-mans body, [l] together with the Pharisies soule. [m] Doubtlesse the diseased of the dropsie fell into it by disordered surfetting and drunkennesse. Hence then obserue, that Christs despiseth not those which haue cast themselues into sicknes through their owne fault, if they follow this mans example: to wit, if they come where Christ is, and suffer themselues to be touched and healed of him, if they come to the Church, heare the word, fall to repentance, confessing their sinnes, and heartily crauing pardon for the same.

[h] Maldonat.
[i] Cyril.
[k] Psal. 39. 2.
[l] Beda. Gregor.
[m] Heming.

The second chiefe part of this Gospell is the Pharisies malice, consisting of three degrees. It was in the Pharisie great iniustice to returne euill for good, but greater to doe this vnder the pretence of loue, yet greatest of all vnder colour of loue at a feast. For [n] the time of mirth is at meales, at the table men haue licence to talke [o] freely, not onely by the rules of humanity, because [p] bellaria maximè mellita quæ non sunt mellita: but also by the grounds of Diuinity; for [q] Sampson at his marriage feast propounded a riddle to his friends, and the faithfull at Hierusalem did eat their meat together with gladnesse, Acts 2. 46. Such then as obserue the merrie gestures, and catch at the pleasant words of their guests at table, make their wine like [r] the poison of Dragons and the cruel gall of Aspes, heating their neighbours and making them drunken, [s] that they might see their priuitie.

[n] Perkins Gouernment of the tongue, chap. 7.
[o] Odi memorem compotorem: & citat & probat Marlorat in loc
[p] Gellius lib. 13. cap 11.
[q] Iudg. 14. 12.
[r] Deut. 32. 33.
[s] Habuc. 2. 15.

The Epistle. 1. Cor. 1. 4. vulg. 3

I thanke my God on your behalfe. &c.

THis text is a cunning [t] insinuation of our Apostle, for intending to chide the Corinthians, he begins his Epistle with a commemoration of their vertues, that afterward he might more freely without any suspition of malice reprehend their vices.

It consists [u] in
- Commending them for the present:
  - [x] Generally, For the grace of God which is giuen you, &c.
  - Particularly, rich in all vtterance and in all knowledge.
- Comforting them against the time to come, which also shall strengthen you to the end, &c.

An example worthy to be followed of euery Preacher, least by concealing the commendable gifts of his auditors, and inculcating only their faults and follies, he breed hate to himselfe and despaire to them.

I thanke] By this all men, in more particular all [z] Ministers are taught not to repine, but to reioyce for the good things in other, especially for the successe of the [a] Gospell, out of a fellow-feeling not only to weepe with such as weepe, but also to be [b] glad with such as are glad. The Sectaries of our dayes herein are verie defectiue, for whereas our [c] Apostle said, Who is weake and I am not weake? they like busie flies are buzzing alwayes on the sores and gaulds of the Church: and as for the manifold gifts of God, by which our Pastors are made rich in all vtterance and in all knowledge, what doe their inuectiue Libels against our Clergy, but vnworthily disgrace these graces, in stead of giuing thankes vnto God alwayes in our behalfe. For as some [d] Papists affirme, that Scripture cited by vs is no Scripture: so some Schismatikes haue giuen out, that our preaching is no preaching, that our learning is not sanctified, and our vtterance doth not edifie.

My God] [e] Hereby not denying that he was God to them and all other, for [t] Aretius, Martyr. Piscat. & aly.

[u] Aquin.
[x] Caluin.
[y] Gualter.
[z] Sarcerius.
[a] Heming.
[b] Rom 12 15.
[c] 2 Cor. 11. 29.
[d] Hosius lib. 3. contra Brent. prolegomen.
[e] Musculus, Heming.

for [f] he that is Lord ouer all, is rich vnto all that call on him. [g] but out of a ſingular faith in God, and vnfained loue to them, eſteeming that his owne good which hapned well vnto the Church: I thanke my God on your behalfe: as the God of all is my God, ſo the good of all is my good; and I thanke the giuer of all grace for it, and that not coldly, but with ſuch an earneſt deuotion [h] as if he were my God only; not ſeldome, but alwayes. A little loue will be mindfull at ſometime, but mine affection is ſo great vnto you, that I thanke God alwayes on your behalfe. Paul ſurely did ſomewhat elſe then praiſe God for his Corinthians: alwayes therfore muſt not be conſtrued [i] abſolutely, but reſtrained and referred vnto the preſent occaſion of his ſpeech, as if he ſhould haue ſaid, as often as I thinke of you, I thanke God for you. alwayes in all my prayers, as it is Philip 1.4.

For the grace of God which is giuen you] [k] Leſt he might here ſeeme to flatter them in his commendation of their gifts, he puts them in minde who gaue them, and for what end. God is the giuer of euery grace; [l] why then doe you boaſt of your gifts, as if you receiued them not? 1.Cor.4.7. And he gaue them vnto you, not to make [m] diſſention in the Church and Schiſme, that ſome may [n] ſide with Paul and other with Apollos: but for [o] this end, that the teſtimonie of Ieſus Chriſt may be confirmed in you.

By Ieſus Chriſt] or as other tranſlate according to the Greeke, in Ieſu Chriſt: hereby ſignifying [p] that the graces of God are giuen in Chriſt, and for Chriſt only, ſuch as are Chriſts are made rich by him in all things according to that of our Apoſtle, 1.Cor. 3.22. All are yours, and ye Chriſts, and Chriſts Gods. [q] Interpreters obſerue that Paul ſpeaking here metonymically, doth vnderſtand by this one word grace, not onely the gifts of vtterance and knowledge mentioned in this Scripture, but all the benefits of Chriſt reuealed in the whole Goſpell. And therefore [r] Saint Ambroſe and [s] Anſelme excellently gloſſe the Text, Hoc conſtitutum eſt à Deo, vt qui credit in Chriſtum, ſaluus ſit ſine opera, ſola fide gratis accipiens remiſſionem peccatorum: It is ordained by God himſelfe, that whoſoeuer beleeueth in Chriſt, ſhould be ſaued not by any worke, but by faith alone, receiuing freely pardon of all his ſinnes.

In all vtterance and in all knowledge] [t] That is, in all doctrine, and in all vnderſtanding, whereby men are able to diſcerne betweene ſound and falſe doctrine, [u] the one concerning teachers, and the other hearers. Or by ſpeech is meant the gift of [x] tongues, or the gift of [y] elocution, or the gift of preaching in [z] euery kinde, giuing [a] milke to babes, and ſtrong meat to them of age; and by knowledge, a right expoſition of the Scripture. Now theſe two muſt goe [b] together, in as much as neither vtterance without knowledge, nor knowledge without vtterance can edifie: for he that aboundeth in his ſtudy with vnderſtanding, but wants a [c] doore of vtterance to vent it, is like the man that had the rheume and could not ſpet: on the contrary he that hath a world of words void of matter (as [d] Tully ſpeakes, Nulla ſubiecta ſententia & ſcientia) is like the child who bloweth in a little ſhell a great bubble, which is ſo vaine that it is marrd as ſoone as made.

The gifts of ſpeech and vnderſtanding are named only, [e] becauſe the Corinthians abuſed them in their diſſentions eſpecially, prophaning the graces of God giuen (as our Apoſtle ſpeakes [f] elſe-where) to edifie withall, vnto the deſtruction and vtter vndoing of the Church. If any ſhall obiect that all the faithfull in Corinth had not theſe gifts: [g] Anſwer is made that there was among them, as among vs, and euer ſhall be ſuch a Communion of Saints; as that the praiſe which is indeed proper to ſome particular men and members, is aſcribed to the whole body of the Church in generall. And therefore [h] Caietan notes accurately, that as ἐν πᾶσι may be conſtrued adiectiuely, ye are made rich in all things: ſo likewiſe ſubſtantiuely, ye are made rich in all. Applying Gods grace rather to the whole congregation in groſſe, then to ſingular perſons in ſeuerall.

By the which things the teſtimony of Ieſus Chriſt was confirmed in you] [i] The witneſſe of Chriſt is nothing elſe but the witnes of the bleſſed Apoſtles concerning Chriſt,

[f] Rom 10.12.
[g] Theophylact. Martyr.
[h] Aretius in loc.
[i] Idem. Ibidem.
[k] Caluin. Gualter.
[l] Oecumen. Pomeran. Aret.
[m] 1.Cor 1.10.
[n] 1 Cor 3.4.
[o] Piſcator.
[p] Sarcerius.
[q] Caluin Marlorat. Aret.
[r] Com. in loc.
[s] Enarrat. in loc.
[t] Sarcerius.
[u] Aretius.
[x] Aquin.
[y] B. Zu.
[z] Anſelme.
[a] Hebr. 5.
[b] Aquin.
[c] Coloſſ. 4 3.
[d] Lib. 1. de Orat.
[e] Martyr.
[f] 1.Cor.12.7.
[g] Marlorat.
[h] Com. in loc.
[i] Piſcator.

Christ, Acts 1.8. euen the [k] preaching of the Gospell, the summe whereof is to reueale Christ, in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdome and knowledge, Col. 2. 3. So that the meaning of Paul is plaine, by these manifold graces as [l] effects and fruits of the Spirit, you may know that you haue receiued the true Gospell: or by these two gifts, vtterance and knowledge, as instrumentall causes, the testimonie of Christ is confirmed in you. Learne from hence to reuerence those men which are endued with these meanes of thy saluation, euermore thanke thy God in the behalfe of Christian Schooles and Vniuersities, as the common nurseries of all vtterance and knowledge. [m] It is said of reuerend Hooker, truely, that he was borne for the good of many; but few borne for the good of him. In this vnthankfull age, some rich in the graces of God are neglected, and other rich in the gifts of the world are preferred. But [n] fret not thy selfe because of the vngodly, for learned men forgotten in States and not liuing in eminent places, are [o] like the images of Cassius and Brutus in the funerall of Iunia: of which not being represented as other were, Tacitus saith, eo ipso præfulgebant quòd non visebantur. If thou well employ Gods talent of vtterance and knowledge, that the testimonie of Christ may be confirmed in other, assuredly (noble yoke fellow) thy credit is honour enough, and thy worke it selfe a sufficient reward vnto thy selfe. Remember that the profitable seruant said not in the [p] Gospell, Ecce mihi lucrifeci: sed ecce tibi lucrifeci Domine.

So that yee are behinde in no gift] [q] That is, in no necessarie gift whereby yee might attaine sauing knowledge, wanting no grace competent vnto such as [r] are in via, [s] strangers and pilgrims on earth. Or as Paul expoundeth himselfe, behinde in no gift incident to such as wait for the appearing of our Lord Iesus Christ. It is true that now we know but in [t] part, and prophecie but in part: our greatest perfections haue their imperfections, our gifts are giuen by measure, though haply [u] shaken together and pressed downe, yet not running ouer as long as we wait for Christ: but when he shall appeare, when that which is perfect is come, then that which is imperfect shall be abolished, Appearing of our Lord Iesus Christ] The second comming of Christ is called a reuelation, or an appearing in respect of vs, and in respect of himselfe. In respect of vs, for at his comming [x] he will lighten things that are hid in darkenesse, and make the counsels of our hearts manifest. At that time it shall be knowne who be Gods elect, and who reprobate; then our Lord shall vnfold the [y] bookes of conscience, which all the time of this life were shut vp closely, that all the world may read what is written in the consciences of all men, and according to the contents of these records iudgement shall be made. Many puissant Princes and sage Philosophers haue their honourable memorie magnified in the world, whose soules in hell are terribly tortured: in which respect one said of Aristotle; Woe be to thee Aristotle, that art praised where thou art not, and art tormented where thou art. On the contrary, blessed art thou Queene Elizabeth, O thrice happie, for albeit treacherous Papists, enemies of Gods grace, dishonour thee where thou art not, assuredly thou art comforted where thou art. [z] Now are we the sonnes of God, but yet it doth not appeare what we shall be: for [a] whensoeuer Christ (which is our life) shall shew himselfe, we shall appeare with him in glorie.

Secondly, the comming of Christ is a reuelation in respect of himselfe: for whereas he came first in humilitie, being [b] in the world, but not knowne of the world, he shall now come with clouds in such a maiestie, [c] that euery eye shall see him. [d] As the lightning commeth out of the East, and shineth into the West: so shall also the comming of the Sonne of man be, that he may not only discouer himselfe in heauen to the good; but also that on earth, where his ignominie was most apparent, he may manifest himselfe to the wicked. And for this cause, the place of iudgement (as [e] some coniecture) shall be the valley of Iosephat, neere to Ierusalem and the Mount of Oliues, that in the very same place where he was iudged, condemned, crucified; all may see him with great honour to be the Iudge both of the quicke and of the dead, Acts 10.42. and that he who did ascend to heauen in the sight of a

[k] Musculus. Caluin. Gualter.
[l] Martyr.
[m] Dr. Couel præf before def. of M. Hooker.
[n] Psal. 37. 1.
[o] Aduancement of learning, lib. 1. pag. 13.
[p] Matth. 25.
[q] Caluin. Heming. Gualter.
[r] Ardens.
[s] 1. Pet. 2. 11.
[t] 1. Cor. 13. 9.
[u] Luke 6. 38.
[x] 1. Cor. 4. 5.
[y] Dan. 7. 10. Apoc. 20. 12. Cunctaq; cunctorum cunctis arcana patebunt.
[z] 1. Ioh. 3. 2.
[a] Col. 3. 4.
[b] Ioh. 1. 10.
[c] Apoc. 1. 7.
[d] Matth. 24. 27.
[e] Vide Riber. in Ioel, ca. 3. num. 2. Lorin. in Act. 1. 11. Lombard. 4. sent distinct. 48. Aquin. & Altissiodor. ibid.

a few Disciples, shall descend (as it is foretold by the glorious [f] Angels) in the sight of the whole world to iudge them all in righteousnesse. All which is exceeding necessarie for the credit of his gouernment in this life, that all may see that he was both wise and holy in all whatsoeuer he permitted or ordained, and that neither the [g] good may complaine any more that vertue was oppressed, nor the [h] wicked glorie that vice was exalted. He shall in that day separate the [i] wheate from the cockle, the graine from the chaffe, the [k] good fish from the bad, and the [l] sheepe from the goats: and the good he shall place at the right hand, taken vp (as [m] Paul saith) into the aire, that all the world may know them, and honour them as Saints: and the wicked he shall place at his left hand, leauing them vpon the earth, that all may behold and despise them as sinners.

[f] Acts 1.11.

[g] Psal 82. Ierem 12.1.
[h] Habac. 1.6.
[i] Matth. 3.12. & 13.30.
[k] Matth 13.48.
[l] Matth 25.32.
[m] 1. Thess 4.17

Which also shall strengthen you to the end] [n] We are not so perfect, but that we may be more perfect vntill Christ appeare. Ye must aske therefore this confirmation of God, that yee may be strengthned euery day more and more to the end. [o] He that hath begun this good worke in you, will performe it vntill the day of Iesus Christ. [p] He will sanctifie you throughout in soule and bodie, [q] working in you both the will and the deed, euen of his owne good pleasure. [r] God is faithfull, euer dealing with his seruants according to his word. As then he [f] promised, euen so will he be with vs vntill the worlds end, that we may be blamelesse at the day of his comming; not absolutely without sinne; for [t] if we say we haue no sinne, we deceiue our selues, and truth is not in vs: but he shall so preuent vs in all our doings with his holy grace, that we may liue [u] sine criminali crimine, [x] that we fall not into such hainous sinnes as may shut vs out of his fauor; [y] or if at any time we fall into those sinnes, he shall so [z] strengthen vs with power by his spirit in the inner man, as that we shall againe recouer our selues, and so be blameless at the day of his comming: or [a] blameless, because there is no condemnation vnto such as are in Christ, Rom 8.1. He is our righteousnesse, and sanctification, 1. Cor. 1.33. euen the propitiation for our sinnes, 1. Iohn 2.2. couering our iniquities and forgiuing our vnrighteousnesse, Psal. 32. 1. and therefore we shall be blameless in the day of the Lord, because nothing shall be laid vnto the charge of Gods elect, Rom. 8.33. In that houre we shall heare this happy doome deliuered by Christ our Sauiour, Come ye blessed of my father, &c. He saith not, Come ye blessed of Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob; nor ye blessed of Moses, or of the Patriarchs and Prophets, or ye blessed of God; but ye blessed of my Father: insinuating that all these blessings proceeded onely from the fatherly loue that God beareth vs in respect of his Sonne. Come ye blessed therefore, possesse you the kingdome prepared for you from the foundation of the world: as for the wicked, earth shall open vnder their feet, and the deuill laying hold on them they shall all together goe downe [b] quicke into hell, and there being couered with huge mountaines of earth, shall be bolted vp with eternall bolts, and bound hand and foot with chains of perpetuall damnation. O Father of mercy, which hast placed vs in this world as in the middle betweene heauen and hell, [c] euen as Nouices are in a house of probation; assist and strenghthen vs with thy Spirit to the end, that we may be found blameless in the end. Lord make vs here thy subiects in the kingdome of grace, that hereafter we may be thy Saints in the kingdome of glory. Amen.

[n] Heming.

[o] Philip. 1 6.
[p] 1. Thess. 5.23.
[q] Philip 2.13.
[r] 1. Cor 1.9.
[f] Matth. 28.20.

[t] 1. Iohn 1.8.

[u] Anselm.
[x] Ardens.
[y] Caietan.
[z] Ephes 3 16.

[a] Eng. Gloss. Martyr. Marlorat.

[b] Psal. 55.16.

[c] Bernard. ser. 31. ex parte.

The Gospell. Matth, 22.34.

When the Pharisies had heard that Iesus had put the Sadducees to silence, &c.

THis text is an [d] abridgement of the whole Scripture, to wit, of all the doctrine contained in the Gospell and in the Law: for the pith of all the Gospell is to beleeue that Christ is God and man, as it is said here, the Lord of Dauid, and the sonne of Dauid: and the [e] end of all the Law is to loue God with all thine heart, and thy neighbour as thy selfe: for on these two Commandements (as our Text telleth) hang all the Law and the Prophets, [f] interpreters of the Law,

[d] Heming. Ferus. Pontan. in locum

[e] 1. Tim 1.5.

[f] Piscator.

When

When the Phariſies had heard that Ieſus had put the Sadduces to ſilence] The Sadduces, Herodians, and Phariſies were Sectaries of diuers and [g] aduers factions, all differing one from another, and yet (as we read in this preſent Chapter) all theſe ioyne together in confuting Chriſt: yea [h] Pilat and Herod mortall enemies are made friends, and agree together in confounding Chriſt: according to that of the Prophet in the ſecond Pſalme, The Kings of the earth ſtand vp, and the Rulers take counſell together againſt the Lord and againſt his annointed. And therefore when as we ſhall ſee Turke againſt Iew, Iew againſt Turke, Pope againſt both, and all of them againſt Gods Iſrael: or when we behold the Seminarie Prieſt againſt the Ieſuit, and the Ieſuit againſt the Seminarie Prieſt, and both againſt the Proteſtant: or when as haply we feele the brethren of diuiſion againſt the brethren of ſeparation, and the brethren of ſeparation againſt the brethren of diuiſion, and both againſt Englands conformable Clergie; let vs remember our Sauiours lot here, and leſſon [i] elſe-where, The Diſciple is not aboue the Maſter, nor the ſeruant aboue his Lord, It is enough for the Diſciple to be as his Maſter is, and the ſeruant as his Lord is. If they haue called the Maſter of the houſe Beelzebub, how much more them of the houſhold? And let all true Chriſtians [k] endeuour to keepe the vnitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace. That as there is a combination of Phariſies, a ſocietie of Ieſuits, a congregation of Separatiſts, a brotherhood of Schiſmatikes; euen ſo to confront all theſe, let there be a communion of Saints, and a perpetuall holy league in truth of Orthodoxall Catholikes.

[g] Ioſeph. antiqu. lib. 18. cap. 2.

[h] Luke 23. 18.

[i] Matth 10. 24.

[k] Epheſ. 4. 3.

They came together] It is a true ſaying, [l] bonum eſt Concilium, ſed bonorum, a Counſell is good, if it conſiſts of ſuch men as are good: otherwiſe the counſell of the wicked [m] lay ſiege againſt the godly; when Phariſies are met in a conuocation they [n] trauell with miſchiefe, and bring forth vngodlineſſe. Truth, and many good men for the truth, hath beene condemned in Councels, as [o] Chryſoſtome in a Councell holden at Chalcedon, Athanaſius in a Councell holden at Antioch, Iohn Huſſe in a Councell holden at Conſtance. The Councels of Ariminium and Nicomedia decreed for the Arrians againſt Chriſts diuinitie: the ſecond Councell of Epheſus for Eutyches and Dioſcorus, againſt the truth of Chriſts humanitie; The Councell of Trent, againſt many ſound doctrines of Gods holy word, in ſo much as the Papiſts of France proteſted againſt it in the daies of Francis the firſt, openly deliuering in print, [p] that it is to be refuſed touching diſcipline as well Eccleſiaſticall as Ciuill.

[l] B Latimer.

[m] Pſal. 22. 16.

[n] Pſal 7. 15.

[o] See Doctor Fulke in Tit. 3.

[p] Ieſuits Cat. lib. 2. cap. 1.

And one of them] [q] Elected of the reſt as the mouth of the companie, being of a more ready wit and accurate iudgement, asked him a queſtion, tempting him: [r] not as God tempted Abraham for his triall, or as a Schoolemaſter doth his ſcholler for inſtruction, but as Sathan a Chriſtian to delude him. Our bleſſed Sauiour therefore being Wiſdome it ſelfe, doth anſwer the Doctor of the Law, out of the [ſ] Bookes and bowels of the Law, Thou ſhalt loue the Lord thy God with all thine heart, &c. As if he ſhould ſay, though other Gods are contented with [t] outward and eye-ſeruice; the Lord thy God is a [u] Spirit, and they that worſhip him muſt worſhip him in ſpirit; [x] Sonne giue me thine heart; not a Peece nor a part, but all thine heart, all thy ſoule, all thy minde. See the further expoſition of this and that other Commandement, touching loue toward our neighbours, Goſpell on the 13. Sunday after Trinitie.

[q] Calain.

[r] Ardens.

[ſ] Deut 6. 5.

[t] Pontan.

[u] Ioh 4. 24.

[x] Prou. 23. 26.

This is the firſt, and the greateſt Commandement] [y] Firſt in order, and greateſt in honour, Firſt in reſpect of the [z] Law-giuers intention, who wrote all Scriptures and made all creatures eſpecially for this end, that he might be loued aboue all things. And firſt in the Law-writers pen, as being [a] firſt ſet downe: and firſt in it owne nature, for as much as the true feare and loue of God is the [b] beginning of all wiſdome, without which it is impoſſible to loue what we ſhould, as we ſhould, for we cannot loue our neighbours as our ſelues, except we loue God more then our ſelues. And the firſt as [c] comprehending in it all the Commandements of the firſt Table, [d] virtualiter continens reliqua, for he that loues God with all his heart, ſoule, [y] Anſelme. Ardens. Aretius.

[z] Granat. Con. 1. in loc.

[a] Heming.

[b] Pſal 111. 10. Eccle 25. 13.

[c] Marlorat. Idem Rabanus apud Aquin. in loc.

[d] Caietan.

ſoule, minde: will neither commit idolatrie, nor blaſpheme his name, nor prophane his Sabbath.

And this Commandement is greateſt, as hauing the greateſt [e] obiect: for [f] God is higher then the higheſt, a great King [g] aboue all gods: and greateſt, as requiring the greateſt [h] perfection of loue, to wit, all our heart, all our ſoule, all our minde: and greateſt, in that [i] all other great Commandements are ſubordinate to it: and greateſt, as [k] enduring the greateſt time, for though that propheſying be aboliſhed, or knowledge vaniſh, or the tongue ceaſe, [l] yet loue neuer falleth away. To conclude with Aretius in one line, Maximum eſt obiecto, iure, dignitate, difficultate, perpetuitate, fine. From hence we may know which are our greateſt iniquities, Idolatrie, Witchcraft, Hereſie, prophaning of the Sabbath, outragious ſwearing, in a word, euery treſpaſſe againſt the firſt Table, being committed in the ſame meaſure of malice, is a greater ſinne then any tranſgreſſion of the ſecond Table: becauſe to loue God with all our heart, ſoule, minde, is the firſt and greateſt Commandement, and ſo by conſequence, optimi corruptio peſſima, the breach of the greateſt ordinance is the greateſt offence.

[e] Heming.
[f] Eccle 5.7.
[g] Pſal 95 3.
[h] Aretius.
[i] Granat.
[k] Coſter.
[l] 1.Cor.13.8.

And the ſecond is like vnto it] [m] Not like in obiect, but in ſubiect, [n] as being both precepts of loue: or like in reſpect of their [o] bond, as tying all a like: or like [p] becauſe theſe two mutually depend each on other, for he that loues God with all his heart, will alſo loue his neighbour as himſelfe; and whoſoeuer loueth his neighbour as himſelfe, loueth him aſſuredly for Gods ſake, [q] amicum in Domino, inimicum propter Dominum. Or like, becauſe [r] we muſt both loue God and our neighbour vnfainedly, [ſ] not in word, and in tongue only, but in truth and in deed. Ordinarily men vſe their louers as [t] ladders, only to climbe by, the ladder is laid on our ſhoulders, and embraced with both hands in our boſome ſo long as we ſtand in any need of it, but afterward it is caſt into ſome corner, or hanged vp by the wals: euen ſo, when neighbours haue ſerued once the turnes of ambitious and couetous wretches, either for their profit or preferment, inſtantly they be forgotten: for it is an infallible poſition (as [u] Cominæus obſerueth) among Statemen in eminent place, to loue thoſe leaſt, vnto whom heretofore they were bound moſt. Or like, [x] for that as the firſt is the fountaine of all dutie required in the firſt Table: ſo this ſecond Commandement of all offices enioyned in the ſecond Table; for he that loueth another hath fulfilled the Law, Rom.13.8.

[m] Heming.
[n] Ianſen. Con. cap. 118.
[o] Coſter.
[p] Euthym.
[q] Auguſt. confeſſ lib. 4 cap. 9.
[r] Aretius. Heming.
[ſ] 1.Iohn 3.18.
[t] Diez Con. 2. in loc.
[u] See Cominæus hiſt. lib. 3. ca. 12
[x] Marlorat.

On theſe two Commandements hang all the Law and the Prophets] As being their principal argument and aime, [y] for whoſoeuer is recorded in Moſes, or in the Prophets, or in the Pſalmes, or in any Scripture elſe, may be reduced to them: and it is written eſpecially for this end, that we may loue God aboue all things, and our neighbour as our ſelues. And therefore let not poore men obiect that they cannot purchaſe Gods booke, nor ignorant people complaine that they cannot vnderſtand and remember the contents of holy Scripture: for behold, Chriſt hath here prouided a little Bible for thee, which thou maiſt eaſily get, and euer keepe in memory; Loue the Lord thy God with al thine heart, and thy neighbour as thy ſelf.

[y] Euthym. in Matth 7. Ianſen. Pontan. Coſter in loc.

While the Phariſies were gathered together Ieſus asked them] One Phariſie did aſſault Chriſt, that if he were conquered his ſhame might ſeeme the leſſe; if Conquerer, his victorie might appeare the greater: but Chriſt oppoſeth a whole Counſell of Phariſies, and ſo confoundeth them all in asking one queſtion onely, that no man afterward durſt aske him any moe queſtions. Why this queſtion was asked, and how it may be well anſwered: ſee Galatin. de Arcanis lib. 8. *cap.*24. *Ianſen. con. cap.*119. Maldonat. Caluin. Genebrard, in Pſal. Dixit Dominus Domino. Marlorat, Aretius, Panigarol, in loc. I conclude with [z] Auguſtines gloſſe, Quomodo nos diceremus, niſi a te diſceremus? nunc ergo quia didicimus, dicimus. In principio eras verbum, & verbum eras apud Deum, & Deus eras verbum omnia per te facta ſunt, ecce Dominus Dauid. ſed nos propter infirmitatem noſtram, quia caro deſperata iacebamus, verbum caro factus es, vt habitares in nobis, ecce filius Dauid. Certè tu in forma Dei cùm eſſes, non rapinam arbitratus es eſſe aqualis Deo: Ideo Dominus Dauid. Sed teipſũ exinaniſti formam ſerui accipiens, inde filius Dauid. Deniq́, & in ipſa interrogatione tua dicens, quomodo filius eius eſt, non te filium eius negâſti, ſed modum in quo id fieret inquiſiſti.

[z] In Pſal 109.

The Epiſtle. EPHES. 4. 17.

This I ſay, and teſtifie through the Lord, that ye henceforth walke not as other Gentiles walke, &c.

THis Text conſiſts of a
- Soule, giuing not onely light, but alſo [a] life to the preſent exhortation of Paul: I ſay this, and teſtifie through the Lord [b] that is, I doe not onely deſire, but (as he ſpeakes elſewhere) [c] I charge you before God, and before the Lord Ieſus Chriſt, who ſhall iudge the quicke and the dead. I call God to [d] witneſſe that I haue taught you the truth, I teſtifie this as Chriſts [e] Ambaſſadour, [f] it is not my word, but his will. And therefore [g] ſuffer the words of exhortation, becauſe whoſoeuer heareth his, heareth him, Luk. 10. 16. and he that deſpiſeth, deſpiſeth not man, but God: 1. Theſſ. 4. 8.
- Bodie, that we ſhould walke
  - Not as Gentiles in their
    - Vnderſtanding, blinde and ignorant.
    - Will, obſtinate and alienated farre from a godly life [h] ſinning.
      - Wilfully, giuing themſelues ouer vnto wantonneſſe.
      - Actually, to worke all manner of vncleanneſſe.
      - Inſatiably, with greedineſſe
  - But as Chriſtians in
    - Putting off the old man, that is their old conuerſation in time paſt, as being corrupt [i] in
      - Thought, vnaduiſed anger, with all bitternеſſe of ſpirit.
      - Word, lying and filthy communication.
      - Deed, vniuſt dealing and ſtealing.
    - Putting on the new man according to Gods image renewed [k] in all the powers of the minde
      - Rationall, in putting away lying, and ſpeaking the truth.
      - Iraſcible, in being angrie without ſinne.
      - Concupiſcible, in ſtealing no more, but labouring, &c.

[a] Habet vim obteſtationis & aſſeuerationis magnæ. Aretius in loc.
[b] Primaſius. Lombard. Anſelme.
[c] 2. Tim. 4. 1.
[d] Oecumen.
[e] 2. Cor. 5. 20.
[f] Marlorat.
[g] Heb. 13. 22.
[h] Aquin.
[i] Ardens.
[k] Caietan. Aquin.

That ye henceforth walke not as other Gentiles walke] The moſt obſeruable point in all this exhortation is Pauls Antitheſis, or checker-worke, as it were the blacke of the Gentiles, and white of the Chriſtians. The Gentiles are blinded in their vnderſtanding and ignorant: but Chriſtians haue learned him in whom are all the treaſures of wiſedome and knowledge, Coloſſ. 2. 3. hearing him in his [l] word, and taught of him alſo by his [m] ſpirit, leading them into all truth, Iohn 16. 13. The Gentiles by the meanes of their blindneſſe and ignorance walke in vanitie of their minde, farre from a godly life, committing ſinne, not out of paſſion and infirmitie, but out of election and iniquitie, giuing themſelues ouer vnto wantonneſſe, and that not in thought only, but in act alſo, working and that all manner of vncleannеſſe, and that euen with greedineſſe inſatiably, [n] glorying in their ſhame, and as ſome

[l] Aretius.
[m] Lombard. Anſelm. Marlorat.
[n] Phil. 3. 19.

[o] Diuines aptly conſtrue the word ἐν πλεονεξίᾳ, contending for the victorie in villanie. But Chriſtians hauing learned Chriſt, whoſe doctrine [p] forbids all vngodlineſſe, ought to put on the new man, that is, new manners, all the dayes of their life ſeruing God in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe. The Gentiles vnregenerate are giuing to lying and forgerie, but euery Chriſtian regenerate will ſpeake the truth vnto his neighbour, as being members one of another. Vnregenerate men in their anger offend God, and giue place to the deuill: but men regenerate, will not let the Sunne goe downe vpon their wrath: in a [q] literall expoſition, [r] ira furor breuis eſt, all their vnaduiſed anger is not a day long: or in a myſticall ſenſe, they be ſo moderate as that neither [s] reaſon, the [t] light of the minde, nor [u] Chriſt the Sunne of righteouſneſſe, ſhall at any time forſake them in their fury. Men vnregenerate make [x] gaine their godlineſſe, robbing openly, ſtealing ſecretly: but a regenerate man is content to labour with his hands the thing that is good, that he may giue to him that needeth. He laboureth, as knowing that the end of lazineſſe is the beginning of lewdneſſe, [y] finis otij reſurgere ad prauum negotium. And he laboureth [z] not as a theefe to doe miſchiefe, but the thing which is good; [a] exerciſing himſelfe in ſome vocation or trade that is good, and that for good, that he may rather giue then take from other; acknowledging that axiome to be true, [b] Magis deliquit diues non largiendo ſuperflua, quam pauper rapiendo neceſſaria. Vnregenerate men haue filthy communication and vnſauourie: but the ſpeech of a regenerate man is ſo [c] powdred with ſalt, that as oft as need is, it may miniſter grace to the hearers. In a word, vnregenerate men are full of bitterneſſe, and fierceneſſe, and wrath, and roaring, and curſed ſpeaking, and all maliciouſneſſe: but regenerate men are courteous one to another, merciſull, forgiuing one another, euen as God for Chriſts ſake forgaue them. Theſe particulars haue beene diſcuſſed often elſewhere, but in the whole you may note [d] two maine parts of repentance: namely, contrition or mortification in putting off the old man: renouation or viuification in putting on the new man. And this newneſſe of life muſt be both outward, and inward: outward, in righteouſneſſe toward men, and holineſſe toward God, opening our lips to ſpeake that which is good, and labouring with our hands to doe that which is good. If idolatrous Gentiles and ſuperſtitious Papiſt in old time did more then they knew: what a ſhame lieth vpon vs if we know more then we doe? This renouation alſo muſt be ſpirituall and inward, as it is in the Text, renued in the ſpirit of your minde, [e] that is, in the ſpirit which is the minde, [f] for the ſpirit and minde. In the [g] ſupreme part of the minde, as well as in the will and affection: for in the minde made [h] ſpirituall after God in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe. He who firſt made this Image, reſtoreth it againe being loſt, ipſe qui fecit reficit: [i] albeit this newneſſe be found in vs, it is not of vs, it proceeds only from the Lord who ſaith, [k] Ecce noua facio omnia; Behold, I make all things new. We are his workemanſhip created in Chriſt Ieſu vnto good workes, Ephe. 2. 10. and therefore we muſt pray with Dauid, O God renew a right ſpirit within me, Pſal. 51. 10. and embrace the Goſpell of Chriſt, as the [l] power of God vnto ſaluation, inſtructing vs how to liue ſoberly, righteouſly, and holily, Titus 2. 12.

Whoſoeuer is a ſcorner and deſpiſer of this ſoule-ſauing grace, grieues the ſpirit of God, and giues place to the deuill. It is true that the Spirit cannot properly [m] grieue. becauſe the mercies of God are not paſſiue, but actiue, ſuccouring, not ſuffering in our miſery. [n] Yet a man that is giuen ouer vnto wickedneſſe, doth occaſion other in whom the Spirit dwels, exceedingly to lament and grieue for his faults and follies: or he may be ſaid to grieue the Spirit, [o] becauſe filthy communication is diſpleaſing to the Spirit: or for that as [p] much as in him is, he doth extinguiſh the Spirit, and driue him out of his manſion, and ſo giues place to Satan, entring in at two doores eſpecially, ſaith [q] Auguſtine, Per oſtium cupiditatis & timoris; aut cupis aliquid terrenum & hâc intrat, aut times aliquid terrenum & hâc intrat.

On the contrary, whoſoeuer is renued in the ſpirit of his minde openeth a doore to Chriſt, Apoc. 3. 20. and Chriſt dwelleth in him, Ephe. 3. 17. and he liueth [o] Caluin. Aretius.

[p] Tit. 2. 12.
[q] Ardens. Caietan. Marlorat.
[r] Herat.
[s] Hierome. Aquin.
[t] Eccleſ. 12. 2.
[u] Lombard. Anſelm
[x] 1. Tim. 6. 5.
[y] Laurent. Piſanus euangelic. paradox.
[z] Oecumen.
[a] Ardens. Aretius. Marlorat.
[b] Laurent. Piſcan. vbi ſupra.
[c] Coloſ. 4. 6.
[d] Sarcerius & Piſcator in loc.
[e] Anſelm.
[f] Hieron. Ardens.
[g] Caluin. Caietan.
[h] Lombard. Aquin.
[i] Ardens.
[k] Apoc 21. 5.
[l] Rom. 1. 16.
[m] Tom. part 1. quæſt. 11. art. 3.
[n] Primaſius. Lombard.
[o] Anſelm.
[p] Auguſtin. epiſt. 33.
[q] In Pſal. 14. idem Lombard. in loc.

[r] Rom.13.14. [s] Casaubon.not. in Epist. Myst.ad Eustat. [t] Com. post.in Galath. [u] D.Fulke in loc. [x] Lib.de Nat. & Grat.cap.vlt. [y] Idem epist 29.

in Christ Galath.2.20. nay the good man [r] puts on Christ, and is as it were a walking [s] picture of Christ, so the text expresly, Galat. 4.19. my little children, of whom I trauell in birth againe, vntill Christ be formed in you: which [t] Hierome glosseth aptly thus, In illo verè Christus formatur, qui virtutem fidei eius intelligit, & in quo omnis conuersatio eius exprimitur atq; depingitur. [u] In this life this renouation is only begun, and not perfect vntill this mortall put on immortalitie. [x] S.Augustine notably to this purpose, Charitie begun, is righteousnesse begun; charitie increased, is righteousnesse increased; great charitie is great righteousnesse; perfect charitie, perfect righteousnesse. [y] Charitas in alijs maior, in alijs minor, in alijs nulla: There be many degrees of charitie, some haue lesse, other haue more: sed plenissima, quæ iam non possit augeri, quamdiu homo hic viuit, est in nemine: but full and perfect charitie cannot be found in any man so long as he liueth here. To conclude this argument in three words onely, iustifying righteousnesse is perfect, but not inherent; sanctifying righteousnesse is inherent, but not perfect; glorifying righteousnesse is both inherent and perfect.

The Gospell. Matth 9.1 vnto v. 9

Iesus entred into a ship, and passed ouer, and came into his owne Citie, &c.

THis history commends vnto your consideration

- Actors,
  - Agent, Christ, as the chiefe Doctor healing: infirmities of
    - Porters of the Palsie-man, as Procters helping: Behold they brought, &c.
    - Soule, Thy sinnes be forgiuen thee.
    - Bodie, Arise, take vp thy bed. &c.
  - Patient: A man, a sicke man, a man sicke of the palsie, so sicke that he could neither goe, nor stand, nor sit, but lie in his bed.
- Auditors,
  - The Scribes, murmering at the matter, and blaspheming Christ, verse 3.
  - The people maruelling at the miracle, and glorifying God, vers. 8.

[z] Erasmus in eius vita præfix. tom.1.Hieron. [a] Acts 10.38. [b] Hemming. [c] Laurent. Pisanus Euangel paradox. [d] Ferus Com.1. in loc. [e] Iohn.4.19. [f] Hosea 13.9. [g] Matth.2.1. [h] Matth 2.23. [i] De consensu. Euangel.lib.2. cap 25. Idem. Anselm.in loc.

Iesus entred into a ship, and passed ouer] It is written of [z] Hierome, that he spent foure yeares in a Desert of Syria so studiously, that he did allow himselfe but a little time for sleepe, lesse for meat, none for idlenesse. But our blessed Sauiour neither immured in a wall, nor cloystered in an Abbey, nor hidden in a Wildernesse, [a] went about doing good from coast to coast, and from countrey to countrey, from the Gadarens vnto Galile: whose [b] diligence you must according to your seuerall occupations and occasions imitate so fast as you can, and so farre as you may; knowing that it is impossible not to finde ill in idle: [c] Hominem otiosum non esse malum impossibile, quia nihil agendo discit male agere. From hence likewise we may note Christs vnspeakable goodnesse, who came to the Gergesens afore they desired him, and stayed in their country till they reiected him, as being prior in amore, posterior in odio: louing vs [e] first afore we loued him, and neuer forsaking vs vntill we forsake him: as he speakes by the mouth of his holy [f] Prophet, O Israel, hurt is from thy selfe, but helpe is from me.

Into his owne Citie] The man sicke of the palsie was cured in Capernaum, as Saint Marke reports in his second Chapter, at the first verse: but Christ as we finde in the Gospell of Saint Matthew, was borne at [g] Bethelem, and brought vp at [h] Nazaret; how then accord you these places? [i] Augustine doth answer, that Capernaum was the chiefe, and as it were Metropolitane Citie of all the Galileans, and therefore in what place soeuer of Galile Christ was, he might be said to be in Capernaum, as the whole Romane Empire spread farre and wide was termed termed Rome, and all the parts of Huntingdonſhire, Cambridgeſhire, Bedfordſhire, take their denomination from Huntingdon, Cambridge, Bedford, the principall head townes of thoſe countries. And this expoſition is receiued by the [k] Penner of the ordinary gloſſe, Beda, Hugo, Strabus, and other, apud Maldonat. in loc. But [l] Chryſoſtome giues a more probable ſatisfaction vnto the preſent obiection, affirming that Chriſt was borne in Bethlehem, and bred in Nazaret; but afterward dwelt in Capernum eſpecially, ſhewing his greateſt miracles (as [m] himſelfe witneſſeth) in that Citie; Thou Capernaum, which art liſted vp vnto heauen, ſhalt be brought downe to hell: for if the great workes, which haue beene done in thee, had beene done among them of Sodome, they had remained to this day. So that Capernaum is called here Chriſts owne Citie, becauſe [n] leauing Nazareth, he went and dwelt in Capernaum. [o] Hence we may learne that euery towne which is adorned with the Goſpell is Chriſts owne Citie, there Ieſus is preſent in his Sermons, in his Sacraments, in his gifts, in his grace. [p] So long as the children of Iſrael obeyed God, and walked in his wayes according to his word, ſo long they were called his people. Come ſaith the [q] Lord to Moſes, I will ſend thee to Pharoah, that thou maiſt bring my people the children of Iſrael out of Egypt: but when once they were [r] ſtained with their owne works, and went a whoring with their owne inuentions, in ſo much as they [ſ] turned their glory into the ſimilitude of a Calfe that eateth hay: the Lord ſpeaking vnto Moſes his ſeruant, cals them, not as before, my people but [t] the people, or according to the vulgar, Thy people. So Hieruſalem once [u] Gods Citie, was afterward by [x] killing the Prophets, and reiecting the Lord of the Prophets, a denne of theeues, Matth. 21. 13. So Rome was in Paules age the [y] beloued Church of Chriſt, but ſince her erroneous doctrine, as the wine of her fornication hath intoxicated the Kings and inhabitants of the earth, Apocalyps 17. 2. what is ſhe but the [z] mother of abominations, a Synagogue of Satan, a ſeat of Antichriſt?

It may further be obiected here, that the [a] Sonne of man had not ſo much as an hole wherein to reſt his head, and therefore no Citie of his owne. To which, anſwer may be, [b] that the holy Ghoſt (in theſe two contrarie texts, as they ſeeme) doth inſinuate that leſſon ſecretly, which Paul elſewhere deliuereth openly, to to wit, that we ſhould [c] vſe the world, as if we vſed it not, [d] as hauing nothing and yet poſſeſſing all things.

They brought to him a man ſicke of the palſie lying in a bed] In theſe Porters and Procters, obſerue with [e] Hemingius and [f] other, vnfained loue to their friend, and a liuely faith in Chriſt; in being [g] feet to the lame, great loue: but in bringing him to Chriſt, and that after ſuch a ſtrange manner, as [h] Saint Marke reports it, vncouering the roofe of the houſe where Chriſt was, and letting downe their ſicke neighbour in a bed, and when he was ſo brought vnto Chriſt holding it ſufficient to preſent [i] miſerum ante miſericordem, an obiect of miſerie to the Father of mercy, greater faith. Other haply would haue powred out a long prayer vnto Chriſt in word, or haue giuen vp a large petition in the behalfe of their friend in writing: but they were well aſſured, as [k] Eraſmus elegantly, that the diſtreſſed in his couch, eò magis loquebatur miſericordi medico, quia loqui non poterat. And therefore the text ſaith in the next clauſe, that Ieſus ſaw the faith of them. [l] As God, he ſaw their faith, as he ſaw the thoughts of the Scribes: and as man, he ſaw their faith by their workes. He ſaw the faith of the Porters in bringing, and of the palſie man in ſuffering himſelfe to be brought in ſuch a manner: and therefore Chriſt, the [m] conſolation of Iſrael, affoords him inſtantly comfort both in word and deed. In word, Sonne be of good cheere, whoſoeuer beleeueth in Chriſt, [n] hath power to be the ſonne of God: and if thou be Gods ſonne, thou maiſt be very well of good cheere; for your [o] Father in heauen knoweth your wants, and prouideth all things neceſſarie for you. In deed, healing firſt his ſinnes, and then his ſores.

Thy ſinnes are forgiuen thee] Where firſt obſerue, that Chriſt is ſo good as his word, yea better then his promiſe: for whereas he ſaith, [p] aske and you ſhall haue,

[k] In loc.

[l] Idem Theophylact. Euthym. Beza in loc.
[m] Matth. 11. 23

[n] Matth 4. 13.
[o] Kilius in loc.

[p] Diez Con. 1. in loc.

[q] Exod. 3. 10.

[r] Pſal. 106 38.
[ſ] Ibid. ver 20.

[t] Exod 33. 1.
[u] Pſal. 87. 2.
[x] Matth. 23. 37.

[y] Rom. 1. 7.

[z] Apocal. 17. 5.

[a] Matth 8. 20.

[b] Muſculus in loc.

[c] 1. Cor. 7 31.
[d] 2. Cor. 6. 10

[e] Poſtil in loc.
[f] Soarez. Culman.
[g] Iob 29. 15.
[h] Cap. 2. 4.

[i] Beauxamis in loc.

[k] Paraf. in. 5 Luc.

[l] Zepper. con. 1. in loc.

[m] Luk 2. 25.

[n] Ioh. 1. 12.
[o] Matth 6. 8. 33.

[p] Matth 7. 7.

he granted here to the Palsie-man afore he did aske, and more than he did aske. q We reade not that the Patient himselfe, or his agents exhibited any petition vnto Christ in his behalfe, yet the Lord heard the r desire of the poore, yea the very groanes of his seruants s not expressed, t oratio licet tacens est Deo clamor. His Palsie was prayer enough, and his faith a sufficient friend for his way to the God of all comfort. Againe, this patient came to Christ especially, if not onely, to be cured of his corporall infirmitie: but behold, his spirituall iniquities are healed also. Sonne be of good cheere, thy sinnes are forgiuen thee. u King Salomon desired of God onely, that he would giue him an vnderstanding heart to iudge his people; but the Lord granted him not onely wisdome in such a plentifull manner, as that none were like him in vnderstanding, either afore or after his time: but also bestowed on him other blessings of riches, honour, and prosperitie which he did not aske, x Saul seeking for Asses onely, found a kingdome. y Monica begged of God that her sonne Augustine might one day turne Christian and Catholike: but he proued also the most illuminate Doctor of all the Fathers. As when z Sisera asked water, Iael gaue him milke: and as when Gehezi begged of Naaman one talent, he presently said vnto him, a Yea take two talents, and he compelled him, and bound two talents of siluer in two bags: euen so God dealeth exceeding abundantly with vs abone all that we aske, or thinke, Ephes.3.30.

Secondly, in that Christ here said to the patient, Thy sinnes are forgiuen thee, before he said, Arise, take vp thy bed, and walke; b he doth insinuate that first he should haue craued pardon for his sinnes, and then afterward haue desired helpe for his sickenesse; that c first he should haue sought the kingdome of God, and then all other things should haue beene cast vpon him. Ordinarily men are too carefull for their bodies, and too negligent in doing right to their soules; in so much as d one said, Our bodies are made gentlemen, but our mindes are vsed as slaues. Euery man in his right wits affects a good seruant, a good sonne, a good friend, a good field. Nay euery man is desirous his house, his horse, his hose should be good, he will haue euery thing good about him, onely not caring if his soule be bad in him. O wretched wight, saith e Augustine, quid de te tu ipse male meruisti? inter bona tua non vis esse malum nisi teipsum: How didst thou deserue so much ill of thy selfe, as that among all thy goods only thy selfe art bad?

I obserue that Christ like a good Physitian did first purge his patient, and take away the f matter of the disease, that he might the better worke his cure. g Sinne is the cause of all diseases, and therefore Christ who was without sinne, was also without sickenesse, he tooke vpon him (as the h Schoolemen in this very wel) infirmitates speciei, sed non indiuidui; common infirmities vnto the whole nature of mankinde, as to be weary, to thirst, hunger, mourne: but not the particular infirmities of euery singular person, as the blindnesse of Bartimeus, the feuer of the Rulers sonne, the palsie of this patient lying in his bed. Indeed it is said, Esay 53.4. that he tooke our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses. But S. Peter i interprets it of our Sauiours passion, his owne selfe bare our sinnes in his body on the tree. k S. Matthew construeth it of his healing all kinde of diseases. l Others expound it thus, he tooke vpon him our paine, that is, whatsoeuer infirmitie was in him, it was only for our sake, not for his owne sinne: for so the Prophet explaines himselfe in the words immediately following, he was wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, and with his stripes we are healed. If any then be sicke, let them humbly confesse their sinnes, and heartily craue forgiuenesse of the same, m first consulting with a Physitian for the soule, then entertaining a Physitian for the body.

4. Hence learne n that Christ hath not an eye so much to the greatnesse of our sinnes, as to our faith. If he see thy faith, he will winke at thy fault. When the blessed theefe had confessed him on the crosse, o O Lord remember me when thou commest into thy kingdome: Christ instantly forgetting all his former sinnes, especially respects his present confession, answering him exceeding graciously,

to

q Musculus in loc.
r Psal.10.19.
s 1.Sam.1.13.
t Hilarius apud Kilium in loc. See God vnto Moses, Exodus 14.15.
u 1.Kings 3.
x 1.Sam 9.
y August.confess. lib.9. cap.10.
z Iudg.5.
a 2.King.5.23. b Ferus & Maldonat. in loc.
c Mat.6.33.
d Sir William Cornewalis Esay 12. e Serm.145.de tempore.
f Hierome. Theophylact. Euthym.
g 1.Cor.11.30. Iohn 5.14.
h Tom.3.part. quest 14.art.4. Suarez in 3. Thom disputat. 32.& Senten. in 3.sent. distinct.15.
i 1.*Epist.*2.24.
k Chap.8.17.
l See B.Bilson serm.of Christs suffering, pag. 261.
m Perkins treat. of dying well. & Coster. com.in euang.Dom 18. post Pentecost.
n Heming.
o Luk.23.42 33.

to day ſhalt thou be with me in Paradiſe. When [p] Bartimeus had cried, Ieſus thou ſonne of Dauid haue mercy on me; Chriſt anſwered forthwith vnto the comfort of his ſoule, Goe thy way, thy faith hath ſaued thee. This palſi-man had ſinnes in the plurall number: originall, as being vniuerſall: and actuall, as being the ſpeciall cauſes of his diſeaſe; which not vnlikely was occaſioned either by ſome diſquiet of minde, or elſe by ſome diſdiet of bodie: yet (as you ſee) ſo ſoone as Chriſt perceiued the faith of himſelfe and his friends, he ſaid (as not reſpecting their [q] other vertues, or his other vices) O ſonne be of good cheere, thy ſinnes are forgiuen thee.

[p] Mar. 10. 52.

[q] Culman.

5. In that Chriſt ſaid here, thy ſinnes are forgiuen thee, notwithſtanding he knew the Scribes would murmur and mutter againſt his ſpeech: [r] he teacheth vs to be faithfull in our calling, and diligent in doing our dutie, mauger the beard of all captious and cauelling aduerſaries. As [f] Bernard ſaid of another text, Luke 2. 8. Hæc mea ſunt, mihi apponuntur, mihi proponuntur imitanda. This was ſpoken by Chriſt, and written by Matthew for our inſtruction. Hath then Almightie God giuen ſuch power vnto men, as to pronounce the pardon of ſinne to the ſicke man in his bed? is the doctrine of confeſſion and abſolution agreeable to the Scriptures, and practiſe of the Church as well preſent as primitiue? then albeit ſome ſcribling Scribe, pen an inuectiue pamphlet againſt a diſcreet Paſtor executing this office, or ſome ſelfe-conceited Phariſie tell the people, this man blaſphemeth: he may notwithſtanding (vpon good information of [t] faith and repentance, as Chriſt in this place) ſay to the ſicke ſinner in his bed, thy ſinnes are forgiuen thee, and by Chriſts authoritie committed vnto him, I abſolue thee. That abſolution as well priuate as publike belongs principally, yea properly tanquam ex officio to the Miniſter as Chriſts Ambaſſador in his eccleſiaſticall function: I referre you to the Poſtiles of Melanchthon, Culman, Zepperus vpon this place, to Martin Bucer in [u] articulis concordiæ: Melanchthon in Matth. 18. verſ. 18. & in Iohan. 20. verſe 23. & in tract. de pœnitentia tit. Confeſſio, tom. 2. fol. 191. Oleuian de ſubſtantia fœderis, part. 2. pag. 278. 279. & ſequent, Luther, Muſculus, Cruciger apud Melanchton [x] in Concilys Theologicis: Doctor Field, lib. 3. of the Church, chap. 25. Maſter White, Way to the true Church, pag. 230. 231. For my owne part, I wiſh vnfainedly that all popiſh abuſes of Confeſſion and Abſolution vtterly aboliſhed, they might one day be more fully reſtored in our Proteſtant Churches vnto their primitiue ſinceritie,

[r] Heming.

[f] Serm 3 in natal. Dom.

[t] Caluin. Inſtit. lib. 3 cap. 4. § 21. 22.

[u] Inter ſcripta Anglicana. pag. 688.

[x] Pag. 256.

6. Chriſt in ſaying, thy ſinnes are forgiuen thee, doth [y] inſtruct vs more fully concerning his owne perſon and office, for which he was ſent into the world: namely, [z] to ſeeke and ſaue that which was loſt: Vnlinke the phraſe, and you ſhall finde a Goſpell in euery word. Sonne: if we be ſonnes, how can our Father in heauen denie vs any good thing? Matth. 7. 11. Be of good cheere. [a] If God be with vs, who can be againſt vs? if he will haue vs merry, what ſhall make vs ſorry? Thy, in particular, ſinnes in the plurall, many ſinnes, all ſinnes, are forgiuen, freely, yet fully, through my grace, not vpon thy merit. For he ſaith not (as [b] Interpreters obſerue) thou ſhalt ſatisfie for thy ſinne: but ecce remittuntur tibi, behold they be forgiuen. Againe, it is very remararkable that Chriſt ſaw their faith: but ſaid thy ſinnes. I grant with Euthymius and [c] other ancient Fathers, that vndoubtedly this ſicke man had ſome faith, otherwiſe he would neuer haue ſought after Chriſt ſo greedily, neither would Chriſt haue receiued him into fauour ſo graciouſly: yet Saint Matthew, Marke, Chap. 2. verſe 5. Luke Chap. 5. verſe 10. attribute moſt vnto the faith of the Porters, all of them relating the ſtory thus: And when Ieſus ſaw, not his, but their faith. And ſo many doctors vnderſtand this Text, as [d] Ambroſe, [e] Cyrillus, Hieroſolymitanus, [f] Hierome and [g] other. If Chriſt then be ſo willing to grant our requeſts vpon the prayer and inuocation of other; [h] how ready will he be to heare when our ſelues out of our owne faith are ſuters for our ſelues? Vndoubtedly this ſaying, thy ſinnes are forgiuen, is as a [*] ſtanding ſentence, ſpoken not only to the palſie man here: but as a generall proclamation vnto euery one that beleeueth.

[y] Heming.

[z] Luk. 19. 10.

[a] Rom 8. 31.

[b] Muſculus. Heming.

[c] Chryſoſtom. Theophylact. in loc.

[d] Com in Luc. 5.
[e] Catechiſ. 5.
[f] Com in loc.
[g] Anſelm. Heming
[h] Thom. in loc.
[*] B. Lat. ſerm. Goſp. 20. Sun. after Trinity.

And

And behold certaine of the Scribes ſaid within themſelues, this man blaſpheme th] A man may blaſpheme [i] three wayes eſpecially: firſt, aſcribing to God that which is vnbefitting his excellent maieſtie: ſecondly, by denying to God his proper attributes: thirdly, by giuing that vnto himſelfe which is only due to God. And in this third kinde the Scribes imagined Chriſt to blaſpheme, becauſe none can forgiue ſinnes except God. Eſay 43.25. I am he that putteth away thine iniquitie for mine owne ſake. Chriſt therefore proues himſelfe to be God, firſt by knowing their thoughts, and ſecondly by doing this miracle. Ieſus ſaw their thoughts; ergo, God. For [k] God only knowes the hearts of all the children of men, according to that of [l] Philemon an old Poet:

Qualis Deus mihi dicite, cenſendus eſt,
Qui cuncta cernit, ipſe ſed non cernitur.

Whether is it eaſier to ſay thy ſinnes be forgiuen the? or to ſay ariſe and walke?] [m] With God it is all one to ſay and to do; but with men it is more eaſie to ſay this, then to ſhew this. And therefore that ye may know that the ſonne of man hath power to forgiue ſinnes on earth: [n] I will by curing the palſie mans bodie, proue that I can alſo ſaue his ſoule. Carnall men beleeue their ſenſe more then their Sauiour, [o] ſit ergo carnale ſignum vt probetur ſpirituale, [p] facit minus, quod eſt manifeſtius, vt demonſtret maius & non manifeſtum. And it is worth obſeruing that Chriſt neuer openly forgaue the ſinnes of any, [q] till by working of miracles he ſhewed euidently that he had power to grant pardons. Ambaſſadors are not beleeued in another Nation, vntill they deliuer their letters of credence. Chriſt therefore ſhewed his commiſſion, and [r] letters teſtimoniall, or rather a plaine Patent: That ye may know that the Sonne of man hath authoritie to forgiue ſinnes on earth, I ſay to the ſicke of the palſie, ariſe, take vp thy bed, &c.

Ariſe, take vp thy bed, and goe to thy houſe.] So many words are ſet downe for the greater [s] manifeſtation of the miracle, as if he ſhould ſay, Thou that couldeſt not ſit, now ſtand: thou that couldeſt not goe, now walke: thou that wert carried in thy bed, [t] now carry thy bed: and [u] ſo demonſtrate that thy former agilitie, ſtrength, and health, is truly reſtored againe. Goe to thine houſe, that thy friends and acquaintance who knew thee to be ſicke, may confeſſe my power in making thee whole. If Chriſt would haue had this palſie man to follow him, he would not haue ſaid, take vp thy bed: but [x] take vp thy croſſe. For to be Chriſts follower is not opus puluinaris, ſed pulueris, a fether bed is vnfit for our ſwift race in the [y] narrow way, where [z] two coats are troubleſome.

[a] Myſtically, this palſie man is euery man vnregenerate lying ſicke in the bed of his ſinne, not able to ſtirre hand or foot of himſelfe for the good of himſelfe. He muſt therefore be renued in the ſpirit of his minde after God in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe. Now the power to forgiue ſinnes and to worke this cure is giuen to Chriſt only. So [b] Dauid, Waſh me throughly from my wickedneſſe, and I ſhall be whiter then the ſnow. So [c] Ieremy, Conuert me Lord, and I ſhall be conuerted. And it is as our Church ſpeakes, a great maruell, nay, ſaith [d] Auguſtine, it is a more ſtrange miracle to conuert a ſinner and to make him a new man, then it was in the beginning to make the new world. For there was nothing to hinder God in creating the great world; but in renuing this our little world, beſides our owne naturall corruption, all euils on earth, all deuils in hell are ready to withſtand him. In more particular, he that will not worke for his liuing hath the palſie in his [e] hands, he muſt therefore ſo learne Chriſt, as that he ſteale no more, but rather labour with his hands the things which is good. And ſo the Goſpell and Epiſtle meet together in their argument and aime, both inſinuating that Ieſus Chriſt is the Sauiour of ſoule and body. Wherefore let vs as the beholders of this miracle, glorifie God, and pray with our Church:

O God, for as much as without thee we are not able to pleaſe thee: grant that the working of thy mercie may in all things direct and rule our hearts through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

The

[i] Ludolph. de vita Chriſt. part. 1. c. 47. Bonauent. in Luc. 5. Beauxamis. Panigoral. in loc.

[k] 1. King. 8. 39.
[l] Iuſtin. Mart. de monarch. Dei, Totus oculus eſt & qui minime fallitur quia minime claudit. Bernard. lib 5. de conſid.
[m] Rupert in loc.
[n] Theophylact.
[o] Hierome.
[p] Chryſoſtom.
[q] Non hoc ante diceret quam factis comprobaret. Rupert. in loc.
[r] Muſculus.

[s] Maldonat. Chryſoſt.
[t] Hieron Epiſt. ad Ruſtic.
[u] Chryſoſt. Theophylact. Euthym.
[x] Matth 16.24.

[y] Matth. 7. 14
[z] Matth 10. 10
[a] Kilius in loc.

[b] Pſal. 51. 2, 7.
[c] Chap. 31. 18.
[d] Apud Veg. in loc.

[e] Rupert in loc.

The Epistle. EPHES. 5.15. vnto v. 22

Take heed therefore how ye walke circumspectly, not as vnwise, but as wise men, &c.

IT is an axiome that will abide the touch-stone, whosoeuer is a good man is a wise man; and on the contrary whosoeuer is an irrepentant sinner is a foole. Salomon affirmes it in his [f] Prouerbs, and Christ a greater then Salomon confirmes it in his Gospell, expressing the dangerous estate of improuident sinners by the parable of the [g] fooliſh Virgins, and terming the prodigall childs repentance, [h] comming vnto himselfe, as if he had beene out of his wits vntill his amendment, as the Greeke word μετανοια doth import, and the Latine resipiscentia quasi [i] receptio mentis ad se. So Paul aduiseth vs in my text, to walke circumspectly, not as vnwise, but as wise men. And to be wise men according to the doctrine of Paul, is to be new men, [k] to cast off our old conuersation, and be renued in the spirit of our minde. To speake more particularly, the learned Atheist is a foole, Psalm. 14.1. The foole hath said in his heart, there is no God. The wittie harlot is a foole, Prou. 9.13. A fooliſh woman is troubleſome, &c. The couetous (albeit the world repute him only wise, [l] Dines quasi Diuus, as being a petite god on earth) is notwithstanding in the Scriptures estimate but a foole, Luk. 12 20. O foole this night will they fetch away thy soule from thee. But because the drunkard is a most apparant grosse sot, our Apostle willeth vs here principally to take heed of drunkennesse, be not drunken with wine, &c.

That we may walke circumspectly, [m] three points are to be considered especially, { Quò. Quomodo. Qua via.

The [n] wise mans eyes are in his head, he therefore [o] looketh vnto Christ, [p] seeking the things aboue, where Christ our head sitteth at the right hand of God; and he walketh vnto the Citie which is [q] to come in the right way with a right eye. The way to heauen is to know God and his Christ, Ioh. 17.3. a liuely faith working by loue, Galath, 5.6. and to walke in this right way vprightly, is to shun the mountaine of presumption, and the pits of despaire, turne neither to the right hand nor to the left, to runne our race neither hastily nor slowly, but as Paul here, circumspectly. Now the drunkard (as it is in the Prouerbe) is [*] out of the way, to speake the best of him in charitie, reeling in the way, for tipling heads haue topling heeles. It is a popish axiome, cautè si non castè; but the truth is, no man walkes charily, but he who walks chastly. Our Apostles cautè, is as much as [r] cauete, take heed of euery thing which is an hinderance to your walking in the wayes of the Lord, but especially take heed that ye be not drunken with wine wherein is excesse.

Concerning this one sinne, Schoole-Anthors haue moued many questions: as first, whether a man being sicke may be drunken medicinally for his health?

2. Whether a man taking an inebriatiue potion, not knowing the force thereof, hereby committeth any sinne?

3. Whether a man ouercharging his stomacke at a publike feast, not in any carnall delectation intemperately carowsing, but vpon complement only pledging ordinarie cups of kindnesse, may iustly be condemned of excesse?

4. Whether the courteous inuitor vrging his guest in loue, may be said to make the riot, and if either be thought author of misrule, whether occasionaliter, or causaliter?

5. Whether any subiect in answering his Soueraignes health, may wittingly and willingly transgresse in this kinde?

6. Whether any for feare of stabbing, or any such like imminent perill, should endanger his soule to saue his bodie; and if any of these kindes are to be excused, whether à toto or à tanto?

For

[f] Cap. 1.7.42. & 8.5.
[g] Matth. 25.
[h] Luke 15.17.
[i] Tertullian. lib. 2. contra Marcion, vel vt alij, resipiscere, quasi resapere.
[k] Ephes. 4.22.
[l] Varro lib. 4. de ling. Lat.
[m] Ardens in loc.
[n] Eccles. 2.14.
[o] Hebr. 12.2.
[p] Coloss 3 1.
[q] Heb. 13.14.
[*] Esay. 28.7.
[r] Aquin in loc.

For the reſolution whereof, I referre you to [f] Thomas, [t] Altiſſiodorenſis, [u] Caietan; holding it ſufficient at this time to treat of voluntarie, wicked, inordinate drunkenneſſe implied in our text. Firſt, voluntarie, be not: inſinuating that it is in our owne power. Secondly, wicked, drunken with wine. For as [x] Diuines are bold to ſpeake, there is an holy drunkenneſſe, as that of the bleſſed Apoſtles on Whitſunday; and that of Martyrs and Saints in euery age, who taking the cup of ſaluation into their hands are ſo filled with the ſpirit, that they are euen ſicke with loue, Cant. 2. 5. and inebriated as it were with the [y] plenteouſneſſe of Gods houſe. Thirdly, inordinate, wherein is exceſſe, making men abſolute [z] diſſolute, ready to commit all vncleanneſſe euen with greedineſſe. All theſe being put together, make drunkenneſſe a gramdame in Babylon, and a very monopolie of miſchiefe, tranſgreſſing euery precept of the whole Law.

[f] 22. quæſt. 150. art 1. 2. & ſequent.
[t] in Aurea ſumma fol. 157.
[u] In Thomam vbi ſupra.
[x] Ardens in loc. Ebrietas ſancta.
[y] Pſal. 3. 68.
[z] Luther. Beza. Piſcator.

The firſt Commandement is, Thou ſhalt haue none other Gods but me. The meaning whereof as Chriſt expounds it, Matth. 22. 37. is, Thou ſhalt loue the Lord thy God with all thine heart, with all thy ſoule, with all thy minde. He ſaith not (as Chryſoſtome notes vpon the place) feare the Lord: for the moſt impudent Atheiſts haue trembled often, in whom there is no perfect loue, [a] which expelleth feare: Neither ſaith he, know the Lord: for heathen men haue ſome knowledge of God by nature: Pſal. 19. 1. The heauens declare the glorie of God, and the firmament ſheweth his handie worke. Neither ſaith he, beleeue the Lord thy God; for the [b] deuils alſo beleeue: but he ſaith expreſly that which is the [c] fulfilling of the Law: loue the Lord thy God. As then our [d] Apoſtle ſaid, he is our maſter, to whom we ſubmit our ſelues as ſeruants to obey: ſo that is our God aſſuredly, which we like beſt and loue moſt. And therefore for as much as the glutton and drunkard is totus venter, (as Eraſmus ſaid of a Frier, all belly, and all for the belly: without all doubt his belly is his [e] God, and his glory his ſhame.

[a] 1. Iohn 4. 18.
[b] Iames 2. 19.
[c] Rom. 13. 10.
[d] Rom. 6. 16.
[e] Phil. 3. 19.

The ſecond Commandement is, Thou ſhalt not make to thy ſelfe any grauen image, &c. thou ſhalt not bow downe to them, and worſhip them. Albeit drunkards cannot endure to kneele one halfe quarter of an houre in the Temple; yet they can be content to kneele and that on both knees, and thoſe bare, preſſing and anſwering healths in the Tauernes, either to their good Captaine, who many times is but a ſwaggerer; or elſe to their faire Miſtreſſe, who ſometimes is little better than a ſtrumpet; or elſe forſooth vnto their Soueraigne, vſing the deuils logicke, he that will not be drunken for Cæſar, is no friend to Cæſar. [f] Accuſationis occaſio eſt, adiuratum per Cæſarem frequentius non bibiſſe. This vngodly [g] deuotion and idolatrous adoration of He-ſaints, and She-ſaints, as they proteſt vnfainedly from the bottome of their heart, to the bottome of the cup, is ſo full of ſcandall and ſcorne, that there can be but little difference betweene a drunkard, in vpholding his wine-worſhip, and a Papiſt in obſeruing his will-worſhip.

[f] Hieron com. in Tit.
[g] Vide Ambroſ. lib. de Elia, c. 17.

As for the third Commandement; a drunkard alway blaſphemeth God in his workes, often in his words. It is an old prouerbe, Shew me a lier, and I will ſhew thee a theefe: ſo ſhew me a ſwaggerer, and I will inſtantly ſhew thee a ſwearer. For when once he begins to ſeeme to himſelfe, valde diſertus, a very fine man, fœcundi calices cùm iam fecere diſertum: he will talke of God moſt, although he thinke of him leaſt. It is recorded in the [h] Goſpels hiſtorie, that the diſpoſſeſſed deuils intreated Chriſt that he would ſuffer them to goe into ſwine; becauſe the chiefe place of the deuils reſidence, is the ſoule of the ſwilling drunkard. [i] In dry places he finds no reſt, [k] that is, in a ſober minde he gets no footing; he dwels in low countries and in wet ground, in ſuch as are filled with wine. Now when the Spirit of God is gone, which ſhould direct their ſpeech and guide their thoughts, and Satan is entred in and taken poſſeſſion of their houſe; then vndoubtedly the doore of their lips is ſhut vp from Gods praiſe, but open as hell mouth alway to ſweare vainly, to forſweare villanouſly.

[h] Matth. 8. 31.
[i] Matth. 12. 43.
[k] Bonauent. dict. ſalut. cap. 29.

Touching the ſanctifying of the Sabbath inioyned in the fourth Commandement; an Alehouſe in a Pariſh is ordinarily the deuils chappell; while Gods congregation is chaunting in the Church, boon companions are chatting in the Tauerne, Tauerne, hauing their Letanie, Gospels and Epistles, in derision of our common Prayers, and the welch Sermon in scorne of our preaching: [l] so that they more dishonour God, and serue better the deuill on Sunday, than all the dayes of the weeke beside.

[l] Church hom. concerning the time and place of prayer.

The fifth commandement requires honour to fathers
- Oeconomicall
  - Parents.
  - Husbands.
  - Masters.
- Politicall,
  - Betters in office.
  - Elders in yeares.
- Ecclesiasticall,
  - Tutors.
  - Pastors.
  - Prelates.

Now the drunkard in this habit of sinne dishonoureth all at once, disobeying the counsell of his Parent, commandement of his Master, statutes of his Prince, direction of his Elder, lesson of this Tutor, exhortation of his Preacher, discipline of his Prelate. Scandalizing also by these lewd courses his mother the Colledge, his mother the Vniuersitie, his mother the Church.

Against the sixth Commandement a drunkard offends more principally two wayes: First, in [m] ruinating the state of his owne bodie by disorder aud intemperance.

[n] Vna salus sanis nullam potare salutem,
Non est in pota vera salute salus.

[m] Vide Ambros. lib. de Elia. c. 16.
[n] Owin Epigram. Vt Venus eneruat vires, sic copia Bacchi Virg.
[o] Horat.

Secondly, being apt in this humour to stab other, according to that of Virgil: Bacchus ad arma vocat. And as another antient [o] Poet, In prælia trudit inermem. [p] Alexander the Great being drunken, killed his deare friend Clitus, for whose life when he was sober, he would haue giuen halfe his Empire. The records of our Courts afford innumerable presidents in this kinde, in so much as the common epithet to quarrelling is drunken, as a drunken fight, or a drunken fray, neque enim faceret hæc sobrius vnquam, for no man in his right wits admitteth of any such desperate courses.

[p] Church hom. against drunkennesse.

The drunkard is occasioned to breake the seuenth Commandement by his large commons, and lewd companions. For the first, [q] after drunkennesse ensueth chambering, after chambering wantonnesse, [r] pro membrorum ordine ordo vitiorum est: and as [s] Luther excellently, gula soror est, immo irritamentum & porcus, & minister luxuriæ. For temetum, [t] some conceit, is so called, eo quod tentet, and [u] vinum ab implendo venas: examples hereof in Scriptures are the Sodomits, Herod, Lot, Dauid, and in our [x] Chronicle Vortigerius.

[q] Rom. 13. 13.
[r] Hieron epist. Amando.
[s] Lec. com. tit. de libidin. bus.
[t] Perottus in Cornucop.
[u] Isidor. etym. lib. 20. cap. 32.
[x] Polydor. Anglicav. hist. lib. 3. pag. 56.

Secondly, the drunkard is incited to the sinne of incontinence by lewd companie: for although an Inne was called in old time [y] propina, and of late corruptly popina, of the Greeke πίνω, signifying hunger, because Tauerne-houses were first erected only for the necessarie refection of trauellers and strangers, and not for idle meetings of neighbours: yet afterward they became places of notorious riot and excesse; in so much, that the [z] Wiseman said expresly, Two things are hard and perilous, a Marchant cannot lightly keepe him from wrong, and a Victualler is not without sinne. And it is well obserued out of the second Chapter of Iosua vers. 1. that the word in Hebrew vsed for an Hostesse, signifieth an Harlot also, the messengers of Ioshua went into an harlots house, that is, saith our English glosse, into a Tauerne-house, and in Latine stabulum is an Inne, and prostibulum a whore. Now the filthy communication and vncomely gestures vsuall in such places, and among such persons, are so great motiues vnto sinne, that as Martin Luther was wont to say, It is as strange a miracle for a man to conuerse with such and not to burne with lust, as it was for the three children to be in the fierie furnace and not to be scorched. [a] For can a man take fire in his bosome, and his clothes not be burnt? or can a man goe vpon coles, and his feet not hurt? [b] Pascitur libido conuiuijs, nutritur delicijs, vino accenditur, ebrietate flammatur. In these two respects I may pronounce with [c] Hierome, Nunquam ego ebrium putabo castũ.

[y] Isidor. etym. lib. 15 cap. 1.
[z] Eccle. 26 30.
[a] Prou. 6. 27. 28
[b] Ambros. de pœnit lib 1. cap. 14.
[c] Com. in Tit. 1.

Adulterers

Adulterers and drunkards are of ſuch affinitie, [d] that in ebrietatem amans, & in amorem ebrius proclivis admodum, a wonton will eaſily turne drunkard, and a drunkard as ſoone become wanton.

As for the eighth Commandement: he that is drunken with wine, firſt is a theefe to himſelfe in his exceſſiue riot, and then being in need is occaſioned to ſteale from others alſo. Drunkenneſſe is [e] regius morbus, a coſtly ſinne, for he that draweth his patrimonie through his [f] throat, eating and drinking more in an houre then he is able to earne in a whole weeke, muſt in fine come to beggerie: Prouer. 23.21. The drunkard and the glutton ſhall be poore, and the ſleeper ſhall be cloathed with ragges. He doth caſt his houſe ſo long out of the window, that as [g] Diogenes ſaid, at the laſt his houſe doth caſt him out of the doore, hauing left nothing rich except a rich noſe. The prodigall childe waſtfull in the beginning of his iourney, was in the end ſo needie, that he was deſirous to be fellow commoner with [h] ſwine. Diogenes derided a young riotous gallant, who ſpent ſo much at dinner that he had nothing but a Raddiſh root for his ſupper. In a word, the moſt ordinary progreſſe of a meane man giuen ouer to tipling is nothing elſe but this, from luxury to [i] beggery, from beggery to theeuery, from Holborne to Tyburne from the alehouſe to the gallowes.

As for the ninth Commandement: [k] Auguſtine makes eight kinde of lies, which [l] other haue reduced vnto three, mendacium officioſum, iocoſum, malicioſum.

And theſe may be contracted into two, to wit, a {merrie / very} lie.

All which a drunkard hath at his fingers ends: for the merry lie, cogging and ieſting are the chiefe props of his tottering eſtate. And as for malitious lies, if he be on his Ale-bench, and ſit downe in the ſeat of the ſcornfull, he will, as [m] Auguſtus Ceſar once, tax the whole world, pratling of Prieſt and Clearke, yea Prince and people, cenſureth all he knoweth, often more then he knoweth. He will not ſpare his other ſelfe, his beſt ſelfe, his owne ſelfe. Bacchus is painted by the Poets vſually naked: [n] hereby ſignifying that a drunkard reueales all the ſecrets of his heart, [o] quicquid eſt in corde ſobrij, eſt in lingua ebrij. The which is a moſt odious fault in ciuilitie: for who will familiarly conuerſe with ſuch a dolt as can neither keepe his owne nor his friends counſell? In vino veritas helps him not a whit; for ſeeing all truths are not to be told at all times, he may beare falſe witneſſe when he makes a true report, becauſe the meaning of the commandement is, that we ſhould not moue any tales either falſe or true, whereby the credit of our neighbour is loſt or leſſened: but that on the contrarie we ſhould endeauour by all meanes poſſible to maintaine his honeſt reputation among vs. And therefore the gabling drunkard in mouing many falſe pratles, and ſo making many foule quarrels, offendeth againſt the ninth Commandement eſpecially.

The naming of the laſt Commandement is enough, he that is guiltie of the fact, of neceſſitie muſt be acceſſarie to the motion. And therefore to conclude this euidence, euen as a Generall that beſiegeth a Cittie, laboureth eſpecially to gaine the Tower or the Caſtle, knowing that if he poſſeſſe it, he ſhall inſtantly command the whole Towne: ſo likewiſe the deuill, who daily doth aſſault our little Citie, plots how he may be poſſeſſed of our Capitoll and Sconce, being aſſured that if our head be tipling, our eyes will be wonton, our tongue blaſphemous, our throat an open ſepulchre, our hands ready to ſtab, our feet ſwift to ſhed bloud: in briefe, all our members at his ſeruice to become [p] weapons of vnrighteouſneſſe, to commit all manner of ſinne euen with gredineſſe. And ſo the drunkard is like mare mortuum; as no fiſh can liue in the one, ſo no vertue in the other, [q] abominatur à Deo, deſpicitur ab Angelis, deridetur ab hominibus, deſtituitur virtutibus, confunditur à dæmonibus, conculcatur ab omnibus.

But the foulenеſſe of this vnhappy ſinne will appeare yet to be greater, if we conſider it according to our ſeuerall eſtates, as we are {Men. / Ciuill men. / Chriſtian men. / Collegiate men. / Clergie men.}

If

[d] Heliodor. Æthiop. hiſt. lib 13.

[e] Bonauent. diet ſalut. cap. 8. [f] Church hom. againſt drunkenneſſe.

[g] Luſcinus in ſalibus & iocis.

[h] Luke 15.16.

[i] ἄσωτος quia perditus & nihil ſibi & ſuis ſeruans Zanch. in loc.

[k] lib. de mendac. ad conſent. cap 14.

[l] Lombard ſen. l. 3. diſt. 38. & gloſſ. in Pſal. 5.

[m] Luke 2.1.

[n] Fulgentius mytholog lib. 2. fab. de Dionyſio.

[o] Plutarch. lib. de garrulitate.

[p] Rom. 6.13.

[q] Auguſtin.

If we conſider our ſelues as men, we ſhall eaſily ſee that drunkenneſſe maketh vs no men. [r] Demens ebrietas, it is a voluntary madneſſe, whereby men depriued of their vſe of reaſon are like horſe and mule without vnderſtanding. Hanc qui habet, ſeipſum non habet, he that hath this ſinne hath loſt himſelfe, and is become [s] rather a beaſt than a man, nay [t] worſe then a beaſt, for we cannot enforce a beaſt to drinke more then he need: [u] eſt voluntarius dæmon, a drunkard as it is in our Engliſh prouerbe will play the deuill.

[x] Quæris quis ſit homo ebrioſus? atque
Nullus eſt homo Mæuole ebrioſus.

Secondly, if we conſider our ſelues as ciuill men, this one ſinne ouerthroweth all the foure cardinall and chiefe vertues. As Iuſtice, for how ſhall any man doe right vnto other, who cannot doe reaſon vnto himſelfe? Prudence, which is often drowned in this ſincke, and eſpecially maintained by moderate diet, as the [y] Philoſpher intimates in the word σωφροσύνη to be quaſi σώζουσα τὴν φρόνησιν. Temperance, for foulenеſſe of body followeth ordinarily [z] fulneſſe of bread. Fortitude, for as [a] S. Ambroſe notably, Quos manè inſignes armis ſpectaueras, vultu minaces, eoſdem veſperi cernas etiam à puerulis rideri, ſine ferro vulneratos, ſine pugna interfectos, ſine hoſte turbatos, ſine ſenectute tremulos. [b] Holoſernes hauing loſt his wit in wine, loſt his head alſo by the hand of a ſillie woman. And that of a moderne Poet is memorable, de duce Dipontino.

Pons ſuperauit aquas, ſuperarunt pocula pontem,
Febre tremens peryt, qui tremor orbis erat.

Thirdly, if we conſider our ſelues as Chriſtian men, [c] he that liueth in pleaſure is dead while he liueth: ergo, ſaith [d] Hierome, a drunkard is not onely dead, but buried in his ſinne alſo. There be many [e] woes denounced againſt him in this, and moe woes executed on him in the next life. For I tell you (ſaith the Apoſtle) that they who doe ſuch things ſhall neuer inherit the kingdome of God, Gal. 5. 21, ἄσωτος, [f] quòd non poſſit σώζεσθαι ſeruari.

Fourthly, if we conſider our ſelues as ſchollers, our honourable founders in great wiſdome foreſeeing the manifold inconueniences of tipling in Students, ordained that we ſhould haue but a ſpare diet in the Colledge, and forbade all exceſſiue riot and inordinate commeſſatiation in the towne. A Gentleman hearing that his ſonne at Vniuerſity was giuen to dicing, anſwered, that want of money would occaſion him haply to leaue that fault. Afterward vnderſtanding that he was giuen to whoring, ſaid, that either marriage or old age would one day cure that folly. But when he was informed of his [g] wine bibbing, out vpon the villaine (ſaid the father) I will ſurely diſinherit him, for that fault will increaſe with his yeeres. A gameſter will continue ſo long as his purſe laſts, an adulterer ſo long as his loynes laſt, but a drunkard ſo long as his lungs and life laſt.

Fiftly, if we conſider our ſelues as Clergie-men, he that is giuen to [h] wine ſhould not be made Biſhop, and if any Prelate or Prieſt after conſecration become a wine bibber, ebrietatibus vacans, aut ceſſet aut deponatur, as it is in the 42. Canon of the Apoſtles, according to the computation of Theodorus Balſamon. And by the ſeuenth iniunction of Queene Elizabeth, Eccleſiaſticall perſons are forbidden haunting of Alehouſes and Tauernes. I know Paul may meet his acquaintance at the market of Appius, and at the three Tauernes, Acts 28. 15. but this ought to bee for his honeſt neceſſities, as the former Iniunction intimates, and not to keepe ranke riot at vnlawfull houres. He that is irregular in this kinde, after admonition and warning, is worthy to be ſuſpended [i] ab officio & beneficio. A great gallant hauing prouided a great feaſt for his neighbours, deſired the pariſh Prieſt to waſh firſt and to ſit downe laſt: hereby ſignifying (ſaith mine [k] Author) that Clergie-men ought to be primo mundi, ſed poſtremo ebrij. Thus as you ſee, by ſurfetting and exceſſe [l] vina are made venena, that is, in the word of holy [m] Scripture, the wine of drunkards is ſo bitter as the poyſon of Dragons, and the cruell gall of Aſpes. In ſome reſpect worſe, ſaith [n] Ambroſe, then

[r] Virgil. Epigram. de Venere & vino.
[s] Chryſoſt in Act hom. 27.
[t] Dadræus loc. com. tit ebrietas.
[u] Chryſoſt. ad pop. Antioch. hom 1.
[x] Beza Epigram.
[y] Ariſt. ethic. lib. 6.
[z] Ezech. 16. 49
[a] Lib. de Elia, cap. 13.
[b] Iudith 13. 2. 1
[c] 1 Tim. 5. 6.
[d] Epiſt. Oceano tom. 2. fol. 324.
[e] Eſay 5. 11. Ioel 1. 5. Prou. 23. 29.
[f] Phauorinus apud Zanch. in loc.
[g] Morall vpon Ariſt. Orlando furioſo, lib 35.
[h] 1 Tim. 3. 3.
[i] Vide Balſam. in Apoſt. can. 42 & Photium. Tit. 9 cap. 27. & 35.
[k] Menſa philoſophica ſab. de milite.
[l] Ambroſ de Elia. cap. 14.
[m] Deut 32. 33.
[n] Vbi ſupra.

then any venome; for the moſt deadly poiſon hath holpen many, whereas the drunkards potion heales none, but hurts all, a root of much euill, a rot of euery vertue.

Preached at S. Maries in Cambridge on Whitſunday, Anno 1602. The remnant of this Text concerning Pſalmes, and Hymnes, and ſpirituall Songs, is expounded Epiſt. Sund. 5. after Epiphany.

The Goſpell. MATTH. 22. 1. vnto v. 15

Ieſus ſaid vnto his Diſciples, the kingdome of heauen is like vnto a man that was a King, which made a great marriage for his ſonne, &c.

THis Goſpell in [o] effect is all one with that appointed to be read on the ſecond Sunday after Trinitie: [p] both teach one point, and tend to one purpoſe. Wherefore, leſt I ſeeme double diligent, I refer you to my large notes vpon that other Text, and intreat you to be content with a ſhort paraphraſe for the preſent.

The kingdome of heauen] The Church militant on earth, is this kingdome of heauen, I ſay militant, and that for [q] two reaſons eſpecially: firſt, becauſe this mariage feaſt is called a dinner, verſ. 4. and after dinner there followeth another banquet, namely the ſupper of the lambe, Apocal. 19 9. This dinner then is a feaſt of grace, that ſupper a feaſt of glory. Secondly, becauſe none can be thruſt out of the Church in heauen triumphant: many croud vnto Gods dinner in the militant without any wedding garment or bridelace: but at the laſt day when he ſhall come to view his gueſts, he will caſt them out of the wedding chamber, into vtter darkneſſe, as it is in the 13. verſe. The Church vnder the Croſſe then is this kingdome, gathered together by preaching of the Goſpell, [r] a choſen generation, a royall prieſthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people. Not kingdomes in the plurall, but in the ſingular a kingdome, as being gouerned by one and the ſame Lord, vnder one and the ſame law. And it is a kingdome of heauen, as being the way to the kingdome of heauen, becauſe, ſaith [s] Auguſtine, per portam eccleſiæ intramus in portam paradiſi. And a kingdome of heauen, for that her [t] conuerſation is in heauen, and her [u] affections ſet on things aboue. The ſynagogues of Satan are a kingdome of darkneſſe, the Church a kingdome of light. [x] For as in heauen ſome bodies giue light and receiue none, as the Sunne: other receiue light and giue none, as the firmament: other both receiue and giue, as the Starres and Moone: ſo Chriſt in the Church, is the [y] father of light, and the ſunne of righteouſneſſe, Malac. 4. 2. giuing light vnto [z] all, and receiuing light from none. The lay people reſemble the firmament, called to receiue light in the publike preaching of the word, and not to giue light except it be candle-light in their owne priuate families. Indeed there be many blazing Starres and prodigious Comets in this our heauen, but ſuch are not properly lights, but fires; as the Philoſopher, ignes fatui. The Preachers of the word are ſtarres in the firmament, firſt receiuing light from Chriſt, and then communicating it to other, as the words of their Patent import, Mat. 5. 14. Ye are the light of the world.

This King is God the [a] Father, a King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, able to doe [b] whatſoeuer he will in heauen, in earth, and in hell. As one doth gloſſe my text, Regens in cœlo per gloriam, in mundo per gratiam, in inferno per iuſtitiam. His Sonne the Bridegroome is [c] Chriſt, and his Bride the Church, and God made this marriage by Chriſts [d] incarnation. [e] For as the beſt way to reconcile two diſagreeing families or enemy-kingdomes, is to make ſome mariage betweene them: euen ſo the Word became [f] fleſh and dwelt among vs in the world, that he might hereby make our [g] peace, reconciling God to man, and man to God. At this great mariage dinner the [h] Bridegroome himſelfe is the beſt diſh, euen the body

[o] Marlorat. Panigarol. in loc.
[p] B. Latymer ſerm vpon this Goſpell.
[q] Iacob. de Vorag ſer. 1. in loc.
[r] 1 Pet. 2. 9.
[s] Serm. 136. de temp.
[t] Philip. 3. 20.
[u] Coloſſ. 3. 2.
[x] Iacob. de Vorag vbi ſupra.
[y] Iames 1. 17.
[z] Iohn 1. 9.
[a] Euthym. Anſelm.
[b] Pſal. 135. 6.
[c] Epheſ. 5. 32.
[d] Greg. hom. 38.
[e] Ardens.
[f] Iohn 1. 14.
[g] Epheſ. 2. 14. 16
[h] B. Latymer.

body and bloud of Christ preached in his word, and presented in his Sacraments. And albeit this feast especially concerne the Iew, [i] yet appertaineth it vnto all, as begunne in the [k] beginning of the world, and enduring to the end of the same. The Patriarkes and Prophets in old time, the Preachers and Pastors in our time, call and inuite men euery day to this marriage. The latter course at this feast, or the [l] sweet meats, are remission of sinnes, euerlasting life; such ioy as no tongue can expresse, or heart conceiue. The time when the King commeth in to see his guests, is either the particular houre of our [m] death, or else the generall day of [n] iudgement, when he shall separate the reprobate from his Elect, Matth. 13.40. and 25.32. God is euery where, seeing all things alway; [o] yet that hereby Iudges may learne not to condemne any, but vpon good information; Almighty God said of Sodome, I will goe downe now, and see whether they haue done altogether according to that cry which is come vnto me, Gen. 18.21. and of Babel, Come, let vs goe downe, Gen. 11.17. and here the King is said to come in among his guests, and to spie the man which had not on a wedding garment, afore he commanded him to be bound hand and foot, and to be cast into vtter darknesse.

The wedding garment, as [p] some thinke, is Christ: or as [q] other. the new man: or as other, [r] obseruing of the Commandements of Christ: or as other, a [s] pure conuersation: or as other, an vpright heart, comming to the marriage [t] rather out of dutie, then for a dinner: or as other, [u] charitie: or as other, [x] grace: or as other, [y] faith: or as other, [z] regeneration, consisting in faith and repentance. All which vpon the point are the very [a] same: so that (as [b] our Diuines obserue) the question is idle whether faith or godly life be this garment, because good workes alway proceed from faith, and faith alway sheweth it selfe by good workes. Hypocrites are they who want the wedding garment, [c] professing that they know God, but in their workes denying him.

But it is a more darke Probleme, how the King when he came to see the guests, found but one without a wedding garment, and how that one may be called his friend. [d] Answer may be, that all reprobate sinners are called one, because they will be of one kinde, namely faithlesse: or one, because the root of all sinne did proceed from [e] one: or one, because [f] he that faileth in one point is guiltie of all: or one, to shew the quicke sight of God, who can, if there be but one hypocrite among many, soone spie him: or one, [g] because many such hypocrites are lesse esteemed then one righteous man: Ecclesiasticus 16.3. One that is iust, is better then a thousand vngodly children: or one, to shew that at Christs own Table there was one Iudas among the blessed Apostles, as [h] some construe it. And this one whosoeuer he be, may be called a friend, [i] for that he did seeme by profession a friend: or a friend, ex parte Dei, calling him vnto the marriage, [k] willing that all men should be saued, and come to the knowledge of the truth. He was [l] vsed by the King as his friend, but in comming without a wedding garment he was [m] foe to himselfe: or friend in derision; as if he should say, You are a kinde friend indeed to come in hither without your wedding apparell, and bride-lace: for the Scriptures admit of Ironies, Gen. 3.9. Adam, where art thou? or a friend, for that he was [n] once a friend, as Simon is tearmed the [o] Leper, for that he was a Leper: and Matthew the [p] Publican, for that he was a Publican: and Hierusalem a sinke of sinne, the holy Citie, for that it was once holy, Matth. 27.35. In reporting these different opinions I will imitate the sage Iudges of our Law, who sometime determine to heare, not heare to determine.

[i] Melancthon.
[k] Gen. 3.15. The seed of the woman, &c.
[l] B Latimer.
[m] Panigarol.
[n] Hieron. Musculus.
[o] Thomas in Gen. 18. Idem Panigarol. & Cosler. in loc.
[p] Origen.
[q] Euseb. Emiss.
[r] Hieron.
[s] Euthym.
[t] Aretius.
[u] Ardens.
[x] Gregor.
[y] Kilius.
[z] Melanct.
[a] Panigarol.
[b] Caluin. Fulke. Zepper.
[c] Tit. 1.16.
[d] See Panigarol. part. 1. hom in loc.
[e] Rom. 5.19.
[f] Iames 2.10.
[g] Cosler. in loc. ,, ,, [h] Theophilus, Alexan. apud Panigarol. vbi supra.
[i] Euthym.
[k] 1 Tim. 2.4.
[l] Hieron.
[m] Cosler.
[n] Panigarol.
[o] Matth. 26.6.
[p] Matth. 10.3.

The Epistle. Ephes. 6.10. vnto v. 21

My brethren be strong through the Lord, &c.

THe life of man is a [q] warfare on earth, and euery Christian is a professed souldier, hauing [r] fightings without, and terrours within. He must therefore learne

[q] Iob 7.1.
[r] 2 Cor. 5.7.

learne two things especially: first, how to chuse his armes: and secondly, how to vse them. Our Apostle doth instruct him here concerning both. As for the choice, the [f] defensiue weapons are the girdle of veritie, brest-plate of righteousnesse, shooes of preparation, shield of faith, helmet of salvation. Offensiue, the sword of the spirit, which is the word of God. As for their vse, Paul aduiseth vs also to put them on, and to put them all on, and so to put on the whole armour, as that we may stand in all good, and withstand all euill. All which is implied in the 11. ver. containing a proclamation ad arma, put on all the armour of God. Aud a reason, that ye may stand, &c.

In the proclamation foure points are remarkable:
1. Euery Christian is charged with armour.
2. This armour must be Gods armour.
3. Panoplia, compleat armour, all the whole armour of God.
4. This compleat armour must not only be shewed abroad, or hung vp at home: but vsed and imployed daily, put on.

The reason hereof is manifest and manifold: first, that we may be able to [t] stand in battell. Secondly, that we may so stand, as that we may withstand. Thirdly, that we may so withstand, as that we may foile our enemies assaulting as well as retiring. Fourthly, that we may repell not only some few, but all assaults. Fiftly, all assaults not only of the flesh and the world, but of the deuill also, which is the Prince of darknesse, and generall Commanders of all forces against vs in these spirituall skirmishes, [a] Olofernes being slaine, his souldiers instantly fled. [x] If we conquer the rulers and gouernours of the darknesse of this world, we shall easily discomfit their followers and instruments. If we cast the [y] rider, his horse will instantly be taken and tamed. Euery Christian ought to put on the resolution of Captaine [z] Ferras, alway bearing armes against the greatest Emperour of the world, wrestling not against bloud and flesh only, but against principalities, against powers, against spirituall craftinesse in heauenly things.

For the first point: armour is necessary, whether we consider our owne weakenesse, or our enemies strength. Our weakenesse, as being vnapt and vnable by nature to [a] thinke so much as a good thought, and therefore we must be strong through the Lord, [b] who giueth his souldiers power and might, [c] teaching our hands to warre, and our fingers to fight. It is reported of [d] Traian, that he would cut in peeces his owne garments, rather then his souldiers should want a ragge to binde vp their wounds: but our Captaine Christ hath giuen vnto such as march vnder his banner his owne flesh, and his owne selfe, willing vs not onely to put on his armour, but also to [e] put on himselfe, that we may be strong through the power of his might, who can doe whatsoeuer he will, and will doe whatsoeuer is best for all his followers. Againe, we need armes in respect of our enemies, as being many, mightie, cunning in plotting, cruell in executing.

1. Many, [f] for these gouernours and Princes haue many souldiers and subiects vnder them, [g] improbos spiritus, & homines pessimos, an [h] infinite number, against a little flocke and an handfull of people.

2. Mightie, for we wrestle not against flesh and bloud, [i] that is, not simply with flesh and bloud; or [k] only, for then [l] one sword should be so long as another, and one man so strong as another: but we fight men against deuils, euen weaklings against powers and principalities, as it were silly Lambes against roaring Lions.

3. Cunning in plotting, as being spirituall and inuisible, fighting so craftily, [m] that we know not on which side they will assault. Satan in the beginning was a [n] Serpent for his subtiltie, but now being indued with almost six thousand yeeres experience, is become a Dragon and an old Serpent, Apocal. 20. 2. Cui nomina mille, mille nocendi artes, quoth [o] Hierome. Such a [p] circumuenting enemie, that being a Prince of darknesse, he can [q] transforme himselfe into an Angell of light. Auarice is a worke of darknesse, peeuishnesse a worke of darknesse, inordinate drinking a worke of darknesse. But he doth couer and cloake these with armour of light, insinuating that couetousnesse is commendable thrift, obstinacie noble

[f] Zanchius.

[t] For so long as a man standeth in battell he is well; if he fall downe, then in ieopardie. B. Latymer vpon this epist.
[a] Iudith 15. 1.
[x] Lombard. in loc.
[y] Anselm.
[z] Pareneticall Treatise to the Princes of Europe, pag. 26.

[a] 2 Cor. 3. 5.
[b] Lombard.
[c] Psal 144. 1.
[d] Xiphilin. in vita Traiani.

[e] Rom. 13. 14.

[f] Kilius.
[g] Aretius.
[h] Eccles. 1. 15.
[i] Zanchius.
[k] Lombard. Aquin.
[l] Marlorat.
[m] Anselm.
[n] Gen. 3. 1.

[o] Ad Heliodor. de vita Eremitica.
[p] 2 Cor. 2. 11.
[q] 2 Cor. 11. 14.

noble reſolution, and drunkenneſſe a point of good fellowſhip. Groſſe wickednesſe is eaſily ſeene, and preuented ſoone: but our chiefe aduerſaries abound with ſpirituall wickednesſe and inuiſible craftineſſes, and their ordinarie ſouldiers are in their generation [r] wiſer then the children of light.

4. Cruell in executing and proſecuting; Sathan is an [f] accuſer of his brethren, and a [t] murtherer from the beginning, called in holy Scripture a Lion for his might, and a roring Lion for his malice, ſeeking daily whom he may deuoure, 1 Peter 5.8. Now theſe deſcriptions are ſet downe not that we ſhould faint, [u] but rather encouraging vs to fight. For ſeeing our enemies are [x] ſuperbia tumidi, inanidentia luxuriâ, fallacia callidi, à iuſtitia penitus alieni, ſo many, ſo mightie, ſo malicious, ſo craftie, ſo willing and able to hurt vs, it behoueth euery man to be well appointed and armed, that he may be able to reſiſt in the euill day.

The ſecond point obſerued in the Proclamation, is, that our armour muſt be Gods armour, not armour of the fleſh, for [y] curſed is the man that maketh fleſh his arme. Not armour of the world, for our enemies are worldly gouernours, and the chiefe of them is [z] the Prince of the world. [a] Some put their truſt in Chariots, and other in horſes, but we will remember the name of the Lord our God. Nor armour of the deuill, for then we ſhall haue nothing but his leauings. His armour is Popiſh exorciſme, ſuperſtitious croſſing, holy water, and the like: which he little feareth, as being framed in his owne ſhop, and giuen vs at his appointment. The weapons of our warfare are not [b] carnall, but mightie through God to caſt downe holds. Againſt ſpirituall harmes we muſt vſe [c] ſpirituall armes; againſt the works of darkneſſe we muſt [d] put on armour of light, [e] that is, vertues againſt vices, as being veſtimenta put on, munimenta armour, ornamenta of light. Let vs then if the deuill at any time tempt to cruelty, pride, impatience; put on [f] tender mercy, kindneſſe, humbleneſſe of minde, meekneſſe, long-ſuffering, &c. as it is in the preſent Epiſtle, we muſt arme our ſelues with the breſt-plate of righteouſneſſe againſt iniquitie, with the girdle of truth againſt hereſie, with the helmet of ſaluation againſt deſpaire, with the ſhield of faith againſt infidelitie. The deuill is myſtically that huge Leuiathan, eſteeming [g] yron as ſtraw, and braſſe as rotten wood; when the ſword doth touch him he will not riſe vp, and he laugheth at the ſhaking of the ſpeare, in the earth there is none like him, he feares not our fleſhly weapons, or worldly weapons, and therefore that we may ſtand againſt his force, we muſt put on the armour of God, and dwell vnder the [h] defence of the moſt high.

The third thing conſidered in the proclamation, is that we put on [i] all Gods armour, or the whole armour of God, as it is verſe 13. If we ſhould arme our head only, the deuill haply would ſtrike at the foot: if the foot only, then he might hurt our head: if both, and leaue our breaſt vnarmed, he might wound vs at the heart. Wherefore that we may repell all aſſaults of the deuill, we muſt [k] tanquam milites cataphracti, put on all the armour of God. I cannot examine euery particular weapon in this Armorie, learne only three points of warre in the whole.

Firſt, that Paul here makes no mention of a backe Curate for the Chriſtian ſouldier. There is an helmet for the head, a corſlet for the breaſt; in a word, a ſhield for all the fore-parts, only no guard, no regard of the hinder. It is a compleat armour, and yet without any defence for the backe: ſignifying hereby that euery Chriſtian ought to keepe his [l] ſtation in Gods army, neuer forſaking the banner of Chriſt, vntill death his [m] laſt enemy be deſtroied. It is [n] written of Bias falling into the hands of his enemies, and his ſouldiers crying, what ſhall we doe? that he did anſwer, Report ye to the liuing that I die fighting, and I will report to the dead that ye did eſcape flying. When [o] William the Conquerour had landed at Pemſey neere to Haſtings in Suſſex, he cauſed all his ſhips to be ſunke, that all hope of flying backe might be taken away. The Numantine would rather die then flie; ſo the Chriſtian warriour muſt continue [p] faithfull vnto the end, like [q] Samſon killing enemies at his death, as well as in his life.

[r] Mars dubius, victorq́, cadit, victuſq́, reſurgit.
Qui fugit, huic merito nulla corona datur.

[r] Luke 16. 8.
[f] Apoc 12. 10.
[t] Iohn 8. 44
[u] Caluin. Ballinger. Kilius.
[x] Auguſtin. de Ciuit. l. 8. c. 22.
[y] Ierem. 17. 5.
[z] Iohn 12. 31.
[a] Pſal. 20.
[b] 2 Cor 10. 4.
[c] Primaſius.
[d] Rom. 13. 12.
[e] Aquin.
[f] Coloſſ. 3. 12.
[g] Iob 41.
[h] Pſal 19. 1.
[i] Sarcerius. B. Latymer. Marlorat.
[k] Aretius.
Zuichius.
[m] 1 Cor. 15. 26
[n] Gueuara.
[o] Reſtitution of decaied intelligence, pag 178
[p] Apocal 2. 10
[q] Iudges 16. 30
[r] Reuſner in Symbolis.

The ſecond remarkable point of warre is, that we muſt aboue all other weapons of defence take the ſhield of faith. And the reaſon hereof is plaine, becauſe the helmet couers only the head, the corſelet the breaſt, and the ſandall the foot: but a [f] ſhield couers all the body. Let vs then aboue all, or as [t] other read in all, vſe faith. In [u] all tentations and combats, [x] or in putting on all the weapons aforeſaid, haue a liuely faith and aſſured confidence, without which all the reſt haue no force. The ſword of the Spirit without faith, is no Scripture to thee, the girdle of veritie without faith, is no truth vnto thee, all thy righteouſneſſe without faith, is vnrighteouſneſſe. Seeing then it is impoſſible without faith either to pleaſe God, or reſiſt the deuill, in all, and aboue all vſe the ſhield of faith, wherewith ye may [y] not only reiect or auoid, but alſo quench all the tentations of the wicked, albeit they be [z] darts in reſpect of their ſharpneſſe, and fiery for their deſtroying, one ſinne [a] kindling another, as drunkenneſſe kindleth adulterie, and adulterie murther. All the world, ſaith Saint [b] Iohn, lieth in wickedneſſe, poſitus in maligno, [c] that is, in malo igne, ſet on fire by the deuill, here called the wicked, [d] as being author of all euill, and maſter of all the fierie workes in the world, Matth. 6. 13. and 13. 38. But be of good cheere, faith ouercommeth the world, 1 Iohn 5. 4. One ſhield of faith is able to beare, yea to beat off all the fierie darts of the wicked world, fleſh, and deuill.

The third point of warre is, that the Chriſtian ſouldier is armed with a ſword ſo well as with a buckler: and this ſword is the word of God, being [e] powerfull in operation and ſharper then any two edged ſword. [f] Sharpe in a literall, and ſharpe in a myſticall expoſition: or ſharpe in diſcourſing of things temporall, and ſharpe in teaching things eternall: or [h] acute in mouing vs to vertue, and acute in remouing vs from vice. Doth the fleſh intice thee to wantonneſſe? ſtrike with the ſword of the Spirit, Thou ſhalt not commit adulterie. Doth the world tempt thee to vanitie? ſtrike with the ſword of the Spirit, [i] loue not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man loue the world, the loue of the Father is not in him. Doth Satan aſſault thy faith, and tempt thee to ſuperſtition and idolatrie? ſtrike with the ſword of the Spirit, [k] Thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and him only ſhalt thou ſerue. Doth Death in the laſt houre of thy ſpirituall combat affright thee? ſtrike with the ſword of the Spirit, [l] Death is ſwallowed vp in victorie, the ſting of death is ſinne, and the ſtrength of ſinne is the Law: but thankes be vnto God which hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Ieſus Chriſt. [m] By the buckler of faith a Chriſtian ſouldier is able to defend himſelfe, by the ſword of the Spirit able to confound his enemie. So that our aduerſarie going about daily ſeeking whom he may deuoure, reioyceth exceedingly when either [n] Papiſts hinder the reading, or Atheiſts hurt the preaching of the word. As the [o] Philiſtians would not ſuffer a Smith in Iſrael, leſt the Hebrewes ſhould make them ſwords or ſpeares: [p] ſo the deuill cannot endure that wee ſhould heare Sermons, and read holy Scripture, leſt out of this ſhop we get armour to repell his aſſaults in the euill day.

The laſt obſeruable thing in the proclamation is, that a Chriſtian ought not only to know Gods armour, but alſo [q] put it on. For as it is not enough for the ſeruice of our Common-weale, that we keepe good weapons at home, or that we ſhew them at muſters abroad, except we haue skill and will (as occaſions of the State require) perſonally to ſerue with them: euen ſo, to haue the ſword of the Spirit ruſt at home, or ſometime to flouriſh a little with it abroad, is not ſufficient for the ſouldier of Chriſt, except he can and will vſe Gods armour, and ſtand in battell againſt all aſſaults of the deuill. As in Phyſicke the beſt preſcript can doe no good except it be taken: ſo the moſt compleat armour is no defence when as it is not worne. We muſt in aduerſitie put on patience, in proſperitie put on humbleneſſe of minde, at all times [r] aboue all theſe put on loue, giuing euery man his owne. If we will ouercome the princes of darkneſſe, we muſt put on the armour of light.

But obſerue here that we muſt vſe the weapons of God in the warres of God, againſt

[f] Zanchius.
[t] Vulgar Latin.
[u] Anſelm.
[x] Royard hom. 2. in loc.
[y] Caietan.
[z] Caluin.
[a] Lombard. Zanchius.
[b] 1 Epiſt. 5. 19.
[c] Royard. vbi ſupra.
[d] Sarcerius.
[e] Heb. 4. 12.
[f] Viues in Auguſt. lib. 14. de Ciuit. cap 12.
[g] Anſelm in Heb. 4.
[h] Aquin. lect. 2. Heb 4.
[i] 1 Iohn 2. 15.
[k] Matth. 4. 10.
[l] 1 Cor. 15. 54.
[m] Caluin.
[n] B. Latymer ſerm. vpon this Epiſtle.
[o] 1 Sam. 13. 19
[p] Sanchez in euangel. dom. 1. quadra. Con 5.
[q] Zanchius.
[r] Coloſſ. 3. 4.

againſt enemies of God onely, that we may ſtand againſt all aſſaults, and quench all the fierie darts of the deuill. Many men hit the ſouldiers of Chriſt, and hurt the friends of God with armour of God. As Heretikes fradulently cite Scriptures againſt Scriptures, and Fathers againſt Fathers, and ſo make God as it were fight againſt himſelfe. [f] Silla ſaid, ante frangendus hoſtis quàm vlciſcendus ciuis, our force muſt not be ſpent in priuate grudges againſt our brethren, but in the publike quarrell of the Goſpell againſt the common enemie. The Scorpions in [t] Caria when they ſting, kill home-bred people, but hurt not any ſtranger. On the contrarie, there be certaine little Snakes in Babylon which onely bite forreiners, and not inhabitants. It is a fooles fray to ſtrike him that is neereſt; [u] vndiſcreet Schiſmaticks vſing lies and libels, the weapons of the deuill in good cauſes, offend the Church as much as open Heretikes, imploying Gods armour in bad cauſes

In this our ſpirituall warfare we haue many great incouragements to fight valiantly: firſt, our weapons are good, a compleat armour: ſecondly, our Captaine is good, euen the Lord of hoſts, hauing all power and might: thirdly, our cauſe good. Now [x] Cauſa iubet melior ſuperos ſperare ſecundos.

[y] Frangit & attollit vires in milite cauſa.

Againe, the continuance of fight is little, but our reward great. In Rome the militarie age was from [z] ſeuenteene to fortie and ſix, or in dangerous times vntill fiftie. [a] The dayes of our age are threeſcore yeeres and ten, and in all this time there is no time for peace; we are legionum filij, borne in the field, and ſworne ſouldiers in our ſwadling clouts, alway bearing armes againſt the common enemie from our holy baptiſme to buriall. All which is called in the 13. verſe, the euill day: in regard of the ſharpneſſe [b] euill, in regard of the ſhortneſſe [c] a day. Now the ſouldiers reſolution is, aut ſors, aut mors, either victorie, the beginning of ioy, or elſe death, the end of miſerie. So the Chriſtian in this holy warre may comfort himſelfe:

[d] Aut cito mors veniet, aut victoria læta.

Either God will end our danger, or our dayes: and then we ſhall be no longer ſouldiers in armour, but gowne-men in [e] long white robes, hauing palmes in our hands, and [f] Crownes on our heads as conquerors, according to that of [g] Paul; I haue fought a good fight, and haue finiſhed my courſe, from henceforth is laid vp for me the crowne of righteouſneſſe, which the Lord the righteous Iudge ſhall giue me at that day, and not to me only, but vnto all them alſo that loue his appearing.

[f] Velleius hiſt. lib. 1.
[t] Apollonius in hiſt. mirabilibus.
[u] Mr Greenham in a Sermon at S. Maries in Cambridge vpon the comming out of Maria Magdelaine.
[x] Lucan.
[y] Propertius.
[z] Aulus Gellius lib. 10 cap. 28.
[a] Pſal 90. 10.
[b] Aquin. Anſelme. Zanchius.
[c] Oecuman.
[d] Horat.
[e] Apocal. 7 9.
[f] Apocal. 4. 4
[g] 2 Tim 4 7.

The Goſpell. IOHN 4. 46.

There was a certaine Ruler, whoſe ſonne was ſicke at Capernaum, &c.

THis Goſpell [h] teacheth vs, whither we ſhould flee for ſuccour in all the troubles of this life: namely, to the fountaine of all welfare Ieſus Chriſt. According to that of [i] Eſay; Yee ſhall draw water out of the wells of the Sauiour. To this Well a Chriſtian ought to come, not with feet, but with faith, and then [k] euery one that calleth vpon the name of the Lord ſhall be ſaued.

In the whole ſtorie you may behold foure principle perſons:
1. A louing father.
2. A ſicke ſonne.
3. A pitifull Sauiour.
4. Dutifull ſeruants.

In the father obſerue two things: his
- Great fortune, being Regulus, a little King, a Ruler.
- Great faith, hauing three [l] degrees, a
  - Beginning, in deſiring Chriſt to come downe and heale his ſonne.
  - Increaſe, in beleeuing the word that Ieſus had ſpoken.
  - Full growth, in that himſelfe ſimply beleeued and all his houſhold.

[h] Heming.
[i] Chap. 12. 3.
[k] Ioel 2. 32.
[l] Beda. Ludolphus. Panigarol.

As

As for the greatneſſe of his honour: [m] Origen thinkes he was of Caeſars familie. [n] Hierome, that he was a Palatine, haply controller of Herods houſe. [o] Ludolphus and Lyra, that he was Deputie Lieutenant of Galile, for Galile belonged vnto the iuriſdiction of Herod, Luk.23.7. [p] Other, that he was a ruler in Capernaum, where his ſonne was ſicke. What he was it is vncertaine now, for one generation paſſeth, and another generation ſucceedeth, Eccleſiaſtes 1.4. and the faſhion of this world goeth away, 1 Cor. 7.31. But it is certaine that he whilome was [q] either noble by deſcent, or degree; fauoured in the Court, honoured in the Countrie, a man of worth and qualitie. Which our Euangeliſt inſinuates in his ſtile, calling him a ruler, as alſo [r] for that he was attended well, his ſeruants met him, verſe 51. [s] Where note by the way, that it is not impoſſible for a great man to be a good man, or for Caeſars fauourite to be Chriſts follower. Almighty God hath elect children among all ſorts of people, Magdalen among harlots, Zacheus among oppreſſors, Matthew among Publicans, and here this ruler in Herods Court. Indeed [t] Bernard was wont to complaine that the Court is wont to receiue ſuch as are good, but to make them bad. Bonos facilius recipere quàm facere, nam plures in aula deſeciſſe bonos quàm proſeciſſe malos probauimus. And [u] Budaus ſaith all Courtiers muſt be like Camelions, accommodating themſelues vnto all companies, vt aſſentioni & aſſentationi ſcitè aſſeruiatur, reſembling an herbe called Tripolium, which (as [x] Antigonus reports) euery day changeth colour thrice, being ſometime white, ſometime violet, ſometime carnation. Apparent paraſites, [y] vno ore calidum & frigidum pro ſuis commodis efflare periti: creeping vp to honour through a [z] thouſand diſhonours.

[a] In aula Regis non eſt multum legis,
Si qui ſunt boni coguntur eſſe onoi,
Si qui ſunt mali ſunt in gratia regali.

And [b] another to the ſame purpoſe: Quo quis corruptior moribus, & corrumpentior muneribus, eò beatior. The Court is all for money, making [c] oxen to labour, and aſſes to feed. A mint of faſhions, an exchange of complements, a ſhame to ſhamefaſtneſſe, [d] omnis ſceleris mater nutrixq; nefandi. Yet notwithſtanding Ioſeph was a good man in the Court of Pharao, Daniel a good man in the Court of Darius, Mordecai a good man in the Court of Ahaſuerus, and this Ruler a good man in the Court of Herod.

The faith of this Ruler in the beginning was very weake: firſt, in [f] that he did not ſeeke vnto Chriſt vntill he was almoſt at his owne doore, as the context euidently, Ieſus came againe into Cana a towne of Galile, where he had made of water wine, and there was a certaine Ruler, &c. Secondly, [g] for that he did not entreat Chriſt to cure the ſinne ſo well as the ſickneſſe of his ſonne. Thirdly, for that he came not to Chriſt in the [h] beginning of his ſonnes infirmitie, but as we may gather, at ſuch a time when all other Phyſitians had forſaken him, euen at the point of death. Fourthly, all Interpreters obſerue, that he was [i] rudiſſimæ fidei & infantis, in beſeeching Chriſt to come downe and heale his ſonne, as if Chriſt being God could not as well haue holpen him abſent as preſent. Againe, when hee beleeued Chriſts ſaying, Goe thy way, thy ſonne liueth: his faith as yet was [k] infirme and full of wauering. [l] Otherwiſe he could neuer haue made ſuch a doubt, and asked ſuch a queſtion of his attendants, at what houre began he to amend? But when he knew certainly that his ſonne was healed miraculouſly by Chriſt, and not by caſuall or any naturall meanes, himſelfe and his whole family beleeued abſolutely. When he firſt heard of Chriſt, his faith was a very ſparke; when he beleeued Chriſt, it did kindle; but when he beleeued in Chriſt, it was a great flame, giuing light to his houſhold. So that our bleſſed Sauiour in vttering one word, healed [m] two, namely the fathers ſoule and the ſonnes body. Thus I haue ſhewed vnto you the faith of this old father, and the fruits therof: firſt, in being ſo carefull for his childe. Secondly, [n] for that in his affliction he went not for helpe to witches, as Saul, 1 Sam.28.8. nor to deuils, as Ahazia, 2 King.1.2. nor only to Phyſitians, as King Aſa, 2 Chron.16.12. but to Chriſt, and that in his owne perſon, although

[m] Apud Thom. in loc.
[n] In Eſaiæ cap. 65. circa prin.
[o] De vita Chriſti, part.2.ca.63
[p] See Muſculus & Maldonat. in loc.
[q] Theophylact. Euthym. Eraſmus.
[r] Origen apud Thom. in loc.
[s] Aretius. Marlorat. Zepperus.
[t] De Conſid. lib.4.
[u] Lib.5. de aſſe.
[x] In mirabilibus narrat.
[y] Magdebur. epiſt præfix. Cent.7.
[z] Seneca Per mille indignitates in conſummationem dignitatis.
[a] Hippolitus à Collibus, in Auſico politico.
[b] Sarisbur in policrat.
[c] Iob 1.14.
[d] Beza in epitaph Secret. Reg. Gall.
[f] Chryſoſt hom. 34. in Ioan. Idem Hugo Card & alij.
[g] Muſculus. Pontan.
[h] Panigarol.
[i] Brentius apud Marlorat. in loc.
[k] See Panigar. part.1.hom.in loc.
[l] Auguſt.tract. 16. in Ioan. Idem Leontius apud Maldonat. in loc.
[m] Cyrillus.
[n] See Zepper. Con.1. & Ferus Con.2. in loc.

although a Ruler, and a man of eminent qualitie. Thirdly, in that he was such an earneſt ſuter againe and againe, deſiring Chriſt to viſit his ſicke ſonne. Fourthly, in that he caſt off his doubting and infidelitie. Laſtly, yet chiefly, for that all his houſe was inſtructed in the faith of Chriſt, and feare of God. So [o] Ioſua, ſo [p] Lydia, ſo Criſpus the chiefe Ruler of the Synagogue, Acts 18.8. and ſo muſt [q] euery maſter of a familie bring vp his houſhold in inſtruction and information of the Lord. Euery man is a King and a Prophet in his owne priuate houſe, ſo that he can want no meanes, except he want a minde, to performe this holy buſineſſe.

In the ſicke ſonne you may note
1. His ſickneſſe, expreſſed in the text, ſicke of a feuer.
2. The cauſes of his ſickneſſe, ſurfetting and riot, implied (as may be ſuſpected) [r] that he was the ſonne of a Ruler, and in [s] Capernaum, a diſſolute Citie.

[t] Fauour is deceitfull, and [u] youth is vanitie, riches auaile not in the day of wrath, Prou. 11.4. nay the ſcepter cannot keepe vs from the ſepulchre. Young men as well as old men, and Gentlemen as well as poore men, are ſicke, and weake, and die. The children of Rulers ordinarily be moſt vnruly, giuen ouer to chambering and wantonneſſe, and ſo by conſequent they be [x] more ſubiect to ſickneſſe than other, in being more ſubiect to ſinne than other. A drowſineſſe of ſpirit is their quartan, incontinence their tertian, pride and gluttonie their quotidian ague. How ſinne reſembleth a feuer in condition, kinde, and cure; ſee Ludolphus vbi ſup. in margin. Iacob. de Voragin. ſerm. 2. Ferus ſerm. 4. in loc. Bonauentura diet. ſalut. cap. 1. Pontan. Bibliothec. Con. Tom. 4. fol. 313.

In Chriſt, the third, yet the moſt obſeruable perſon in all this hiſtorie, two things are to be conſidered eſpecially:
1. His rebuking
2. His releeuing the Ruler.

[a] The Ruler was at the firſt, in fide tepidus, aut frigidus, as [y] Auguſtine notes, and therefore Chriſt chides him, except yee ſee ſignes and wonders, yee will not beleeue. Verba arrogantis audimus, cor diffidentis non videmus: ſed ille pronunciauit, qui & verba audiuit, & cor inſpexit. This reprehenſion is not Iudge-like, but [z] father like, concerning the [a] whole Nation of the Iewes in generall, as much as this Ruler in particular, In token whereof (as [b] Interpreters obſerue) Chriſt vſeth not the ſingular, except thou; but the plurall number, except yee. [c] As if he ſhould haue ſaid, I muſt in regard of your incredulitie ſhew ſignes and wonders, otherwiſe yee will not beleeue. I will heale thy ſonne therefore, not ſo much vpon thy petition, as for the confirmation of others faith. I will not goe downe to thine houſe, yet I will worke ſuch a wonder in thine houſe, that not onely thy ſelfe, but all thine ſhall beleeue. Goe thy way, thy ſonne liueth.

The petition of the Ruler conſiſts of [d] two branches: one, that Ieſus would come downe; another, that he would heale his ſonne. Now Chriſt reiected the firſt as being vnfit, but he granted the ſecond wherein he prayed well, helping his childe not by going downe, but by ſpeaking one word, Thy ſonne liueth.

In the ſeruants here mentioned two vertues are commendable: firſt, [e] loue to their maſter in obeying his commands, and reioycing at his good. Secondly, [f] faith in Chriſt: The Ruler did beleeue the word of Ieſus, and they the report of the Ruler and ſo both hereby became happy. Let euery maſter in like ſort teach his houſhold, and euery ſeruant heare the good inſtruction of his maſter, [g] that there may be ſo many Churches as there be Familes, and ſo many Chappels as there be chambers in euery houſe; that being armed with the compleat harneſſe of God, we may quench all the fierie darts of the wicked, and withſtand all his aſſaults in the euill day.

Grant we beſeech thee, mercifull Lord, to thy faithfull people, pardon and peace, that they may be cleanſed from all their ſinnes, and ſerue thee with a quiet minde, through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

The

o Ioſua 24.15.
p Acts 16.15.
q Melanct. Muſculus. Bullinger.
r Pontan in loc.
s Ludolphus de vita Chriſti, part. 1. cap. 63.
t Prou 31. 30.
u Eccleſ. 11.10.
x Zepper. Con. 1. in loc.
y Tract. 16. in Ioan.
z Heming.
a Marlorat.
b Muſculus. Aretius.
c Maldonat. in loc.
d Ardens.
e Zepper.
f Aretius.
g Heming.

The Epistle. PHILIP. I. 3. vnto v. 12

I thanke my God with all remembrance of you alwayes in all my prayers, &c.

[h] Zanchius.

Subscription, Paul and Timotheus. Paul, [h] as author inditing, Timotheus as approuer, or haply penner, writing this Epistle: both the seruants of Iesus Christ, and dearely beloued of the Philippians.

Inscription, to all the Saints in Christ Iesu which are at Philippi: that is, all such as are [i] baptized, and haue giuen vp their names vnto Christ in [k] professing the Gospell, all in Philippi, but vnbeleeuing [l] Pagans.

[i] Lombard. Anselm. Aquin.
[k] Aretius. Zanchius.
[l] Primasius.

THis Epistle to the Philippians hath three parts: a Description of their perseuerance, together with an exhortation vnto the same, [m] which is the maine scope of all this excellent letter. Part whereof is our present Text, containing

Praise to God, and in it obserue

Matter
- Past, a good beginning: Because yee are come into the fellowship of the Gospell.
- Present, an happy proceeding: From the first day vntill now.
- Future, a blessed end: Surely certified that he which hath begun a good worke in you, will performe it, &c.

Manner in respect of
- Extension of
  - Time, alway in all my praiers.
  - Persons, for you all.
- Intension, hauing you in my remembrance, and praying for you with gladnesse, as louing you from the very heart root in Iesus Christ.

Prayer to God, that their loue may increase more and more in knowledge and indgement, being so filled with the fruit of righteousnesse, vnto the glory of God, as that they may be pure [n] before God in their [o] conscience, and without offence before men in their credit.

[m] Beza.

[n] Oecumen. Marlorat.
[o] Lombard. Anselm.

The [p] summe of all is in briefe, that the Pastor ought to blesse God alway for the present graces of the Church, as also most heartily to pray for the further and future good of the same. And the people likewise must on their part bring forth in their life such excellent fruit of righteousnesse, as that they may be both a [q] reioycing and a [r] crowne to their Pastor. As the legall High Priest had the names of the children of Israel grauen in his [s] brest-plate: so the Preacher of the Gospell ought to haue his Cure stamped in his breast, alwayes in all his prayers hauing them in perfect memorie. Q. Mary said, Calice was imprinted in her heart: so Paul here to the Philipp. I haue you in my heart. And to the Corinthians [t] elsewhere, Ye are our Epistle written in our hearts. See Epist. Dom. 12. & 18. post Trin.

[p] Sarcer. Zanchius. Kilius.
[q] 2 Cor. 1. 14.
[r] Philip 4. 1.
[s] Exod. 28. 29.
[t] 2 Cor 3. 2.

Because

Because yee are come into the fellowship of the Gospell] The chiefe subiect of his thanks and gladnesse is [u] not the goodnesse of their soile, nor yet the greatnesse of their Citie (though it were the [x] chiefe in the parts of Macedonia) but their fellowship of the Gospell [y] in word and deed, beleeuing the word preached, and releeuing their Pastor persecuted: being companions of Paul in bonds, as they were partners of Paul in grace: [z] Commoners in respect of the [a] common faith, and commoners of [b] communicating to his affliction. Hence we may learne, that although euery subiect ought in dutie to thanke God for crowning our Nation with a world of outward blessings, as honour, plentie, peace; yet aboue all, in all our deuotions alway to praise God for the fellowship of the Gospell. And therefore the 17. of Nouember, in which it was happily restored, and the 5. of Nouember, in which it was miraculously preserued, ought to be had in perpetuall remembrance.

[u] Brentius apud Marlorat. in loc.
[x] Act. 16. 12.
[y] Lombard. Aquin. Anselm.
[z] Aretius.
[a] Epi Iude v. 3.
[b] Philip. 4. 14.

From the first day vntill now] The first day of their conuersion is mentioned Acts 16. and this now was his [c] first imprisonment at Rome, recorded Acts 28. or as other, his second apprehension at Rome, by computation about [d] ten yeeres after the first. All which time the Philippians continued constant in the sincere profession of Christianitie, [c] neither reduced to their old Gentilisme, nor seduced by false teachers vnto new heresie. Vngratefull Schismatike [f] affirme, that the Church of England is like the Church of Laodicea, neither hot nor cold; proud, but yet poore, blinde, naked, miserable: but it is our dutie to thanke God alwaies in all our prayers, for that our Church hath against a world of popish and peeuish oppositions, in the midst of a crooked generation, euen from the first of Queene Elizabeth, vnto the eleuenth of King Iames, vncessantly continued in the fellowship of the Gospell. And it becommeth vs to iudge that he which hath begun a good worke in this Kingdome, will performe it vntill the day of Iesus Christ.

[c] Zanchius.
[d] Rhem. Argument. epist. Philip.
[e] Caietan.
[f] Brightman. Apocalyp. Apocalyp. pag. 105. 106 &c.

He that hath begun a good worke in you will performe it] [g] Three things are requisite in an absolute agent, power, skill, and will. Power is attributed especially to God the Father, wisdome to God the Sonne, willingnesse and loue to God the Holy Ghost. He therefore that begins a good worke, can and will accomplish it vnto his glory. This sentence confutes abundantly the [h] Pelagians, holding that the beginning of euery good worke is only from Gods grace, but the consummation of the same from our owne vertue. Whereas the Apostle giueth [i] all to God, [k] the first, and second, and third grace. The first is, operans gratia, whereby God beginneth a good worke in vs, without vs, in giuing a [l] will to do well. The second is cooperans gratia, whereby God performeth it, giuing to our will abilitie, working in vs and for vs, according to that of [m] Paul; I laboured more abundantly then they all, yet not I, but the grace of God which is in me. So the most accurate [n] Doctor excellently, Qui fecit te sine te, non iustificabit te sine te? The third is, saluans gratia, whereby God crowneth our will and worke in the day of Iesus Christ, [o] not by the merits of righteousnesse which we haue done, but according to his mercy sauing vs. In the words of [p] Gregorie; Primo Deus agit in nobis sine nobis, vt postea nobiscum agat: & per immensam misericordiam remuneret in nobis illud, ac si solum processisset ex nobis. And so this saying of our Apostle maketh against the Papists also, that are [q] cater-cousins to the Pelagians in the question of free-will and humane merit. For seeing God is [r] all in all, and [s] worketh all in all, end, middle, beginning; it must assuredly proceed from grace, that any man works with grace. God in euery good work makes a beginning, 2 Cor. 3. 5. helpeth in the middle, 1 Cor. 15. 10. confirmeth vnto the end, 1 Cor. 1. 8. And there Radulphus Ardens, a [t] learned man in his age, [u] flourishing from the yeere 1040. to 1100. saith, (in an Homilie preached vpon the Epistle, Sunday 18. after Trinitie) seeing by one grace we come to another grace, they be called merits improperly, for all our owne works are losse, that Christ might be the true gaine and aduantage, Philip. 3. 8.

[g] Rojerd. in loc.
[h] Aquin. Zanchius.
[i] Oecumen.
[k] Ardens.
[l] Philip. 2. 13
[m] 1 Cor. 15. 10
[n] August. ser. 15 de verbis Apost.
[o] Tit. 3. 5.
[p] Apud Ardens in loc.
[q] Dr Fulke answer in Rhem. preface §. 52.
[r] 1 Cor. 15. 28.
[s] 1 Cor. 12. 6.
[t] Perkins treat. Christ the true gaine.
[u] Vt habetur in eius vita prefixa hom. edit. Colon.

And this I pray that your loue may increase yet more and more] [x] Christ hath foretold, that the loue of many should be cold in the latter ages of the world, Paul therefore therefore begs of God earneſtly that the Church of Philippi might abound with the gift of charitie: not only that they might haue loue, [y] but that it might increaſe, yea that it might increaſe yet, and that more and more. The word (περισσευῃ) doth import that our loue muſt not be contained within the liſts of our priuate perſons, or particular acquaintance: but that it ſhould ouerflow like a fountaine, to the benefit of the whole Church: and that not for a time, but vntill the day of Chriſt: that is, vntill either he call vs to him in [z] our particular deaths, or he come to vs in [a] his generall Iudgement. This our loue muſt haue two [b] companions eſpecially, Knowledge and vnderſtanding. Seeing loue [c] beleeueth all things, it is exceeding neceſſary, that our loue ſhould abound in knowledge, [d] whereby we may diſcerne betweene good and bad, betweene Heretike and Catholike, and in vnderſtanding, which is a ſpirituall experience gained by much exerciſe, [e] trying all things, and then accepting the moſt excellent. (ἐπιγνώσει) is [f] Theoricall, and conſiſts in generall notions of the Bible, whereas (αἰσθήσει) is practicall in Chriſtian experiments, and particular actions. A true iudgement whereby men are able not onely to marke, and make difference betweene good and bad, [g] but alſo betweene good and better, and ſo in fine chuſe the beſt. Our aduerſaries as well the popiſh, as the peeuiſh, abound (as they pretend) with a very great loue to God and his people. But becauſe their zeale is not ioyned with all vnderſtanding and knowledge, the fruit thereof is not the fruit of righteouſneſſe, a pure life before God, and without offence, before men; but the bitter root of all ſchiſme in our Church, and ſedition in our Common-weale. So that whereas [h] Dauid ſaid, The zeale of thine houſe hath euen eaten me: we may contrariwiſe ſay, Their zeale hath euen eaten vp thine houſe. The [i] Puritane zeale calleth it in word, the [k] Romiſh zeale endeuours to make it indeed, a denne of theeues, a ſeat of Antichriſt, a ſhameleſſe Babylon, a mother of abomination and deſolation.

[x] Matth. 24. 12

Tantum religio potuit ſuadere malorum.

Filled with the fruit of righteouſneſſe.] If we conſtrue this of Iuſtification, it is apparant that good workes are not the cauſe, but the [l] conſequent of our righteouſneſſe, as the fruit makes not the tree to be good, but onely ſhewes it to be good. If we take righteouſneſſe here for ſanctification, obſerue with [m] Zanchie the foure cauſes of good workes:

1. Efficient, {
  Primarie, Chriſt: Which commeth by Ieſus Chriſt, working in vs the will and the deed, Philip 2.13.
  Secondarie, our ſelues: As being [n] trees of righteouſneſſe planted by the Lord, and ſo by Chriſts eſpeciall grace, the iuſt man [o] brings forth his fruit in due ſeaſon, and continuing in well doing, is filled with the fruit of righteouſneſſe.
}

2. Materiall, fruit. Internall in thought, externall in word and deed. For a good tree beares fruit on euery bough, and on euery branch.

3. Formall, righteouſneſſe. A conformitie to the diuine Law, Chriſts imputatiue righteouſneſſe is perfect, our inherent righteouſneſſe is imperfect.

4. Finall, {
  Benefit of our brethren, for trees beare fruit for the good of other.
  Glory and praiſe of God.
}

And [p] here we may learne the difference betweene the good workes of Chriſtians and other. A Gentile doth a good worke, but not in Chriſt: an hypocrite doth a good worke, not vnto Gods glorie, but for [q] mens praiſe. Whereas the true Chriſtian is filled with the fruit of righteouſneſſe, eſpecially for this end, that [r] Angels in heauen may [s] glorifie God, and men on earth alſo praiſe God in his Saints. And as the iuſt man is a [t] glory and praiſe to God: ſo God one day will praiſe the iuſt, in ſaying, Come ye bleſſed, &c. and glorifie him alſo both in body and ſoule by Ieſus Chriſt in the kingdome of glory.

The

[y] Zanchius.
[z] Primaſius. Lombard. Anſelm.
[a] Caietan. Marlorat.
[b] Aretius.
[c] 1 Cor. 13.7.
[d] Theophylact. Oecumen.
[e] 1 Theſſ 5.21
[f] Zanchius.
[g] Anſelm.
[h] Pſalm 69.9.
[i] See dangerous poſitions of reform. lib. 2 c. 4. 9. 11. 12. 13
[k] Caſaubon Epiſt. ad Front. pag. 81. 82. & ſequent.
[l] Aretius. Sarcerius. Beza.
[m] In loc.
[n] Eſay 61.3.
[o] Pſal. 1.3.
[p] Theophylact. Aretius.
[q] Matth. 6.2.
[r] Luke 15.10.
[s] Caietan enim & Zanchius referunt gloriam ad Angelos in cœlo laudem ad homines in terra.
[t] Lombard. in loc.

The Gospell. MATTH. 18.21.

Peter said vnto Iesus, Lord, how oft shall I forgiue my brother if he sinne against me, &c.

THis Gospell is a large [u] Comment vpon the fifth petition of the Pater Noster, and it may be parted into

- Peters question: How oft shall I forgiue my brother if he sinne against me, till seuen times?
- Christs answer: deliuered
  - First, simply by way of proposition: I say not vnto thee vntill seuen times: but seuenty times seuen times.
  - Then amply by way of [x] exposition in the parable following, therefore is the kingdome of heauen likened, &c.

[u] Zepper. con. 2. in loc.

[x] Hieron. Ludolphus. Caietan.

Peter said vnto Iesus] In this question of Peter obserue first his reuerence, then his diligence. Reuerence toward Christ his Teacher, in calling him Lord, or Master, or Sir. An [y] Elder that rules well and laboureth in the word is worthy of double honour: [z] despise not prophecying, but [a] obey such as haue the ouersight of you. Giue thy learned and discreet Pastor the Sir, and not the sirra. Secondly, we may note Peters [b] diligence, questioning and arguing with his Master [c] about that he taught a little before, vers. 15. And it is a [d] commendable practise, for as reading maketh a full man, so conference a ready man. A duty much omitted in our time, because some men haue too bad a conceit of themselues and dare not, other too good an opinion of themselues and will not aske their Teachers any question. See Gosp. on Sexages. Sunday.

[y] 1 Tim. 5.17.
[z] 1 Thess. 5.20.
[a] Heb. 13.17.
[b] Euthym.
[c] Caietan.
[d] Aretius.

Iesus said vnto him] In this answer two points are remarkable: what hee said, and to whom. I say not vntill seuen times, but seuentie times seuen times: that is, 390. times, and then (as [e] Origens interpreter is of opinion) a man is not bound to forgiue his brother any more. But most expositors affirme that Christ here names a certaine number for an vncertaine, a definite for an [f] infinite. An vsuall trope euen in our common speech, I haue heard it a thousand times. I would not doe this, or suffer that for an hundred pounds. Almighty God the father of mercy forgiueth vs more then seuenty times seuen times, for [g] the iust man falleth seuen times a day; so that if we liue but seuenty daies, our sinne will stand in neede of pardon seuenty times seuen times. But if we continue long, and become the sonnes of many yeeres, assuredly we shall be the fathers of many sinnes, and need forgiuenesse seuenty thousand times seuen times. O Lord [h] who can tell how oft he offendeth? O cleanse thou me from my secret faults. Now we must be mercifull [i] as our Father in heauen is mercifull, extending our compassion toward our brother offending vs not onely seuen times, as Peter said, or seuenty times seuen times, as Christ in the bare letter of the text: but according to the true meaning of the same, [k] vicibus innumerabiliter innumerabilibus, [l] euen so many seuen times as he trespasseth against vs.

[e] Apud Erasmū annot. in loc.
[f] Euthym. Pontan. Iansen.
[g] Prou. 24.16.
[h] Psal. 19.12.
[i] Luk 6.36.
[k] Maldonat. in loc.
[l] Toties quoties Augustin. serm. 15. de verbis Dom.

The next point to be considered, is the party to whom our blessed Sauiour spake this, and that is Peter, Iesus said vnto him, I say vnto thee, &c. [m] To Peter as to a publike Preacher, & to Peter as to a priuate person. In the words a little before, Christ spake of Ecclesiasticall censures, If thy brother heare thee not, tell it to the Church, verse 17. and in the 18. I say vnto you, whatsoeuer ye binde on earth, shall be bound in heauen: and [n] so this text (as the coherence sheweth) ought to be construed of the Ministers absolution, as well as of other mens forgiuenesse. Here then all Pastors are taught, not to discomfort and despise the poore penitent soule: but rather to pronounce Gods pardon and absolution, as often as he truly repents, and vnfainedly beleeues his holy Gospell. It was an heresie defended by [o] Montanus, [p] Nouatus, and [q] Meletius, that such as after baptisme and solemne repentance, fell into relapse, and committed any grieuous crime, as adultery, [m] Petrus hic gerit personam Ecclesiæ. Anselm in loc.

[n] Melanct. postil. & Com in loc.
[o] Hieron. lib. 2. aduersus Iouin.
[p] Alphonsus de Castro Tit. pœnitea hæres 3.
[q] August. hæres. 48. & Epiphan. hæres. 68.

adulterie, ſacriledge, murther, and the like, ought not to be receiued againe into the boſome of the Church. But [r] Peter Biſhop of Alexandria, and [ſ] Anſelme Biſhop of Canterburie, confute them out of this text, Thou ſhalt forgiue thy brother ſeuentie times ſeuen times. If thy brother will not heare thee, tell the Church: if he will not heare the Church, hold him as an Heathen or a Publican: but if he repent and heare thee, thou haſt wonne thy brother vnto God, and thou [t] muſt againe receiue him into the Church.

[r] Apud Melanct. Com. in loc.
[ſ] Enarrat. in loc.
[t] Confeſſ. Anglican. art. 16.

As this may be conſtrued of the Churches abſolution, ſo moſt expound it of mutuall forgiueneſſe in priuate betweene brother and brother. A leſſon oft vrged by Chriſt as exceeding neceſſarie, whether we conſider God, our neigbours, or our ſelues. In not forgiuing we wrong God, to whom [u] vengeance belongeth: our neighbours, in that our priuate [x] quarrels often hinder the publique peace of the Church: our ſelues, hereby neglecting other buſineſſe of importance, yea the greateſt of all, our owne ſoules eternall eſtate, for [y] except we forgiue other, God will not forgiue vs, as Chriſt ſheweth in the concluſion of his enſuing parable.

[u] Heb. 10. 30.
[x] Phil. 2. 3.
[y] Matth. 6. 14.

Yea, but is it vnlawfull to defend our ſelues, againſt the violent hands and virulent tongues of ſuch as iniurie vs in our goods and good name? No. When a brother offendeth in this kinde, Corripiamus verbis & ſi opus eſt verberibus, quoth [z] Auguſtine. As euery Chriſtian muſt be tender of his conſcience in regard of himſelfe, ſo [a] iealous of his credit in regard of other. We muſt therefore ſue the ſlanderer euen for the Goſpels glorie, leſt good men be ſcandalized, and God himſelfe blaſphemed vpon any falſe report ſpread abroad of vs. Indeed the ſeditious Anabaptiſts and Iulian that ſcoffing Apoſtata ſay, that this and all other like places of Scripture diſanull the Magiſtrates authoritie. For if we muſt all, alway forgiue, none may puniſh the faults of his brother. Here we muſt aptly diſtinguiſh betweene priuate reuenge, and publique iuſtice. A priuate perſon ought only to admoniſh his brother; a publique Magiſtrate, being Gods Lieutenant, to whom vengeance belongs, may puniſh him alſo. For [b] Gouernours are ſent of God, for the puniſhment of euill doers, and for the praiſe of them that doe well. If then a Miniſter of eſtate forgiue the bad, he doth iniurie the good. It is a true ſaying of [c] Auguſtine: Sic vigilet tolerantia vt non dormiat diſciplina. Chriſt in this preſent Chapter intimates [d] three ſorts of correction. The firſt is of loue, If thy brother treſpaſſe againſt thee, goe and tell him his fault betweene thee and him alone: if he heare thee not, take yet with thee one or two, &c. The ſecond is of feare, If he will not vouchſafe to heare them and thee, tell it to the Church. The third is of ſhame, If he refuſe to heare the Church alſo, let him be vnto thee as a heathen man and a publican. So likewiſe the temporall Magiſtrate [e] beareth a ſword not in vaine, for he is the miniſter of God, to take vengeance on him that doth euill. And if he ſtrike with the ſword of Iuſtice, it is not [f] ferrum inimici vulnerantis ſed medici ſecantis. According to the tenor of this doctrine, [g] Abraham deliuered his nephew Lot from the hand of his enemies. And ſo [h] Micaiah the Prophet defended himſelfe againſt the wrongs of Zidikiah. And ſo [i] Paul appealed vnto Cæſar: and Chriſt accurately confuted all the forged imputation of his aduerſaries, Iohn 8. 49. See Epiſt. 3. Sund. after Epiphan. Auguſt. de verbis Dom. ſerm. 15. poſtil. Melanct. & Zepper. in loc.

[z] Serm. 15. de verbis Domini.
[a] Melanct. poſtil. in loc.
[b] 1 Pet. 2. 14.
[c] Serm. 22. de verbis apoſt.
[d] Ludolphus de vita Chriſti, part. 2. cap. 8.
[e] Rom. 13. 4.
[f] Auguſt. cont. literas Petilian. lib. 3. cap. 4.
[g] Gen. 14.
[h] 1 King. 22.
[i] Acts 25. 11.

In the parable following note the
- Matter or narration, The kingdome of heauen is likened vnto a certaine man, &c. and in it theſe fiue circumſtances:
  1. Who is the Creditor.
  2. Who is the debtor.
  3. What is the debt.
  4. The time when our Creditor cals for a reckoning.
  5. What is to be done when our account is called vpon.
- Morall application, ſo likewiſe ſhall my heauenly father, &c.

The

The Creditor is God, as Christ expoundeth himselfe, verse 35. who leaueth vs euery good and perfect gift, [k] as well naturall as supernaturall. He created vs according to his owne image, redeemed vs with his owne bloud, and sanctifieth vs with his owne spirit: making vs [l] Lords of the world, [m] sonnes of the Church, [n] heires of heauen. The riches of his mercy toward vs are so precious for their nature, so great for their number, as that they farre exceed ten thousand talents. See Epist. 4 Sunday after Easter.

As for the second circumstance, [o] some thinke the deuill is this debtor. [p] Origen and Thomas vnderstand this of Clergie-men. [q] Other expound it of the Iewes onely. But Augustine, Ardens, and other ordinarily construe this of all men, as being seruants and debtors vnto the heauenly King. [r] Seruants, not as other creatures in respect of their creation onely, but in respect of our redemption also. Debtors, [f] for in many things we sinne all. And sinnes are debts, as Christ teacheth in his praier, forgiue vs our debts. And our manifold sinnes arise to the summe of ten thousand talents, euen [t] three tunne of gold, an [u] infinite masse of money.

Our debt is great in magnitude and multitude. We sinne against God in [x] whose hand our breath is, [y] in whom we liue, and moue, and haue our being; against such a God as [z] ordereth all things in measure, number and weight, before whom all the world is as a drop of the morning dew, that falleth downe vpon the earth; against such a God at whose looke the [a] earth trembles, and the pillars of [b] heauen quake; against such a God as hath the [c] keyes of death and hell, [d] able to kill the body and to destroy the soule. And as our sinnes are infinite in respect of their infinite obiect: euen so infinite in respect of their infinite number, as being [e] moe then the haires of our head. Almightie God created Adam according to his owne likenesse, and bestowed many notable gifts vpon him belonging to his posteritie, the which being lost in his fall, God [f] exacteth them of vs in our account. This debt is old, which of our selues we can no way discharge, and beside this originall debt, we runne in arrerages euery day. The particulars of thy debt will amount quickly to the summe of ten thousand talents, if thou shalt examine thy seuerall transgressions of the seuerall Commandements in the Decalogue. Tell me, beloued, or for that it is impossible to tell, I pray thinke, how often hast thou blasphemed the name of God, how often prophaned his Sabbath, how often dishonoured thy father and mother, how often committed adulterie, how often abused thy neighbour in false witnesse, how often coueted his house, wife, seruant, &c. and thou shalt in conclusion finde that thou doest owe to God for the breach of euery one of the Commandements, aboue ten thousand talents. Or if thou wilt a little consider onely but how much time thou spendest vnprofitably, [g] vel nihil agendo, vel aliud agendo, vel male agendo: thou wilt easily feele thy debt to be so great, as that thou canst not make satisfaction for it, although thou sell euen thy selfe, thy wife, thy children, and all that thou hast. [h] He that is vniust, let him be vniust still: and he that is filthy, let him be filthy still. O [i] young man, reioyce in thy youth and walke in the waies of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: but know, that God for all these things will bring thee to iudgement. As it is in the Text here, the King taketh account of his seruants.

He takes account of [k] foure things especially: De bonis commissis, as he sheweth in the parable of the Steward, Luke 16. De bonis omissis, as in the parable of the Talents, Matthew 25. De malis admissis, as in the parable of the two debtors, Luke 7. De malis seu peccatis dimissis, as in this present. This one mentioned in the text is euery one, for Gods all-seeing eye beholds all our thoughts, and words, and deeds, as if all men in the world were but one. He sends forth his summons in this life by the preaching of the [l] law, by the clamour of the [m] conscience, by [n] crosses and losses, or other signes of Gods wrath in heauen and in earth, as it were citing vs to his vniuersall audit. [o] But in the particular death of euery man, and in the generall iudgement of all men he finisheth his account.

[k] See Pontan. in loc.
[l] Psal. 8.6.
[m] Prouer. 1.8.
[n] Heb. 1.14. Matth. 25.34.
[o] Apud Hiero. in loc.
[p] Apud Vegam in loc.
[q] Rabanus apud Thom. & Anselm. in loc.
[r] Granat. in loc.
[f] Iames 3.2.
[t] Melanct.
[u] Culman.
[x] Dan. 5.23.
[y] Acts 17.28.
[z] Wisdome 11. 17.19
[a] Psal 104 32.
[b] Iob 26 11.
[c] Apocal 1.18
[d] Luk. 12.5.
[e] Psal. 40 15.
[f] Heming.
[g] Seneca.
[h] Apoca. 22. 11
[i] Ecclesiastes 11 9.
[k] Ludolphus de vita Christi, part. 2. cap 9. Idem Pontan. in loc.
[l] Zepper.
[m] Anselm.
[n] Heming.
[o] Granaten. Vega.

p Heb.9.29. q 2 Cor.5.10. r Iames 2.13.

p For it is appointed vnto men that they shall once die, and after that commeth the iudgement: in which euery man shall haue his doome, q according to that he hath done, whether it be good or euill. In that day there shall be iudgement r mercilesse to him that sheweth no mercy, the cruell and vngracious seruant who tooke no compassion on his fellow, shall be deliuered to the Iaylors, and kept in prison vntill he pay the s vtmost farthing For, as t Ardens acutely, Quorum vita mortua est in culpa, eorum mors viuet in pœna: Their death is euer liuing in sorrow, whose life was euer dead in sinne.

s Matth.5.26. t In loc.

What then is to be done that our debt may be forgiuen? According to the tenor of this Scripture, u we must humbly fall downe before God our Creditor, ingeniously confessing our inabilitie to make paiment, and heartily crauing releasement for the merits and satisfaction of his Sonne Christ Iesus, who x died for our sinnes, and is risen againe for our iustification, and now sitteth at the right hand of God as our Mediator and Aduocate, promising in his y holy word to refresh all such as groane vnder the burthen of their debt. And because faith is working by z loue, we must in our conuersion bring forth the fruit of righteousnesse, a forgiuing one another euen as God for Christs sake forgiueth vs. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet: Paul saith, I pray that your loue may increase yet more and more, &c. And Christ saith in his application, (which is the very b key that openeth all the secrets of the whole Parable) So likewise shall my heauenly Father doe also vnto you, if ye from your heart forgiue not euery one his brother their trespasses. This one point is pressed here by sundry reasons: as first from Christs owne Commandement, I say forgiue thy brother offending thee seuentie times seuen times: Secondly, from Gods example: Thirdly, from the proportion of our debt; our heauenly King forgiueth vs ten thousand talents, and therefore let vs not striue with our fellow for an hundred pence: Fourthly, from the dangerous euent, because the pittilesse man is cast into prison of hell. As then we desire to doe the will of Christ, and to be followers of God as deare children, and to flie from the vengeance to come: let vs be courteous one to another, and tender hearted, forgiuing our brethren seuentie times seuen times: and that c not only from the teeth outward, but as Christ in the text expresly, from our hearts, in truth and in deed. d Si dicis dimitto, dimitte: melius est cum clamas ore, & dimittis in corde, quam blandus ore, crudelis in corde. Whosoeuer takes this course with his creditor shall be loosed of his bonds, and released of his debt: the which one word c release doth ouerthrow the Monkish doctrine of satisfaction, and quench also the fire of Purgatory: for releasement and paiment, forgiuenesse and punishment are quite contrary. The debt is forgiuen: ergo, not satisfied: the debtor is forgiuen: ergo, not imprisoned in Purgatorie. Shall not the gates of f hell preuaile against vs? and shall the muddy walls of Purgatory hedge vs in? Hath our Sauiours soule gone downe to the g nethermost hell, and yet made no passage thorow the suburbs of hell, as they reckon it? Hath he bound the h strong man that he should not hurt vs? and will he now torment vs himselfe, or set other we know not whom to doe it? i Beware lest any spoile you by vaine reason and Philosophie, whereas the Bible doth admit of no Purgatory, but Christ and the Crosse, k the word of faith, Acts 15.9. Iohn 15.2. and the rod of affliction, Hebr.12.6. See Gospell 5. Sunday after Epiphany.

u Culmen. Heming. x Rom.4.25. y Matth 11.28 z Galat.5.6. a Ephes 4.32. b Bullinger. apud Marlorat. c Hieron. Culman. Iansen. d Augustin.15. de verbis Domini. e Heming. f Matth.16.18 g Ephes.4.9. h Matth.12.29. i Col.2.8. k Iohn Frith Epistle to the Reader before his answer to Rastals Dialog.

The Epistle. PHILIP. 3.17. vnto ye end

Brethren, be followers together of me, and looke on them which walke, euen so as ye haue vs for an ensample, &c.

Saint Paul in this Text exhorts the Church of Philippi to
- Follow him and other Apostles of the like cariage, because their conuersation is in heauen.
- Flee false teachers, and such as walke wickedly, because their
  - Courses are damnable, being
    - Erroneous in doctrine, enemies of the Crosse of Christ.
    - Corrupt in manners, whose bellie is their god.
  - End is damnation, and glorie their shame.

Be followers of me.] This argueth his [l] confidence, not [m] arrogance. For hauing instructed the Philippians euery way that is commendable, [n] by word, by writing, by working: and knowing [o] nothing by himselfe wherein he was wanting in his Apostleship: he speaks thus as their watchman, and not as his owne trumpetor, out of vnfained zeale sincerely to keepe them from errour, not out of selfe-loue vainly to sound his owne praise. [p] Hence Pastors are taught to be [q] paternes vnto their flocke [r] in word, in conuersation in loue, in spirit, in faith, in pureneſſe; that it may be said of euery Prelate truly, which a Poet of a Pope flatteringly.

Hic viuens lux vrbis erat, defunctus eclipsis,
Vrbs stetit Vrbano stante, ruente ruit.

And looke on them] He ioyneth other with himselfe to [s] decline enuy. There be many false Teachers among you, but I would not haue you to follow them. Other there be though a few, that walke as I doe. σκοπεῖτε, Marke them [t] accurately, for we may not imitate euery one, but onely such as Paul; and Paul not in euery thing, but (as himselfe [u] else-where doth expound himselfe) Be ye followers of me euen as I am of Christ. [x] If these words, as I am of Christ, be brought hither vnto the clause, be followers of me, then all is well: otherwise Christians (as B. Latymer here notes) are not bound in conscience to be Saints apes. Imitate Dauid in that wherein he was a man according to [y] Gods owne heart, but abhorre his murder and adultery. Follow Iudas Maccabeus in his hearty deuotion and hardy valour in the Lords warre, but imitate him [z] not in bestowing money to make a sacrifice for the dead. Imitate Peter in his [a] confessing, but not in his [b] denying Christ. So Paul and his followers are to be followed, but with a [c] quatenus, in [d] that they were perfect, proceeding by one rule, and minding one thing, as the words afore: and [e] for that their conuersation was in heauen, as the words after intimate.

(Many walke] Not after the spirit, [f] as I, but after the flesh, all for the belly, Which Aretius obserues out of the two Greeke words (περιπατοῦν) in this, and (στοιχοῦν) in the verse going afore. Good Pastours and good people walke in their vocation orderly, but the wicked are dissolute in their courses, and march out of ranke. [g] If many such walkers in Pauls age, there must of necessitie be more now. For Sathan bound in the Primatiue times, is in this latter end of the world [h] loosed againe out of his prison, and his [i] wrath is great, knowing that he hath but a short time. There is now such horrible rebellion, inhumane cruelty, monstrous heresie, barbarous drunkennesse, euen among such as professe the Gospell, that a man would thinke the whole world were turned deuill: and therefore seeing the wicked walkers are not a few, but many, [k] the moe, the more heed ought to be taken of them. As Paul in this present chapter at the second verse, Beware of dogs, beware of euill workers, beware of the concision.

Of whom I haue told you often, and now tell you weeping] That he warned them often often, argueth his [l] diligence; that he did it now weeping, his [m] zeale and piety. Weeping for that the [n] simple seduced were damnified, and the subtill seducing (if they did not repent) hereby damned. So Samuel mourned for Saul, 1 Sam. 15.35. and so Paul bewailed his [o] Corinthians, and the Prophet [p] Ieremy; Oh that mine head were full of water, and mine eies a fountaine of teares, that I might weepe day and night for the slaine of the daughter of my people. There be many learned and industrious Preachers in England which often admonish you of such as walke wickedly, but I feare we want weeping Pastors and weeping Prelates, earnest men in Gods cause. For if they weepe ouer their spirituall children, as Monica did ouer Augustine her naturall sonne; I may boldly tell them, as that reuerend [q] Bishop did her, Fieri non potest vt filius istarum lachrymarum pereat.

[l] Ardens in loc. [m] B. Latymer. serm in loc. [n] Rayard. [o] 1 Cor 4.4. [p] Sarcerius. Piscator. Kilius. [q] 1 Pet. 5.3. [r] 1 Tim 4.12 [s] Aretius. [t] Lombard. Zanchius. [u] 1 Cor. 11.1. [x] B. Latymer. [y] Acts 13.22. [z] 2 Mac. 12.43. [a] Matth. 16.16 [b] Matth 26.72 [c] Aretius. [d] Anselm. [e] Caietan. Zanchius. [f] Erasmus. [g] B. Latymer. [h] Apoc. 20.7. [i] Apoc 12.12. [k] Aretius. Zanchius.

Enemies of the Crosse of Christ] All such as derogate from the merit of Christs passion, are enemies to Christs Crosse. As the [r] Iewes vnto whom Christ crucified is a stumbling blocke, and the Gentiles vnto whom his Crosse seemed foolishnesse, and the [t] Papists as they be merit-mongers and masse-mongers: it is a great contempt of Christs Crosse to thinke that any can merit heauen for himselfe, but it is a greater scorne to sell his good workes for a little siluer, and so bring other to heauen by deeds of supererogation. Againe, the Papists are enemies to the Crosse of Christ in their Masse, making it a daily sacrifice for the quicke and the dead; whereas Christ was [t] once, not often, offered to take away the sinnes of the world. See Epist. 5. Sunday in Lent.

In a word, all such are enemies of Christs Crosse, [u] qui crucem Christi vel non credunt vel non portant, which either beleeue not, or beare not his Crosse. As the false Apostles in Pauls age, who taught that a man is iustified by circumcision and workes of the Law, which is so derogatory to the sufferings of Christ, as that it is said expresly, Galat. 2.21. If righteousnesse be by the law, then Christ died in vaine. And in maintaining this assertion, they did [x] seeke carnally to please, lest they should suffer persecution for the Crosse of Christ, as hath at large been shewed Epist. 15. Sunday after Trinity.

Whose end is damnation] [y] That is, eternall destruction in hell: and therefore take heed how ye follow them in the labyrinth of errour, lest the blinde leading the blinde, [z] both fall into the ditch. Here [a] Diuines obserue Pauls antithesis, betweene the good and the bad Apostles. The good are the [b] friends of Christ, but the bad, enemies of his Crosse. The good haue their conuersation in heauen, but the bad, minde earthly things. The good shall haue their vile body fashioned like to Christs glorious body, so that their shame shall be turned into glory: but the wicked on the contrary, shall haue their glory turned into shame. They flourish haply for a time, but their end is damnation.

Whose belly is their God.] [c] That is our God which we like best and loue most. And therefore the false Doctors in Pauls age, who to serue their owne turne ioyned together Circumcision and Christ in the businesse of our saluation: and such in our daies, as thrust themselues into the Clergie, that they may [d] buckle the Gospell and the world together, and set God and the deuill at one table, preaching pleasant things in the Princes eare, that they may get riches and goe gay: what I pray doe they but make their belly their God? And, as [e] Tertullian addes, their lungs his temple, their paunch his altar, the Cooke the Priest, the fatty fume of their meat their holy Ghost, their sawces their spirituall gifts, their belching their prophecy: their loue boyleth in their kettle, their faith warmeth in their kitchin, their hope lieth in their meat; he that feasteth most, and of delicate fare is prouided best, is holiest among them.

And glory their shame.] That is, they boast [f] in circumcisione membri pudendi. Or as [g] other, they glory in sinne, whereof they should be ashamed. [i] Or their short glory shall be turned into long shame, their earthly pompe to confusion eternall, at the last day.

Our conuersation is in heauen.] First, in respect of our [k] vnion with Christ, in whom heauen and earth are met: [l] in so much as Gods elect are called often in holy

[l] Sarcerius.
[m] Caluin.
[n] Lombard. Anselm.
[o] 2 Epist. 12.21
[p] Cap. 9.1.
[q] August. Confess. lib 3 c. 12.
[r] 1 Cor. 1.23.
[t] B. Latymer.
[t] Heb. 9.28.
[u] Ardens. Marlorat. Zanchius.
[x] Gal. 6.12.
[y] Lombard. Aquin. Anselme.
[z] Matt. 15.14.
[a] Sarcerius. Aretius.
[b] Iohn 15.14.
[c] Photius. Ardens. Lombard.
[d] B. Latymer.
[e] Lib. de Ieiunio aduersus Psychicos sub fin.
[f] Primasius. Anselm. Zanchius.
[g] Oecumen.
[i] B. Latymer.
[k] Caluin. Pomeran.
[l] apud Marlorat.

holy Scripture, the kingdome of heauen. For albeit they be [m] pilgrims on earth, and dwell in houſes of [n] clay: yet they liue not according to the [o] faſhions of the world, but after the Lawes of that Citie which is [p] aboue; praying alway that the kingdome of God may come, and that his will may be done. See Epiſt. Eaſter day.

Secondly, the conuerſation of godly men is in heauen, in reſpect of their [q] affections, as minding [r] heauenly things, and not earthly things. [s] In the world, if a man make purchaſe of a Lordſhip, his heart is alway there, there he puls downe, and builds againe, there he makes himſelfe Orchards and Gardens; there he meanes to liue, there he meanes to die. Chriſt Ieſus hath bought the kingdome of heauen for vs (the moſt bleſſed purchaſe that euer was) and hath paid for it the deareſt price that euer was paid, euen his owne precious bloud: and in this Citie he hath prepared a [t] manſion for vs, and made vs free Denizens of it: all our ioy therefore ſhould be there, [u] Corpore ambulantes in terra, ſed corde habitantes in cœlo. From whence we looke for the Lord Ieſus Chriſt, [x] vnto the wicked a Iudge, but vnto ſuch as loue his comming, a Sauiour, who ſhall change our vile body, &c. Where foure points are conſiderable.

1. Who? Ieſus Chriſt, as being the reſurrection and the life: Iohn 11. 2. and 5. 25.

2. What? our vile body, for as he renueth our minde by grace, making it conformable to his minde: ſo likewiſe will he change our vile body, that it may be like his glorious body.

3. By what meanes? according to the working, whereby he is able to ſubdue all things vnto himſelfe.

4. After what manner? he ſhall change, not the ſubſtance nor the lineaments of our body: but the [y] qualitie, making this [z] corruptible to put on incorruption, and this mortall, immortalitie, changing our vile body that it may be faſhioned like vnto his glorious body.

[a] Noſco meum in Chriſto corpus conſurgere, quid me
Deſperare iubes? veniam quibus ille reuenit
Calcata de morte vijs, quod credimus hoc eſt.
Et totus veniam, nec enim minor, aut alius quam
Nunc ſum, reſtituar: vultus, vigor & color idem
Qui modo viuit, erit: nec me dente vel vngue
Fraudatum reuomet patefacti foſſa ſepulchri.

[m] 1 Pet. 2. 11.
[n] Iob 4. 19.
[o] Rom 12. 2.
[p] Gal. 4. 26.
[q] Aquin.
[r] Col. 3. 2.
[s] Perkins expoſit. Creed. art. aſcenſ.
[t] Iohn 14. 2.
[u] Anſelm.
[x] Zanchius.
[y] Transformabat quoad qualitatem, non quoad quantitatem. Theodoret.
[z] 1 Cor. 15. 53.
[a] Prudentius apoth. de reſurrect. carnis humana.

The Goſpell. MATTH. 22. 15. vnto v. 23

Then the Phariſies went out, and tooke counſell how they might entangle him in his words, &c.

CHriſt in this Goſpell anſwereth a captious queſtion of his aduerſaries after ſuch a ſort, that he [b] caught the wiſe in their craftineſſe, and as the [c] Pſalmiſt, in the ſame net which they hid priuily, themſelues are taken.

In the queſtion theſe [d] ſix circumſtances are to bee diſcuſſed eſpecially, the - Time when: So ſoone as Chriſt had deliuered his Parable concerning the mariage dinner of the Kings ſonne, then the Phariſies went out.

- End why: to tangle him in his words.
- Manner how: tooke counſell how.
- Queſtioniſts, Phariſies, as chiefe authors. Their diſciples with Herods ſeruants, as actors or ſubordinate inſtruments.
- Proeme: Maſter we know that thou art true, &c.
- Probleme: Is it lawfull that tribute be giuen to Caeſar, or no?

[b] Iob 5. 13.
[c] Pſal 9. 15.
[d] Arelius.

In

In Christs answer two points are remarkable, to wit, his
- Conflict in
  - Confounding his aduersaries, Iesus perceiuing their wickednesse.
  - Confuting, shew me the tribute money.
  - Concluding, giue therefore to Cæsar, &c.
- Conquest, When they heard these words, they maruelled, and left him, and went their way.

• Kilius.

Then the Pharisies.] c Euen at that time when Christ in his doctrine sought their eternall saluation, they conspire to worke his vtter destruction. At that instant f when they should haue beleeued in him (g hauing faces harder then a stone) they went out from him. And I pray whither? into the h counsell of the vngodly, i for counsell is the foundation to worke vpon. Wherefore? to entangle him. And for that heretofore they could not intrap him in his k morals, or in his miracles: here they take counsell how to catch him in his words. A fit and (as they thought) a fecible plot. It was exceeding fit, in that Christ had often intangled them in their words: and therefore, seeing they could not at any time finde an hole in his coat, they went about to discouer a botch in his doctrine, that, as it was the by-word, they might l cry quit. Againe, they conceiued it to be very fecible, for that the tongue is glib, according to that of m S. Iames. If any man offend not in word, he is a perfect man, and able to bridle all the body.

c Chrysost.
g Ier. 5. 3.
h Psal. 1. 1.
i Heming.
k Ardens.

l Pontan.
m Chap. 3. v. 2.

Their disciples with Herods seruants.] Executing their malice by deputies, as being n lesse knowne, and so lesse suspected of treachery. But these Disciples as apt schollers, were o peeres in mischiefe, though vnderlings in age to their masters. And with these were ioyned the Herodians also, that is (as p Theophylact and q Euthymius) such as thought Herod to be Christ. r Other affirme, that they were souldiers of Herod, or as our translation here, seruants of Herod, s not of Herod the Tetrach, but of Herod the King. t Factors in his Court for the Romane tribute; for Herod fauoured the taxes of Cæsar, and they flattered Herod. A sect altogether opposite to the Pharisies in the question about u tribute: for whereas the Pharisies alway pretended the good of Gods Temple, the Herodians on the contrary contended for the benefit of Cæsars Exchequer; and yet both agreed and tooke counsell together against the Lord and against his annointed, Psal. 2. 2. See Gospell Sunday 18. after Trinitie.

n Caluin. Ludolphus ex Chrysost.
o Anselm.
p In loc.
q In Matt. 12.
r Hieron. & Chrysost.
s Iansen. Concord. cap. 116.
t Maldonat. in loc.
u Ioseph antiquit lib. 18. c. 2.

Master, we know that thou art true] x That a man may speake freely the truth, he must haue knowledge, zeale, boldnesse. All which our Sauiours aduersaries ascribe to him here. Knowledge of the truth, in that he was a master and taught the way of God. Zeale and loue to the truth, in that he was true, teaching truly. Boldnesse, in that he respected not the person of any. Where by the way y Diuines obserue the commendable parts of a good Pastor: First, he must be for his learning a master, able to teach, z apt to teach, a a guide to the blinde, a light to them that are in darknesse. Secondly, he must be true: which c Ardens applieth to pureness of life; but b Marlorat is of opinion that the words, and teachest truly the way of God, expound the clause, thou art true. Thirdly, c he must not vtter his owne dreame, or the d vision of his owne heart, but teach the way to God. e If any man speake, let him talke as the words of God. Fourthly, he must haue f certainty of doctrine, teaching the truth aright, or truly. For so saith the Lord, He that hath my word let him speake my word faithfully, Ierem. 23. 28. And Rom 12. 6. If any man haue the gift of prophecie, let him haue it according to the proportion of faith. Fiftly, he must be stout in deliuering Gods ambassage, not caring for any man, &c. Ezech. 2. 6. Sonne of man, feare them not, g cry aloud, spare not, lift vp thy voice like a trumpet, and shew my people their transgression, and to the house of Iacob their sinnes.

x Thom & Pontan. in loc.
y Ardens. Caluin. Vega.
z 1 Tim. 3. 2.
a Rom. 2. 19.
b In loc.
c Kilius.
d Ier. 23. 16.
e 1 Pet. 4. 11.
f Heming.
g Esay 58. 1.

Now the Pharisies vttered all this proem out of h impudent flatterie: i Their words were softer then butter, hauing warre in their hearts, and smoother then oyle, yet were they very swords; calling Christ master, and yet scorning to be his schollers: Iohn 9. 28. Be thou his disciple (say they to the blinde) we be Moses

h Euthym.
i Psal. 55. 22.

Moſes diſciples. Affirming here that he was true, but [k] elſe-where that he deceiueth the people; ſaying vpon this occaſion that he taught the way of God: but at another time quite contrary, [l] this man is not of God. Highly commending his vndaunted ſpirit, that they might hereby prouoke him either to ſpeake treaſonable words againſt Cæſar, or inſupportable words againſt the people.

Is it lawfull that tribute be giuen vnto Cæſar, or no?] God ordained in his [m] law, that euery man of twentie yeeres old and aboue, ſhould yeerely giue halfe a ſhekle, as an offering to the Lord, towards the reparation of his houſe and other pious vſes. And this collection, as [n] Melanchthon coniecturally, did amount euery yeere to three tunne of gold. Now when the Romanes had conquered the Iewes, and made them, as we reade Luke 2. tributary; this mony giuen vnto the Temple, was payed into [o] Cæſars Exchequer. Hereupon there did ariſe firſt a great diſputation among the chiefe Prieſts and Phariſies, whether it was lawfull to pay this tribute vnto Cæſar, or no. Then afterward enſued open rebellion among the people, Iudas of Galile being their Captaine, as Saint Luke mentioneth, Acts 5.37. For this [p] Iudas Galilæus conſpiring with one Sadducus a Phariſie, drew away much people with him, openly maintaining againſt the faction of Herod, that this exaction of the Romane Emperor was intolerable, contrary to the lawes of God and immunities of the Iewes his free people. By which it doth appeare, that the quære concerning Cæſars tribute was exceeding captious, and a meere Dilemma. [p] For if Chriſt had anſwered, it is lawfull, the Phariſies had accuſed him vnto the chiefe Prieſts, as being all for the Temple: but if he ſhould haue ſaid, it is vnlawfull, the ſeruants of Herod would haue [r] deliuered him vnto the ſecular power of the Gouernour, as a ſeditious fellow, peruerting the people, and forbidding to pay tribute to Cæſar, Luke 23.2. [t] If he ſhould haue diſputed againſt the tribute, he had offended Cæſar: if for the tribute, diſpleaſed the people, who did beare this burden againſt their wils. And ſo the Phariſies might haue had a gap opened to deſtroy him, if the people did abandon him. It both appeared eminent danger, if not death. Hitherto concerning the Phariſies queſtion, hearken now to Chriſts anſwer.

But Ieſus perceiuing their wickednesſe.] Or as [t] S. Marke, their hypocriſie: or as [u] S. Luke, their craftineſſe. For, [x] There is no wiſdome, neither vnderſtanding, nor counſell againſt the Lord. Wherefore Chriſt [y] as God ſeeing their hypocriticall humour, and vnderſtanding their trecherous intent, accommodates his anſwer, [z] non ad eorum verba blanda, ſed ad eorum corda praua, to the foule malice of their minde, and not to the faire words of their mouth. Obiecting againſt them [a] foure faults eſpecially: Firſt, folly, noted in the word why? For if I am (as you ſay) true, then I am God, becauſe [b] euery man is a liar, and only God true, yea truth it ſelfe, Iohn 14.6. and if I be the Sonne of God, I can eaſily make your wiſdome [c] fooliſhneſſe. Secondly, treachery, why tempt ye? Thirdly, ingratitude, why tempt ye me, who teach vnto you the way of God truly, [d] deſiring often to gather your children together, euen as the Hen gathereth her Chickens vnder her wings, and ye would not. Fourthly, Diſſimulation, ye hypocrites. Hauing thus in a trice confounded them, he proceeds in the next clauſe to confute them, euen by their [e] owne words and deeds, as the ſouldiers of [f] Tymotheus were wounded with the points of their owne ſwords. For, ſaith he, ſhew me the tribute money: and they tooke him a penny, and he ſaid vnto them, whoſe is this Image and ſuperſcription? They ſaid vnto him, Cæſars. Then he ſaid vnto them, Giue therefore to Cæſar, &c. [g] As if he ſhould ſay, your ſelues haue let in the Romanes, acknowledging [h] no King but Cæſar. And in token of your homage, you ſay that the currant coine among you beares his image and ſuperſcription, and therefore ſeeing Cæſar by conqueſt hath made himſelfe Lord ouer you, giue to Cæſar the things which are Cæſars, and vnto God the things which are Gods.

In which one ſentence we may note many profitable leſſons, as firſt, [i] that it is our duty to giue euery one his owne: [k] tribute, to whom tribute: cuſtome, to whom cuſtome: feare, to whom feare: honour, to whom honour. [l] Deo religionem, [k] Iohn 12.7.

[l] Iohn 9.16.
[m] Exod.30.13. 14.&c.
[n] Commen. in Matth.22.
[o] Melanct. vbi ſup & Zepper. com. 1. in loc.
[p] Ioſeph. Antiquit. lib.18. c.1.
[q] Ardens.
[r] Luk.20.20.
[t] Luther. Heming.
[t] Cap.12.15.
[u] Cap.20.23.
[x] Prou.21.30.
[y] Aretius.
[z] Iacob. de Vorag.
[a] Pontan.
[b] Rom.3.4.
[c] Iob 5.13.
[d] Matth.23.37
[e] Muſculus. Aretius.
[f] 2 Mac.12.22.
[g] Lutber. Culman.
[h] Iohn 19.15. Caluin.
[i] Muſculus.
[k] Rom.13.7.
[l] Ardens.

religionem, ſibi munditiam, parentibus honorem, familiaribus prouidentiam, filijs correctionem, fratribus amorem, Dominis ſubiectionem, ſubiectis benignitatem, omnibus æquitatem. Vnto God the things of God, vnto men the things appertaining to men, and vnto the [m] deuill himſelfe that which is his due, charging him with all our ſinne and iniquitie. Secondly, from hence we learne, that the ſpirituall kingdome of the Church, and the ciuill kingdome of Cæſar, are [n] diſtinct and ſeparate, that (albeit they be both of God) [o] each of them being included in his bond, may not enter vpon the borders of the other. A [p] Prince may not miniſter the Sacrament, nor a Prieſt manage the ſcepter. Thirdly, [q] this Scripture ſheweth euidently that the kingdome of Chriſt abrogates not the kingdome of Cæſar, but that the Goſpell is a good friend vnto Common-weales, in teaching Princes how to gouerne, and the people how to be ſubiect vnto the higher powers. It is not Chriſt and his word, but Antichriſt and the Pope, who deny to Cæſar, the thing, which are Cæſars, abſoluing the ſubiect from his allegeance to his Soueraigne, [r] Cæſari ſublata non reddit, & (quod caput eſt iniuriæ) defendit non reddenda, tollere ea potuiſſe ſe, poſſe etiam iam, cum volet, quoties volet, atq; apud ſe detinere, ad ſe enim non ad Cæſarem pertinere. This intruſion vpon the things of Cæſar, is thought vniuſt and vncouth, euen by the Sorbon and Parliament of Paris in France, by the Common-wealth of Venice, by the Seminary Prieſts in England; in a word, diſtaſted of all Popelings in the world, except the ſerpentine brood hatched of the Spaniſh egge Ignatius Loiala. Read the bookes of Watſon, eſpecially Quodlibet 8. art. 7. 8. Barclai of the authoritie of the Pope: Roger. Widdrington Apolog. pro iure Principum: Sheldons generall reaſons proouing the lawfulneſſe of the Oath of Allegiance. The ready pens of our accurately learned Cæſar and his iudicious Diuines haue ſo foiled in this argument the Popes Bullbegger Cardinall Bellarmine, that it may be ſaid of him aptly, which once [t] Caſſanæus of the whole Romane Empire, nihil in principio fortius, nihil in fine debilius.

Giue therefore to Cæſar the things which are Cæſars] [s] He ſaith not date: but reddite, becauſe tribute is due debt vnto Cæſar. And if we muſt pay tribute to Cæſar a Paynim Emperour: [u] much more to Chriſtian Kings and Queenes [x] which are nurſing fathers, and nurſing mothers vnto the Church. If we deny this dutie we are no better (if father [y] Latimer be Iudge) then theeues. Alway prouided, that we reſerue to God ſuch things as are Gods, and giue to Cæſar only ſuch things as are Cæſars: for [z] it is not ſaid here, reddite Cæſari quæ petit: ſed quæ ſunt illius. Now the things of Cæſar are principally [a] three: Honour, obedience, tribute. We muſt honour them as the [b] Miniſters and [c] Angels of God, as the [d] ſhepherds and [e] ſhields of his people, vnder whoſe [f] ſhadowing boughes our neſts are built, and our young brought forth. And in this reſpect alſo we muſt obey Cæſar in ſuch things as are Cæſars: but if Cæſar intrude vpon the things of God, and coyne a new Creed, or broch another Goſpell, it is better to obey God then man, Act. 4. 19 The Lawes [g] order requiring that firſt we giue to God the things which are Gods, and then vnto men the things of men. See Epiſt 4 Sunday after Epiphanie.

As for the tributes of Cæſar, if they be iuſt and reſonable, we muſt pay them as his wages: if vniuſt and vnreaſonable, we muſt [h] beare them as our puniſhment. We may refell his arguments in Parliament, and repell his oppreſſion according to courſes of Law: but we may not in any caſe rebell with the ſword. And yet (as Melanchthon and other vpon this Text) Cæſar himſelfe is bound to keepe the Commandement, Thou ſhalt not ſteale, remembring alway that Almighty God hath made him a ſhepherd, and not a wolfe; a nurſing father, and not a curſing tyrant; a [i] deliuerer, and not a deuourer of his people. [k] Remota iuſtitia quid ſunt regna niſi magna latrocinia? quoniam & ipſa latrocinia quid ſunt niſi parua regna? [l] Saint Ambroſe notably to the ſame purpoſe, Quod Cæſar præcipit ferendum eſt, quod imperator indicit tolerandum eſt: ſed fit intolerabile dum illud præda exactionis accumulat. The gracious Apothegme of [m] our noble Soueraigne to his deareſt ſonne Henry the Prince is worthy to be written in letters of gold,

Inrich

[m] Euthym. in loc.
[n] Heming. Calman.
[o] Barclaius de authoritate Pape, cap. 2.
[p] Anglican. Confeſſ. art. 37. explained in the concluſion of Queene Eliz Iniunctions. Idem Dr. Fulke in loc.
[q] Zepper. Aretius. Aquin. 2 2. quæſt. 10. 4. art. 6.
[r] Elienſis ad apolog. Bellar. reſpon. cap. 2. pag. 71.
[s] Catalog. glor. mundi, part. 5. conſiderat. 28.
[t] Euthym. Ianſen.
[u] Bullinger. Beza.
[x] Eſay 49 23.
[y] Serm. at Stamford.
[z] Feruſerm. 2. in loc.
[a] Melanct. Com. in loc. Idem Zepper. & Culman.
[b] Rom. 13 4.
[c] 2 Sam. 14. 17.
[d] Num. 27. 17.
[e] Pſal. 47. 9.
[f] Ezech 31. 3. 6.
[g] Melanct. Com in loc. Idem Erasmus in para.
[h] Luther. Zepper. Melanct. poſtil. in loc.
[i] 2 King. 13. 5.
[k] Auguſt. de ciuit. l. 4 c. 4.
[l] Serm. 7.
[m] Baſil. Dor. l. 2. pag. 99.

Inrich not your ſelfe with exactions vpon your ſubiects: but thinke the riches of your people, your beſt treaſure.

Vnto God thoſe things which are Gods] [n] As if he ſhould ſay: Ye Phariſies are carefull for the money of the Temple, but in the meane while ye neglect the diuine worſhip and word of God. [o] Ye giue to Cæſar the penny that hath his inſcription and image: why then, I pray, conſecrate ye not to God your ſoule, wherein is imprinted Gods image and ſuperſcription? How Chriſtians are Gods penny, hauing his image by creation, and inſcription in holy baptiſme, whereby Chriſt [p] writeth his name in their foreheads, and ſo markes them as it were for the children of God, and inheritors of the kingdome of heauen: See Ludolphus de vita Chriſti part. 2. cap. 35 Ardens, Muſculus, Pontan, Ferus in loc.

If we now conforme our ſelues according to Chriſts Image, he ſhall hereafter (as it is in this daies Epiſtle) transforme our vile body, that it may be like his glorious body, [q] for as we haue borne the image of the earthly, ſo ſhall we beare the image of the heauenly. Take heed therefore that Sathan imprint not his ſtampe in you, becauſe Chriſt at the [r] laſt day will ſay to thy ſoule, as he did to the Phariſies here: whoſe is this image and inſcription? If thou be branded with the [ſ] marks of Sathan and Antichriſt, hell is thy portion; if [t] ſealed by the holy ſpirit of God vnto the day of redemption, heauen is thine inheritance. Giue then vnto Cæſar the things which are Cæſars, [u] leaue to the world the things of the world, that thou maiſt the better giue to God the things of God. [x] Or giue to thy body ſuch things as are neceſſary tribute, and to thy ſoule ſuch things as are conuenient and profitable for thy ſoule. Or giue to thy Paſtor ſuch things as are the Paſtors, and vnto the Prince ſuch things as appertaine to thy Prince, [y] that thou maiſt leade a quiet and a peaceable life in all godlineſſe and honeſtie. Remember the prouerbe, He that eats the Kings Gooſe, ſhall haue the feathers ſticke in his throat ſeuen yeeres after: and obſerue the Commandement, Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy daies may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giueth thee.

When they heard theſe words, they maruelled, and left him, and went their way] This happy conqueſt of Chriſt is full of [z] conſolation, in that his ſpirit [a] dwelleth in vs, and [b] ſpeaketh in vs, helping our infirmities, and inabling vs in our diſputations afore Kings and Councels to plead the Goſpels cauſe ſo powerfully, that he [c] who dwelleth in heauen ſhall laugh his enemies to ſcorne, yea the Lord ſhall haue them in deriſion. When the [d] Libertines and Cyrenians diſputed with Saint Stephen, they were not able to reſiſt the wiſdome and the ſpirit by which he ſpake. So the godly learned and truly ſtout Martyr of Ieſus Chriſt, Maſter Iohn Philpot, at a [e] conference holden in Biſhop Boners houſe, told Doctor Morgan plainly, Thou art not able to anſwer that ſpirit of truth which ſpeakes in me, for the defence of Chriſts true religion. I am able by the might thereof to driue thee round about this Gallerie before me. So ſilly women and young boyes endued and ſtrengthened by the ſpirit, in the quarrell of Chriſt argued ſo peremptorily, ſo profoundly, that Boner as being too wicked to diſmiſſe them, and too weake to conuince them, ordinarily forſaking all his Logicke and Rhetoricke, [f] knocks them downe with the butcherly axe of his ſentence. So we read in [g] Euſebius, of a ſubtile Philoſopher, and being an extreme aduerſary to Chriſt and his doctrine, could by no kinde of learning be conuerted vnto the faith: but was able to withſtand all arguments that could be brought againſt him, euen with little or no labour. At length there ſtarted vp a poore ſimple man of ſmall wit, and leſſe knowledge, one that was reputed among the learned as an idiot: and hee on Gods name would needs take in hand to diſpute with this proud Philoſopher. The Biſhops and other Diuines ſtanding by, were much abaſhed at the matter, as fearing that they ſhould be brought to ſhame by his doings, he notwithſtanding goeth on, and beginning in the name of the Lord Ieſus, brought the Philoſopher to ſuch a point in the end, that he could not chuſe but acknowledge the power of God in his words, and to giue place to the truth.

The [n] Melanct. Zepper.

[o] Eraſmus annot. in loc.
[p] Apoc. 22. 4.
[q] 1 Cor 15. 49.
[r] Ludolphus.
[ſ] Apocal. 13.
[t] Epheſ. 4. 30.
[u] Ambroſ. in Luc. cap 20.
[x] Origen apud Thom. in loc.
[y] 1 Tim. 2. 2.
[z] Luther. Zepper.
[a] Rom 8. 9.
[b] Mat. 10 20.
[c] Pſal 2. 4.
[d] Act 6. 9. 10.
[e] Examination 11 as M. Fox in his martyrdome.
[f] M. Fox in the martyrdome of Ioane Hornes.
[g] Hiſt lib 10 cap. 3 cited in part. 1. Church horn for Whitſunday.

The Epiſtle. COLOSS. 1.3. vnto v.13

We giue thankes to God the Father of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, &c.

THis proem of Pauls Epiſtle to the Coloſſians is in effect [h] all one with that to the Corinthians, expounded Sunday 18. after Trinitie: and to the Philippians, expounded Sunday 22. after Trinitie. Wherefore leſt I ſeeme tedious in tautologies, I will onely part it, and ſo depart hence to the Goſpell enſuing.

It conſiſts of [i] two parts, 1 Congratulation, for their gifts in preſent poſſeſſion, and in it

Who: verſe 1. Paul an Apoſtle, not of [k] men, but of Ieſus Chriſt. Not through his owne [l] intruſion, or for his owne [m] merit: but by the will of God. And Timotheus his brother: in reſpect of their [n] common faith on earth, and common Father in heauen.

When: Alwayes praying: or as our tranſlation, alwayes in our prayers. As [p] often in our deuotion, as we thinke of you, we thanke God for you, ſince the day we firſt heard of your faith, verſ. 4. 9.

To whom: vnto God and the Father of our Lord, &c. that is, as we read, to God euen the Father. Or to God [q] as the Father of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, in [r] whom only God is well pleaſed. As if he ſhould ſay, ſeeing euery [ſ] gift is from God, and beſtowed on vs for Chriſt: it is our bounden dutie to thanke God the Father of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, alwayes in all our prayers; [t] able to heare, becauſe God, for that is a ſtile of [u] maieſtie; willing to helpe, becauſe the Father of Ieſus, for that is a ſtile of mercie.

For whom: For you, becauſe [x] loue doth not enuy, but reioyce for others good. For you Saints at Coloſſe, verſ. 2. that is, Saints by [y] calling, all ſuch as are conſecrated to God in holy [z] baptiſme, [a] ſanctified by the ſanctifying Spirit. In a word, [b] all the faithfull in Coloſſe.

Faith, and that a true faith, hauing Chriſt Ieſus for the [c] proper obiect, and wholly relying vpon his [d] merits.

Loue, and that according to [e] knowledge, louing eſpecially the Saints, and thoſe not few, but without [f] exception of perſon, in reſpect of [g] bloud, affinitie, faſhion, or faction, all.

For what: As Aretius for the 3. principall vertues of a Chriſtian:

Hope, and that an aſſured hope, expecting an inheritance, that is [h] laid vp in ſtore; and that in a ſure [i] and ſecure place (where [k] neither the moth nor canker corrupteth, and where theeues neither digge thorow nor ſteale) in heauen. As [l] S. Peter interprets Paul, an inheritance immortall and vndefiled, and that fadeth not away, reſerued in heauen. All which is conueyed vnto them by the preaching of the Goſpell, here commended à [m] veritate, dilatatione, profectu. That is in two words, in reſpect of it

- Contents, as being the word of truth, verſe 5.
- Extents, as being come to all the world, and fruitfull in all good workes, verſ. 6.

Compreation, for their further increaſe and future proficience [n] in

- Plentifull wiſdome and ſpirituall vnderſtanding, whereby to know the will of God, verſ. 9.
- Fruitfull obedience, whereby to doe the will of God, walking worthy of the Lord, verſ. 10. that is, as becommeth his [o] Goſpell, and his [p] glory, pleaſing him in all things, &c.
- Cheerefull patience, whereby to ſuffer according to the will of God, and that with ioyfulneſſe, verſe 11.

The

[h] Sarcerius. Aretius.

[i] Melanct. Zanchius.
[k] Gal. 1.1.
[l] Sarcerius.
[m] Primaſius.
[n] Zanchius.

[o] Caietan. Aretius. Marlorat.

[q] Caluin. Beza.
[r] Matth. 13.17
[ſ] Iames 1.17.

[t] Lombard.
[u] Bullinger apud Marlorat.

[x] 1 Cor. 13.4.
[y] 1 Cor 1.12.
[z] Theophylact.
[a] Aretius.
[b] Piſcator.

[c] Caluin.
[d] Bullinger.
[e] Philip 1.9.
[f] Primaſius.
[g] Caietan.

[h] Herein alluding to carefull parents hoording vp treaſure for their babes: vti Zanchius in loc.
[i] Lombard. Anſelm.
[k] Matth. 6. 20.
[l] 1 Pet. 1.4.
[m] Aquin.

[n] Zanchius.
[o] Philip. 1.27.
[p] Lombard. Anſelm.

The difference betweene patience & long ſuffering may be, that the firſt is [q] circa graniora pericula; the ſecond, circa leuiora. [r] The one teacheth vs to forbeare when we can reuenge; the other, to beare when we cannot reuenge. Or patience [s] leuelleth as it were the minde in our preſent affliction, which is but for a moment; long ſuffering exalteth in it expectation of our future [t] farre moſt excellent and eternall weight of glorie, when as we ſhall he made partakers of the inheritance of the Saints in light, verſe 12. Spirituall vnderſtanding is moſt vſefull in our contemplatiue life, obedience in our actiue, patience needfull in both. And therefore let vs pray with Paul here to the father of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, that we may be ſtrengthened with all might, through his glorious power, vnto all patience and long ſuffering with ioyfulneſſe, &c.

[q] Aretius.
[r] Theophilact.
[s] Caietan.
[t] 2 Cor. 4.17.

The Goſpell. MATTH. 9. 18. vnto v. 27

While Ieſus ſpake vnto the people, behold, there came a certaine ruler, and worſhipped him, ſaying, my daughter is euen now deceaſed, &c.

TWo points are to be conſidered in this Goſpell eſpecially, the
- Goodneſſe of Chriſt, in releeuing all ſexes and all ſorts of men, hearing a ruler who was rich and a Iew, healing a woman who was poore and a Gentile. Comforting a diſtreſſed father, recouering a diſeaſed woman, raiſing a deceaſed damoſell.
- Lewdneſſe of the people, ver. 24. laughing Chriſt to ſcorne.

In the firſt miracle wrought vpon the woman which had an iſſue of bloud, note circumſtance of
- Time: verſ. 22. the woman was made whole euen the ſame time.
- Place: verſ 19.20 in the way to Iairus houſe.
- Perſon,
  - To whom.
  - Before whom.
  - By whom this worke was done.

In the ſecond miracle three perſons are remarkable: the
- Phyſitian, Chriſt.
- Patient, a deceaſed Damoſell.
- Mediator betweene both, A certaine Ruler.

In that Chriſt healed the ſicke woman inſtantly, ſo ſoone as ſhe beleeued in him, and he ſaw her: he teacheth vs [u] hereby not to deferre any work of charity but to do good turnes in a good time. [x] Say not vnto thy neighbour, go and come againe, & to morrow will I giue thee, if thou haue it now, for hope that is deferred, is the fainting of the heart: but when the deſire commeth it is a Tree of life, Prou. 13.12. And in that our bleſſed Sauiour cured this woman, in the way to Iairus houſe: he giueth vs an [y] example, to ſpend all our houres profitably, [z] neuer intermitting any fit opportunitie to do good, redeeming the time becauſe the daies are euill, Epheſ. 5.16.

In the party to whom, obſerue firſt her griefe, then his grace. She was a [a] fearefull and ſilly woman, vexed with an vncleane and vncomfortable diſeaſe twelue yeeres, in ſuch ſort that (as S. Marke reports in his fifth Chapter, verſ. 26.) ſhe ſuffered many things of many Phyſitians: ſome torturing her with one medicine, ſome with another, and yet none did her any good, but rather much hurt. For as [b] other Euangeliſts haue recorded this hiſtorie more fully, ſhe ſpent all that ſhe had, and it auailed her nothing, but ſhe became much worſe. Whereby ſhe was made bis miſera (ſaith [c] Eraſmus) or as [d] Hemingius, many waies vnhappy. For her ſickneſſe brought her to weakneſſe, her weakneſſe to phyſicke, phyſicke to beggerie, beggerie to contempt. And haply remorſe of conſcience made theſe worldly grieuances more bitter: for whereas the [e] Wiſe-man affirmes, He that ſinneth before his Maker, ſhall fall into the hands of the Phyſitian: ſhe might peraduenture conceiue that God had caſt her away. This (as you ſee) was her hard caſe, vexed in minde, troubled in body, beggered in her eſtate, deſpiſed in her place.

From hence we may note, firſt, againſt [f] Ambroſe, [g] that this afflicted woman was not Martha the ſiſter of Mary, becauſe Martha was rich, as we finde in [u] Ferus. Diez in loc.

[x] Prou. 3 28.
[y] Ludolphus ex Chryſoſt.
[z] B. Latymer. Serm. vpon this Goſpell.
[a] Luk. 8.47.
[b] Mark 5 26. Luk 8.43.
[c] Paraph. in loc.
[d] Poſtil in loc.
[e] Eccleſ. 38.15.
[f] Lib de Solomone cap 5. Idem aliy ſentiunt apud Ludolphum de vita Chriſti, part 1. cap. 40.
[g] Beauxamis Har. Tom. 2. fol. 160.

the [h] Gospels historie, whereas this Hæmorrhoussa had wasted all her wealth vpon Physicians.

Secondly, by this example you see, [i] what an inestimable iewell health is, in that this Hæmorrhoussa willingly became a begger in her estate to be better at ease. Vita non est viuere, sed valere; it is more comfortable to die quickly, than to liue sickly. [k] Theophylact, [l] Eusebius, and [m] other report, that this woman healed of her bloudie flux, and returned home to Cæsarea Philippi, did erect against her owne doores a brazen image of Christ, in perpetuall remembrance of this great benefit It is our dutie likewise to blesse God alway for his blessings in this kinde.

Thirdly, in that our father in heauen, after long sickenesse, sendeth at the last, happy deliuerance to his children: it may teach vs in all our distresse, neuer to distrust his mercy, but to say with [n] Iob, though he slay me, yet will I trust in him. And with, [o] Iacob, I will not let thee goe, except thou blesse me. [p] Tobie was blinde eight yeeres, and then the Lord restored his sight againe. S. Luke reports in his [q] Gospell, how a crooked woman, after she was bowed together eighteene yeers, in such sort that she could not lift vp her selfe in any wise, was made strait and loosed from her infirmitie. Kilius in his explication of this text, saith he was acquainted with a man who lay twenty yeeres bedred, and of those twenty foureteene vpon one side, who notwithstanding afterward married, and begat children, and liued in perfect health a long time. [r] S. Iohn mentioneth a certaine man made whole, which had beene diseased eight and thirty yeeres. And Acts 3. we read of a Creeple from his mothers wombe, whose feet and ancle-bones receiued strength in so great measure, that he could stand, and walke and leape. Here this woman had a bloudy flux twelue yeeres, and yet Christ as soone as shee touched his vesture, said, Daughter, be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole, &c.

Hitherto concerning her greeuances: I come now to her graces, and they be principally three: Faith, Inuocation, Humilitie. Which [s] Aquin notes out of three words in the Text, Credidit, dixit, tetigit: quia his tribus, fide, verbo, & opere omnis salus acquiritur. Her faith was so great, that she certainly perswaded her selfe, if she might but touch only the hem of Christs garment, she should attaine her former health. Our blessed Sauiour cried often in the [t] streets among the people, [u] Come to me all that are laden, and I will ease you. Now [x] surely this woman heard this gracious promise, beleeuing it to be true in generall, and applying it to her selfe, in particular. He calleth all men, & promiseth he will refresh all such as are combred; I am one of that all, one of those which are heauy laden, I therefore verily beliene that he will heare me & heale me. Let vs in like sort stir vp our faith in all aduersitie, when any trouble without, or terror within assaulteth vs, and it alone shall [y] quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. Haply some will obiect, This woman had Christ in her eye, present at her fingers end, but I poore soule, may complaine with [z] Mary Magdalene, They haue taken away the Lord, and he is now gone farre from vs. Against this tentation of the flesh, oppose the word of Christ vnto [a] Thomas his Apostle, Blessed are they which haue not seene & haue beleeued, and his promise to all his followers, [b] I am with you alway vntill the end of the world, with vs in his Sacraments, in his word, by his power, and Spirit, and grace: being a [c] very present helpe in all affliction vnto such as call vpon him, I say, such as call vpon him faithfully. Wherefore [d] draw neere to him, and he will draw neere to thee; come to him, and call vpon him (as this woman here) with a stedfast hope, no way doubting of his might and mercies, and his Spirit shall [e] assure thy spirit, that thou art his childe, and that thy faith hath made thee safe.

The second vertue noted in this woman, is her inuocation or manner of praying. The Ruler in my Text worshipped Christ, and said, my daughter is now euen deceased, &c. The [f] Canaanite called after him, Haue mercie vpon me, O Lord, the sonne of Dauid. And blinde [g] Bartimæus also cryed vnto him, O sonne of Dauid, and being rebuked, he cried much more, Sonne of Dauid haue mercy on me. But this is [h] shamefast woman, [i] as blushing to publish her vncleannesse afore the whole multitude, and fearing haply that she should haue beene thrust out of the company

[h] Iohn cap. 11. & 12.
[i] Kilius in loc.
[k] In loc.
[l] Hist. l 7. c. 14.
[m] Sozomen & Nicephorus apud Vegam, & Zepperum in loc.
[n] Iohn 13. 15.
[o] Gen. 32. 26.
[p] Tobit c. 14. 2.
[q] Luk. 13. 11, 12.
[r] Cap. 6 v. 59.
[s] Caten. Aurea in loc.
[t] Prou. 1. 21.
[u] Matth. 11. 28
[x] Heming.
[y] Ephes. 6. 16.
[z] Iohn 20. 2.
[a] Iohn 20. 29.
[b] Matth. 28. 20
[c] Psal. 46. 1.
[d] Iames 4. 8.
[e] Rom. 8. 16.
[f] Matth 15 22.
[g] Mark. 10. 48.
[h] B Laymer.
[i] Euth. m. in 8. Luc & Theophylact. in loc.

company for impuritie, ſpeakes not a word to Chriſt openly, but prayeth only to her ſelfe in ſecret: If I may but touch euen his garment I ſhall be whole. Wiſhes are her words, and ſobs her ſacrifices, and yet Chriſt heares her groanes, and grants her hearts deſire, ſaying, Daughter be of good comfort, &c. Inſinuating [k] hereby, that the praier which pierceth the clouds, is not a wagging of the lips, not a babling of the tongue: but rather an humble [l] lifting vp of thy ſoule to God. Offer then vnto Chriſt, a [m] rent and a [n] broken heart, in ſeeking thy Sauiour heartily, praying heartily, repenting heartily; that he may turne to thee, and turne his iudgements away from thee, ſaying to thy ſoule, [o] I am thy ſaluation.

The third vertue commended in this woman, is her diſcreet [p] humilitie, who knowing her owne vnworthineſſe, and conſidering her loathſome ſickneſſe, did not preſume to come before, but behinde Chriſt, as it were [q] ſtealing her health. And this her relique is worth our obſeruing alſo: for as pride is the firſt ſtop; ſo lowlineſſe the firſt ſtep vnto bleſſednesſe. It is an eminent grace for a man ſpeaking with the tongues of Angels, to tranſport his audience with the winde of words, and clouds of eloquence whither he liſt: and yet if learning be not ſeaſoned with humilitie, it rather [r] bloweth vp then buildeth vp, and as the [s] Philoſopher ſaid, is no better then a ſword in a mad mans hand. Prophecying is an excellent gift, but if any preach themſelues, and goe before Chriſt [t] auouching the viſion of their owne hearts, and not following after Chriſt in deliuering out of his mouth his errand faithfully: what are they but as a [u] ſounding braſſe or as a tinkling cymball? In running after delight, riches, honour: come behinde Chriſt, euermore treading his waies, and touching the hemme of his veſture.

The perſons before whom, are the Ruler, verſ. 18. the Diſciples, verſ. 19. and a great multitude, Marke 5. 24. Chriſt acted this miracle before Iairus, [x] for the ſtrengthening of his weake faith; encouraging him herby to beleeue, that he could recouer his daughter, as well as cure this woman. Afore the Diſciples and the multitude, for the confirmation of his doctrine, ſhewing [y] herby that he knew the ſecrets of all hearts, as alſo [z] that the liuely faith of this Hæmorrhouſa might not be concealed, but openly commended as an example for all men. And therefore Ieſus enquired immediately, [a] who hath touched my cloathes? and he looked round about, to ſee her, and when the woman ſaw that ſhe was not hid, ſhe came trembling, and fell downe before him, and told him afore all the people, for what cauſe ſhe had touched him, and how ſhe was healed inſtantly. The briefe whereof is recorded hereby Saint Matthew, When he ſaw her, he ſaid, Daughter be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole. Propounding her as a [b] Schoole-miſtreſſe to all the world, to learne by her how to truſt in God, and to come to Chriſt in all manner of afflictions.

The perſon by whom, is Chriſt, and in him obſerue what he ſaid, and what he did. His words [c] containe conſolation, Daughter be of good comfort: and commendation, thy faith hath made thee ſafe. The word Daughter, is [d] magnæ familiaritatis: be of good comfort, magnæ ſecuritatis: Thy faith hath made thee ſafe, magnæ iocunditatis. Here then are ſet downe three notable effects of a liuely faith; it maketh vs the children of God, Daughter: it brings comfort, be of good cheere: it procures ſaluation of body and ſoule, thy faith hath made thee whole.

Chriſt ſaid in the [e] Goſpell, I aſcend to my father, and vnto your father. Vnto my father by [f] nature, but vnto your father by grace: [g] non ait, aſcendo ad patrem noſtrum: aliter ergo meum, aliter veſtrum: naturâ meum, gratiâ veſtrum. And this adoption of the Father electing, of the Sonne redeeming, of the Holy Ghoſt aſſuring vs that we are the children of the moſt high, is on our part, by faith only. For [h] vnto ſuch as receiued him, he gaue power to be the ſonnes of God, euen to ſuch as beleeue in his name. Ideo filia, quia fides tua te ſaluam fecit, as S. Hierome vpon my Text. This woman is Chriſts daughter in that her faith made her whole. Here then obſerue that a Chriſtian is moſt honourable, being a ſonne to a King, [i] brother to a King, [k] heire to a King, yea to the King of [l] glorie, to the King of all Kings [m] higher then the higheſt. He were a fooliſh poore man that were aſhamed of the kindred which the King did challenge of him: [n] he is more fooliſh

[k] Heming.
[l] Pſal. 25. 1.
[m] Ioel 2. 13.
[n] Pſal 51. 17.
[o] Pſal 35. 3.
[p] Culman. Ludolphus. Aretius.
[q] B. Latimer.
[r] 1 Cor 8. 1.
[s] Ariſtotle.
[t] Ier. 23. 16.
[u] 1 Cor. 13. 1.
[x] Theophylact. in loc. & Euthym in Luc. 8
[y] Ludolphus.
[z] Chryſoſt Theophylact. Euthym.
[a] Marke 5. 30. Luke 8. 45.
[b] B. Latymer.
[c] Zepper. Con. 1 in loc.
[d] Iacob. de Vorag. ſer. 2. in loc.
[e] Iohn 20 17.
[f] Theophylact. Euthym. Caietan in Ioan. 20.
[g] Auguſt. tract. 121. in Ioan.
[h] Iohn 1. 12.
[i] Heb. 2. 11.
[k] Rom 8. 17.
[l] Pſal 24. 7.
[m] Eccleſ 5. 7.
[n] Deering. lect. 10. Heb.

foolish though he were a King himselfe, that is ashamed of the Sonne of God, when he doth offer himselfe vnto him. For Christ is the [o] consolation of Israel, as it followeth in the next clause to be considered, he brings comfort to his children, Daughter be of good cheere. The reprobate account the children of God vnhappy wretches, euen [p] mad men, hauing them in derision as the [q] filth of the world. But as [r] Saluianus truly; nemo miser alieno sensu, sed suo; Men are not miserable for that other thinke so, vnlesse themselues feele it so. The children of God then hauing the [s] promises of this life and that which is to come, cheered in conscience while they liue, filled with eternall ioy when they be dead, haue both hereafter and here such comfort as [t] passeth all vnderstanding.

The last effect of a liuely faith is saluation of bodie and soule, Thy faith hath made thee safe. For whereas it is said here, The woman was made whole euen the same time: we must expound it (as [u] Anselme and [x] other intimate) not that she was healed at that houre when Iesus turned about to her, and spake, but in the same moment of time, wherein shee touched his vesture. [y] Non enim dixit fides tua te saluam facturа est, sed saluam te fecit: in eo enim quod credidisti, iam salua facta es. It was then her trust and not her touch, her faith and not her finger, which haled vnto her this health and helpe. For the multitude thrust Christ, and trode on him (as S. Luke reports) and yet only this woman is said to touch him. And [z] so when we come to Diuine Seruice, Sermon, or Sacrament without liuely faith, hearty deuotion, holy reuerence; we touch, his outward element, but take not his inward grace to the comfort of our soule. We do tangere panem Domini, touch his hemme, but not contingere panem Dominum, touch him. And the reason hereof is plaine, for that our faith and our fingers goe not together. And therefore, when they tread the Courts of the Lord, hearing his word, and receiuing his Sacraments: I say, when any come to the Chruch, and yet feele no vertue to come from Christ; it is assuredly, for that [a] their lips are neere vnto him, as it were, pressing among the multitude; but their hearts farre from him, not attending, much lesse attaining his sauing grace.

From [b] hence we may learne (against Arboreus, Maldonate, Beauxamie, and other Popish Authors in their Commentaries vpon this place) not to put any trust in the reliques of Saints, or impute any sauing vertue to the vestiments of our Sauiour. For the vertue which healed her went not out of any coat, but out of Christ immediatly: he said not, there is vertue proceeded from my vesture, but I perceiue that vertue is gone out of me, Luk. 8. 46. There was no great or extraordinarie vertue in his garments after his death, when the souldiers had parted them among them; nor in his life when he wore them, for the people that thronged him, receiued no benefit by them, but onely shee and they that touched him by faith. And therefore, [c] some by Christs garment vnderstand the Scriptures, in which our Sauiour is wrapped: but if a man vnfold them, he shall behold the best Crucifix that euer he saw: for Christ crucified is the end of all the Law, scope of all the Prophets, and as it were, hemme of all the Bible. [d] Rabans and [e] other affirme, that this garment was Christs humane nature, for he [f] tooke on him the shape of a seruant, and put on our ragges, that hee might clothe vs with his robes. Now the hemme of his humane nature was his passion, and his passion was a [g] sacrifice for our sinne: so that to touch the hemme of his garment, is nothing else, but to beleeue with [h] Paul, that Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners, of whom I am chiefe. Yea but haply some will obiect, it was neither the womans finger nor faith that made her whole, but Christs owne vertue, Luke 6. 19. The whole multitude sought to touch him, for there went vertue out of him, that healed them all. He might haue said, then it was my vertue, not thy faith? It is true, that Christs owne vertue and grace doth only cure the sins of our soule, and sores of our body: but his vertue is not apprehended, but by the finger of faith. And therefore Christ (as we read in [i] S. Marke) could doe no great worke in his owne country, because of their vnbeleefe, because they wanted an hand to touch his vesture. [k] Quantum enim vas fidei capacis afferimus, tantum

[o] Luk. 2. 25.
[p] Wisd. 5. 4.
[q] 1 Cor. 4. 13.
[r] Lib. 1 de guber. Dei.
[s] 1 Tim. 4. 8.
[t] Philip. 4.
[u] Enarrat. in loc.
[x] Zepper. Con. 1. in loc.
[y] Hieron. in loc.
[z] Ferus Con. 3. Granat. Con 2. & Zepper. Con. 1. in loc.
[a] Esay 29. 13.
[b] Latimer. Fulke. Zepper. in loc.
[c] Feruserm. in loc.
[d] Apud Thom. in loc.
[e] Ansel in loc.
[f] Phil. 2. 7.
[g] Heb. 9. 14.
[h] 1 Tim. 1. 15.
[i] Cap. 6. v. 5, 6.
[k] Cyprian apud Granat. Con. 1. in loc.

tantum gratiæ inundantis haurimus. Hence you may know both how Gods grace, and our faith is said to iustifie. Ye are saued by grace through faith, Ephes. 2. 8. by grace effectiue, by faith apprehensiue: See Epistle 17. Sunday after Trinitie.

Now faith in respect of it obiect, is called in [l] Scripture the faith of Iesus Christ: but in respect of the subiect in which it is [m] inherent, my faith and thy faith. As our Text here, thy faith hath made thee whole. By this which Christ said, is shewed also what he did, he spake the word and it was done, he commanded and it was effected, euen the same time the woman was made whole. In generall, to confirme his Gospell; in particular, intimating that all physicke is in vaine, [n] except the great Physician of the world (who visiteth and redeemeth his people) blesse it. So much of the parts and persons of the first miracle. Let vs now come to the second, and in it (according to the Texts order) inquire first of Iairus.

In whom obserue,
- First, his fashion, in that he was a
  - Ruler, as our Euangelist.
  - Ruler of a Synagogue, as Marke and Luke.
  - Ruler of a Synagogue in Capernaum, as may be collected out of them all.
- Then his faith, and the fruits thereof.
  1. His fatherly loue toward his daughter, in desiring helpe for her at Christs hand.
  2. Inuocation, and worshipped him.
  3. Hope, Come, and lay thine hand vpon her, &c.

A certaine Ruler] I haue shewed[o] often, how many great men haue beene good men, and that the Pharisies obiection is false, [p] Doth any of the Rulers beleeue in Christ? For he that keepeth Israel, hath in euery [q] age stirred vp as well Ecclesiasticall, as Ciuill Gouernours, to fauour his children, and further the businesse of the Gospell. I will vpon this occasion adde one thing onely, to the perpetuall honour of England, namely, that Constantine the Great, our Countrey-man, was the first Christian Emperour; Lucius, our Countrey-man, the first Christened King; Henry 8. our Country-man, the first Catholike Prince, that vtterly shaked off the Popes vnlimited iurisdiction in his Dominions; and our King Iames of blessed memory, the first of his ranke, who did oppose that Antichrist of Rome with his owne pen in the quarrell of Religion,

This Iairus was a Ruler of a Synagogue. Now that ye may the better vnderstand what office this was, I must informe you, that there was in all Iewry but one Temple, [r] where the people were commanded to celebrate their solemne feasts, and offer vp their sacrifices vnto God. And there was onely but one, for the preseruation of [s] vnitie in pietie, that there might be but one only religion, of one onely God, in one only Temple. Where by the way note, that vniformitie in discipline is an hedge to vnitie and doctrine. Where Canons and Iniunctions of order are despised, and euery man left vnto himselfe; there many times are so many Sects as Cities, and almost as many Gospels as gossips. On the contrary, when all things in the Church are done [t] orderly, when the Christian Magistrate enioynes in outward ceremonies one kinde of discipline for the publique worship of God: there, for the most part, an vnion in law breeds an vnion in loue, a conformitie in fashion an vniformitie in faith, [u] endeuouring to keepe the vnitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace, following the truth in loue. This I take to be the true reason, why Gods Israel had but one Tabernacle and one Temple.

But there were Synagogues in [x] euery towne, where diuine prayers and Gods holy word was read and expounded euery Sabbath, as Saint Luke recordeth, Acts 15. 21. And for this purpose there was a [y] Couent, or Colledge of Students, and sonnes of the Prophets, among which our Iairus here was a Ruler: as [z] Bishop Latimer imagineth, a Church-warden: or as other, [a] Decanus facultatis: or as other, an [b] Expounder of the Law and the Prophets, as it were publike Professour in Diuinitie, the [c] Prior of the place, the [d] Rector of the Schooles. Here then obserue both antiquitie and vtilitie of Colledges and Vniuersities, as being in [e] all ages the Nurseries of Gods vine-yard, out of which Impes of hope haue beene translated into the Church and Common-weale. So then if thou wish well

[l] Gal. 3. 22.
[m] Aretius in loc.
[n] B. Latymer. Kilius. Zepper.
[o] Gospell 3. Sund. after Epiphan. Trinit Sund. and 21 after Trinit.
[p] Iohn 7. 48.
[q] See Beauxamis. Har. tom. 1. fol. 160.
[r] Deut. 16.
[s] Melanct. postil in loc. Idem Hospinian. de origine templorum, cap. 4.
[t] 1 Cor. 14. 40.
[u] Ephes. 4. 3 15.
[x] Vide Sigon. de repub. Heb. lib. 2. cap 8. & Hospinian. vbi sup
[y] Melanct. post. in loc.
[z] Serm. vpon this Gospell.
[a] Maldonat. in loc.
[b] Melanct.
[c] Diez con. 1. in loc.
[d] Kilius.
[e] Vide Hospinian. de origine scholarum cap. 4. 5.

well vnto thy Countrey, ſpeake well, and (as occaſion is offered) doe well vnto the Schooles of the Prophets, in that they be Seminaries of learning, and fountaines of holy religion. If thy ſonne be fit, and thy ſelfe be fitted alſo for meanes and money, ſend him vnto Iairus the Ruler of the Synagogue. If he be fit, I ſay, for when a man is out of his proper calling in any Societie, it is as much as if a ioynt were diſlocated in the bodie. To make thy ſonne a trades man, if he be moſt apt for learning; or to ſend him to the Court, when he is fitter for the Cart: is as much as if a man ſhould apply his toes to feeling, and not his fingers, and to walke on his hands and not on his feet. It was a memorable fact of that famous Biſhop of Lincolne, Robert Groſthead, [f] who being vpon a time ſollicited to prefer his poore kinſman, and thereupon inquiring what condition of life he followed, and vnderſtanding that he was an husbandman: Why then (anſwered he) if his plough be broken, I will repaire it, or rather then faile beſtow a new vpon him, whereby he may goe on his courſe: but ſo to dignifie him, as to make him forſake his calling and trade wherein he was brought vp, I meane not to doe.

[f] Sir George Paul in the life of Archbiſhop Whitgift, p. 85.

Now that a father may the better accommodate his childe with a fit calling: he [g] muſt obſerue both his inclination and naturall gifts: Euery childe euen in his infancie, doth affect ſome one particular occupation or condition of life more than other: and therefore the iudicious [h] Athenians afore they placed their children in any calling, vſed to bring them into a publike place where tooles and inſtruments of all ſorts were laid; and then accurately to marke with what kinde of inſtrument they tooke delight, applying them afterward to the like Art with good ſucceſſe. And it is not amiſſe for Chriſtians to follow Heathens in this, or any like commendable practiſe.

[g] See Perkins treatiſe of Callings.

[h] Nazian. epiſt. ad Eudoxum.

Secondly, Parents muſt obſerue the naturall endowments of their children, applying ſuch as excell in eminent gifts of the minde vnto courſes of learning: and other which excell in gifts of the bodie, to trades and mechanicall occupations. [i] Origen that great Clerke, when he was a childe, vſed to queſtion with his father Leonides about the ſenſe of the Scripture, whereupon he was made a ſcholler. Athanaſius alſo was firſt put to learning (as [k] Ruffinus and Sozomene report) for that he was found by the Sea ſide doing the part of a Biſhop among a company of little children like himſelfe, examining and baptizing them according to the ſolemne order vſed in the congregation. Archbiſhop Whitgift, the [l] peereleſſe Prelate in our age for learning and pietie, [m] conſecrating his whole life to God, and his painfull labours vnto the Churches happy peace, was applied firſt vnto the Schoole, for [n] that his Vncle Robert Whitgift, Abbot of the Monaſtery of Wellow, found an extraordinary towardlines in him. And becauſe many parents are ignorant, and moſt parents exceeding partiall in iudging of their own childrens inclination & ingenuitie: the beſt way for them is to be directed herein by ſome iudicious friends, & then out of mature iudgement to giue vnto Cæſar, the things appertaining to Cæſar, accommodating ſuch vnto ſecular courſes as are moſt apt for the common-wealth: & vnto God the things which belong to God, committing them vnto Iairus, and conſecrating them to the ſacred function of the Miniſtery.

[i] Magdeburg. Cent. 1. col. 250.

[k] Apud Magd. Cent. 4 col. 1027

[l] Camden. Britan. in Comit. Lincoln.

[m] Idem Camd. in Comit Cant.

[n] Sir George Paul vbi ſupra, pag. 2.

That Iairus was a Ruler of the Synagogue in Capernaum, is inſinuated, Luke 8.41. & in the firſt verſe of this preſent chapter of our Euangeliſt, as I haue copiouſly proued in the beginning of mine Expoſition, Goſpell Sunday 19. of Trinitie. Capernaum then had a good [o] Paſtor, and as we read, Matth. 8.5. a good Captaine, and Chriſt the beſt of all often reſided in that Citie: yet notwithſtanding (as truth it ſelfe [p] witneſſeth) it was a very wicked and diſſolute place, deſeruing greater damnation in the day of iudgement than the land of Sodome & Gomorrah. Let not then any vigilant Miniſter, or diligent Magiſtrate be diſcouraged in his place, for that his people bring not forth any fruits of righteouſneſſe anſwerable to the meanes of their inſtruction: for [q] if thou warne the wicked, and he turne not from his wickedneſſe, nor from his wicked way, he ſhall die in his iniqnitie: but thou haſt deliuered thy ſoule.

[o] Melanct. com. in loc.

[p] Matth. 11.23

[q] Ezech. 3.19.

Hauing thus examined the faſhion of the Ruler, it remaines I ſhould treat of of his faith, and fruit thereof alſo. But for as much as I haue ſpoken of theſe vertues in the woman afflicted with the bloudy flux, and other like petitioners vnto Chriſt, often elſewhere: I thinke that I haue a Superſedeas out of the Chancerie to meddle no more with him at this time, and a Capias corpus as it were, for his deceaſed daughter. Concerning whom I note with[r] Aretius the pregnant circumſtances of her death, and the true demonſtration of her riſing againe from the dead. [f] S. Marke reports indeed the petition of the Ruler otherwiſe, My little daughter lieth at the point of death, &c. And [t] S. Luke, ſhe lay a dying: not as our Euangeliſt here, my daughter is euen now deceaſed. And yet all agree, for Iairus haply ſaid his daughter was dead coniecturally, [u] becauſe he left her at home ſo deſperatly ſicke. And [x] ſo Marke and Luke ſet downe what Iairus ſaid, but Matthew what Iairus thought. Or as [y] Anſelm, it may be that the Ruler ſaid both, and made two requeſts: one that he would lay his hands on her, and heale her malady, for that ſhe was dying: another (being informed certainly that ſhe was euen now deceaſed) that he would come, and lay his hand vpon her, and reſtore her to life. So that the firſt euidence to proue her dead, is her fathers owne confeſſion. A ſecond is Chriſts aſſent, inſtantly following Iairus. A third, the relation of certaine comming from the Rulers houſe, meeting Chriſt and him vpon the way, Mark. 5. 35. Thy daughter is dead, why diſeaſeſt thou the maſter any further? A fourth argument is the deriſion of the tumult in Iairus houſe, when Ieſus ſaid, the damoſell is not dead, &c. they laughed him to ſcorne, knowing that ſhe was dead. A fifth inuiſible proofe was the prepartion of her funerall, as the multitude weeping, and the minſtrels playing ouer the dead; a faſhion in [z] old time crept in among Gods people from the Gentiles, according to that of the [a] Poet:

Cantabat mœſtis tibia funeribus.

The demonſtrations of her riſing againe from the dead, are Surgit, Ambulat, Edit. The damoſell aroſe, ſaith our Matthew, and walked, as S. Marke reports, and eat, as Saint Luke. The witneſſes hereof are Peter, and Iames, and Iohn, and the father and the mother of the maid. For Ieſus thruſt out of the doores (at [b] leaſt out of the chamber where the damoſell lay) the minſtrels and all the rude company making noiſe, [c] becauſe they were not worthy to ſee myſterium reſurgentis qui reſuſcitantem indignis contumelys deridebant. Or haply to [d] ſhunne vaine oſtentation and popular applauſe. Or for [e] that he would not as yet haue this great miracle knowne, as Marke and Luke intimate.

In the Phyſitian Ieſu, note firſt his facilitie, who would inſtantly come, verſ. 15. then his facultie, who could inſtantly cure the deceaſed Damoſell, according to the requeſt of her owne father, verſe 25. For whereas Iairus ſaid; Come, and lay thy hand vpon her and ſhe ſhall liue: Chriſt aroſe, followed him, and tooke the damoſell by the hand, and raiſed her againe from the dead. Myſtically, [f] Chriſtus venit per gratiam præuenientem, manum imponit per gratiam concomitantem, & tunc anima viuit per gratiam cooperantem.

And they laughed him to ſcorne.] [g] The world is blinde, and cannot iudge aright of Chriſts doctrine and doing, the wiſdome of the fleſh is at enmitie with God. And therefore, leſt vnhappily we turne ſcorners with the world, let vs beleeue the Goſpell, eſpecially that article (which is our chiefe comfort) the reſurrection of the dead. And by [h] Chriſts example we may learne to be content when we be deſpiſed in this world, that we may be glorified with him in yonder world, as alſo to [i] proceed in doing any good office, notwithſtanding the ſcoffe of malitious and ignorant people. Nam [k] vt ignis paleam exurit, aurum nitidius reddit: ſic iſtæ calumniæ vanum aut vacuum aliquem abſumant, vera virtute grauem illuſtrant. On the contrary, to be praiſed of naughtie folkes, is almoſt as great a ſhame as to be praiſed for naughtineſſe. Remember the ſweet aduice of [m] Auguſtine: Si homines inter quos viuis, te rectè viuentem non laudauerint, illi ſunt in errore; ſi autem laudauerint, tu in periculo.

So much of the literall expoſition of theſe two miracles. In a myſticall, [n] euery ſinner is like the woman infected with an iſſue of bloud. Oſea 4. 2.

By

[r] Com. in loc.

[f] Cap. 5. v. 23.
[t] Cap. 8. v. 42.

[u] Theophylact. Euthym. Beauxamis.
[x] Auguſtin. de conſenſu Euangeliſt. l. 2. c. 28.
[y] Enarrat. in loc.

[z] Ambroſ. in Luc. 8.
[a] Ouid. 4 faſt.

[b] Muſculus.
[c] Hieron. Chryſoſt. Hilarius.
[d] Aretius.
[e] Maldonat.

[f] Ludolphus.

[g] Muſculus. Heming.

[h] B. Latimer.
[i] Ludolphus.
[k] Lipſius reiecta iuncula Sannionis cuiuſdam ad finem l. de Diua Sichemienſi.
[m] De ſer. Dom. in monte, lib. 2. in princ.
[n] Iacob. de Vorag. ſer. 1. in loc.

By ſwearing, and lying, and killing, and ſtealing, and whoring, they breake out, and blond toucheth blond. Where [o] Diuines vnderſtand by blond, ſinne. [p] As if he ſhould ſay, the wicked heape ſinne vpon ſinne, adding new ſinnes vnto their old. For when a man runnes from one foule fault vnto another, blond toucheth blond. As when a wicked thought iſſueth into ſome wicked act, and act to cuſtome, cuſtome to neceſſitie, neceſſitie to deſperation. And then as a man deſperate in ſickneſſe, cares not what meat he doth eat: ſo the man reckleſſe in ſinning, [q] giuen ouer to commit all vncleanneſſe euen with greedineſſe, careth not what villanies he deuoureth, vntill Chriſt the Phyſitian of his ſoule ſtop his bloudy flux, directing him with his word which is holy, and ſanctifying him alſo with his ſpirit which is holy. Nay the deuout people liuing in blinde poperie, [r] could neuer haue their conſcience truly quieted (although they ſpent almoſt all their wealth vpon Monkiſh Doctors, healing by the doctrine of ſatisfaction and merit) till they did vnderſtand that iuſtification is only by faith, & that it alone maketh a man whole. [s] Melanchthon deliuereth another allegorie: This woman (ſaith he) doth aptly reſemble the Iewiſh Synagogue, vexed a long time with many miſchiefes and miſeries, eſpecially tortured with vnconſcionable Princes, and vnskilfull Prieſts or Phyſitians of the ſoule, the Phariſies and Sadducees, on whom ſhe waſted all her ſtrength and goods, and yet ſhe was not a whit the better, but rather much worſe, till the bleſſed Lord of Iſraell, her Sauiour in his own perſon came to viſit and redeeme her. And ſo Iairus is a [t] type of all the Patriarkes and holy Prophets [u] expecting Chriſt, and earneſtly deſiring that he would [x] breake the heauens and come downe, and lay his hand vpon the Synagogue being at the point of death, and heale her. Saint [y] Ambroſe, [z] Hierome, [a] Rupert, [b] Anſelme, and [c] other affirme, that this woman and this wench are plaine figures of the Gentiles and Iewes. The woman a Gentile had her diſeaſe twelue yeeres, and the rulers daughter a Iew raiſed here was twelue yeere old. The woman fell ſicke when the wench was borne: ſo the Gentiles went their own waies into ſuperſtition and idolatrie, when the Iewes in Abraham beleeued. Againe, as Chriſt here went to raiſe the wench, and by the way the woman was firſt healed, and then the wench reuiued; ſo Chriſt came to the Iewes, as being ſent to the [d] loſt ſheepe of Iſrael eſpecially, but the Gentiles beleeued firſt, and were ſaued, and in the end the Iewes alſo ſhall beleeue.

Chriſt [e] in the three yeeres of his preaching raiſed three ſorts of dead. The firſt yeere the Widowes ſonne in Naim, Luk. 7. the ſecond yere Iairus daughter, mentioned in this Scripture: the third yeere Lazarus, Ioh. 11. Now [f] Iairus daughter raiſed in her fathers houſe reſembleth the Iewes; the Widowes ſonne carried out of the Towne-gate reſembleth the Gentiles, [g] aliants from the common-wealth of Iſrael, and ſtrangers from the couenants of promiſe vntill Chriſts comming, as it were ſhut out of the Citie of God. Lazarus who laie in his graue foure dayes, is a figure of the Iewiſh remnant which afore the worlds end ſhal be raiſed out of the pit of ignorance and incredulity, wherein they haue lien dead many hundred yeeres, and at the length acknowledge Chriſt Ieſus (whom their fathers crucified) to be their Meſſias and Sauiour Eſay 10. 21. The remnant ſhall returne, euen the remnant of Iacob, vnto the mighty God. For though thy people, O Iſrael, be as the ſand of the ſea, yet ſhall the remnant of them returne. And [h] S. Paul ſaith, I would not that yee ſhould be ignorant of this ſecret (leſt ye ſhould be arrogant in your ſelues) that partly obſtinacie is come to Iſrael, vntill the fulneſſe of the Gentiles be come in, & then all Iſrael ſhall be ſaued, as it is written, the deliuerer ſhall come out of Sion, and ſhall turne away the vngodlineſſe from Iacob. When the woman is fully cured which was diſeaſed, the damoſell ſhall be raiſed which was deceaſed. When the fulneſſe of the Gentiles is paſt, Almightie God remembring his old mercy, ſhall graft the Iewes in againe, and conuert them vnto the Chriſtian faith.

It is well obſerued, that beſide the Iewes naturall and inrooted obſtinacie, there be three great impediments which hinder their conuerſion: Firſt, the ſcandals of vs Chriſtians, as the moſt vnbrotherly diſſention among Proteſtants, and moſt abominable

[o] Rupert & Calum. in Hoſeæ cap. 4. Idem Greg. mag in multis locis, vti Coeranum 3. in Hoſeæ 4.

[p] Hieron. in loc. Hoſeæ.

[q] Ephes. 4. 19.

[r] Luther poſtil. maior in loc.

[s] Poſtil. in loc.

[t] Beauxamis ex Emiſſeno.

[u] 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11.

[x] Eſay 64. 1.

[y] In Luc. 8.

[z] Com. in loc.

[a] In loc.

[b] In loc

[c] Ferus ſer. 3. Dom. 25. poſt Pent.

[d] Matth. 15. 24

[e] Melanct. in Matth. 9.

[f] Soarez tract. 3. in Matth. 9.

[g] Epheſ. 2. 12.

[h] Rom. 11. 25.

[i] Relation of religion vſed in the Weſt parts of the world, fol. 53 abominable ſuperſtition and groſſe worſhipping of Images among the Papiſts. Secondly, want of meanes to teach and inſtruct them, becauſe the Papiſts among whom they liue, will not ſuffer the new Teſtament in the vulgar tongue. Thirdly, loſſe, which the Papiſts by their conuerſion ſhall incurre, and (it ſhould ſeeme by their toleration of Iudaiſme) they had rather haue the crownes, then ſaue the ſoules of the Iewes: it was neceſſarie that the Sonne of man ſhould ſuffer, as it is written of him, and yet [k] woe be to that man by whom the Sonne of man is betraied: it had beene good for that man if he had neuer beene borne. So it is neceſſary that the Iewes ſhould perſiſt in their vnbeleefe for a time: but woe be to them whoſe ſcandals are hindrances to their conuerſion. For the houre ſhall come, when Iairus daughter ſhall be raiſed againe, ſhe is not dead, but ſleepeth. Albeit the Iewes are in a dead ſleepe, the Lord in his due time will rouſe, yea raiſe them vp againe from their incredulitie.

[k] Matth. 26. 24

For concluſion of the whole, by the goodneſſe of Chriſt, in reſtoring the ſicke woman vnto health in the way, raiſing the dead wench vnto life in her fathers houſe; we may learne [l] what to looke for at his hand: namely grace, while we be pilgrimes in this our ſhort, yet troubleſome race; but glory, when as we ſhall reſt in heauen, our euerlaſting home. According to that of Dauid, [m] The Lord will giue grace and glory, and no good thing will he with-hold from ſuch as walke vprightly.

[l] Ferus Con. 1. in loc. Sanitas in via, vita in patria.
[m] Pſal. 84. 12.

The Epiſtle IEREM. 23. 5. vnto v. 9

Behold, the time commeth, ſaith the Lord, that I will raiſe vp the righteous branch of Dauid, &c.

THe Church ends, as ſhe began, with her onely Lord and Sauiour: which [n] occaſioned one to call his poſtil annulus Chriſtianus, as it were the Chriſtians round, or ring. [o] For all the Goſpels are fraught with excellent doctrines of holy faith in Chriſt, and ordinarily the Epiſtles are nothing elſe but earneſt exhortations vnto the fruit of faith, a godly life; that we may [p] walke worthy of the Lord and pleaſe him in all things. As then on the firſt Sunday, the Goſpell intimating that Chriſt is come [behold thy King commeth, &c.] and the Epiſtle teaching that we muſt imitate our King being come, [put on the Lord Ieſus, &c.] are in ſtead of a Preface: ſo this Epiſtle and Goſpell on the laſt Sunday (the one prophecying that the Lord of our righteouſneſſe ſhall ſhortly come, Behold, the time commeth, &c. and the other preaching that hee is already come, this of a truth is the ſame Prophet that ſhould come into the world) may ſerue for a [q] concluſion or Epilogue to all the reſt of the whole yeere.

[n] Petrus Machado ord. F. prædicat. prouincial.
[o] Sarcerius in epiſt. Dom. 22. poſt Trinit.
[p] Col. 1. 10.
[q] Ferus ſer. 3. in euangel. Dom. 26. poſt Pentecoſt.

The Goſpell is expounded Sunday 7. after Trinitie. The Epiſtle containeth an abridgement of all the chiefe doctrine deliuered in the Church, euen from the firſt in Aduent, vnto this preſent day; ſhewing that Chriſt is God, and man, and ſo participating of both natures in one perſon, is the ſole Mediator betweene God and man. Our [r] Euangelicall Prophet, as another Matthew, proues here Chriſt to be man, in that he was a branch of Dauid. And yet not a meere man, in that the righteous, in whom is [s] no guile: whereas the Scripture witneſſeth of other men that they were [t] conceiued in ſinne, and borne in iniquitie, that [u] all are gone out of the waies of the Lord, and that none doth good, no not one. Chriſts high ſtile, the Lord our righteouſneſſe, is an euident demonſtration of his Godhead, as Interpreters haue noted againſt Arians and Iewes out of this place. Vide Calvin. Inſtit. lib. 1. cap. 13. §. 9. Galatin. de arcanis, lib. 8. cap. 3. Melanct. propoſit. de eccleſ. propoſ. 25 Tom. 2. fol. 320. Bellarm. de Chriſto lib. 1. cap. 7. Indeed there be [x] many Lords, and yet but [y] one Lord, which is the Lord: and many righteous comparatiuely, but none [z] ſimply good, or righteouſneſſe it ſelfe, but onely [a] God the moſt holy.

[r] Hier. procem. in lib. 1. Com. Ierem.
[s] Eſay 53. 9.
[t] Pſal. 51. 5.
[u] Pſa. 14. 4.
[x] 1 Cor. 8. 5.
[y] Epheſ. 4. 5.
[z] Aug. ep. 54.
[a] Mark. 10. 18.

Now

Now Christ as God-man, or Man-god, is the King of his redeemed ones, in whom obserue three royall vertues especially, { Wisdome, Iustice, Mercy, } ve. 5 saming Iuda, vers. 6. and deliuering Israel, vers. 7, 8. [b] Not as by Moses out of Egypt only: but out of the hands of [c] all their enemies, and calling them out of all countries and corners of the world, to [d] sit downe with Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob, in the kingdome of heauen, being our righteousnesse [e] efficienter, as author of euery good and perfect gift in vs: and sufficienter, in giuing himselfe a ransome for all men, 1 Tim. 2. 9. and obtaining eternall redemption for vs, Heb. 9. 12. [a] Iesus immediatly sauing vs himselfe, not by giuing vs power to become our owne Sauiours. And so the righteousnesse whereby we are saued, is not the righteousnesse which we by him act for our selues, but that which he in his owne person hath wrought for vs; an imputatiue, not an inherent iustice, [f] consisting not in the perfection of vertue, but in the free pardoning of our sinnes. According to that of [g] Dauid, Blessed is he, whose vnrighteousnesse is forgiuen, and whose sinne is couered.

[b] Hieron. in loc.
[c] Luke 1. 7.
[d] Mat 8. 11.
[e] Theopylact. Aquin. Piscator in 1 Cor. 1. 30. Idem Bellarm. de Iustificat. lib. 2. cap. 10.
[f] August. de ciuit. Dei lib. 19. cap. 27.
[g] Psal. 32. 1.

The words of this text, as Hierome notes, are well interpreted by Paul, 1 Cor. 1. 30. Christ is made to vs wisdome, and righteousnesse, and sanctification, and redemption, that according as it is written, he that reioyceth, let him reioyce in the Lord. As if he should haue said, [h] if these graces are our owne, we may vaunt in our owne. But for as much as Christ is made to vs from God, not onely the beginning of holinesse, wisdome, righteousnesse, &c. but the perfection of all these: let not flesh boast it selfe in his presence, but he that doth glorie, let him glorie in the Lord. As Christ was made [i] sinne for vs, euen so are we made the righteousnesse of God in Christ. He was sinne through imputation only, [k] for he did no sinne, neither was there guile found in his mouth. And so we are made righteousnesse, in that our vnrighteousnesse is not imputed vnto vs, Rom. 4. 8. As [l] Martin Luther is bold to speake, Christiana sanctitas non est actiua, sed passiua sanctitas, extra nos est iustitia, non in nobis. It is a righteousnesse in God, whereby we stand righteous afore God. It is true that we worke righteousnesse according to the proportion of grace bestowed vpon vs in this life: but for as much as we [m] thirst after the full righteousnesse in another world. and haue receiued only the [n] first fruits of the spirit here; to say that we are now throughly cleane [o] without spot, or wrinckle, or any such thing, is to iustle Christ out of his iustice, and to take from him his due title of honour, which is giuen him in our text, the Lord our righteousnesse. See Gregor. apud Magdeburg. Cent. 6. col. 681. Luther. vbi supra in margine. Melancthon in Cat. & loc. Com. & exam. tit. de Iustificatione & bonis operibus. Caluin. Instit. lib. 3. cap. 11. § 11. Dr. Morton Apolog. lib. 1. cap. 2. § 11. & 17. 2. & lib. 2. cap. 11. Dr. Abbots answer to Bishops Epistle to the King, pag. 138. 139. &c.

[h] D. Fulke in loc. ad Cor. ex Chrysost. Oecume. Beda.
[i] 2 Cor. 5. 21.
[k] 1 Pet. 2. 22.
[l] Loc. com. tit. de Iustitia Christiana & remissione peccatorum.
[m] Matth. 5. 6.
[n] Rom. 8. 23.
[o] Ephes. 5. 27.

Wherefore learne to sing with [p] Dauid: O God which art my righteousnesse: and to say with [q] Luther, Tu es Domine Iesu, iustitia mea, ego autem sum peccatum tuum: tu assumpsisti meum, & dedisti mihi tuum: assumpsisti quod non eras, & dedisti mihi quod non eram, &c. I conclude with a meditation of [r] Bernard: Thy righteousnesse, O my deare Sauiour, is not a short cloake that cannot couer two, but being a long robe, and a large righteousnesse, it will wholly couer thee and me: (a multitude of sinnes in me, but in thee what shall it couer, O Lord, but the treasures of thy goodnesse? To thee, (sweet Iesu) the beginning and ending, which hast out of the riches of thy superabundant grace blessed my studies hitherto, guiding, as I hope, my pen with thy finger, euen from the first lesson vnto this last line: be giuen all honour, power and praise, now and for euer,

Amen.

[p] Psal. 4. 1.
[q] Vbi sup.
[r] Serm. 61. in Cant.
[s] Apocal. 7. 9.

Glorie be to God on high, and peace to men in earth.

AN EXPOSITION OF THE FESTIVALL EPISTLES AND GOSPELS, vſed in our Engliſh Liturgie.

TOGETHER VVITH A REASON WHY THE Church did chuſe the ſame.

By IOHN BOYS, Doctor in Diuinitie, and Deane of Canterburie.

PSALM. 105. 1.

Laudate Dominum in Sanctis eius.

LONDON

Printed by George Miller for William Aſpley at the ſigne of the Parot in Pauls Churchyard. 1630.

TO THE MOST REVEREND FATHER IN GOD, GEORGE, BY THE diuine prouidence, Lord Archbiſhop of Canterburie, Primate of all England, and Metropolitane, &c.

MY VERY GOOD LORD.

Finde three ſundry readings of the firſt words in the laſt Pſalme; Praiſe God in his [a] Saints, praiſe God in his [b] ſanctitie, praiſe God in his [c] Sanctuarie. God is to be praiſed in his Saints, as hauing out of the riches of his mercy beſtowed on them eminent gifts of grace, the which as their bequeathed [d] legacies and only true reliques are to be remembred often in Gods Church vnto Gods people, that (as [e] B. Latymer ſpeakes) we may worſhip the Saints in following their good examples And ſo theſe three lines meeting in one center, intimate that the moſt holy (being donor of euery good and perfect

[a] Hieron. Auguſtin. Euthym.

[b] Anonymus, and our old Engliſh tranſlat.

[c] Vatablus, Caluin. Engliſh Geneua Bib. & Genebrardus ex Chaldeo.

[d] Euſeb. Emiſen. hom. de S. Maximo.

[e] Sermon on Chriſtmas day preached at Bexterley.

fect gift) ought to be magnified in his Sanctuarie for his sanctitie conferred vpon his Saints, whereby they shined as [f] lights in this heauen on earth, and now shine like [g] starres in heauen of heauen. For this end I haue begun, and hope to finish an exposition of the Festiuall Epistles and Gospels vsed in our English Liturgie. The which (howsoeuer herein I may seeme bold) yet am I bound to dedicate vnto your Grace for many respective considerations, especially for this one, because your honourable disposition in the middest of a crooked nation is euermore to be both a patron and a patterne of vnfained sanctitie. Thus humbly beseeching the Lord to blesse, and your Grace to fauour these my labours;

[f] Philip. 2. 15.

[g] Dan. 12. 3.

I rest.

Your Graces seruant in all dutie,

IOHN BOYS.

S^t. ANDREWES DAY.

The Epistle. Rom. 10. 9.

If thou knowledge with thy mouth that Iesus is the Lord, and beleeue in thy heart that God raised him vp from death, thou shalt be safe, &c.

THE Gospell and Epistle chosen for this Festiuall, intimate the true reason of our Church, in celebrating the memories of the blessed Apostles and Euangelists vnto Gods honour, namely, because they were fishers of men, ambassadors of peace, preachers of good tidings, euen the [a] dispossers of the riches of God in Christ indifferently to men of all sexes and sorts, in that their sound went out into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world; and so by consequent principall instruments of God in the worke of our saluation and eternall happinesse. Which our Apostle sheweth here by this [b] Sorites or gradation:

Whosoeuer calleth vpon the name of the Lord shall be saued.
Inuocation is by faith,
Faith is by hearing of the Word,
Hearing is by the Preachers,

And Preachers are sent of God, &c. Ergo, such as haue learned Christ, in their minde beleeuing vndoubtedly, with their mouth acknowledging him vndauntedly for their Iesus: ought to praise God in his Apostles, as being after Christ immediatly the first, and vnder Christ absolutely the chiefe Trumpetors of the Gospell, which is the [c] power of God vnto saluation.

[a] 1 Cor. 4. 1.

[b] Martyr. Sarcerius. Caluin.

[c] Rom. 1. 16.

In the whole text 2. points are remarkable:

- Causa causati, the meanes of our iustification, and herein a
  - Proofe:
    - Proposition: If thou knowledge, &c. verse 9.
    - 1. From a sufficient enumeration of the principall heads of [d] Christianitie:
      - Faith; for to beleeue with the heart iustifieth.
      - Good works; to knowledge with the mouth, &c. verse 10
    - 2. From the testimony of the Prophets:
      - [e] Esay: Whosoeuer beleeueth on him, &c. verse 11.
      - [f] Ioel: Whosoeuer doth call, &c. verse 13.
- Causa causæ, the [g] meane for these meanes, and that is the preaching of the Gospell, in this respect aptly termed the word of faith, verse 8.

[d] Artius.

[e] Cap. 28. 16.

[f] Cap. 2. 32.

[g] Melanchthon. Pareus.

If

If thou knowledge] S. Paul hauing in the Chapter afore, ſufficiently diſcourſed of the reiection of the Iewes à priore, from Gods abſolute decree (ſhewing[h] mercie on whom he will, and whom he will hardening) he commeth in this preſent, to demonſtrate the ſame point à[i] poſteriore, from their obſtinate incredulitie, [k] ſtabliſhing their own righteouſneſſe, and not ſubmitting themſelues vnto the righteouſneſſe of God in Chriſt, apprehended and applied by faith onely, declaring it ſelfe in a twofold act; one which is [l] outward, to confeſſe with the mouth: another which is inward, to beleeue with the heart. [m] Some confeſſe but beleeue not, as hypocrites: other beleeue but confeſſe not, as timorous and Peter-like profeſſors in the dayes of perſecution: other doe neither confeſſe nor beleeue on Chriſt, as Atheiſts; other both confeſſe and beleeue, and they be true Chriſtians. A [n] bare confeſſing with the mouth is not enough, except thou beleeue with thine heart, Eſay 29 13. This people come neere to me with their mouth, & honour me with their lips, but haue remoued their heart farre from me, &c. Neither is it ſufficient vnto ſaluation onely to beleeue with the heart, vnleſſe thou confeſſe with the mouth; according to that vnauoidable ſentence, Matth. 10. 33. Whoſoeuer ſhall deny me before men, him alſo will I deny before my father which is in heauen.

Now though in nature beleeuing with the heart, precede confeſſing with the tongue: yet Paul mentioneth acknowledging in the firſt place, [o] for that we doe not know the faith of ſuch as beleeue, but by their confeſſion; according to that of [p] S. Iames, I will ſhew thee my faith by my workes. Here then obſerue, that to confeſſe the Lord Ieſus is neceſſary [q] both in reſpect of other, and our ſelues. In reſpect of other, [r] as being herewith armed in the times of perſecution, and inſtructed in the dayes of peace. Chriſt is the fountaine of the waters of life; faith in the heart is as the pipes and ceſterne that receiue in, and hold the water; and confeſſion with the mouth, as the cocke of the Conduit, that lets out the water vnto euery commer. And therefore [s] let your light ſo ſhine before men, as that they may ſee your good workes, and glorifie your Father which is in heauen. Againe, to confeſſe, [t] that is, to praiſe Chriſt in thy words, and to doe whatſoeuer appertaineth vnto his worſhip, is needfull in regard of our ſelues, [u] in that a true faith is neuer idle, but alway working by loue, Galat. 5. 6. For although it iuſtifieth alone, yet it is no more alone, [x] then the heat of the Sunne which alone warmes the earth is ſeuered from light: or then Chriſt is diſioyned from his Spirit: Caluin apud Bellarmin. de Iuſtificat. lib. 1. cap. 15. §. Caluinus: or then a hand when it alone doth apprehend any thing is ſeparated from the body: Luther apud Sanderum de Iuſtificat. lib. 4. cap. 4.

This doctrine makes againſt the [y] Priſcillianiſts in old time, defending this axiome, Iura, periura, ſecretum prodere noli. And the [z] Libertines in our age, who following the Carpocratian Heretiks, hold it lawfull to diſſemble their faith afore the Magiſtrate. As alſo the Nicodemites aſhamed of Chriſt, and equiuocating Ieſuites forſwearing their Prieſthood, and the Pope their holy father, vpon euery pretended occaſion of danger. In a word, all weather-wiſe profeſſors, aduenturing no more for the glorious Goſpell, than one lately did for his horrible blaſphemie. who being bound to the ſtake, ſuffered onely the ſingeing of his beard. This open acknowledging of Chriſt is neceſſarie, not only caſu mortis, at the point of death, as Liranus: or in the dayes of perſecution, as Lombard: but at all times, and in euery place, when occaſion is offered iuſtly, ſaith [a] Aquine. For ſeeing it is an affirmitiue precept, obligat ſemper, et ſi non ad ſemper. As Chriſt in his [b] Goſpell expreſly, Whoſoeuer ſhall be aſhamed of me, and of my words, among this adulterous and ſinfull generation, of him ſhall the Sonne of man be aſhamed alſo, when he commeth in the glory of his Father with the holy Angels,

Whereas [c] Bellarmine inferreth out of this text, fidem non ſufficere ad ſalutem, that faith is not ſufficient vnto ſaluation, vnleſſe confeſſion of the mouth and other good workes as efficient cauſes concurre with it in the buſineſſe: our anſwer may be taken out of his old Schooleman Aquine, and Cardinall Tolet. [d] Aquine doth affirme, that confeſſion is an act of faith, according to that of

[a] Rom. 9. 18.
[i] Aretius.
[k] Verſe 3.
[l] Thomas 2. 2æ. queſt. 3. art. 1.
[m] D. Willet in loc. Idem Gorran in loc.
[n] Ardens. Theophylact.
[o] Martyr. Heming. Aretius.
[p] Cap. 2. 18.
[q] Sarcerius.
[r] Oecumen.
[s] Matth. 5. 16.
[t] Pareus.
[u] Church Hom of faith. & Confeſſ Anglican art. 12. See Rogers ibid. & Caluin. inſtit. lib. 3. cap 16.
[x] Caluin. apud Bellarm. de Iuſtificat lib 1. cap. 14. §. Iohannes.
[y] Auguſt. hæreſ. 70.
[z] Martyr in loc.
[a] In loc. & 2. 2æ. quæſt. 3. art. 2.
[b] Mark 8. 38.
[c] De Iuſtificat. lib 4. cap. 7. §. Oſtauum.
[d] 2. 2æ quæſt. 3 art 1.

of the [e] Pſalmiſt, I beleeued, and therefore haue I ſpoken. And in his ſecond Lecture vpon this Chapter, he that is once iuſtified by faith ought to be [f] filled with the fruit of righteouſneſſe. Poſtquam homo per fidem eſt iuſtificatus, oportet quod eius fides per dilectionem operetur ad conſequendam ſalutem. And Cardinall [g] Tolet in plaine termes: Oris confeſſio nos non iuſtificat à peccato, &c. ſed iuſtificati tenemur eam palàm profiteri, &c. Confeſſion of the mouth doth not iuſtifie vs; but being iuſtified, we are bound publikely to profeſſe it afore we can attaine to ſaluation. Herein agreeing with our [h] Proteſtant Interpreters, affirming that good workes are conſequents and effects of a true faith, as if Paul ſhould haue ſaid here, we are iuſtified by faith onely, but yet this faith is operatiue, bringing forth liuely fruits, as the confeſſion of the mouth, and the profeſſion of the life; for they be neceſſarie to ſaluation, albeit faith alone be ſufficient in the act of iuſtification, as you may ſee further Epiſt. Quinquageſ. and Sunday 2. in Lent.

In the words (and beleeue in thine heart that God hath raiſed him vp from the dead) three points are conſiderable, namely, Faiths { Act, Obiect, Subiect.

Faiths act is to beleeue, and to beleeue hath theſe degrees (as the [i] Schoole teacheth out of [k] Auguſtine) Credere Deo, credere Deum, & credere in Deum. A wicked man and a wretched deuill, may ſo farre proceed in faith, as to beleeue there is a God, and in groſſe to beleeue God: but a true Chriſtian endued with a ſauing faith aſcends higher, and beleeueth in God alſo. [l] That is, he knowes, God as he hath reuealed himſelfe in his word, acknowledging him onely for his God, and thereupon puts his [m] whole truſt in him, applying to himſelfe Gods mercifull promiſe made to father Abraham and his ſeed, with the heart vnto iuſtification, and confeſſing the ſame with the mouth vnto ſaluation. He diſclaimes not his part in Chriſt as the deuils, [n] Ah, what haue we to doe with thee thou Ieſus of Nazareth? [o] art thou come to torment vs before the time? but he challengeth his portion in the bloud of his Sauiour, ſaying with the Church in her [p] loue-ſong, My welbeloued is mine: and with [q] Paul, Chriſt is become to vs wiſdome, righteouſneſſe, ſanctification, and redemption. His bodie is in heauen, there ſhall I finde it mine: his diuinitie is on earth, and here doe I feele it mine: his word is in mine eare, to beget him mine: his Sacrament is in mine eye, to confirme him mine: his Spirit is in mine heart, to aſſure him mine: Angels are mine, to fight for me: Prince mine, to rule for me: Church mine, to pray for me: Vniuerſitie mine, to ſtudie for me: Paſtor mine, to preach for me: all mine, [r] whether it be Paul, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, whether they be things preſent, or things to come, euen all are mine, I am Chriſts, and Chriſt is Gods.

Faiths obiect is [s] all holy Scripture, the [t] ſumme whereof is the Creed, and this one point, how God raiſed vp Ieſus from the dead, is [u] nexus articulorum omnium, as it were the bond or tying knot, on which all other linkes of our beleefe depend. [x] For if it were not true, that Chriſt is riſen againe: then were it neither true, that he did aſcend vp to heauen, nor that he ſitteth at the right hand of his Father in heauen, nor that he ſent downe the holy Spirit from heauen, nor that he ſhall come from thence to iudge the quicke and the dead. In a word, the matter of the whole Creed concerneth either God, or the Church his Spouſe. Now the raiſing of Chriſt from the dead is the worke of God the Father, Acts 2.32. of himſelfe being God the Sonne, Iohn 10. 18. of God the Holy Ghoſt alſo, Rom. 1.4. Chriſt as [y] God, onely raiſeth and is not raiſed: as man, he is onely raiſed and raiſeth not: as the [z] Sonne of God, or ſecond Perſon in the bleſſed Trinitie, both the Father raiſeth him, and he raiſeth himſelfe. The Father raiſeth the Sonne by the Sonne, and the Sonne raiſeth himſelfe by the Spirit of holineſſe, [a] by which he was declared to be the Sonne of God. As for the Church: our Apoſtle ſheweth [b] elſe-where, that Chriſt died for her ſinnes, and roſe againe for her iuſtification; and that [c] aſcending vpon high, he beſtowed on her gifts, as to be Catholike, holy, knit in a communion: and prerogatiues in her ſoule, namely, remiſſion of ſinnes: in the bodie, reſurrection of the fleſh: in both, euerlaſting [e] Pſal. 116. 10. & 2 Cor 4 13.

[f] Philip. 1. 11.
[g] In lec.
[h] Melanchon. Caluin. Heming. Piſcator. Chytræus. Tilenan.
[i] Lombard 3. ſent. diſt. 23 & Aquin. 2. 2æ q. 2 art. 2.
[k] Tract 29. in Ioan & ſer 181. de Temp.
[l] Perkins expoſit Creed, art 1.
[m] See Church Hom. of ſaluation, part 3.
[n] Mark 1 24.
[o] Matth 8. 29.
[p] Cant. 6 2.
[q] 1 Cor. 1. 30.
[r] 1 Cor. 3 22, 23.
[s] Church Hom. of faith, part 1.
[t] Auguſtin. ſer. 115 de Temp. & Ambroſ. ſer. 38
[u] Martyr. in loc.
[x] Church hom. of Chriſts reſurrection.
[y] Thom. 3. part. q 53 art 4.
[z] Paræus.
[a] Rom 1. 4.
[b] Rom. 4. 25.
[c] Epheſ 4 8.

euerlasting life. Wherefore Paul here mentioneth only the resurrection of Christ from the dead, not exclusiuely, but [d] synecdochically, because this one arrticle [e] presupposeth all the rest, and takes them as granted; as if he rose from the graue, then he died, and his death is a consequent of his birth. Or because this article was, and is most [f] doubted in the world, for the Iewes and Gentiles acknowledge the death of Iesus; whereas the Christians only confesse his resurrection. Or because the [g] rest (vnlesse Christ had risen againe) would haue profited vs little, for he triumphed in his resurrection ouer death, hell, damnation, opening the kingdome of heauen to all beleeuers.

And so the meaning of our Text is plaine, If thou confesse with thy mouth that Iesus is the Lord: [h] that is, that Lord, [i] of whom all the Prophets inquired, as being the [k] desire of all Nations, euen the light of the Gentiles, and consolation of Israel. And if thou beleeue in thine heart, that this Iesus (whom Almightie God hath made [l] both Lord and Christ) offered [m] himselfe a sacrifice to [n] purge thy conscience from dead workes, and take away thy sinnes, [o] putting out and fastning vpon the Crosse the Lawes obligation against vs, and that hauing ouercome death, and the deuill, he rose againe, [p] leading captiuitie captiue, that he might hereby deliuer thee from the bands and hands of all thine enemies; I may tell thee from Paul, and Paul here from God, vnto the comfort of thy soule, that thou art now [q] presently iustified, and shalt be hereafter eternally saued. For the Scripture saith, whosoeuer beleeueth in him, shall not be confounded. [r] That is, whosoeuer hath a sure trust in God that he will euen for his Christs sake pardon all his sinnes, and blot out all his offences: and out of this assurance calleth on the name of the Lord, he shall be safe. For the two testimonies of the two Prophets [f] answer the two clauses of Paul, Esay speaking of the beleeuing in the heart, and Ioel, of acknowledging with the mouth.

And in these Texts of the Prophets, obserue their [t] vniuersall note, whosoeuer, for God is [u] no respecter of persons, he puts no difference betweene the Iew and the Gentile, but being Lord ouer all is rich vnto all that call vpon him. [x] Other Lords cannot reward all their followers, as being poore; many will not, as being illiberall and sordide: but our God is [y] able, because Lord of all; and willing, because rich vnto all of whatsoeuer condition or country. Poore Bartimeus begging, rich Zacheus climing, old Simeon in the Temple, young Iohn in the wombe, couetous Matthew grinding his neighbour at the receit of Custome, the louing Centurion [z] building his Nation a Synagogue, the people [a] watching vnder the Crosse, the [b] theefe hanging on the Crosse, confessing the Lord Iesus, and walking in the sunne-shine of his Gospell; indifferently finde refreshing in the conscience, rest in the soule. For whosoeuer beleeueth on him shall not be confounded, and whosoeuer calleth on his name shall be saued.

As for the subiect or seat of faith: it is said here, with the heart man beleeueth: Ergo, faith (as many [c] Protestant authors haue noted) is not placed in the minde, or vnderstanding only; but in the will and affections also. [d] For faith, as it is notitia, resides in the minde: but as fiducia, seated in the will. [e] Other Interpreters (etiam notæ purioris, and no way branded with the markes of Antichrist) hold it not greatly to stand with reason, that one particular and single grace should be placed in diuers parts and faculties of the soule. It is true, that faith is not a meere prattle of the tongue, nor a floting [f] opinion of the braine: but a certaine perswasion of the heart. Yet notwithstanding this perswasion, or particular knowledge, whereby a man is resolued that the promises of saluation appertaine to him, is wrought in the minde by the Holy Ghost, 1 Cor. 2. 12. A sure trust and a stedfast hope of all good things to be receiued at Gods hand, is [g] not haply faith, (if we speake properly) but rather a fruit of faith, in that no man hath affiance in God, vntill he be first of all perswaded of his mercy toward him in Christ Iesu.

For mine owne part, I confesse with [h] Luther ingenuously, that it is exceeding hard to distinguish exactly betweene faith and hope, there is so great affinitie betweene

[d] Piscator.
[e] Gorran.
[f] Anselm. Idem Augustin. apud Martyr. in loc.
[g] Caluin.
[h] Melanct hon.
[i] 1 Pet. 1. 10.
[k] Haggai. 2. 8.
[l] Acts 2. 36.
[m] Ephes. 5. 2.
[n] Heb. 9. 14. 28
[o] Coloss. 2. 14.
[p] Ephes. 4. 8.
[q] In præsenti iustitiam, in futuro salutem. Anselm. in loc.
[r] Melanct hon.
[f] Theophylact. Caietan.
[t] Lombard. Martyr. Caluin.
[u] Acts 10. 34.
[x] Ardens.
[y] Hyperius apud Marlorat.
[z] Luk. 7. 5.
[a] Matth. 27. 54.
[b] Luk. 23. 42.
[c] Caluin. Paræus. Dr. Willet in loc.
[d] Heming.
[e] Perkins exposit. Creed, art. 1. Dr. Fulke in 2 Cor. 13. 1. disallowes not this assertion in the Rhem. Vide Thom. 2. 2æ quæst 4. art. 2. & Bellarmin. de Iustit. lib. 1. c. 6.
[f] Sarcerius. Beza.
[g] Perkins vbi supra
[h] In Galat. 5. 5.

betweene them, one hauing reſpect to the other, as the two Cherubins on the Mercy-ſeat, Exod. 25. 20. Faith engendreth hope, and from hope proceeds affiance, which is nothing elſe but hope ſtrengthned. For whereas an [i] hypocrites confidence ſhall be like the houſe of a ſpider: [k] he that putteth his truſt in the Lord, ſhall be euen as the mount Sion, which may not be remoued, but ſtandeth faſt for euer.

[i] Iob 8.14.
[k] Pſal. 125.1.

And for as much as the word heart in my Text (as is agreed on all ſides) is put for the whole ſoule, without limitation to any part: all that I will obſerue from hence ſhall be, that as wee muſt loue God; euen ſo beleeue in God with all our heart, and ſoule, and minde. [l] For hypocrites haue forged faith, and deuils haue forced faith, acknowledging againſt their will out of horror vnto their condemnation, and not out of loue from their heart to their iuſtification, that Ieſus is the Lord. A Recuſant may be brought vnto the Church againſt his will, and compelled in deſpight of his teeth alſo to receiue the Sacramentall Bread and Wine: [m] but none can beleeue that Ieſus is their Ieſus, but with the heart onely. See Goſpell Sund. 8. and Epiſtle Sund 10. after Trinitie.

[l] Caietan.
[m] Lombard.

How ſhall they call on him on whom they haue not beleeued? A plaine Text againſt the [n] Gentiles Idolatrie, praying vnto gods [o] vnknowne. As Hecuba in Euripides; O Iupiter quisquides, ſiue hoc cœlum, ſiue mens in cœlo, quanquam diu iam ignauos opitulatores innoco. And it is a pregnant euidence to confute the [p] Papiſts in their inuocation of Saints alſo; for if they truſt in S. Martin or Mary, S. Catherin or Clare they rob the Creator to clothe his creatures, and [q] curſed be man that puts his confidence in man, and makes fleſh his arme. If they truſt not, how doe they call on him in whom they beleeued not? Our heauenly Father ſaith in his [r] word, Call vpon me: Chriſt our Aduocate with the Father in like ſort, [ſ] Come vnto me, for I am the way, the truth, and the life, Iohn 14. 6. [t] Non eſt quâ eas niſi per me, non eſt quò eas niſi ad me: No way to God but by me, no light but from me, no life but in me. Chriſt is a mutuall helpe: to the Father one, to vs another. An hand to the Father, by which he reacheth vs: an hand to vs, by which we reach him. The Fathers mouth, by which he ſpeaketh vnto vs: our mouth to the Father, by which we ſpeake to him. Our eye to ſee by, footway to goe by, the [u] piller of fire by night, and cloud by day guiding his Iſrael in the wilderneſſe of this world. Wherefore let vs call on him in whom alone we beleeue, which is our [x] ſtrength and refuge in the time of trouble, promiſing in his [y] Goſpell, Aske, and ye ſhall haue: ſeeke, and ye ſhall finde: knocke, and it ſhall be opened vnto you. See Goſpell on the 5. Sund. after Eaſter.

[n] Melanchon.
[o] Acts 17.23.
[p] Dr. Fulke. Kilius. Paræus in loc. Idem Melanct. Apol. Auguſt. Confeſſ. art. 21. & Perkinſe-form. Cat tit 14.
[q] Ieremy 17.5.
[r] Pſal. 50.15.
[ſ] Matth. 11.28.
[t] Auguſt. tract. 22. in Ioan.
[u] Exod. 13.21.
[x] Ierem. 16.19
[y] Matth. 7.7.

How ſhall they heare without a Preacher? Here you may behold the Miniſters

- [z] Dignitie, in reſpect of their
  - Commiſſion, as being ſent of God.
  - Errand, as being ambaſſadors of good things, euen ſuch as bring tidings of peace [a] between
    - God and man.
    - Man and man.
    - Man and himſelfe. Wherefore [b] deſire the Lord to ſend forth [c] labourers into his harueſt, honouring ſuch Elders as rule well, and labour in the word, euen with double honour, 1 Tim. 5. 17. receiuing them as Angels, yea as Chriſt himſelfe, Gal. 4 14.
- Dutie; for if faith come by hearing, and hearing by preaching, ſo that the word of God vnto faith is as [d] oyle to the lampe:

[z] Melanchon. Martyr. Tileman.
[a] Aquin.
[b] Kilius.
[c] Matth 9.38.
[d] Chryſoſt.

ſuch as will haue their feet kiſſed, ought to bring tidings of good things. If they will haue the [e] worthy, good reaſon they ſhould do the worke. For aſſuredly ſuch as croud into the Clergy without performance of their office, either through ignorance, that they cannot; or ſecular imployment, that they may not; or negligence, that they will not; or feare of trouble, that they dare not preach the word of God; are [f] aduerſaries vnto the doctrine of the Church of England, and enemies of the Croſſe of Chriſt, Philip. 3. 19. See further in the Goſpell enſuing.

[e] 1 Tim. 3.1.
[f] Rogers in Anglican. Confeſſ. art. 23 propoſit. 2

The Gospell. MATTH. 4.18.

As Iesus walked by the sea of Galile, he saw two brethren, Simon which was called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea (for they were fishers) &c.

IN this Gospell is set downe the {Calling / Comming} of foure Apostles.

In their calling these circumstances are considerable:
- Who? Iesus.
- Where? By the sea of Galile.
- When? At the beginning of his preaching.
- Whom, in Name: Peter. Andrew. Iames. Iohn.
- Whom, in Number: two and two.
- Whom, in Nature: Brethren. Fishers.
- Why? That they might become fishers of men.
- How? He saw them, and said vnto them, follow me and I will make you, &c.

As Iesus walked.] There be foure sorts of Apostles (as [e] Hierome and [h] Luther obserue) some be sent only from God, and not by men: immediatly from God the Father, as the [i] Prophets vnder the Law; [k] Iesus Christ, and [l] Iohn Baptist in the beginning of the Gospell: immediatly from God the Sonne, in his state mortall, as the [m] twelue Apostles: in his state glorious or immortall, as S. Paul, Acts 9.15. Other are sent by men, and not by God: as they who being vnworthy both in respect of their bad learning, and worse liuing, croud notwithstanding into the Ministerie, through alliance, fauour, or symonie. Which occasioned one to say that horses are more miserable then asses, in that horses did post ordinarily to Rome to get asses preferment.

[n] Cum Iesu Iudas, cum Simone fur Ananias,
In templo Christi semper sunt quatuor isti.

Other are neither chosen of God, nor called by men, as the false prophets, of whom it is said in holy Scripture, that they [o] run without a warrant; [p] euill workers, enemies of Christs Crosse, [q] theues climbing into the Church at the window, not entring in at the doore, [r] rauening wolues in sheepes clothing. See Gospell on the 2. Sunday after Easter, and 8. after Trinitie.

Other are both elected of God, and ordained by men, as the Bishops of Ephesus, Acts 20.28. and other Elders in the Primitiue Church, Acts 14.23. and all orthodoxe Preachers of the word in our age. For as the Gospell and Epistle well accord, how shall they preach vnlesse they be sent? No man ([s] although hee were more wise then either Salomon or Daniel) ought to take this honour vnto himselfe, [t] except he be called of God. I say called of God either immediatly by himselfe, so Christ here called his Apostles; or else mediatly by [u] such as haue publike authoritie giuen vnto them in the congregation, to call and send Ministers into the Lords vineyard, and so Christ at this houre calleth Apostles in our Church, in that the conformable Ministers of England are chosen according to his word, as we teach against the Brownists and Barrowists; as also canonically consecrated, as we proue to the proud pontifician aduersarie. See Doctor Fulke & Willet in Rom. 10. Perkins Treatise of Callings: Rogers in Anglican. Confess. art. 23. proposition 1. & 5. Sheldons motiues, obseruation of pontifician spirits, pag. 17. And surely God hath as it were set his hand and seale to the full approbation of our callings, in that he blesseth our labours in the Ministerie for the conuersion

[e] Expost. prior. in Galat. cap. 1.
[h] Postil. in loc.
[i] 2 Pet. 1. 21.
[k] Ioh. 20. 21.
[l] Ioh. 1. 6.
[m] Matth 10. 5.
[n] Vet. poemata de corrupto stat. ecclesiæ per Illyricum.
[o] Ieremy 23. 21
[p] Philip 3. 2. 18.
[q] Iohn 10. 1.
[r] Matth 7. 15.
[s] Luther & Latymer. in loc.
[t] Heb. 5. 4.
[u] Anglican. Confess. art. 23. Rogers ibidem. Luther & Kilius in loc.

conuerſion of many ſoules in England. For euery learned and induſtrious Paſtor may tell his people which he begets vnto God in Chriſt, as [x] Paul once told the Corinthians: If I be not an Apoſtle to other, yet doubtleſſe I am vnto you, for ye are the ſeale of mine Apoſtleſhip in the Lord.

By the ſea of Galile.] This (as [y] Interpreters obſerue) was not the maine ſea, but a little creeke only, The lake Genezareth, as we reade Luke 5.1. but it is called a ſea, for that the [z] Scripture termeth all gathering together of waters, ſeas: and the ſea of Galile, for that it bounded vpon the borders of the [a] two Galilees. Conſule Plin hiſt. lib. 5. cap. 15. Ioſeph. de bello Iudaico, lib. 3. cap. 18. Strab. Geogra. lib. 16. pag. 504.

In this lake Peter and Andrew were fiſhing, Iames and Iohn mending their nets. Here I note with Aretius and [b] other vnto your comfort, that Almightie God is wont to bleſſe men eſpecially, when they be buſied in their proper element, and well imployed in their owne vocations. An Angell being a meſſenger of gladneſſe, appeared vnto Zacharias, [c] as he executed the Prieſts office before God, as his courſe came in order. An Angell alſo deliuered the firſt ioyous tidings of Chriſts birth vnto [d] ſhepheards attending their flocke by night in the field. While Saul according to his fathers expreſſe commandement ſought for aſſes, he found a kingdome, 1 Sam. 9. ſo Chriſt here ſeeing Peter and Andrew not idle, but caſting a net into the ſea; nor yet ouer-buſie, medling in other mens trade; but only labouring in their owne calling, (for they were fiſhers) he ſaith vnto them inſtantly, follow me, and I will make you to become fiſhers of men. A laſie perſon is vnfit for the Clergy, for none but [e] labourers are ſent into the Lords harueſt. On the contrary, the [f] curious and ouer-actiue ſpirit is vnprofitable, for he will haue one foot in the Church, another in the Court, and if God had made him a Tripos, he would haue had a third in the Campe. Miles equis, piſcator aquis, &c. an hammer is for the Smith, an Homer for the Schoole. Let the ſhoemaker attend his boot, and the fiſher his boat. [g] He that comes to the corne heape, the more he openeth his hand to receiue, the leſſe he doth hold: ſo he that enlargeth himſelfe to beare the moſt offices in a State, the fewer ſhall he ſufficiently diſcharge. The worme [h] millipeda or multipoda, though it haue many feet, is of a very ſlow paſe. [i] So Luther ſaid of Eraſmus: Quia vult in omnibus ſapere, ſeipſum decipit. And [k] Melanchthon of Vbiquitaries in Arts, in omnibus aliquid, in toto nihil ſcire. The wittie [l] Poet trimly, Omnia cùm facias, miraris cur facias nil?

(Poſthume) rem ſolam qui facit, ille facit.

Againe, Chriſt called his Apoſtles in the midſt of their fiſhing, [m] that wee might hereby learne to preferre the following of him before the buſineſſe of the world: or Ieſus haply walked by the ſea, for that he did intend to chuſe fiſhers. [n] Hereby teaching vs not to ſhun, but rather to ſeeke thoſe places where we may doe good. As the poore cottage, that we may releeue the needie: the houſe of mourning, that we may binde vp the broken hearted, and remoue the ſpirit of heauineſſe: the dungeon of Ioſeph and Daniel, preaching liberty to the captiues, and opening of the priſon vnto them that are bound. [o] Flecte quod eſt rigidum, foue quod eſt frigidum, rege quod eſt deuium.

The next circumſtance to be conſidered, is the time when and that (as our Euangeliſt in the 17. verſe) was ſo ſoone as Ieſus began to preach. For [p] as a King who reſolues to make warre againſt an enemie Prince, chuſeth his Captaines, and muſters his ſouldiers, and in euery point fits himſelfe for the preſent action: euen ſo Chriſt Ieſus the King of the Church, intending to [q] caſt out of his hold Satan the prince of this world, calleth his followers, and out of them electeth his Apoſtles, as chiefe Commanders and Coronels in the very beginning of his preaching, that being trained vp in his ſchoole, ſeeing his wonders, and hearing his wiſdome, they might be made fit for that excellent and eminent calling. [r] They were firſt (as [s] S. Iohn reports) acquainted with Chriſt, [t] afterward made Diſciples, and laſt of all Apoſtles. And [u] therefore Chriſt here ſaith, I will make you to become fiſhers of men. Hee ſaith not, I doe now make: but hauing inſtructed them

[x] 1 Cor. 9.2.

[y] Rabanus apud Thomam. Aretius. Ianſen. in loc.
[z] Gen. 1.10.
[a] Maldonat.

[b] Ardens in loc

[c] Luk. 1.8.

[d] Luke 2.8.

[e] Matth 9.38
[f] Aretius in loc.

[g] Perkins treat of Callings.

[h] Plin. hiſt. lib. 29. cap. 6.
[i] Colloq. tom. 1. pag. 203.
[k] Bucan. præfat. loc. Com.
[l] Martiilus epigram lib. 3.
[m] Chryſoſt. apud Theman in loc.

[n] Ardens. Beauxamis.

[o] Kilius.

[p] Chryſoſt. apud Beauxam. in loc.

[q] Iohn 12. 31.
[r] Latymers ſer vpon this Goſpell
[s] Cap 1 39.
[t] For this was a ſecond calling, as Euthym & Anſelm. in loc
[u] Muſcul. in loc.

them all his life, and breathing on them the Holy Ghoſt after his reſurrection, he ſpeakes in the preſent, [x] As my father ſent me, ſo ſend I you, [y] goe teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the Holy Ghoſt. And that they might be powerfull and profitable teachers of other, he [z] filled them alſo with the gifts of the Spirit after ſuch a manner, and in ſo great a meaſure, that they [a] could not but ſpeake the things which they had heard and ſeene of Chriſt. And that not in one corner, or in a few countries only, but (as it is in the ſelect Epiſtle for this day) their ſound went out into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world. In the beginning they were rude, [b] firſt Diſciples, afterward Doctors, a great while learners afore they were leaders. Hence fathers of the Church are taught not to haue χεῖρας ἐπιθέναι ταχέως, [c] haſtie hands and ouer-eaſie for admittance into ſacred orders without triall and teſtimonie, 1 Tim. 3. and the children of the Prophets alſo may learne to be [d] ſwift to heare, ſlow to ſpeake, neuer affecting, much leſſe aſcending Moſes chaire, before God makes them apt and able to teach as well by their holy conuerſation, as wholeſome doctrine. For as the weights and meaſures of the [e] Sanctuarie, to wit the ſicle, talent and cubite, were of a [f] double bigneſſe to thoſe for common vſe: ſo ſhould the vertues in the Miniſters of the Sanctuarie be of a ſutable ſize. The which as ſome Diuines imagine is implied in the ſacrifice for their ſinnes, appointed Leuit 4. where the Prieſts offering is commanded to be as much as all the congregations, a young bullocke without any blemiſh for the Prieſt alone, verſe 3. and no more for all the people, verſe 14. See Benedictus in the Liturgie, Goſpell on Trinitie Sunday, and 8. after Trinitie.

The names of the Diſciples here called, are Simon, Andrew, Iames, and Iohn. [g] Inſinuating that a Preacher of the word muſt be Simon, that is, obedient to the will of God. Andreas, a ſtout man in executing his office. Iacobus, a ſupplanter of vices in his auditorie. Laſt of all a Iohn, aſcribing all theſe good gifts in him vnto the Father of mercies and God of all grace, [h] vitæ merito magnus, humilitate infimus. [i] Other affirme that the foure cardinall vertues are deſigned by theſe foure chiefe Apoſtles, referring Prudence to Peter, Iuſtice to Andrew, Fortitude to Iames, and Temperance to Iohn.

For their number, it is ſaid here, that Ieſus called them two and two: firſt he ſaw two, then other two: [k] ſignifying that as the binarie number is the leaſt; euen ſo the Church of little beginnings increaſeth vntill her number be [l] without number; [m] as a graine of muſtard ſeed when it is ſowne is the leaſt of all ſeeds, but when it is growne, it is the greateſt among herbs, and it is a tree, ſo that the birds of heauen build in the branches thereof. Or two and two, becauſe they were Chriſts inſtruments in ioyning together two people, the Iewes and the Gentiles, and ſo [n] making of both one. Or Chriſt haply would neither elect nor ſend his Apoſtles one by one, becauſe woe to him that is alone, Eccleſiaſt. 4. 10, but by two and two, and thoſe brethren: [o] hereby teaching that Preachers of the word muſt accord as brethren, of one heart and one ſoule, Acts 4. 32. hauing one minde in many bodies, [p] inter multa corpora non multa corda. Sic viuentes in vnum, vt vnum hominem faciant as Auguſtine ſweetly. For [q] a brother helping a brother is a very ſtrong caſtle, and they that hold together are like the barre of a palace.

For their condition: our bleſſed Sauiour (in [r] whom are hid all the treaſures of wiſdome and knowledge) did [s] not chuſe the diſputants of the world whoſe wit was great, nor the nobles whoſe petigree was great, nor the Phariſies whoſe credit was great, nor the Prieſts whoſe authoritie was great: but he called ignorant and ignoble fiſhers, of little worth and leſſe learning, to be the trumpetors of his Goſpell, and bell-weathers of his flocke; that the [t] fooliſh things of the world might confound the wiſe things, and the weake things ouerthrow the mightie things, and things that are not, bring to nought the things that are. [u] Sampſon in ſlaying a thouſand Philiſtines with the iaw-bone of an aſſe, was a type hereof (as [x] Proſper obſerues) inſinuating that Chriſt by the [y] fooliſhneſſe of preaching ſhould confound his enemies, and ſaue ſuch as beleeue. Nay Chriſt choſe ſome notorious ſinners for [x] Iohn 20.21.

[y] Matth 28.19
[z] Acts 2.4.
[a] Acts 4.20.
[b] Aretius. Muſculus.
[c] 1 Tim. 5.22.
[d] Iames 1.19.
[e] Exod 30. 13.
[f] Vatablus not. ad loc. Exod. ex Ioſepho.
[g] Auſelm in loc. Idem Rabanus apud Thomam
[h] Hierom. epiſt. ad Celant.
[i] Remigius apud Thom.
[k] Aretius.
[l] Apocal. 7. 9.
[m] Matth. 13. 31
[n] Epeſ. 2. 14.
[o] Beauxamis. Pontan. Kilian. Idem Hentenius ſcholijs in Euthym. in loc.
[p] Auguſtin. in Pſalm. 132.
[q] Prou 18. 19. as the tranſlat. Hen. 8
[r] Coloſ. 2. 3.
[s] Muſculus. Beauxamis. Pontan.
[t] 1 Cor 1. 27. 28
[u] Iudg. 15. 16.
[x] Apud Beauxam Har. tom 1. fol. 140.
[y] 1 Cor. 1. 21.

for his Apoſtles, as bloudy Saul, and couetous Matthew; that his abundant grace might be manifeſted in their perſons, as well as in their preaching; demonſtrating that in themſelues, which is the ſumme of all their ſermons, namely, that Ieſus Chriſt [z] came not to call the righteous, but ſinners to repentance. This is a true ſaying, and by all meanes worthy to be receiued, that Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners, of whom I am chiefe, 1 Tim. 1. 15. The greateſt Apoſtle whilome was the greateſt oppreſſor of the Church, a blaſphemer, a perſecutor, [a] breathing out threatnings and ſlaughter againſt the Diſciples of the Lord: and therefore his auditors might well & cedere & credere, grant and beleeue that Ieſus is a Sauiour of his people. But this extraordinary calling, and ſingular action of Chriſt is [b] no patterne for Prelats (as phantaſticall ſpirits imagine) to ſend into the Miniſtrie lewd and ignorant perſons, as if the more faultie were the more fit, and the more ſilly the more ſufficient: for the ſame Chriſt by the pen of his Apoſtle Paul in that excellent Epiſtle to Timothy (which [c] Hierome cals ſpeculum Sacerdoty, as the whole Scripture is [d] ſpeculum Chriſtianiſmi) ſets downe theſe directions for the choyce of a Paſtor, he muſt be well reported of, euen of them which are without, vnrepreuable, watching, ſober, modeſt, harborous, apt to teach. And albeit at their firſt comming (as I haue ſhewed a little before) theſe Fiſher-men were rude, yet afterward they were ſo furniſhed with all parts of knowledge and varietie of language, that their hearers exceedingly [e] wondred at their wiſdome, and [f] knew that they had beene with Ieſus.

[z] Matth. 9. 13.

[a] Acts 9. 1.

[b] Caluin. Muſculus.

[c] Epiſt. ad Oceanum, tom. 2. fol. 323.

[d] Iames 1. 23.

[e] Acts 2. 6.

[f] Acts 4. 13.

[g] Other haue rendred other reaſons, why Chriſt in the beginning of his preaching choſe fiſher men for his Apoſtles. As namely, to ſhew that God is no reſpecter of perſons: as alſo for that he knew the poore would follow him immediatly, whereas [h] it is eaſier for a camell to goe thorow the eye of a needle, then for a rich man to enter into the kingdome of God. For being inuited to the great Supper he ſaith, [i] I haue bought a farme, and I muſt needs goe to ſee it; or I haue bought fiue yoke of oxen, and I goe to proue them, &c.

[g] Luther. poſt. in loc.

[h] Matth. 19. 24

[i] Luke 14. 18.

Let vs examine now why Ieſus called them, and that is, that they might bee made fiſhers of men: not hunters, but fiſhers. In old time the Prophets and Apoſtles were fiſhers, [k] in our time more like hunters, [l] according to that of the Prophet Ieremy, 16. 16. Behold, ſaith the Lord, I will ſend out many fiſhers, and they ſhall fiſh them, and after I will ſend out many hunters, and they ſhall hunt them, &c Hertofore the Preachers, as fiſhers, incloſed many fiſh in their net at one draught; but in our age we reſemble hunters, after a great noiſe, long and loud crying, we catch either nothing, or elſe very little. Ionas was but one man, and he preached vnto Niniue but one Sermon, and that a ſhort Sermon, as touching the number of words; and yet he turned all the whole Citie, rich and poore, Prince and people. [m] We (God be praiſed) are many Preachers, and we preach many Sermons, and ſuch as haue a full bite, nipping inuectiues againſt ſinne; yet England repents not in ſackcloth and aſhes. Iohn Baptiſts Sermon was ſhort, Behold the Lambe of God, which taketh away the ſinnes of the world. [n] S. Andrewes Sermon ſhorter, We haue found the Meſſias: and yet (as we read in the firſt Chapter of Saint Iohns Goſpell) Andrew was caught by the one, and Peter by the other. The Sermon of S. Peter, Acts 2. was exceeding briefe, yet it caught about thre thouſand ſoules: in our time ſcarcely one ſoule taken in many Sermons. And the fault is partly the fiſhers, and partly the fiſhes, as I haue ſhewed at large, Goſpell 5. Sund. after Trinitie.

[k] Iacob. de Voragine ſer. 3 dom 5. poſt Trinit.

[l] Remigius apud Thom. in loc.

[m] B. Latimer vltim. vale.

[n] Vide Ferum & Pontan. in loc.

I will make you fiſhers of men] [o] Not of money, as if the ſharing of the ſheepe and fiſh were the white they ſhould aime at. Antichriſt of Rome was not in a pulpit theſe [p] nine hundred yeeres, and ſo by conſequence ſucceeds not Peter in fiſhing with his net; but onely in fiſhing with his hooke, Matth. 17. where it is ſaid, that Peter caſt an angle into the ſea, and tooke a fiſh in whoſe mouth he found a peece of twentie pence. Such a kinde of fiſhing the Romane Peters vſe; for Pope Leo the tenth exacted ſo much of the Lay-men, and waſted ſo much of the Churches treaſure, that whereas other were Popes no longer then they liued, he was [o] Muſculus in loc.

[p] Triall of truth.

[q] ſaid

q Guicciardin hist. lib. 14.
r Actius. Syncerus epigram. lib. 3.

q ſaid to bee Pope many yeeres after he was dead. Which occaſioned a learned r Poet to write thus of him:

Sacra ſub extremâ ſi fortè requiritis, horâ
Cur Leo non potuit ſumere? vendiderat.

Iohn 22. left behinde him (as Petrarcha reports) two hundred and fiftie tun of gold, in ſo much that an [f] odde fellow made this ieſt of him, Erat Pontifex maximus, ſi non virtute, pecunia tamen maximus. Pope Sixtus Quintus (called of Engliſhmen in a by-word, for ſelling our kingdome to Philip of Spaine, Six Cinque) through his intolerable couetouſneſſe, [t] left in his exchequer fiue millions: his ſucceſſor Gregorie the 14. waſted foure of them in ten moneths and leſſe, beſide his ordinary reuenewes, in riot and pompe. The Pontificians exceedingly condemne the Proteſtant Preachers, becauſe being married and hauing children, they take care to prouide for their family: but their [u] owne Popes and Prelates are more greedy to ſcrape for their baſtards and minions, then our men haue beene to prouide for their honeſt wiues and legitimate iſſue. Haply ſome men of corrupt mindes among vs, as moſt among them, enter into the Miniſterie, as [x] Stratocles and Dromoclidas into the Magiſtracie, tanquam ad auream meſſem, and ſo they be fiſhers of money, not of men; or if they fiſh after men, it is to finger their meanes. As the Friers in old time profeſſed wilfull pouertie ſo long, [y] vntill they robbed the whole world, and became Lords of all. And at this houre the Ieſuites are ſo couetous, that they maligne all other orders, except the Capuchin. And the reaſon hereof is plaine, [z] becauſe the Capuchin ſaith, hee would haue nothing, and the Ieſuite would haue all. [a] A wittie libeller in Spaine deſcribed the Capuchin Friers ſhooting from the purſe, the Franciſcanes aiming wide of it, and the Ieſuites hitting it in the very middeſt. I haue read of [b] Vrbane the fifth, how that when he was a poore Chaplaine in the Court of Rome, hee ſhould vpon a time ſay to a familiar friend, If all the Churches in the world ſhould fall at once, none of thim I thinke verily would light on my head. After being elected Pope, his old acquaintance told him at his inthronization, Once (holy father) you complained that you were Parſon of no Church, and now behold, God hath out of the riches of his wiſdome and mercie ſo diſpoſed as that all the Churches in the world are committed only to your charge. Let vs be [c] faithfull in a little, [d] caſting our care on God, who careth for vs. If any forſake with theſe Diſciples his nets and ſhip, & ſuos & ſua, to follow Chriſt, he ſhall receiue an hundred fold at this preſent; houſes, and brethren, and ſiſters, and mothers, and children, and lands with perſecutions, and in the world to come eternall life, Mark. 10. 30. Auarice is a ſinne in any man, hereſie in a Clergy man.

Fiſhers of men, in generall (as [e] Muſculus obſerues) not of great men and learned men only: for that is Peters fault to neglect his Cure that he may follow the Court, as if the ſoules of poore men in the Countrey were not worthy to bee fiſhed for. Not of good men and brethren only; for that is a ſchiſmaticall tricke, ſuch I trow be caught already, we ſhould therfore rather caſt how to caſt our net for other. A ſcabbie ſheepe is of the flocke ſo well as the bell-weather, and becauſe ſcabbie, wants our helping hand more then the whole.

Fiſhers of men, not of women only; for that is an hereticall tricke [f] to leade captiue ſimple women laden with ſins, and led with diuers luſts. As Simon Magus the firſt heretike broched his dangerous opinions by the helpe of the ſtrumpet Helena; Nicolas the founder of the filthy Familiſts had troupes of women euer accompanying him; Apelles had Philomene for his mate; Montanus had Priſca and Maximilla, women of great birth and opulent eſtate; Donatus had Lucilla for his miſtreſſe; Arrius the Princes owne daughter for his Patroneſſe, as [g] S. Hierome notes in his Epiſtle to Cteſiphon againſt the Pelagians. [h] Poſtellus the Ieſuite had an old beldame called mother Iane, and the reſt of that ranke (as the [i] Quodlibeticall diſcourſe auoweth) haue deluded many young Gentlewomen, and deuoured many widowes houſes. And this kinde of fiſhing they learned from Satan himſelfe, who did firſt attempt the woman, and then tempt the man, vſing s Watſon Quod. 1. art. 10.

t Sheldons motiue concerning the Pontifician ſpirits, pag. 5.
u Waſingham Edw. 3. an. 1362 x Plutarch.
y Tyndal. proleg before the booke of Numbers
z Matth 25. 21
a 1 Pet. 5. 7.
b Com. in loc.
c 2 Tim. 3. 6.
d Tom. 2. fol. 253.
e Ieſuites Cat. lib 1 cap. 10.
f Quod. 3. art. 10.

vſing the wife as a trap to catch her husband. And the reaſon why the deuill and his agents are fiſhers of women rather then of men, is becauſe they be leſſe able to reſiſt, and more willing to report a new fangled opinion. In one word, for that their wits are ſhorter, and their tongues longer.

Fiſhers of men, not of children, as Seruetus abſurdly cauilleth: Ergo, ſaith hee, Preachers may not baptize little infants. Anſwer is made by [k] Caluin and other, that men here ſignifieth all mankinde, of whatſoeuer age or ſexe. Chriſts commandement is expreſſe, [l] teach all nations, baptizing them, &c. and Mark. 10. 14. ſuffer the little children to come vnto me. There be young [m] Lambes in his fold ſo well as old ſheepe, [n] it is not his Fathers wil that one of theſe little ones ſhould periſh, for [o] of ſuch is the kingdome of heauen. See Melanchthon loc. com. tit. baptiſ. infant. Caluin vbi ſup. in margin. Maſter Iohn Philpots letter concerning this argument apud Fox in his martyrdome. Bucan loc. com. tit. baptiſ. quæſt. 35.

Little children muſt be caught and brought vnto Chriſt, and after theſe minumes are baptized in the ſacred font, they muſt be catechized and further inſtructed in the principles of holy religion, that they may know what a ſolemne vow they haue made by their God-fathers and God-mothers. And for as much as euery man is a Prieſt and a Prince in his owne houſe; you muſt bring vp your children in [p] inſtruction and information of the Lord, drawing them vnto God while they be young, leſt afterward being paſt correction, they ſay with the wicked in the ſecond Pſalme: Let vs breake their bonds aſunder, and caſt away their cords from vs.

[q] Niſi fundamenta ſtirpis iacta ſint probè,
Miſeros neceſſe eſt eſſe deinceps poſteros.

The [r] draw-net of the Church incloſeth all kinde of fiſh, and therefore the Preachers are fiſhers of all ſorts of men. None is too good, or too bad, or too rich, or too poore, or too young, or too old, to be brought vnto God. I will make you fiſhers of men indefinitely, not of this or that man in particular. Andrew muſt fiſh for all, eſpecially for ſuch as are committed vnto his peculiar charge. Acts 20. 28. Take heed to your ſelues, and to all the flocke, whereof the Holy Ghoſt hath made you ouerſeers. Our principall care muſt be to reduce ſuch as are vnder our proper Cure, from the ſinke and ſeas of their ſin, to righteouſneſſe and holineſſe, [ſ] by preaching of the word to draw them out of the ſhadow of death, out of the pit of ignorance to the maruellous light & ſunne-ſhine of the Goſpell. And that we may performe this, it is required on our part that wee be painfull, either caſting our nets into the ſea, or elſe mending them in our ſhip: and skilfull, alſo, that we may know to caſt our nets on the [t] right ſide of the ſhip. [u] Omnis ignorantia mala, ſacerdotis autem peſſima. The blinde leading the blinde drawes him not out of the puddle, but rather hurleth him into the ditch, Matth. 15. 14.

Now the fiſhers of men for the catching of ſoules, ought to preach and preſſe two points eſpecially, [x] repentance and faith. Almighty God himſelfe the firſt fiſher of men, in his very [y] firſt draught (when the worlds ſea was not ſo tempeſtuous as it is now) ſtood vpon theſe two principally. Firſt, he rebuked Adam for his ſinne, that he might repent: and then he ſhewed how Chriſt is the propitiation for his ſinne, the ſeed of the woman ſhall breake the ſerpents head, that he might beleeue. The Patriarks and Prophets vrged theſe points vnto the men of their age. Iohn Baptiſt the laſt of the Prophets, and firſt of Apoſtles, a midling as it were betweene both, inculcated often theſe two, [z] repent, and [a] behold the Lambe of God. All the ſermons of Chriſt (as our euangeliſt reports in the verſe before my Text) conſiſted of theſe two likewiſe, from that time Ieſus began to preach and ſay, Amend your liues, for the kingdome of heauen is at hand. If any then deſire to know whether the fiſhers of men haue caught him or no, let him examine his owne heart, whether he be repentant and faithfull. If he feele ſorrow for his ſinne, and comfort in his Sauiour: if he confeſſe his fault as the [b] Publican, O God be merciſull to me a ſinner: and confeſſe his faith as [c] Andrew; We haue found the Meſſias: if crying with teares he can vnfainedly ſay, Lord I beleeue, helpe k Inſtitut. lib. 4. cap. 16. §. 31.

l Matth 28. 19
m Iohn 21. 15.
n Matth 18. 14
o Matth 19. 14

p Epheſ. 6. 4.

q Eripides apud Plutarch Com. de lib. educandis.
r Matth. 13. 47

ſ Luther. Aretius. Muſculus.

t Iohn 21. 6.
u Laurent. Piſan. Euangel paradox.

x Melanct. Com. in loc.
y Gen. 3.

z Matth 3. 2. Marke 1. 4.
a Ioh. 1. 29 36.

b Luke 18. 13.
c Iohn 1. 41.

helpe mine vnbeleefe: it is a manifeſt argument that the fiſhers of men haue drawne him out of the dead ſea in to the land of the liuing, out of the darke waters into the glorious light of the Sunne of righteouſneſſe.

Here the Goſpell and Epiſtle meet againe; Preachers are fiſhers of men, becauſe men are iuſtified by faith, and faith commeth by hearing of the word, and the word is brought vnto you by the mouth of the Preachers. And therefore you muſt honour their holy function, as Gods ordinance for the [d] gathering together of the Saints, and edifying of the body of Chriſt. Abhorre the poſitions of [e] Scenckfeldius, [f] Anabaptiſts, Familiſts, holding that the word is not taught by the ſermons of Peter and Andrew, &c. but onely by the reuelation of the Spirit. As alſo the practiſes of vncharitable Martiniſts, Barroniſts, Browniſts, openly breathing out ſlander, ſecretly threatning ſlaughter againſt the Diſciples of the Lord, making it their greateſt vertue to meddle with the Preachers vice; ſo that whereas Andrew ſhould catch them, it is apparent that they labour principally to catch Andrew. But the beſt is, in the meane while they loſe themſelues among themſelues, hauing almoſt as many factions, as there be fractions in their ſeuerall inuectiues. [g] In iſta Babylonia ſecta diſſecta, their ſects are now ſo diuers and aduerſe, that as [h] one ſaid, Litigando res non dirimitur, ſed perimitur.

The laſt of all the remarkable circumſtances in our Text is, how Ieſus called his Diſciples, and that is, he ſaw them, and ſaith vnto them, follow me, and I will make you &c. that is, as [i] Ardens in a ſhort gloſſe pithily, Vidit, per electionem: vocauit, per fidem: iuſſit ſe ſequi, per obedientiam: præmium promiſit, per obedientiæ remunerationem. [k] According to that of Paul, whom he did predeſtinate, them he called: and whom he called, them alſo he iuſtified: and whom he iuſtified, he alſo glorified. For faith is a conſequent of election, obedience of faith, and remuneration of obedience. He called his Apoſtles here by word onely, follow me. [l] Goe not before me, nor beſide me: but come after me, for I am the way, the truth and the life. Where note the [m] power of his word, hee ſpake and it was done, he called and they came immediatly. But wee read in the 5. of Luke that he called theſe by working a wonder alſo: for whereas they laboured all night and caught nothing, he commanded them to let downe their net, and they tooke ſuch a multitude of fiſh, that they filled two ſhips vntill they did ſinke. Where Diuines obſerue, that Chriſt accommodates himſelfe euermore to his preſent auditors, as he called the [n] Wiſemen of the Eaſt, addicted vnto the ſtudies of Aſtrologie, by a ſtarre: and conferring with a woman of [o] Samaria, who came to draw water at Iacobs Well, hee tooke occaſion to ſpeake of the water of life, ſaying, Whoſoeuer drinketh of the water that I ſhall giue him, ſhall neuer bee more a thirſt: and in the 6. Chapter of S. Iohns Goſpell, he did inſtruct the Capernaits, who followed him onely for loaues, by a ſimilitude taken from bread and meat, willing them to labour for the true bread of heauen, and for the meat that endureth vnto euerlaſting life. By whoſe example fiſhers of men are taught, to become [p] as weake to the weake, that they may winne the weake: being all things to all men, that by all meanes they may ſaue ſome.

Hitherto concerning the calling of Simon, Andrew, Iames and Iohn: let vs now come to their comming. Simon and Andrew ſtaight-way left their nets, Iames and Iohn immediatly left their ſhip, and their father, and followed him. They came ſtraight-way without [q] inquiſition or [r] delay, conſidering onely who called, and not diſputing why he called. And they came willingly without any grudging or griefe, leauing nets, and ſhip, and father, and [s] all things of the world, to follow Ieſus, whoſe kingdome was not of [t] this world, whoſe pouertie was ſo great, that he was borne in [u] another mans houſe, and buried in another mans [x] tombe, as not hauing [y] wherein to reſt his head. [z] They forſooke all that little they had, and all the great things they deſired to haue. They did not [a] abandon vtterly their eſtate (for S. Peter afterward vſed his nets and followed his trade, Iohn 21.3) but they ſo ſubdued their will vnto Gods will, as that they counted all things [b] loſſe to winne Chriſt. Apoſtoli (quoth [c] Hierome) quantum ad diuitias nihil, [d] Ephes. 4. 12.

[e] Melanthon. in Rom 10.
[f] See Rogers in Anglican. Confeſſ. art. 23.
[g] Sedulius epiſt. lect prefix. apologet. S. Francisci.
[h] Io. Serranus apparat pag. 14.
[i] Hom. in loc.
[k] Rom. 8. 30.
[l] Pontan.
[m] Marlorat.
[n] Matth. 2.
[o] Iohn 4.
[p] 1 Cor. 9. 22.
[q] Aretius.
[r] Muſculus.
[s] Matth. 19. 27
[t] Ioh 18. 36.
[u] Luk. 2. 7.
[x] Matth. 27. 60
[y] Matth. 8. 20
[z] Auguſt. epiſt. 89.
[a] Caietan. Muſculus. Aretius in loc.
[b] Philip 3. 8.
[c] Epiſt. ad Pammac. tom. 1. fol. 166.

nihil, quantum ad voluntatem, totum mundum pariter reliquerunt. Ieſus euery day calleth vs vnto him, either by the good motions of his Spirit, or by his word in the mouth of his Preachers, or elſe by ſtrange iudgements, or extraordinarie mercies. And therefore let vs, I beſeech you, forſake the vaine pompe of the world, the carnall deſires of the fleſh, and all other nets and lets whatſoeuer hindring our comming, that we may follow him immediately. For if the Diſciples here followed him in his humiliation and pouertie; what a ſinne, yea what a ſhame will it be, not to follow him now, ſitting at the right hand of God in the heauen of heauens, a Lord of Lords, higher than the higheſt, a King of glory, [d] rich vnto all that call vpon him, [e] able to do for his followers exceeding abundantly aboue all that they can aske or thinke.

These followed him [f] in

- Bodie, being [g] conuerſant with him, and witneſſes of all he did and ſaid.
- Minde, for nothing could [h] ſeparate them from the loue of Chriſt.
- Life, learning of him to be meeke, and mercifull as he was mercifull, exhorting their auditors to be [i] followers of them as they were followers of Chriſt.
- Death, for as he ſuffered on the Croſſe to make their peace: ſo Peter & Andrew were crucified, and Iames ſlaine with the ſword in his quarrell; and Iohn (as we finde in Eccleſiaſticall hiſtorie) was by the commandement of the tyrant Domitian caſt in feruentis olei [k] dolium, or as other [l] ſolium, into a veſſell or bath of hot boyling oyle, from which he was notwithſtanding by Gods hand deliuered miraculouſly without any hurt. Though haply neuer occaſion ſhall be giuen vs to die for the Lord, yet let vs ſo follow him in our liues and in our loues, as that we may die in the Lord. Let vs [m] mortifie our earthly members: our feet, that we [n] ſtand not in the way of ſinners; our eyes, that wee may not delight in vanities, or wantonly [o] behold a woman; our hands, that we may [p] labour and worke the thing which is good; our mouth, that it be not full of [q] curſing and bitterneſſe; our hearts, that they bee not exerciſed with [r] auarice: that forſaking our ſelues to follow him onely, which is our ſaluation; as we [s] ſuffer with him, euen ſo we may be glorified together with him. Amen.

[d] Rom. 10. 12.
[e] Epheſ. 3. 20.
[f] Ardens.
[g] Acts 1. 21.
[h] Rom. 8. 35.
[i] 1 Cor. 11. 1.
[k] Hieron. in Matth. 20 & Mat. Weſt. ad ann. 95.
[l] Baronius annal. tom. 1. ad ann 92.
[m] Coloſſ 3. 5.
[n] Pſalm. 1. 1.
[o] Iob 31. 1. Matth 5. 28.
[p] Epheſ. 4. 28.
[q] Pſalm 14. 6.
[r] 2 Pet. 2 14.
[s] Rom. 8. 17.

Almighty God, which didſt giue ſuch grace vnto thy holy Apoſtle S. Andrew, that he readily obeyed the calling of thy Sonne Ieſus Chriſt, and followed him without delay: grant vnto vs all, that wee being called by thy holy word, may forthwith giue ouer our ſelues obediently to follow thy holy commandements, through the ſame Ieſus Chriſt our Lord.

The Epiſtle Ephes. 2.19.

Now are yee not ſtrangers, nor forreiners, but citizens with the Saints, and of the houſhold of God, &c.

This Epiſtle ſets downe the moſt happy condition of all ſuch as truly beleeue:

1. Priuatiuely, ſhewing what they are not in the 19. verſe. Now yee are not ſtrangers, nor forreiners.
2. Poſitiuely, deſcribing in the reſt of the Text what they are, namely, Gods
   - Citie.
   - Houſe.
   - Temple.

Of

Of which heauenly building the
- Materials, are [t] liuely ſtones, all Gods elect, built together to be an habitation of God.
- Foundation, is Ieſus Chriſt himſelfe.
- Builders, Apoſtles and Prophets.
- Properties, are to be built together, &c. anſwering the three properties of the Church in the Creeed;
  - Holy, a temple of the Lord, an habitation of God.
  - Catholique, all the building, &c. knit in a communion, coupled together and built together.

[t] 1 Pet 2.5.

[u] In Pſalm. 1.

[x] 2 Cor. 6.1.

[y] Rom 8.1.
[z] Rom. 6.14.

[a] Zanchius.

[b] Galat 4.26.
[c] Aretius.
[d] Zanchius.
[e] Com. in cap. 28. Ezechiel.

[f] Epheſ. 2.5.
[g] Galat. 2.20.
[h] Vide Lorin. in 1 Pet 2.5.
[i] Galat. 6.2.

[k] Hom. 13. in Ezechiel.

[l] Ser. 22. de verbis Apoſtoli.
[m] Luther. in Gal. 6.2.
[n] Lib. de vitis Patrum.

[o] 1 Cor. 12.21.

[p] Coloſſ 3.12.

Now are ye not ſtrangers] As [u] Auguſtine ſaid, it is one thing to walke in the Law, another thing to liue vnder the Law: ſo likewiſe there is difference betweene being in grace, and vnder grace. Many men in our time who receiue the Goſpell of God in [x] vaine, liue vnder grace, but not in grace: many Prophets and holy Fathers in old time liued in grace, but not vnder grace. For (properly) to liue vnder grace is oppoſed vnto the ſtate of the law, to liue in grace is oppoſed vnto the ſtate of ſinne. The men of Epheſus, and other Gentiles in time paſt vnbeleeuing, were neither in grace, nor vnder grace: not in grace, for in walking according to the courſe of this world, and in fulfilling the luſts of the fleſh, and wil of the minde, they became dead in ſinnes: not vnder grace, for they were without Chriſt, aliens from the common-wealth of Iſrael, & ſtrangers from the couenants of promiſe, hauing no hope, and without God in the world, as our Apoſtle diſputes in the former part of this Chapter. But now (ſaith he) God which is rich in mercy, through his great loue, wherwith he loued vs, euen when we were dead in treſpaſſes, hath ſo quickned vs in Chriſt Ieſu, that we be both vnder grace, releaſed from the [y] condemnation of the Law; and in grace, deliuered from the [z] dominion of ſin. We which once were farre off, are made neere to God and his people, not any longer ſtrangers or forreiners, but fellow citizens with the Saints, of Gods houſhold, yea Gods houſe. [a] Wherein our Apoſtle doth allude to the goodly buildings of the terreſtriall Hieruſalem, in which all the whole Citie was faire, the Kings houſe fairer, the Temple faireſt of all. And ſo by theſe three, whereof one doth excell another, he deſcribes the bleſſed eſtate of Hieruſalem which is [b] aboue.

The materials of this high and holy building are Gods [c] elect, [d] as well his ſeruants on earth, as Saints in heauen. His elect in the militant Church are called by S. Peter, liuely ſtones, or (as [e] Hierome reades) liuing ſtones. A materiall houſe conſiſts of blocks, and ſtocks, and other ſenſleſſe ſtuffe: but all the parts of the myſticall houſe, built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles, are mouing & free ſtones, in that they be [f] quickned by God, and [g] liue by faith in his ſonne. And this their faith is not dead, but liuely, working by loue, Galat. 5.6. [h] For as in other buildings one ſtone lieth vpon another, and all vpon the foundation: euen ſo in the ſpirituall houſe, Chriſtians [i] beare one anothers burden, and Chriſt as the chiefe ſtone beares all. Vnuſquiſque & portat alterum, & portatur ab altero, quoth [k] Gregorie. The whole building is ſo compact, as that euery one beares another, and is borne of another. As for example, the rich and the poore man are thruſt and piled together in Gods houſe, the poores burthen is his beggerie, the burthen of the rich is his ouer-growne eſtate. Wherefore the poore lieth on the rich, and the rich is content to ſuſtaine the poore; the rich hath his burthen leſſened by giuing, and the poore his burthen leſſened by taking, and ſo ſaith [l] Auguſtine they beare one anothers burthen. A Chriſtian muſt haue [m] ſtrong ſhoulders, and mightie bones, that he may beare fleſh, that is, the weakneſſe of his brethren. It was excellently ſaid of [n] one, when it was told him how his brother had committed a foule fault: He fell yeſterday (quoth he) and I may fall to day. The peble may not enuie the marble, nor the marble deſpiſe the peble: the pinne in the Temple ſerues for vſe ſo well as the pinnacle: [o] the eye cannot ſay to the hand, I haue no need of thee: nor the head to the feet, I haue no need of you. So that euery liuing ſtone muſt [p] put on tender mercie, kindneſſe, humilitie, meekeneſſe, long- long-ſuffering, forbearing one another, and forgiuing one another, of one q heart, and of one ſoule, of one r accord, and of one iudgement. Thus all ſuch as are truly faithfull a [f] tempore fidei, from the beginning of their faith and firſt embracing of the Goſpell are tranſlated out of [t] Babylon, and made citizens of Hieruſalem, euen walking and working ſtones in the building of Gods houſe.

The next point to be diſcuſſed, is the foundation of the Church, and that is not Peter alone, nor yet all the Prophets and Apoſtles ioyntly: but Chriſt Ieſus himſelfe. [u] Not the Chriſt of Arrius, or the Chriſt of Marcion, or the Chriſt of Legate, or any falſe Chriſt, albeit there be [x] many ſuch in the world: but onely the true Chriſt of the Prophets and Apoſtles, I ſay that Chriſt only which is reuelatus in veteri teſtamento, reuelatus in nouo, promiſed by the mouth of all the [z] Prophets in the old Teſtament, and preached of all the bleſſed Apoſtles in the new. So the Doctors expound my Text, built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles, [a] that is, vpon Chriſt, as being the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles, vpon the foundation which is laid by their [b] doctrine, as [c] S. Ambroſe plainly, ſuper nouum & vetus teſtamentum, vpon the contents of the two Teſtaments, the ſumme whereof is nothing elſe but Chriſt crucified, as being the head corner ſtone, [d] lapis ſummus & imus, euen the firſt & the laſt ſtone, the beginning and ending, Apocal. 1.8. [e] by whom the Church is founded and finiſhed. In [f] other buildings the foundation is loweſt in the ground: but the foundation of Hieruſalem aboue, Gal.4.26. deſcending downe from God out of heauen, Apoc. 21.2. is higher then the higheſt, Eccleſiaſt.5.7. As Ariſtotle ſaid, a man is arbor tranſuerſa: ſo we, that the Church is domus tranſuerſa, an houſe turned vpſide downe; for that Chriſt is both a rocke on which his Church is founded, and a chiefe or head corner ſtone, in whom all the whole building is coupled together and groweth, &c. [g] other foundation can no man lay, than that which is laid, which is Ieſus Chriſt, a [h] tried ſtone, a precious ſtone, a ſure ſtone.

This doctrine confutes the Papiſts, holding that Peter is the rocke on which the Church is built, for that vpon the confeſſion of [i] Peter (thou art Chriſt the Sonne of the liuing God) our bleſſed Sauiour ſaid, thou art Peter, and vpon this rocke will I build my Church. Anſwer is made, that Peter in making this confeſſion, thou art Chriſt; either ſpake [k] præ cæteris, or [l] pro cæteris, as prolocutor or [m] mouth of the reſt. And therefore whatſoeuer in that place was promiſed vnto Peter, appertained to the whole Colledge of Apoſtles, as Origen hom.1. in Mat. the words ſpoken to Peter are common to all. If we confeſſe with Peter, & nobis dicitur tu es Petrus, petra enim quiſque Chriſti diſcipulus eſt. And [n] S. Hierom: Petra Chriſtus eſt, qui donauit omnibus Apoſtolis vt ipſi quoque petræ vocentur, enitere ergo tu (ſaith [o] Ambroſe) vt ſis petra: for euery confeſſor is a Peter, and euery Peter a liuing ſtone in the building of Gods houſe. Touching the words (vpon this rocke will I build my Church) [p] Auguſtine the moſt accurate Doctor expounds him thus: Super hanc petram quam confeſſus es, ſuper hanc petram quam cognouiſti, dicens, tu es Chriſtus filius Dei viui, ædificabo Eccleſiam meam, id eſt, ſuper meipſum ædificabo Eccleſiam meam: ſuper me ædificabo te, non me ſuper te. So the Papiſts [q] own writers, vpon this rocke, that is, I will build my Church vpon my ſelfe the Sonne of the liuing God. See Goſpell on S. Peters day.

Againe, this ſentence (Chriſt is the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles) ouerthroweth (as [r] Interpreters obſerue) Marcion and other heretikes, affirming that two ſundry diſagreeing Gods are Authors of the two Teſtaments. As if one God were preached in the Goſpell, and another in the Law: whereas one and the ſame Chriſt is the very center of both, at which all the Prophets and Apoſtles aime principally.

The builders of Gods houſe, are the Prophets and Apoſtles, and all their lawfull Succeſſours, the Miniſters and Preachers of the word. Behold, ſaith the Lord to Ieremy the Prophet, [s] I haue put my words in thy mouth, I haue ſet thee ouer the nations, and ouer the kingdomes, to plucke vp, and to root out, and to deſtroy and throw downe, to build, and to plant. [t] That is, to root out vice, to plant vertue, to deſtroy

q Acts 4.32.
r Philip.2.2.
f Anſelm.
t Lombard.
u Zanchius.
x Matth.24.5.
y Auguſtin de Ciuit. lib.5. cap.18.
z Acts 3.18.
a Lombard. Anſelm. Caietan in loc.
b Caluin. B Zu. Piſcator.
c In loc. Idem Aquin & poſtil. maior in loc.
d Anſelm. Aretius. Zanchius.
e Hieron. expoſit. 2. in loc.
f Aquin.
g 1 Cor.3.11
h Eſay 28.16.
i Matth.16.16
k Ambroſ. lib 6. in Luc cap de interrogatione Ieſu.
l Auguſtin. ſer. 13. de verb. Dom ſecundum Matth Idem Lyra in Mat.16 m Chryſoſt hom. 55. in Matt. n Com. in Amos 6.
o Vbi ſupra.
p Vbi ſupra.
q Anſelm. Hugo. Dion. Carthu. Ferus Soarez. in Matth 16. r Hieron. Caluin. Aretius.
s Ierem 1.9.
t Lyra in 1. Ierem.

u the dens of Satan, and build vp Gods Temple, to throw downe the kingdome of Antichriſt, and to ſet vp the kingdome of Chriſt. And ſo x Paul cals himſelfe a skilfull Architect, or a cunning Maſter-builder, laying the foundation, and he ſaith of other Preachers of the word, that they build vpon his foundation gold, ſiluer, precious ſtones, &c. y that is, doctrines and exhortations anſwerable to the foundation, and worthy of Chriſt: In a word, that the Paſtors are Gods labourers, and the people Gods building, 1 Cor. 3.9. It is true that Chriſt himſelf is the chiefe builder, as he ſaith in the z Goſpell (vpon this rocke will I build my Church) he builds (as it is in our Text) through his holy Spirit. ver. 22. yet he doth vſe Prophets, and Apoſtles, and Euangeliſts, and Paſtors, and Teachers, as vnder-workmen for the gathering together of his Saints, and edification of his Church, Eph. 4. 11, 12.

The tooles or inſtruments which Apoſtles and Preachers vſe toward this worke, are the word & the Sacraments eſpecially. For ſo the Lord of theſe labourers hath appointed, a Go teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the Holy Ghoſt. His word is his power to bring his elect to the foundation, and to build them vpon the foundation. His Sacraments are (faſtnings as it were) to ſtrengthen and confirme them after they be laid in the building, that they fall not away, but grow to an holy Temple of the Lord. Our doctrine muſt be according to the b analogie of faith, our exhortation according to the rules of good life: the Bible (which is our lanterne and our guide) furniſheth vs with both, and therfore we muſt euer build vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles.

Beſide theſe tooles, a Miniſter ought to further Gods building with heartie c prayers and good example. d Bellarmine ſaid of Eraſmus falſly, that he was but halfe a Chriſtian: but it may be ſaid of a lewd Paſtor truly, that he is but halfe a Preacher: he may peraduenture pull downe more building in one weeke with his bad life, then he can ſet vp againe in a whole yeere with his great learning. e Seneca thought it impoſſible that any body ſhould at one time be both a good man and a good Capraine: but a Clergie man is not a good Paſtor, vnleſſe he be a good patterne. God defend me and mine from a mangie Phyſitian, a ragged Alchymiſt, and a diſſolute Diuine. If thou be a preſident of godlineſſe to thy people, pray to the God of all grace, that you may ſo remaine: if you ſometime were, and are now fallen, returne: if you neuer were, repent: if you neuer will be, periſh. Nam à Deo ſeparabitur, qui à diabolo ſuperabitur. Concerning the properties of the Church; it is built together in ſuch a f due proportion and concinnes ſymmetrie, that euery part is content to keepe his ranke, and performe his function without any faction. It is a body fitly ioyned together, and compacted by that which euery ioynt ſupplieth, &c Ephe. 4. 16. See Epiſtle 2. Sunday after Epiphanie. It is built together, in reſpect of her h vnion with Chriſt the head corner ſtone: and coupled together, in reſpect of her communion with the members. See Communion of Saints in the Creed. And being thus inſerted and built on Chriſt, it liueth and groweth from grace to grace, i till it become an holy Temple to the Lord. The which k Interpreters vnderſtand of euery ſingula part, ſo well as of the whole body: for euery Chriſtian is an habitation of God. If thou be then a conſecrate l Chappell vnto the Lord, how dareſt thou commit idolatry, which is againſt the firſt Table, l what agreement hath the Temple of God with Idols? Or how dareſt thou commit adultery, which is againſt the ſecond Table, m Know ye not that your body is the Temple of the Holy Ghoſt, and that God is to be glorified in your ſpirit, and in your body? will you then take the members of Chriſt, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid. Euery liuing ſtone that is built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles is holy, n lapides in templo ſancto non poſſunt eſſe non ſanctificati. The Temples of God are holy, both in regard of their righteouſneſſe imputed, in that their vnrighteouſneſſe is o forgiuen, and p Chriſt himſelfe made their holineſſe: and in regard of ſanctification and righteouſneſſe inherent, for that being deliuered out of the hands of all their enemies, they ſerue God in holineſſe and righteouſneſſe all the dayes of their life.

The

u Zanchius in loc.
x 1 Cor. 3.
y Marlorat. in 1 Cor. 3. 12.
z Matth. 16. 18
a Matth. 28. 19
b Rom. 12 6.
c Zanchius.
d De verbo Dei, lib. 1. cap 9.
e De benefic. lib 4. cap 37. ex ſententia Philip. Macedon.
f Aretius.
g Caluin.
h Zanchius.
i Dum enim creſcit templum Dei ſit; Oecumen. in loc. k Caluin. Marlorat.
l 2 Cor. 6. 16.
m 1 Cor. 6 19.
n Primaſius in loc.
o Pſal. 32. 1.
p 1 Cor 1. 30.

The Gospell. IOHN 20.24.

Thomas one of the twelue, which is called Didymus, was not with them when Iesus came, &c.

THis Scripture consists of a { Dialogue, Thomas one of the twelue, &c. / Epilogue, Many other signes truly did Iesus, &c.

The Dialogue is betweene a weake sinner, and a meeke Sauiour. And according to these two principall persons, it hath also two principall parts: one concerning Thomas, and another touching Christ.

In Thomas obserue his { Faults, which are two: { 1. His absence from the meeting of the other Apostles. / 2. His incredulitie, not beleeuing the resurrection of Christ, occasioned by that absence. } / Faith, My Lord and my God. }

That other part concerning Christ, is a relation of his second appearing vnto the blessed Apostles after his rising againe from the dead.

And herein is set downe { 1. What he did: After eight daies he came againe, &c. / 2. What he said, { 1. To the whole company: Peace be to you. / 2. To Thomas in particular: Bring thy finger hither, &c. / 3. In conclusion, to him, and them, and vs, and all; Blessed are they that haue not seene, and yet haue beleeued. } }

In that our Euangelist hath set downe the fall of [q] Peter, and fault of Thomas: we may learne that euen the most holy men are but imperfectly perfect in this life. The Pontificians are true Donatists, and as it were the very spawne of the [r] Cathari. For is any man so great a Puritan as the Papist, highly conceiting that he can obserue all the Commandements of God, and [s] more then euer hee commanded, as the precepts of the Church, and Euangelicall Councels, and so do workes of supererogation? or is any so great a Puritan as the Pope, who maketh himselfe a God in greatnesse, and a God in goodnesse? a God in greatnesse, in that his vnlimited authoritie doth dispense with the lawes of God in this world, and alter his iudgements in another, hauing power terrestriall, in vsurping the [t] whole world for his Diocesse: supernall, extended to heauen in canonizing Saints: infernall, extended to hell in freeing soules out of Purgatory: a God in goodnesse, for he cannot as Pope [u] quatenus Papa, erre in doctrine, and he may not be told of his errours in manners: his holinesse is holy [x] si non sanctitate propria, sanctus tamen sanctitate officij: [y] Whether the Pope be Iudas, or Peter, or Paul, thereof God neuer bade vs be carefull: only this, that he sitteth in Peters Chaire, shall be sufficient for vs. [z] If we say wee haue no sinne, we deceiue our selues, and truth is not in vs. Euen the [a] iust falleth often, and the godly Fathers euermore complained of the corruptions in their age. [b] Tertullian said, O nos miseros, qui Christiani dicimur hoc tempore, gentes agimus sub nomine Christi. [c] Gregory Nazianzene speaketh thus of the pitifull estate of his owne time, We that are Christians, are hated of the Heathen for our owne vices sake, we are now become a wonder not only to men and Angels, but euen to all the wicked and vngodly. More lately Gueuara: The Philosophers beleeued as Pagans, but liued as Christians: whereas we (quoth he) beleeue like Christians, but liue like Pagans. Honoured [d] Whitaker, examining the dissolutenesse of all degrees in England, cried out in exceeding great passion, aut hoc non est Euangelium, aut nos non sumus Euangelici.

[q] Cap. 18 vers 25. 27.
[r] Vide Augustin. hæres. 38. & Epiphan. hæres. 59.
[s] Bellarmin. de Iustificat. lib. 4. cap 13 & Alteinstaig lex. verb. opus supererogat.
[t] Harding confut. of Iew. Apolog. part. 2. cap. 3.
[u] Bellarmin. de Rom. Pont. lib. 4. cap. 3.
[x] Iacob Gretser. respon. ad Thesef. Han. pag. 147.
[y] Hosius apud Iewel præf. defens. apolog.
[z] 1 Ioh 1.8.
[a] Prou. 24. 16.
[b] Apud Iewel in apolog. Idem. Hieron. epist. ad Celant. Tom. 1. fol. 109.
[c] Apud Iewel Apolog part. 3. cap 7.
[d] Con. ad Cler. Cantabrig.

The reuerend [e] Deane of Worceſter, as yet more fully, The fatall miſery of theſe latter dayes, hath made nothing good but in ſhew, nothing true but in opinion; when for Iuſtice betweene kingdome and kingdome, the longer ſword hath eaten vp the law of nations; and for iuſtice betweene ſubiects vnder the ſame gouernment, lawes are loſt in the caſes of the law; and for the preſeruer of all both truth and iuſtice, religion it ſelfe is in a manner loſt in the queſtions of religion. Of all men Chriſtians are the beſt, of all Chriſtians vndoubtedly the primitiue Profeſſors, of all the primitiue Profeſſors Chriſts owne Diſciples, of all the Diſciples his choſen Apoſtles, and yet theſe men were but men, ſubiect to manifold ſinnes, albeit they were Saints, and their infirmities are recorded in holy Bible, partly for the glory of God, and partly for our good. For [f] Gods honour, that his [g] ſauing health might be knowne vpon earth, and the riches of his mercie ſhewed in pardoning offences: according to that of [h] Dauid, againſt thee (my God) haue I ſinned and done this euill in thy ſight, that thou mighteſt bee iuſtified in thy ſaying. In what ſaying I pray, but in this, and the like, [i] where ſinne abounded, there grace ſuperabounded. Againe, the ſinnes of the bleſſed Apoſtles are regiſtred in the Goſpels hiſtory for our good, [k] that we might neither preſume, nor yet deſpaire: not preſume, for we may feare fals, if theſe had their ſlips: not deſpaire, becauſe Chriſt forgot and forgaue Peters blaſphemie, the proud ambition of the ſonnes of Zebedeus, and here Thomas his incredulitie, ſpeaking ſo mildly, working ſo mercifully with him, as that his ſore was made his ſalue, his vnbeleeuing at the firſt occaſioning greater faith in him afterward.

[e] Doctor Eedes Ser difference betweene good & euil.

[f] Pontan.
[g] Pſal. 67. 2.
[h] Pſal. 51. 4.
[i] Rom 5. 20.
[k] Melanchthon. Culman.

[l] Petrarcha de remedys lib. 1. dialog. 8.

[l] Memento peccati, vt doleas:
Memento mortis, vt deſinas:
Memento diuinæ Iuſtitiæ, vt timeas:
Memento miſericordiæ, ne deſperes.

Hitherto concerning the ſinnes of godly men in generall. I come now to Thomas his faults in particular, and they be principally two. Firſt, his abſence from the meeting of the Diſciples, according to the tenour of our Text, Thomas one of the twelue was not with them when Ieſus came. Chriſt had [m] often foretold his Apoſtles that he ſhould be put to death, and that he ſhould riſe againe the third day from the dead: and therefore a little before his paſſion he made promiſe to them, [n] after I am riſen againe, I will goe before you into Galile. Now then according to this word (as we read in the former part of this chapter) euen the ſame day wherein he roſe againe, he came, when the doores were ſhut, into the place where the Diſciples were gathered together, and ſtood in the middeſt, and ſaid to them, Peace be vnto you: But Thomas, either vpon ſupine negligence, or [o] cowardly feare, being abſent from their aſſembly, loſt the ſight of his Sauiour. Wherefore let vs (I beſeech you) be diligent in frequenting the [p] Congregation of the faithfull, eſpecially on the Lords day, [q] for where two or three are gathered together in Chriſts name, there Chriſt is in the middeſt of them, and ſaith as here, Peace be vnto you. [r] They who gathered Manna alone, loſt their labour, and found nothing. Falleris ſancte Thoma, falleris, ſi videre Dominum ſperas ab Apoſtolorum Collegio ſeparatus, non amat veritas angulos, ſed ſtat in medio, &c. ſaith [ſ] Bernard. Thou art deceiued Thomas, exceedingly deceiued, if thou thinke to ſee Chriſt out of the Church and Colledge of the Apoſtles. He lurkes not in the dens of the wicked, but ſtands in the middeſt of the godly, appearing in [t] holy ground, found in the [u] Temple, ſeene among the Diſciples.

[m] Mat. 20. 17. Mark 10 32. Luke 18. 31.
[n] Mat. 26. 32.
[o] Maldonat.
[p] Culman. Klaus.
[q] Mat. 18. 20.
[r] Exod. 16. 27.
[ſ] De aſcenſ. ſer 6
[t] Exod 3. 5.
[u] Luk. 2. 46.

The ſecond fault of Thomas, ariſing from the [x] former, is incredulitie, for his abſence from the Diſciples aſſembly, was the cauſe he ſaw not Chriſt, his not ſeeing of Chriſt occaſioned vnbeleefe, and then his vnbeleeuing heart breakes forth into malapert words, except I ſee in his hands the print of the nailes, &c. I find that ſome Writers haue much excuſed this fact of Didimus, as [y] Cyrill, who thought he ſpake not thus out of incredulitie, but out of a ſudden paſſion, as being extremely grieued for that he loſt the ſight of his Sauiour, and almoſt out of hope that that he ſhould euer ſee him againe, becauſe Chriſt had ſaid, [z] a little while and ye ſhall not ſee me, for I go to my Father. And [a] S. Auguſtine ſaith alſo, that theſe words of Thomas argue not a denying but a doubting only, vox inquirentis eſt non negantis, dū hoc dicit, doceri voluit, cōfirmari deſiderauit. And [b] S. Ambroſe moſt expreſly, that Thomas doubted not of Chriſts reſurrection, but of the manner of his reſurrection only, Non de reſurrectione Domini, ſed de reſurrectionis qualitate videtur dubitaſſe. This I confeſſe is a charitable conſtruction of thoſe holy Fathers extenuating rather then aggrauating the ſins of others, eſpecially the godly. But Chriſt himſelfe, being truth it ſelfe, reprehends in our Text Thomas incredulitie, be not faithleſſe, but faithfull and therfore [c] that which is crooked can none make ſtrait. This fact then of Thomas is a fault, & it is amplified here by 3. circumſtances eſpecially.

[x] Poman.
[y] Apud Maldonat. in loc.

1. That he was one of the twelue; not to beleeue the reſurrection of Chriſt, is a ſinne in an ordinarie Chriſtian, in a Diſciple yet greater, but in an Apoſtle [d] ſo well inſtructed, and ſo well beloued, it was greateſt of all.

2. For that he gaue no credit to the report of his fellow Diſciples, although his Maſter had often ſaid, [e] he that deſpiſeth you, deſpiſeth me. Moreouer, they were the [f] greater part of the companie, ten againſt one, and each of thoſe ten had receiued afore the Holy Ghoſt, ver. 22. and concerning the preſent buſineſſe, had heard and ſeene more then he, verſe 20. 21.

3. For that hee did vent his incredulous thought in ſuch a bold and peremptorie ſtile; except I ſee in his hands the print of his nailes, nay that is not enough, except I feele the print, except I put my finger into the print of his nailes, euery one being ſo big as my finger: except I thruſt mine hand into his ſide, and ſearch his wound ſo great as mine hand: except with hand and finger I [g] meaſure both, and finde by due proportion that they are the ſame, I cannot beleeue; nay the truth is, I will not beleeue. From hence then obſerue, that the [h] naturall man (if Chriſt once leaue him) is not able to diſcerne the things of God, eſpecially that hard article concerning the reſurrection: it ſeemeth as a [i] fained thing, to ſuch as with their ſenſes onely ſeeke their Sauiour.

Thus much of the fault: I proceed now to the faith of Thomas. And here the Doctors haue moued a double doubt.

1. Whether Thomas did touch the wounds of Chriſt or no.

2. Whether his ſpeech, my Lord and my God, were an exclamation, or an acclamation.

For the firſt, it is thought by [k] ſome that hee did not touch the wounds of Chriſt, and that for theſe two reaſons eſpecially: Firſt, becauſe Chriſt ſaith in the 29. verſe, Thomas, becauſe thou haſt ſeene me, thou haſt beleeued: and not becauſe thou haſt touched me. Secondly, for that it is probable that Thomas hearing his Maſters voice, and ſeeing his countenance, was abundantly ſatisfied without any further enquirie. But theſe obiections in the iudgement of the moſt [l] ancient and beſt learned expoſitors are very weake becauſe Chriſt in the 27. verſe ſaith expreſly, put thy finger hither, and ſee mine hands, &c. What (as Auguſtine diſputes in 121. tract in Ioan.) had Thomas his eies in his fingers? if not, then ſeeing in that text is nothing elſe but touching, put thy finger and ſee. For ſeeing is attributed to all the ſenſes: Aude & vide quàm bene ſonet: Heare and ſee how trimly the bels ring: Olfac & vide quàm bene oleat: Smell and ſee how ſweet the flowers: Guſta & vide quàm bene ſapiat: Taſte & ſee the pleaſantneſſe of the fruit: And ſo tange & vide, touch and ſee, reach hither thine hand, and thruſt it into my ſide.

For, the ſecond argument, albeit haply Thomas at the very ſight of his maſter inſtantly became ſatisfied in himſelfe: yet that euery ſcruple might be remoued out of his and our minds, our bleſſed Sauiour ſuffered his glorious bodie to bee touched, as S. Iohn in his [m] firſt Epiſtle, that which was from the beginning, which we haue heard, which we haue ſeene with our eyes, which we haue looked vpon, and our hands haue handled of the Word of life.

Yea but Chriſt ſaid in this Chapter at the 17. verſe to Mary Magdalene, Touch me not, for I am not yet aſcended to my Father: it is likely that Thomas obtained

[z] Iohn 16. 16.
[a] Ser. 156. de temp
[b] Lib 10. in Luc. Cap. 24.
[c] Eccleſiaſtes 1. 15.
[d] Pontan.
[e] Luke 10. 16.
[f] Ianſen.
[g] Maldonat.
[h] 1 Cor. 2. 14.
[i] Luke 24. 11.
[k] Euthym. Euſeb Emiſen. Ianſen. in loc.
[l] Auguſtin ſer. 146. 155. 161. de temp. Ambroſ. in Luc. lib. 10. cap. 24. Gregor. in euangel hom 26. Bernard hom. 2. de beata virg. Idem Cyrillus. Gaudentius. Leontius apud Maldonat. in loc.
[m] Cap. 1. ver. 1.

more fauour then Mary ſo dearely beloued of the Lord? Diuines anſwer this obiection diuerſly: Firſt, our Sauiour did not forbid all touching ſimply, but [n] immoderate embracing onely: for Mary Magdalene and other holy women, with her touched his feet, Matth. 28. 9. They tooke him by the feet, and worſhipped him. It is plaine then that Mary was ſuffered to touch, and only forbidden when ſhe did it too much. Secondly, Mary beleeued the reſurrection of Chriſt, and [o] therefore had no ſuch need to touch him as Thomas had. Thirdly, Chriſt did intimate that his body being now glorified, he was not any longer to be reſpected carnally, but only to be touched [p] ſpiritually with the finger of faith; according to that of [q] Paul, If ye be riſen with Chriſt, ſet your affections on things which are aboue, not on things which are on the earth. And laſtly there is an euaſion in the Text, Touch me not, for I am not yet aſcended to my Father, but goe to my brethren, and ſay to them, &c. [r] As if Chriſt ſhould ſay, you need not be ſo fond and forward in touching me now, for I meane not as yet to depart from you, but go tell my brethren that I am riſen againe from the dead, and then both they and you ſhall further handle and ſee me. For ſo we finde, Luk. 24. 39. Behold mine hands and my feet, for it is I my ſelfe; handle me and ſee: palpate & videte, ſee with your fingers that it is I. This expoſition is proper and pertinent, and therefore notwithſtanding the former obiections, I conclude, if not demonſtratiuely yet probably, that Thomas did actually touch Chriſts wounds according to Chriſts words, bring thy finger hither, and ſee mine hands, and reach hither thine hand, and thruſt it into my ſide.

The next quære to be diſcuſſed, is whether the words of Thomas (my Lord and my God) are an exclamation, or an acclamation. Arrius and his brood, who deny Chriſt to be very God of very God, make them an exclamation, as if Thomas ſhould haue ſaid; O Lord God, what is it that I touch and ſee! not an acclamation or acknowledgement that Chriſt is the Lord God. Anſwer is made: firſt, that the Text hath not any note of exclamation, it is ὁ, not ὦ which is prefixed to the two Greeke words. Secondly, Thomas acknowledged ſomething which he did not afore beleeue, but he knew before that the Father was God: and therfore this ſpeech of his concerned God the Sonne. Laſtly, Chriſt commended his faith in confeſſing the Sonne to be the Lord, Thomas, becauſe thou haſt ſeene me, thou haſt beleeued: he did reprehend Thomas for the manner, but yet approue him for the matter of his beleefe. So that the words (my Lord and my God) are a plaine confeſſion of Didymus his faith touching Ieſus Chriſt the Sauiour of the world. He ſaith not, thou art my Lord and my God: but, as if he had not time enough to put in Creed enough, he brake forth into this abrupt and imperfect ſpeech, as being of [t] greater force, my Lord and my God. And it is ſo ſweet as it is ſhort, vt breuiſſima, ſic abſolutiſſima confeſſio, quoth [t] Bullinger, a very briefe, yet a moſt abſolute Creed.

For the further examination where, obſerue firſt his knowledge, then his application, the which are the two principall parts of faith. As for his knowledge, Thomas confeſſed here not onely that Chriſt is a Lord and a God; for there bee [u] many Gods and many Lords in [x] opinion, analogie, title: [y] but to diſtinguiſh Chriſt from all theſe kindes of Lords and Gods, he doth affirme that he is ὁ κύριος καὶ ὁ θεός, the Lord and the God, that is, the Lord of Lords, and God of Gods, Pſal. 50. 1. Here then is a pregnant Text againſt vnbeleeuing Iewes, and misbeleeuing Arrians. If Chriſt had not beene very God of very God, euen one ſubſtance with the Father, hee would haue condemned, and not commended this confeſſion of Thomas. If any ſhall aske why Thomas is not content with one word, but vſeth two, Lord and God: and why firſt he cals Chriſt Lord, and then God? [z] Anſwer may be, that he called him Lord, in that he conquered hell and death: and God, in that he knew the very ſecrets of his heart. For when Chriſt had ſaid, put thy finger hither, and ſee mine hands, and reach forth thine hand, and put it into my ſide; Thomas inſtantly remembring what hee had fondly thought, and fooliſhly ſaid, confeſſeth his fault in confeſſing his faith, my Lord and my God.

The [n] Caluin.

[o] Marlorat.

[p] Aretius.
[q] Coloſſ. 3 1.

[r] Bellarmin de ſacrament. Euchariſt. lib. 1. cap. 14 §. addi poteſt alia. Idem annotat. Maldonat. in Matth. 28. 9.

[t] Caluin. Maldonat.
[t] Apud Marlorat in loc. Idem Culman. & Ferus.

[u] 1 Cor. 8. 5.
[x] Euthym. in Pſal 49.
[y] Cyrillus & Leontius apud Maldonat. in loc.

[z] Ferus ſer. 1. in loc.

The Diſciples vſually termed him Lord in his life; to ſignifie therefore that it was the ſame Chriſt, he firſt acccording to his accuſtomed manner calleth him Lord, and then after he proceeds further then hee was wont, and calleth him alſo God. In the word [a] Lord acknowledging his humanitie, in the word God his diuinitie. Faiths obiect is the reuealed will and Word of God, and the ſumme of his word is the new Teſtament, and the ſumme of the new Teſtaſtament is Ieſus Chriſt God and man. In that therefore Thomas confeſſed his Lord to bee crucified, dead, and buried, as a man; and that hee did againe raiſe himſelfe and looſe the bonds of death as God, he did vtter that in two words, which is the contents of the two Teſtaments, and ſumme of all ſummes of faith and holy beleefe.

[a] Theophylact. in loc.

Now for application, he ſaith my Lord, and my God. [b] Not only God in generall, but my God in particular; mine by promiſe, mine by ſtipulation, mine by oath, mine by free gift, mine by purchaſe, mine by participation of grace; my Emmanuel, my Shilo, my Ieſus. Of this particular faith [c] Iſaiah the Prophet ſpake, when he ſaid, Secretum meum mihi, ſecretum meum mihi: My ſecret to my ſelfe, my ſecret to my ſelfe. The Papiſts indeed terme this perſonall and particu'ar aſſurance preſumption: but the children of God in all ages haue thus applied the medicine to the maladie, ſaying with [d] Dauid, O God, thou art my God: and with Mary, my Sauiour. For as their owne [e] Friar notes vpon my Text, it is not ſufficient to beleeue that he is the Lord, except thou beleeue likewiſe that he is thy Lord; as Didymus here not only once, but twice, my Lord, my God: doubling as it were his faith as he had before doubled his fall. O the deepneſſe of the riches of Gods mercie! who would haue thought that Thomas who beleeued leaſt, and laſt of all his fellowes, vpon ſo ſhort a conference, ſhould thus equall, if not excell them all in his abrupt yet abſolute confeſſion? And therefore let not any man either diſcomfort himſelfe, or [f] condemne his brother [g] afore the time: for no man hath ſo weake a faith, or ſo wicked a life, but that one day, Chriſt out of his infinite goodneſſe may call him, and heale him, as he did S. Thomas, making him who did not beleeue ſo ſoone as the reſt, to become notwithſtanding in his beleefe ſo ſound as the reſt, apprehending and applying the merits of his Sauiour to his ſoule, my Lord, my God.

[b] Bullinger.

[c] Cap. 24 16. Conſule Vatablum in loc.

[d] Pſal 63.1. Tolle meum & tolle Deum.

[e] Ferus vbi ſup.

[f] Matth 7.1.

[g] 1 Cor 4.5.

After eight daies againe his Diſciples were within, and Thomas with them, then came Ieſus] He came [h] before he was ſought, and that to ſeeke [i] one loſt ſheepe onely. Teaching vs hereby to [k] recall ſuch as are in errours, and to [l] beare the infirmities of the weake. But he deferred his comming a whole weeke, that Thomas in the meane while might be better [m] inſtructed, and induced to beleeue the reſurrection. Or haply for the greater manifeſtation of his goodneſſe, in tolerating ſuch incredulitie ſo long. Or as [n] other, to trie the faith of the reſt, and to ſhew that humane reaſon is not able to perſwade this article.

[h] Caietan.

[i] Chryſoſt. apud Thom.

[k] Kilius.

[l] Rom. 15.1.

[m] Ianſen. Concord. cap 147. Idem Theoph. & Euthym. in loc.

[n] Aretius.

The tranſlation of Gods holy day from the Saturday to the Sunday, is not by patent in the Bible, but onely by paterne, becauſe the bleſſed Apoſtles vſually met together [o] on this day. The which aſſuredly they did by the direction of Gods holy ſpirit, and as it may ſeeme here by Chriſts [p] approbation at the leaſt, if not [q] inſtitution, againe and againe manifeſting himſelfe to bee riſen on the eighth day. So that albeit haply ſome will grant that the Church aſſembled in a generall Councell, hath authoritie to conſtitute another day for the Sabbath, as the ſecond or third of the weeke; yet I am ſure we can neuer haue ſo good a paterne, nor yet ſo great a reaſon for altering this our day, as was here for the changing of that other day. The paterne is Chriſt and his Apoſtles, and the reaſon is the reſurrection of Chriſt, euen that exceeding wonderfull worke of our redemption. Againe, Chriſts appearing on the eighth day is not without a [r] myſterie, wee labour ſix daies in this life, the ſeuenth is the Sabbath of our death, in which we [s] reſt from our labours, and then being raiſed from the dead on the eighth day, Chriſt in his own body, the very ſame body that was crucified, dead, and buried, ſhall reward euery man [t] according to his worke.

[o] Acts 20.7. 1 Cor 16.2. Apocal. 1.10.

[p] Maldonat. in loc.

[q] See Dod, expoſit. Com. 4.

[r] Aretius.

[s] Apoc. 14.13.

[t] Apoc. 20.13.

When

When the doores were ſhut] [a] Papiſts vrge this place to proue the carnall and groſſe preſence of Chriſt in the Sacrament, extremely condemning our incredulitie, who will not beleeue that Chriſts body and bloud is vnder the formes of bread and wine; ſeeing his whole body here perfect in all his lineaments, length, bredth, and thickneſſe, diſtinct and diuers from the ſubſtance and corpulence of the wood, was in the ſame proper place the wood was in, and paſſed thorow the ſame. To this obiection our Diuines anſwer diuerſly, [x] ſome, that the doore opened of it ſelfe to let him in: [y] other, that the doore was vnbarred by ſome of the houſe within vnknowne to the Diſciples: [z] other, that to come in the doores being ſhut, is no more but that he came in late in the euening, at what time men vſe to ſhut their doores: but moſt acknowledge that he came in miraculouſly, not thorow the wood and iron of the doores, as the Papiſts abſurdly conceiue: but through his [a] omnipotent and all commanding power the doores were opened to him, as they were to Peter, Acts 12.9. and to ſome other Apoſtles, Acts 5.19. Creatura ceſſit creatori, Hieron. epiſt. ad Pammac. tom. 2. fol. 178. [b] or as Malchus eare was ſo ſoone healed, that an incredulous Iew would not beleeue that Peters ſword euer went betweene it and his head: ſo the place thorow which his bodie paſſed, might be ſhut and whole before and after he paſſed, but not in the inſtant of his paſſing, becauſe that is contrarie to the nature of a true bodie, ſuch as his was. I know God can doe whatſoeuer he will, but his word is his reuealed will, and that telleth vs expreſly, that Chriſts bodie was like our bodie in [c] all things, onely [d] ſinne excepted. And if it be like our body, then it cannot be without diſtance of ſpace and place: for (ſaith [e] Auguſtine) That is no body which is no where. Laſtly, the plaine text is againſt them, for it doth not ſay that Chriſt came thorow the boords and barres of the doore, but onely that he came and ſtood in the midſt, after, or when the doore was ſhut; not determining the manner how he came, but onely reporting the matter that he came, and the time when he came. So that hauing ſo many and thoſe ſo manifeſt euaſions otherwiſe, we need not ſay that Chriſt came in at the window, that is a popiſh forgerie crept into the Rhemiſts annotations through the wicket of our aduerſaries owne mouth.

For the concluſion it ſelfe: [f] we teach, as the Scriptures and holy Fathers, that the ſacramentall bread and wine are ſignes and ſeales of Chriſts body and bloud, and we receiue them in thankfull remembrance he died for vs. As for his crucified body, it is now in heauen a glorified body, [g] where it ſhall remaine till he come in the laſt day to iudge and end this, and all other controuerſies. In the meane while, we muſt as [h] Eagles flie to the place where the dead body lieth, aſcending vpon the wings of faith vnto it, and not expecting that it ſhould locally deſcend vnto vs. See Surſum corda in their Liturgie.

And ſtood in the middeſt] We reade in the Goſpels hiſtorie, that Chriſt was often in the midſt. In the midſt of the [i] Doctors, in the midſt of his Apoſtles, in the midſt on the Croſſe betweene two [k] theeues, and ſhall at the laſt day be likewiſe in the midſt [l] betweene the ſheepe and the goats. In his natiuitie, life, death, reſurrection, and comming to iudgement, in the midſt. [m] Hereby ſignifying that he is our Meſſias and medius, like [n] Moſes ſtanding in the gap betweene God and vs. He ſtood in the midſt here, that [o] all might the better heare him and ſee him, as the [p] Sunne in the midſt of the firmament, and the heart in the midſt of the members, affording his comfort indifferently to the whole companie: for hee came not onely for the benefit of Thomas, but for the common good of other. And this may teach all paſtors and parents, to ſeeke the good of all that are committed vnto their charge.

Chriſt ſtanding in the midſt of his Apoſtles openly rebuked Thomas for two cauſes eſpecially: firſt, [q] that as Thomas had offended afore them, hee might alſo be reprehended afore them all. A priuate fault is to be cenſured priuatly, but a publike ſcandall openly, [r] them that ſinne rebuke publikely, that the reſt alſo may feare. Secondly, [s] that Thomas his vnbeleefe might ſtrengthen others faith, and

[a] Rhem. in loc.
[x] Beza.
[y] Apud Marlorat. in loc.
[z] Aretius.
[a] Cyrill. Euthym. Marlorat. in loc. Idem Caluin. Inſtit. lib. 4. cap. 17 §. 29.
[b] Dr. Fulk in loc.
[c] Heb 2.17.
[d] Heb. 4. 15.
[e] Epiſt. 57.
[f] Anglican. Confeſſ. art 28 & Com. Cat. tit. Sacrament.
[g] Act. 3.21.
[h] Church hom. of the Sacrament, part. 1.
[i] Luke 2. 46.
[k] Luke 23.33.
[l] Matth. 25.33.
[m] Aretius.
[n] Pſal 106. 23.
[o] Euthym.
[p] Vide poſtil. Pontan & Veg. Dom. 1. poſt Paſch.
[q] Muſculus. Maldonat.
[r] 1 Tim 5.20
[s] Aretius.

and that his doubt might put all other out of doubt. So infinite is God in greatneſſe and goodneſſe, that he can bring light out of darkneſſe, and vſe the weakneſſe, yea the wickedneſſe of other for our good, and his glory. Vnius interrogatio, vniuerſitatis inſtructio, ſaith [t] Auguſtine. Ones ignorance was all others inſtruction: for except Thomas had doubted ſo much, other ſhould neuer haue knowne ſo much, and ſeene ſo many demonſtrations of Chriſt his reſurrection, as the Church in the Collect: Almightie God, which for the more confirmation of the faith, didſt ſuffer the holy Apoſtle Thomas to be doubtfull in thy Sonnes reſurrection, &c.

Peace be vnto you] This ſalutation was vſuall among the Iewes, and at this inſtant of all other vndoubtedly moſt [u] fit. For [x] hereby Chriſt did inſinuate, that howſoeuer in the world they had trouble; yet he had made their [y] peace with God. As alſo that they need in their troubled eſtate to pray for peace of Church, O [z] pray for the peace of Hieruſalem: and peace of conſcience, for that is a [a] continuall feaſt. Or haply, [b] that they might the better know him after his reſurrection, he ſpeakes vnto them as a little before his death, [c] I leaue peace with you, my peace I giue vnto you, let not your hearts be troubled, nor feare. Chriſt is our peace, preaching peace in his life, making peace in his death, aſſuring peace in his reſurrection, and conſummating our peace in his comming againe to iudge the quicke and the dead, when hee ſhall ſay to the ſonnes of peace, [d] Well done good ſeruants, and faithfull, enter into your maſters ioy. Now the Lord of [e] peace giue you peace alwayes by all meanes.

Bring thy finger hither] After Chriſt had ſaluted the whole Colledge of Apoſtles in generall, he turnes himſelfe to Thomas in particular, repeating euery word Thomas had vttered in his abſence. Teaching [f] him hereby, that hee was riſen againe through his omnipotencie, for the dead haue no ſenſe, much leſſe reaſon, and leaſt of all vnderſtanding the ſecrets of anothers heart. And teaching [g] vs hereby, not to commit any ſinne, though it may be done neuer ſo cloſely, for hee ſeeth all our workes, heareth all our words, and knoweth all our thoughts, [h] & aperta & operta. Remember the ſpeech of God vnto Dauid, [i] Thou didſt it ſecretly; but I will doe this thing before all Iſrael, and before the Sunne.

Our Sauiour did neither reiect Thomas finally, nor yet correct him fiercely for his incredulitie: but [k] accommodating himſelfe to Thomas infirmitie, ſeekes to winne him, and to bring him home to his ſheepfold. O Thomas, thou haſt thy faith at thy fingers end, ſeeing that thou wilt beleeue no more than thou feeleſt, I pray thee therefore bring thy finger hither, and ſee my hands, &c. Here then is a patterne, whereby [l] Paul might giue his precept, We that are ſtrong ought to beare the infirmities of the weake, that we may make them, as Chriſt did Thomas, of faithleſſe faithfull.

And this ſupporting is [m] by { Patience, [n] forbearing them. / Pitie, [o] weeping with them that weepe. / Pietie, releeuing them as well with our counſell if they want wit, as with our almes if they want wealth.

Thomas, becauſe thou haſt ſeene me, thou haſt beleeued] Faith is an [p] euidence of things not ſeene; how then did he beleeue that which he ſaw? can you touch God, as the wicked Arrians obiect, and feele him with a finger? Anſwer is made by the [q] Fathers, that Thomas touched one thing, and beleeued another. Videbat hominem, confitebatur Deum, as [r] Auguſtine vpon my Text. He touched Chriſt as man, but beleeued in him as God; ſaying, my Lord and my God: acknowledging the diuinitie which he did not ſee, by the wounds he did ſee. So that Chriſt here commends the faith of Thomas, in ſaying, thou haſt beleeued; and reprehends only his [s] ſlackneſſe of faith, in adding, becauſe thou haſt ſeene me. Firſt handling the wounds of Chriſt, afore he would credit the words of his Apoſtles. [t] Quid enim eſt fides, niſi credere quod non vides? [u] eo plus habet meriti, quo minus argumenti. Thomas in beleeuing after he ſaw Chriſt, is a type of the [x] Iewes: and the reſt of the [t] Serm. 156. de Temp.

[a] Maldonat.
[x] Ferus ſer 1. in loc.
[y] Epheſ 2.14,15
[z] Pſal. 122.6.
[a] Prou 15.15.
[b] Theophylact. Euthym. Bullinger.
[c] Iohn 14.27.

[d] Matth. 25.21.
[e] 2 Theſſ. 3.16.

[f] Aretius.

[g] Kilius.

[h] Lipſius de Conſt. lib. 2. cap. 16.
[i] 2 Sam 12.12.

[k] Culman. Con. 1. in loc. & Perkins expoſit Creed, art reſurrect. of Chriſt.
[l] Rom. 15.1.

[m] Caietan. in Rom. 14.
[n] Coloſſ 3.13.
[o] Rom. 12.15.

[p] Heb. 11.1.
[q] Gregor. hom. 26. in euangel. Beda. Maxentius apud Maldonat. in loc.
[r] Tract. 121. in Ioan.
[s] Aretius. Marlorat.
[t] Auguſtin. tract. 40. in Ioan.
[u] Maldonat.
[x] Rupert. in loc.

the Diſciples in beleeuing afore they ſaw Chriſt, a figure of the Gentiles. Auguſtin. tract. 121. in Ioan. circa fin.

Bleſſed are they that haue not ſeene, and yet haue beleeued] [y] Hee denieth not Thomas to be bleſſed in this ſentence, but onely preferreth other Apoſtles, and [z] all other Chriſtians afore him, in that they haue not ſeene, and yet haue beleeued. For [a] if thou knowledge with thy mouth, that Ieſus is the Lord, and beleeue in thine heart, that God hath raiſed him vp from the dead; O [b] well is thee, and happy ſhalt thou be. So bleſſed as Iohn, whoſe head lay neere his maſters heart: ſo bleſſed as Ioſeph of Arimathea, who buried his bodie: ſo bleſſed as old Simeon, who lulled his Sauiour in his armes: yea, ſo bleſſed as the Virgin her ſelfe, that bare him in her wombe: for ſhe was more bleſſed in being the daughter, than in being the mother of Chriſt. Here the Goſpell and Epiſtle meet, all they that haue not ſeene, and yet haue beleeued, are fellow-citizens with the Saints, and of Gods houſe, built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles, Ieſus Chriſt himſelfe being the head corner ſtone, in whom they grow to be an holy temple of God, [c] hauing the promiſes of the life preſent, and of that which is to come. See Goſpell, Sunday 13. after Trinitie.

By this it doth appeare, that the reſurrection of Chriſt is the chiefe obiect of a bleſſed faith, as alſo the maine ſubiect of all this our preſent Goſpell. And it is exceeding profitable for confutation, and inſtruction. As firſt it doth ouerthrow the wicked error of [d] Cerinthus, who taught, Chriſt ſhould not riſe againe till the generall reſurrection; of whom Epiphanius worthily, Stolidus eſt, & ſtolidorum magiſter. Secondly, [e] Apelles hereſie, who ſaid Chriſt roſe againe, but not in his owne fleſh, or (as [f] Auguſtine reports his opinion) without any fleſh. Thirdly, that of [g] Cerdon, and the Paſſioniſts, affirming that Chriſt aſcended into heauen in ſoule only. Fourthly, that aſſertion of [h] Eutychian heretikes, holding that Chriſts humane nature was deified after his reſurrection, and made not glorious onely but meerely diuine alſo.

Againe, the doctrine of Chriſts riſing againe from the dead, ſerues for inſtruction in matters of holy faith and good manners. In articles of beleefe concerning Chriſt and our ſelues. Firſt touching Chriſt: whereas he did abide among the dead at [i] leaſt thirtie three, or thirtie foure houres; as he continued among the liuing thirtie three, or thirtie foure yeeres: I ſay, whereas Chriſt being ſtarke dead, raiſed himſelfe to life by his owne power; it is a manifeſt demonſtration of his God-head, as Paul diſputes, Rom. 1.4. and God ſaid in the ſecond Pſalme, Thou art my Sonne, this day haue I begotten thee. The which text ought to be conſtrued not ſo much of Chriſts eternall generation afore all worlds, as of the manifeſtation thereof in time. This day, [k] that is, at the time of thine incarnation: but at the day of thy reſurrection eſpecially, haue I begotten thee: that is, I haue made knowne vnto the world, that thou art my Sonne, as Paul expounds it, Acts 13.33. for none euer raiſed another from the dead but by God: none euer raiſed himſelfe from the dead but God.

Secondly, this doctrine [l] proues euidently, that Chriſt was a perfect Prieſt, and that his paſſion was an omniſufficient ſacrifice for the ſinnes of the whole world. For if he had not fully ſatisfied for them all, if there had remained one little ſinne onely, for which he had made no ſatisfaction, he could not haue riſen againe: for death and the graue which came into the world by ſinne, and are daily ſtrengthned by ſinne, would haue held him in bondage. To this purpoſe [m] Paul ſaith, If Chriſt be not riſen againe, your faith is vaine, and you are yet in your ſinnes. That is, Chriſt had not anſwered fully for your ſinnes, or at leaſt you could not poſſibly know that he had made ſatisfaction for any of them, if hee had not riſen againe.

As for points of faith appertaining to thy ſelfe more neerely, the reſurrection of Chriſt is a demonſtration of our reſurrection, according to that of Paul, If it be preached that Chriſt is riſen againe from the dead, how ſay ſome among you, that there is no reſurrection of the dead? 1 Cor. 15.12. Behold, ſaith the [n] Lord, I kill, and

[y] Theophylact. Muſculus. Caluin.
[z] Aretius. Ferus. Maldonat.
[a] Rom. 10.9.
[b] Pſal. 128.2.
[c] 1 Tim. 4.8.
[d] Epiphan. hæreſ. 28.
[e] Idem Epiphan. hæreſ. 44.
[f] Hæreſ. 23. Idem Alphonſ. de Caſtro, lib. de Chriſt hæreſ. 12.
[g] Idem Alphonſ. eod. lib. hæreſ. 2.
[h] Bucan loc. com. tit. de reſurrect. Chriſt. quæſt. 23.
[i] Bellarm. cat. expoſit. art. 5. of the Creed.
[k] Caluin, in Pſal. 2. & Suarez. to 2. in 3. Thom. diſput. 45. ſect. 1.
[l] Perkins on the Creed, art. Chriſts reſurrection.
[m] 1 Cor. 15.17.
[n] Deut. 32.39.

and giue life: I wound, and I make whole: that is, as [o] Tertullian aptly, killing by death, and giuing life by resurrection. If a man be cast into the sea, though all his bodie sinke vnder the water, yet there is hope of recouerie so long as his head is aboue the waues: in like manner, if wee beleeue that Christ our head is the first fruits of those that sleepe, let vs not doubt, but vnfainedly beleeue, that we which are his members, in our due time, shall be raised out of the dust also. Moreouer, the resurrection of Christ is a proofe of our iustification before God, [p] he was deliuered for our offences, and raised againe for our iustification. As in his death he stood in our place, [q] wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, and [r] bearing our sinnes in his bodie on the tree: so likewise in his resurrection, he is not to be considered as a priuate, but as a publike person, representing the whole Church, making his righteousnesse a cloake to couer all our vnrighteousnesse. If death could not keepe Christ fettered in his prison, it is euident that his power was ouercome. Now then if death be conquered, it followeth necessarily, that sinne the [f] wages of death is also destroyed. If death and sinne bee vanquished, then the tyrannous kingdome of Satan is subdued, who had the power of death, and was author of sinne, and ruler of hell. So that euery true Christian may reioyce with Paul; O death, where is thy sting? O graue, where is thy victorie? the sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the Law: but thanks be to God, which hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Iesus Christ. And lastly, concerning matters of honest and holy conuersation; this doctrine teacheth vs to [t] seeke those things which are aboue, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God, and to rise from dead workes vnto [u] newnesse of life. See Epistle on Easter day, and Epistle Sunday 6. after Trinitie. Touching our Euangelists epilogue; see Gospell on S. Iohns day.

[o] Lib. de carnis resurrect.

[p] Rom. 4 25.
[q] Esay 53.5.
[r] 1 Pet. 2. 24.

[f] Rom. 6. 23.

[t] Colos. 3 1.
[u] Rom 6 4.

The Epistle. Heb. I. 1. vulg. xj. & 13

God in times past diuersly and many waies, spake vnto the Fathers by Prophets: but in these last dayes he hath spoken to vs by his owne Sonne, &c.

THe whole world in old time was distinguished by three principall languages (as it appeares in Pilats inscription or title [x] written on Christs Crosse) Latine, Greeke, Hebrew. The Latine tongue was famous in regard of the [y] Romane Empire, which ouer-spread and ouer-topt all other Kingdomes on earth; according to that of [z] Virgil: Romanos rerum Dominos, &c. or as [a] another Poet wittily:

Roma tibi quondam fuberant domini dominorum, Seruorum serui nunc tibi sunt domini.

The Greeke tongue was especially regarded, because Greece was the worlds Vniuersitie, the seat of Wisdome, the mint of Arts, and as it were the common Nurserie of all humane learning. In which respect [b] one commending Paris in France called it Græca libris, and Attica philosophis, rosa mundi, Balsamus orbis.

The Hebrew most honoured, in that it is Gods owne language, wherein his own Law was written, and wherewith it was expounded vnto his own people. Now Paul preached Sermons, and penned Epistles in all these languages, as being a [c] choosen vessell of the Lord, to beare his name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and children of Israel. He preached and wrote to the Romanes, and so he did beare Christs name before Kings, for they were Lords of the world. He preached and wrote to the Grecians, as to the Church of Corinth, Ephesus, Philippi, Thessalonica, &c. and so he did beare the name of Christ before the Gentiles. He preached and wrote to the faithfull Hebrewes, as [d] S. Peter telleth vs, and so he did beare the name of Christ before the children of Israel. I say, Paul wrote to the Iewes, holding with the most and best [e] Expositors, that he was author of this excellent Epistle.

[x] Iohn 19. 20.
[y] Gurran proem. 2 in epist. Pauli.
[z] Ænead lib 1.
[a] Apud Illyricum poem. de corrupt. statu ecclesiæ.

[b] Architit re-mus apud Munster. cosmo.

[c] Acts 9. 15.

[d] 1 Epist. 3. cap. vers 15.
[e] Vide Prolog. Arct & Piscat. in epist. ad Heb. Whitaker disput. de sac script. quæst. 1. cap vlt.

Now

Now the reasons are [f] manifold, why Paul did not here set downe his name: First, because he was not an Apostle of the Iewes, but of the Gentiles, as he saith himselfe, Gal. 2.7. The Gospell ouer the vncircumcision was committed vnto me, as the Gospell ouer the circumcision was vnto Peter. Secondly, for that his name was odious vnto the Iewes (as we reade in the 21. and 22. Chapter of the Acts) often crying out against him, away with such a fellow from the earth, for it is not meet he should liue. Thirdly, Paul was an Hebrew, 2 Corinth. 11.22. They are Hebrewes, so am I. He therefore concealed his name, because a Prophet is not honoured in his [g] own countrey. But whether [h] Barnabas, or Clemens, or Luke wrote it, as many thinke; or Paul, as most affirme, [i] the matter is not great: for if the name had beene here, what had it shewed, but that God vsed the ministerie of such a man? and now the name is not knowne, it teacheth vs expresly the doctrine is of God. And for this cause to the bookes of holy Scripture names are sometime prefixed, and sometime not, that we might [k] not haue the faith of our glorious Lord Iesus Christ in respect of persons. Whether it be Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, all are [l] yours: haply Paul first planted it in Hebrew, then Luke watered and [m] translated it into Greeke, but God gaue the grace to both. And therefore we must not attend who but what. For [n] whatsoeuer is written afore time, is written for our learning: especially this Epistle, penned of purpose to maintaine the chiefe point of holy beleefe, namely, that forgiuenesse of sinnes is by Christ onely. These Hebrewes had ioyned the ceremonies of the Law with the Gospell of Christ, as the Christians in the kingdomes of [o] Presler Iohn at this houre retaine Circumcision and Baptisme. For albeit [p] many thousands of the Iewes beleeued, yet were they still zealous of the Law, not enduring to heare of the abrogation of it, in so much that they made this a point of faith, and it is the [q] ninth article of their Creed, at this day, God gaue his Law to Moses his faithfull seruant, and he will neuer change nor alter it for another.

Now true Christianitie reads a contrary lecture, namely, that the ceremonies of the Law were primò mortales, postea mortuæ, postremò mortiferæ. So that to leaue Christ for them, or to ioyne Christ with them, is the plaine way to destruction. [r] Augustine excellently, Legalia fuerunt ante passionem Domini viua, statim post passionem mortua, hodie sepulta. That is, the Iewish ceremonies afore Christ came were aliue, when hee suffered on the Crosse they were dead, and now they be buried. And so by consequent they may not rise vp againe to be put in the ballance with his glory: for the gold, siluer, precious stones, and all other ornaments of the magnificent Temple compared with his rich mercies, are but beggerly rudiments, as our Apostle speakes, Galat. 4.9. Nothing in earth, or vnder earth, or in heauen, or in the heauen of heauens is so glorious as he, [s] no name else that is named, in which, or by which, we can be saued, but only the name of Iesus Christ.

[f] Apud Primas. Aquin. Anselm. Præfat in epist. ad Heb & Bellarm. lib. 1. de verbo Dei, c. 17. & Sixt. Senens. Bib sanct. lib. 7. hæres. 8.
[g] Matth. 13.57
[h] Apud Primas. & Aquin. vbi sup. Idem Caietan. & Marlorat argument. epist. ad Heb.
[i] Deering lect. 1. Heb.
[k] Iam. 2.1.
[l] 1 Cor 3.22.
[m] Primasius. Lombard. Aquin.
[n] Rom. 15.4.
[o] Mat. Dresserus
[p] Acts 21.20.
[q] Deering. lect. 1. Heb.
[r] Apud Io. Com. Compend. Theolog. lib. 6. cap. 8.
[s] Acts 4.12.

The whole tract [t] is diuided in 2. parts:

- The first is concerning Christs excellencie, shewing in the ten first chapters what he is in [u] respect of his
  - Nature,
    - Diuine, cap. 1.
    - Humane, cap. 2.
  - Offices,
    - Propheticall, in the third and fourth chapter.
    - Sacerdotall, chap. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10.
    - Regall, of which our Apostle writes not as of the former two purposely & copiously, but incidently and briefly: chap. 1. vers. 2, 3, 8, 13. chap. 2. verse 9. chap. 7. verse 2. chap. 8. verse 1.
- The second, how saluation is onely through him in the residue.

[t] Aquin. lect. 1. in Heb. 1. Idem Deering & aly.
[u] Aretius. Beza. Piscator.

The

The law was ordained by glorious Angels, written by Moses, obserued by the Priests, expounded by the Prophets. In the first and second chapter, Paul compares our Sauiour with Angels and Prophets. In the third with Moses. In the 4,5,6,7,8,9,10. with the Priests and their ceremonies; intimating in all, that the Law is deficient, and that Christ in the worke of our saluation is only sufficient and efficient. Our only Prophet, in whose word we must rest: our onely Priest, in whose sacrifice we must rest: our only King, vnder whose protection we must rest: who with his blessed Spirit leadeth vs in wayes of eternall life, working in vs all in all. [x] Quemadmodum enim membrum ipsius corporis recipit ab epate humores, à corde vitam, à capite sensum & motum: sic homo recipit ab homine carnem, à Deo animam, à Christo homine & Deo sensum & motum, id est totum bene esse & gratiam: & sicut membrum habet duos motus, vnum de natura sua cadere deorsum, & alium à capite, scilicet motum sursum, & iste motus est supra naturam membri: conformiter homo quoad animam habet duos motus, vnum de natura sua, & iste motus est cadere deorsum ad nihil, ad non esse, ad propriam voluntatem, & elongari à Deo; & alium habet à Christo scilicet moueri sursum ad Deum, &c.

[x] Vide Raymundum de Saunde Theolog. natural. Tit 277.

In this Text appointed fitly for this time, Christ is first [y] conferred, and then preferred before the Prophets and Angels. In the comparison betweene Christ and the Prophets, obserue the [z] consent and dissent betweene the old Testament and the new. The consent and agreement is, in that one God spake in both, in the one by his seruants; in the other by his Sonne. The same God is author of both, and the same Christ is subiect of both, in so much that each Testament is in other; in the Law there is an hidden Gospell, and in the Gospell a reuealed Law. So like as the two [a] Cherubins on the mercie seat, whose faces looked one to another. And like the Seraphims, Esay 6.3. one crying to another, holy, holy, holy, both hauing one voice, saith [b] Augustine. Or resembling each other, as Iesus and Iames: who were so like, that that they were on anothers [c] glasse. God in times past, and God in these last dayes hath spoken to vs. And whosoeuer he be, to whom this ministry shall be committed, if he will be numbred with Patriarkes, and Prophets, Apostles and Pastors, and with our Sauiour Christ himselfe: whatsoeuer he spake, let him speake [d] as the Word of God. For this couenant hath God made with his seruants, Esay 59.21. My spirit that is vpon thee, and my words which I haue put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of the seed of thy seed from henceforth euen for euer. And indeed whose word else should discerne the [e] thoughts of the soule, but his only who is the [f] searcher of the heart? and whose word should kill our carnall affections, but his only who giues the sword of the Spirit?

[y] Lumbard Gerran.
[z] Aretius.
[a] Exod.25 20.
[b] In Psal.49.
[c] Ignatius epist. ad Iohan. seniorem.
[d] 1 Pet 4.11.
[e] Heb.4.12
[f] Psal 7.10

God spake] The word God here may be taken either essentially for the whole [g] Trinitie; because God the Sonne (being a [h] crier in the wilderneſſe) spake by the Prophets as well as God the Father, and God the Holy Ghost as well as either of them, according to that of [i] S. Peter, Prophecie came not in old time by the will of man, but holy men of God spake as they were moued by the Holy Ghost. Or it may be construed in respect of Christs office personally. God, [k] that is, God the Father, spake to the Fathers by Prophets, and by his owne Sonne to vs.

[g] Kilian.
[h] Esay 40.3.
[i] 2 Epist 1.cap. vers 21 & Acts 1.16.
[k] Primasius. Anselm Piscator.

The dissent and difference between the two Testaments is in regard of the - Manner for

  - Time, sundry times.
  - Fashion, many wayes.
- Men
  - Vnto whom, vnto the Fathers in times past, but in these last dayes vnto vs.
  - In whom, or by whom, God spake by the Prophets in the one, by his own Sonne in the other.

The first dissent is in respect of time, the times of the Fathers are old and past: but the time of Christs preaching passeth not, it is for euer, alway continuing new; [m] Iesus Christ yester day, and to day, and the same also for euer. The doctrine taught by the Prophets in old time was reuealed multis vicibus, as Beza translates, at sundry times, as our English Bible. But that which Christ himselfe deliuered, is reuealed but once. The which is insinuated here, but expressed elsewhere by this author, as in chap. 9. verse 26. But now in the end of the world hath Christ beene once reuealed. And in chapter 12. verse 26. Yet once will I strike, not the earth only, but also heauen. And this it is which [n] Iude saith of the Christian faith, that it was once giuen vnto the Saints. Once, [o] that is, perfectly, so that we need not another Gospell. Almighty God hath spoken last in his Sonne; that is, in the [p] fulnesse of time so fully, [q] that we may not expect he should vent in time to come any new doctrine. For albeit the Spirit was giuen after Christs ascension: yet the same spirit taught that only, which Christ had taught afore. See Gospell 4. Sunday after Easter.

[l] Aretius. Deering.
[m] Heb.13.8.

From hence we may learne boldly to refuse whatsoeuer is ἐπεισδυτὸν, that is, an after, or another doctrine sprung vp since. As the new gospell of Anabaptists, and idolatries of Mahomet, and the reuelations of S. Briget, and all superstitious positions and expositions of Papists. In a word, [t] whatsoeuer bastard religion is contrary to Christs once preaching vpon earth, which because it was once, confutes all after it, and abrogates all afore it which had diuersitie of time, as our Apostle gathereth in the 12. chapter of this Epistle, verse. 27.

The second difference betweene the two Testaments is, that God in the one spake many wayes and diuersly, either by Angels, or by the Cloud, or betweene the Cherubins, or by visions, or by dreames, after sundry kindes of speech, and diuers kindes of actions: but the doctrine of the other is taught after one sort, euen by preaching of the Gospell; [t] which is the power of God vnto saluation to euery one that beleeueth, and it worketh more mightily than all those kindes of reuelations, and pierceth into the heart of man more deeply than any manner of perswasion; yea though one should rise from the dead and speake to vs.

The third dissent is, that God in old time spake onely to the fathers, Abraham, Isaac, Iacob, vnto some few men, and one nation. [u] He shewed his word vnto Iacob, his statutes and ordinances vnto Israel, he dealt not so with any people, neither had the Heathen knowledge of his lawes. But in these last dayes, hee hath spoken vnto vs indefinitely, to Iew, to Gentile, to bond, to free, to male, to female, being [x] all one in Christ Iesu, hauing all through faith, one entrance vnto the throne of grace, Heb 4. 16. So that I need not say now, Lord remember Dauid, or the couenant made with Abraham: but in time of need I may goe boldly to the throne of grace, saying, [y] Lord remember me, [z] O God be mercifull to me, [a] Iesus haue pitie on me. For vnto those that are nigh, and vnto those that are farre off, there is but one couenant in Iesus Christ, Ephes. 2. 13. 17.

The fourth difference betweene the two Testaments is, that God in the one spake by Prophets his seruants: in the other, by Christ his owne Sonne, by meere men in times past vnto the fathers: but vnto vs he hath spoken by that eternall word which is God, whom he hath made heire of all things, by whom also he hath made the world, &c. [b] The maine propsition of all this chapter is, that Christ who reuealed the Gospell is the Sonne of God, yea God himselfe. Now the first part, namely, that Christ is he who brought into the world the Gospell, is concessum & confessum. The faithlesse Hebrew complained of it, and the faithfull Hebrew beleeued it. And therefore taking this as granted, he doth insist in the latter part only, prouing at large that Christ is God.

And that in respect of the - Glory of his name, being Gods owne Sonne, and heire of all things.
- Worthinesse of his person, as being the brightnesse of the glory of God, and the very image of his person.
- Greatnesse of his power, vpholding all things by his mightie word.
- Benefit purchased for vs, hauing by himselfe purged our sinnes.
- Dignitie procured to himselfe, in that he sitteth at the right hand of the Maiestie on high.

In all which he doth excell Angels, as first hauing obtained a more excellent name

[n] Epist. of Iude, verse 3.
[o] Aquin. Caietan. Aretius in epist. Iude.
[p] Galat 4.4.
[q] Sarcerius. Lombard. Marlorat.
[r] 1 Tim 1.3.
[t] Deering. lect. 1 Heb.
[t] Rom. 1.16.
[u] Psal. 147.19.
[x] Gal. 3.28.
[y] Luke 23.42.
[z] Luke 18.13.
[a] Mark. 10.47.
[b] Aretius.

name than they. For albeit Angels are called sonnes of God in respect of their creation, and Israel the [c] first borne of God, and all Elect the [d] children of God, in respect of adoption and grace: yet no man or Angell is the sonne of God by nature, but Christ alone begotten of the substance of the Father, as being the brightnesse of his glory, and expresse image of his person. Of whom the Father said in the second Psalme, Thou art my sonne, this day haue I begotten thee. And in another [e] Text, I will be his father, and he shall be my sonne. And when he bringeth in the first begotten sonne into the world, [f] he saith, and let all Angels worship him. Insinuating that Christ is not only greater than Angels: but also God, to be honoured of all Angels. Againe, whereas Christ is an eternall King, whose [g] scepter is a right scepter, and whose throne is for euer and euer: Angels are but subiects and seruants, according to that of the [h] Psalmist, He maketh his Angels spirits, and his Ministers a flame of fire.

[c] Exod. 4. 22.
[d] Rom. 8. 14.
[e] 2 Sam. 7. 14. & 1 Chro. 22. 10.
[f] Psal 97. 7.
[g] Psal 45. 7.
[h] Psal. 104. 4.

Moreouer, Christ in the beginning laid the foundation of the earth, and the heauens are the workes of his hands, and [i] all that in them is, [k] things visible and inuisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers, all were created by him and for him; and therefore seeing Christ is Creator, and Angels his creatures: he doth excell them, as farre as things infinite can exceed things finite. Lastly, Christ sitteth at the right hand of the Maiesty on high: Hereby signifying that God hath giuen him all power in [l] heauen and in earth, and taken him into the fellowship of his glory, for all things that the Father hath are mine, saith [m] our Sauiour: whereas Angels, howsoeuer they [n] behold the face of our heauenly Father, and enioy his presence: yet are they but messengers and ministers attending about his throne, for the good of such as are heires of saluation, as the [o] Nightingale of France sweetly:

The sacred tutors of the Saints, the guard
Of Gods Elect, the pursuiuants prepar'd
To execute the counsels of the highest,
Gods glorious Heralds, heauen swift Harbingers,
Twixt heauen and earth the true interpreters.

[i] Exod. 20. 11.
[k] Coloss. 1. 16
[l] Matth. 28. 18
[m] Iohn 16. 15.
[n] Matth. 18. 10
[o] Du Bartas, 1 day, 1. week, pag 29.

And here let vs according to the present occasion of Text and time, magnifie the Father of mercie, for that the Sonne of God on this day for our sake became the Sonne of man, yea seruant vnto men, in that he came into the world not to be serued, but to serue, Matth. 20. 28. For that the brightnesse of Gods glory, tooke vpon him the vilenesse of our nature, being made [p] a worme and no man, a very scorne of men, and outcast of the people. For that he who was more excellent than Angels, at this time became lesse than Angels, that he might make vs so great as Angels. [q] Vt nos æquaret Angelis, minoratus est ab Angelis: for that he who laid the foundation of the earth, and made the world, was himselfe now made. [r] Factor terræ, factus in terra, Creator cœli, creatus sub cœlo. [s] Being the childe of Mary, who was the father of Mary. [t] Sine quo pater nunquam fuit, sine quo mater nunquam fuisset: so that whereas Dauid, Psalm. 118. 24. This is the day which the Lord hath made: [u] we may say, This is the day wherein the Lord was made, we will reioyce and be glad in it. For that he who sits on the right hand of the Maiesty on high, and [x] measureth the waters in his fist, and heauen with his span, was now lodged in a stable, crouded in a cratch, and swadled in a few raggs. O beloued, if we were not in this great light of the Gospell, almost so blinde as the Bat; we would wish our selues all eye, to behold the babe Iesus in the manger. If we were not as deafe as the stubborne Adder; we would wish our selues all eare, to heare the tidings of great ioy to all people; namely, [y] that vnto vs is borne this day in the citie of Dauid a Sauiour, which is Christ the Lord. If we were not in some sort possessed with a dumbe spirit: we would wish our selues all tongue, to chaunt that heauenly caroll of the glorious Angels, [z] Glory be to God on high, and in earth peace, good will toward men.

[p] Psal. 22. 6.
[q] Anselm. spec. Euang cap. 1.
[r] Augustin ser. 27. de temp
[s] Leo ser. 6. de nat. Dom.
[t] August ser. 16. de temp.
[u] Eus. & Emis. in hom. 2. de nat. Dom.
[x] Esa. 40. 12.
[y] Luk. 2. 11.
[z] Luke 2 14.

It is the fashion of many men, at this festiuall especially, to boast of their rich attire, great attendance, good fire, large cheere: yet (seeing Christ is heire of all things in the world) they cannot in their owne right enioy so much as a Christmas log, or a Christmas pye, till they be first ingraffed in him. I may haue from man, my warrant on earth here, that my land is mine, my benefice mine, my coat mine, house, horse, hose mine: and he is a very theefe that taketh away these from me: But all the men in the world cannot giue me my possession before the liuing God, but his Sonne Christ onely, who is heire of all; and therefore that our land may be our owne, our apparell our owne, our meat our owne, our men and money our owne; let vs be Christs, that in him we may haue the good assurance of all our substance: that I may pronounce that vnto you, which our [a] Apostle to the Corinthians: All are yours, and ye Christs, and Christ Gods.

[a] 1 Cor 3.22.

The Gospell. IOHN 1. 1. vnto v. 15

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God, &c.

SAint Peter was an Apostle, but not an Euangelist: S. Luke an Euangelist, but not an Apostle: S. Matthew was both an Euangelist and an Apostle, but not a Prophet: [b] but our S. Iohn was all these; in his Epistles an Apostle, in his Apocalyps a Prophet, in compiling his Gospell an Euangelist. In which (as Interpreters haue with one consent obserued) he mounts as an Eaglee, [c] for whereas his fellow Euangelists especially treat of the conception, birth, education, and other points of Christs incarnation in the world: Saint Iohn flying higher than these, beginneth his history with Christs eternall generation before the worlds, in the beginning was the Word, &c as [d] Augustine vpon my Text, transcenderat omnia cacumina montium terrarum, transcenderat omnes campos aeris, transcenderat omnes altitudines syderum, transcenderat omnes choros & legiones Angelorum, nisi enim transcenderet ista omnia quæ creata sunt, non perueniret ad eum per quem facta sunt omnia For as an [e] Eagle, [f] so Iohn, remaineth vpon the top of the rocke and tower, from thence he spieth his meat, and his eyes behold afarre off. He was aptly called the [g] sonne of thunder, [h] for in saying in the beginning was the Word, & the Word was with God, and the Word was God: he seemes to speake not words, but wonders, yea thunders, as [i] Ardens excellently, filius tonitrui est qui loquitur, & tonitruum est quod loquitur, a preamble so strange and stately, that some Christians in old time (which had haply zeale but not according to knowledge) [k] hung it about their necke as an amulet, or as [l] other, as a Symbole to distinguish them from Arrians. And a certaine Platonist (as Augustine reports in lib. 10. De Ciuitate Dei, cap. 29.) reading this one line, said it was worthy to be written in letters of gold, and to be represented in the most eminent places of all Churches in the world.

[b] Hieron. lib. 1. aduers. Iouin.

[c] Chrysost. Theophylact. Beauxam.

[d] Tract. 1. in Ioan.

[e] Iob 39 30.

[f] Rupert. prolog. in Euangel. Ioan.

[g] Mark. 3. 17.

[h] Alcuinus apud Beauxam. bar. Tom. 1 fol. 3.

[i] Hom. vlt. in natal. Dom.

[k] Hieron in Matth. 23.

[l] Maldonat. in loc.

In the Text allotted for this day, two points are remarkable:

1. What Christ is in himselfe, God, In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God, &c Man, the same word became flesh, and dwelt among vs, &c.
2. What Christ is vnto vs, openly reuealed by the witnesse of Iohn the Baptist, and his owne dwelling among vs in the world, to be
   1. Our Creator ad esse, for all things were made by him.
   2. Our [m] Preseruer in esse, for he is our life, [n] vpholding all things in their being.
   3. Our Redeemer in bene esse, for he gaue power to them that beleeue in his name, to be the sonnes of God.

[m] Aretius. Marlorat.

[n] Heb. 1. 3.

In the beginning] The word ἀρχὴ, is potestatiuum as well as ordinatiuum, in which acception higher powers, especially Princes, are called ἄρχοντες, and so [o] some take this in principio to be nothing else but in principatu, because Christ the Word [o] Apud Beauxam. bar. Tom. 1 fol. 5.

Word hath vpon his garment, and vpon his thigh a name written, The King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, Apoc. 19. 16. [p] Origen, Cyril, Augustine, Gregorie Nyssen, and many [q] moe construe it thus, in the beginning, that is, in the Father, according to that of the [r] schoole, Pater est principium sine principio, filius est principium de principio. [s] The Father is of none, the Sonne is of the Father alone, not made, nor created, but begotten. Beleeue me (saith our blessed Sauiour) that I am in the Father, and the Father in me, Iohn 14. 11. I am in the Father, [t] as the riuer in the fountaine: The Father in me, as in his ingraued image, Heb. 1. 3. God the Sonne then is de principio principium, as [u] lumen de lumine, light of light, and very God of very God. [x] Other expound in the beginning of eternitie, for the Word being the true Melchisedec, is [y] ἀχρονος: hauing neither beginning of daies, nor end of life, Heb. 7. 3. [z] The Lord, saith he, hath possessed me in the beginning of his way, I was before his workes of old, when there were no depths I was begotten, when he prepared the heauens I was there, when he gaue his decree to the sea, that the water should not passe his commandement, then was I with him, &c. Insinuating that he was in the beginning without any beginning, in a time when there was no measured time.

[a] Principio rutili cùm nondum lumina cœli,
Et nondum grauidis extarent limina terris,
Iam tum patris erat sanctum & venerabile verbum.

[b] Other vnderstand by beginning, the beginning of the world: as if our Euangelist had said, in the beginning when all things were made, the Word was, and therefore not made, but all things on the contrarie were made by it, and without it was made nothing that was made. The creatures are from the beginning, but Christ (who made the world) was in the beginning, before there was a beginning. This exposition is agreeable to the plaine words, as also most answerable to S. Iohns intent. For if he penned his Gospell (as the [c] Fathers haue noted) against Ebion and Cerinthus: he confounds them in one word, and that the very first, in principio: for that had no beginning which was in the beginning, Ergo, Christ had not his first being from his mother Mary, nam quod ante omnia erat, semper erat, quoth [d] Augustine, he was alwaies, who was before all workes.

Was] It is probable that Saint Iohn in this exordium [e] alludes [f] per antithesin vnto Moses preface, Gen 1. In the beginning God created heauen, &c. [g] hereby shewing the difference betweene the Creator and the creature. For whereas Moses wrote, in the beginning God made heauen and earth, and all that in them is: our Euangelist on the contrary saith, in the beginning was the Word, not in the beginning God made the Word. [h] Insinuating that the Word had his being already, when other creatures (of what sort soeuer) had but their beginning. And here [i] Diuines haue distinguished acutely betweene fuit and erat, affirming that fuit imports a thing that once was, and is not now: so Scaliger in his Motto, [k] fuimus Troes; whereas erat implieth eternitie; which was, & which is, and which is to come, Apocal. 4. 8. [l] S. Ambrose notes excellently, that this one verbe erat, is repeated here foure times, in the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and that Word was God, the same was in the beginning, &c. Erat, erat, erat, erat vbi impius inuenit, quòd non erat?

The Word] He saith not in the beginning was the Sonne, [m] lest his reader should dreame of a carnall generation: but in the beginning was the Word. Holy Scriptures or speeches of the Prophets and Apostles vttered by Gods appointment for the reuealing of his diuine will towards man, are called Gods word: but to [n] distinguish God the Sonne from these words, hee is termed after a more eminent sort ὁ λόγος, the Word, or that excellent Word, [o] from whom euery diuine truth issueth, and in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdome and knowledge, Coloss. 2. 3. Christ is not a vocall word, [p] verbum eò quod verberato aere plectroque linguæ formetur: for he was in the beginning before there was any sound or aire. But Christ is the mentall, and substantiall Word of his Father,

[p] Apud Maldonat. in loc.
[q] Beda. Ardens. Ludolphus. Arboreus.
[r] Thom. 1. part. quæst. 33. art. 4.
[s] Athanasius in Symb.
[t] Aretius in Ioan. 14
[u] Symb Nicen.
[x] Chrysost. Euthym. Marlorat.
[y] Nonnus paraphras in euangel. Ioan.
[z] Pro. 8. ver. 22. 24. & sequent. vide Bellarm. lib. 1. de Christo cap. 8. § igitur æternitas.
[a] Palladius lib. 1 de vnione personal duarum in Christo natur.
[b] Aretius. Maldonat. Beza. Idem August. tract 1 in Ioan. & quæst. Mixtim. quæst. 122.
[c] Iren. lib. 3. cap. 11. Epiphan. hæres 51. Hieron in vita Ioan. Euangelist.
[d] Vbi supra.
[e] Beauxamis in loc.
[f] Maldonat.
[g] Chrysost. Theophylact. Arborens.
[h] Rhem in loc.
[i] Basil. Cyril. Beda. Alcuinus apud Maldonat. Idem Iansen Con. cap.
[k] Virgil. Ænead 2.
[l] Lib. 1. de fide ad Gratianum cap 5.
[m] Theophylact. Euthym.
[n] Beza.
[o] Erasmus. Iansen. Beauxam.
[p] Donatus apud Rupert. in loc.

q August.epist. 112.cap 12. Consule Maldonat Beauxam. Arbor. Ludolph in loc.

r Palladius vbi supra verum rectius verbum quam sermo, vide Iansen Concord. cap.1. & Erasm. annot. in loc.

s Ardens. Mela ncth. Beza.

t Augustin. retract. lib 1. cap.4

u Augustin. de ciuit. Dei lib. 11. cap.10 & Lombard. sent. 1 distinct 2.

x Fulgentius ser. de dup. nat. Christ.

y Leontius apud Maldonat. & Bellarm. de Christ. lib. 1. Cap.6 §. quantum ad secund.

z Ambros lib. de incar. Dom. sacrament c 3.

a Aquin.

b Melanct.

c Theophylact Eudoxius.

d Augustin. hers §44

e Iansen. concord. cap 1.

f Iudas. Coloss 1.16.

g Augustin. Solilo cap.5.

h De Ciuit Dei, lib.11. cap.9

i Apud Causab. not. in epist. Nyssen. ad Eustat.

k Ardens hom. 4. Natal dom.

l Athanasius in symbol vide Bellarm. de incarnat Christ. cap.4.

m Augustin. epist. 120. cap. 36

n Augustin epist. 3

o Melanc. Com. in Ioan.

p Luk. 2. 10. 11

q verbum non sonus auribus strepens, sed imago mentibus innotescens. As our Epistle for this day doth vnfold the Gospell, The brightnesse of his glorie, and expresse image of his person.

r λόγος, ipse paterni pectoris effigies, lumenque à lumine vero.

And the word was with God] Concerning the diuers significations of the preposition apud: I referre you to Thomas Beauxamis, and Maldonat, in their commentaries vpon this text. It imports here not a locall, but a s personall distinction. I and my Father (saith Christ) are one, Ioh. 10. 30. vnum of one substance, not vnus one person; and therefore he saith not in the singular, I and my Father am one, t but in the plurall, are one. The Sonne is u alius then the Father, not aliud, another person, albeit not another essence, x non alius in natura sed alter in persona: for it is written here the word was so with God, as that it was God first said to be with God, and then to be God, y signifying that the Word was the same God with whom it was in the beginning. z Semper cum patre, semper, in patre, semper apud patrem, & semper quod pater. Here then obserue concerning the word a three points especially.

1. When it was, in the beginning.
2. Where it was, with God.
3. What it was, and the Word was God.

The pith of b all is, that God the Sonne is a distinct person from God the Father, and yet of the same substance with the Father, equall in glory, coeternall in Maiestie. This one verse then ouerthroweth many blasphemous heretikes: [in the beginning] confuteth Ebionites and Cerinthians. The clause [was with God] c Sabellians and other denying a Trinitie in Vnitie, that is a distinction of persons in the Deitie: [was God] confoundeth Arrians, and all such as with d Paulus Samosatenus affirme that Christ was a meere man: [in the beginning with God] all e Eunomians and f such as hold Christ to be but a temporall God by grace, and not an eternall God by nature.

All things were made by it, and without it was made nothing that was made] as the Epistle doth expound the Gospell, he laid the foundation of the earth, and the heauens are the workes of his hands, g all things as well inuisible as visible, were created by him and for him, he made whatsoeuer was made, and it was exceeding good, Genes. 1. 31. But Satan as he is a deuill, and sinne which came into the world by the suggestion of the deuill, and death also which is brought vpon man is a curse by sinne, are not his works. And the reason is plaine, because that which is euill is a h nothing, mali nulla natura est, sed amissio boni (quoth h Augustine) mali nomen accepit. And i Greg Nyssen, mali essentia in eo posita quod essentiam non habet, euery good and perfect gift is from aboue, comming downe from the Father of lights, and with him is no variablenesse neither shadow of turning, k ita confert bona quod non infert mala. See S. Augustine, tract. 1. in Ioan, Bibliothec. Sixt. Senen. lib. 6. annot. 174. Melanct. postil. & Eras. annot. in loc.

The clause more proper to this festiuall, and most profitable for vs to be further examined, is, that the Word became flesh, and dwelt among vs, &c. And this was l not by conuersion of the Godhead into flesh; but by taking the Manhood into God. m Naturam suscipiendo nostram, non mutando suam, n homo quippe Deo accessit, non Deus à se recessit. For in the word made flesh all the fullnesse of the Godhead dwelleth (as the Scripture speakes) bodily, Col. 2 9. that is, o personally. For albeit he be God and man, yet is he not two, but one Christ: one not by confusion of substance, but by vnitie of person. For as the reasonable soule and flesh is one man: so God and man one Christ. See Epist. Sund. next before Easter.

The first newes of Christs actuall natiuitie was broached and brought into the world (as we reade in the second lesson appointed for this morning praier) by the tongues of Angels, and that with an ecce, p behold, I bring you tidings of great ioy, that shall be to all the people: that is, that vnto you is borne this day in the Citie of Dauid, a Sauiour which is Christ the Lord. Reioyce grandfather Adam, for on this this day according to the word of thy gratious Creator, the [q] ſeed of thy wife Eua hath bruiſed the ſerpents head: reioyce father Abraham, for on this day in thy ſeed all the nations of the earth are bleſſed, Gen. 22. 18. Reioyce king Dauid, for on this day God hath of the [r] fruit of thy body ſet a king vpon thy throne. Reioyce ye Prophets of the Lord, for [f] all your propheſies on this day were fulfilled. Reioyce ye that are ſicke, for on this day the Phyſitian of the world was borne. Reioyce ye virgins, for a Virgin on this day brought forth a ſonne. Reioyce ye children, for on this day the great God became a little babe. Let all people reioyce, for that he who was in the beginning, and (as it is in the former leſſon appointed for this morning prayer) [t] an euerlaſting father: in the fulneſſe of time [u] was made of a woman, and [x] wrapped in ſwadling clothes. For that he who was the Word, became an infant not able to ſpeake one ſyllable. For that he who was with God, did vouchſafe to dwell among vs, appearing in the ſhape of a man, Philip. 2. 7. For that he who was God, and therefore moſt mighty, became fleſh, and ſo moſt weake, for all fleſh is graſſe, and the grace thereof as the flower of the field, Eſay 40. 6.

[q] Gen. 3. 15.
[r] Pſal. 132. 11.
[f] Acts 3. 24. Luke 1. 70.
[t] Eſay 6. 9.
[u] Galat 4. 4.
[x] Luke 2. 7.

Saint [y] Bernard preaching on this day, ſaid the ſhortneſſe of the time conſtrained him to ſhorten his Sermon, and let none (quoth he) wonder if my words be ſhort; ſeeing on this day God the Father hath abbreuiated his owne Word: For whereas his Word was ſo long, as that it [z] filled heauen and earth: it was on this day ſo ſhort, that it was laid in a manger. I wiſh vnfainedly with the ſame deuout [a] Bernard, that as the Word was made fleſh: ſo my ſtonie heart might be made fleſh alſo, that it might alway meditate on this heauenly Goſpell, vnto you is borne this day in the Citie of Dauid a Sauiour, which is Chriſt the Lord. For all our ſound comfort ſtands in happineſſe, and all our happineſſe is in fellowſhip with God, and all our fellowſhip with God, is by Chriſt. For God the Father (if we conſider him in his iuſtice) heares not ſinners, Iohn 9. 31. He therefore remembring his mercy, got as it were new eares, and ſet them on our head Ieſus Chriſt, who being fleſh of our fleſh, is ſuch an high Prieſt, as is [b] touched with the feeling of our infirmities, openly profeſſing [c] that hee came not to call the righteous, but ſinners to repentance, Come to me all ye that are laden, and I will eaſe you, Matth. 11. 28. Whatſoeuer ye ſhall aske the Father in my name he will giue it you, Iohn 16. 23.

[y] Ser. 1. in natal. Dom.
[z] Ierem. 23. 24.
[a] Ser. 3. in natal. Dom.
[b] Heb. 4. 15.
[c] Matth. 9. 13.

If thou wert inuited to ſome great wedding, thou wouldeſt I am ſure be very carefull what apparell to put on; but if thou wert to be married thy ſelfe, thou wouldeſt be very curious in thine attire: behold (ſaith [d] Auguſtine) all of vs are bidden on this day to a marriage, for Chriſt came out of the Virgins wombe as a bridegroome out of his chamber: the Godhead was ioyned vnto the fleſh, and the fleſh vnto the Godhead, and theſe two were coupled together, and after an ineffable manner in an ineffable marriage made one. Beleeue this, and thou ſhalt haue power to be Gods owne ſonne, as it is in our Text. My beloued, if thou put on this wedding garment, thy ſoule ſhall be Chriſts owne ſpouſe, ſo neere, ſo deare to him, as that he will ſay to it, [e] I am thy ſaluation: and it alſo may tell him, I am my [f] welbeloued, and my welbeloued is mine. For if [g] Pilate by wearing Chriſts coat without a ſeame did appeaſe the wrath of angry Caſar: how much more ſhall euery true beleeuer pleaſe God our heauenly King, if he [h] put on Chriſt himſelfe. [i] O the bleſſed crying of a bleſſed babe, by which euery faithfull ſeruant and ſonne of God eſcapeth eternall howling in hell. O glorious manger, in which our ſoules Manna lay; the [k] bread of life that came downe from heauen, on which if a man feed he ſhall not hunger againe. O how rich are the rags, which haue made plaiſters for our ſores, for our ſinnes. I conclude with an hymne of [l] Prudentius.

[d] Ser 2. & 4. de temp.
[e] Pſalm. 35 3.
[f] Cant. 6. 2.
[g] Flores hiſt. ad an. 38.
[h] Rom. 13. 14.
[i] Auguſtin. ſer. 9. de temp.
[k] Iohn 6. 35.
[l] Periſtep. hym. 10.

Mortale corpus ſumpſit immortalitas,
Vt dum caducum portat æternus Deus,
Tranſire noſtrum poſſet ad cœleſtia.

The

The Epiſtle. Acts 7. 55.

And Stephen being full of the Holy Ghoſt, looked vp ſtedfaſtly with his eyes into heauen, &c.

YEſterday you heard how Chriſt was borne, to day you ſhall vnderſtand how Stephen died: In Chriſts natiuitie who was borne in a little village, and in an Inne of that village, and in a ſtable of that Inne, and laid in a cratch of that ſtable; we may learne humilitie, not to boaſt of our great birth. In S. Stephens martyrdome we may behold an excellent patterne how to behaue our ſelues at our death, hauing faith in God, and loue toward our neighbours, the which aſſuredly will breed ſuch a Chriſtian reſolution in vs, as that we ſhall depart this life cheerefully, lying downe in our graues as in a bed to ſleepe; for ſo the text here, when he had thus ſpoken, he fell aſleepe. The Church then in ioyning theſe two Feſtiuals, is deſirous that we ſhould learne to liue well as Chriſt; and die well as Stephen. In the words of [m] Auguſtine, Celebrauimus heſterna die natalem quo rex martyrum natus eſt in mundo, hodie celebramus natalem quo primicærius martyrum migrauit ex mundo. Oportebat enim vt primum immortalis pro mortalibus ſuſciperet carnem, & ſic mortalis pro immortali contemneret mortem. Et ideo natus eſt Dominus vt moreretur pro ſeruo, ne ſeruus timeret mori pro Domino. Natus eſt Chriſtus in terris, vt Stephanus naſceretur in cœlis, &c. And I pray with the [n] ſame Father heartily, donet mihi Dominus pauca dicere ſalubriter, qui donauit Stephano tanta dicere fortiter.

[m] Ser 1. de S. Stephano.

[n] Ser. 3 de S. Stephano.

In the whole text two points are to bee conſidered eſpecially, the

- Bloudie behauiour of the Iewes in martyring Stephen.
- Godly behauiour of Stephen in his martyrdome, toward
  - God in
    - Generall, he ſtedfaſtly looked vp into heauen, and called vpon God.
    - Particular, Lord Ieſus receiue my ſpirit.
  - Men, heartily praying for his enemies on his knees, with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this ſinne to their charge.
  - Himſelfe, vndergoing his martyrdome ſo comfortably, that giuing vp the ghoſt he laid down his head vpon the hard ſtones as vpon a ſoft pillow to ſleepe.

The Iewes in their blinde zeale were ſo furious and mercileſſe, that they put Stephen to death, who ſought to bring them to eternall life; ſtoning him as a [o] blaſphemer againſt God and his law, who was a man full of faith, and power, and the Holy Ghoſt. An harſh and an hard fact of a ſtonie people, ſaith [p] Auguſtine, ad lapides currebant, duri ad duros, & petris lapidabatur, qui pro Petra, qui Chriſtus eſt, moriebatur.

[q] Lapides Iudæa rebellis
In Stephanum lymphata rapis, quæ crimine duro
Saxea ſemper eris.

But of their crueltie toward Stephen, and other Prophets of God; in the Goſpel appointed for this day more copiouſly. The moſt obſeruable point in our preſent Text is the godly behauiour of Stephen in his martyrdome, firſt to God, he looked vp ſtedfaſtly with his eyes into heauen, &c. [r] As to the place where his [s] treaſure was, his [t] conuerſation was, his helpe was. [u] Hereby teaching vs whither we ſhould flie for ſuccour in aduerſitie, not vnto men here below, but vnto God in heauen aboue. So Dauid, [x] When I was in trouble, I called vpon the Lord, and he heard me, [y] my helpe commeth euen from the Lord. So Iob, My witneſſe is in heauen, and my record is on high. And ſo S. Iames, Euery good gift is from [z] aboue.

Calling

[o] Act. 6. 11. 13
[p] Apud Lorin. in loc.
[q] Arator lib. 1. carm. in act.
[r] Paratus ſer. de S. Stephano
[s] Matth 6 20.
[t] Philip 3. 20.
[u] Aretius.
[x] Pſal 102. 1.
[y] Pſal. 121. 2.
[z] According to which our moſt illuſtrious Queene Anne gaue for her word in the lotterie 1617. La mia Grandezza dal ecceſſo.

Calling vpon God, and saying Lord] Thomas Becket a renowned [a] Martyr and Saint among the Papists, at his death earnestly [b] commended himselfe and his cause to the protection of S. Marie; but our Protomartyr here (knowing that thee was [c] neque magistra neque ministra, neither mistresse of his soule, nor yet a ministring spirit to his soule) forgetting our Ladie, calleth vpon our Lord only, saying, Lord Iesu receiue my spirit, the which is not an inuocation of God the Father (as [d] Fran. Dauid impiously taught, making Iesu the Genitiue case, and the meaning thus, O Father in heauen which art the Lord of thy Sonne Iesu) but (as [e] Ambrose notes) a prayer vnto God the Sonne, for besides infinite places of holy Scripture (where Christ is called Lord, and called vpon as the Lord) S. Iohn Apocalyps 22.20. vseth as Stephen here Iesu in the Vocatiue Case, etiam veni Domine Iesu, euen so come Lord Iesus Where (Domine Iesu) cannot be construed the Lord of Iesus, but the Lord Iesus. See Lorin. in loc. & Bellarm. de Christo, lib. 1. cap. 8.

[a] Vide Baron. Mart Rom. ann t in Decemb. 29. & Stapleton in vita Thom. Cantuar.

[b] Rog Houenden. annal part. poster pag. 298.

[c] Brentius apud Marlorat. in loc.

[d] Disputat. Al. bona 3.

[e] Lib. 3. de fide ad Grat. cap. vlt.

If the Lord be considered without Iesus, howsoeuer in regard of his power he is able, yet in regard of his iustice not willing: the good Angels and blessed Saints in heauen are willing but not able: wretched vncharitable men on earth are neither able nor willing; onely Christ the mediator betweene God and man is both able and willing to heare vs, and helpe vs: able, because Lord; willing, because Iesus. And therefore Stephen here doth not inuocate the Lord, but in the name of Iesus, neither doth he call vpon any Iesus but the Lord Iesus: he lookes not for any succour either from men on earth, or blessed spirits in heauen: onely he powreth out his soule to the redeemer of his soule, Lord Iesu receiue my spirit.

Receiue] He knew that his life was [f] hid with Christ in God, and therefore commendeth his soule to him alone who created it, and redeemed it, and iustified it, and sanctified it, and will in his good time glorifie it. O Lord Iesu, take thine owne into thine owne custodie, seeing I am now to leaue this life, receiue my spirit. Here then against the Sadduces in Christs age, and Atheists in our time, we may note the soules immortalitie; [g] for God is not the God of the dead, but of the liuing. Againe, that all soules departed are in certaine receptacles vntill the generall iudgement; they doe not obambulate and wander vp and downe, but remaine in places and states of happinesse or vnhappinesse, either in the hands of God, or in the deuils prison, and therefore all the dayes of our life, but especially at the houre of our death, it behoueth vs to say and pray with S. Stephen, O Lord Iesu receiue my spirit.

[f] Coloss. 3. 3.

[g] Matth. 22. 32.

My] Charitie begins with it selfe, malice with another, in our idle busie time men are very solicitous lest God lay this or that sinne in their enemies charge, but we may tell them as Christ did other in another cause, [h] weepe not for me, but for your selues. If your deuotion be so great, and your prayers so good, pray first for your selues, for you peraduenture haue more need; and then wish well and doe well vnto your enemies, as Stephen here, first, Lord Iesus receiue my spirit; and then, Lord Iesu forgiue their sinne.

[h] Luke 23. 28.

Spirit] Most men are all for the bodie, nothing for their soule: but S. Stephen is all (as it should seeme) for the soule, and nothing for the bodie. For what is a man profited if he should gaine the whole world, and lose his owne soule, saith [i] our blessed Sauiour: by which Apothegme it doth appeare, that euery soule in it selfe is of greater price than a whole world, but thy soule vnto thy selfe ought to bee of greater account than a million of worlds, if (as Empedocles and [k] Democritus imagined) there were so many; saue this and saue all, lose this and lose all, and therefore let thy whole life be nothing else but a meditation of death, and that thou maist die well as Stephen, endeuour to liue well as Stephen. Howsoeuer it goe with thy goods, or good name, be sure to looke well vnto thy soule: that whether thou die for the Lord, or in the Lord, thou maist cheerfully deliuer it vp vnto the Lord, as Stephen, here, Lord Iesu receiue my spirit.

[i] Matth 16. 26

[k] Laertius in vita Democrit.

Vnto faith in God he doth adioyne loue to men, without which all his praying, and kneeling, and crying, yea dying had beene but as a [l] sounding brasse and a a tinckling Cymbal. Of loue there be two principall offices, one to giue, another to forgiue: S. Stephen is an excellent patterne of both, of the latter especially; praying for his hatefull enemies [m] euen at that houre when hee could scarce gaine time to thinke on his friends. It is said 1 Pet. 2. 21. that Christ suffered for vs leauing vs an example. Now Christ on the Crosse prayed for his persecutors earnestly, [n] Father forgiue them, for they know not what they doe. Pendebat, & tamen petebat, as [o] Augustine sweetly. S. Stephen followed his Masters example, Lord, lay not this sinne to their charge. The which prayer is clothed with two circumstances, he kneeled downe, shewing his reuerence to God: and cried with a loud voice, manifesting his vnfained affection toward them. Vnto the top of which exceeding great charitie there are three degrees.

[l] 1 Cor. 13 1 3

1. He prayed for enemies.
2. For mortall enemies, who stoned him.
3. In hot bloud, at that time when they did wrong him most, as being more sorry for their riot, than for his owne ruine. For [p] eternall death is the wages of such a sinne, but euerlasting life the crowne of such a suffering.

He kneeled downe] God is the Lord of the bodie, so well as of the soule, and therefore challengeth as well reuerent gesture, as inward deuotion: in praying then either stand as a seruant before thy master, or kneele as a subiect to thy Prince. [q] Daniel prayed kneeling, [r] Peter prayed kneeling, [s] Paul prayed kneeling, [t] Christ himselfe kneeling, and the [u] Magdeburgenses acknowledge this gesture to be most ancient, and most vsuall among the children of God in all ages, and therefore not to kneele in the congregation, argueth either ignorance, or arrogancie. For seeing all of vs are Gods adopted sonnes, and not borne to the good we possesse: it behoueth vs when we come before our father, especially to craue his blessing, to be dutifull and humble in our carriage.

Concerning kneeling at the Lords Supper: if the Church haue power and authoritie to change the time, commanding vs to receiue the Communion in the morning, whereas Christ administred it in the [x] night: to change the place, for whereas Christ ordained his Supper in a [y] priuate house, we communicate in a Temple: to change the number and qualities of the persons, deliuering the Sacrament vnto more than twelue, and to women as well as men: I see no reason but it hath authoritie likewise to change the gesture. The time was altered, because for this sacrifice the morning is the most fit time: the place was altered, because the Church is the most fit place: the gesture was altered also (being a matter not of the Sacraments effence, but of outward order onely) because kneeling is the most fit gesture, for Protestants especially, who denie the grosse reall presence, and hold the Lords Supper an Eucharist, or thanksgiuing vnto God for the redemption of the world by the death of his Sonne: giuing of thanks is a part of prayer, and in prayer no gesture so fit as kneeling. Deuout [z] Asella did vse geniculation in prayer so much, as that her knees were made brawnie like the knees of a Camell. See Step Durant. de ritibus Eccles. lib. 3. cap. 24.

It is very remarkable, that Stephen here stood when he prayed for himself, but kneeled when he prayed for his enemies: hereby shewing the greatnesse of their [a] impietie, which easily could not be forgiuen; as also the greatnesse of his [b] pietie, [c] Qui plus illorum dolebat peccata quam sua vulnera. For this end he cried also with a loud voice, magnus clamor magnus amor: Or as [d] Caietan, he cryed with a loud voice, for others instruction and example, that we might be followers of him as he was a follower of Christ.

Lay not this sinne to their charge] The [e] Scribes in their glosses on the Law said expresly, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour, and hate thine enemie. [f] Some Papists also thinke, that the words of our Sauiour (resist not euill, and loue your enemies) are not absolute precepts, but onely counsels. According to this doctrine, the Castilians (as I haue [g] read) since the battell of Alyabarto, would not suffer any to preach vpon the Friday in the first weeke of Lent, because the Church on that day sings, inimicos diligite, loue your enemies. And [h] Iustinian being restored againe to [m] Augustin. ser. 5. de S. Stephan.

[n] Luk. 23. 34.
[o] Serm 4 de S. Stephano.
[p] Illorum impietatem mors sequebatur æterna, huius autẽ mortem vita perpetua. Aug ser. 5. de Stephano.
[q] Dan. 6. 10.
[r] Acts 9 40.
[s] Acts 20. 36.
[t] Luke 22. 41.
[u] Cent. 2. Col. 117
[x] 1 Cor 11. 23.
[y] Matth 26. 18
[z] Hieron. epist. ad Marcell. de laudibus Asellæ.
[a] Augustin. ser. 2 de S Stephano.
[b] Caietan. in loc.
[c] August ser. 5. de S. Stephano.
[d] In loc.
[e] Matth. 5. 43.
[f] Lombard. 3. sent dist 30. Thomas 2. 2æ. quæst. 25. art. 9. gloss. in Matt 5. Sixt. Sen. Bibliothec. lib 6. annot. 27.
[g] Exhortation to the Princes of Europe by a pilgrim Spaniard, pag. 25.
[h] Lanquet ad ann. Dom. 706 to his Empire, ſhewed extreme crueltie toward his aduerſaries and their allies; for as often as he moued his hand to wipe the filth from his noſe, which was cut off, he commanded one of his enemies to be put to death. Wherefore ſeeing to loue our enemies, in the iudgement of ſome men, is againſt Gods law, and of other beſide the law; ſeeing many men in their precepts, and moſt men in their practiſe manifeſtly ſhew that it is an hard ſaying; S. Stephens charitie doth appeare to be great in bleſſing ſuch as curſed him, and in praying for ſuch as did hurt him.

Iob renowned in holy Scripture for his patience, ſaid, [i] If mine aduerſarie ſhould write a booke againſt me, would I not take it vpon my ſhoulder, & binde it as a crowne vnto me? But Stephen ſurpaſſing Iob (as [k] Gregorie Nyſſen obſerues) eſteemed the very ring of his perſecutors, wherewith he was incloſed on euery ſide, his crowne, and euery ſtone flung at his head a pretious diamond, [l] ſo that it might haue beene ſaid of him, as it was of Dauid: [m] The Lord preuented him with the bleſſings of goodneſſe, and ſet a crowne of [n] precious ſtones vpon his head. Our goods are ſweet vnto vs; and therefore we can hardly forgiue the theefe: our good name ſweeter; and therefore we doe more hardly forgiue the ſlanderer: but our life moſt ſweet, ([o] Skin for skin, and all that euer a man hath will he giue for it) and therefore moſt hardly doe we forgiue murtherers and martyrers, in hot bloud eſpecially while they wring vs and wrong vs: and yet Stephen full of the Holy Ghoſt, and therefore full of loue, [p] in perſecutione poſitus pro perſecutoribus orabat, in the middeſt of his perſecution heartily prayed for his perſecutors, O Lord Ieſu, lay not this ſinne to their charge. Our ſinnes not forgiuen are [q] ſet before vs, and as enemies in [r] battell fighting againſt vs, a pillar of infamie to diſgrace the wicked in this, and the next life: the which (as [ſ] Baſil thinks) is more grieuous to their ſoule than hell fire. So that the [t] meaning of S. Stephen is in ſaying (lay not this ſinne to their charge) that God would giue them a better minde, and not impute this offence, but rather to burie this and all other their ſinnes in his death and graue, that they neuer riſe vp againe to worke deſperation in this world, or deſtruction in the world to come. [u] S. Auguſtine brings in Stephen ſpeaking thus vnto God; Ego patior, ego lapidor, in me ſæuiunt, & in me fremunt, ſed ne ſtatuas illis hoc peccatum, quia vt dicam tibi à te primo audiui Ego ſeruus tuus patior, ſed multum intereſt inter me & te; tu dominus, ego ſeruus; tu verbum, ego auditor verbi; tu magiſter, ego diſcipulus; tu Creator, ego creatus; tu Deus, ego homo; multum intereſt inter peccatum iſtorum qui lapidant me, & illorum qui cucifixerunt te: quando ergo dixiſti, pater ignoſce illis, quia neſciunt quid faciunt, pro magno peccato petiſti, & me pro minimo petere docuiſti: Domine ne ſtatuas illis hoc peccatum; ego patior in carne, iſti non pereant in mente. Now the Lord heard his prayer, and granted his requeſt, [x] in that Saul had not this ſinne laid to his charge, as [y] himſelfe witneſſeth: I was a blaſphemer, and a perſecutor, and an oppreſſor; but I was receiued to mercy, for I did it ignorantly through vnbeleefe. So that [z] Auguſtine is bold to ſay, Si Stephanus non ſic oraſſet, eccleſia Paulum non haberet. And [a] Fulgentius, Quô præceſſit Stephanus trucidatus lapidibus Pauli, illuc ſequutus eſt Paulus adiutus orationibus Stephani.

When he had thus ſpoken] Vttering ſuch excellent words, and with ſuch a reſolute ſpirit, and in ſuch a reuerent faſhion: after hee had thus ſpoken for the matter, and thus for the manner; giuing vnto God the life of his ſoule, forgiuing his perſecutors the death of his bodie; he ſweetly ſlept in the Lord. Chriſtus pro nobis hominem induit, Stephanus pro Chriſto hominem exuit, as [b] Gregorie Nyſſen elegantly. Chriſt became man for Stephen, and Stephen became no man for Chriſt, hominem exuit, he ſo willingly put off his fleſh, as a man would put off his clothes at night, and ſo death as welcome to him as ſleepe to the wearie, when he had thus ſpoken he fell aſleepe.

To [c] mitigate deaths horror, it is called often in holy Scripture ſleepe. So the Text ſaith of [d] Dauid, and of [e] Salomon, and of other Kings of Iſrael and Iuda, that they ſlept with their fathers. In the new Teſtament alſo ſuch as are dead in the

[i] Iob.31.35.
[k] Orat. de S. Stephano.
[l] Lorinus in loc.
[m] Pſal.21.3.
[n] De lapide pretioſo. vulgar. Lat. Conſule Acoſtam, Con. de S. Stephano.
[o] Iob 2.4.
[p] Auguſtin ſer.5 de S. Stephano.
[q] Pſalm.50.21
[r] Lorinus in loc.
[ſ] In Pſalm 33.
[t] Aretius in loc.
[u] Ser.1.de Stephano.
[x] Caluin in loc.
[y] 1 Tim.1.13.
[z] Vbi ſup.
[a] Ser. de S. Stephano.
[b] Orat. de S. Stephano.
[c] Aretius in loc.
[d] 1 King.2.10
[e] 1 King.11.43

the Lord are ſaid to [f] ſleepe in Chriſt. I would not haue you (ſaith [g] Paul) ignorant concerning them which are aſleepe,&c. For this cauſe many are weake and ſicke among you,and many ſleepe,1 Cor.11.30. For man in his graue ſleepeth, and waketh not againe till the heauen be no more, Iob 14. 12. The Gentiles acknowledged ſo great a reſemblance betweene dying and ſleeping, that Ouid cals ſleepe [h] mortis imago, deaths image. [i] Virgil, conſanguineus lethi, the kinſman of death. [k] Seneca, the brother of death; and Heſiod,the ſiſter of death.

Among infinite compariſons I finde that death is principally likened vnto ſleepe in [l] reſpect of the { Reſt / Reſurrection } of the dead.

Concerning the firſt: it is ſaid by the [m] Spirit, bleſſed are the dead in the Lord, for they reſt from their labours, and ſo God [n] giueth his beloued ſleepe: The coffin is a couch, [o] in quo mollius ille dormit, quiſquis durius in vita ſe geſſerit. I finde in the records of antiquitie,that a Sepulchre is called [p] requietorium,a bed of [q] ſacred reſt and ſecuritie, which Valerius Probus expreſſed in theſe letters, H.R.I.P. Hic requieſcit in pace: and Pet. Diaconus in other, D.M.S. Dormiunt mortui ſecuri.

[r] Hic mortuus requieſcit ſemel,
Qui viuus requieuit nunquam.

But here we muſt obſerue, [s] that our ſoule ſleeps not in the duſt as our bodie till our laſt doome. For the ſoules of the reprobate at their death are [t] fetched away from them,and carried into [u] hell: but the ſoules of ſuch as die in the Lord, inſtantly liue with the Lord, conueyed by the glorious Angels into Abrahams boſome,Luk.16.22. So Chriſt [x] expreſly to the theefe on the Croſſe, Verily I ſay to thee, this day ſhalt thou be with me in Paradiſe. [y] Anima abſoluitur, corpus reſoluitur: quæ abſoluitur gaudet, quod reſoluitur in terram ſuam nihil ſentit. And ſo the Saints departed are dead in their worſt part onely, but liuing in their beſt: euen in that wherein they deſire to liue moſt,as an Heathen [z] Poet diuinely,

Sed lugere nefas,nam qui te (Priſce) reliquit, Viuit, qua voluit viuere parte magis.

And therefore though the [a] dead bodies of Gods ſeruants haue beene giuen as meat to the fowles of the aire, and their fleſh vnto the beaſts of the land: yet [b] right deare in the ſight of the Lord is the death of his Saints. And theſe things (as [c] Auguſtine notes)are ſpoken in the Pſalme,not to ſhew the Martyrs infelicitie; but in amplification of the murtherers inhumanitie. For the [d] Sea ſhall giue vp the dead in it, and the glorious Angels in the laſt day ſhall [e] gather together all Gods elect from the foure windes, and from the one end of the heauen to the other,and then this [f] corruptible ſhall put on incorruption, and this mortall immortalitie; then our bodie which hath a long time ſlept in the graue, ſhall bee rouzed vp againe by the ſound of the trumpet,and raiſed vp againe by the power of our bleſſed Sauiour, who died for our ſinnes, and roſe againe for our iuſtification. And then he ſhall change our [h] vile bodie, that it may be faſhioned like vnto his glorious bodie. Then he which is the [i] reſurrection and the life, ſhall giue vs our perfect conſummation in bodie and ſoule in his eternall glory. [k] Iob in his greateſt extremitie ſaid, I am ſure that my redeemer liueth, and though after my skin wormes deſtroy this bodie, yet ſhall I ſee God in my fleſh. [l] Ambroſe being ready to depart out of this world,told his acquaintance, non ſic vixi vt me pudeat inter vos viuere: ſed nec mori timeo, quia bonum dominum habemus. I haue not ſo liued among you, that I am aſhamed to liue: neither doe I feare to die, becauſe we ſerue a good Lord. [m] Oecolampadius to his friend viſiting him at the point of death, What ſhall I ſay to you, newes, I ſhall be ſhortly with Chriſt my Lord. The renowned Martyr Babilas (when [n] Decius the cruell Emperour had commanded his head to be chopped off) [o] vſed the words of the [p] Pſalmiſt, O my ſoule returne to thy reſt. And Stephen here ſtoned to death, is ſaid terminis terminantibus, to ſleepe in the Lord. [q] Fœlix ſomnus cum requie, requies cum voluptate, voluptas cum æternitate.

The

[f] 1 Cor. 15.18
[g] 1 Theſſ. 4.13

[h] Lib 2. de art. amand.
[i] Ænead. 6. Idem recitat Aug epiſt. 120. cap 33.
[k] Hier ſaren. act. 4 in Chora. Idem Homer & Orpheus.
[l] Martian in loc.
[m] Apoc. 14.13.
[n] Pſal. 115.3. Ambroſ. ſer. 28
[o] Vide Lorin. in loc
[p] Tul. lib. 2. de legibus. Cambri item vocant ſepulchrum Bed [q] Guicchardin. in Iacob. Triul. milite. Calvin. Aretius.
[r] Luke 12.20
[s] Luke 16.23
[t] Luke 23.43.
[u] Ambroſ. de bono mortis, cap 8.
[x] Martial, Epigram lib 6 Epigram 18.
[y] Pſalm. 79.2.
[z] Pſal. 116.13
[a] Lib. de cura pro mortuis, cap 2.
[b] Apoc 20.13.
[c] Matth 24.31
[d] 1 Cor. 15.53.
[e] Theſ 4.16.
[f] Philip 3.21.
[g] Iohn 11.25.
[h] Iob 19.25.
[i] Poſſidonius in vita Aug. cap. 27
[k] Perkins tract of dying well. Idem refert Simon Grineus de eius vita & obitu.
[l] Baron annal. Tom. 1. ad ann. 253. & martyrol. Rom. Ianuarij 24.
[m] Magdeburg. cent 3. col. 305.
[n] Pſal. 116.7.
[o] Pet Damian. ſer de S. Steph.

The Gospell. MATTH. 23.34.

I send vnto you Prophets and Wisemen, and Scribes, &c.

IT is a good obseruation in the Churches historie, that these three commonly succeed each other: [r] Ingentia beneficia, ingentia peccata, ingentes pœna. The present Gospell is an example hereof, in which all the same points are very remarkable.

[r] Magdeburg. Epist. præfix. cent. 5.

1. Ingentia beneficia, Christs exceeding great mercie toward the Iewes, in seeking their conuersion as well by himselfe, as his messengers. And those Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes: and that not once, but often: how often would I haue gathered? and that not cursorily, but [s] earnestly; Ierusalem, Ierusalem not coldly, but affectionately, like as the hen gathereth her chickens vnder her wings.

[s] Theophylact. Euthym. Aquin.

2. Ingentia peccata, the Iewes exceeding great malice toward Christ abusing his Ministers
- Of all sorts: Prophets. Wisemen. Scribes.
- With all kinde of iniury: Killing. Crucifying. Stoning. Scourging. Persecuting.
- In al places, not sparing so much as the Sanctuarie, whom ye slew between the Temple and the Altar.
- At all times for it is not heere, thou that hast killed in time past, or thou that wilt kill in time to come: but in the present, that killest and stonest. [t] Intimating their continuall habit in killing the Prophets, and stoning such as were sent vnto them. As if he should haue said, [u] quæ occidisti & occides, & occisura es.

[t] Chrisost. Caietan.

[u] Marlorat.

3. Ingentes pœnæ, both in respect of the
- Guilt, that vpon you may come all the righteous blond, &c.
- Punishment, behold your house is left vnto you desolate.

Or, as [x] other, their punishment is threefold,
- Temporall, your house is left vnto you desolate.
- Spirituall, ye shall not see me henceforth.
- Eternall, that vpon you may come all the righteous blond.

[x] Ferus ser. 3. in loc.

Wherefore behold] This [y] Ideo renders not the reason why Christ did send Prophets vnto this people; but imports the true cause why they persecuted such as were sent: namely, because they were serpents, and a generation of vipers, as it is in the words immediately going before. [z] Vipers are conceiued by biting off the males head, and borne by rending the females belly: [a] so they killed their spirituall fathers the Prophets, and rent in sunder the compassionate bowels of their deare mother the Church.

[y] Maldonat.

[z] Plin. nat. hist. lib. 10. cap 62.

[a] Theophylact. Euthym. Anselm. in Matth 3.7.

I send] [b] How shall they preach except they be sent? No man ought to take that honour vnto himselfe, but he that is called of God, Heb. 5. 4. [c] Here then obserue, that Christ is very God, taking vpon him as the master of the [d] vineyard, and Lord of the [e] haruest, to thrust forth labourers into the Church. [f] It is a token of his mercy to send Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes vnto any nation, and an infallible demonstration of his seuere iudgement not to send: according to that of the Prophet Amos in his 8. chapter at the 11. verse: Behold, the dayes come, saith

[b] Rom 10. 15.

[c] Theophylact. Euthym in loc.

[d] Matth. 20 8

[e] Matth 9, 38.

[f] Luther.

the Lord, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor of thirst for water; but of hearing the word of the Lord.

Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes.] Howsoeuer all these may be [g] confounded, and meet in one: yet I thinke with [h] Hierome, and [i] other Expositors; that Christ vsed so many termes, to shew the riches and [k] diuersities of his graces, ordaining some to bee Apostles, and some Pastors and Teachers, Ephes. 4. 11. As if he should haue said; I will omit no meanes for your conuersion, I will send vnto you messengers indued with all varietie of gifts, administrations, and operations. Some distinguish Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes, after this sort: [l] Prophetæ sunt qui futura prænunciant; sapientes, qui recte præsentibus vtuntur; scribæ, qui præterita nobis in memoriam reuocant.

God hath dealt with England as with Iewry, speaking vnto vs [m] early and late, by his Wickliffes and Whitgifts, Bilneys, and Bradfords: giuing vs his Latimers and Ridleys, and other Iewels of all sorts: vsing all kinds of messengers, adorned with all kindes of gifts; sending zealous Preachers endowed with the spirit of prophecie, politicke Prelats endued with the spirit of wisedome, iudicious and accurate writers endued with the spirit of knowledge, who like learned Scribes [n] taught vnto the kingdome of heauen, are able to bring foorth out of their treasure, things both new and old. Ierusalem had many Prophets, and great is the number of our Preachers: England affords an Eli for an Eliah, and a Matthew for a Matthew, &c. In the first obseruable point of our text concerning Ingentia beneficia, Gods owne people, the Iewes, and we parallel.

And some of them shall ye kill and crucifie] Some they killed, as [o] Iames the brother of Iohn, with the sword. Some they crucified, as Peter, and Christ himselfe the Lord of life, Actes 3. 15. Some they scourged. as Paul, for thus he writes of himselfe, of the Iewes fiue times receiued I fortie stripes saue one, I was twice beaten with rods. Some they persecuted from citie to citie, as Barnabas, Acts 13. 50. Some they vexed with all these kindes of cruelties, as S. Steuen on this day, They gnashed at him with their teeth. Acts 7. 54. and scourged him with their tongues, suborning men which said, we haue heard him speake blasphemous words against Moses & God. Act. 6. 11. They brought him to the [q] Councell, and [r] cast him out of the citie. They persecuted him in words, disputing against him: and in deedes, despiting him, vntill in fine they stoned this holy Prophet sent vnto them. In a word they made such [f] hauocke of the Church, as that the messengers of God complained out of the bitternesse of their spirit: [t] For thy sake are we killed all the day long, and are counted as sheepe appointed to be slaine,

Sanguine fundata est Ecclesia, sanguine creuit,
Sanguine decrescit, sanguine finis erit.

Yet for all this let no Preacher or Professor discourage himselfe, for S. Stephen in the middest of his afflictions (as it is recorded in this dayes Epistle) saw the heauens open, and Iesus standing at the right hand of God. It is said in the Creed, that Christ sitteth on the right hand of God: but when his faithfull seruant Stephen was martyred, he was standing. Now then if Christ stand with vs, who can withstand vs? haply we may weep for a time, but [u] all teares shal be wiped away from our eyes; the Father of mercies, and God of all comfort, shall assist vs in our tribulation so graciously, that as the sufferings of Christ abound in vs, euen so our consolation shall abound through Christ, 2. Cor. 1. 3. 5.

[x] Mystically, Hereticks scourge Catholicks with their venomeus tongues, and by labouring to thrust them out of their holds [y] built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, into new found habitations, raised vpon the [z] sands of humane [a] philosophie; what doe they but persecute them (as it were) from citie to citie? The Pagans first, and the Papists afterward did actually kill, and crucifie, and scourge, and persecute the Saints of God in this Iland, as well Abel as Zacharie, [b] that is, the Lay-men and the Clergie, the lowest of the people, so well as the highest of the Priests. And albeit in our time we need not haply feare their murthering, yet we still feele their murmuring against vs. And with them are ioyned

[g] Acosta in loc. ex Hilar. & Chrysost.
[h] Com. in loc.
[i] Suarez. Musculus. Marlor. in loc.
[k] 1 Cor. 12. 4.
[l] Ferus ser. 3. de S. Stephano.
[m] Ieremy 7. 13
[n] Mat. 13. 52.
[o] Acts 12. 2.
[q] Acts 6. 12.
[r] Acts 7. 58.
[f] Acts 8. 3.
[t] Psal. 44. 22. Rom. 8. 36.
[u] Apoc. 21.
[x] Origin. apud Them. in loc.
[y] Ephes. 2. 20.
[z] Matth. 7. 26.
[a] Coloss. 2. 8.
[b] Ardens. Anselm. Caietan. in loc.

ioyned another generation of Vipers, I meane the ſchiſmaticall brood, whipping vs in their words, and ſcourging vs in their writings, according to their will and wit, hourely killing the Prophets, and ſtoning ſuch are ſent vnto them. For whereas there be two kindes of death, one naturall, another ciuill: If any diſcredit the good life, or diſcountenance the ſound doctrine of his Paſtor, by raiſing falſe tales, and ſuborning falſe witneſſes againſt him, as the Iewes againſt Stephen; what doth he but ciuilly, or rather indeed vnciuilly like a Iew* murther his Preacher? And ſuch a Miniſter as patiently beares theſe wrongs, and ſuffers theſe dilapidations in his credit, is a very Stephen, a meere Martyr. For (as [c] Gregory notes) there be three kindes of martyrdome without any ſhedding of bloud. 1. To be patient in our owne miſerie; 2. To be compaſſionate in anothers aduerſitie. 3. To loue our enemies heartely. Thus in the ſecond part of our text alſo touching ingentia peccata, the Iewes and Engliſh are parallels.

That vpon you may come all the righteous blond, which hath been ſhed vpon earth, frõ the blood of the righteous Abel vnto the bloud of Zacharias.] Here two queſtions are moued: Firſt, who was this Zacarias. Secondly, how all the righteous bloud ſhed vpon earth is required of this generation. Concerning the firſt; it is thought by [d] ſome that this Zacharias is that Zachary numbred among the twelue leſſer Prophets, in that his [e] fathers name well agrees with this hiſtory. But that opinion is cenſured as improbable, becauſe the Scripture ſaith not any where that this Prophet was ſlaine between the Temple and the Altar. [f] Other affirme that this Zacharias is the father of Iohn the Baptiſt, mentioned. Luk. 15. of whom it is reported by tradition, that the Iewes ſlew him betweene the Temple and the Altar, for that as he was a Prieſt, he did ranke Mary the mother of Chriſt after ſhe had conceiued and brought foorth her Sonne, with vnſpotted virgins in the Temple. But ſaith [g] Hierome, Hoc quia de Scripturis non habet authoritatem, eadem facilitate contemnitur qua probatur. [h] Other hold that this Zacharias is that zealous Zacharias the ſonne of Iehoiada, who (for that he did openly rebuke the Iewes for their abominable Idolatrie) was ſtoned by them in the Court of the houſe of the Lord 2. Chron. 24. 21. Neither is there any contradiction betweene the ſonne of Barachias & the ſonne of Iehoiada: ſeeing Iehoiada might haue two names, or elſe called Barachias (in the Hebrew ſignifying, bleſſed of the Lord) becauſe Iehoiada the Prieſt [i] had done good in Iſrael, and toward God and his houſe. For mine owne part, I coniecture that this Zacharias is he, who was martyred at the beginning of the ſiege of Ieruſalem in the dayes of Veſpaſian the Romane Emperour. For the [k] ſtory ſaith expreſly, that he was the ſonne of Baruch or Barachias, & that he was ſlaine by the Iewes in the middeſt of the Temple. The clauſe (whom ye ſlew) ſerues to croſſe this expoſition in a little, but it is auoided eaſily, becauſe Chriſt here ſpeaking prophetically, reports that to be done, which was yet to come. This interpretation of all the reſt amplifieth moſt, as well the ſinne, as the puniſhment of the Iewes; in that all the righteous bloud from the firſt martyr among them vnto the laſt, euen from Abell vnto Zacharias while their Citie was beſieged, is laid vnto their charge.

Touching the ſecond doubt: we read in holy Bible that there be two generations, one good, another bad: a [m] bleſſed generation of the faithfull, euen of ſuch as [n] feare God; and a generation of Vipers, as Chriſt in this preſent chapter. As then the generation of ſuch as [o] obey their ouerſeers, and kiſſe the [p] feet of ſuch as bring glad tidings of peace, ſhall receiue the [q] reward of a Prophet: euen ſo the generation of ſuch as kill the Prophets, and ſtone ſuch as are ſent vnto them, if they fulfill the [r] meaſure of their fathers ſinne, they ſhall haue their portion and proportion in their fathers puniſhment alſo. For albeit [s] the ſonne ſhall not beare the iniquitie of the father, neither ſhall the father beare the iniquitie of the ſonne: [t] yet if the ſonnes are partners with their parents, in imitation the [u] children of ſuch as murthered the Prophets; as the Iewes were the ſonnes of Cain, in ſlaying the righteous Abels: If Cain and all the bloudy Iewes as well after as vnder the Law, make the ſame generation, vnited in fact and in faction,

*Non illibus ſaxeis, ſed maledictionibus duris, Auguſt. contra aduerſ. Legis & Prophet lib. 2 cap. 4.

[c] Apud diſcipulum ſer. 13. de S. Stephano.

[d] Apud Hierm. & Euthym. in loc.

[e] Zach. 1. 1.

[f] Nyſſ. orat. de natiui Dom. Theophylac. Euthym Melancth. in loc.

[g] In loc.

[h] Hieron. & Marlorat. in loc.

[i] 2. Chro. 24. 16

[k] Ioſephus de Bello Iud. lib 5. cap. 1.

[l] Acoſta ſe. 5. Stiph.

[m] Pſal. 112. 2.

[n] Pſal. 24. 6. Heb. 13. 17.

[o] Rom. 10. 15.

[p] Rom. 10. 15.

[q] Mat. 10. 41.

[r] Matt. 23. 32.

[s] Ezech. 18. 20.

Hieron. Caluin. Muſculus in loc.

[t] Mat. 23. 31.

[x] Luk.11.50. [y] Euthym. in loc. it is in God very good iuſtice, that all the righteous bloud ſhed from the [x] foundation of the world, ſhould be required of this generation. [y] For he who readeth often, and ſeeth almoſt daily the ſeuere iudgements of God vpon ſinners, and yet himſelfe continueth in the ſame ſinne, deſerues worthily to bee puniſhed with as many ſtripes as he neglected examples. He that knowes how Cain was a runnagate on earth, and how the clamour of his brother Abels blood entred into the eares of God in heauen, and how this cry was a voyce; vox ſanguinum, a voyce of blouds in the plurall, namely, the voice of the bloud ſhed, and of all the bloud which might haue come of that bloud, if it had not beene ſhed: Againe, he that heares of the lamentable deſtruction of Ieruſalem, how her magnificent Temple was [z] Luk.19.44. made deſolate, and the glorious Towers of her Citie were laid [z] euen with the ground; and all this for that ſhe killed the Prophets, and ſtoned ſuch as were ſent vnto her: He that reads and beleeues theſe things, and yet is an obſtinate deſpiſer of prophecie, killing, crucifying, ſcourging, perſecuting the meſſengers of the Lord from Citie to Citie: ſhall receiue greater damnation then either Cain or Ieruſalem, as hauing neglected greater meanes of ſaluation. For [a] all things are written for our learning, but theſe things (I meane Gods extraordinarie iudgements vpon notorious ſinners) are written more principally [b] for our examples vpon whom the ends of the world are come. See Epiſt.9, Sund. after Trinitie.

[a] Rom.15.4.

[b] 1.Cor.18.11.

How often would I haue gathered thy children] How often by the mouth of my [c] Prophets, how often by mine Apoſtles, how often by mine owne ſelfe? [d] As the louing Hen is alway caring for her chickens, alway clucking and calling them if they wander out of her ſight neuer ſo little, that ſhe may gather them vnder her wings, and ſo guard them from the miſchiefe of the Kite: euen ſo Ieruſalem, I would haue gathered thy children vnder the wings of my protection, I would haue kept thee and thine from the iawes of thy rauenous enemy Satan, and from the hands of al ſuch as hate you, but ye would not. [e] O Iſrael, thou haſt deſtroyed thy ſelf but in me is thine helpe; now this ought to be conſtrued either of Chriſt humane will as he was man, or elſe of his conditionall and reuealed will as hee was God; otherwiſe Gods abſolute will is effected alway, [f] both in heauen, and earth, and hell: it was the conditionall will of God the Iewes reſiſted, according to that of Saint Stephen in the ſecond leſſon allotted for Euenſong this day: [g] Ye ſtiffe-necked and of vncircumciſed hearts and eares, ye haue alway reſiſted the Holy Ghoſt, as your fathers did ſo do you. This (I would) of Chriſt is voluntas ſigni, not voluntas beneplaciti See Melanct. Caietan, Piſcator, Marlorat. in loc. Ianſen. Concord cap. 41. & 90, *didac. Aluarez de auxilys diuinæ gratiæ lib.*5. *diſputat.*33.34.

[c] Orygin. Bullinger. Piſcator.
[d] Conſule Aug. queſt. Euangel. lib.1. cap. 36. & Marlorat. in loc.
[e] Hoſ.13.9.
[f] Pſal 135.6.
[g] Acts 7.51.

O Father of mercies, increaſe our faith, and grant vnto vs in this thy day of our viſitation, vnfained repentance: that howſoeuer England hath equalled Ieruſalem in being diſſolute, yet ſhe may not parallel Ieruſalem in being deſolate.

The Epiſtle. 1.Ioh. 1.1.

That which was from the beginning, which we haue heard, which we haue ſeene with our eyes, &c.

[h] Aquin in loc.
[i] Auguſt. tract. 1. in hanc Epiſt.
[k] Vide Lorin. cap. 5. prolog. in 1. Epiſt. Ioan.
[l] Aretius. Zanchius. in loc.

SAint Iohn euer like himſelfe, [h] that his Goſpell and generall Epiſtle might be ſutable, [i] confirming each other in the maine ſcope: makes (in the beginning was the Word) the beginning of his words vnto both: omitting here an ordinarie ſaluation, that he might at the very firſt entrance treat of [k] more neceſſarie points of ſaluation: and yet this exordium à re ipſa, preamble raiſed from the matter it ſelfe, is agreeable to the rules of Art, [l] wherwith he makes his Readers attentiue, docile, beneuolous: attentiue, for that he writes not of a trifle, but of Chriſt Ieſus, the Word of life who cleanſeth vs from all ſin: docile, for that the ſubiect subiect of his doctrine is [m] neither new, nor vncertaine; not new, for we shew vnto you that which was from the beginning; not vncertaine, for we preach vnto you that which we haue heard, which we haue seene with our eyes, which we haue looked vpon, and our hands haue handled. Benenolus, for that he penned this Epistle for their good, namely, that they might haue fellowship with the Saints, and that their ioy might be full. I [n] finde the whole tract diuided into three parts, answerable to the three chiefe christian vertues, Faith, Hope, Charitie: but for as much as our Apostle writes of these [o] promiscuously without distinction and order,

I rather admit of Aquines plaine partition, into a
- Commendation of the Gospell, Chap. 1.
- Exhortation to the fruitfull and faithfull obseruing of the same, Chap. 2. 3.
- Dissuasion from the contrarie Doctrine, Chap. 4. 5.

In the present text there be two descriptions,
- One of Christ, in respect of his
  - Natures
    - As God, that which was from the beginning.
    - As man, which we haue heard & seene, &c.
  - Office, being our light and life, cleansing vs from all sinne.
- Another of a Christian, hauing fellowship with God, his Saints, and his Sonne, in whom are two remarkable properties:
  1. A studiousnes to do good, Ergo, not a carnall Epicure. For if we say wee haue fellowship with God who is light, and walke in darknesse, we lie, and do not the truth.
  2. A sorrowfulnesse when he doth ill, Ergo, not a spirituall Puritan, For if we say we haue no sinne, we deceiue our selues, and the truth is not in vs.

I haue spoken enough of the first description in my notes vpon the Gospell on Christmas day, the pith of it is, that Christ Iesus eternally God, in the fulnesse of time made man, is our onely Mediator and Aduocate with God the Father; insomuch as our fellowship with God in this world, and fulnesse of ioy in the next, is attained by faith alone, first apprehending, and after applying his merits. Here then our Apostle commends the doctrine of the Gospell, in three respects especially.

First, in regard of the subiect, as being most ancient and excellent, euen that which was from the beginning, Gods owne Sonne, the word of life, yea that eternall life which was with the Father afore all worlds.

Secondly, in regard of the certaintie, that which we haue heard, which we haue seene with our eyes, which we haue looked vpon, and our hands haue handled, declare we vnto you. For Christ who was in the beginning that eternall word with the Father, in these [p] last dayes appeared vnto vs. And as [q] S. Paul expounds S. Iohn, he was manifested in the flesh: Or as S. Iohn in his [r] Gospell expounds himselfe, he became flesh, and dwelt among vs. And [s] so we haue seene and heard him [t] immediatly speaking in the world, as well as mediatly speaking in his word. For he spake to the Fathers by the mouth of all his Prophets euer since the beginning: but in our dayes he hath spoken with his owne mouth vnto vs: our eares haue heard him in his Sermons, our eyes haue seene him in acting of his miracles, our hands haue touched his precious body both afore his death, and after his resurrection; and so that which we so [u] many wayes assuredly know to be true, declare we vnto you. For albeit the Word of life being very God of very God, is neither visible nor palpable: yet in respect of the [x] personall vnion of the two natures in him, it may be safely said againe and againe, that which wee haue seene and heard. And wee saw the glory of it as the glory of the onely begotten Sonne of the Father full of grace and truth, Iohn 1. 14; And in this

[m] Marlor. in loc.

[n] Pet. Aureolus apud Lorin. vbi sup. cap. 6.
[o] Piscator.

[p] Heb 1. 2.
[q] 1. Tim. 3. 16.
[r] Cap 1. ver. 14.
[s] Abelius.
[t] Aquin.

[u] Erasmus.

[x] Marlorat. Piscator.

this ſenſe the Word of life, yea the Lord of life is ſaid[y] elſewhere to be killed and crucified.

[y] Acts 3.15. 1.Cor.1.8.

Thirdly, in regard of the profit, becauſe Chriſt is the Word of life, not onely formaliter, in reſpect of himſelfe; but in reſpect of vs effectiuè, being author of our naturall life, for in him we liue and moue, and haue our being, Acts 17.28. Of our ſpirituall life, Thus I liue, yet not I now, but Chriſt liueth in me ſaith Paul, Galath.2.20. Of our eternall life, for he is the way, the truth, and the life, Iohn 14.6. the reſurrection and the life, Iohn 11.25. yea that eternall life, as it is in our preſent text. So that if we will embrace the Goſpell, and receiue theſe glad tidings of peace. we ſhall haue fellowſhip with the bleſſed Apoſtles, and in concluſion it will bring vs vnto fulneſſe of ioy. [z] The which is not in this life, for here many ſorrowes are mixed with a few ioyes. He was a bleſſed man who ſayd, O [a] wretched man that I am, who ſhall deliuer me from the body of this death? Our reioycing in part, as our [b] knowing is in part, and our propheeying in part. Here God giueth his children ſometimes a good meaſure of ioy, ſhaken together and preſſed downe: but hereafter in his kingdome of glory, when all teares ſhall be wiped from our eyes, and all cares from our heart: then onely our ioy ſhall be full, (and as [c] Chriſts ſpeakes elſewhere) running ouer. Let all Doctors of Diuinitie learne by this Diuine, to ſhun new dubius, vnprofitable quirks of learning; and to deliuer vnto Gods people that which was from the beginning, a true Goſpell and a certaine, procuring an happy communion with God and a fulneſſe of ioy.

[z] Caietan. Zanchius.
[a] Rom.7.29,
[b] 1.Cor.13.9
[c] Luke 6.38.

God is light] Almighty God is compared vnto light in many reſpects. As firſt, for that [d] all things are naked and open vnto his eyes as to the light. Secondly, as we cannot ſee things earthly without light: ſo we cannot diſcerne [e] things heauenly, vnleſſe the Father of [f] lights illuminate our minde, and giue vs an [g] vnderſtanding heart. Thirdly, for that as the light of the Sunne daſleth our eyes if they gaze too much vpon it: euen ſo the diuine Maieſtie [h] dwelling in the light which no man can approach vnto, confoundeth all ſuch as curiouſly pry too much into it; according to that of [i] Salomon in the vulgar Latine, qui ſcrutator eſt maieſtatis opprimetur à gloria. But God is called [k] here light, as expelling all darkneſſe of ſinne and ignorance, being in himſelfe pure, ſincere, [l] righteous in all his wayes, and holy in all his workes. Our Apoſtle then argueth againſt hypocrites and tale-goſpellers often and openly boaſting of their communion with God, à natura Dei, from the properties of God after this ſort. God is light, ergo, none can haue fellowſhip with him except they walke in the light. If we ſay we haue communion with him, and walke in darkeneſſe we lie, and doe not the truth. Our wilfull ignorance and ſinnes vnrepented are called in [m] holy Scripture darkneſſe as hauing their beginning from Satan the Prince of darkeneſſe, and their end in hell which is the pit of darkeneſſe, and therefore though hypocrites (outmouth as it were) true Chriſtians in bragging of their familiarity with God and his Sonne: yet the trueth is, as long as they walk in darkneſſe, it is impoſſible they ſhould bee children of God, for in him is no darknes, nor ſo much as a ſhadow, Iames 1.19. [n] What Communion hath light with darkneſſe, or what concord hath Chriſt with Belial, or what fellowſhip hath righteouſneſſe with vnrighteouſneſſe? God is [o] without wickednes himſelfe, and hateth all manner of wickedneſſe in other, according to that of the Prophet in the fifth Pſalme, Thou art the God that hath no pleaſure in wickednes, neither ſhall any euil dwel with thee, ſuch as be fooliſh ſhall not ſtand in thy ſight, for thou hateſt all thē that worke vanity. Thou ſhalt deſtroy them that ſpeake leaſing; the Lord will abhorre both the bloudthirſtie and deceitfull man. I conclude this point in the words of our [p] Apoſtle, Little children, let no man deceiue you, he that doeth righteouſneſſe is righteous. It is not ſufficient to ſay that he is righteous, for if we ſay we haue fellowſhip with God, and walke in darkeneſſe we lie, and doe not the trueth: [q] that is, we lie to our ſelues and doe not the truth vnto other becauſe they be miſled through our example, mentimur commiſſione, veritatem non facimus omiſſione.

[d] Heb 4.13. Prou 15.3.
[e] 1.Cor.2.14
[f] Iam 1.17.
[g] 1. Kings 3.9.
[h] 1 Tim.6.16
[i] Prou.25.27.
[k] Caluin. Aretius. Zanchius.
[l] Pſal. 145.17.
[m] Rom.13.12. Epheſ.11.
[n] 2.Cor.6.14.
[o] Deut.32.4.
[p] 1 Epiſt.cap.3. verſ.7.
[q] Lorin.

If

If we walke in the light] An [r] argument from the effect to the cauſe, for our ſtudiouſneſſe to walke in the light, and to do good in our callings, is not the cauſe of our fellowſhip with God, and of the remiſſion of our ſin by the bloud of Ieſus Chriſt his Sonne: but an effect or conſequent. It is a ſigne that we are the ſons of God, if we be [f] followers of God as deare children, if we walke in the light euen as he is light. It is a ſeale to my ſoule that the bloud of Chriſt hath purged me from all ſinne, if I doe but [t] hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſſe, if I feele but an vnfained deſire to put off the works of darkneſſe, and to put on Gods armour of light: I know that I ſhall ſinne ſtill as long as I carry this fleſh about me, for if we ſay we haue no ſin, we deceiue our ſelues, and the truth is not in vs: but I am ſure ſo long as I walke in the light, that I ſhall not commit any ſin which is impardonable: ſo long as I haue communion with God, I cannot commit the ſinne againſt the Holy Ghoſt; as long as I am in Chriſt, his bloud cleanſeth me from all ſinne: from [u] all ſinne, originall and actuall, à culpa & pœna, from the fault, and from the paine due to the ſame. From all ſinne, [x] not only committed before baptiſme, but alſo from all ſinne committed of frailtie, ſince baptiſme. For as Cardinall [y] Caietan notes, impium eſt dimidiam à Deo ſperare veniam; and therefore [z] Popiſh ſatisfactions either by works done, or paines ſuffered in this life, or in Purgatory after this life, to purge men of their ſinnes, haue no firme ground in Gods holy word, they be works of ſupererrogation, or if you will, haply works of ſuperarrogation. It is not ſaid here, the bloud of Chriſt hath cleanſed in time paſt, or will cleanſe in time to come: but in the preſent, it cleanſeth. [a] Hereby ſignifying that it daily purgeth all the ſinnes of all ſuch as truly beleeue, who walk in the light, and haue fellowſhip with God.

If we ſay we haue no ſinne] Some ſay let vs [b] continue ſtill in ſin that grace may abound, ſeeing the bloud of Chriſt cleanſeth vs from all ſinne, let vs walke in darkneſſe, [c] working all vncleanneſſe euen with greedineſſe. Other on the contrary ſide ſay, we haue no ſin, whoſe puritan pride S. Iohn oppoſeth here, ſhewing plainly that the [d] Cathari both iniurie God, and deceiue themſelues, in affirming that they be without any ſin, they wrong God, becauſe (ſo much as in them is) they make God a lyar, and his truth a lie. For his word expreſly concludeth all vnder ſinne, Rom. 3.9. Galath. 3.22. reporting that all men haue gone aſtray like loſt ſheepe, Eſay 53.6. And that there is none that doth good, no not one, Pſal. 14.2. [e] In many things all offend, and who can ſay mine heart is cleane, Prou. 20.9. It is true that our Apoſtle ſaith in the third Chapter of this Epiſtle, verſ. 9. Whoſoeuer is borne of God ſinneth not: that is, the regenerate man as he is regenerate, ſinnes not obſtinately with a plenarie conſent, he ſuffers not ſinne to [f] raigne in him, as it is in our text, he walkes not in darkneſſe: [g] yet he may ſtumble, yea ſometime fall through infirmitie while he walketh in the light; and therefore ſuch as auow that they haue no ſinne, giue the lie to God, and the truth is not in them: [h] that is, God who is [i] truth is not in them: and the reaſon hereof is euident, becauſe God reſiſteth the proud, Iam. 4.6. and ſo neither God, nor his word is in them, as Aquine pithily, neither Chriſt his eternall Word, nor the Scripture his created word dwelleth in them.

Againe, Puritans who ſay we haue no ſinne, deceiue themſelues; according to that of [k] Paul, If any man ſeeme to himſelfe that he is ſomewhat, when he is nothing, he deceiueth himſelfe in his imagination; or they deceiue themſelues, becauſe Chriſt [l] eaſeth only ſuch as feele their heauie load, and gaoane vnder the burthen of their ſinnes; and therefore the true Chriſtian as our Apoſtle teacheth here, firſt makes a confeſſion, and then he ſeekes for an abſolution.

In confeſſion obſerue theſe circumſtances:
1. Who, we.
2. What, ſinnes, and our ſinnes.
3. To whom, to God, If we acknowledge our ſinnes, hee is faithfull, &c.
4. How, acknowledge and ſay.

In

[r] Zanchius.

[f] Epheſ. 5.1.

[t] Matth. 5.6.

[u] Bulling. Rhem. Loria.
[x] Beda.
[y] In loc
[z] Dr. Fulke in loc.

[a] Zanchius. Marlorat.

[b] Rom. 6.1.

[c] Epheſ. 4.19.

[d] Auguſt. hæreſ 38 & Epiphan. hæreſ. 59.

[e] Iam 3.2.

[f] Rom. 6.12. & 7.19.
[g] Zanchius.

[h] Hugo. Aquin Gloſſ. interlin.
[i] Iohn 14.6.

[k] Galath. 6.3.

[l] Matth. 11.28.

In absolution:
1. Of whom an absolution is to be got, of God for his Christs sake, whose bloud cleanseth vs from all sinne.
2. Why? because God is faithful & iust to forgiue vs our sins.
3. What? a plenarie, not a partiall absolution, a pardon for all vnrighteousnesse.
4. When? in this present life, while we walke in the light.

Our selues must acknowledge for our selues, and not another: we must indeed confesse [m] one to another, but not one for another: we must also confesse [n] sins, and not vertues, as the proud Pharisie, Luke 18. I fast twice in the weeke, I pay tithes of all that euer I possesse, And our owne sinnes, not our neighbours offences, as the same Pharisie, who did accuse the Publican, and in comparison of his faults excuse himselfe. This confession is to be made to God, as being the searcher of our hearts, vnderstanding all our secret sinne so well, yea better then our selues. O Lord, [o] who can tell how oft he offendeth? O cleanse me from my secret faults, and to God, as being very willing, and most able to purge vs from all vnrighteousnesse It is true, that we must acknowldge our faults one to another, as hauing trespassed one another; and in some cases it is expedient also that we resort to deuout, learned, discreet Pastors, for the reliefe of our distressed conscience; yet by [p] Bellarmines leaue, this our text is not a pregnant Scripture for popish auricular confession vsed in the Church of Rome. For the Ministers of the Word may both openly pronounce absolution vnto true penitents: and in secret also when occasion is offered iustly: though annuall and auricular confession of euery singular and single sinne were thrust out of the Church, as it was for twelue hundred yeeres after Christ. See Gospell 3. Sund. after Epiphanie.

We must acknowledge, [q] that is, say with our mouth, and acknowledge in our heart, that wee haue sinned in Adam, and doe sinne for the present, and may sinne hereafter as long as we liue. For saith [r] Augustine, Id erat peccatum insanabilius, quo me peccatorem esse non arbitrabar, it is our dutie to feele sinne, to feare sinne, to flie sinne so farre as we can, in one word, soundly and seriously to repent vs of all vnrighteousnesse. [s] Non sit satis quod doleamus, sed ex fide doleamus, & non semper doluisse doleamus, & de dolore gaudeamus: We must heartily grieue for our offences, and grieue for that wee grieue no more, and ioy for that wee grieue so much.

After such a confession, a penitent ought to seeke for an absolution of God, as being faithfull and iust to forgiue vs our sinnes. Haply some will obiect, God (if we consider him as iust) is more ready to punish than to pardon, for the [t] wages of sinne is death, and the Church hath taught vs euery day to pray with the [u] Psalmist, enter not into iudgement with thy seruants O Lord, for no flesh is righteous in thy sight. For answer to this obiection, I finde the word iust, expounded diuersly. [x] Some say God is iust, as being able to iustifie sinners. [y] Other think that God is called iust in forgiuing our sinne, because Christ hath paid a iust and a sufficient price for the sinnes of the whole world. [z] Other construe iust, here to be nothing else but a comely thing, or a propertie befitting the goodnesse of God; according to that of [a] Anselme, Iustum est ô Deus, vt parcas malis. And so [b] some reade, God is faithfull and facile, readie to forgiue. But I follow [c] their Glosse, who thinke that faithfull and iust in this place signifie the same. God is faithfull in his promise, iust in his word to forgiue. Now God saith in his word, [d] though their sinnes were as crimson, they shall be made white as snow: though they be red like scarlet, they shall be as wooll. [e] I am not not come to call the righteous, but the sinners to repentance: Wherefore come to me all ye that labour and are laden, and I will ease you: yea that which is more then his word (if any thing can be greater) his oath is, [f] As I liue saith the Lord God, I desire not the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turne from his way and liue. Now God euer dealeth with his seruants according to his word, and hauing bound his word with an oath it is due debt, and then it is [g] iustice to pay debts: he is faithful, and therefore can no more deny his promise than himselfe, who saith, At what time soeuer

[m] Iam. 5.16. [n] Aquin.

[o] Psal. 19.12.

[p] Lib. 1. de pœnit. cap. 13 §. habemus deinde. & lib. 3. cap. 4. § quartus locus, & sequent. ad fin cap.

[q] Zanchius.

[r] Confess lib. 5. cap. 10.

[s] Augustin. de vera & falsa pœnitent. cap. 13

[t] Rom. 6.23.

[u] Psal 143.2.

[x] Em. Sa.
[y] Caietan.

[z] Lorin.

[a] In prosoleg. cap. 9. vbi suauissime hac de re multa.
[b] Aretius.
[c] Caluin. Beza. Zanchius.
[d] Esay 1.18.
[e] Matth. 9.13.
[f] Ezech. 33.11.

[g] Lorin.

ſoeuer a ſinner doth repent him of his ſinne from the bottome of his heart, I will put all his wickedneſſe out of my remembrance. Wherefore let vs [h] boldly come to the throne of grace, let vs [i] agree with our aduerſarie quickly while we are in the way, while we walke in the light, while it is called [k] to day, for after this life there is no purgatorie for ſinne in another. And let vs aske not onely ſome parcell of a pardon, but an abſolute abſolution, and a plenarie diſcharge from all vnrighteouſneſſe.

Larga Dei pietas veniam non dimidiabit,
Aut nihil, aut totum (te lachrymante) dabit.

[h] Heb 4.16.
[i] Mat 5.25.
[k] Heb.3.13.

The Goſpell. IOHN 21.19.

Ieſus ſaid vnto Peter, follow thou me, &c.

THis Scripture containeth a
- Correction of
  - Peters curioſitie, What is that to thee? Follow thou me.
  - The Diſciples errour touching the death of Iohn, Yet Ieſus ſaid vnto him, he ſhall not die, &c.
- Commendation of Iohn in reſpect of his
  - Grace with Chriſt, The Diſciple whom Ieſus loued, which alſo leaned on his breaſt at ſupper, &c.
  - Place in the Church, as being an Apoſtle, that teſtified of theſe things, and an Euangeliſt, who wrote theſe things.
- Concluſion of the Goſpell, intimating, that ſo much is written as is neceſſarie to ſaluation, and other things omitted, and thoſe many: for that if they ſhould be written euery one, the world could not containe the books that ſhould be written.

Our bleſſed Sauiour in the words immediatly going afore, ſhewed Peter in what vocation he ſhould liue, feed my ſheepe: as alſo by what death hee ſhould die, when thou ſhalt be old, thou ſhalt ſtretch forth thine hands, and another ſhall gird thee, and lead thee whither thou wouldeſt not: And when he had ſpoken thus; alluding to [l] both, eſpecially to the [m] latter, he ſaid vnto Peter, follow me; that is, be thou ſuch a Paſtor in feeding my ſheepe, and ſuch a Paſtor in ſuffering for my ſheepe, as I haue giuen example. Chriſt ſaid vnto Peter in the 13. chapter of this Goſpell, at the 36. verſe, whither I goe thou canſt not follow me now: but thou ſhalt follow me afterwards. Vnto whom Peter anſwered, Lord, why can I not follow thee now? I will lay downe my life for thy ſake. Ieſus replied, wilt thou lay downe thy life for my ſake? Verily, verily, I ſay vnto thee, the Cocke ſhall not crow till thou haue denied me thrice.

[l] Theophylact. Muſculus. Aretius.
[m] Auguſtin. Euthym. Caluin.

Now Ieſus remembring this conflict and conference with his Diſciple, ſaid vnto him in the words a little before our text, When thou waſt young, thou girdeſt thy ſelfe, and walkedſt whither thou wouldeſt. [n] That is, when thou waſt a yongling in faith, and diddeſt gird thy ſelfe with thine owne ſtrength, it was thy folly to thinke that thou couldeſt follow me whither I went: and therefore by denying me thrice, thou diddeſt proue my words to be true, whither I goe thou canſt not follow me now: but when thou ſhalt be old, thou ſhalt ſtretch forth thine hands, and another ſhall gird thee, &c. that is, when thou ſhalt feele thine owne weakneſſe, and grow ſtrong in the Lord, my other ſaying alſo ſhall be found true; Thou ſhalt follow me afterwards. I therefore now command thee Peter againe and againe, to follow me whither I goe.

[n] Rupert. & Maldonat. in loc.

But

But Peter (as it should seeme) neglecting this charge concerning himself, out of a curious humour inquires after the doing, and dying of other, saying vnto Iesus, Lord what shall he here doe? To whom his Master answered, If I will haue him to tarry while I come, what is that to thee, follow thou me, [o] Teaching vs hereby to follow him in the same calling, and in the same way that he doth appoint. [p] It is not sayd, examine others imployment: but [q] see your owne calling. & [r] let euery man abide in the same calling wherein he was called [t] walking in his vocatiõ worthily, studying to be quiet, and to meddle with his owne businesse, 1. Thess. 4. 11. The which Apostolicall Apothegme, beeing a parallel vnto the wordes of Christ here, (what is that to thee, follow thou me) may serue to direct vs in al matters of this life.

[o] Luther. postil. in loc.
[p] Aretius.
[q] 1. Cor. 1. 26.
[r] 1. Cor. 7. 20.
[t] Ephes. 4. 1.

Whether they bee { Theologicall, Ecclesiasticall, Politicall, Morall, Oeconomicall, Monasticall, } Concerning { God. The Church. Common-weale. Our neighbors & friends. Our priuate familie. Our single selues. }

In matters appertaining to God, it teacheth vs not to bee curious inquisitors after the secrets of his will vnknowne for what is that to thee? but to keepe the words of his Law, doing his wil which is knowne, for of this only Christ speaks here, follow thou me. The [u] secret things belong to the Lord our God; but the things reuealed belong to vs and to our children for euer.

[u] Deut. 29. 29.

In affayres of the Church, it sheweth, how the [x] good shepherd should spend his life for the benefit of the flocke committed vnto his charge, Peter follow me, forbidding [y] Vzzah to put his hand to the Arke of God, recalling the Laicke not only from encroaching vpon the Clergie mans Benefice; but also from intruding into the Clergie mans office; for what is that to thee?

[x] Ioh. 10. 11.
[y] 2 Sam. 6. 7.

In businesse of the Common-wealth, it correcteth ouer-curious Euesdroppers of State, for what is that to thee? Teaching vs to giue the things of [z] Cæsar vnto Cæsar, [a] honour, to whom honour; custome, to whom custome: tribute, to whom tribute: though (as Christ. Matth. 17. 27.) we fish for money: for in performing this office likewise Iesus sayd vnto Peter, follow thou me. The foole (saith [b] Salomon) will euer be meddling, but he that is wise will not walke [c] in magnis & mirabilibus, in great affayres, and such as are too high and huge for him: he plots not how to dispose of the Scepter, but possessing his soule in patience, desires the Scepter should rightly dispose of him, as being assured that Princes are the [d] Ministers of God, euen fingers of that great hand that gouernes all the world.

[z] Matth. 22. 21.
[a] Rom. 13. 7.
[b] Prou. 20. 3.
[c] Psal. 131. 2.
[d] Rom. 13. 4.

In morall offices or duties of charitie betweene neighbour and neighbour, it inhibits thee to be a busi-bodie, or (as Peter speakes) a busie Bishop in another mans dioceese, for what is that to thee? aduising on the contrary, to [f] doe good vnto all, vnto such as are of the houshold of faith especially. For in this respect Christ Iesus our great patron and patterne speakes vnto all, as to Peter here, follow mee. [g] Learne of me to be humble and meeke, [h] walking in loue euen as I haue loued you, giuing my selfe for you to be an offering, and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling sauour to God: in all other businesse appertaining either to the priuate house, or single selfe, the counsell is wholesome, res tuas age, plow in thine owne ground, fish in thine owne boat, looke to thy selfe, ouer-looke not other; vnlesse they bee such as are committed vnto thy proper charge. For in this exempt case Christ expects not of Peters attendance to the former clause, What is that to thee? but obedience to the latter only, follow thou me.

[e] 1 Pet. 4. 15
[f] Galath. 6. 10.
[g] Mat. 11. 29.
[h] Ephes. 5. 2.

Then went this saying among the brethren, that that Disciple should not die.] [i] Hence we may learne to take good heed how wee read and heare holy Scripture. For by misconstruing the words of our Sauiour, many false rumours are spread among the brethren. [k] If the Disciples easily were deceiued, how much more we? Let vs embrace therefore those things which are cleare, and such things things are ſpoken darkely, let vs conferre with plainer places, alway calling vpon God to giue vs the key of true knowledge, that we may diſcerne the things of his Spirit. The Diſciples here made that an abſolute affirmatiue, Which indeed is but a [l] conditionall propoſition. If I will haue him to tarry &c. not I will haue him to tarry. For we may not read (as the vulgar Latine [m] corruptly) ſic eum volo manere: but ſi eum volo manere. Againe, Ieſus ſaid not, he ſhall not die: but if I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? In this correction of the Diſciples error, obſerue, firſt S. Iohns [n] ingenuitie, who would not ſuffer a falſe report to be ſpread among the brethren, though it were for his honour Secondly, that it is not alway ſafe to follow the moſt in all things; one Iohn here. is oppoſite to the reſt of his company; one Lot oppoſite to the reſt of his Citie; one Luther oppoſite to the reſt of his countrey; one Noah oppoſite to the whole world. Thirdly, we may learne by this example to bee diligent and patient in reuoking all ſuch things as haue been miſtaken either in our words or writings. Auguſtine hath his retractations, [o] Bellarmine his recognitions, [p] Baronius his Emendanda, the Diſciples here their Errata ſic corrige. This ſaying went among the brethren, &c. yet Ieſus ſaid not, he ſhall not die, &c.

[i] Heming.
[k] Aretius. Pontan.

The Diſciple whom Ieſus loued] The Word [q] by whom all things were made, [r] loues all that he made. [s] Yet men more then vnreaſonable creatures, and his Saints more then other men, and his choſen Apoſtles more then other Saints, and Iohn more then other of his Apoſtles. He loued all his Diſciples, as the Father hath loued me, ſo haue I loued you: continue in my loue, Iohn 15. 9. But his loue to Iohn (as the [t] Schoole ſpeakes) was greater extenſiuè, though not intenſiuè; ſhewing more ſignes of familiaritie to Iohn than to the reſt of his company. For whereas [u] Iohn the Baptiſt held himſelf not worthy to beare the ſhooes of Chriſt, and [u] Maria thought her ſelfe bleſſed in annointing the feet of Chriſt, and [x] Thomas only deſired to toutch the ſide of Chriſt; our Apoſtle Iohn is ſaid here to haue leaned on his breaſt at ſupper, as being beſt acquainted with the ſecrets of his Sauiour. For when [y] Peter and all other his fellowes were ſilent, only he durſt aske, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee? When the Eagle broods (as [z] Plutarch reports) the chicke that comes of the egge lying neareſt her heart is beſt beloued of her: and ſo S. Iohn leaning on that breaſt (in which are [a] hid all the treaſures of wiſdome and knowledge) is the beloued Diſciple, ſo much honoured that Chriſt his Sauiour, which had not in the world [b] whereon to reſt his head, did notwithſtanding, [c] dwell in his heart by faith, and leane (ſaith [d] Ambroſe) in his boſome. Sinus in quo Chriſtus requieſcit, erat triplex; in Euangeliſta Ioanne fides, in Patre diuinitas, in Maria matre virginitas.

It is ſayd, Epheſ. 4. 11. that Chriſt aſcending vp on high, gaue ſome to be Apoſtles, and ſome Prophets, and ſome Euangeliſts, and ſome Paſtors and Doctors, [e] according to his will diſtributing to euery man a ſeuerall gift. [f] Peter was an Apoſtle, but not an Euangeliſt: Marke an Euangeliſt, but not an Apoſtle: Matthew both an Euangeliſt and Apoſtle, yet not a Prophet Auguſtine a Doctor, but not a Martyr; Laurence a Martyr, but not a Doctor. But behold the beloued Diſciple was [g] all theſe; In his Epiſtles an Apoſtle, in his Apocalyps a Prophet, in his Goſpell an Euangeliſt, in his faith a Confeſſor, in his preaching a Doctor, in his chaſtitie a Virgin, in his readineſſe to ſuffer for the truth a very Martyr, yea the [h] Protomartyr, ſuffering for Chriſt vnder the Croſſe, when he ſaw Chriſt ſuffer on the Croſſe; amans quippe plus in amato quam in ſeipſo patitur: all which are ſo many reaſons why we ſhould praiſe God in this holy Saint, but eſpecially becauſe the ſame Diſciple is he that teſtifieth of theſe things, and wrote theſe things. I ſay, for that he penned this heauenly Goſpell, [i] that we might beleeue that Ieſus Chriſt is the Sonne of God, and that in beleeuing, we might haue life through his name. For as [k] Ariſtotle ſayd, if Timotheus had not beene, we had not had ſo much ſweete muſicke: but if Phrynis (Timotheus his maſter) had not beene, we had not had Timotheus. Euen ſo (beloued) if S. Iohn had not beene, we might haue wanted haply ſuch an Euangelicall harmonie; but if Ieſus the maſter

[l] Arboreus.

[m] Ianſen. Concord. cap. 148. Idem Eraſmus & Maldonat. in loc. quippe nulla ſimilitudo inter iaculum & tot

[n] Aretius.

[o] Par impar.

[p] Annal. Tom. 9 fol. 86. 3 Tom. 10. fol. 949 Tom. 11 fol. 7.

[q] Iohn 1. 3.

[r] Wiſd. 11. 24.

[s] Auguſt. tract. 110. in Ioan.

[t] Thom. part. 1. quæſt. 20. art. 3.

[u] Matth. 3. 11.

[x] Iohn 20. 25.

[y] Iohn 13. 24. Vide Pet. de Palud. ſer. in loc.

[z] Apud Ioan. Oſorium. & Illeſonſ. giron. in loc.

[a] Coloſſ. 2. 3.

[b] Matth. 8. 20.

[c] Epheſ. 3. 17.

[d] Ser. 18.

[e] 1 Cor. 12. 11.

[f] Dicz. Con. 2. in feſt. Ioan. Euang.

[g] Portan & Pet de palude vbi ſupra.

[h] Ioan. Oſorius in loc.

[i] Iohn 20. 31.

[k] Meta. lib. 2. cap. 1.

maſter of Iohn had not beene gracious vnto the Church, it ſhould not haue had ſuch a Iohn.

[l] Marlorat.

It is an argument of S. Iohns[l] humilitie, that he termeth himſelfe not a Maſter in Iſrael or a Doctor, but a Diſciple, and that fiue times in this one Goſpell, as cap. 13. 23. cap. 19. 26. cap, 20. 2, cap. 21. 7. & 20. [m] yet it winnes honour to his hyſtorie, for that the beloued Diſciple penned it; euen he who leaned on his maſters boſome, teſtifieth of theſe things. [n] Among all his honourable titles, he mentioneth in the firſt place that he was beloued of Ieſus, acknowledging it onely to bee the fountaine from which all other his graces originally were deriued, For he was not beloued of Ieſus, for that he leaned on his breaſt, or for that he durſt aske him any queſtion, or for that he was the penman of this hiſtorie: but on the contrary, he therefore leaned on his maſters boſome, and was acquainted with his ſecrets, and teſtifieth of theſe things, for that he was the diſciple whom Ieſus loued. It is Chriſts grace, by which alone we are whatſoeuer we are, 1. Cor. 15. 10.

[m] Cyril. Rupert Maldonat.

[n] Diez vbi ſupra.

There be many other things which Ieſus did] Euery thing that Ieſus did is not recorded in the Goſpels hyſtorie, but onely ſo much as is neceſſarie for vs to know; namely, that we might beleeue that Ieſus Chriſt is the Sonne of God, and that (in beleeuing) we might haue life through his Name: for ſo S. Iohn expounds himſelfe, chap. 20. at the laſt verſe. The Scripture then is written principally for this end, that we might vnderſtand the miſterie of our ſaluation, conſiſting in [o] two points eſpecially. Firſt, in beleeuing that Ieſus is the Chriſt, that is, the Meſſias promiſed vnto the Fathers euer ſince the world began. Secondly, that this Meſſias, albeit he were the ſeed of Dauid, is not a meere Terence Ieſus, but the Sonne of God: and ſo being both God and man, he is our onely Mediator, through whoſe name we muſt be ſaued, The Goſpell hath aboundantly both affirmed and confirmed theſe points, and therefore we need not any [p] further reuelations of the Spirit in the buſineſſe of our ſaluation. Men talke much of the Philoſophers ſtone, that it turneth copper into gold; of Cornu-copia, that it had all things neceſſarie for food in it; of Panaces the herbe that it was good for all diſeaſes; of Catholicon the drug; that it is in ſtead of all purges; of Vulcans armor that it was an armour of proofe againſt all thruſts and blowes. &c. [q] Well, that which they did attribute vainely to theſe things for bodily good, we may with full meaſure aſcribe iuſtly to the Scripture for ſpirituall. It is not an armour only, but an whole armorie of weapons, as well offenſiue, as defenſiue, whereby we may ſaue our ſelues, and put the enemie to flight: It is not an herbe but a tree, or rather a compleat paradiſe of [r] trees of life, which bring foorth fruit [r] euery moneth, and the fruit thereof is for meat, and the leaues for medicine. In a word, it is a panarie of wholſome food, againſt fenowed traditions; a Phiſitians ſhop of preſeruatiues, againſt poiſoned hereſies; a pandect of profitable lawes againſt rebellious ſpirits; a treaſurie of moſt coſtly Iewels, againſt beggerly rudiments. Euery thing indeed that Ieſus did is not ſet downe, yet ſo much is written as is ſufficient for our learning, ſo much as may ſerue for a [s] lanterne to our feet, and a light vnto our paths, able to teach, improue, correct, inſtruct in righteouſneſſe, that the man of God may be perfect, throughly furniſhed vnto all good workes. 2. Tim. 3. 16 I will ende this obſeruation in the words of [t] Auguſtine, Tanta facta ſunt, quanta tunc fieri debuerunt: tanta ſcripta ſunt, quanta nunc legi debuerunt. [u] His ſalubriter, & parua corriguntur, & parua nutriuntur, & magna oblectantur ingenia. Nay (ſaith he) the Scriptures are ſo fit and full, Vt in eis quotidiè proficerem. ſi eas ſolas ab ineunte pueritia, vſque ad decrepitam ſenectutem maximo otio. ſummo ſtudio, meliore ingenio conarer addiſcere.

[o] Vide Caietan. Marlorat. Aret. in Ioan. 20. 31.

[p] Piſcator.

[q] See Preface to the Reader before the tranſlation of our new Engliſh Bible.

[r] Apocal. 22. 2.

[s] Pſal. 119. 105.

[t] Ser. 139. de Temp.

[u] Auguſtin. epiſt 3. ad.

The which if they ſhould be written euery one, I ſuppoſe that the world could not containe the bookes that ſhould be written] I find three diuers conſtructions of this one verſe: The firſt is metaphoricall, the ſecond hyperbolicall, and the third literall. [x] Auguſtine, [y] Theophylact, Beda, Rupert metaphorically, or metonymically; vnderſtanding by the world, men of the world: Mundus non capit id eſt, non intelligit, the world cannot comprehend, that is, apprehend the bookes that

[x] Tract. 124. in Ioan.

[y] In loc.

ſhould

ſhould be written. A very lanke conceit, for the world in this ſenſe cannot vnderſtand ſo much as one line of the Goſpell; according to that of [z] Paul, The naturall man perceiueth not the things of the ſpirit of God.

[z] 1 Cor. 2. 14.

[a] Other take theſe words as ſpoken hyperbolically, for the Spirit of God (accommodating it ſelfe to the rudeneſſe of men) vſeth elſewhere this kinde of figure. Deut. 1. 28. The Cities of the Canaanites are ſaid to haue beene walled vp to heauen, Exod. 3. 17. The land of the ſame Canaanites is termed a ſoile flowing with milke and honey, Pſal. 107. The men who goe downe to the ſea in ſhips, and occupie their buſineſſe in great waters, are ſo toſſed in the deepe by the ſtormie windes and waues, as that Dauid ſaith in the 26. ver. They mount vp to the heauen, and are carried downe againe to the depths. And ſo S. Iohn in auowing the world could not containe, &c. doth intimate, that if all the things which Ieſus did, ſhould be written euery one, the number of the bookes in folio would be without number. As high wals and huge waues are ſaid to reach heauen: euen ſo theſe bookes hyperbolically to be greater than all the world.

[a] Euthym. Caluin. Aret. Piſcator.

[b] Other conſtrue this verſe literally, Ieſus is that eternall Word in the beginning, by whom all things were made, Iohn 1. 3. and by whoſe mightie word all things are ſuſtained, Heb. 1. 3. working from the foundation of the world hitherto, Iohn 5. 17. So that if euery thing which Ieſus did as God, both afore the world, and in the world, ſhould be regiſtred: all this huge vniuerſe (though it be Gods faire Librarie) could not containe the bookes that ſhould be written. And thus (as you ſee) the concluſion of this Goſpell is anſwerable to the beginning, both intimating Chriſts incomprehenſible Diuinitie. He made the whole world at the firſt, and he gouernes all things in the world euer ſithence; and therefore moſt impoſſible that all his words, and workes, and wonders ſhould be recorded in bookes: albeit euery plant were a pen, euery drop of water inke, euery foot of land paper, and euery liuing creature a ready writer. The Diſciple then who wrote theſe things (as Horace ſaid of Homer) hath ſo fitly diſpoſed of his whole ſtorie, Primo ne medium, medio ne diſcrepet imum.

[b] Iſidor. peluſ. lib. 2 epiſt. 99. Dionyſ. Alex. epiſt. priori aduerſ Hæreſ. Samoſaten. Baron. Annal. Tom. 1. ad an. 34 fol. 214.

The Epiſtle. Apocal. 14. 1.

I looked, and loe a Lambe ſtood on the mount Sion, &c.

This Text is nothing elſe but a deſcription of

- The Church, in
  - Chriſt, a Lambe ſtanding on mount Sion.
  - Quantitie, an hundred fortie and foure thouſand.
  - Qualitie, for
    - Faith, in that her confeſſion is
      - Open, hauing his name and his Fathers name written in their foreheads, and a voice like the ſound of many waters, and great thunder.
      - Harmonicall, ſinging a new ſong of diuers parts, and yet all agreeing as the voice of harpers harping with their harps.
    - Good workes, in that her children are not defiled with women, and in their mouths is no guile, for they follow the Lambe witherſoeuer he goeth; and the reaſon of all is, becauſe they were redeemed from the earth and from men, that they might be the firſt fruits vnto God and to the Lambe.

A Lambe ſtood on the mount Sion] Chriſt the Sonne of God is the [c] Lambe of God, euen the Lambe [d] here mentioned, as it is apparant by his correlatiue, father. For ſo the text, hauing his name and his fathers: a [e] Lambe in figure, and a Lambe in fact. In figure, for Chriſt Ieſus is our Paſchall Lambe, 1 Cor. 5 7 ſlaine from the beginning of the world, Apocal. 13.8. Prefigured in the ſacrifices of the Law, ſo well as now preſented in the Sacraments of the Goſpell. As one pithily, Prius profuit quàm fuit: A Lambe indeed, ſo meeke as a Lambe, [f] like a Lambe dumbe before his ſhearer. A Lambe, for that he feedeth all his with [g] fleſh, and clotheth all his with his [h] white robe of [i] righteouſneſſe, whereby we ſtand (as it is in our text) without ſpot before the throne of God. And this Lambe ſits not idle, nor lieth aſleepe: but ſtandeth, alwaies in a [k] readineſſe to protect his followers, He that keepeth Iſrael, ſhall neither ſlumber nor ſleepe, Pſal. 121.4. He ſtandeth not as the beaſt in fickle ſand or [l] ſea: but on mount Sion, which cannot be remoued, Pſal. 125.1. in the middeſt of his inheritance the [m] Church, againſt which [n] hell gates ſhall not preuaile: For Sion is a type of Chriſts kingdome, called often in [o] holy Scripture, Ieruſalem aboue, [p] prepared in the top of the mountaines, and exalted aboue the hils. He ſtands on a mount, [q] higher than either earth or ſea, from whence the two beaſts his oppoſites ariſe. So that he is willing to defend his followers, as ſtanding; and able, for that he ſtands on a mount; and leſt any ſhould doubt of this, our Apoſtle ſaith, I looked, and loe. Two words of [r] attention, aſſuring vs hereby that the woman perſecuted in the wilderneſſe, that is, the Church afflicted in the world ſhall at the laſt haue the victory, though all the red Dragons on earth, and all the blacke deuils in hell furiouſly rage together againſt the Lord, and againſt his Annointed. And here giue me leaue to remember an [s] obſeruable note touching the writings of S. Iohn, how that in his Goſpell, he teacheth eſpecially faith: in his Epiſtles, eſpecially loue: in his Apocalyps, eſpecially hope. This booke being (as reuerend [t] Bullinger cenſureth) Euangeliciſſimus liber, of all holy Scripture the fulleſt of conſolation.

And with him an hundred fortie and foure thouſand] This affords [u] comfort, that the Lambe ſtands not alone, but hath on his ſide [x] many from Eaſt and Weſt, as well Gentiles as Iewes, hauing his fathers name written in their foreheads. It is thought by [y] ſome that this number is myſticall, inſinuating the perfection of Gods Elect, becauſe both the duodenarie number and millenaris are numbers of perfection. It is a [z] certaine number, becauſe the Lord knoweth who are his, 2 Tim. 2.19. as hauing their [a] names written in his booke: yet a definite for an infinite (as almoſt all haue noted) in that the number of ſuch as are with the Lambe is a multitude which no man is able to number, Apoc. 7.9. it is in it ſelfe a very great number, but in compariſon of the company fauouring lies and following Antichriſt, it is a [b] little flocke, a [c] few people which are redeemed from the earth, ſelected out of thoſe innumerable troopes of ſmall and great, rich & poore, bond & free, whoſe names are not written in the booke of life of the Lambe, Apoc. 13.8.16.

Hauing his name and his fathers name written in their foreheads] The vulgar Latine, Aretas, Ardens, and [d] other reade (as the tranſlation of Henry 8. and our Communion booke) His name, and his fathers name: the which is more ſignificant than that in other copies, hauing only his fathers name. And the [e] meaning is, that they profeſſe themſelues openly to be Chriſtians, acknowledging aperto fronte that God is their father in his Sonne Ieſus, in their [f] deeds and doctrine appearing outwardly to the world, what they are inwardly to themſelues, according to that of [g] Paul, We beleeue, and therefore ſpeake. [h] Faith in the ſoule breaking forth into [i] confeſſion with the mouth, is the note whereby the friends of Chriſt are diſtinguiſhed from the followers of Antichriſt. He that dependeth vpon Saints as much as vpon his Sauiour, and truſteth in the pardon of the Pope more than in the merits of Chriſt: hath in his forehead the [k] marke of the beaſt, and not the [l] ſeale of God. If Chriſt once dwell in our hearts by faith, his name will inſtantly be written in our forehead.

And I heard a voice from heauen] The militant Church on earth is called often in

---

• Iohn 1.29.

d Rupert. Bullinger. Aretius.
e Ardens.

f Act. 8.32.
g Ioh 6 54,55
h Apoc 7.9.
i 2 Cor. 5 21.
k Ardens. Bullinger. Aretius.
l Apoc 13.1.
m Napier.
n Mat. 16.18
o Galat. 4.26.
p Eſay 2.2.
q Marlorat.

r Aretius.

s Apud Ioan. Rauln ſer. 2. in ſecta Ioan. Euangeliſt.
t In Apoc. con. 6
u Bullinger
x Matth. 8. 11.

y Ardens. Rupert. Marlorat.
z Aretius.
a Luk. 2,20 Apocal 3.5.

b Luk. 12 32.
c Matth 7.14.

d Druſius & Brightman in loc.
e Ardens.
f Marlorat.

g 2 Cor. 4.13.
h Bullinger.
i Rom. 10.9.

k Apoc. 13.6.
l Apoc. 7.2.

in holy writ [m] heauen, as being the way to the kingdome of heauen, and as hauing her [n] conuerſation in heauen, and her affections ſet on things [o] aboue. This heauen hath a voice, [p] for the Church is not mute but vocall, openly profeſſing her faith, and praiſing God before the ſeat, and the foure beaſts, and the elders. Hauing a voice like the ſound of many waters, and of great thunder, and of harpers harping with their harpes. [q] Some by theſe three kindes of voices, vnderſtand three degrees of the Churches progreſſe perſecuted by the Dragon in the wilderneſſe. Firſt, in the dayes of Athanaſius, Baſil, Chriſoſtome, Ambroſe, Hierome, Auguſtine &c. Her voice (ſay they, but how truly iudge ye) was indiſtinct and confuſed. For albeit the learned writings of theſe moſt accurate Doctors in their age, made a great noiſe in the world, like the ſound of many waters: yet many points of doctrine were not ſo well explicated vnto the common people then, as afterwards they were. Secondly, in the dayes of Wickliffe and Huſſe, and other Bonarges, her voice reſembled the voice of great thunder. But now ſince her deliuerance from the wilderneſſe, and her comming out of Babylon; her voice in the harmony of confeſſions is like the conſent of harpers harping with their harps.

[r] Other ſay, that the Scriptures voice ſpeaking by the Church, is like to waters, in that it refreſheth all ſuch as hunger and [f] thirſt after righteouſneſſe, and like to great thunder, in being [t] terrible to the wicked: and like to the muſicke of harpers, in being delectable to the godly. The Preachers of the word are vnto God the ſweet ſauour of Chriſt, in them that are ſaued, and in them that periſh: to the one the ſauour of death vnto death, and to the other the ſauour of life vnto life, 2 Cor. 2. 15, 16.

[u] Other thinke, that many waters are many nations, as in the 17. Chapter of this booke, verſe 15. The waters which thou ſaweſt are people, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues. And the great thunder is nothing elſe, but the thundring voices of zealous and holy Preachers; and the harpers harmony doth intimate ſpirituall reioycing together in the Lord. The Church then hath a voice which is much, as being of many: yet muſicall, in that thoſe many concord in the maine, like harpers harping with their harps. It is [x] Multa vox ex pſallentium multitudine, ſed delectabilis ex conſonantiæ ſuauitate.

And they ſung as it were a new ſong] In regard of the matter a new ſong, [y] it was Adams old ſong before his fall to praiſe God for his creation in holineſſe and righteouſneſſe: but we ſing a new ſong to the Lord for our redemption and regeneration, whereby Gods image loſt by ſinne is reſtored in vs againe: or in regard of the manner, a new ſong, [z] for whereas the Iewes in the old Teſtament [a] expecting the conſolation of Iſrael, ſung praiſes vnto God for that their Meſſias and Sauiour ſhould come: Chriſtians in the new Teſtament magnifie the Lord for that Chriſt is come, Bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael, for he hath viſited and redeemed his people; for that their [b] eyes haue ſeene his ſaluation, and their [c] hands haue handled the Word of life. Or in regard of the men, a new ſong, [d] being ſung by ſuch as haue put off the old man, and are new creatures in Chriſt, 2 Cor. 5. 17. a new ſong [e] for that it makes the partie who ſings it a new man. Or a new ſong, [f] in that it ſeemeth vnto the world new; for Chriſt crucified the chiefe ſubiect of their new ſong, ſeemeth vnto the worldly wiſe meere [g] fooliſhneſſe, as it followeth in our text. No man could learne the ſong, but the hundred fortie foure thouſand which were redeemed from the earth. As our Popiſh aduerſaries hauing the [h] beaſts marke both in their forehead, and in their right hand, impudently call our moſt ancient and Apoſtolike faith a new Goſpell, and our Diuines, [i] Euangely quinti profeſſores. But as learned [k] Scaliger anſwered them acutely, Nos nouatores non ſumus, ſed vos eſtis veteratores: A Monke deuoted to his ſuperſtitious order, and truſting in his owne merits, is neuer able to learne how faith onely iuſtifieth. A carnall man addicted only to naturall reaſon, is not able to diſcerne the things of God. A Iew relying altogether vpon his Circumciſion, is not able to ſing another note. No maruell then if the ſong of Sion ſeeme new to them all.

Theſe are they which were not defiled with women] [l] This clauſe makes not any

[m] Matth 22. 2. See Goſpell 20 Sund. after Trinit.
[n] Phil. 3. 20.
[o] Coloſſ 3. 2.
[p] Bullinger.
[q] Brightman in loc.
[r] Rupert. in loc.
[f] Eſay 55. 1. Matth 5. 6.
[t] Bullinger. Aretius. Marlorat.
[u] Napier.
[x] Ardens.
[y] Brightman.
[z] Rupert. Napier.
[a] Haggai 2. 8. Luke 2. 25.
[b] Luke 2. 30.
[c] 1 Iohn 1. 1.
[d] Aretas apud Bulling. con. 28. in Apocal.
[e] Ardens.
[f] Aretius. Bullinger in loc.
[g] 1 Cor. 1. 23.
[h] Apoc 13. 16.
[i] Iurgiuicius.
[k] Reſpon. ad Serar.
[l] Aretas.

thing againſt honourable marriage, for how can that bee truly called a defiling, when as the bed is vndefiled, Heb. 13.4. and therefore [m] Paphnutius openly pronounced in the Councell of Nice, Caſtitatem eſſe cum vxore propria concubitum: And [n] Chryſoſtome (though a great admiror of virginitie) ſaith alſo, primus gradus caſtitatis, eſt ſyncera virginitas: ſecundus, fidele coniugium. And [o] ſo married couples are virgins as well as ſingle perſons, and ordinarily more chaſte in hauing Gods appointed remedy for [p] auoiding fornication. Before the Law, the Patriarkes had wiues: vnder the Law, the Prieſts had wiues: after the Law, to wit, in the dayes of the Goſpell (as [q] Ambroſe peremptorily writes) all the twelue Apoſtles, except Saint Iohn, had wiues. And it was euer thought commendable for the Preachers of the word to marry at their owne diſcretion, as they did iudge the ſame to ſerue better vnto godlineſſe, vntill Pope [r] Nicholas the firſt, [s] Hildebrand, alias Hell-brand, and Innocentius the third, forbade Prieſts marriage. Whereupon a [t] wittie fellow made this odde old rime:

Priſciani regula penitus caſſatur,
Sacerdos per hic & hæc olim declinatur:
Sed per hic ſolummodo nunc articulatur,
Cum per noſtrum præſulem hæc amoneatur.
Non eſt Innocentius, imò nocens verè,
Qui quod facto docuit, verbo vult delere:
Et quod olim iuuenis voluit habere,
Modò vetus Pontifex ſtudet prohibere.

What kinde of virgins Popes and Popiſh Prieſts haue beene, you may reade enough, Epiſtle 1. Sunday in Lent. Haply more then enough in Baleus his Treatiſe concerning Engliſh Votaries. A profeſſion of virginitie without true chaſtitie is no better than an apple growing in the Lake of Sodome. [u] Nouum eſt prorſus religionis genus, licita non faciunt, & illicita committunt, temperant à concubitu (quamuis nec hoc faciunt niſi à licito) & non temperant à rapina. If the notation (Papa quaſi popa) be good: and the rule true, [x] Venter vorans mero facilè deſpumat in libidinem: I would not wiſh many Popes to boaſt of their puritie.

Paphia dicta Venus, Veneris proles quoque Papa eſt.

Well, [y] ſuch as follow the Lambe, are neither defiled carnally with women (for they poſſeſſe their veſſels in [z] holineſſe and honour) nor yet ſpiritually with idols. In which reſpect the Church is called [a] a pure virgin, for that ſhe runs not a [b] whoring with her owne inuentions, committing [c] fornication with other louers: but is prepared for one husband only which is Chriſt. [d] In this ſenſe to worſhip idols, and to ſerue ſtrange gods, is to be defiled with women, as our Apoſtle doth inſinuate in the 17. Chapter of this booke, verſe 4. And therefore the Papiſts (albeit vnmarried) depending vpon many Saints, are not ſo good virgins as married Proteſtants wholly truſting in one Sauiour, and following him whitherſoeuer he goeth, obeying his will, and in their beſt endeuours euer ready to keepe the words of his Law, neuer forſaking him or his in want, in priſon, in ſickneſſe, in death. And this he will acknowledge at the laſt day; ſaying to them openly, Come ye bleſſed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you, for ye haue followed me whitherſoeuer I went. I was an hungred, and ye gaue me meat: I thirſted, and ye gaue me drinke: I was a ſtranger, and ye lodged me: I was naked, and ye clothed me: ſicke, and ye viſited me: in priſon, and ye came vnto me: whitherſoeuer I went, I had your company.

In their mouths was found no guile] As they were chaſte in mind, [e] keeping themſelues from idols: and chaſte in body, not defiled with women: ſo likewiſe chaſte in [f] tongue; for they did not [g] adulterate the word, or profeſſe the faith in [h] hypocriſie; but hauing their [i] mouth in their heart, they [k] ſpake becauſe they beleeued, embracing the Goſpell in ſimplicitie, being alſo ſtudious of truth in their carriage toward men, Louing without diſſimulation, Rom. 12.9. Caſting off lying, Epheſ. 4.25. and all guile, 1 Pet. 2.1. Iuſt in their promiſe, not diſappointing a neighbour though it were to their owne hinderance, Pſal. 15.5. Before men in reſpect of any ſcandalous

[m] Hiſt. Tripart. lib. 2. cap. 14.
[n] Ham. de inuent. crucis.
[o] Dr. Fulk. in loc.
[p] 1 Cor 7.2.
[q] In 2 Cor. 11.
[r] Balcus in vita Nic. 1.
[s] Idem in vita Greg 7.
[t] Apud Baleum in vita Innocent. 3.
[u] Saluianus lib. 5 de prouidentia Dei.
[x] Hieron.
[y] Napier.
[z] 1 Theſſ. 4.4.
[a] 2 Cor. 11.2.
[b] Pſal 106.39.
[c] Ezech 16 36.
[d] Rupert. Bullinger. Marlorat.
[e] 1 Iohn 5. 21.
[f] Ardens.
[g] 2 Cor. 4.2. adulterantes verbum vti vulgar. Latin.
[h] Marlorat.
[i] Eccleſ 21.26.
[k] Pſal 116. 10.

ſcandalous offences or open crimes [l] vnblameable, ſaying with the Lambe whom they follow, [m] which of you can rebuke me of ſinne? indeed their ſecret faults only knowne to God are many, while they be clogged with fleſh and bloud, who can tell how oft he offendeth? and yet in the world to come they ſhall appeare without ſpot before the throne of God, as hauing all their ſpots couered with long white robes of the Lambe: yea, [n] cleanſed and made no ſpots by the bloud of the Lambe, redeemed from earth and from men, to be the firſt fruits vnto God.

The bleſſed Innocents on this day murthered by cruell Herod, were witneſſes to the Lambe, non loquendo ſed moriendo (ſaith [o] Auguſtine) not by ſpeaking but by ſuffering for Chriſt, and ſo both his name and his fathers name were written in their foreheads, and their voice was like the ſound of many waters, and as the voice of great thunder, as it is in the Goſpell allotted for this feſtiuall, In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, weeping, and great mourning: and their crying was a ſong, a doleſull dittie to their parents eare, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, &c. yet [p] pretious in Gods eye, ſo ſweet as the voice of harpers harping with their harpes. And this their ſighing was a new ſinging, becauſe they were [q] primitiæ martyrum, euen the firſt fruits of martyrs vnto God And they followed the Lambe whither ſoeuer he went, the Lambe was white and ruddie, Cant. 5. 10. That is (as Rupertus vpon the place) Candidus ſanctitate, rubicundus paſſione. [r] So they were white in their innocencie being virgins in their chaſtitie, without any guile in their mouth, or guilt in their life; but in reſpect of their bloud ſhed for the Lambe, ruddie. So that (as Dauid ſings in the [ſ] Pſalme) out of the mouthes of very babes and ſucklings he hath made perfect his praiſe. Chriſt aſſuredly got great praiſe by that hymne which Angels ſung, glory be to God on high, and great praiſe by S. Stephen his protomartyr, and by S. Ioan the diſciple whom he loued, as you haue heard in their ſeuerall holy daies: but his praiſe was made perfect by the mouthes of babes and Innocents, of whom he ſaith in the Goſpell, [t] Suffer the little children and forbid them not to come to me, for of ſuch is the kingdome of heauen. O bleſſed babes, [u] who came to the wiſhed hauen without any tempeſt, [x] enioying the comforts of another life, before ye knew the miſeries of this life. [y] Qui prius in capitibus coronas quam capillos accepiſtis, hauing your heads crowned with happines, before they were couered with haire. Herod could neuer haue pleaſured you ſo much in his kindneſſe, as he did in his crueltie; for where his impietie did abound, there Chriſts pitie did ſuperabound, tranſlating you from your earthly mothers armes in this [z] valley of teares, vnto your heauenly fathers boſome in his kingdome of glory.

[a] Saluete flores martyrum,
Quos lucis ipſo in limine
Chriſti inſecutor ſuſtulit,
Seu turbo naſcentes roſas.
Vos prima Chriſti victima,
Grex immolatorum tener,
Aram ante cuius ſimplices
Palma & coronis luditis.

[l] Luke 1. 6.
[m] Iohn 8. 46. See Goſpell 5. Sund in Lent
[n] 1 Iohn 1. 7.
[o] Ser. 11. de ſanctis.
[p] Pſal. 116. 13.
[q] Auguſtin. vbi ſupra.
[r] Ilephon. Giron con. 1. in feſt S Innocent.
[ſ] Pſal 8. 2. Matth. 21. 16.
[t] Matth. 19. 14
[u] Oſorius con. in feſt. Innocent.
[x] Vide Didac. de Yenguas. con. de fuga Chriſt.
[y] Giron. vbi ſup.
[z] Pſal. 84. 6.
[a] Prudentius Hym. in Epiph.

The Goſpell. MATTH. 2. 13. vsq. v. 19

The Angell of the Lord appeared to Ioſeph in a ſleepe, ſaying, Ariſe, and take the childe and his mother, and flee into Ægypt, &c.

THe Prieſts in the Law were commanded that the [b] fire ſhould euer burne vpon the Altar, and neuer goe out. And [c] ſo that the fire of our deuotion (at this holy time) kindled vpon the altar of our heart might not be quenched by the water (which vſually the cold ſerpent caſteth out of his mouth, Apocal. 12 15.) the Church adioyneth, vnto the celebration of Chriſts birth, other three

[b] Leuit. 6. 13.
[c] Petrus ſer. 1. de S. Ioan. Euang.

Festiuals in one weeke. Wherein her meaning is not to withdraw our loue from the Creator to the creature (for all the twelue daies are called Christmas, dedicated only to Christs honour) but that we might hereby praise this our Iesus vncessantly both in himselfe and in his Saints. And the reason (as [d] some coniecture) why S. Stephen, and S. Iohn; and the blessed Innocents are named aboue the rest, is haply to shew that Christ came into the world to saue all sorts of men, of whatsoeuer degree. The Chiualdrie represented by S. Stephen a resolute Knight and warriour in the Lords battell: the Clergie represented by S. Iohn, stiled the Diuine: the Comminaltie or Infantrie represented by the silly children Herod slew; or intimating that Christ was borne for men of euery seuerall age, for men of perfect strength, as Stephen: for old men on their crouches, as [e] S. Iohn: for Infants in their cradles, as the blessed Innocents. Or it may be that these Saints are mentioned at [f] Christmas rather than other, because Christ saith in the Gospell; If any man will follow me, let him forsake himselfe, and take vp his crosse, Mat. 16.24. The seruant is not greater then his master, if they haue persecuted me, they will persecute you also, Iohn 15.20. Now there be [k] three kinds of suffering or martyrdome in Christs cause. The first, Voluntatis & operis, in will and in act, as that of S. Stephen. The second, Voluntatis sed non operis, in will but not in act, as that of S. Iohn. The third, Operis sed non voluntatis, in act but not in will, as on this day the death of the Bethlemiti Innocents. And for as much as S. Stephens martyrdome comes neerest vnto the sufferings of Christ, his Festiuall is next to Christs in the first place, S. Iohns in the second, the blessed Innocents in the third. And so Christ (as it is Cant. 5.10.) is white and ruddie, the chiefest among ten thousand. [l] Candidus in Ioanne, rubicundus in Stephano, electus ex millibus in Innocentibus.

[d] Ioan. Raulin. ser. 2. de beatis Innocent.

[e] Who liued after Christs passion 68. yeeres, as Hieron. in eius vita, being at his his death 106. yeeres old. Baron. annal. ad an. 99.

[f] Pet. de palude ser. de Innocent. Idem Ferus

[k] Bernard. ser. de Innocent. Idem Gerson. Lansen & alij in loc.

[l] Ludolphus de vita Christi part. 1. cap. 13.

In the Gospell allotted for this day, two points are more principally remarkable:

1. Christs humanitie, for that hee was [m] a childe, and did flee.

[m] Ardens. Anselm in loc.

[n] Piscator.

Τοὺς παῖδας, καὶ ἀνηπίους, &c. [n] Innocent babes who neither would nor could hurt him.

2. Herods inhumanitie, murthering

Πάντας, All the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof, from two yeeres old and vnder, according to the time which he had diligently knowne of the Wisemen. All in euery place neere the place where Christ was borne, not sparing his owne [o] childe, flesh of his flesh, and bone of his bone; which occasioned [p] Augustus Cæsar tauntingly to say, Melius est esse Herodis porcum quàm puerum, It is better to be Herods sow than his sonne.

[o] Ex Philone Baronius annal. Tom. 1. ad an. 1. fol. 60.

[p] Macrobius Saturnal. lib. 2. cap. 4.

The Angell of the Lord appeared vnto Ioseph in a sleepe] [q] Hence we may learne what a tender care God hath ouer his children in their greatest affliction, [r] his Angell tarrieth round about them that feare him, and deliuers them; and therefore let vs [s] cast all our care vpon him, for he careth for vs: [t] as a father pitieth his owne children; euen so the Lord is mercifull to them who feare him. It may be said of our heauenly Father, as the [u] Poet of an earthly parent, Omnis in Ascanio chari stat cura parentis.

[q] Luther, Calman, Beauxamis.

[r] Psal. 34.7.

[s] 1 Pet. 5.7. Psalm. 55.23.

[t] Psal. 103. 13.

[u] Virgil.

Take the childe and his mother] He who was in the beginning that eternall Word and [x] euerlasting Father, about this time for our sake came downe from heauen, and became an infant and a childe. Nobis puer natus, Esay 9.6. Vnto vs a childe is borne, and vnto vs a sonne is giuen: a childe not in meekenesse onely (for so so the greatest man ought to be as a little childe, 1 Cor. 14.20. Concerning malitiousnesse be children, and [y] except ye become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdome of heauen) but a childe in weakenesse also; [z] wrapped in swadling clothes, and laied in a cratch. It is not said, take thy childe and thy wife; but the childe and his mother: [a] hereby signifying, that Ioseph was not the naturall, but only the nursing father of Iesus. It is true that this Angell appearing to Ioseph at another time before Mary was deliuered of her childe, said vnto him expresly (for auoiding suspition of incontinencie) [b] feare not to take Mary for thy wife; but after the birth of Christ (as the [c] Doctors obserue) to shew that he was borne of a Virgin, Maries stile is the mother of Iesus, not the wife of Ioseph. Againe, it is not, take the mother and her childe, but the childe and his mother: [d] insinuating that his greatest care should be to prouide for the babe, both in respect of danger (for Herod sought to destroy him) and in respect of dutie, because the childe is greater than his mother, as being her [e] Sauiour so well as her sonne.

[x] Esay 9.6.

[y] Matth. 18.3.
[z] Luke 2.7.
[a] Hieron. in loc. See Gospell, Dom 1 post. Epiphan.
[b] Matth 1. 20.
[c] Hilarius, Theophylact, Iansen.
[d] Chrysost.
[e] Luke 1.47.

And flee into Ægypt] Christs hard entertainment at his first comming into the world, shewes that his kingdome was not of [f] this world: he had (as [g] Bernard sweetly) while he liued passiuam actionem, and when he died actiuam passionem. It is obserued by S. Luke, Acts 1 1. that Christ alway first did and then taught, he that would haue vs to [h] flee from Citie to Citie, fleeth himselfe from Countrie to Countrie: before he grants the patent, he giues the [i] paterne, fleeing, and that in the night [k] warily; or he did flee now for that his houre was not yet come; he had not as yet done [l] the worke, and the will of his Father, for which he came into the world, [m] Christus enim totam causam nostræ salutis occiderat, si se parvulum permisisset occidi, But whither doth he flee? into Ægypt: as being out of Herods [n] iurisdiction; or into Ægypt, to [o] signifie that Gods kingdome should be translated from the Iewes vnto the Gentiles: and so Ioseph in carrying Iesus and his mother into Ægypt, [p] represents liuely the blessed Apostles and Preachers, in conueying the Gospell vnto nations in time past, [q] alians from the Common wealth of Israel, and strangers from the couenants of promise, without Christ, & so without God in the world. O the deepnesse of the riches of Gods mercy! Babylon and Ægypt whilome were [r] malorum officinæ, the very shops of all villanie: but now behold the Wisemen come from the one, and Christ here fleeth into the other. [s] Vt populus qui ante fuerat persecutor populi primogeniti fieret custos filij vnigeniti: but what need we such a quære, seeing heauens messenger in the text hath vttered a quare, namely, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet, saying, out of Ægypt haue I called my Sonne. How that word, Numb. 23.22. or Hosea 11.1. orignally spoken of Israel his [t] adopted sonne, is well applied vpon this occasion vnto Christ his naturall sonne; See Rupert, Ribera, Caluin in Hosea 11.1. Iansen. Concord. cap. 11. Beauxamis harmon. Tom. 1. fol. 73. Caietan, Arboreus, Maldonat. in loc.

[f] Iohn 18.36.
[g] Ser. in fer. 4. hebd.
[h] Matth. 10.23
[i] Ardens. Anselm.
[k] Musculus.
[l] Iohn 17.4.
[m] Beauxamis.
[n] Arretius, Musculus, Maldonat.
[o] Iansen.
[p] Anselm.
[q] Ephes. 2.22.
[r] Theophylact in loc.
[s] Chrysost.
[t] Exod. 4 22.

[u] Mistically: God calleth his children out of the worlds Ægypt, deliuering vs from the power of [x] darknesse, and calling vs into marueilous light, 1. Pet 2.9. [y] or out of Ægypt, for that his children grow best in grace when they be taught in the schoole of affliction: or (as Rupert obserues) it may be that Hierusalem is called here, as it is [z] elsewhere Ægypt spiritually, for that her prince and people were so cruell as Ægypt, in seeking to destroy the childe Iesus.

[u] Rupert.
[x] Coloss. 1. 13.
[y] Maldonat.
[z] Apoc 11.8.

Then Herod when he saw that he was mocked of the Wisemen] It is vsuall with God to [a] take the wily in their owne craftinesse; and therefore seeing Herod mocked the Wisemen, it pleased the Lord too direct the Wisemen in such a course, that they likewise mocked Herod. The craftie Fox deluded the Wisemen in telling them he would (if after their diligent search hee should vnderstand where he was) [b] adore the babe, for his intent was [c] sauire non seruire, to woorie, not to worship, that innocent lambe. And the Wisemen deluded Herod in returning to their Countrie not by Hierusalem as they went, but another way. Then Herod seeing he was mocked of the Wisemen, was exceedingly wroth, and sent forth men of warre, &c. [d] for when once tyrants cannot preuaile with craft, they come

[a] Iob 5.13.
[b] Matth 2 8.
[c] Raulin, ser. 3. de B. Innocent.
[d] Cu'man.

come to cruelty; when Politicians rhetoricke failes, Carters logicke muſt doe the feat.

[e] Great bodies are diſcerned eaſily with a little light, but ſmall things are not found in the darke without a great light: God the Father in the creation of the world is ſo glorious and ſo great, that the little light of nature ſheweth his handie worke, Pſalm.19.1. but God the Sonne in our redemption is ſo little, that wee need a great ſtarre to direct vs vnto the babe Ieſus lying in a manger, a large meaſure of faith and grace to finde the great God made a little childe. No marueil then if Herod could not finde, ſeeing he did ſeeke not in [f] faith, as hoping to be ſaued by Chriſt: but in furie, meaning to deſtroy Chriſt. And the reaſon hereof is rendered in this preſent Chapter at the 3. verſe, When Herod heard of Chriſts birth at Bethlehem, he was troubled, and all Hieruſalem with him, as fearing that this babe being lineally deſcended from the ſeed of King Dauid, ſhould in time, challenging the Scepter of Iudea, thruſt him out of his kingdome.

[g] Succeſſor inſtat, pellimur.
Satelles i, ferrum rape,
Perfunde Cunas ſanguine.
Mas omnis infans occidat.
Scrutare nutricum ſinus,
Interq; maternæ vbera
Enſem cruentet puſio.

O fooliſh Herod, wilt thou not ſuffer the King of heauen and earth, and the whole world, to raigne in Iurie? wilt thou be ſo barbarous, as fearing thy ſucceſſour, to kill thy Sauiour? Well maieſt thou [h] ſeeke, but thou ſhalt not ſee the deſtruction of his Kingdome, [i] for his ſcepter is a right ſcepter, and his throne is for euer and euer. Well maieſt thou deſtroy the bodies of poore children, but their liues are [k] hid with the babe Ieſus in God: and ſo thy miſchiefe ſhall turne to mercie, [l] quos rex impius eximit mundo, Chriſtus inſerit cœlo: for they died for him who was to die for them, and ſo death had no conqueſt ouer them: [m] Moriuntur propter Chriſtum, qui ſua morte facit vt ipſi nulla morte teneri poſſint.

Herod [n] repreſents the deuill, who [o] ſtands before the woman in the wildernesſe great with childe, readie to deuoure her babe. Hee knew that the [p] ſeed which ſhould breake his head, was to be borne of the Iewes; and therefore cauſed Pharao to murther all the Hebrew males, Exod.1. and ſtirred vp Haman to deſtroy the whole Nation of the Iewes, Eſter 3. and Athalia to kill all the ſonnes of Dauid, 2 Kings 11. and here ſo ſoone as the noiſe was of Chriſts birth, hee did cut the throats of all the children in Bethlehem, and in all the coaſts thereof from two yeeres old and vnder. Myſtically, Satan as ſoone as he ſeeth in a man any good motion, he ſtands (as Herod here) readie to kill it, although it be neuer ſo little a babe.

In Rama was there a voice heard] That is, [q] in excelſo, for the voice of bloud is loud, and [r] crieth euen from earth vnto heauen: euery murther is ſacriledge, for that our bodies are the temples of the Holy Ghoſt, 1 Cor.6.19. Herod then at once committed many foule ſacriledges, in ſlaying ſo many both in towne and countrey, who were ſo great innocents, in being ſo little children, that as [t] Prudentius excellently,

Locum minutis artubus
Vix interemptor inuenit
Quo plaga deſcendat patens,
Iugulóque maior pugio eſt.

This barbarous outrage cauſed lamentation, weeping, and mourning: [u] that is, lamentation of the mothers, weeping of the children, and ſuch a mourning on all ſides, as that the crie penetrating the clouds, and knocking at heauens gate, did [x] enter into the eares of the Lord of Hoſts.

[x] Horrendis graniter Cœlum pulſaſſe querelis.

The

[e] Ioan. Oſorius.
[f] Dixerunt enim non de ſtatu ſed credulitate quæ cernitur Euſeb. Emiſ. hom. 1. de Epiphania.
[g] Prudentius hym. in Epiphan.
[h] Muſculus.
[i] Heb.1.8.
[k] Coloſſ.3.3.
[l] Leoſtr. 1. in Epiphan.
[m] Luther poſtil. in loc.
[n] Raulin, Oſorius, Giron. in loc.
[o] Leoſtr. vbi ſup. Epiphan.
[o] Apocal.12.4.
[p] Gen.3.15.
[q] Hieron. Muſculus, Lanſen.
[r] Gen 4.10.
[t] Hym. in Epiphan.
[u] Chryſoſt.
[x] Iames 5.4.
[x] Iuuencus.

The Epiſtle. Rom. 4 8. vnto v. 15

Bleſſed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute ſinne, &c.

OVr Apoſtle [y] confirmes in this Chapter that doctrine which he deliuered in the former, namely, that a man is not iuſtified by the workes of the Law, but freely by grace through faith: and this hee proues in our Text by two reaſons eſpecially:

1. From [z] Dauids teſtimonie, Bleſſed is the man, &c.
2. From Abrahams example, We ſay that faith was imputed vnto Abraham for righteouſneſſe, &c.

Now Paul mentioneth Abraham and Dauid in this controuerſie, [a] becauſe their workes were moſt glorious among the Iewes, in ſo much as they called Abraham [b] father, and Dauid is ſtiled a man [c] according to Gods owne heart. The patterne then of Abraham accounted righteous before God by faith, and the precept of Dauid, affirming that our bleſſedneſſe conſiſts in the remiſſion of our ſinnes, and not in the perfection of our vertues; are both exceeding fit, and well accommodated vnto the preſent purpoſe.

Bleſſed is the man] By bleſſed in the Pſalme, Paul vnderſtands here iuſtified: [d] for iuſtification is bleſſedneſſe begun, glorification bleſſedneſſe perfited. In this life bleſſedneſſe is but begun; and therefore Dauid ſaith in the cited Pſalme, For this ſhall euery one that is godly make his prayer vnto thee in a time when thou maieſt be found: and Chriſt inioyneth vs daily to pray, forgiue vs our treſpaſſes: In the world to come bleſſedneſſe is conſummated, for when we ſhall haue no more ſinne, then we ſhall haue no more ſorrow.

Whoſe vnrighteouſneſſe is forgiuen] Some [e] diſtinguiſh thus; iniquities are forgiuen in Baptiſme, couered in repentance, not imputed in martyrdome. [f] Other thus, ἀνομίαι, are tranſgreſſions againſt the word written, according to that, 1 Ioh. 3 4. and ſo the Iewes hauing Gods law did offend: ἁμαρτίαι, are treſpaſſes againſt the rules of nature, not ingrauen in ſtone, nor written with inke, but imprinted in the conſcience: and ſo the [g] Gentiles hauing not the Law were ſinners. [h] Other thus, originall iniquities are forgiuen in Baptiſme quoad culpam, and actuall tranſgreſſions are couered in loue, quoad pœnam: or iniquitates, are faults of infidelitie, called in holy Scripture ſinne catexochen, Iohn 16. 8. He will reproue the world of ſinne, that is, as Chriſt expounds himſelfe, of vnbeleefe: peccata, are faults in manners. [i] As other, our ſinnes are forgiuen, in reſpect of the wrong done to God, and couered in reſpect of the ſhame due to vs; [k] vt ſic velentur, ne in iudicio reuelentur. For in ſinne three things are to bee conſidered eſpecially:

1. An iniurie done to God, and that is forgiuen.
2. An inordinate act, the which once being done cannot be vndone, but is a blot or ſtaine whereby the ſoule is defiled, and that is ſaid here to be couered, and elſe-where to be [m] waſhed away.
3. The guilt of eternall death, and that is not imputed.

Whoſoeuer then is in Chriſt hath all his ſinne and euery thing in all his ſinne forgiuen, couered, not imputed: for theſe three ſignifie the [n] ſame, becauſe that which is couered, is not ſeene; and that which is not ſeene, is not imputed: and that which is not imputed, is forgiuen. All his ſinne is put out of Gods [o] remembrance, caſt as it were behinde his [p] backe, ſo couered with Chriſts grace, ſo buried in Chriſts graue, that not ſo much as the print of one little fault appeares: in the words of [q] Auguſtine, Si texit peccata Deus, noluit aduertere: ſi noluit aduertere, noluit animaduertere: ſi noluit animaduertere, noluit punire, noluit agnoſcere, maluit ignoſcere, ſo that the ſaying of the Prophet (Bleſſed is the man whoſe vnrighteouſneſſe is forgiuen, and whoſe ſinne is couered) containeth a [r] definition of iuſtification. It is Gods free pardon in remitting our iniquities; [s] for the Publican is [y] Melanct. Tilmen. Piſcator in loc.

[z] Pſal 32.1.
[a] Parens, Pellican, Grynæus apud Doctor Willet in loc.
[b] Iohn 8.53.
[c] Acts 13.22.
[d] Martyr. in loc.
[e] Apud Primaſ. & Oecumen. in loc. Idem Hieron & Genebrardus recitant in Pſal. 31.
[f] Anſelm. in loc.
[g] Rom 2 14.
[h] Gorran. in loc.
[i] Caietan in loc.
[k] Hieron in Pſal 31.
[l] Aquin. in loc.
[m] 1 Ioh. 1.17.
[n] Ambroſ. & Lombard. in loc.
[o] Ier 31.34.
[p] Eſay 38.17.
[q] In Pſal 31.
[r] Melanct. Marlorat. &
[s] Piſcator in loc.

is said expresly to be iustified, in that God was mercifull to him a sinner, Luke 18. 13,14.

t This makes against Osianders deified righteousnesse, as also the Popish inherent iustice; for God is our u righteousnesse, and Christ our holinesse, 1 Cor. 1. 30. Being iustified x freely by grace, through y faith in him who iustifieth the vngodly. z Imputat Deus homini iustitiam vt compatiens, vt dispensans, vt benevolens: Dimissio etenim ad compassionem, obtectio ad dispensationem, non imputare ad benevolentiam pertinet. See Epistle 25. Sunday after Trinitie.

t Tilman. & Melanct. in loc.
u Psal 4.1.
x Rom 3.24.
y Rom 4.5.
z Oecumen in loc.

Whereas it is obiected, that the blessed man is iustified by workes in part, because in his spirit there is no guile, as the text runnes in Dauid, howsoeuer omitted here by Paul: a Augustine answereth aptly, that the blessed man hath in his heart no guile, for that he doth not dissemble his sinne, but humbly confesse his faults. I said I will acknowledge my sinnes vnto the Lord, and so thou forgauest the wickednesse of my sinnes. Euery Christian may say with our b Apostle, When I am weake, then am I strong. And God also saith vnto such as feele their infirmities, as he did vnto Paul, My grace is sufficient for thee, for my power is made perfect through weaknesse, 2 Cor. 12. 9. And therefore the true Penitent brags not of his vertues as the Pharisie, but of his infirmities as Paul, acknowledging ingenuously that his happinesse consists in the remission of his sinnes. c Hæc omnibus sola perfectio, si se nouerint imperfectos. And whereas some further obiect, how Dauid saith else-where, d Blessed is the man that hath not walked in the counsell of the vngodly, &c. And blessed is he that e considereth the poore, &c. And blessed are they that are f vndefiled, &c. g Our Diuines answer, that those places and the like, presuppose faith alwaies, according to that Apostolicall axiome, h Whatsoeuer is not of faith is sinne. Faith is the i nest of good works, albeit our birds be neuer so faire, yet they will be lost, except they be brought forth in true beleefe. The Sparrow hath found her an house, and the Swallow a nest where she may lay her young, euen thine Altar, O Lord, &c. Psalm. 84. 3. Such as are faithfull, hauing their vnrighteousnesse forgiuen, and their sinne couered, are blessed men, and all their workes as being laid vpon Christs Altar, are most acceptable to God. But faith k Augustine, Heretikes and Infidels in doing glorious acts and honourable deeds, haue not where to lay their young; and therefore they must of necessitie come to nought, as the fathers of our common Law speake, Moritur actio cum persona, their actions are damnable with their persons. See Gospell on All Saints day.

a Vbi supra. Idem Martyr. in loc.
b 2 Cor. 12. 10
c Hieron epist. ad Ctesiphon.
d Psal 1.1.
e Psal. 41.1.
f Psal. 119.1.
g Melanct. Caluin. Martyr.
h Rom. 14. 23.
i Hom of good work, part. 1.
k In Psal. 83 & Lombard. 2 sen. distinct. 41.

Came this blessednesse then vpon the circumcision?] It is fit in vrging Abrahams example, to reconcile S. Iames, affirming in his Epistle, chap. 2. ver. 21. that Abraham was iustified through works: and S. Paul auowing here, that faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteousnesse. l Our Diuines answer, that S. Paul speakes of the causes of his iustifying before God: but S. Iames of the signes of his iustifying before men. S. Paul of Abrahams iustification, ex priori: S. Iames of Abrahams iustification, ex m posteriori. S. Paul of the iustifying of Abrahams n person: S. Iames of the iustifying of a particular act in offering Isaac his sonne.

l Caluin. Bez. Marlorat. in 2. Iacob. m Aretius in 2 Iacob.
n Gyneus apud Dr. Willet in loc.

Now Paul proues Abraham to be iustified by faith, o ex ordine causarum, in the 9, 10, 11, 12. verses. And then ex causa promissionis, in the 13, 14. The cause precedes, or at the least is alway conioyned with his effect, but Abraham was iustified when he was yet vncircumcised, Ergo, Circumcision was not the meritorious cause of his iustification. Abraham (as Melanthon obserues out of the Scriptures euidence) was called out of Haran, and iustified when he was seuentie fiue yeeres old, Genes. 12. 4. but circumcised in the ninetie ninth yeere of his age, Genes. 17. 24. Abraham then was iustified 24. yeere before Circumcision was instituted, and (as our Apostle p sheweth else-where) foure hundred and thirtie yeeres afore the Law was giuen: Ergo, father Abraham had the pardon of his sinne not by Circumcision, or any other worke of the Law: but onely by faith, apprehending and applying Gods holy promise concerning the blessed seed. See Epistle 13. Sunday after Trinitie.

o Melanct. Martyr. Aret.
p Galath. 3. 17

Wherefore

Wherefore then ſerued Circumciſion? It was vnto him a ſigne and a ſeale of the righteouſneſſe of faith, verſe 11.

q Signum:
- Memoratiuum, a ſigne of commemoration of the Couenant betweene God and Abraham, and of the promiſe which he receiued: to wit, 1. Of the multiplying of his ſeed. 2. Of inheriting the land of Canaan. 3. Of the Meſſias which ſhould be borne of his ſeed. And for this cauſe the ſigne was placed in the [r] generatiue part.
- Repreſentatiuum, a ſigne repreſenting Abrahams excellent faith, as it is afterward called a ſeale of the righteouſneſſe of faith.
- Diſtinctiuum, a ſigne whereby the Iewes were diſtinguiſhed from all other other people.
- Demonſtratiuum, a ſigne ſhewing the naturall diſeaſe of man, euen originall ſinne, and the cure thereof by Chriſt.
- Præfiguratiuum, a ſigne prefiguring Baptiſme, and the ſpirituall circumciſion of the heart.

A Scale:
- For that it is an [s] witneſſe of faith receiued.
- As being an [t] expreſſe ſigne of the thing ſignified, Abraham beleeued his ſeed ſhould be multiplied, & ideo congruenter accepit ſignum in membro generationis.
- As [u] ſealing vp ſecretly this myſterie, that the Sauiour of the world ſhould be borne of the ſeed of Abraham.
- Becauſe it was a [x] confirmation of Gods promiſe to father Abraham, as the Letters Patent of Kings are ſealed for better aſſurance. Vt obſignaret iuſtitiam fidei, to ſeale the righteouſneſſe of faith in his heart.

And [y] here we may learne the true doctrine of the Sacraments againſt Anabaptiſts, aſcribing too little to them, and Papiſts attributing too much. Anabaptiſts affirme that Sacraments are bare badges of Chriſtianitie, diſtinguiſhing a Chriſtian from an Infidell, as a gowne did a Romane from a Gracian. But [z] we teach out of our Apoſtle; that the Sacraments are not onely ſigna, but alſo ſignacula, certaine ſure witneſſes and ſeales of grace, whereby God inuiſibly worketh in vs, and doth not only quicken, but alſo ſtrengthen our faith in him. And againſt our aduerſaries of Rome we conclude from hence, that the Sacraments iuſtifie not, ex opere operato; for if they be the ſeales of the righteouſneſſe of faith, how can they ſaue by the bare worke done without faith? [a] Iſta non tribuunt quod per iſta tribuitur, in the words of reuerend [b] Hooker, they be not phyſicall inſtruments of our ſaluation, as hauing in themſelues any vitall efficacie: but onely morall inſtruments of Gods grace, the vſe whereof is in our hands, the effect in his: according to that of [c] Auguſtine, Multi nobiſcum manducant & bibunt temporaliter ſacramenta, qui habebunt in fine æterna tormenta. Touching Circumciſion ſee further in the Goſpell enſuing, and concerning the ſecond argument vſed here, taken from Gods promiſe made to father Abraham, Epiſt. 13. Sunday after Trinitie.

q Pererius Idem fere Lombard. in loc. & Heming. ſer. de Circum. Dom.
r Thomas part. 3. queſt. 70. art. 3 s Chryſoſt. Theophylact.
t Aquin.
u Gorran, Lombard, Aquin.
x Calum, Beza Piſcator.
y Melanct. in loc.
z Anglican Confeſſ. art. 25. Sigra non mere ſignificatiua, ſed exhibitiua. Muſculus in Matth. 26.
a Hugo cited by Hooker, Eccleſ. pol. lib. 5. § 60.
b Vbi ſupra §. 57.
c Tract 27. in Ioan.

The Goſpell. Luke 2. 15. vnto v. 22

And it fortuned, as ſoone as the Angels were gone away from the ſhepherds into heauen, &c.

Albeit this text commend vnto your conſideration a great many of remarkable vertues of the glorious Angels in preaching Chriſt, of the good ſhepherds in ſeeking Chriſt, of bleſſed Marie the Virgin in keeping Chriſt, as his mother in her louing armes, as his handmaid in her lowly heart; yet the more proper proper and proportionable parts, accommodated vnto the preſent Feaſt, are principally two:

1. The Circumciſion of Chriſt.
2. The impoſition of his name Ieſus.

Of theſe firſt I purpoſe to ſpeake iointly, then ſeuerally. Theſe two were ioyned together, [d] to ſhew that Chriſt our Mediator betweene God and man, was both a man in being circumciſed, and God in being Ieſus, [e] that is, a Sauiour of his people from their ſinnes: [f] or Chriſt haply was called Ieſus, and circumciſed at the ſame time, to ſignifie that there is no remiſſion of ſinne without ſhedding of bloud, Heb. 9.22. He could not therefore become Ieſus, vntill he had giuen vs a taſte of his bloud; for we haue redemption through his bloud, euen the forgiueneſſe of ſinnes according to his rich grace, Ephes. 1.7. or the doloreus Circumciſion and ſauing Ieſus are coupled together, inſinuating that there ſhould bee perſecution and bloudſhed in the world for the preaching of this name. So Chriſt in the [g] Goſpell aſſured his Apoſtles expreſly, Yee ſhall be hated of all men for my name. And [h] Paul ſaith of himſelfe while hee was an oppreſſor of the Church, I verily thought in my ſelfe that I ought to do many contrary things againſt the name of Ieſus: or theſe two were conioyned, to put vs in minde how God doth exalt the humble and meeke. Chriſt humbled [i] himſelfe (quoth Paul) and became obedient, Wherefore God hath alſo highly exalted him, and giuen him a name aboue euery name, that at the name of Ieſus euery knee ſhould bow, both of things in heauen, and things in earth, and things vnder earth. Or it may be that theſe were both at once, to witneſſe that Chriſt is the true [k] Phyſitian of the world. For when all mankinde was exceeding ſicke in head, and heauy in heart, when from the ſole of the foot vnto the head, there was nothing whole, but wounds, and ſwellings, and ſores full of corruption, as it is in the [l] Prophet; then our bleſſed Sauiour came to [m] viſit his people, [n] binding vp their wounds on this day, Pellicula carnis, and powring in oyle and wine, waſhing them euen with the wine of his bloud, and mollifying them alſo with the ſweet oyle of his ſauing name Ieſus. For [o] ſome deriue Ἰησοῦς, of the Greeke Χρισὸς ἀπὸ Ἰάσεως: or (as almoſt all Interpreters obſerue) theſe two went together, [p] for that it was vſuall among Gods people the Iewes to giue names vnto children in their Circumciſion, as it is among vs in Baptiſme. So we reade in the firſt leſſon appointed to be read this morning prayer, that God altered Abrams name when he did inſtitute Circumciſion: Thy name ſhall not any more be called Abram, but Abraham: for a father of many nations haue I made thee. Now the reaſon hereof is plaine, [q] that as often as we heare our ſelues named, we might inſtantly call to minde the Couenant betweene God and vs in holy Baptiſme: to wit, how God on his part promiſed to be our God, and we vowed on our part by Godfathers and Godmothers that we would forſake the deuill and all his workes, the vaine pompe of the world, the carnall deſires of the fleſh, and continue Chriſts faithfull ſouldiers and ſeruants vntill our liues end. Hitherto concerning Circumciſion, and the name Ieſus iointly: let vs now treat of theſe parts apart.

And firſt of Circumciſion, which is [r] threefold, { Carnall, vnder the Law. / Spirituall, vnder grace. / Celeſtiall, in the kingdome of glory.

The firſt is, Sacramentum ſacræ rei: the ſecond, ſacra res & ſacramentum: the third, res ſacramenti. The firſt in it due time was good: the ſecond, at all times is better: the third, in eternitie beſt of all. The firſt is [s] naſcentium, euery man childe of eight dayes old among you ſhall be circumciſed, Gen. 17.12. The ſecond is renaſcentium, a circumciſion of the heart in the ſpirit, Rom. 2.29. When as the regenerate by the ſword of the Spirit (which is ſharper than the [t] ſharpe knines vſed in circumciſion, yea ſharper than any [u] two-edged ſword, as being a diſcerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart) doe not onely circumciſe the foreskin, but [x] all the powers of the ſoule, and all the parts of the bodie. Circumciſing their eyes leſt they looke vpon a [y] damſell, or behold vanitie.

Circumciſing

[d] Hephonſ. Giron. Con. 1. in Circum. Dom.
[e] Matth. 1.21.
[f] Didac. de Yanguas. Con 1. de Circum. Chriſt
[g] Matth 10 22
[h] Acts 26.9.
[i] Philip. 2.8,9.
[k] Luke 5.31.
[l] Eſay 1,5,6.
[m] Luke 1.68.
[n] Luke 10.34.
[o] Vide Caſaubon. not. in Epiſt. §. Niſſen ad Euſtat.
[p] Euthym. Caluin. Aret. in loc.
[q] Heming poſt. in loc.
[r] Ardens hom. de Circum. Dom.
[s] Raulin ſer. 1. in Circum. Dom.
[t] Ioſhua 5.2.
[u] Heb 4 12.
[x] Pet. de palud. ſer de Circum. Dom.
[y] Iob 31.1.

Circumciſing their eares and their lips, hedging their poſſeſſions with thornes, and making doores and barres for their mouth, Eccleſiaſt.28.24. Hedging their eares againſt hereſie, backbiting, flatterie: barring their mouth againſt [z] lying, [a] blaſphemie, [b] fooliſh talking. Circumciſing their hands, that they ſteale no more, but worke the thing that is good, Epheſ.4.28. Circumciſing their feet, that they be not [c] ſwift to ſhed bloud. Circumciſing their very thoughts, Eſay 1.16. Waſh you, make you cleane, put away your euill intents out of my ſight, as our old Engliſh tranſlation according to the vulgar Latine. In a word, cutting off all [d] ſuperfluous luſts of the fleſh, and all ſuperfluous cares of the world, caſting off all the old man which is corrupt, and putting on the new man which after God is created in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe, Epheſ.4.22. The third kinde of Circumciſion is reſurgentium, in the world to come, when all ſuperfluitie ſhall be cut off vtterly, when as we ſhall appeare before Gods throne without any [e] ſpot in our ſoule, or [f] corruption in our bodie.

[z] Epheſ 4.25.
[a] Exod. 20.7.
[b] Epheſ 5 4.
[c] Pſal.14.6.
[d] Ardens.
[e] Apoc 14.5.
[f] 1 Cor.15.53.

Now the Circumciſion of Chriſt here mentioned is that of the fleſh: [g] for Almightie God before mans fall, and after his fall; before the Law, vnder the Law, and after the Law, certified his will vnto man eſpecially by two things, an vnderſtanding minde, and a perceiuing ſenſe. When God had created Adam, he put him in Paradiſe, giuing him his [h] word as a witneſſe of his will, and vnto the word he did adde a twofolde outward ſigne, namely, the tree of life, and the tree of knowledge of good and euill. After Adams fall, he gaue him a promiſe touching the bleſſed ſeed, Geneſ. 3.15. and added thereunto ſacrifices as outward ſignes of his word. When the floud was ouer-paſt, he made a promiſe neuer to deſtroy the world againe with water, and he made the [i] Rainbow a ſigne of the ſame. He promiſed deliuerance from the bondage of Ægypt, which he performed alſo: but he ſealed the promiſe with the Paſchall Lambe, Exod.12. To father Abraham he gaue his promiſe; that his ſeed ſhould be multiplied, and in perpetuall remembrance thereof he did inſtitute Circumciſion, Gen. 17. At the length in the fulneſſe of time he giueth his owne Sonne, and by him he promiſeth [k] euerlaſting life to ſuch as beleeue, the which he confirmes with two Sacraments, as ſeales of his grace, Baptiſme, and the Lords Supper. Thus the father of mercies in all ages euermore prouided for our weakneſſe, that we might ([l] as it is in the [m] Pſalme) Taſte and ſee how gracious the Lord is: and therefore ſuch as are ſo ſpirituall, as that they cannot endure ſignificant ceremonies and outward rites in the Church, haue runne a violent courſe quite contrary to the goodneſſe of God and meekneſſe of his holy Spirit, who doth inſtruct the conceiuing minde by the perceiuing ſenſe. For the Sacraments (as [n] Auguſtine ſpeaks) are viſible words, and Circumciſion (in the iudgement of [o] Chryſoſtome) was a preacher of the righteouſneſſe of faith. I confeſſe, that the Iewiſh ceremonies are now no more neceſſarie, [p] than a token left in remembrance of a bargaine is neceſſarie when the bargaine is fulfilled: but Chriſtian rites ordained by lawfull authoritie for outward comlineſſe in the Church ought to be retained, as hauing [q] more in weight than in ſight.

[g] Heming. poſt. in loc.
[h] Geneſ.2.
[i] Geneſ.9.13.
[k] Ioh.3.16.
[l] Aug. Heming & Turrecrem. exponunt illud de ſacramento corporis Chriſti.
[m] Pſal.34.8.
[n] Apud Martyrem in Rom.4.
[o] In Rom 4.
[p] Tindal. prolog in Leuit.
[q] Hooker Eccleſ. polit.lib.5 §.65.

In the Circumciſion of Chriſt obſerue theſe three points:

1. The time when, the eighth day.
2. The part where, implied here, for that Chriſt was circumciſed as another childe: but expreſſed in the firſt Leſſon allotted for this morning Prayer, Geneſ. 17.11. to be the foreskin of the fleſh.
3. The cauſe why, ſhould be, that is, (as in the words following) after the Law.

When the eighth day was come] Children were circumciſed on the eighth day, [r] for that in this tender age they could more eaſily beare the griefe of Circumciſion; or circumciſed on the eighth day, [s] becauſe that is the day wherein our bleſſed Sauiour aroſe from the dead. Seuen dayes ſignifie the time of this preſent world, and the eighth day the reſurrection, when all corruption of the fleſh ſhall be cut off; according to that of Paul, 1 Cor.15.33. This corruptible muſt put on incorruption, and this mortall immortality. [t] For this end the circumciſion knife was made of ſtone, Exod. 4.25. Ioſua 5.2. to ſignifie that the celeſtiall Circumciſion is by Chriſt the [u] rocke and [x] head corner ſtone.

[r] Chryſoſt & Martyr. in Rom 4 Huiuſmodi quid obſeruat ex Hebraeis.
[s] Lombard. in Rom.4 Auguſt. epiſt.89. Athanaſius apud Aret.in Luk.2.

Circumciſion was placed in the generatiue part for [y] three reaſons eſpecially. Firſt, for that it was a ſeale of Gods promiſe, that Chriſt ſhould be borne of Abrahams ſeed. Secondly, [z] becauſe the propagation of originall ſinne is traduced per actum generationis: Thirdly, Quoniam ordinabatur ad diminutionem carnalis concupiſcentiæ, quæ propter abundantiam delectationis venereorum in illis membris præcipuè viget. Or as [a] other, for that it was a ſigne of Gods promiſe both to the parent and his poſterity. Gen. 17.7. I will eſtabliſh my couenant betweene me and thee, and thy ſeed after thee in their generations, for an euerlaſting couenant to be God vnto thee, and to thy ſeed for euer.

The reaſons why Chriſt (albeit conceiued and borne without any ſinne) would be circumciſed, are [b] manifold:

1. To ſhew that he was of the ſeed of Abraham, Heb. 2.16.
2. To declare himſelfe a member of the Iewiſh Church, in which euery man-child was circumciſed.
3. To [c] demonſtrate that he had true fleſh, againſt Manicheus: and ſuch a fleſh as was not of the ſame ſubſtance with his Deity, Coeſſentiale deitati corpus, againſt Apollinaris: or fetched from heauen, as Valentinus imagined; he was I ſay circumciſed, to ſhew that he was made of the ſeed of man according to the fleſh, Rom. 1.2.
4. For that he was the truth, of which Circumciſion was a type, [d] Vt figuram ipſe veritas finiret.

But the principall reaſon is inſinuated in the Text, for that the Law required that euery man-child ſhould be circumciſed. He therfore was circumciſed to ſhew his obedience to the Law; [e] When the fulneſſe of time was come, God ſent forth his ſonne made of a woman, made vnder the Law, that he might radeeme them that were vnder the law. As then he was borne for vs, Eſay 9.6. Puer natus eſt nobis; And Luke 2.11. Vobis natus, Vnto you is borne, that is, vnto you men, as an Angell expounds the Prophet: euen ſo was he circumciſed for vs, [f] hereby giuing a publike teſtimony that he would fulfill all the whole Law for vs, for [g] euery man that is circumciſed is bound to keepe the whole Law.

How the conſolatory name Ieſus, inuented by God, impoſed by the Angell, inuocated by men, is proper to Chriſt alone; ſee Goſpell on the Sunday next after Chriſtmas. And how his name is aboue all names, Epiſtle Sunday next before Eaſter. I will end here with a diuine ſonnet of an ancient friend and accurat Poet.

Ieſu thy loue within me is ſo maine,
And my poore heart ſo narrow of content,
That with thy loue my heart well nigh is rent:
And yet I loue to beare ſuch louing paine.
O take thy croſſe, and nailes, and therewith ſtraine
My hearts deſire to his full extent,
That thy deare loue therein may not be pent:
But thoughts may haue free ſcope thy loue t'explaine.
Ah now my heart more paineth then before,
Becauſe it can receiue and hath no more.
O fill this emptineſſe, or elſe I die:
Now ſtretch my heart againe, and now ſupply.
Now I want ſpace, now grace to end all ſmart,
Since my heart holds not thee, hold thou my heart.

Almighty God, which madeſt thy bleſſed Sonne to be circumciſed and obedient to the law for man: grant vs the true circumciſion of the ſpirit, that our hearts and all our members, being mortified from all worldly and carnall luſts, may in all things obey thy bleſſed will through the ſame thy Sonne Ieſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

The

[t] Lombard. ſent. lib. 4. diſt. 2. Idem Auguſt. tract. 30. in Ioan.
[u] 1 Cor. 10.4.
[x] Epheſ. 2.20.
[y] Thomas part. 3. queſt 70. art. 3.
[z] Auguſt. tract. 30. in Ioan.
[a] Martyr in Rom. 4.
[b] See the ſermons of Melanct, Culman, Kilius, Zepper, Mallerius, vpon the Circumciſion of Chriſt.
[c] Epiphan. hæreſ. 30.
[d] Culman con. 1. de circum. Dom.
[e] Galath. 4.4.
[f] Kilius con. de Circum. Chriſt.
[g] Galath. 5.3.

The Epiſtle. EPHES. 3. 1. vsq; v. 13

For this cauſe I Paul am a priſoner of Ieſus Chriſt for you heathen, &c.

THe maine drift of all this exceeding [h] profound Epiſtle written vnto the Saints of the Church of Epheſus, is to [i] confirme them in the [k] word of truth, euen the Goſpell of their ſaluation and faith in the Lord Ieſus. And this our Apoſtle doth in the preſent Text by two reaſons eſpecially;

1. From his owne miniſtery, in [l] reſpect of the
   - Bonds or diſgrace he ſuffered of men, I Paul am a priſoner, &c.
   - Boone or grace he receiued of God, If yee haue heard of the miniſtration of the grace of God which is giuen me to you-ward.
2. From the Goſpels myſtery, which he ſhewes to be moſt excellent in regard of
   - Himſelfe, Vnto me the leaſt of all Saints is this grace giuen.
   - Other,
     - God, Vnſearchable riches of Chriſt hid in God, &c.
     - Angels, Vnto rulers and powers in heauenly things, &c
     - Men, To make all men ſee what the fellowſhip of the myſtery is, and that by Chriſt we might haue boldneſſe, &c.

The ſumme of all which is, ſeeing I haue receiued ſo much good, and endured ſo much euill for your ſake: ſeeing the great myſterie concerning the common ſaluation (as S. Iude ſpeakes in his Epiſtle) was not in times paſt opened vnto the ſons of men on earth, or to the bleſſed Angels in heauen as it is now declared by the ſpirit: ſeeing I ſay, yee may ſee what is the fellowſhip of the myſterie which euen from the beginning had beene hid in God: I deſire you not to faint in your courſe, but to continue ſtedfaſt in the profeſſion of this holy faith vnto your liues end.

For this cauſe] [m] Some Diuines haue troubled themſelues and other in examining the context here, but it is among words as among men, affinity which is neereſt ought to be deareſt: and therefore ſeeing the firſt words of this Chapter agree very well with the laſt of the former; I take the coherence to be [n] this: I Paul haue preached that you Gentiles in times paſt alians from the common wealth of Iſrael, and ſtrangers from the couenants of promiſe: are now citizens with the Saints, built together in Chriſt the chiefe corner ſtone, to be the habitation of God by the ſpirit. And for this cauſe, namely, for that I haue taught that you Gentiles are fellow-heires with the Iewes, of the ſame body, & partakers of the ſame couenant: I was hated of my countrimen, accuſed in their Synagogues, ſmitten in their councels, iniured by their officers, and when I did appeale to Cæſar, I was ſent to Rome, where I am a priſoner, as you may reade at large in the laſt eight Chapters of the Acts of the Apoſtles.

A priſoner of Ieſus Chriſt] He was the priſoner of Cæſar, but Cæſar had his authoritie from [o] aboue, for there is [p] no power but of God. Whoſoeuer then is in priſon is vinctus Ieſu Chriſti, though otherwiſe libertus Ieſu Chriſti, ſuffering by Gods [q] power and permittance, who can when he will, and will as ſhall make moſt for his glory, [r] proclaime liberty to the captiues, and opening of the priſon vnto them that are bound. Or he was the priſoner of Chriſt, as enduring his bonds for Chriſts faith and ſeruice, [s] Vinctus non à Chriſto, ſed pro Chriſto. Namely, for preaching among the Gentiles the vnſearchable riches of Chriſt, as it is in the 8. ver. So that whereas [t] two things eſpecially commend a Martyr, faith in Chriſt, and loue to the Church: both are met in the Apoſtle. He ſuffered for the true faith, a priſoner of Ieſus Chriſt: and out of vnfained loue to Gods people, for you Gentiles, as it is in the thirteenth verſe, for your ſakes, euen for your [u] good and [x] example, that yee likewiſe may continue conſtant in the ſincere profeſſion of Chriſtianity.

[h] Conſul proem. Hieron. in epiſt. ad Epheſ.
[i] Aquin. Aretius, Mayerat. argum epiſt. ad Epheſ.
[k] Epheſ 1. 13.
[l] Quantum ad tribulationes quas pertulit, & dona quæ Deus ſibi contulit, Aquin. in loc.
[m] Apud Hieron. & Zanch. in loc.
[n] Primaſius. Lombard. Anſelm.
[o] Iohn 19 11.
[p] Rom. 13 1.
[q] Anſelm. in loc.
[r] Eſay 61. 1.
[s] Gorran, Beza. Druſius.
[t] Aquin. in loc.
[u] Anſelm.
[x] Sarcerius.

Christianitie. Faint not, I pray, for my tribulation, for it it is your glory, that ye haue such an instructer as is the prisoner of Iesus Christ, in bonds, not for any faction of yours, or fault of his owne; but for [y] conscience toward God, euen for the ministration of the grace which is giuen me to you ward. See Epistle Sunday 16. after Trinitie.

[y] 1 Pet. 2. 19.

Hitherto concerning the griefe which our Apostle suffered in Christs cause for the Gentiles, I come now to treat of the grace which he receiued,

In [z] respect of his { Knowledge, being { Certaine, By reuelation shewed he the mysterie to me. / Full, euen so perfectly reuealed, that in a few words you may reade and vnderstand, my knowledge in the mystery of Christ. / Excellent, which in other ages was not made knowne vnto the sonnes of men, as it is now declared, &c. } / Practise, whereof I am made a minister according to the gift of the grace of God which is giuen vnto me, &c.

[z] Aquin. in loc.

If ye haue heard of the ministration of the grace] The calling of Paul to be the Doctor of the Gentiles, as it was knowne vnto himselfe by reuelation: so to them by report. If ye haue heard, &c. [a] As if he should haue said, if ye doubt not of my calling, ye may be well assured of my doctrine. But ye cannot doubt of my calling, as hauing often heard how [b] Christ in a vision appeared to me, saying, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And when I had answered, Lord, what wilt thou haue me to doe? Iesus told Ananias in another vision, He is a chosen vessell vnto me, to beare my name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and the children of Israel. And so God [c] separated me from my mothers wombe, and called me by his grace to reueale his Sonne among the Gentiles: [d] as the Gospell ouer the Circumcision was committed to Peter, so the Gospell ouer the vncircumcision was committed vnto me being an Apostle, (not of men, or by man, Galat. 1. 1. or after man, Galat. 1. 11.) but the ministration of Gods grace was giuen vnto me by the reuelation of Iesus Christ.

[a] Aretius.
[b] Acts 9.
[c] Gal. 1. 15.
[d] Gal. 2. 7.

The word ministration, or dispensation, may be construed either passiuely, being a grace giuen, and [e] dispensed to Paul: or [f] actually, for that Paul was a dispenser of it vnto other, 1 Cor. 4. 1. Let a man so thinke of vs, as of the ministers of Christ and disposers of the secrets of God His office then is called a dispensation, [g] for that it consisteth in the dispensing of Christs vnsearchable riches. And the Gospell is called here [h] Gods grace, for that it is faithfully deliuered and fruitfully receiued, not by mans merit, but onely through Gods free grace. [i] Preaching in the teacher, and [k] beleeuing in the hearer, are both the faire gifts of God. Or the Gospell is called Gods grace, [l] because the summe thereof is nothing else but the preaching of Gods exceeding rich mercies in Christ, intimating that our iustification is not by the workes of the Law, but [m] freely by grace through faith.

[e] Oecumen. Anselm. Aret.
[f] Zanchius.
[g] Marlorat. in loc.
[h] Gesper. Megander apud Marlorat.
[i] 1 Cor. 15. 10.
[k] Ephes. 2. 8. Matth. 13. 11.
[l] Zanchius.
[m] Rom. 3. 24.

As I wrote afore in few words] I finde that [n] some construe this of that which is written in other Epistles, vnto other men, as to Philemon: and other Churches, as to that of Colossus and Philippi. Marlorat is of opinion, that our Apostle wrote another Epistle (though it be not extant) vnto the Church of Ephesus. [o] Other referre this clause to that which is deliuered in this present Epistle; to wit, vnto that which is said in the [p] two former chapters, [q] or to that in chap. 1. verse 9. [r] or chap. 2. verse 14. He is our peace, which hath made of both one, and hath broken the stop of the partition wall. In this little briefe is contained all that great mysterie which in times past was not opened vnto the sonnes of men, as it is now declared by the Spirit, that the Gentiles should be fellow heires, and of the same body, and partakers of the same promise in Christ by the Gospell.

[n] Apud Marlorat. in loc.
[o] Caietan.
[p] Zanchius.
[q] Aretius.
[r] Anselm. Lomeard. Gorran.

Which mysterie in times past was not opened vnto the sons of men] This verse cannot easily be digested (as [s] one said) without a graine of salt; for if we shall vnderstand this of the whole mysterie of Christ [t] manifested in the flesh, it is certaine that that Abraham with faiths eye [u] saw Christ and was glad, and the Prophets [x] enquired and searched when or what time the spirit which was in them should declare the sufferings that should come to Christ, and the glory that should follow. Nay the very common people did expect the consolation of Israel, as it is apparant by that of the [y] Samaritane woman, I know well that Messias shall come which is called Christ. Or if we construe this of that part of the mystery which onely concernes the vocation of the Gentiles, it is as plaine that Abraham beleeued [z] all the families of the earth should be blessed in his seed. And the Prophet [a] Haggai cals the Messias expressly the desire of all nations. And in the first lesson allotted for euening praier on this day, Thus saith the Lord, [b] Behold, I will lift vp mine hands to the Gentiles, and set vp my standard to the people, &c, Kings shall be their nursing fathers, and Queenes their nursing mothers, &c.

[s] Caietan.
[t] 1 Tim. 3. 16.

[u] Iohn 8.56
[x] 1 Pet.1.10.
[y] Iohn 4 25.
[z] Gen 12.3 & 22 18.
[a] Cap.2 vers.8
[b] Esa 49.22.

[c] Answer then is made that this mystery was opened in times past vnto the sonnes of God, but not (as it is in the Text here) to the sonnes of men. It was knowne vnto the spirituall Iew, but not vnto the carnall. For the Prophets spake not [d] as the sonnes of men but as they were moued by the spirit of God, 1 Pet. 2. 21. [e] Other thinke this mysterie was opened vnto the Iewes, as hauing the Law and the Prophets testifying of Christ: and that it was hidden only to the Gentiles, as wanting the light of Gods word to direct them in their night of ignorance. Other say that the Prophets in old time knew that the Gentiles should be partakers of Gods promise concerning the blessed seed, [f] but they did not vnderstand how this could be without circumcision, because [g] God said Euery person which is not circumcised should be cut off from his people. Yea the knowledge in this mysterie was hidden vnto the chiefe Apostle till it was in a vision reuealed vnto him, as we read, Act. 10.

[c] Hieron. expos. 1 in loc.
[d] Primasius in loc
[e] Oecumen.
[f] Ambros. Zanchius.
[g] Gen.17.14.

[h] Other finde a direct answer couched in the words of Paul here, which mystery was not in times past opened vnto the sons of men, as it is now declared vnto his holy Apostles & Prophets by the spirit. It was opened before, but not as now: not so fully manifested vnto the Patriarks & Prophets in the old Testament; as in the light of the Gospel vnto blessed Apostles and Preachers: in which respect Iohn the Baptist is said to be [i] greater then a Prophet. For whereas they shadowed out Christ in figure; obscurely, he shewed out Christ with his finger openly, [k] Behold, the Lambe of God which taketh away the sinne of the world. So Christ himselfe to his Disciples, [l] Blessed are the eies which see that ye see, for I tell you that many Prophets & Kings haue desired to see those things which ye see, & haue not seene them: and to heare those things which ye heare, and haue not heard them. The blessed Apostles are called in the fifth verse Prophets, [m] as prophecying in their Creed of things to come, to wit, of the resurrection of the flesh, and euerlasting life: or Prophets, as being [n] expounders of the Prophets, as the word is vsed else-where, Rom. 12.6. Eph. 4. 11. 1 Cor. 14. 1. See Epistle, second Sunday after the Epiphanie.

[h] Hieron. Theophylact. Anselm.
[i] Luke 7.16.
[k] Iohn 1 29.
[l] Luke 10. 23.
[m] Caietan.
[n] Aquin. lect. 2. in 12. ad Rom. Idem Ambros. Gorran: Piscater. in loc.

That the Gentiles should be fellow-heires, and of the same body, and partakers of the same promise] The Gentiles are said to be fellow-heires in respect of future glory, [o] respectu boni futuri, because they shall be [p] heires of saluation, and inheritors of the kingdome of heauen so well as the Iewes, euen heires of God and ioynt heires with Christ, Rom. 8. 17 Of the same body, in respect of present grace, respectu boni præsentis, as being built together in Christ, and made one Church and habitation of God, Ephes. 2. 14 22. Partakers of the same promise, in respect of mercy past already, Respectu boni præteriti: for as much as Gods couenant made to father Abraham, apparantly concerned all the nations of the world, Gen. 12. 3. 18. 18. 22. 18. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet, and both are well accommodated vnto Christs Epiphanie, for the Wisemen shewed that in deed which our Apostle here saith in word.

[o] Gorran in loc.
[p] Heb. 1. 14.

Vnto the rulers and powers in heauenly things] Whether this ought to be construed of damned deuils, or blessed Angels, I referre you to [q] S. Ambrose, [r] Erasmus, [s] Marlorat. Or if spoken of the good Angels only, whether it concernes all at all times, or in times past only such as were not imployed in the publishing of Christs Incarnation: I desire you to reade the Commentaries of Hierome, and Haymo vpon this text, Lombard. sent. lib. 2. distinct. 11. Altissiodorensis. Aur. sum. lib. 2. tract. 5. quæst. 3. & 6. Sixtus Senensis bibliothec. lib. 6. annot. 165. 182. 299. And whether this knowledge be reuealed, or experimentall only, Thomas part. 1. quæst. 117. art. 2. Lexicon Theolog. Altenstaig. verb. Angelus. Perkins exposit. Creed art. 1. Tit. Creation of Angels, Aretius, Marlorat, Zanch. in loc. For mine owne part, where I see not my selfe, I loue not to leade other. If these cited Authors affoord your vnderstanding good payment, I shall be so well pleased as when I borrow ready coyne of one friend to lend it vnto another. If not, I say with [t] Hierome, Non parum est scire quid nescias. And with [u] Augustine, Non videtur mihi quisquam errare cùm aliquid nescire se scit, sed cùm putat scire quod nescit.

[q] Com in loc.
[r] Paraphras. in loc
[s] Exposit. in loc.

[t] Epist. aduers. Vigilant. Tom. 2. fol. 313.
[u] Epist. 80.

The Gospell. MATTH. 2. 1. vnto v. 13

When Iesus was borne in Bethlehem a Citie of Iurie, in the time of Herod the King, behold, there came Wisemen from the East to Ierusalem, saying, who is he that is borne King of the Iewes, &c.

AFter the celebration of Christs birth and circumcision, it seemed good vnto the Church to constitute a feast in honour of his Epiphanie, [x] that his glory might be manifested in the flesh, so well as his infirmitie. Now this feast is called by three sundry [y] names according to the [z] three principall appearings of our Lord in this kinde on this day. 1. Epiphania, because Christ as this day did appeare to the Wisemen that sought him by the leading of a starre. 2. Theophania, for that as vpon this day 29. yeeres after his birth, his glory appeared in his [a] baptisme by the witnesse of the Father speaking from heauen, This is my beloued Sonne, in whom I am well pleased, and by the descending of the Holy Ghost vpon him in a visible shape like a doue. 3. Bethphania, for that on the same day twelue moneth after his baptisme, his glory appeared at the marriage in Cana by turning water into wine, Iohn 2. 11.

[x] August. ser. 30. de temp. Euseb. Emiseu. hom. 1. de Epiphan. Heming. post. in loc.
[y] Ludolph. de vita Christi, part. 1. cap. 11. & Pet. de Palud. Enar. 1. de Epiphan.
[z] Diez con. 1. Giron. con. 3. Ferus con. 6. de Epiphan. Idem Augustin. & Emisen vbi sup. & Baron. Rom. Mart. not. in Ian. 6.
[a] Mat. 3. 16. 17

We must according to the present text onely treat of his appearing to the Wisemen, in whom I note these seuen circumstances:

1. At what time they came to seeke Christ, in the time of Herod the King.
2. From what part of the world, from the East.
3. To what Citie, to Ierusalem.
4. By what guide, by the leading of a starre.
5. For what end, to worship him.
6. What gifts they presented vnto him, gold, frankincense, myrrhe.
7. What way they returned home, after they were warned of God in a sleepe, that they should not goe againe to Herod, they returned into their owne countrie another way.

In the time of Herod the King] The Patriarke Iacob prophecied of the Messiah, [b] that the kingdome should not depart from Iuda, nor a law giuer from his sect, vntill Shilo come. Now Herod was not a branch of the Kings of Iuda, but an alien from their Common-wealth, a stranger and a tyrant, crept in by the fauour of the Romane Emperour: and therefore the Wisemen enquiring after the birth of Christ in the daies of Herod the King, obserued their right [c] quando; because now the scepter had departed from Iuda. [d] The which as it confutes the Iewes, expecting as yet that Christ should come: so it confirmes the faith of Christians, assuring vs vndoubtedly that this same whom the Wisemen sought, is the very Sauiour of the world: and as the Wisemen in seeking, euen [e] so Christ in comming kept his right quando. For when Herod was King, and sinne most abounded, Iesus was

[b] Gen. 49. 10.
[c] Leo ser. 3. de Epiphan. Theophylact. Euthym. Anselm. in loc. & Euseb. hist. lib. 1. cap. 7.
[d] Heming.
[e] Diez con. 1. de Epiphan.

borne

borne in Bethlehem a Citie of Iurie; when his Israel sate in darkneſſe and in the ſhadow of death, then he viſited and redeemed his people, Luk. 1. 68 79. according to that of [f] Dauid, Thou ſhalt ariſe, and haue mercie vpon Sion, for it is time that thou haue mercy vpon her, yea the time is come, and why? Thy ſeruants thinke vpon her ſtones, and it pitieth them to ſee her in the duſt.

[g] Some think theſe Wiſemen came to Ieruſalem about two yeeres after Chriſts birth, and the ground of this aſſertion is in the 16. verſe of this preſent Chapter, Herod ſeeing that he was mocked of the Wiſemen, was exceeding wroth, and ſent, forth, and ſlew all the male children that were in Bethlehem, & in all the coaſts thereof, from two yeeres old and vnder, according to the time which he had diligently ſearched out of the Magi. But the Wiſemen had proued themſelues none of the wiſeſt men, if they ſhould at that time haue ſought for Chriſt in Iurie, when he was in Ægypt. For ſo the [h] text plainly, Ioſeph according to the direction of an Angell appearing to him in a dreame, tooke the babe Ieſus and his mother by night, and departed into Ægypt, and was there vnto the death of Herod, and that was in [i] Nicephorus account 3. yeeres, as [k] Ianſenius 5. yeeres, as [l] Sabellicus 7. yeeres. I think therefore that the Wiſemen came to Ieruſalem according to the Churches inſtitution of this feaſt vpon the twelfth day after the birth of Chriſt. If any deſire to be ſatisfied how they could performe in ſo ſhort a time ſo great a iourney, let them at their leiſure peruſe the Commentaries of Maldonat vpon this Text, and Cardinall Baron, annal. Tom. 1. ad an. fol. 53. 54.

From the Eaſt] The firſt ſinne committed by man in the world was eaſtward: for [m] Adam and Eua did eat of the forbidden fruit in Paradiſe planted Eaſtward, Gen. 2. 8. Cain who ſlew his brother Abel was an inhabitant of the Eaſt, Gen. 4. 16. The builders of the tower of Babel alſo came from the Eaſt, Gen. 11. 2. And [n] therefore Chriſt (who did appeare for this purpoſe that he might deſtroy the workes of the deuill, and take away the ſinne of the world) called at his firſt appearing Wiſemen from the Eaſt: and he was crucified looking toward the Weſt, as hauing put all our ſinnes behinde his backe, Eſay 38. 17. And for this cauſe haply concurring with [o] other, whereas the Moores pray toward the South, and ſectaries to the Weſt: Orthodox Chriſtians (and that from the very time of the [p] Apoſtles) vſe to pray toward the Eaſt. And it was an ancient cuſtome that ſuch as were to be baptized ſhould in their renuntiation of the deuill and all his workes, euer turne their face toward the Weſt; and on the contrary, when they made their confeſſion of the faith of Chriſt, vnto the Eaſt, as Dionyſius Areopag. and Cyril apud Baron. annal. Tom. 1. ad an. 58. fol. 564.

Our Sauiour ſaid, Mat. 8. 11. that many ſhall come from Eaſt, and Weſt, and ſhall ſit downe with Abraham, Iſaac and Iacob in the kingdome of heauen. Theſe [q] Magi came from the Eaſt, and Pilate from the Weſt, and both acknowledged Chriſt to be King of the Iewes. [q] Magi ab oriente, Pilatus ab occidente venerat, vnde illi orienti, hoc eſt naſcenti, ille autem occidenti, hoc eſt morienti, atteſtabatur regi Iudeorum. That theſe Magi came from Perſia, moſt accord; but whether they were Kings, or Philoſophers, or both, it is vncertaine. It was a receiued opinion among the Popiſh Friers heretofore, that theſe Magi were Kings, and that Matthew in terming them Wiſemen, [r] gaue them a title more honourable than that of Kings. Auriculas aſini Midas habet, A ſcepter may be put into the hands of a foole. The name then of Magus in [s] that age when Philoſophers did raigne, was of greater account than that of Magnus. Other Papiſts of better note for their learning confeſſe that they were not reges, but [t] reguli, not puiſſant Princes of a whole country, but petite lords of ſome little towne, [u] as Gen. 14. Bera King of Sodome, Birſha King of Gomorrah, Shinab King of Admath. But that theſe were crowned Kings, and but three, whoſe names are [x] Melchior, Gaſper, Balthaſar: Conſtat ex [y] pictura, [z] ſed non ex ſcriptura, is a tale painted on a wall, not written in the word. That I ſay theſe were but three, [a] whereof one was an old man, another a young man, and the third of middle age; whoſe dead bodies haue beene [b] tranſlated, firſt from India to Conſtantinople: Secondly, from Conſtantinople to Millane:

f Pſal. 102. 13.

g Euſeb. in Chron & Epiphan. hereſ. 30. & 51.

h Mat. 2. 14. 15.

i Lib. 1 cap. 14.
k Concord. cap. 11.
l Apud Muſculum in Matth. 2. 15.
m Gen. 3. 6.
n Damaſcen. de fide Orthodox. lib 4.
Baron. annal. ad an. 58 fol. 564. Giron. con. 1. Raulin. con. 3. de Epiphan.
o Vide Auguſtin de ſer Dom. in mont. lib. 2. Tom. 4 fol 813. Tertul. in apol. Baſil, & Athanaſ. apud Magdeburg cent 4. col 432.
p Magdeburg. cent 2 col. 117.
q Auguſt ſer. 3 in Epiph. Dom.
r Beauxamis har. Tom. 1. fol 59.
s Ludolphus de vita Chriſti part 1 cap. 11.
t Maldonat. in loc. & Mantuan. in faſtis, nec reges vt opinor erãt u Baron. annal Tom. 1. ad an. 1. fol. 53.
x Beda in coll c. y Giron. con 1. in Epiphan.
z Raulin. ſer. 1. in Epiphan
a Beda & Giron. vbi. ſup.
b Pet. de Natal enar. 1. Epiphan. Dom.

Millane: Thirdly, from Millane to Colon, and thereupon commonly called the three Kings of Colon; is thought by Proteſtant Diuines a ridiculous fable, better fitting the ſigne of a Tauerne than the wall or window of a Temple.

That they were Wiſemen is ſaid in this text and proued alſo; for in ſeeking the Lord, when and where he was to be found; they [d] ſhewed themſelues wiſemen indeed, according to that of the [e] Prophet, Let not the wiſeman glorie in his wiſdome, but let him that glorieth, glory in this, that he vnderſtandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord which exerciſe louing kindneſſe, iudgement and righteouſneſſe in the earth: for in theſe things I delight ſaith the Lord. It is likewiſe conſonant to the Text, that theſe Magi were aliens from the Common-wealth of Iſrael: as the ſhepheards were the firſt fruits of the Iewes, ſo theſe Wiſe-men the [f] firſt fruits of the Gentiles. They were neere, theſe came from farre, both met in Chriſt the chiefe corner ſtone, who made of both [g] one: that is, of two walls one houſe; for the Iewes and Gentiles are all one in Chriſt, Galath. 3.28. A myſterie which in times paſt (as you haue heard in this dayes Epiſtle) was not opened vnto the ſonnes of men, as it is now declared by the Spirit. Reade Ser. 2.4. 6.7. of Auguſtine de Epiphania Dom. And herein appeares the goodneſſe and vnſearchable riches of Chriſt, in that he manifeſted himſelfe to the ſhepheards albeit ignorant, and to the Wiſe-men albeit impious. [h] In ruſticitate Paſtorum imperitia præualet, in ſacrilegis Magorum impietas, and yet he who [i] choſe the fooliſh things of the world to confound the wiſe, and came not to call the righteous, [k] but ſinners to repentance, appeared vpon Chriſtmas day to ſhepheards, and on this day to wiſe, but wicked Aſtrologers. Vt nullus magnus ſuperbiret, nullus infirmus deſperaret, as [l] Auguſtine and [m] Aquine ſweetly.

To Ieruſalem] [n] As to the Citie of God acquainted with the diuine oracles, hauing Moſes and the Prophets, which [o] witneſſe of the Meſſias. And here they did learne that Chriſt ſhould be borne at Bethlehem in Iurie, for thus it is written by the Prophet, And thou Bethlehem in the land of Iurie art not the leaſt among the Princes of Iuda; for out of thee ſhall come vnto me the Captaine that ſhall gouerne my people Iſrael. And ſo hauing the light of Gods holy word added to the ſtarre, they went on their iourney with cheerfulneſſe, vntill they came to the place where the childe was.

[p] Or to the Scribes and Phariſies at Ieruſalem, to condemne their ſluggiſhneſſe and carnalitie, who ſtanding hard by, ſaw not ſo much as they who came from farre. [q] Veritas illuminat magos, infidelitas obcœcat magiſtros. Carnalis Iſrael non intelligit, quod legit: non videt, quod oſtendit: vtitur paginis, quarum non credit eloquijs. In which reſpect [r] Auguſtine compared the Iewiſh Doctors vnto ſtones erected in common paſſages, that teach other how to walke in the right way, but themſelues ſtand ſtill. And here let vs vpon bowed knees intreat the father of mercies, and God of all grace, ſo to lighten our darke vnderſtanding with his heauenly ſtarre, that we may ſearch and ſpiritually diſcerne the things of the Scripture; leſt the Lord (as [s] Auguſtine propheciedd a great while ſince) for our careleſneſſe and carnalitie take his word from vs Chriſtians, as he did his kingdome from the Iewes, and giue it to ſuch as we thinke to bee moſt alien from God and his Goſpell. Examine the cited paſſages and paſſions of that holy Father againe and againe, Decies repetita placebunt: and then in thy ſerious meditations apply them vnto the preſent Romiſh Synagogue, and thou ſhalt eaſily finde, that the Proteſtants eſtate in reſpect of the Papiſts, is very like to this of the Wiſe-men in reſpect of the Iewes. For as the Iewes euer boaſted of the Temple, ſo the Papiſts of the Church: as the Iewes and only the Iewes in times paſt had Gods law, ſo the Papiſts in latter ages, (and if you will beleeue themſelues) only the Papiſts embrace the Catholike faith: as the Iewes were magnificent in their ceremonies, euen ſo the Papiſts exceeding glorious in their ornaments, orders, outſides of the Church. And yet ſuch as are Wiſe-men, and haue [t] wit to count the number of the Beaſt, know that Antichriſts ſeat is the Romane Sea.

He

[d] Diez Con. 1. in Epiphan.
[e] Ierem 9.23.
[f] Fulgentius ſer. de Epiphan. Idem Leo, Luther, Rupert. in loc.
[g] Epheſ. 2.14.
[h] Auguſt ſer. 2. de Epiphan.
[i] 1 Cor. 1.27.
[k] Matth 9 13.
[l] Vbi ſupra.
[m] Caten. in loc.
[n] See Heming. & Aret. in loc.
[o] Iohn 5.39.
[p] Didac. de Yanguas, Con. 2. de Epiphan.
[q] Leo ſer. 3. de Epiphan. cap. 3.
[r] Ser. 6. de Epiphan.
[s] In verba Pſal. 7 propter hanc in altum regredare.
[t] Apoc. 12.18.

He whoſe pencill is not inferiour to many, ſtanding in ſo fit a place as any to take Romes picture, portrayeth her thus:

Roma, in { Hebrew, Greeke, Latine, Engliſh, } ſignifieth { Height. Strength. Loue, if it be read backward. Roome, or place. }

Foure tongues like trumpets Rome doth ſound thy name,
In Hebrew thou art Height, in Greeke a power,
And Loue in Latine ſpeech, and place in our,
Foure ſquares of hundred yeeres doe fit the ſame.

The firſt in Height exalted Chriſt his name,
The next in Strength augmented worldly power.
The third Gods Loue caſt backward on thy flowre,
The fourth in emptie place hath ſhewed thy ſhame.

And now foure wayes thou wouldſt thy fall conceale,
With Scriptures vpper Height and Strength of Schooles,
And forme of Zeale, and Rome the head of fooles:
The Height wants ground, to reaſon truth, to zeale
Science, and Roome containeth now no grace,
Thy height of ſtrength is backward loue of place.

We haue ſeene his ſtarre] Cardinall [u] Aliacus and [x] Albertus haue written that theſe Wiſe-men endowed with extraordinarie skill in Aſtrologie, might foreknow the time when our bleſſed Sauiour ſhould bee borne by the poſition of Starres and conſtitution of the Planets. But this aſſertion is vtterly condemned by [y] S. Auguſtine, and other holy Fathers of the Church, as you may finde in Beauxamis Har. Tom. 1. fol. 60, 61. Sixt. Senen. bibliothec, lib. 5. annot. 10.

It is apparent that this ſtarre was not ordinarie, but in [z] many properties, eſpecially [a] three, differing from all other in the skie, to wit, in

- Place, for it could not haue ſhewed the direct way to ſuch as trauelled by it, vnleſſe it had beene in the loweſt region of the aire.
- Mouing, for it moued not circle-wiſe, but went right forward as a guide of the way, none otherwiſe than the cloud and pillar of fire went before the people of Iſrael at their going out of Ægypt.
- Brightneſſe, for whereas other ſtarres appeare to ſhine by night only, this gaue light euen in the broad day.

[b] Hæc ſtella quæ ſolis rotam
Vincit decore ac lumine.

[c] Gregory Nyſſen and [d] Aquin thinke that it was a new ſtar created only for this purpoſe. [e] Theophylact and [f] Euthymius, that it was an Angell or ſome other heauenly power, appearing not in the nature, but in the figure of a ſtarre. [g] S. Auguſtine ſaith, it was magnifica lingua cœli, the ſtately tongue of heauen. [h] Other coniecture that it was the Holy Ghoſt, appearing in the likeneſſe of a Starre at Chriſts birth, as in the likeneſſe of a Doue at Chriſts Baptiſme. For (as [i] Baronius out of the great opinion of his owne reading is bold to write) all the Fathers agree, that theſe Magi were led to Chriſt here by an inward light of the Spirit, ſo well as with an outward light in the skie. [k] Agente hoc ſine dubio in eorum cordibus,

[u] In Gen. quæſt. 30.
[x] Lib cui Tit. Speculum.
[y] Contra Fauſtū lib. 2 cap. 5. & de Ciuit Dei, lib. 5. cap. 1, 2, 3.
[z] Thomas part. quæſt 36. art. 7. Chryſo ſt. Euthym. Ludolphus in loc.
[a] Heming poſt. in loc.
[b] Prudentius hym. de Epiph.
[c] Orat de ſancta Chriſti nat.
[d] Vbi ſup.
[e] In loc.
[f] In loc.
[g] Ser. 3 in Epiphan.
[h] Author de mirabilibus ſcript. lib 3 cap. 4. inter Auguſtin. opera Tom. 3. fol. 536. idem Beauxamis in loc.
[i] Annal. Tom. 1. ad ann. 1. fol. 55.
[k] Leo ſer. 3 de Epiphan. cap. 2.

cordibus inſpiratione diuina, vt eos tanta viſionis myſterium non lateret, & quod oculis oſtendebatur inſolitum, animis non eſſet obſcurum. And therefore when they found the babe Ieſus in a ſillie cottage, they were not any whit diſcouraged at his contemptible pouertie, but inſtantly they ſaw ([l] non terra portante, ſed cœlo narrante) magnum aliquid paruo latere, that this little childe was a great King, yea a great God, and a great King aboue all gods. And hereupon, as it followeth in our text, They fell downe flat, and worſhipped him, and opened their treaſures, and offered vnto him gifts, gold, frankincenſe, myrrhe. That is, (as [m] Auguſtine gloſſeth) Adorant corporibus, honorant muneribus, venerantur officijs, oculis hominem vident, & Deum obſequijs confitentur.

Chriſt (as being the Word in the beginning by whom all things were made) beſtowed on theſe Wiſe-men euery good and perfect gift, corporall, ſpirituall, temporall. And therefore they did honour him (as [n] Interpreters obſerue) with all theſe kindes of goods. In falling downe flat, they did honour him with the goods of the bodie: in adoring him, with the goods of the minde: in offering to him gold, frankincenſe, myrrhe, with the goods of the world. They did offer [o] gold to releeue Maries neceſſitie: frankincenſe, to ſweeten the ſtable: myrrhe, to comfort the ſwadled babe. [p] In offering frankincenſe, they confounded Arrius, holding that ſacrifices are only due to God the Father: in offering myrrhe, they confounded Manicheus, who denied that Chriſt truly died for our ſinnes: in offering gold, they confounded them both, as denying that Chriſt is our King. In offering all theſe, they confounded Neſtorius, diuiding Chriſt into two perſons, one diuine, another humane; for the Magi gaue not here ſome gifts vnto God, and other vnto man: but all vnto one Chriſt Ergo non dinidatur in perſonis qui non inuenitur diuiſus in donis, as Fulgentius excellently.

Or as [q] other, they did offer gold to Chriſt, as being a King: frankincenſe, as being God: myrrhe, as being man: according to that of the Chriſtian [r] Poet,

Aurum, Thus, Myrrham, regique deo, hominiq; Dona ferunt.

It is an idle conceit, that one did offer gold, another myrrhe, and the third frankincenſe: for ſeeing each of them acknowledged Chriſt to be a King, and God, and a paſſible man; it is more probable, that all of them offered all theſe gifts, euery one three, [s] ſingula tria.

They returned into their own countrey another way] [t] The grace of God appearing teacheth vs that we ſhould denie vngodlineſſe, and worldly luſts, and that we ſhould liue ſoberly, and righteouſly, and godly in this preſent world. [u] Wherefore the Wiſe-men hauing found Chriſt, and being taught of God not to returne againe to Herod, that is, any longer to ſerue the deuill; they renounce their owne wills and their old wayes, and walke according to Gods will in new wayes. Immutatio vitæ emendatio vitæ, quoth [x] Euſeb. Emiſen. Heretofore they walked in errour, but now they walke in truth: heretofore they went a whoring after their owne inuentions, but now they follow the word and warning of God.

The ſumme then of [y] all this Goſpell is, that we muſt ſeeke Chriſt by the guiding of a ſtarre, that is, by the light of his word: and when wee haue found Chriſt, it is our dutie to [z] manifeſt our faith by good works, in preſenting vnto Chriſt our King gold, that is, a pure confeſſion of a true beleefe: frankincenſe, that is, humble prayer and inuocation: myrrhe, that is, a chaſte and a mortified life. We muſt alſo giue to Marie, that is, to the Church, vnto the Preachers of the word, and all other members of Chriſt in want, a part of our temporall eſtate. And all this ought to be done cheerfully, for the Wiſe-men opened their treaſures, and our heart is our treaſure, Matth. 12. 35. [a] So that we muſt euen with exceeding gladneſſe, from our heart offer gold, frankincenſe, myrrhe [b] that is, almes, prayer, faſting: Prayer reſpects God, almes our neighbour, faſting our ſelues. And [c] thus hauing changed the whole courſe of our inordinate conuerſation in time paſt, and walking in another way which is the path of Paradiſe; we ſhall in fine

[l] Auguſt. ſer. 7. de Epiphan.
[m] Ser. 1. in Epiphan.
[n] Ludolphus & Ianſen. in loc.
[o] Bernard. ſer. 3. Paraeus & Rulin. ſer. 2. de Epiphan.
[p] Fulgentius ſer. de Epiphan. Idem Beauxamis
[q] Euthym. Anſelm. Caietan. in loc.
[r] Iuuencus. Idem Chryſoſt. ex variis in Matth. locis hom. 1.
[s] Remegius, Leo. Anſelm.
[t] Tit. 1 11.
[u] Leo ſer. 3. de Epiphan.
[x] Hom. 1. de Epiphan.
[y] Heming. poſt. in loc.
[z] Luther, Culman in loc. Idem Leo ſer. 7. de Epiphan.
[a] Rupert in loc. & Didac. de Yanguas, Con 3. de Epiphan.
[b] Ianſen. Con. cap. 9.
[c] Fulgentius ſer. de Epiphan. in fine.

fine returne to our owne countrey, which is heauen in heauen, and there we ſhall enioy Chriſt our King, God and man in eternall happineſſe euermore.

There be many points in this text as yet vntouched, and I might as [d] Ruth, haply gleane after ſuch as haue reaped before me: but I am ſo deuoted to breuitie, that I rather chuſe to wonder a little with another, than to write any more my ſelfe vpon this Goſpell.

[d] Ruth 2.3.

O ſtrangeſt thing that God doth now begin,
In being which, he hath no Godheads grace:
O ſtrangeſt Roome, this ſubiect takes his place
In want of Roome, for none was in his Inne.

O ſtrangeſt colour to be viewed in,
For humane darkneſſe vailed hath his face.
O ſtrangeſt middle of reſpectiue ſpace,
Where as a ſtarre more than the ſunne could win.

O ſtrangeſt ſtarre that muſt reueale this ſight,
That by diſorder from the reſt giues light.

O ſtrangeſt eyes that ſaw him by this ſtarre,
Who when by-ſtanders ſaw not, ſaw ſo farre.

And ſince ſuch wonders were in ſeeing him,
No wonder if my wondring thought grow dim.

O God, which by the leading of a ſtarre, dideſt manifeſt thine onely begotten Sonne to the Gentiles: mercifully grant, that we which know thee now by faith, may after this life haue the fruition of thy glorious Godhead, through Chriſt our Lord.

THE PVRIFICATION OF SAINT MARIE THE VIRGIN.

The Epiſtle being the ſame which is appointed for the Sunday, is expounded among the Dominicals in due place.

The Goſpell is written, LVKE 2. 22. & v. 27.

When the time of their purification after the law of Moſes was come, &c.

IT is the ſaying of S. Bartholmew, reported by [a] Dionyſius Areopagita, that the Goſpell is little, yet large: If we conſider only the ſyllables, it is a very ſmall booke; but if we examine the profound ſenſe, [b] mundus non capit, it is ſo great, that (as S. Iohn ſpeaketh) the world cannot containe it. Example hereof is found in this preſent Chapter, abounding with as many wonders almoſt as words. Here you may reade that Marie was at once both a mother and a maid, at once both a wife and a midwife, bringing forth a ſonne who was her father, by whom all things were made, ſwadling him in clouts, and laying him in a cratch, who [c] filled heauen and earth. Here you may reade how the Word in the beginning infinite and incomprehenſible, was not onely circumſcribed, but alſo circumciſed. Here you may reade, [d] that the pure was purified, God offered, and the Redeemer redeemed. Here you may reade, that a glorious Angell attended ſillie ſhepheards, and that a childe of twelue yeere old confounded the Doctors in his diſputations, and that a dying man vttered ſongs in ſtead of ſobs.

a Myſt. Theolog. cap 1. Idem Caſſanæus catalog. gloriæ mundi part. 3. conſiderat. 29.

b Iohn 21. 25.

c Ierem. 23. 24.

d Ardens hom. in Euangel. Purific.

In the words allotted for our text three points are to be conſidered eſpecially, the { Purification, Preſentation, Commendation } of { Marie: When the time of her purification was come. Chriſt: They brought him to Hieruſalem to preſent him to the Lord, &c. Simeon: Behold there was a man in Hieruſalem whoſe name was Simeon, and the ſame was iuſt & godly, &c }

And this Feaſt hath accordingly three names, as the [e] Maſters of ceremonies obſerue: 1. The Purification of Marie. 2. The preſentation and induction of Chriſt into the Temple. 3. Saint Simeons holy day.

When the time of their purification] [f] Some reade, αὐτῆ, his purification; our latter Engliſh Bibles and old Latine, αὐτῆς her purification; Origen, Theophylact, Euthymius, and many [g] moe, αὐτῶν, as the text of our Communion booke here, their purification. And the reaſon hereof is plaine; [h] becauſe Chriſt is preſented in the Temple, ſo well as Marie purified, both vndergo the Law, though in equitie neither of them are bound to the rites of the Law concerning purification.

After the law of Moſes] The Law, ſaith [i] Luther, is not adiutorium ſed monitorium; it takes not away ſinne, but only bringeth vs to the knowledge of ſinne, and to the remedie for ſinne; vnto the knowledge and true feeling of ſinne, Rom. 3.20. Galath. 3.19. [k] becauſe God wrote the Law, not ſo much to forbid offences to come, as to make vs acknowledge our ſinnes already paſt, and now preſent; that conſidering our owne miſerie we might flie to his mercy. By the Law we know ſinne, by ſinne we learne to know our ſelues, and in knowing our ſelues, we renounce our ſelues, and come vnto Chriſt the ſalue for ſinne, being the [l] Lambe of God, who taketh away the ſinnes of the world, refreſhing all ſuch as groane vnder the burden of their offences, Matth. 11.28. and thus (as [m] Paul ſpeakes) the Law is our ſchoolemaſter vnto Chriſt, and Chriſt is the [n] end of the Law: Finis perficiens non interficiens, quoth [o] Auguſtine, not the deſtruction of the Law, but the conſummation, as being the very marke, at which all the ceremonies of Moſes aimed: as in this [p] rite concerning the purifying of women, Almightie God inſinuated to the Iewes his people their originall corruption, how they were [q] conceiued in ſinne, and borne in iniquitie, prius damnati quàm nati, being the ſonnes of [r] wrath afore they were ſeene in the world, vncleane in their conception, vncleane in their birth, vncleane in their life, and ſo conſequently that they need the bloud of Chriſt, prefigured in their daily ſacrifice, to cleanſe them from all ſinne both originall and actuall, 1 Ioh. 1.7.

The children of Iſrael had continued among the ſuperſtitious Ægyptians a long time without any Law of God written, and therefore being now deliuered from them, and yet inclined to their idolatrie, God out of his admirable wiſdome (as moſt Interpreters auow) did ſo charge them with a multitude of ſacrifices and ceremonies in his written word, [s] as that they ſhould neither haue leiſure to make new of their owne, nor yet luſt to follow the faſhions of other. And in this almoſt infinite number of Iudicials and Ceremonials, euery one (though in appearance neuer ſo little) hath a morall: as, Thou ſhalt not take the Dam with the young, Deut. 22.6. Thou ſhalt not ſeethe a kid in his mothers milke, Exo. 23.19 moueth vs to compaſſion and pitie. Thou ſhalt not muzzle the mouth of the Oxe that treadeth out the corne, Deut. 25.4. teacheth in [t] Pauls expoſition this leſſon, that the labourer is worthy of his wages, eſpecially the Preachers of the Word, for that law was not written out of Gods care for oxen, but altogether for [u] our ſakes, inſinuating, That he which eareth ſhould eare in hope, & that he who threſheth in hope, ſhould be partaker of his hope: if we haue ſowne vnto you ſpirituall things, is it a great thing if we reape your carnall things? So likewiſe in the ceremonie touching purification, Leuit. 12. there is ſome thing morall, as namely, that the [x] weakneſſe of women after their child birth might be releeued, and the luſt of intemperate husbands a while reſtrained. Now that which is ceremoniall is abrogated vtterly, but the morall is perpetuall, and ought to continue ſtill in the Church vntil the worlds end: and therefore howſoeuer women in our age be not tied either by the law Common or [y] Canon, (much leſſe by the Goſpell it ſelfe) to the preciſe number of dayes, and particular oblations of the Iewes: yet it is meet (I might ſay, more neceſſarie (that they ſhould keepe in a conuenient time, for the recouering of their ſtrength, and when they come to the Church, in ſtead of the Iewiſh offering, to preſent vnto the Lord chriſtian ſacrifices of prayer and praiſe, for preſerning them in the great danger of child birth, [z] as alſo for their deliuerance by Chriſt

[a] Baronius notation. in Rom. Martyr. Febr. 2.

[f] Apud Eraſ. & Maldonat. in loc.

[g] Tranſlat. Hen. 8 Caſtalio. Ro. Stephan. Marlorat.

[h] Caluin. Aret. in loc.

[i] Loc. com. tit. de vſu ſpiritual legis. See Epiſt. 13. Sunday after Trin.

[k] Luther. tom. 1. fol. 1.

[l] Iohn 1.29.

[m] Galat. 3.24.

[n] Rom 10.4.

[o] Contra aduerſ. legis & prophet. lib. 2. cap. 7.

[p] Melanchthon. Mart. Mollerus poſtil. in loc.

[q] Pſal. 51.5.

[r] Epheſ. 2.3.

[s] Tindal, prolog. in Exod.

D Whitgift. def. of his an. ſwer to the admo. fol 305.

[t] 1 Tim. 5.18.

[u] 1 Cor. 9 10.

[x] Dr. Whitgift vbi ſup. fol. 535. Kilius & Mollerus in loc.

[y] Diſt. 5. cap. Hæc quæ.

[z] Dr. Whitgift vbi ſupra.

Chriſt from that ſinne, whereof [a] that infirmitie is an euerlaſting teſtimonie: and aſſuredly, whoſoeuer ſhall out of inſolent contempt neglect this dutie, ſinneth againſt the rules of nature, yea the God of grace. For it is a concluſion orthodoxall in Diuinitie, that the politicall and ceremoniall lawes of the Iewes are abrogated in the particular onely, not in the generall; in the circumſtance, not in the ſubſtance; [b] quoad ſpeciem, non quoad genus: as in obſeruing the Sabbath, in paying of Tithes, in purifying of women, and the like. Or as [c] other, aboliſhed as concerning the letter, but in force concerning the ſpirit.

Whereas it is [d] obiected, If there ſhould be ſolemne and expreſſe giuing of thanks in the Congregation for euery benefit either equall or greater than this which any ſingular perſon in the Church doth receiue, we ſhould not only haue no preaching of the word, nor miniſtring of the Sacraments, but we ſhould not haue ſo much leiſure as to doe any corporall or bodily worke, but ſhould be like the Meſſalian heretikes, who did nothing elſe but pray. Anſwer is made, that theſe ſchiſmaticall oppoſers are to themſelues oppoſite: elſewhere they miſlike the booke of Common Praier for want of thankſgiuing for benefits receiued, and here they condemne it for appointing thankes to be giuen for deliuerance from ſinne, from manifold perils and dangers, and for the increaſe of Gods people; the which are publike bleſſings, though a priuate perſon more particularly giue the thankes. Againe, it would trouble their heads exceedingly to finde out ſo many benefits greater or equiuolent to the goodneſſe of God toward women in child-bed; for as [e] Melanthon is bold to write, child bearing is magnum miraculum, a miracle ſo great, that the [f] Prophet ſaith in conſideration hereof, I will giue thankes vnto thee, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made. But howſoeuer it be, this one thing is certaine, that it is better to be like ſuch heretikes as doe nothing elſe but pray, than to be ſuch ſchiſmatikes as doe nothing elſe but prate.

Concerning the wearing of the vaile, we ſay [g] that it is not an eccleſiaſticall Canon, but a ciuill cuſtome: not an iniunction of the Church, but the faſhion of our countrie, as wearing of new gloues at marriages, and blacks at funerals: an attire for ſuch a time not only decent and graue, but alſo moſt vſefull and conuenient. As for the name of offering, applied to the Curates accuſtomed dutie; we ſay, that as the life of the Clergie is ſpent in the ſeruice of God, ſo it is ſuſtained with his reuenue. [h] Nothing therefore more proper than to giue the name of oblations vnto ſuch payments, in token that we offer vnto God whatſoeuer his Miniſters receiue. In a word, the thankſgiuing of women after child-birth, according to the doctrine and diſcipline of the Church of England, performed not out of cuſtome, but out of conſcience; not to make the act of honourable marriage vncleane, but to bleſſe God for deliuerance from ſo manifold perils; is not a Iewiſh ceremonie, but a Chriſtian dutie: the which (I thinke) diſtaſteth onely ſuch as haue either an ouerflowing of their gall, or an ouerweening of their wit.

The Law ſaith in the 12. of Leuiticus, If a woman by the ſeed of man ſhall conceiue and beare a childe, ſhe ſhall be reputed vncleane, ſi ſuſcepto ſemine pepererit, &c. but the power of the moſt High [i] ouerſhadowed Marie, Chriſt was conceiued in her wombe not by the polluted ſeed of man, but by the vertue of the Holy Ghoſt, and ſo by conſequence [k] not tied vnto the law: for (as the Lawyers ſay) where the reaſon of a ſtatute doth ceaſe, there the ſtatute hath his end. But the reaſon of the law concerning purification had no place in Marie, being a pure Virgin, both in her conception, and in her child-birth alſo. See S. Ambroſ. epiſt. 81. Auguſtin. contra Iulian. lib. 1. cap. 2. de ciuit. lib. 22. cap 8 Thomas part. 3. queſt. 28. art. 2. Eraſmus annot. in loc. Bellarm. de ſacram. Euchariſt. lib. 3. cap 6. That Chriſt might appeare to be man, he was borne of a woman; and yet that he might appeare to be God, he was borne of a [l] Virgin. [m] Qui venit triſte letificare ſeculum, ventris non contriſtauit hoſpitium: qui enim diſrupta corporum membra in alijs poterat integrare tangendo, quanto magis in ſua matre quod inuenit integrum potuit non violare naſcendo? See Creed, borne of the Virgin, and Epiſtle allotted for the Annunciation.

[a] Gen. 3 16.

[b] Melanct. in cat. pueril. de 3. præcept. & Tom. 2. fol. 362.

[c] See the reformed Politike written by Iohn Fregruel of Graunt.

[d] T C. apud Dr. Whitgift vbi ſupra, fol. 536. & Hooker eccleſ polit. lib. 5. § 74.

[e] Poſtil. in loc.

[f] Pſal. 139 13.

[g] Dr. Whitgift vbi ſup. fol. 537.

[h] Hooker vbi ſupra.

[i] Luk. 1. 35.

[k] Theophylact. Euthym. Caietan. in loc. Bernard. ſer. 3. de Purificat. Thom. part 3. quæſt. 37 art. 4. Sixt. Senen. bib. lib. 6. annot. 137

[l] Maria mater eſſe potuit, mulier eſſe non potuit ſecundum integritatis corruptionem. Aug. tract 10. in Ioan.

[m] Fulgentius ſr. de laudibus Mariæ.

Marie then obſerued the rites of purification (as [n] Bernard excellently) not for her ſelfe, but for our example. Chriſt was circumciſed for vs, and Marie purified for vs; he needed no Circumciſion, who was the end of Circumciſion; and ſhe needed no purification, as hauing conceiued by the Holy Ghoſt: yet he did vndergoe the one, and ſhee performe the other. [o] Hereby teaching vs to ſubmit our ſelues vnto the preſent gouernment of the Church vnder which we liue; teaching vs I ſay ſo farre to ſeeke the peace of Ieruſalem, as that we ſhould be content to depart euen from our owne priuate right, rather than in any ſort [p] ſcandalouſly preiudice the common good of the Church, enduring rather a miſchiefe in our ſelues, than an inconuenience in the ſtate.

Marie (knowing [q] obedience to be better than ſacrifice) performed the rites of purifying, albeit ſhee was not bound to the ſame. But Schiſmatikes in our dayes inioyned to keepe the ceremonies of the Church, euen by that law which ſaith expreſly, Let euery ſoule be ſubiect vnto ſuperiour authoritie; hold diſſoluteneſſe a reſoluteneſſe, and breaking of Eccleſiaſticall orders a point of deuotion and Pietie, ſhedding (as it is ſaid of [r] Iob) the bloud of warre in peace. But if their zeale were ſuch vnto the Goſpell, as Maries was to the Law; they would rather wring themſelues in the particular, than wrong the Church in the generall. I reade in [s] Plinie, how two Goats meeting on a narrow bridge, non vim ſed viam fecêre, they did not make away each other, but make way one for the other, as Mutianus an eye-witneſſe tells the tale, the one lying downe on his belly ſuffered the other to paſſe ouer his backe, and ſo both eſcaped the danger of the ditch In the time of the Gotiſh warres I finde alſo, that a Romane ſouldier and a Barbarian caſually falling into the ſame pit as they marched along the countrey, were ſo farre from contending one with another, as that they both agreed mutually to releeue each other, and ſo neceſſitie making them friends (as [t] Procopius reports) they were drawne out of that hell, and ſafely deliuered againe into their Captaines and Companies. I would to God the Separatiſt in this caſe had ſo much good wit as the Goat, or elſe ſo much good will as the Goth.

They brought him to Ieruſalem to preſent him vnto the Lord, as it is written in the Law of the Lord, euery man-child that firſt openeth the matrix ſhall be called holy to the Lord] Almighty God in deliuering his Iſrael out of Ægypts bondage [u] ſmote all the firſt-borne in the land Ægypt, from the firſt-borne of Pharaoh that ſate on his throne, vnto the firſt borne of the captiue that was in priſon. And therefore [x] that his people might alway remember this benefit, he commanded in his Law, that they ſhould conſecrate all their firſt-borne to him, Exod. 13. 2. For this reaſon is rendred by God himſelfe: Numb. 8. 17. All the firſt-borne of the children of Iſrael are mine, both of man and of beaſts: ſince the day I ſmote euery firſt-borne in the land of Ægypt, I ſanctified them for my ſelfe. Now Chriſt is the firſt-borne in [y] many reſpects: Firſt, in his Diuinitie, being Gods [z] onely begotten Sonne. Secondly, in his humanitie, being Maries [a] firſt-borne ſonne, for ſhee bare none before him or after him. Thirdly, the firſt-borne in grace, for he was the firſt man borne, which being [b] offered vnto God was accepted of himſelfe. Fourthly, in power, being the firſt-borne of the [c] dead. Fifthly, the firſt borne, for that all of vs are [d] new borne through him. And therefore though he were not tied vnto the rites of the Law, yet he ſuffered himſelfe to be preſented in the Temple for theſe reaſons eſpecially.

Firſt, to ſhew that the [e] ſame God is author both of the Goſpell and of the Law.

Secondly, in that the Law-giuer himſelfe obeyed the Law, he [f] teacheth all Princes to giue good example in obſeruing their owne ſtatutes. For an Emperor, ſaith [g] Euagrius, is not to be counted thereafter as he gouerneth other, but as he ruleth and guideth himſelfe, making his life a light for his ſubiects to follow. For [h] this cauſe the chiefe Magiſtrates among the Romans had burning lamps carried before them.

[i] Publica nimirum res tum ſibi conſtat & æquum
Imperium, cùm Rex quod iubet, ipſe facit.

Thirdly,

[n] Ser. 7. in par. ſermon.

[o] Luther, Melancth. Culman. poſtil in loc.

[p] Arboreus in loc.

[q] 1 Sam. 15. 22

[r] King. 2. 5.

[s] Nat hiſt. lib. 8. cap. 50.

[t] De bello Gotherum, lib. 2. circa prin.

[u] Exod 12. 29.

[x] Thom. part 3. queſt. 37. art. 3. Aretius & Marlorat in loc.

[y] Heming. poſt. in loc.

[z] Iohn 3. 16.

[a] Matth. 1. 25.

[b] Epheſ 5. 2. Heb 5. 7. 9.

[c] 1 Cor. 15. 20.

[d] 1 Pet. 1. 3. 2 Cor. 5. 17.

[e] Origen. apud Thom. in loc. Idem Dormiſecure, ſer. in Purific.

[f] Giron ſer. 1. in Pur. Mariæ

[g] Eccleſ. hiſt. lib 3 cap 1. Idem Agapetus admonit. ad Iuſtinian

[h] Paraſinus in Symbol Heroic.

[i] Actius ſyn. Epigram. lib. 1.

Thirdly, he ſubmitted himſelfe vnto the Law, that he might [k] redeeme thoſe that were vnder the Law. God became man, that men hereby might be made Gods. He who was free, became ſeruant vnto all to make all free.

Fourthly, becauſe the firſt borne preſented in the Temple, was a [l] figure of Chriſt, the firſt borne among many brethren, Rom. 8. 29.

Fifthly, that he might [m] auoid occaſion of ſcandall among the Iewes, and exhibit a patterne of meekneſſe vnto all.

Sixthly, that being preſented in the publike Temple, many good people might beare witneſſe to him, as here you ſee Simeon and Anna did.

Seuenthly, that the world might be put in [n] poſſeſſion and ſeiſin of the Sauiour. He was offered twice: firſt, in the Temple, which is called his morning ſacrifice: then on the Croſſe, which is termed his euening ſacrifice. In the one he was redeemed, in the other he did redeeme giuing himſelfe for vs an offering and a ſacrifice of a ſweet ſmelling ſauour to God, Epheſ. 5. 2.

By this precept of Moſes, and practiſe of Marie, [o] Parents ought to learne that they beget children vnto God, and not to themſelues or Satan; and therefore they muſt be [p] forward in bringing their children to holy Baptiſme, as Ioſeph and Marie were in preſenting Chriſt, conſecrating them in their infancie to God, that afterward they may ſerue him in holineſſe and righteouſneſſe all the dayes of their life; that the ground may bring forth fruit in due time, you muſt haue both a good ſeeds man, and good ſeed: [q] in education of children a good inſtructer is the ſeeds-man, and good diſcipline the ſeed. For as baſe ſluggiſhneſſe corrupts the beſt nature, ſo liberall inſtruction is able to correct the worſt.

[r] Inuidus, iracundus, iners, vinoſus, amator,
Nemo adeo ferus eſt, vt non mitеſcere poſſit,
Si modo culturæ patientem commodet aurem.

It is reported of [s] Stilpho Meganeus, a great Philoſopher in his age, that he was exceedingly giuen by nature to women and wine; but he ſo tamed his vnbridled affections by good diſcipline, vt nemo vnquam vinolentum illum, nemo in eo libidinis veſtigium viderit. Now for as much as children are taught more by [t] patterne than by precept, by that they ſee men doe, rather than by that they heare men ſay; Parents ought in their priuate familes eſpecially, to be lights and enſamples in all holineſſe and honeſtie. For (as it is in the prouerbe) If both Horſe and Mare trot, the Colt will not amble. You deſire that your children may haue ſtrength and beautie, yet both are ſuddenly conſumed, either through ache or age. You purchaſe titles of honour for your poſteritie, yet [u] bloud corrupted by treaſon or felonie, cannot be reſtored againe by the Kings bare grant, without authoritie of Parliament. You riſe vp early and goe to bed late, that you may leaue wealth enough vnto your babes, and yet one ſparke of fire may deuoure all their houſes, and one quirke of law carry from them all their lands at a trice. Manners onely makes a man; if thou ſhalt afford thy ſonne religious and ingenuous education, it will euer ſticke by him among all the changes and chances of this mortall life; no ſickneſſe can blaſt this beautie, no malice blot out this honour, no fire conſume this tenement, no law wreſt this inheritance from him. It will be his comfort vntill he die, that you brought him vp [x] in inſtruction and information of the Lord.

A paire of Turtle doues, or two young Pigeons] The bleſſed Virgin obſerued euery due circumſtance of the Law. [y] The due time, when the dayes of her purification were come. The due place, they brought him to Ieruſalem, and preſented him vnto God in the Temple. The due oblation, a paire of Turtle doues, &c. As ſhee ſpared no paines in comming to the Temple, ſo no pence in offering. [z] S. Baſil complained of the couetous rich in his age, becauſe they performed only that kinde of deuotion which is without coſt, as to pray for faſhion, and to faſt out of miſerie; but they would not afford one halfpenny to the poore. So many men in our daies are

[k] Galat. 4. 5.

[l] Thom. part. 3 queſt. 37. art. 3.

[m] Idem ibidem, art. 4.

[n] Raulin ſer. 1. in Purific.

[o] Heming.

[p] Mollerus in declar. euang. Purific.

[q] Plutarch. com. de liberis educandis.

[r] Horat epiſt. lib. 1.

[s] Cic. lib. de fato.

[t] Conſule Hieron epiſt. ad Lætam de inſtitutione.

[u] Termes of the Law, vit Corruption of bloud.

[x] Epheſ. 6. 4. Litеræ ſi bona fide tuum intrauerint animum, nunquam amplius intrabit dolor. Senec. con. ad Heluiam.

[y] Bonauent. Beauxamis in loc.

[z] Ser. 2 in diuit. auares.

content to heare Gods holy word read and preached with their elbowes on a cushion, and hats on their heads, and if need be they will also make bitter inuectiues against Atheisme and Poperie: but if the Parish impose but an ordinarie charge toward the repairing of the Church, or the Pastor require but accustomed offerings for his necessarie maintenance; you shall haue them as the [a] bulrush in a wet place, so dry, that an oblation is as hardly got from them, as a sword from a souldier, or a new coat from a childe. Marie did offer according to her estate; for whereas the [b] Law requireth of the rich a Lambe, but of the poore two Turtles, or two young Pigeons: it is said here that shee brought the poores offering. And therefore the Papists vsually painting her in exceeding rich attire, and in making her a great Ladie of stately port, feed the peoples eyes with bables, and their eares with fables: for (to make themselues in this case Iudges of themselues) it is not our obseruation onely, but also their [c] owne collection in their Postils and Sermons vpon this Scripture. Nay their famous Iesuite [d] Maldonate doth affirme, that all Expositors haue this glosse, further adding out of his owne coniecture, that Marie did not offer two Turtles, but two young Pigeons, & quia facilius reperiri, & quia minore pretio emi potuerunt; because young Pigeons are prouided more easily both in respect of paines and price. Here then is matter of comfort for the [e] poore, of feare for the rich, of instruction for all. Of comfort against pouertie, because the Lord of Lords, hauing all things at his command, vouchsafed to be borne of a poore Virgin, according to that of [f] Paul, He being rich for our sakes became poore, that we through his pouertie might be made rich. Of feare for the wealthy, because Marie descending of a noble line, yea from princely loynes, is said here to be so beggerly, that shee was not able to buy a Lambe for her offering. It is the fashion of great men (as the [g] Prophet complained in his time) to lay field to field, and to ioyne house to house, [h] calling their lands after their owne names, entailing their estate to childrens children, and making it (as the Lawyers speake) a perpetuitie. But [i] one generation passeth, and another generation succeedeth; he that is higher than the highest, often [k] puls downe the mightie from his seat, and exalteth the poore man out of the [l] mire, that he may set him euen with the Princes of his people For in one age you may behold the Gentlemans heire serue his owne Farmers issue. Lastly, this affords instruction for all, intimating that we must offer vnto God the sacrifice due to God. If we cannot giue much, he will accept of a little, of the Virgins two pigeons, of the Widowes one [m] farthing. We may not spend all in our house, much lesse in the tap-house; something is to be laid out vpon Gods house, for his seruice, for his honour, if not a Lambe, yet a paire of Turtle doues, or two young Pigeons.

[n] Mystically, the blessed Virgin did offer a Lambe, but it was her owne sonne the Lambe of God, [o] Agnus qui prefiguratus est ab origine mundi, oblatus est in fine mundi: and shee did offer a young Pigeon, but it was her owne sonne conceiued of the Holy Ghost, appearing in the likenesse of of a Doue, Matth. 3. 16. and shee did offer a Turtle, but it was her owne sonne, of whom it is said, [p] The voice of the Turtle is heard in our land. Our blessed Sauiour being [q] & sacerdos & sacrificium, & victor & victima, the sacrificer and the sacrifice for the sinnes of the whole world, [r] was offered, first by God his Father: secondly, by the Virgin his mother: thirdly, by his owne selfe. God sent him into the world, the Virgin present, and the Legall Sacrifice represent him in the Temple, but himselfe did offer himselfe actually for our sinnes on [s] the Crosse.

And behold, there was a man in Ierusalem whose name was Simeon] Two things are requisite in a sufficient witnesse, vnderstanding to know the truth, and honesty to speake what he knoweth. Old Simeon in testifying of Christ had both, a good vnderstanding, as hauing a reuelation giuen him of the holy Ghost, that he should not see death vntill he first saw the Lord Christ: and a great honesty, being iust and godly, or deuout, [t] outwardly to the world iust, inwardly to himselfe godly. [u] For his workes, he was iust in his dealing with men: for his faith, he was deuout in the seruice of God. These [u] two deuotion and iustice, comprehend all the whole

[a] Bonauent diet. salut cap. 20.

[b] Leuit 12. 8.

[c] Pet. de palud Diez Dormisecure. Raulin. Didac de Yanguas, Giron. & aly.

[d] Com. in loc.

[e] Heming.

[f] 2 Cor 8. 9.

[g] Esay 5 8.

[h] Psal. 49. 11.

[i] Eccles. 1. 4

[k] Luke 1. 52.

[l] Psa. 113. 6.

[m] Mark. 12. 42.

[n] Didac. de Yanguas Con. 3. de oblat. Christ.

[o] Simon de Cassia.

[p] Cant 2. 12.

[q] August. medit. cap. 13.

[r] Dormisecure. ser. de Purific. Mariæ.

[s] Aretius:

[t] Heming.

[u] Caluin. Bez.

whole law: deuotion all the duties of the firſt table; inſtice all the duties of the ſecond. Deuotion is the mother, Inſtice the daughter, [x] becauſe the true feare of God bringeth forth alwaies vpright cariage toward men. It is not reported here that he was ſo righteous as that he needed not another righteouſneſſe, for he looked for the conſolation of Iſrael, acknowledging in his ſong, Chriſt for his Sauiour; [y] but that he liued (as it is ſaid of Zacharias and Elizabeth in the former chapter) vnblameable before men. The word ἄμεμπτος, is tranſlated [z] pius, [a] religioſus, [b] timoratus, one who [c] feared God: and this feare was not ſeruile, but filiall. He did not feare God as a bad ſeruant, fearing the ſtripes of his great maſter: but as a louing ſonne, fearing to diſpleaſe his good father. [d] Et timebat cum dilectione, & diligebat cum timore. He was in his courſe ſo carefull to do the will of our heauenly father, as that he feared with a pious loue, and loued with a reuerent feare. [e] Solicitè pius & omnia timens ne non ſatis pius ſit, [f] in doing good a iuſt man, in eſchewing euill one that feared God.

And looked for the conſolation of Iſrael] He was a iuſt man in deed, giuing euery one his right; vnto God, as being deuout: vnto himſelfe, as expecting the conſolation of Iſrael: vnto other, in preaching Chriſt openly to be both a light to the Gentiles, and a glory to the Iewes. All the chiefe Chriſtian vertues appeared in him eminently: Faith, hope, loue: faith, as fearing God: hope, as looking for the Meſſias of the world: loue, as being Iuſt, communicating his gifts of [g] prophecie to the benefit of the Church in ſinging his nunc dimittis, and in ſaying, mine eyes haue ſeene thy ſaluation. My corporall eies thy manhood, my ſpirituall eies thy Godhead; the [h] coniunction of which is Salutare tuum, thy ſaluation, as giuing it; and Salutare noſtrum, our ſaluation, as receiuing it. And this Salutare is not ſingulare, but as Saint Iude termeth it, a Common ſaluation, and as old Simeon in his Hymne, prepared before the face of all people.

[x] Culman.
[y] Heming.
[z] Eraſmus.
[a] Caſtalio.
[b] Vulgar Latin.
[c] Geneua bib.
[d] Ardens.
[e] Aretius.
[f] Pet. de palud. ſer de Purific.
[g] Caluin.
[h] Ardens.

The Epiſtle. Acts 1. 15.

In thoſe daies Peter ſtood vp in the middeſt of the Diſciples and ſaid, &c.

THis Epiſtle containeth a ſhort yet a ſweet narration, how Matthias a Diſciple was elected vnto the traitor Iudas Apoſtleſhip and Biſhoprick. Wherein three things are more principally remarkable.

1. His Conge de leire, deliuered in an eloquent ſpeech, in which obſerue the
   - Time, In whoſe daies.
   - Orator, Peter ſtood vp.
   - Auditorie, Diſciples and brethren about an hundred and twentie.
   - Oration, partly
     - Hortatorie, perſwading that one muſt be choſen, verſe 16, 17, 18, 19, 20.
     - Doctrinall, intimating what an one muſt be choſen, ver. 21. 22.
2. His election, and in it the
   - Proceſſe by
     - Nomination, ver. 23.
     - Prayer, ver. 24. 25.
     - Lots, ver. 26.
   - Succeſſe, the lot fell on Matthias.
3. His Inſtallation, he was counted with the eleuen Apoſtles.

In thoſe daies] To wit, in the ſpace betweene Chriſts aſcenſion and his ſending of the Holy Ghoſt, at that time the Diſciples being gathered together at Hieruſalem in an vpper parlour, They continued with one accord, not in ſupplication only, but in conſultation alſo for the Goſpels aduancement. [i] Hereby teaching all men, eſpeciall Preachers of the word, to ſpend their houres profitably for the benefit of the Church, in ſupplanting her foes, and in ſupplying the number of her friends.

[i] Aretius in loc.

Peter

Peter ſtood vp in the middeſt of the Diſciples and ſaid] Here the[k] Papiſts obſerue Peters ſupreme power ouer the reſt of the Diſciples and Apoſtles, and ſo by conſequence though inconſequent the Popes abſolute command ouer all other Biſhops in the whole world. But if we will exactly conſider and examine his behauiour in this aſſembly, we ſhall vnderſtand that he carried himſelfe not as a Pope, but as a Peere toward them. 1. In calling them brethren, and frater is fere alter, as Lorinus vpon the place. 2. For that he ſtandeth vp in the middeſt of the Diſciples, equally referring all things vnto their [l] common conſent and free choice, terming himſelfe a fellow paſtor, 1 Pet. 5. 1. Whereas euery Biſhop aſſembled in the Tridentine Conuenticle tooke a corporall [m] oath that he would not diſpute any point to preiudice the Roman ſea, nay there was nothing determined in that irregular meeting, except it was firſt handled and hammered at Rome by the Pope, for then it was ordinarily ſaid in a by-word, that the Holy Ghoſt in a bull, or Popes breue was ſene from Rome to Trent, as [n] Chemnitius plainly told Andradius, In illo concilio idem actor, reus, & iudex. Our Diuines therefore ſay that Peter was elected prolocutor of this conuocation either by [o] ſecret reuelation of the Holy Ghoſt, or elſe by expreſſe iudgement of the [p] congregation: or for that he was vſually more feruent then the reſt in ſuch a buſineſſe, [q] & ardentior & rebus agendis aptior reliquis extiterat. [r] For it became him of all the Colledge beſt, as hauing denied Chriſt heretofore moſt. He ſtood vp and ſpake, as the mouth of the companie, but he plaied not the Pope, but onely the perſwader, exerciſing not a ſupremacy of authority, but a primacy of order, as Chryſoſtome and other note. See Goſpell 1. Sund. after Eaſter.

The number of names that were together were about an hundred & twentie.] The vulgar Latine reading turba hominum, anſwers not the Greeke ſo well as our text, turba nominum, the number of names. [s] For in exquiſite numbring vſually men are muſtred by their ſeuerall names, in [t] Councels eſpecially the names of ſuch as giue voices, are firſt inrolled in a bill or regiſters table. But by names, our Euangeliſt vnderſtands men, as the Holy Ghoſt [u] elſe-where, Thou haſt a few names yet in Sardi which had not defiled their garments. A few names, that is (as Bullinger and [x] other vpon the place) a few perſons. And [y] it may be that the ſacred ſpirit in vſing this phraſe doth inſinuate that they were men of eminent note, as Gen. 6. 4. The Giants are called men of renowne, that is (as Munſter tranſlates according to the Hebrew) viri nominati, men of name. Well, howſoeuer their names were great, their number was but ſmall, being about an hundred and twentie. By which it doth appeare, that the kingdome of heauen is like vnto a [z] graine of muſtard ſeed, the which in ſowing is indeed the leaſt of all ſeeds, but in growing it is the greateſt among herbes, euen a tree, ſo that the birds of heauen come and build in the branches thereof. Vnto theſe 120. [a] The Lord added daily ſuch as ſhould be ſaued: at one Sermon of S. Peter, Act. 2. the number of brethren was increaſed about 3000 ſoules. A [b] ſhip doth aptly reſemble the Church of Chriſt; for as a ſhip is ſmall in the foredecke, broad in the middle, little in the ſterne: ſo the Church in her beginning (as you ſee) was exceeding little, in her middle age flouriſhing, but in her old age her company will be ſo ſmall, and her beleefe ſo weake, that when the Sonne of God ſhall come to iudge the ſonnes of men, he ſhall ſcarce finde any faith on earth.

This Scripture muſt needs haue beene fulfilled] S. Peter in his oration here, firſt ſheweth how Iudas Apoſtleſhip became void Secondly, that it is needfull another ſhould be choſen into his place. Iudas Biſhopricke was loſt by treaſon, as being guide to them who tooke Ieſus. Whereupon (as we read in the [c] Goſpell) he did firſt accuſe himſelfe, I haue ſinned in betraying innocent blood: ſecondly, arraigne himſelfe, he repented and brought againe the thirtie plates of ſiluer to the chiefe Prieſt, and caſt them downe in the Temple: thirdly, execute himſelfe, he departed, and went, and hanged himſelfe. Now to take away the [d] ſcandall of this horrible fact, our Euangeliſt intimates that nothing in Iudas trechery came to paſſe caſually, but it was foreſeene of God, and foretold in his word, This Scripture

muſt

[k] Bellarm. de Rom. Pont. lib. 1. cap 22. in prin. Eckius loc. com. tit. de primat. Sed. Apoſt. Lorinus Rhem. & aly in loc.

[l] Chryſoſt. Dr. Fulke. Marlorat.

[m] Dr. Humphred. aduerſ. Campian & Duræum rat. 4.

[n] Præfat. in 1. part. exam. con. Trident.

[o] Beza.

[p] Caluin.

[q] Bullinger apud Marlorat.

[r] Aretius.

[s] Eraſmus annot. in loc.

[t] Caietan. in loc.

[u] Apocal. 3 4.

[x] Aretas. Meyer. Marlorat.

[y] Lorin. in loc. & Bullinger in Apocal. con. 16.

[z] Matth 13. 31

[a] Acts 2. 47.

[b] Hilarius.

[c] Matth. 27.

[d] Caluin. Beza.

must needs haue beene fulfilled. And [c] yet the fall of Iudas is not excuſed hereby, no more than the fault of Herod and Pilate, who did whatſoeuer Gods owne hand and counſell had determined before to be done, Act.4.28. For Iudas committed not this outragious crime by the compulſion of prophecie, but through his owne motion and malice. [f] His delight was in curſing, and it did happen vnto him: he loued not bleſſing, therefore was it farre from him. It is true that Peter ſaith, hee was numbred with vs, and had obtained fellowſhip in this miniſtration: but he receiued the grace of God in [g] vaine, abuſing it to couetouſneſſe and worldly luſts, he did open a doore to [h] Satan, and gaue him as it were poſſeſſion of his heart.

This neceſſitie then is not neceſſitas abſoluta, ſed [i] conſequentis & [k] ſuppoſitionis, a neceſſitie hypotheticall and by conſequent, not an abſolute or a ſimple neceſſitie. So the Holy Ghoſt elſewhere, [l] There muſt be hereſies, [m] it muſt needs be that offences ſhall come, [n] ye ſhall heare of warres, and of rumours of warres, for all theſe things muſt come to paſſe. That is, ſuppoſing the malice of Satan and wickednеſſe of man, it is impoſſible but that there ſhould be warres and offences, and hereſies in the world. [o] An Aſtrologer expert in his Art, foretelleth an eclipſe of the Sunne, yet his prediction is not any cauſe why the Sunne is eclipſed: euen ſo God foreſeeth all the workes of darkneſſe, and eclipſes (as it were) in the reprobate, but his preſcience compels not any to commit any ſinne. It is the prince of darkneſſe who [p] worketh in the children of diſobedience, taking them in his ſnares at his will, 2 Tim.2.26. All our waies are knowne vnto the Lord, our going out, and our comming in, Eſay 37.28. being of euery good pace bonus author, but of euery bad paſſage iuſtus vltor. I will end this argument in the words of [q] Auguſtine, Viuit (O Domine Deus) apud te ſemper bonum noſtrum, & quia inde auerſi ſumus peruerſi ſumus. For ſaith [r] he, ligatus eram non ferro alieno, ſed mea ferrea voluntate, velle meum tenebat inimicus, & inde mihi catenam fecerat & conſtrinxerat me, quippe ex voluntate peruerſa facta eſt libido, & dum ſeruitur libidini facta eſt conſuetudo, & dum conſuetudini non reſiſtitur, facta eſt neceſſitas. How the fall of traiterous Iſcariot may ſerue to terrifie the Paſtor, and teach alſo the people: See Goſpell 6. Sund. in Lent.

[c] Aretius. Kilius.

[f] Pſal.109.16.

[g] 2 Cor 6.1.
[h] Luk.22.3.
[i] Aretius.
[k] Lorin in loc. & in act.4.12. idem Thom. part.1.queſt.19. act.3.
[l] 1 Cor 11.19
[m] Matth.18.7.
[n] Matth.24.6
[o] Kilius collect. in loc.

[p] Epheſ.2.2.

[q] Conf. lib 5. cap.16.
[r] Confeſſ. lib.8. cap.5.

Wherefore of theſe men which haue companied with vs] Chriſt in his life choſe [f] twelue Apoſtles, one therefore muſt be ordained and elected into Iudas roome, to fill vp the number againe, [t] anſwerable to the twelue tribes of Iſrael, of which (as our Sauiour [u] promiſed) they ſhall be Iudges, and to the twelue [x] gates of heauenly Hieruſalem, of which alſo the twelue Apoſtles were builders, according to that of Paul, Epheſ.2.20. built vpon the foundation of the Apoſtles and Prophets, Ieſus Chriſt himſelfe, being the chiefe corner ſtone. See Epiſtle on S. Thomas day. There be many moe reſemblances of the twelue Apoſtles, as you may read in my firſt ſermon vpon the Goſpell, Sund. 6. in Lent; [x] and in Caſſanaus Catalog. part. 3. conſiderat. 29.

[f] Matth.10.2. Marke 3.14.
[t] Aretius.
[u] Mat.19.28.
[x] Apoc.21.11.

One muſt be choſen, and one of theſe men, ergo, not a Pope Ioane, for a woman muſt be [y] ſilent and not a [z] teacher in the Temple; one of theſe men, ergo, not a boy Biſhop, not a [a] yonker in yeeres, or [b] ſchollerſhip, for Paſtors are called elders, and Chriſt himſelfe preached not vntill he was thirtie yeeres old: one of theſe which haue companied with vs, ergo, [c] not a ſtranger, but a domeſticall, one that is knowne, a man of note liuing among vs all the time that the Lord Ieſus was conuerſant among vs, [d] ergo, not a lewd or ignorant perſon, but a proficient in Chriſts owne ſchoole, brought vp euen from his [e] youth in [f] inſtruction and information of the Lord. See Goſpell on S. Andrew, and 8. Sund. after Trinitie.

[y] 1 Cor 14.34.
[z] 1 Tim.2.12.
[a] Ardens.
[b] 1 Tim.3.6.
[c] Sarcerius. Aretius
[d] Ardens.
[e] 2 Tim.3.15.
[f] Epheſ.6.4.

But why ſhould one being ſuch an one be choſen into Iudas roome? to witneſſe with vs of the reſurrection of Chriſt. A Prelate then [g] ought to be predicant, not an Idle or an Idoll Apoſtle, like the dumbe Doctors, and Abbey-lubbers, and lazie lay Biſhops vnder the gouernment of the Pope. Right prelating (as old Father [h] Latimer ſaid) is labouring, and not lording or loytering, it is [i] horrour rather then honour, for an Apoſtle to leaue the text, and only to follow the tith. A witneſſe he muſt be, [k] yet not a witneſſe alone, broaching inſolent nouelties and other [g] Caluin. Marlorat.

[h] Sermon of the plough.
[i] Latimer. ſer.4. before K. Ed.
[k] Aretius.

[l] other doctrines of his owne braine: but a witneſſe with vs, of one [m] heart and of one [n] minde with vs, [o] endeuouring to keepe the vnitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace. For he who ſeekes in the troubleſome ſea of this world to ſchiſmaticall Apoſtles affecting ſingularitie; Non portum ſed planctum inueniet, as [p] Auguſtine pithily.

Well, the new choſen ought to record and accord, to witneſſe and to witneſſe with vs, agreeing with the reſt of his Colledge and company. But whereof is he to be a witneſſe? of the reſurrection of Chriſt, [q] in all his words, & in all his works: in his preaching and in his life ſo behauing himſelfe, as one that beleeues the reſurrection of Chriſt, and hopeth alſo for his owne redemption, euer [r] looking for his Sauiour, euen the Lord Ieſus, who ſhall change our vile body, that it may be like to his glorious body. Or a witneſſe of the reſurrection of Chriſt, becauſe this one point is, [s] primarium Euangely caput, as it were [t] the predominant article, [u] preſuppoſing all the reſt, as being the [x] tying knot, on which all other linkes of holy beleefe depend, as I haue ſhewed often elſewhere; but eſpecially Goſp. on S. Thomas, and Epiſt. on S. Andrewes day.

And they appointed two] They nominated more than one, [y] that the Lord who knew the hearts of all men, might chuſe the partie that ſhould take the roome of the miniſtration and Apoſtleſhip, from which Iudas by tranſgreſſion fell: and that Matthias might acknowledge that he receiued it (as Paul ſpeakes) not of man, but by the reuelation of Ieſus Chriſt, Gal. 1. 12. [z] The world is a circle, God is as it were the center of this circle, the wayes of men are lines deduced from this center. [a] If then euent of the Lotterie be not expected of deuils, nor of the ſtars, nor of any force of fortune, but looked and prayed for to be directed by God, it is lawfull to vſe lots in temporall things; as in diuiſion of lands and inheritance, Prou. 18. 18 The lot cauſeth contentions to ceaſe, and maketh a partition among the mightie. And in ſpirituall affaires alſo; for it is reported of Zacharias the Prieſt, that his lot was to burne incenſe, Luk. 1. 9. And though ordinary chuſing of Prelates and Preachers ought not to be by lot, as both [b] Heathens and [c] Chriſtians in this agree: yet in ſome caſes extraordinary (to wit, if two or three ſhall happen to ſtand in election, of ſuch equall holineſſe and other ſufficiencie, that humane wiſdome cannot any waies diſcerne, and ſo decide which is moſt fit) it is [e] lawfull according to the preſident in our Text, to caſt lots, and ſo commit the diſpoſition of the choice to God. In the lawfull vſing of a Lottery then obſerue theſe remarkable [f] caueats.

1. We muſt expect the lots euent from God onely: Prou. 16. 33. The lot is caſt into the lap, but the whole diſpoſition thereof is of the Lord.

2. We may not vſe lots in affaires ordinarie, but in caſes of neceſſity, when as the buſineſſe cannot otherwiſe be tranſacted.

3. We muſt abandon all vncharitable conceits, and all diſhonourable deceits: Pſalm. 5. 6. The Lord will abhorre the deceitfull man, and deſtroy ſuch as ſpeake leaſing.

4. We muſt before we caſt lots (as the bleſſed Apoſtle here) call vpon God in hearty praier for a bleſſing on our endeuours.

I could adde eaſily more, but I remember [g] Auguſtines rule, Secundas habeat partes modeſtiæ, quæ primas non potuit habere ſapientiæ. If any know leſſe than I, they may be bold to peruſe this, and ſuch as vnderſtand more than I, may reade Auguſtin. epiſt. 180. & de doct. Chriſt. lib. 1. cap. 28. & con. . . in Pſalm. 30. Thomas 2 2æ. quæſt. 95. art. 8. Bellarmin. lib. de clericis cap. 5. Sixt. Senens vbi ſupra in marg. Aretius, Marlorat, Kilius in loc.

And the lot fell on Matthias.] In the Tabernacle the [h] curtaines of fine twined linnen, and blew ſilke and purple, were couered with curtaines of Goats haire. Some men are great ornaments in the Church, and yet vnfit to gouerne the Church. [i] Ornent Eccleſiam qui ſolis rebus ſpiritualibus vacant, regant eccleſiam quos & labor rerum corporalium non grauat, &c. [k] It may be Ioſeph as being iuſt was a fine curtaine in Gods Tabernacle, but Matthias a couering; as being apt and

[l] 1 Tim. 1. 3.
[m] Acts 4. 32.
[n] Philip 2 2.
[o] Ephes. 4. 3.
[p] Tract. 1. in Ioan.
[q] Ardens.
[r] Philip. 3 20.
[s] Caluin.
[t] Aretius.
[u] Gorræus in Rom 10.
[x] Nexus articulorum omnium, vti Martyr. in Rom 10.
[y] Dionyſ. Areopag. apud Baron. ad an 34. idem Caluin in Inſt. lib 4. cap 3 §. 13 & Beruſ. ſer. 1 in feſt. Matth. Bellarm. lib. de clericis cap. 5. & Aret. in loc.
[z] Dorotheus doct. 6.
[a] Rhem. in loc.
[b] Dionyſ. Halicar. Rom. hiſt. lib. 2.
[c] Cap. Eccleſ. extra de ſortilegijs.
[e] Iuſtus Ionas in loc. Ambroſ. in 1. Luc. Bellarm vbi ſup.
[f] See Kilius Collect. in loc. Sixt. Senen. bib. ſanct lib. 5. annot. 166.
[g] Epiſt. 7.
[h] Exod. 26.
[i] Gregor. Moral. lib 25. cap. 12.
[k] Didac. de Yanguas con. 1. in feſt. Mat.

and actiue for gouernment. Alia ratio boni ciuis & boni viri, quoth [l] Aristotle, euery good man is not a good magistrate. [m] Are all Apostles, are all Prophets, are all teachers? There be diuersities of gifts, and diuersities of administrations, and diuersities of operations. Hapily Ioseph excelled in one kinde, and Matthias in another. He who knew to iudge best of the best for this ministration, in his secret wisdome cast the lot on Matthias. Or in electing Matthias, he did insinuate that his [n] waies are not as our waies, and that he iudgeth according to the hearts of all men, and not [o] after the flesh, or titles, or outside. Ioseph is called [p] Barsabas, that is, the sonne of rest and innocency, surnamed also for his singular honesty Iustus. And yet Matthias is chosen of God, how soeuer not adorned with such commendations before men. [q] Here the Gospell and Epistle meet. I thanke thee Father Lord of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast shewed them vnto babes, euen so was it thy good pleasure. The lot falleth on the sonne of labour, afflicted with the load of sinne, not on the iust, or on the sonne of rest, on Matthias, and not on Barsabas.

[l] Æthic. lib. 5. cap. 2.
[m] 1 Cor. 12. 29.
[n] Esay 55. 8.
[o] Ioh. 8. 15.
[p] Caluin in loc.
[q] Ferus ser 1. de S. Matt.

The Gospell. MATTH. 11. 25.

In that time Iesus answered and said, I thanke thee (O Father) Lord of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast shewed them vnto babes, &c.

CHrists exceeding rich mercy toward vs is manifested in this Scripture by two things especially: to wit, his inuocation of God, I thanke thee O Father, &c. And his inuitation of men, Come vnto me all ye that labour, &c.

In both ioyned together, he that hath an eye to see may behold the chiefe [r] causes of our effectuall vocation
- Efficient, the good pleasure of God the Father, Lord of heauen and earth, &c.
- Materiall, babes, and all such as labour and are heauy laden.
- Instrumentall, Iesus, vnto whom all things are giuen.
- Finall, refreshing and rest in soule.

[r] Aretius in loc.

I thanke thee] [t] Prayer and thanksgiuing vnto God for benefits obtained in prayer, ought alwayes to concurre. Christ had often heretofore prayed for the gathering together of the Church, as it was prophesied of him in the second Psalme; Desire of me, and I will giue thee the Heathen for thine inheritance, and the vttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. And now his prayer being heard, he rendreth vnto God his praise, Father, I thanke thee Lord of heauen and earth. In which one line [s] three wicked errours are confuted: first, the words (I thanke thee) confound the Iewes, affirming that Christ was a [u] blasphemer. Secondly, Father, ouerthroweth Arians, and all such as deny Christ to be Gods eternall Sonne. Thirdly, heauen crosseth the Manicheans opinion, holding God to be Creator of visible things only, but not of inuisible.

[t] Melanct. in loc.
[s] Pet. de palud. in loc.
[u] Matth. 26.

Because thou hast hid these things from the wise] He did not absolutely thanke his Father for hiding the mysteries of his sauing grace from the wise: [x] but for that he reuealed them vnto babes. You may reade the like phrase, Rom. 6. 17. God be thanked that ye haue beene the seruants of sin, but ye haue obtained from the heart vnto the forme of the doctrine which was deliuered vnto you. [y] The blessed Apostle did not giue thanks vnto God, for that the Romans had made their members as weapons of iniquitie: but because they who sometime were the seruants of sin, through his grace were now the seruants of righteousnes, as Primasius vpon the place, Gratias Deo quia fuistis, sed ipso liberatore iam non estis. Euen so Christ here thankes his Father primarily, not for hiding these things from the wise (that is, wise in their [z] owne eyes, or wise men after the [a] flesh, endued with a wisdome which

[x] Illephouf. Giron. fragment. in præsens euangel. idem. Pet. de palud. ex Chrysost.
[y] Caluin & Caietan in Rom. 6
[z] Prou. 3. 7.
[a] 1 Cor. 1. 26.

which is earthly, ſenſuall, and deuilliſh, Iames 3. 15.) but becauſe though he ſuffer the prince of darkneſſe to [b] blinde the mindes of the worldly wiſe: yet he doth openly ſhew the glorious light of the Goſpell vnto babes: that is, vnto ſuch as became [c] fooles that they may be wiſe, wholly renouncing their owne wit, and ſolely ſubmitting themſelues vnto Gods will. If Ieſus [d] reioyced in the Spirit, and magnified the Lord of heauen and earth for vs; [e] O what thankes ought our ſelues to preſent vnto God for our ſelues. Praiſe the Lord, O my ſoule, and all that is within me praiſe his holy name. For mine eyes haue ſeene thy ſaluation, and mine heart hath often endited a good matter, and my pen ſometimes is the pen of a ready writer. O Father of mercie, whereas theſe things are yet hid from the Iewes, and from the Turkes, and from the ſuperſtitious Heathen, and from carnall Chriſtians; I haue, to the great refreſhing of my ſoule, through thy grace (ſweet Ieſu) both heard by the Goſpell, and embraced the Goſpell, and preached the Goſpell, and in ſome meaſure practiſed alſo the Goſpell. [f] O my ſoule praiſe the Lord, and forget not all his benefits. I will ſing vnto the Lord as long as I liue, I will praiſe my God while I haue any being, Pſal. 104. 33.

[b] 2 Cor. 4. 4.

[c] 1 Cor. 3 18.
[d] Luk. 10 21.
[e] Mart. Molleius ſer. in feſt. Mat.

[f] Pſal. 103. 2.

The ſweteſt of hony lieth in the bottome; I paſſe therefore from Chriſts inuocation, to the latter part of this Goſpell his inuitation.

In which obſerue the
- Mouer, Ieſus.
- Moued, all that labour and are laden.
- Motion, Come, take my yoke vpon you, learne of me.
- Motiues, I will eaſe you, ye ſhall finde reſt vnto your ſoules, for my yoke is eaſie, and my burthen light.

The perſon inuiting is Ieſus, he ſaith here come, not to mine, [g] but to me: not to my Saints, or Angels, or Martyrs, or Mother: but to my ſelfe. Send not other, it is my pleaſure that ye come: ſeeke not for helpe from other, I will eaſe you. Come vnto me, [h] for I am the way, the truth, and the life. The way by which, and the truth in which, and the life for which all of you come. None can come but by me, none finde eaſe but in me, none reſt in eaſe but with me. Come therefore, for I am the way: learne of me, for I am the truth: and ye ſhall finde reſt vnto your ſoules, for I am the life. Come to me, [i] for I am (as you ſee) willing, in ſaying come, and able to releeue you: for that all things are giuen vnto me. So that [k] aske, and ye ſhall haue: ſeeke, and ye ſhall finde: knocke, and it ſhall be opened vnto you. [l] Whatſoeuer ye ſhall ake the Father in my name, he will giue it you.

[g] Vide reſpon. Elienſis ad apolog. Bellar. cap. 8.
[h] Ioh. 14. 6.

[i] Muſculus in loc.

[k] Matth. 7. 7.
[l] Ioh. 16. 23.

None can come to the Father except it be by the Sonne; for no man knoweth the Father ſaue the Sonne, and he to whomſoeuer the Sonne will open him. In ſaying ſaue the Sonne, he doth not exclude the holy Spirit being the third perſon in Trinitie, for it is a good concluſion in Diuinitie, [m] dictio excluſiua ſiue exceptiua addita termino perſonali in eſſentialibus non excludit ab altera perſona diuina. God the Father, and God the Holy Ghoſt, as being all one with the Son, are in the words (niſi filius) included, and only the creatures excluded. For none know the Father by [n] nature, but by the reuelation of the Sonne. We ſpeake the wiſdome of God in a myſterie (ſaith [o] Paul) which none of the Princes of this world knew, hunc magnus Plato neſciuit, eloquẽs Demoſthenes ignorauit. It is true that we may know by the light of humane diſcourſe that there is a God, for the [p] Godhead is ſeene by the creation of the world: The heauens declare the glory of God, and the firmament ſheweth his handie worke, Pſalm 19. 1. Yet none know the Father, [q] that is, a diſtinction of the perſons in ſacred Trinitie, but by the ſpirit of him in whom are hid all the treaſures of wiſdome and knowledge, Coloſſ. 2. 3. And this our reuealed knowledge is but [r] imperfect in this life. They who ſaw moſt of God obtained onely the ſight of his hinder parts. And in the kingdome of glory, when as we ſhall enioy the beholding of his fore-parts alſo, ſeeing him euen face to face; our knowledge ſhall not be [ſ] comprehenſionis cognitio, ſed apprehenſionis, an apprehending rather than a comprehending of his infinite Maieſty. We ſhall not euen in that day know ſo much of the Father, as the Father knoweth of himſelfe, [m] Caietan. Ludolphus. Beauxamis in loc.

[n] Hieron. in loc.
[o] 1 Cor. 2. 7.

[p] Rom. 1. 20.

[q] Caietan.

[r] 1 Cor. 13 2.
[ſ] Pet. palud. in loc. ex Auguſt idem Thom. part. 1 queſt 12 art. 8. & Caietan ibidem.

So la

[t] Solà quippe trinitas in vnitatis diuinitate seipsam nouit. In this life wee shall attaine by Christs grace to such vnderstanding of God as is fit, and in the world to come we shall haue so much as is full, euen so much as any created vessell is able to containe; yet none shall euer totally comprehend that incomprehensible Trinitie, none can as it selfe know it selfe. &c.

[t] Martialis Episc. Lemouicen. ad Burdegal. epist. 10.

Hitherto concerning the partie calling; I am now to speake of the persons inuited. All ye that labour and are heauy laden He doth except[u] none, who came to bring [x] all vnto the knowledge of the trueth, [y] if all that labour, then all that liue. For man borne of a woman is full of trouble, Iob. 14. 1. Come therefore all yee that labour in your [z] actions, and are laden in your passions. All yee [a] Iewes who labour vnder the yoke of the law, and all ye Gentiles oppressed with the burthen of your sinnes. All yee that labour whersoeuer, and whensoeuer, and howsoeuer afflicted or affected with miserie. For these two, labour, and laden are (as [b] some conceiue) simply in the same, signifying all kinde of griefe, sores, and sorrow whatsoeuer. As in the 6. and 69, Psalmes, I am weary of my groaning, I am weary of my crying, &c.

[u] Luther. Melanct. Bullenger.
[x] 1 Tim. 2. 4.
[y] Ferus ser. 2. in Fest. Matth.
[z] Caietan.
[a] Theophylact.
[b] Iansen Con. cap. 47.

To speake more distinctly, there is a[c] threefold burden, namely, the burthen of { Affliction. / The Law. / Sinne.

[c] Pontanus ser. in fest. Matth. Idem Iansen. vbi sup

Christ easeth all such as come to him of all these. Concerning the first, Great trauell (saith the sonne of [d] Sirach) is created for all men, and a heauy yoke vpon the sonnes of Adam, euen vpon the day that that they goe out of the mothers wombe, till the day that they returne to the mother of all things. But Christ, a [e] refuge in due time of trouble, yea, a [f] present helpe, doth either take away this burthen from our shoulders, or else giueth vnto such as come to him abundant strength and patience to beare it. Art thou crossed in thy goods? It is the Lord who giueth, and the Lord who taketh away. [g] Cast all your care vpon him, and he will so care for you, that this burthen shall bee made light, and this yoke easie. Art thou wronged in thy good name? Say with [i] Dauid, it may be the Lord will looke vpon mine affliction, and doe me good, for Shemi his cursing me this day. Come to Christ, and hee will bring it to passe, that thy greatest enemie shall (if hee haue any sparke of grace) confesse ingenuously to thee (as [k] Saul once to Dauid) Thou art more righteous then I, for thou hast rendred me good, and I haue rendred thee euill. He shall make thy righteousnesse as cleare as the light, and thy iust dealing as the noone day. Psal. 37. 6. Art thou much afflicted with sickenesse? I (saith the Lord) am he, who kill, and giue life, wound, and make whole, [m] bring downe to the graue, and raise vp againe. I am the resurrection and the life, he that beleeueth in me, though hee were dead, yet shall he liue. Iohn 11, 25.

[d] Eccles 40. 1.
[e] Psal 9 9.
[f] Psal 46. 1
[g] Iob 1. 21.
[h] 1. Pet. 5. 7.
[i] 2. Sam. 16. 12.
[k] 1 Sam. 24. 18
[l] Deut. 33. 39.
[m] 1. Sam 2. 6.

The second burden is that of the Law, a yoke which neither our fathers nor wee were able to beare, saith S. Peter. Act. 15. 10. a yoke of [n] bondage, a [o] heauy burthen, and grieuous to be borne. Now Christ easeth vs of this burthen also, being [p] made vnder the Law, to redeeme them vnder the law. He [q] blotted out the hand-writting of ordinances that was against vs, which was contrary to vs, and tooke it out of the way, nayling it to the Crosse. So that if Satan, that informer and common accuser of vs all, obiect the Lawes obligation against vs, our answere may be, that the debt is payed, and the bond cancelled. If his euidence be good, let him if he can shew it in the court. Christ is the end of the Law, Rom. 10. 4. For the Law was added because of the transgression, vntill the blessed seed came, to the which, the promise was made, Galath. 3. 19. The Prophets and the Law did endure till Iohn, but since [r] the kingdome of heauen suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force, The blessed seed is come, when once Christ [s] dwelleth in our hearts by faith, and then it is time for the Law to be packing out of the conscience, then her kingdome is at an end. Come therefore to Christ all yee that labour vnder the yoke of the Law written, and all ye which [n] Galath 5. 1.

[o] Matth 23 4.
[p] Galath. 4. 4.
[q] Colos 2. 14.
[r] Matth. 11. 12.
[s] Ephes 3. 17.

are laden with the burden of pharisaicall traditions vnwritten, and yee shall finde rest vnto your soules.

[t] Zachar.5.7.
[a] Psal.38.3.

The third burthen is of sinne, the which is so weightie, that [t] Zacharias cals it a talent of lead, and [a] Dauid who felt the load himselfe saith of it expresly, There is no health in my flesh because of thy displeasure, neither is there any rest in bones by reason of my sinne, for my wickednesses are gone ouer my head, and are like a sore burthen too heauy for me to beare. And here let vs obserue with [x] Euthymius, That sinne is first a labour in accomplishing, and then a load when it is accomplished The couetous, incontinent, ambitious, exceedingly labour to compasse their vnlawfull desires, and yet when all is done, they remaine still as men vndone. For no man is more begger-like, then a couetous wretch in an opulent fortune, nor more base, then a proud man in the midst of his honour. There is a labour in getting these things, and when once they be got, a load. [y] All is but vanitie and vexation of spirit. They who truely repent them of their sinne, feele this burthen in this world, and they who being irrepentant, are in a [z] reprobate sence, shall at the last day notwithstanding confesse to their endlesse shame, [a] We haue wearied our selues in the wayes of Wickednesse and destruction. Now Christ saith vnto such as grieue and groane vnder the burden of their sinnes, [b] I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. [c] The spirit of the Lord is vpon me that I should preach the Gospell vnto the poore, hee hath sent me that I should heale the broken hearted, that I should preach deliuerance to the captiues, and recouering of sight to the blinde.

[x] In loc.
[y] Eccles.1.14
[z] Rom.1.28.
[a] Wis.5.7.
[b] Matth 9.13
[c] Luke 4.18.

He calleth all that labour, [d] siue secundum naturam in qua nascimur; siue secundum culpam qua transgredimur; siue secundum pœnam in qua morimur. All men, as you haue heard sufficiently, [e] yet only such as labour and are laden with the burden of their sinnes efficiently. The carnall and careless haue [f] eyes and see not, eares and heare not, hearts and vnderstand not. [g] How often would I (saith he who calleth all) haue gathered you together, as the hen gathereth her chickens vnder her wings, and yee would not? And in this present chapter at the seuenteenth verse, Wee haue piped vnto you, and yee haue not danced, we haue mourned vnto you and ye haue not lamented. That is, as ([h] Ambrose construeth it) we haue preached vnto you the sweet comforts of the Gospel, and ye haue not reioyced in spirit: we haue denounced vnto you the terrible iudgements of God contained in the Law, and ye haue not trembled at our words. O thinke on this all yee that forget God, all yee that stop your eares and harden your hearts at his voyce; repent and exhort one another [i] while it is to day, seeke the Lord while he may be found, and call vpon him, and come vnto him while he is neere, Esay 55.6.

[d] Ludolph de vita Christ part. 1. cap. 58.
[e] Musculus. Caluin. Guon.
[f] Matth.13.14
[g] Matth.23.37
[h] Ser.80.
[i] Hebr.3.13.

Yea, but where shall we finde thee, sweet Iesus? I am (saith he) found in my works, and in my words, and in my Sacraments. In my works: [k] for they beare witnesse of me, they shew that by me the blinde receiue sight, and halt goe and the leapers are clensed, and the dead are raised vp Matth.11.5. In my word, for the [l] Scriptures are they which testifie of me. There you shall reade, how God so loued the world, that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoeuer beleeueth in him should not perish but haue euerlasting life. Iohn 3.16. In my Sacraments, [m] He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood dwelleth in me, and I in him: if yee come to my table, yee shall be refreshed with my flesh and my bloud, [n] reficieris si accesseris, deficies si recesseris.

[k] Iohn 10. 25.
[l] Iohn 5.39.
[m] Iohn 6.56.
[n] August. tract. 11. in Ioan.

I come now to the comming or motion, and that is by [o] faith and not by feet, moribus non pedibus, by loue not by legs: come to me then in faith, and take my yoke vpon you in hope, and learne of me meekenesse and lowlinesse in loue; [p] he that comes to God must beleeue that God is, and that hee is a rewarder of such as seeke him: hee must in hope beare Christs yoke, the which in respect of the present labour is heauy; but in respect of the [q] future retribution hoped for, easie: to faith he must adioyne loue, whereof there bee two principall obiects, and two principall offices: the principall obiects of our loue are God and our neighbours, neighbours, [r] lowlineſſe in heart diſpoſeth aright of our loue toward God, and meekeneſſe ſheweth how we ſhould demeane our ſelues in our carriage toward our neighbours: the two principall offices of our loue are to giue and to forgiue; lowlineſſe is ready to giue euery man his due, meekeneſſe to forgiue euery man his debt: or we muſt be [f] mites moribus & humiles mentibus, in our outward behauiour towards other meeke; in our inward conceit of our ſelues humble; lowly, not in complement or habit only, but in heart: for as the [t] Wiſeman telleth vs, there be ſome that being about wicked purpoſes, doe bow downe themſelues and are ſad, whoſe inward parts burne altogether with deceit: he looketh downe with his face, and faineth himſelfe deafe: yet before thou perceiue he will bee vpon thee to hurt thee.

[o] Remigius apud Thom. in loc. Idem Ludolph. vbi supra.
[p] Heb.11.6.
[q] Theophylact. in loc.

[u] Chriſt would not haue vs imitate him in his miracles, as in walking vpon the waters, in raiſing the dead, in making a new world: but in his moralls, in his meekeneſſe and lowlines eſpecially, for theſe vertues are the leſſons he teacheth, in whom are hid all the treaſures of Wiſdome and knowledge: it is ſo great a thing in our owne eyes to be little, that no man is able to learne it of any, but of him onely, who being in the [x] forme of God, tooke vpon him the forme of a ſeruant, and became man, yea a [y] worme and no man, a very ſcorne of men, and out-caſt of the people: termed Apocalyp. 1. 8. the firſt and the laſt; in maieſtie the firſt, in [z] meekneſſe as the laſt; his whole life being nothing elſe but an open booke, or rather an open ſhop of humilitie: deſcend then, if thou wilt aſcend, if thou deſire to build high, and to ſeeke the things aboue, lay thy foundation low; humbleneſſe of mind is [a] ſchola and ſcala cœli, the ſchoole teaching, and the ſcale reaching heauen.

[b] Quo minor eſt quiſquis maximus eſt Hominum.

I will eaſe you] [c] The world cryeth, ego deficiam I will leaue you: the fleſh cryeth ego inficiam, I will corrupt you: the deuill cryeth, ego interficiam, I will deſtroy you: but he (which is [d] verax, verus, veritas, euer ſpeaking the truth, as euer being the trueth) oppoſeth himſelfe againſt all theſe mortall enemies, and ſaith, ego reficiam, I will eaſe you. This one clauſe then, is the very cloſe, yea the very [e] ſumme of the whole Goſpell, in as much as all our learning and labouring is for this end, that we may finde refreſhing and reſt vnto our ſoules in the end. The Latine reficiam hath [f] three ſignifications.

1. Reficere, is to repaire or renew. Matth. 4, 21. reficientes retia Iames and Iohn were mending their nets, &c. and ſo Chriſt as being [g] the brightneſſe of Gods glory and his expreſſe character of his perſon, reſtoreth againe Gods image defaced in vs through Adams fall, vt recreatio creationi reſponderet, ſaith [h] Aquine, that the redemption of the world might anſwere the creation; he who firſt made, now mendeth vs, all of vs being the [i] workemanſhip of God in Chriſt as creatures and as new creatures: as creatures, for in the beginning was the Word all things were made by it, and without it was made nothing that was made: as [k] new ceatures, for Chriſt Ieſus is the new man we muſt [l] put on, of whom we muſt learne meekneſſe and lowlineſſe, that we may walke in newneſſe of life. Rom. 6. 4.

2. Reficere, doth ſignifie to ſtrengthen with meat, in which acception a common hall in a Colledge where the ſocietie meet and eat together, is called a refectorie; now Chriſt hath a two-fold refectorie for all ſuch as come vnto him, one in his kingdome of grace, when he [m] prepareth a table for vs in deſpight of our foe, refreſhing vs with the food of his word, of his ſupper, of his examples vntill we are made fat, Prou. 28. 25. euen ſo full and faire, that the Church in admiration hereof asketh her beſt beloued, [n] ſhew me where thou feedeſt? another refectorie Chriſt hath in his kingdome of glory, Luke 22. 30. Yee ſhall eate and drinke at my table in my kingdome, there God hath prepared for thoſe that loue him a banquet of ſuch delicates as eye hath not ſeene, neither eare hath heard, neither heart of man able to conceiue. 1. Cor. 2. 9. [o] Sentiri poteſt, dici non poteſt. Come then vnto me all ye [p] that hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſſe, and I will feed you, feaſt you, fill you, feed you with the [q] ſincere milke of my doctrine, feaſt you

[r] Beauxamis Har. Tom. 2. fol. 269.

[f] Rabanus apud. Thom.

[t] Eccleſ. 19. 25.

[u] Auguſt de verb. Apoſt ſer. 21 & lib. de Virgin. cap 35.

[x] Philip. 2. 6.

[y] Pſal. 22. 6.

[z] Gloſſ.

[a] Bonauent. diet. ſalut cap. 36.

[b] Hildebert. in epitaph. Berengary apud Malmeſ. in vita Will. 1.

[c] Bernard.

[d] Auguſt. de verb Apoſt. ſer. 21.

[e] Culman in loc.

[f] Vide Giron. Con. 2 in feſt. Matth.

[g] Heb. 1. 3.

[h] Part. 1. quæſt. 3. art. 8.

[i] Epheſ. 2. 10.

[k] 2. Cor. 5. 17.

[l] Rom. 12, 14.

[m] Pſal. 23. 5.

[n] Can. 1. 6.

[o] Rupert. in Matth. 11.

[p] Matth. 5. 6.

[q] 1. Pet 2. 2.

you with a cheerfulneſſe of conſcience which is a [r] continuall feaſt, fill you with an ouerflowing cup in the ſtate of glory: come to me, nay if you will open the wicket of your heart when I knocke and deſire to come to you, I will ſup with you, and you ſhall alſo ſup with me, Apocalyp. 3. 20.

[r] Prou. 15. 15.

3. Reficere, ſignifieth as our text runneth here, to refreſh and to eaſe ſuch as labour and are laden, and this [t] expreſſeth the word ἀναπαύσω beſt; and is moſt agreeable to the clauſe going afore, labour and are laden & the words following after, reſt, eaſie, light: as if he ſhould haue ſayd, [r] I will eaſe ſuch as labour, and giue reſt vnto ſuch as are laden, I will make their heauy burden light, and their hard yoke eaſie, ſo that they ſhall count it exceeding ioy to fall into diuers temptations, Iames 1. 2. as ſorrowing, and yet alway reioycing, 2. Cor. 6. 10. [u] bleſſed in eating the labours of their hands. As men of the world are [x] infæliciter fœlices, vnhappy in being ſo much happy: ſo the children of God are fœliciter infœlices, happy in feeling their load, and vnderſtanding their vnhappineſſe, for [y] God is faithfull, and will not ſuffer his children to be tempted aboue their abilitie, but will euen with the temptation make a way to eſcape, that they may be able to beare it. This eaſe Paul found vnto the reſt of his ſoule, 2. Cor. 4. 8. We are troubled on euery ſide yet are wee not in diſtreſſe: perplexed but not in deſpaire: perſecuted, but not forſaken, caſt downe but yet not caſt away. A [z] Phyſitian (albeit he bee neuer ſo skifull in his Art) cannot abſolutely promiſe that he will eaſe you: his comforts are, I will endeauour to giue you reſt, if I can I will helpe you, neither inuention of wit, or intention of will, I aſſure you ſhall be wanting: but Chriſt here ſaith, I will, I can, as hauing all things giuen vnto me of my Father; and I will, as being [a] ſent into the world to comfort ſuch as mourne in Sion.

[t] Ianſenius. Marloral.
[r] Suaue contra laborem. leue contra onus. Caietan. in loc.
[u] Pſal. 128. 2.
[x] Auguſtin. in Pſal. 127.
[y] 1. Cor. 10. 13.
[z] Muſculus in loc.
[a] Eſay 16. 1.

Yee ſhall find reſt vnto your ſoules] [b] Some finde reſt in their bodie, but not in their ſoule, as the Glotton, mentioned Luke 16. his bodie was richly clothed, and deliciouſly pampered euery day, but his ſoule (ſo full of ſores as Lazarus at his gate) found no reſt: [c] one drop of a bad conſcience did drinke vp as it were the whole ſea of his worldly delights; ſome find reſt in their ſoule, but not in their body; ſo the ſeruants of God are ſaid to [d] reioyce in tribulations, as the bleſſed Apoſtles. Act. 5. afflicted in body, reioyced in ſpirit, becauſe they were counted worthy to ſuffer for Chriſts Name: ſome neither in bodie nor ſoule, as the damned in hell, hauing [e] pœnarum & diuerſitatem & vniuerſitatem, a fire to torment the bodie, a worme to torture the ſoule. Eſay 66. 24. ſome both in bodie and in ſoule, as Gods elect in heauen, who reſt from their labour, Apocalyp. 14. 13. and from their griefe, for [f] God ſhall wipe away all teares from their eyes, and there ſhall be no more dying, or crying: and from their feare, Iob 11. 19. When thou takeſt thy reſt, none ſhall affright thee: come then vnto me all ye that labour and are laden, and ye ſhall finde reſt here begun, hereafter accompliſhed fully: yee ſhall finde, [g] not by your owne induſtrie, but through my grace, firſt I will eaſe you, then yee ſhall finde reſt vnto your ſoules: vnleſſe I giue you meanes to ſeeke, yee cannot finde, if you will haue it, I pray come to me for it.

[b] Pet. de Palud.
[c] Luther loc. con tit. de furijs malæ conſcien.
[d] Rom. 5. 3.
[e] Bonauent. diet. ſalu. cap. 49.
[f] Apocal. 21. 4.
[g] Muſculus.

For my yoke is eaſie, and my burden light] [h] Some conſtrue this of Chriſts humilitie, becauſe meeke and lowly perſons haue more reſt and eaſe than the proud and ambitious, euer labouring for higher place; per quot pericula peruenitur ad grandius periculum? as [i] Auguſtine ſweetly. The Courtier is indeed reſtie, yet reſtleſſe: [k] if he turne gallant, he ſhall bee condemned as vaine: if otherwiſe, diſgraced with the titles of baſeneſſe: if he follow his ſtudies, he ſhall be thought dangerous; if not, argued of ignorance: if hee haue trauelled, his ſeruice will be queſtioned: if not, hee ſhall bee reputed vncapable of imployment. So miſerable is his eſtate, that his imperfections are hated, his vertues ſuſpected, and either of them both alike able to barre him from preferment. [l] Hee muſt euer ſtudie not ſo much to haue friends, as to beware of his enemies. In a word, there is leſſe ſeruice in ſeruing of God then the King: for the King hath onely ſome few houres of audience, whereas God, ſaith, At what time ſoeuer a ſinner doth

[h] Theophylact. Euthym.
[i] Confeſſ. lib. 8. cap. 6
[k] See reſolued Gentleman, pag. 14.
[l] Guevara epiſt.

doth repent of his ſinne from the bottome of his heart, I will put all his wickedneſſe out of my remembrance.

But [m] moſt Interpreters vnderſtand this of Chriſts Goſpell and doctrine, [n] for his burthen is light vnto ſuch as he refreſheth and eaſeth from the burthen of ſinne, his commandements are not heauie to them whoſe faith ouercommeth the world, 1. Iohn 5.3. A [o] yoke when it is greene is heauie, but when it is ſomewhat worne, eaſie. Now Chriſt himſelfe did firſt weare this yoke, that it might be ſeaſoned and made light for vs. If he commanded other to faſt, he himſelfe faſted: if he commanded other to pray, himſelfe prayed: if he commanded other to forgiue, himſelfe pardoned: if he commanded other to die, himſelfe alſo died, &c. And therefore ſaith he, learne of me. [p] For this yoke will appeare to be ſweet, if once you be well acquainted with it as I am. It [q] is my yoke, not yours. I put my ſhoulder vnto the burthen, and beare more than you, factus eſt principatus ſuper humerum eius, Eſay 9.6. Chriſt doth as [r] Paul ſaith, Who is weake, and I am not weake? who is offended, and I burne not? I beare the yoke when ye ſuffer, Act. 9. 4. Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? To this purpoſe [s] Paulinus excellently, Chriſtus & patiens & triumphans in ſanctis ſuis: in Abel, occiſus à fratre: in Noe, irriſus à filio: in Abraham perigrinatus, in Iſaac oblatus, in Ioſeph venditus, in Moſe fugatus, in Prophetis lapidatus, in Apoſtolis terra marique iactatus. When as then ye labour and are laden heauily, learne of me, yea leane on me: Pſalme 55.23. Caſt thy burthen vpon the Lord, and he ſhall nouriſh thee, Come to me and I will eaſe you. So [t] S. Auguſtine doth expound this clauſe, Chriſts burthen in it ſelfe (ſaith he) is exceeding troubleſome, for [u] all that will liue godly in Chriſt Ieſus ſhall ſuffer perſecution: but his ſpirit [x] helpeth our infirmities, and ſweetneth affliction for vs; he maketh vs willing, and ſo by conſequent able to beare his burthen, and vndergo his yoke. For [y] vbi amor eſt, non eſt labor ſed ſapor, vnto the willing all things are welcome. The way to heauen is [z] anguſta paucis eligentibus, facilis tamen omnibus diligentibus. O come then vnto Chriſt, and take vp his yoke. [a] Feare it not as being a yoke, but beare it as being eaſie. Reſpect not the preſent paine, but expect the future pleaſure For our light affliction which is but for a moment, cauſeth vnto vs a farre more excellent and eternall weight of glorie, 2. Cor. 4. 17.

It is very remarkable, that Chriſt ſaith in the [b] ſingular, yoke, for he doth not command vs to plough with many yokes. The diuell enticeth vs to many vices which are contrarie, the world hath many troubles which are contrarie, the fleſh alſo many deſires which are contrarie: but God hath vpon the point but one commandement, namely, that [c] we beleeue in his Sonne Ieſus Chriſt, and expreſſe this faith in louing one another. All that Chriſt on our part requireth is, that we come to him, and learne of him. [d] If thou ſhalt acknowledge with thy mouth the Lord Ieſus, and ſhalt beleeue in thine heart that God hath raiſed him vp from the dead, thou ſhalt be ſaued. The Goſpell is called a burthen and a yoke, [e] leſt we preſume: yet light and eaſie, leſt we deſpaire. [f] By this one ſentence, two ſorts of men are confuted eſpecially: the carnall Goſpellers on the right hand, who becauſe iuſtification is by faith onely, hold themſelues free from all burthens: and the ſuperſtitious Monkes and merit-mongers on the left hand, loading the conſciences of men with too many burthens. O ſweet Ieſu, ſo guide me with thy holy Spirit, that I may walke betweene theſe two rocks in thy midway. Thou, (to whom all things are giuen) giue me thy grace, that I may come to thee, learne of thee, reſt in thee: That I may ſo beare thy croſſe on earth, as that I may weare thy crowne in heauen. Amen.

[m] Auguſtin. Hieron. Ianſen. Muſculus, Maldonat &c.
[n] Dr. Fulke in loc.
[o] Gueuara epiſt.
[p] Caluin.
[q] Didac. Yanguas Con. 2. de S Matth.
[r] 2. Cor. 11. 29.
[s] Epiſt. lib. 4. epiſt. 1.
[t] De verbis Dom. ſecund. Matth. ſer. 9.
[u] 2. Tim. 3. 12.
[x] Rom. 8. 26.
[y] Bernard ſer. 85. in Cant.
[z] Auguſt. vbi ſupra.
[a] Ambroſ. de Elia cap. 22.
[b] Gueuara epiſt.
[c] 1 Ioh. 3. 23.
[d] Rom. 10. 9. Si credis iuſtus es. Luther.
[e] Euthym.
[f] Marlorat.

The Epistle. Esay 7.10. vnto v. 16.

God spake once againe to Ahaz, saying, require a token of the Lord thy God, &c.

In this Scripture two things are more chiefly considerable; namely, the

- Goodnes of God
  - Particularly towards Ahaz King of Iuda, God spake againe to Ahaz saying, aske a signe, &c.
  - Generally towards all the house of Dauid, euen the whole Church, A Virgin shall conceiue, &c.
- Wickednes of Ahaz
  - Open [g] vnthankfulnesse and [h] insolent [i] impietie, Then said Ahaz, I will aske none.
  - Secret [k] hypocrisie, coueting his contempt and Atheisme with a cloake of deuotion and dutie, neither will I tempt the Lord.

[g] Caluin. in loc. [h] Hieron in loc. [i] Hyperius. Vatablus. [k] Musculus. Hen. Mollerus.

God spake againe to Ahaz] In the dayes of Ahaz the sonne of Iotham, the sonne of Vzziah King of Iudah (as we read in the beginning of this present Chapter) Rezin the King of Aram, and Pekath the sonne of Remaliah King of Israel came vp and fought against Hierusalem. Now God (as being a [l] present helpe in trouble) sent his Prophet Esay to comfort King Ahaz in this extremitie, saying verse 4. Feare not, neither be faint hearted for the two tailes of these smoaking firebrands, for the furious wrath of Rezin, and of Remaliahs sonne. For albeit they determine to depose thee, and to dispose of thy kingdome, purposing to set vp in thy throne the sonne of Tabeal, vers. 6. yet thus saith the Lord God, their counsell shall not stand, neither shall it be: for the head of Aram is Damascus, and the head of Damascus is Rezin, and within threescore and fiue yeeres Ephraim shall be broken from being a people. [m] As if he should say, these two kingdomes shall haue their limits, and their two Kings must be content with their owne greatnesse, they both aspire to the Crowne, but I haue set them their bounds which they shall not passe. Beleeue my words and it shall go well with you; but if ye will not beleeue, surely ye shall not be established, vers. 9. And therefore that Ahaz and his people might giue credit to this promise, the Lord (saith our text) spake once more to Ahaz.

[n] Where note Gods long suffering and patience towards an Idolatrous and a wicked King, [o] who did not vprightly in the sight of the Lord his God, like Dauid his father: but made his son goe thorow the fire after the abominations of the Heathen, whom the Lord had cast out before the children of Israel, and offered, and burnt incense in the high places, and on the hills, and vnder euery greene tree. The Lord [p] desired not the death of a sinner, but that he may turne from his euill wayes and liue; speaking to him, as here to Ahaz, againe and againe; Turne you, turne you, for why will ye die O ye house of Israel? He doth inuite to mercie, not only such as are godly men, according to the prayer of [q] Dauid, Doe well O Lord vnto those that bee good and true of heart: but he maketh his Sunne to rise on the euill, and sendeth his raine on the iust and on the vniust, Matth. 5.45. He is not slacke saith [r] Peter in comming to iudgement (as some men count slackenesse) but is patient toward vs, and would haue no man to perish, but would all men to come to repentance. Wherefore thou, whosoeuer thou be which art in the [s] gall of bitternesse, [t] selling thy selfe to worke wickednesse, nay [u] giuing thy selfe to wantonnesse, to commit all vncleannesse, euen with greedinesse: [x] how dost thou thinke thou shalt escape the iudgement of God? or dispisest thou the riches of his bountifulnesse, and patience, and long sufferance, not knowing that the goodnesse of God leadeth thee to repentance? The Lord spake to Ahaz againe, yet not onely for his sake, nor for the wicked alone: [y] but rather to prouide for the weake which had some seeds of godlinesse. For albeit they did offend the Lord very much in their distrust and Idolatrie: yet God

[l] Psal. 46.1.
[m] Caluin.
[n] Kilius in epist. annum idem Musculus in loc.
[o] 2. King. 16. & 2. Chron. 28.
[p] Ezech. 33.11.
[q] Psal. 125.4.
[r] 2. Pet 3.9.
[s] Act. 8. 23.
[t] 1. Kin 21. 25.
[u] Ephes. 4.19.
[x] Rom. 2. 3.
[y] Caluin.

God as being the Father of [z] mercies, in wrath remembers mercie, Habac. 3.2. Compaſſion and forgiuenesſe is in the Lord our God, albeit we haue rebelled againſt him, Dan.9.9.

Require a token of the Lord thy God] [a] As if Eſay ſhould haue ſaid, I perceiue you giue little credit to my report, entertaining my ſpeech as the words of a meere man and not as the word of God. Wherfore to demonſtrate that I come not in mine owne name, but from the Lord of Hoſts, Aske a ſigne, [b] not of Idols, or of ſtrange gods vnable to helpe thee: but of thy God. Aske a ſigne, not of me, but of the Lord, [c] which only doth wondrous things. Aske of him, Ahaz, and thou ſhalt vnderſtand, that it is the Lord who ſpeakes vnto thee. God for the confirmation of our faith [d] addeth vnto his promiſes, as props of our infirmitie, ſignes and tokens, which * Auguſtine calls aptly, viſible words. And theſe ſignes are of two ſorts, extraordinarie, whereof the Prophet in our preſent text, and that which was giuen to Hezekiah in the 38. Chapter of this Propheſie. verſe 7. ordinarie, in daily vſe as Baptiſme, and the Lords Supper, the which are ſignes and ſeales of Gods holy couenant with vs. And we muſt ſo ioyne faith vnto the word, that we deſpiſe not the Sacraments, which Almightie God offereth as helps for the ſtrengthening of our faith. [e] It is a true ſaying that Ieſus Chriſt came into the world to ſaue ſinners: and this saying ought by all meanes to be receiued; and one chiefe meane is the miniſtration of the Sacraments: and therefore the franticke ſpirits in our time, who make no reckoning of Baptiſme, nor of the bleſſed Euchariſt, but eſteeme them abces only for little children, are worthily cenſured by reuerend [f] Caluin, to ſeparate thoſe things which God hath ioyned together.

Whether it be toward the depth beneath, or toward the height aboue] The Prophet preſcribes not what token Ahaz ſhould aske, leaſt haply the truth of the miracle might be ſuſpected; but he leaueth it to the Kings owne free choiſe, whether he will haue it toward the depth or height, [h] that is, in earth or heauen. Or it may be the word depth is of ſome deeper ſignification; [i] as if Eſay ſhould ſay, God will openly ſhew thee that his dominion is farre aboue all the world; yea that it reacheth euen from the heauen of heauens, to the very depth of depths, inſomuch as he can at his good pleaſure fetch Angels out of heauen, and alſo raiſe the verie dead out of their graue. [k] Here then obſerue Gods omnipotencie, who can doe whatſoeuer he will in heauen, and in earth, and in the ſea, and in all deepe places, Pſal.135.6. [l] O God the great and mightie, great in councell, and mightie in worke, Behold thou haſt made the heauen, and the earth, by thy great power and ſtretched out arme, and there is nothing hard vnto thee. This doctrine is comfortable to the godly, who [m] dwell vnder the defence of the moſt high, and abide vnder the ſhadow of his wings, hauing his ſpirit for their guide, and his Angels for their guard, But it is verie terrible to the wicked, in that all the creatures in heauen, in earth, and vnder earth attend the Lord of Hoſts, euermore readie to fight againſt ſuch as fight againſt him.

I will require none] This argueth his [n] pride, rather than humbleneſſe. Or as [o] other, his truſt in the ſtrength of the King of [p] Aſhur, rather than his affiance in the King of Kings. And yet he colours his foule contempt [q] hypocritically with a faire pretence, ſaying, I will not tempt the Lord; alluding doubtleſſe to the text, Deut.6.16. Ye ſhall not tempt the Lord your God. He forgat the words in the ſame Chapter a little before, Ye ſhall not walke after other gods, &c. and only wreſted that clauſe which he thought would fit his turne: wreſt I ſay, for to require a ſigne when God inuiteth and inioyneth vs, is not to tempt the Lord, but to truſt and obey, which is [r] better than ſacrifice. Gedeon is commended for asking ſignes of the Lord, Iudg.6. the Phariſees on the contrarie, condemned euen by [s] Chriſt himſelfe, The wicked generation and adulterous ſeeketh a ſigne. Now the reaſon hereof is exceeding plaine, their actions differed in their [t] ends: for whereas Gedeon asketh a ſigne to be confirmed in Gods promiſe; the Phariſies required miracles of Chriſt out of curioſitie to betray, rather then to be taught

[z] 2.Cor.1 3.

[a] Muſculus.

[b] Hieronie.

[c] Pſal.72 18.

[d] Mollerus. Caluin.

* *Tract.*118.in Ioan.

[e] 1.Tim.1.15.

[f] In loc.

[g] Muſculus.

[h] Vatablus.

[i] Hieron. Caluin.

[k] Kilius.

[l] Ier 32.17.

[m] Pſal.91.1.

[n] Hierom.

[o] Hyperius.

[p] 2 King.16.

[q] Muſculus. Caluin. Mollerus.

[r] 1.Sam.15.22.

[s] Matth.16.4.

[t] Mollerus. Muſculus.

taught of him: in this acceptable time of grace we need not aske for new miracles, it is sufficient to beleeue those which are recorded in holy Bible. The blessed Sacraments are Gods ordinarie signes appointed in his word for the strengthning of our faith, he that refuseth them as a superfluous help, commits the sinne of Ahaz, he that vseth them according to Christs ordinance, spiritually receiues Christ himself, as [u] Durandus pithily, verbum audimus, motum sentimus, modum ne scimus, præsentiam credimus.

[u] Apud Elien. respon ad apolog. Bellarmin. pag. 11.

Heare ye now, ô house of Dauid] Forasmuch as it was an intolerable wickednesse, to shut the gates against the might and mercies of God, vnder colour of honestie and modestie; the Prophet is iustly displeased, and sharpely rebukes these painted [x] sepulchres, and saith, heare ye now ô house of Dauid, &c. For albeit it was an honour for them to be held the race of Dauid (if they had walked in the steps of Dauid) [y] yet not notwithanding he now cals them house of Dauid, rather by way of reproach than otherwise. And in very deed the contempt and vnthankfulnesse in refusing a signe was so much the more hainous, because this fauour was reiected by that house, out of which the saluation of the whole world should come. Note then here the Prophets order and exquisite method in teaching: first he begins with doctrine, take heed, be still, and feare not, &c. then he proceeds to the confirmation of his doctrine, require a token of the Lord thy God, &c. Lastly, when he saw that both his offered signes and sayings vnto King Ahaz were fruitles, he comes to reproof, grieuously chiding this obstinate man; and not him alone, but also all the royall house defiled with this impiety; we must in our ministry take the like course: first beginning with doctrine, then proceeding to confirmation, and when these two faile, we must (as our Prophet speakes [z] elsewhere) lift vp our voice like a trumpet; shewing Gods people their transgressions and to the house of Iacob their sinnes, after proofe we must (as Esay here) come to reproofe: auditorum lachrymæ laudes tuæ sint, as [a] Hierome doth aduise nepotian, for saith he, melius est ex duobus imperfectis rusticitatem sanctam habere, quàm eloquentiam peccatricem: and [b] Martin Luther that sonne of thunder was wont to say, Cortex meus esse potest durior, sed nucleus mollis & dulcis est.

[x] Matth. 23. 27

[y] Caluin.

[z] Esay 58. 1.

[a] Epist. ad Nepot. Tom. 1 fol. 14.

[b] Loc com tit. de offic. minist. in taxan vitys.

It is not enough for you that ye be grieuous vnto men, but ye must grieue my God also?] He doth vse comparisons betweene God and men, not as if the Prophets could in deed be separated from God, for they be nothing else but his instruments, hauing one common cause with him as long as they discharge their duties, according to that of Christ, Luke 10. 16. He that heareth you, heareth me: and he that despiseth you, despiseth me: the Prophet then shapes his speech according to the wicked opinion of Ahaz, and his followers, imagining that they had to doe with men only, as if he should say, thongh I am a mortall man as you conceiue, yet in reiecting the signe which is offered vnto you, ye grieue God himselfe, forasmuch as the Lord speakes in me: this (saith [d] Luther) is our comfort and credit, that in deliuering Gods errand, our tongue is Gods tongue, and our voice is Gods voice, [e] he therefore that despiseth our preaching, despiseth not men, but God; as the Lord said to [f] Samuel, they haue not reiected thee, but they haue reiected me, that I should not raigne ouer them: and this ought to moue the Prophets and Preachers of the word, [g] that a wrong done to them in executing their holy function is an iniurie done to God himselfe, and they must grieue not so much in respect of their owne dishonour, as for that God is grieued, according to that of [h] Dauid, mine eyes gush out with water, because men keepe not thy law: it is well obserued, that wheras Esay said before whilest Ahaz rebellion and ingratitude was hidden, aske a signe of the Lord thy God: he now takes this honour to himselfe, saying, my God, not thy God, insinuating that God is on his side, and not with these wicked hypocrites; and so testifies with what a confidence and conscience he promised deliuerance to the king; as if he should haue said, I came not of my selfe, but I was sent of the Lord, and haue told thee nothing but out of the mouth of my God; all Preachers of the word should haue the same boldnesse, not in appearance only: but effectually rooted in their hearts: as [i] Luther excellently, Summa summarum

[d] Vbi sup. tit. de minist. verb.

[e] 1. Thes. 4. 8.

[f] 1 Sam. 8. 7.

[g] Musculus.

[h] Psal. 119. 136

[i] Vbi supra.

ſummarum hæc eſt ineſtimabilis gloria conſcientiæ noſtræ contra omnem contemptum in mundo, quod Chriſtus nos prædicatores plane deos creat, dicendo qui vos recipit, me patrem q; meum recipit.

Therefore the Lord ſhall giue you a ſigne, behold a Virgin] All orthodoxall Interpreters, as well ancient as moderne, conſtrue this of Chriſts admirable natiuitie, herein being taught by the ſpirit of trueth, in the 1. Chapter of Saint Matthews Goſpel at the 22. verſe, all this was done that it might bee fulfilled which was ſpoken of the Lord by the Prophet, ſaying, Behold, a virgin ſhall conceiue, &c. I know the Iewes haue many cauils againſt this expoſition, he that deſires to know them, alſo the Chriſtians anſwer to them; at his opportune leiſure may reade the Commentaries of Hierome and Caluin vpon this text, of Arctius, Marlorat, Maldonat, in Matth. 1. 22. Pet. Galatinus de arcanis cat. verit. lib. 3. cap. 18 & lib. 7. cap. 13. Suarez. in 3. Thomæ diſput. 5. ſect. 1.

That which here troubleth Interpreters moſt, is how this token is a confirmation of Gods promiſe to king Ahaz; examine the circumſtances of the place, ſay the Iewes, Hieruſalem is beſieged, and the Prophet is to giue him a ſigne of their deliuerance; to what end then is the Meſſias of the world promiſed now, who ſhould be borne fiue hundred yeeres after? Anſwere is made by [k] ſome, that the coherence may be thus, O Ahaz thou art exceedingly deceiued, in thinking that God is not able to deliuer thee from the furious wrath of Rezin, and of Remaliahs ſonne; for he will in time to come ſhew greater arguments of his power vnto thy ſucceeding poſteritie, for behold a virgin ſhall conceiue and beare a ſonne, who ſhall deliuer his people from more dangerous enemies than the two tailes of theſe ſmoaking firebrands; hee will in the fulneſſe of time ſend a Sauiour to deliuer vs [l] from all that hate vs, euen our ſpirituall enemies, as ſin, death, and the deuill: he ſhall be called Emmanuel, [m] which is by interpretation, God with vs, not God againſt vs, but with vs and for vs, as Muſculus vpon the words of S. Matthew. Non ſine nobis, non contra nos, ſed nobiſcum & pro nobis.

[n] Other obſerue, that it is the cuſtome of the Prophets in confirming the particular promiſes of God, euermore to lay this foundation, that hee will ſend his Sonne the Redeemer. By this generall prop, the Lord euery where ratifies that which he ſpecially promiſeth vnto his children, according to that of [o] Paul, In Chriſt all the promiſes of God are, yea and amen: that is, [p] categoricall & true, [q] complete and implete; and aſſuredly whoſoeuer expects helpe and ſuccour from God, muſt alſo be perſwaded of his fatherly loue: but how ſhould he be fauourable without Chriſt, in [r] whom he hath adopted vs his ſonnes, and [s] heires before the foundation of the world? ſo louing vs that he hath giuen his only begotten Son to [t] dwell among vs, and to be God with vs, and when his houre was come to [u] die for our ſinnes, and to riſe againe for our iuſtification: ſo that vpon theſe premiſes we need not at any time doubt of Gods holy promiſes, but infallibly conclude with the bleſſed Apoſtle, Rom. 8. 32. If God ſpared not his own Son, but gaue him for vs all to death, how ſhall he not with him giue vs all things alſo?

[x] Other hold this ſigne moſt agreeable to the preſent occaſion of Iudahs promiſed deliuerance, becauſe the Patriarke [y] Iacob had propheſied, that the ſcepter ſhould not depart frõ Iudah, nor a Law-giuer frõ between his feet, vntil Shilo come: as if Eſay ſhould thus argue with Ahaz, the Meſſias of the world is to be borne of the tribe of Iudah, and of the linage of Dauid, it is impoſſible therefore that either Rezin or Pekah, or any other prince whatſoeuer, ſhould rent thy kingdom from the ſucceſſors of Dauid, vntill a virgin conceiue and beare a ſonne, who ſhal be called Emmanuel. It is reported in Matth 2. that the wiſe men inquired after the birth of Chriſt, in the dayes of Herod the king, wherein they ſhewed themſelues to be wiſe men indeed, obſeruing their right [z] quãdo, becauſe now the ſcepter had departed from Iudah, and was in the hands of Herod, an Alien and a Tyrant, crept in by the Romane Emperour: this then is a fit and a full ſigne to confirme Gods promiſe touching Iudahs deliuerance from the furious wrath of Rezin and Remaliahs ſonne. For there be two kindes of ſignes, vnum prognoſticum, alterum remoratiuum, [k] Vatablus in loc.

[l] Luke 1. 71.
[m] Matth. 1. 23.

[n] Mollerus. Caluin.

[o] 2. Cor. 1. 20.
[p] Aretius.
[q] Lombard. Anſelm. Caietan.
[r] Ephes. 1. 4.
[s] Rom 8. 17.
[t] Iohn 1. 14.
[u] Rom. 4 25.

[x] Hyperius in loc.
[y] Gen. 49. 10.

[z] Leo ſer. 3. de Epiphan. Theophylact. Euthym, Anſelm. in Matth 2.

remoratiuum, as Petrus Galatinus in his examination of this text aptly distinguisheth: one which is a prognostication of an euent to come, so[b] Gedeons fleece was a signe to him of future victorie; another which is a memoriall of a thing past, so the Lord sayd vnto Moses, Exodus 3.12. This shall be a token vnto thee, that I haue sent thee, after thou hast brought the people out of Ægypt, ye shall serue God vpon this mountaine: now the signe mentioned here was a rememoratiue, not a prognosticke. Ahaz saw not this token, but his posteritie might say with[c] Dauid, as we haue heard so haue we seene in the citie of the Lord of Hosts in the citie of our God: God vpholdeth it for euer. And here the Fathers[d] obserue that Christs admirable natiuitie was a signe both in the depth beneath, and in the height aboue. For in being a man, eating butter and hony, nourished after the same manner that other children are, he was a signe on earth: and in being Emmanuel, conceiued of a Virgin without the seed of man, he was a signe from heauen. Thus as you see this token is accommodum, aptly fitted to the present occasion of the Prophet: I proceed now to shew that it is also commodum, as profitable for vs as it is pertinent for Hierusalem.

A Virgin shall conceiue] That is,[e] the Virgin or that Virgin, for the Hebrew particle[m] added in the text originall, and the Greeke article ἡ prefixed by the Septuagint Interpreters are both emphaticall, and import so much as that excellent Virgin. So the Fathers vse to speake,[f] Quis vnquam, aut quo seculo ausus est proferre nomen S. Mariæ, & interrogatus non statim intulit virginis vocem? In what age did any man name the blessed Mary without adding her surname Virgin. Nay the blessed Apostles in their Creed haue taught vs so to beleeue, borne of the Virgin Marie. For she was a[g] perpetuall Virgin: [h] ante partum, in partu, post partū All which is concluded, at the least included in our present text. A Virgin before she conceiued, and when she conceiued her Sonne our Sauiour, as we defend against vnbeleeuing Iewes and Gentiles; and against misbeleeuing heretikes also; namely, the Cerinthians, Ebionites, Carpocratians, holding that Christ was the naturall son of Ioseph, & verus & merus homo, contrary to the words of our Prophet here, Behold, a Virgin shall conceiue.[i] The Lord hath made a faithfull oath vnto Dauid, and he shall not shrinke from it, Of the fruit of thy belly shall I set vpon thy seat. Where the[k] Doctors note, that he saith according to the Hebrew de fructu ventris, and not de fructu femoris, aut renum, because the promised seed is the seed of the woman. Gen. 3.15. made of a woman, Gal. 4.4. hauing the materials of his body from Mary, but his formale principium, of the holy Ghost agent in his admirable conception, as it is in the Gospell allotted for this day. The Holy Ghost shall come vpon thee, and the power of the most High shall ouershadow thee. See Gospell on the Sunday after Christmas.

2. We say, that Mary was a Virgin in her childbirth, against Iouinian, and Durandus, according to the tenor of our Text, A Virgin shall conceiue and beare a sonne. The which is not to be construed, in [l] sensu diuiso, sed in sensu composito to wit, a Virgin shall conceiue, and continuing a Virgin shal bring foorth her childe,[m] grauida sed non grauata. So runnes our Creed, borne of the Virgin. For otherwise what wonder had it been, that one who sometime was a virgin, should afterward knowing a man, haue a sonne? Consule S. Irenæ. lib. 3, cap. 18, 21. 24. Epiphan. hæres. 30. circa finem.[n] Greg. Nyssen. orat. de sanct. Christi natiuitat. Basil. & Hierom. in loc.

Partus & integritas discordes tempore longo,
Virginis in gremio fœdera paces habent.

3. Marie was a Virgin after the birth of Christ, as the Church hath euer taught, against[o] Heluidians, and[p] Antidicomarianites And some probable reason hereof also may be gathered out of this Scripture, thou shalt cal his name, &c. that is, (as our Communion booke) thou his[q] mother; or as our new translation hath it, A Virgin shall conceiue and beare a sonne, and shall call his name, &c. For (as[r] Caluin notes, the verbe is of the feminine gender among the Hebrewes which occasioned haply the translators of Geneua to read she shall call his name.

Now

[a] de arcanis cat. verit. lib. 7. cap. 15.
[b] Iudges 6.37.
[c] Psal. 48.7.
[d] Irenæus lib. 3. cap. 27. Amb. in Psal 118. ser. 8. Epiphan. hæres. 30. Basil. in loc idem. Theodoret. & Eusebius apud Vegam, Dom. 11 post. Pentecost.
[e] Erasmus. Maldonat. in Matth 1.23. Haalman cap. 3. &.
[f] Epiphan. hæres. 78.
[g] See Creed. art. Borne of the Virgin.
[h] Aretius in Luc 1.27.
[i] Psal. 132. 11.
[k] August. in Psal 131. & Irenæus lib 3. cap. 27.
[l] Suarez tom. 2. in 3. Thom. disp. 5 sect. 2. idem Ardens in Euangel annunti.
[m] Bernard. hom. 3. super missus est Angelus.
[n] Neque Virginitas partum prohibuit, neque partus virginitatem soluit.
[o] Hieron. aduers. Heluid & August hæres. 84
[p] Epiphan. hæres 78.
[q] Ita Munsterus, tu mater.
[r] In loc.

Now the naming of children is an office properly belonging to fathers and not to mothers: In that therefore this charge was wholly referred and transferred to Marie; we may note, that Christ was so conceiued of his mother, as that he had no father on earth; as also, that Ioseph affianced to Marie, was rather an helpe then an absolute head, a wedded, but not a bedded husband: I say, not a bedded husband after the birth of Christ, as Hierome notably proues in a tract of this argument against Heluidius. And for the strengthning of this reuerent opinion, I finde a tradition entertained by the most ancient Doctors, [f] Origen, [t] Basile, [u] Theophylact, and [x] other, that whereas the marryed women had one seuerall place in the Temple for their deuotions and the Virgins another: Mary not only before, but after the birth of her sonne also did vsually troupe with the maidens, and not with the marryed, [y] liuing and dying a Virgin. This Epistle then is all one with the Gospel, Esay & Gabriel are messengers of the same arrand; for that which Esay speakes of Mary, Gabriel speakes vnto Mary; Thou shalt conceiue in thy wombe, and beare a sonne, and shalt call his name Iesus. And they both are so fit for the present feast, that he who runs & reads, may see the reason why the Church allotted them for this day.

[f] Tract. 26 in Matth.
[t] Hom. de human. Christi genera.
[u] In Matth. 23.
[x] Greg Nyss. de sancta Christi. natiuit.
[y] Perkins reform cat. tit. vnast.

The Gospell. Luke 1.26. vulg. 39

And in the sixth Moneth, the Angel Gabriel was sent from God, vnto a Citie of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a Virgin, &c.

Almightie God in the twelth chapter of Exodus enioyned his people to eat the Paschall lambes head and feet and purtenance. Christ is our Paschall lambe, 1.Cor.5.7. Wherefore we must as Mary did, anoint Christs [z] head and [a] feet, that is, meditate on his birth and death, on his ingresse into the world, and egresse out of the world. This Scripture principally speakes of his birth, and of the purtenance thereof, an euangelicall and angelicall annunciation of his admirable conception.

In which obserue these 4. circumstances especially:
- When, In the sixth moneth.
- Where. In a Citie of Galilee, named Nazareth.
- Who,
  - Saluting, Gabriel an angel sent from God.
  - Saluted, A Virgin espoused, &c.
- What, Haile full of grace.

[z] Matth. 26.7.
[a] Ioh 12.3.

In the sixth moneth] That is (as Gabriel expounds himselfe, vers. 36.) in the sixth moneth, from the conception of Elizabeth. And it is an [c] argument to perswade Marie that she may haue a sonne, for that her cousin Elizabeth had conceiued a childe in her olde age, by her old husband. Iohn the Baptist [d] (as it is thought) was conceiued about the latter end of September, and Christ according to the Churches account about the latter end of March. In the very same moneth (as [e] some coniecture) the world was created, and so the second Adam was conceiued about the time the first Adam was deceiued. For [f] as in Adam all die: euen so in Christ shall all be made aliue. The [g] Poet saith of the Spring which alwayes beginneth in this moneth,

Omnia tunc florent, tunc est noua temporis ætas,
Et noua de grauido palmite gemma tumet.

And so Christ incarnate making a [h] new heauen and a new earth, ecce ego facio noua. Behold saith the Lord, I make new things, Esay 43.19. See Thom. Caten. & Mollor in loc. Ludolph, de vita Christi part. 1. cap. 5. Giron. ser. 1. Raulin. ser. 3. Ferus ser. 5. in annun.

[b] Theophylact. Euthym in loc.
[c] Luther. Melanct. post. in loc.
[d] Aretius
[e] Vide Io. Thom. Friegiam. lib de cosmopæia
[f] 1.Cor.15.22.
[g] Ouid. lib. 1. fasti.
[h] Esay 65.17.

The [i] Iewes for religious vses, and festiuall times, counted Nisan the first moneth, ([k] which for the most part answereth our March) and so forward; but for ciuill they counted the seuenth the first. It is worth obseruing therefore that the Annunciation vnto Zacharie was in the beginning of the ciuill, and this Annunciation nunciation vnto Mary in the beginning of the religious or eccleſiaſticall yeere. Teaching vs hereby that our whole life is only ciuill, and not truly religious, vntill Chriſt be conceiued and [l] formed in vs, vntill he [m] dwels in our heart who [n] reneweth a right ſpirit within vs.

[i] Tremellius in Exod. 12.
[k] Vatablus in Exod. 12.

[l] Galath. 4.29.
[m] Epheſ. 3.17.
[n] Pſal 51.10.

The Angel Gabriel was ſent from God] Gabriel in Hebrew ſignifies the power of God, a fit ambaſſadour for ſuch an arrand, becauſe the conception of Chriſt, & through it the redemption of the world is called expreſly the ſtrength of Gods arme, Luke 1.51. [o] Euery Preacher of the Goſpell ought to follow this example, for his commiſſion, he muſt be ſent from God: and execution of it, he muſt bee Gabriel that is, a man of good courage, powerfull in doctrine and exhortation. An Angell was ſent about this buſineſſe, and not a man for ſundry reaſons, eſpecially three.

[o] Luther poſt. in loc.

1. [p] That our humane nature might be repaired after the manner it was ruinated: as a ſerpent was ſent by the deuill vnto Eua to worke our woe; ſo Gabriel an Angel was ſent from God vnto Mary, to bring glad tidings of her weale. [q] Ad Euam angelus malus acceſſit vt per eam homo ſepararetur á Deo, ad Mariam angelus bonus venit vt in ea Deus vniretur homini.

[p] Thom. part. 3. quæſt. 3. art. 1.
[q] Fulgentius de dup. nat. Chriſt.

2. An Angell ſent vnto a Virgin [r] becauſe Virgins are as angels, according to that of [ſ] Iſiodore, Cœlibatus quaſi cœlo beatus. And [t] Chriſt alſo ſaith, in the reſurrection when there ſhalbe no more marrying, that we ſhalbe then as the Angels of God in heauen.

[r] Hieron. apud Thom vbi ſup. Origen lib. 10.
[ſ] Origen lib. 10.
[t] Matth 22.30.

3. To [u] ſhew that Angels are miniſtring ſpirits ſent forth to miniſter for their ſakes who ſhall be heires of ſaluation, Heb. 1.14. and therefore ſeeing we haue ſuch a guard attending vs one euery ſide, we [x] ſhould doe whatſoeuer we doe, in a reuerent and ſeemly faſhion, alway remembring that we are made a ſpectacle to men and Angels 1. Cor. 4.9.

[u] Giron. con 1. in annum.
[x] Perkins expoſit. Creed, tit creation of Angels.

Vnto a citie of Galilee, named Nazaret.] The Iewes held this countrey and city ſo [y] contemptible, that the [z] Phariſies ſaid of the one, out of Galilee ariſeth no Prophet. And [a] Nathaniel of the other, Can there any good thing come out of Nazaret? Here then obſerue that euen Phariſies and learned men may be deceiued, as alſo that God is not tyed vnto any place, but his ſpirit [b] bloweth where it liſteth. And therefore we may not iudge of men either by their countrey or countie: Ioſeph and Mary liued in Nazaret a citie of Galilee: good people though they dwel in bad pariſhes and places, are the ſame. Miſtically, Nazaret is by interpretation a [c] flower; it was fit there that he (which is the [d] lilly of the vallies, and the roſe of the field) ſhould be conceiued in flore i. in Nazaret: de flore, i. de beata Virgine: cum floribus, i. tempore floru̅, in the ſpring or flower time. Galilee was the marches of the Iewes, abutting and adioyning neere to the countrey of the Gentiles, and ſo [c] Chriſts conception in Galilee doth inſinuate that in him all the nations of the world ſhall be bleſſed, Gen: 22.18. And that he ſhould breake downe the ſtop of the partition wall, and ſo make the Iewes and the Gentiles both one, Epheſ. 2.14 or Galilee ſignifieth an end or confine: ſo Chriſt a Galilean is the end of the law, Rom. 10.4. See this and many moe like this, apud Pont. in feſt annun.

[y] Arctius.
[z] Ioha 7.52.
[a] Iohn 1.46.
[b] Iohn 3.8.
[c] Ludolphus de vita Chriſti. part. 1 cap 5. & Beauxamis har. fol 22.
[d] Cant. 2.1.
[c] Bonauent. Beauxamis.

To a virgin eſpouſed to a man whoſe name was Ioſeph.] Mary, though a Virgin was affianced to Ioſeph of the houſe of Dauid for ſundry cauſes: 1. leſt her ſelfe ſhould be iudged an [f] adultreſſe, and ſo ſtoned to death according to Moſes law.

2. Leſt her ſonne ſhould be reputed a [g] baſtard, and ſo conſequently not admitted for the Meſſias. He who came into the world not to [h] deſtroy the law, but to fullfill all righteouſneſſe, Matth. 3.15. would not himſelfe bee borne vnlawfully.

3. [i] That Chriſt heereby might honour both eſtates, of maidenhead, and marriage; of maydenhead, in that ſhe was a Virgin; of marriage, becauſe ſhee was eſpouſed,

4. That Ioſeph might be to her ſelfe and her ſonne a [k] curator and a guardian in the time of trouble; for ſo we reade in the ſecond chapter of S. Matthew, that the Angell of the Lord appeared to Ioſeph in a dreame, ſaying; Ariſe and take the [f] Hieron. aduerſ. Helud. & Aret. in loc.

[g] Ambroſ. lib. 2. in Luc. cap. 1.
[h] Matth. 5.17.
[i] Baſil. hom. de human. Chriſti generat.
[k] Theophylact. Euthym.

the babe and his mother, and flee into Ægypt,&c. Againe, Arise, and take the babe and his mother, and goe into the land of Israel,&c.

5. That her husband might [l] witnesse her virginitie. [m] Sicut Thomas dubitando, palpando, constantissimus factus est Dominicæ confessor resurrectionis: Ita & Ioseph Mariam sibi desponsando eiusq; conuersationem in tempore custodiæ studiosius comprobando, factus est pudicitiæ fidelissimus testis. Pulchra vtriusq; rei conuenientia, & dubitatio Thomæ, & desponsatio Mariæ. See Bernard vbi in marg. Beauxam. har. Tom. 1. fol. 22. Maldonat in Matth. 1. Sixt. Senen. Bib. lib. 6. annot. 64.

Of the house of Dauid] S. Luke sets downe the names of so many places and persons exactly, that we might attend his relation more diligently. [n] Noluit nos negligenter audire, quod tam ailigenter studuit enarrare. Because Christ is the promised seed and Sonne of Dauid, Marie was espoused to Ioseph of the house of Dauid. [o] Hereby shewing her own pedegree by her husbands genealogie; for the Iewes according to [p] Gods Law, were to take wiues out of their owne Tribes. Dauid is stiled a man according to Gods owne heart, Acts 13.22. And so Ioseph, a man of Dauids house, was a man according to Gods owne heart, to whom he did reueale [q] secretissimum atque sacratissimum sui cordis arcanum, a mysterie which [r] none of the Princes of this world vnderstood. And Marie being thus affianced to Ioseph, she proued a good housewife, being in this respect like the Snaile which is domiporta. She was not of the Tribe of Gad, a [s] busie gossip gadding about from house to house, pratling and speaking things which are not comely: but (as almost all Interpreters haue noted vpon the words of our Text, ingressus ad eam Angelus) she was within, either at her holy deuotion, or at her daily worke.

I come now to the saluation it selfe. Haile Marie,&c. the which (as Luther said of the Pater noster) is made by the Papists a very great Martyr. I purpose therefore to demonstrate these two points especially: First, their foule abuse: secondly, the true vse of Aue Maria.

The Papists iniurie this Angelicall saluation in { Grosse, by misconstruing the whole sentence ioyntly. Parcell, abusing euery particular word seuerally.

For the first, they patch it vp together, by fetching in other stitches out of other places, as [t] blessed is the fruit of thy wombe, and adding the name, Maria, Iesus, amen. And all this that it may be repeated often vpon their beades, as a maine point of holy deuotion, and why so? [u] because forsooth it was vsed by the Greeke Church in their Masse daily, for so they finde it recorded in the Liturgies of S. Iames, and Chrysostome. [x] Our answer is, that those Liturgies are counterfeit, the one being a sufficient confutation of the other. For if the Greeke Church had a Liturgie written by S. Iames the blessed Apostle, who would imagine that Chrysostome would haue made a new? and if Chrysostome had penned a Liturgie, he would not haue made a prayer for Pope Nicholas, who liued almost fiue hundred yeeres after him, and for the Emperour Alexius, who liued seuen hundred yeeres after him. It were very much (as [y] B. Iewell obiected against D. Harding) to say Chrysostome prayed for men by name so many hundred yeeres before they were borne.

But to trace the Papists a little neerer, euen from step to step, if Aue Maria be a prayer, it must either be a prayer for Marie, or to Marie. It cannot be a prayer for Marie, whether we consider the words as vttered by Gabriel while she liued; or as babled by them now she is dead. If in her life she was full of grace, and [z] free from all sinne, as they teach impiously; then assuredly she did not need any prayer of man or Angell, as abounding with all mercie, and abandoning all miserie, much lesse now being a Saint in heauen, and (as they would haue vs to beleeue) a Queene of heauen, ouerruling and commanding Christ himselfe to shew mercie on such as she will haue mercie.

As Aue Maria could not be a prayer for Marie, so it should not be a prayer to Marie, because praying to Saints hath in Gods holy Bible [a] neither precept, nor promise, nor patterne. Not to dispute this point, Eckius a rancke Papist acknowledgeth l Basil vbi sup.

m Bernard. hom 2. super missus est Angelus.
n Bernard hom. 1 super missus est Angelus.
o Hieron. vbi sup. & Aret. in loc.
p Numb. 36.
q Bernard. hom. 2. super missus est Angelus.
r 1 Cor 2 7.
s 1 Tim. 5. 13.
t Luke 1. 42.
u Rhem. in loc.
x Dr. Fulke in loc. & Mornæus de sac Eucharist. lib. 1 cap. 2.
y Art priuate Masse diuis. 5.
z Bellarmin. de amiss. grat & stat. pec. lib. 4. cap. 15, 16. & Suarez in 3. Thom. disp 4. a Chemnitius exam. Con. Trid. part 3 Tit. de Sanct. inuocat. pag. 184.

acknowlegeth in his [b] Enchiridion, that inuocation of Saints is not inioyned in the Scriptures expresly: not in the old Testament, because the Patriarkes and the Prophets afore the comming of Christ (as the Church of Rome beleeues) were not in Heauen, but in Limbo. Not in the new Testament, lest haply the Gentiles lately conuerted vnto the faith of one God, should instantly returne to the worshipping of many Gods; as the men of Lycaonia would haue sacrificed vnto Paul and Barnabas, Acts 14. [c] Petrus Asoto likewise, and other Romanists of most eminent note for learning confesse, that praying vnto Saints is not taught in Gods booke plainly, but insinuated only. So that (as [d] Melanchthon obserues) the Papists are faine to ride post vnto the Court for an example. We cannot come to the Princes presence, but by the mediation of some fauourite: in like sort (say they) we must exhibit our petitions vnto Peter, or Paul, especially to Marie, that she may commend them vnto Christ her Sonne: God himselfe hath answered this idle conceit for vs, Osea 11. 9. I am God and not man, the holy one in the mids of thee: and Esay 55. 8. My wayes are not as your wayes, &c. Earthly Princes out of necessitie must imploy many mediators and officers about them, as tongues, and eares, and eyes vnto them: but the King of heauen is all eye, and all eare, seeing, hearing, vnderstanding all things, euen the very secrets of our hearts afore we speake: your heauenly father (saith our [e] Sauiour) knoweth whereof ye haue need, before ye aske of him. Againe, [f] if a King appoint a Master of requests, he will not ordinarily receiue petitions from other: and therefore seeing the King of Kings is pleased to make Christ our only [g] Mediator and [h] Aduocate, the sole Master of the requests in heauen, [i] euer liuing to make intercession for vs; it cannot be but dishonourable to Gods choice, and Christs office, to substitute any other halfe mediators either of redemption or intercession, as Saint Ambrose, Com. in Rom. 1. Misera vtantur excusatione, dicentes per istos posse ire ad Deum, sicut per comites peruenitur ad regem. Yea but although Aue Maria be not a supplication, it may be taken as a thanksgiuing, and that is a kinde of prayer, according to that of [k] Paul, I exhort that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giuing of thanks be made for all men, &c. Answer is made, that it is not a thanksgiuing, and if it were, yet should it not be babled vnto Marie, but vttered vnto God, as [l] containing his praise to whom all honour is due, kingdome, power, and glorie. Well, Aue Maria notwithstanding all this, may be vsed as a salutation: our answer is no, for that a salutation is ciuill, whereas the Papists appoint this to be said as a religious office. 2. Salutations are to persons present, but the Virgin is absent, and therefore the Papists may not, nay the Papists indeed cannot vse these words in the same sense they were deliuered by Gabriel and Elizabeth: that there should be ten Auemaries to one Pater noster, and that 150. Auemaries with fifteene Pater nosters make a Ladies Psalter, and that after the Pater noster which Christ himself taught vs by his owne mouth, [m] Aue Maria is the most excellent prayer, and that in [n] it we speake with the mother of God as the Queene of heauen & our Aduocate; is now knowne in the world to be such intolerable foppery, that (as [o] Hierom said of the Pelagian heresies) a repetition of it is a sufficient refutation.

I know that reuerend Fox in his Calender of Saints annexed to his Martyrologie, cals the blessed Virgin our Ladie, and the Church of England also termeth vsually this present feast our Ladies day: but herein we doe not (as the Papists) ascribe to the Virgin [p] any diuine honour, making her our Ladie, as God is our Lord. It is a ciuill vse, not a religious office, for in a holy sense to speake properly, there is but one Lord, and neuer a Ladie, [q] one Lord, one faith, one baptisme: or the Virgin is stiled our Ladie, because she was (as Elizabeth cals her) the mother of our Lord, Luke 1. 43.

Hitherto concerning the wrong done by the Papists in grosse to the haile Marie, let vs examine now their iniurie of euery word in particular, the first is χαῖρε, which they translate Aue, turning vpside downe the letters of Eua: the woman who did occasion the worlds woe, was named Eua, therfore it was fit that Mary who bare Christ, the worlds ioy, should be saluted with Aue; being opposite in name

[b] Tit. de venerat sanct. in fine.

[c] Chemnitius vbi sup. pag. 190.

[d] Apolog. confess. August. Tom. 1. fol 102.

[e] Matth. 6. 8.

[f] Melanct. & Chemnitius vbi sup.

[g] 1 Tim. 2. 5.

[h] 1 Ioh. 2. 1.

[i] Heb. 7. 25.

[k] 1 Tim 2. 1.

[l] Luther post. in loc.

[m] Bellarm. cat. exposit. Aue Maria.

[n] Ledesma. cat. cap. 7.

[o] Epist. ad Ctesephon. aduersus Pelagianos.

[p] Dr. Fulke in Matth. 1.

[q] Ephes. 4. 5.

[r] Augustin de Leon. ser. 4. de Aue Maria.

name ſo well as in nature, this playing vpon the word is prettie, but not pithie, becauſe Aue is Latine, whereas Eua is Hebrew, and χαίρε Greek, ſo that the Friers wit hath outrunne the Holy Spirits wiſdome in this expoſition and tranſpoſition of Eua and Aue. The great Predicant [f] Illephonſo Giron, obſerues in the three letters of Aue, the three perſons in holy Trinitie: A, altitudo Patris: V, veritas Filij: E, æternitas Spiritus Sancti. [t] Some Friers haue profoundly deriued Aue of (A) primatiuely taken, and væ, quaſi ſine væ, that is without woe: now there is a threefold woe denounced, Apocalyps 8.13. Væ, væ, væ incolis terræ, woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth, and this woe is for ſinne in the world, as the [u] luſt of the fleſh, the luſt of the eyes, and pride of life. Woe to the couetous, woe to the luxurious, woe to the proud: all which Eſay ſets downe in his fifth chapter expreſly: Woe to them that ioyne houſe to houſe, and field to field, till there be no more place for other in the mids of the land, &c. that is a woe to the couetous: Woe to them that riſe vp earely to follow drunkennеſſe, &c. that is a woe to the luxurious: woe to them that are wiſe in their owne eyes, &c. that is a woe to the proud: [x] now the Virgin as being poore, chaſte, and humble, was exempted from all theſe woes; and therefore worthily ſaluted by Gabriel with an Aue: or as [y] other Popiſh Expoſitors, inhabitants of the earth haue deſerued a woe for their originall ſinne, and that is the woe which is in Limbus: a woe for their veniall ſinne, and that is the woe which is in Purgatory: a woe for ther mortall ſinne, and that is the woe which is in hell: but Marie the Virgin (ſay they) was free from all theſe kinds of ſinne, and ſo conſequently free from all theſe kindes of woe; the which aſſertion is contradictory to the text of holy Scripture, concluding all vnder ſin, Rom. 3.9. Gal. 3.22. Yea but ſay [z] Suarez and [a] Bellarmine, Marie was exempted ex ſpeciali Dei priuilegio: let them if they can ſhew her patent, and we will inſtantly beleeue it, otherwiſe, Gods word is a lanterne to our feet, and a guide to our paths: if either man or Angell preach a new Goſpell, let him be [b] accurſed. That Marie was a bleſſed Virgin, and the mother of the worlds Sauiour; we beleeue, becauſe we reade ſo: but that ſhe was impeccabilis, conceiued without ſin, borne without ſinne, liuing without ſinne, dying without ſinne, we doe not beleeue, becauſe we do not reade it in the Bible, nay we reade the contrary, for Marie ſaith in her hymne, my ſpirit reioyceth in God my Sauiour, &c. If ſhee needed a Sauiour, vndoubtedly ſhe was a ſinner, for the whole need not a Phyſitian, Mat. 9.12. and therefore the Popiſh annotation of Aue thus applied vnto the Virgin, is both vn'earned and vntrue.

The next word is Maria, the which is ſo magnified and extolled by the Romaniſts, as that King [c] Alphonſo the ſixth would not haue his wife called by that high and venerable name. [d] Petrus de Palude (whoſe wit as it ſhould ſeeme dwelt in a fen) hath this muddie conceit, the fiue letters of Maria, deſigne the fiue ſingular priuiledges Almightie God granted vnto the Virgin, (M) Mater omnium Sanctorum, (A) Aduocata omnium peccatorum, (R) Regula omnium morum & virtutum, (I) Interfectrix omnium vitiorum, (A) Harmonia Spiritus Sancti donorum, The Portugall Frier and flower Philip Diez, approued by Didacus Caro, Dominicus Bannes, & other great Clerks of Spaine for an exquiſite Preacher, [e] affirmes that Maria is compounded of the firſt letters in the names of fiue moſt illuſtrious and holy women in all the Scripture, Michol, Abigail, Rachel, Iudith, Abiſhag. Hauing all their eminent qualities in her nature, and all their prime letters in her name, taking (M) from Michol, (A) from Abigail, (R) from Rachel, (I) from Iudith, (A) from Abiſhag. I muſt here quit Philip Diez with an old rime, which vndoeth his name with a great deale more wit.

Phi nota fœtoris, Lippus malus omnibus horis,
Phi malus & Lippus, totus malus ergo Philippus.

[f] Saint Ambroſe ſaith of the deuill, that he is nox and [g] Bernard of bad Diuines, that they be tenebræ mundi. I am vnwilling to lay the nox vpon Diez, but his obſcure fopperie deſerues I thinke verily Bernards tenebræ.

Well, as the Friers haue taught vs how to ſpell Maria, ſo let them informe likewiſe [f] Con. 2 in feſto annun. locum vide & vide.

[t] Diez Pet. de Palud, Auguſtin. de Leoniſſa, & aly.
[u] 1 Ioh. 2.16.
[x] Raul. ſer. 1 in annun. Dom.
[y] Auguſtin. de Leoniſſa, ſer 2. de Aue Maria.
[z] Tom. 2 in 3. Thom. diſp 2. ſect. 4.
[a] De amiſſ. grat. & ſtat. per. lib. 4. cap. 15.
[b] Galat. 1.8.
[c] Diez con. 1. in incarnat.
[d] Dom ſer de annun. B. Mariæ
[e] Vbi ſupra.
[f] Ser. 28.
[g] Ser 66. in Cant.

likewiſe what it ſignifieth.[h] Auguſtin. de Leoniſſa ſaith acutely, Maria quaſi Maria: for as in the ſea there is a [i] gathering together of all waters; euen ſo in the Virgin a congregation of all vertues. Againe, as [k] all riuers come from the ſeas, and returne to the ſeas againe: ſo likewiſe all grace is deriued from Mary, and ought to be returned againe to Mary, for ſhe forſooth (if you will beleeue the Church of Rome in her publique deuotions) is [l] mater gratiæ & miſericordiæ, the mother of mercies, and goddeſſe of all grace; Chriſt is the head, but Mary (ſaith [m] Ozorius the Ieſuit) is the neck. Now whatſoeuer deſcendeth into the whole body from the head is conueied by the necke; ſo whatſoeuer bleſſing or fauour is conferred vpon other is conueied thorow the hands of the Virgin. [n] Vt ſi quid gratiæ, ſi quid ſpei, ſi quid ſalutis in alios redundauerit, non niſi per manus Mariæ tranſierit, &c. And therefore moſt of their ſcholiers vſually begin their ſermons and writings with an Aue Maria, and end them with laus Virgini. Their voluminous Hiſtoriographer Card. Baronius, concludeth his 1. Tom. of Annales imprinted at Antwerp, ann. 1597. Sanctiſſimæ Virgini Mariæ vt hæc omnia accepta ferimus, ita pariter & offerimus: That is, as I haue receiued all from the moſt holy Virgin Mary, ſo likewiſe I returne all to her againe. Cardinall Bellarmine alſo doth annex this poſtſcript vnto the 1. Tom. of his Controuerſies imprinted Lugdun. ann. 1587. and vnto Tom. 2. Ingolſtad. 1591. Laus Deo virginique matri Mariæ. And [o] other ſetting the cart before the horſe, Laus beatæ Virgini & Ieſu Chriſto. It is well if Chriſt haue the ſecond place, if any place, when his mother Mary commeth in place. Theſe are their poſitions, in ſome reſpects as blaſphemous as the worſt in the Turkes Alcoran. And theſe their practiſes, as idolatrous as any we finde in the Pagans ſchoole.

The third word is, κεχαριτωμένη, which they tranſlate gratia plena, full of grace. And hence [p] they collect a threefold plenitude of grace in Mary,

To wit, a fulneſſe in regard of
- Multitude, abounding with all kinds of grace.
- Magnitude, as hauing the greateſt in the greateſt meaſure.
- Latitude, exerciſing them in earth, heauen, hell.

All which is to ſhew, that whereas other holy Saints and ſeruants of God had grace by meaſure; Marie like to Chriſt was endued with grace beyond meaſure, being medium & cauſa gratiæ, as [q] Antoninus and Albertus impiouſly teach.

Yet ſome [r] popiſh Interpreters as well as Proteſtants obſerue, that κεχαριτωμένη, ſignifieth gratificata, [r] freely beloued, as the Geneua tranſlation. Or as our new, highly fauoured, or much graced, one which hath [t] obtained, and is [u] adorned with grace. [x] Not one that giues grace, but receiues; [y] as Gabriel in the 30. verſe conſtrueth himſelfe, thou haſt found fauour with God. And ſo Saint Paul expounds this word, Epheſ. 1. 6. God hath predeſtinated vs to bee adopted through Ieſus Chriſt vnto himſelfe, according to the good pleaſure of his will, to the praiſe of the glory of his grace, εἰς ἣν ἐχαρίτωσεν ἡμᾶς ἐν τῷ ἠγαπημένῳ, wherewith he hath made vs accepted in his beloued. And gratioſus in Latine doth import a fauourite, which is graced out of his friends abundant loue, rather than one who merits fauour out of his owne worth, as Caluin and Eraſmus in their annotations vpon this accurately.

But ſuppoſe the tranſlation be good, and that we may reade as indeed our [z] Communion booke doth here, full of grace: yet the popiſh annotation is falſe; for it is recorded in this preſent chapter, that Iohn the Baptiſt, Elizabeth and Zacharie were full of the Holy Ghoſt, and [a] elſewhere that S. Stephen was full of faith and of power, and the ſeuen Deacons full of wiſdome, Acts 6. 3. and that the bleſſed Apoſtles were filled with the Holy Ghoſt, Act. 2. 4. All theſe were full of grace, yet they receiued it by meaſure. So that as their own [b] Ieſuite obſerues truly, Maria fuit gratia plena in ſe, non à ſe; Mary was full of grace in her ſelfe, but not of her ſelfe. Fountaines are full of water, and riuers are full of water, and brookes are full of water: Chriſt is full of grace as the fountaine, but Mary full of [h] Ser. 5. de Aue Maria.

[i] Gen. 1. 10.
[k] Eccleſiaſtes 1. 7.
[l] Bellarmin. de beat. ſanct. cap. 17. & Offic. Mariæ pag. 33.
[m] Hom. tom. 4. con. de deuot. Mariæ virg. §. aſſimulatur.
[n] Altenſtaic. lex. Theolog. in verb. Maria.
[o] Apud Dr. Morton. Apolog. cat. part. 1. pag. 31.
[p] Auguſtin. de Leoniſſa ſer. 8. de Aue Maria.
[q] Apud Chemnit. part 3. examin. Tit. de ſanct. inuocat. pag. 147.
[r] Caietan. Ianſen. Giron.
[s] Beza gratiâ dilecta.
[t] Munſter. Caluin.
[u] Aretius.
[x] Culman. con. 1. in feſt. annun.
[y] Theophylact.
[z] Ita legit Ambroſ. in loc. & Auguſtin. enchirid. cap. 36. & ſer. 13. 14. 15. de tempore.
[a] Acts 8. 6.
[b] Maldonat. in loc. Idem Ianſen. con. cap. 3.

of grace as a riuer issuing from the fountaine of grace. Shee was a vertuous woman, yet a woman; a sinner, not a sauiour; one that was endued with excellent grace, not by her owne merit, but by Gods especiall mercie. [c] Therefore full of grace, because the Lord is with thee.

The [d] Papists abuse likewise Dominus tecum, in making it an extraordinary salutation vnheard in the world before. Whereas Boaz vsed the same to the reapers, the Lord be with you, Ruth. 2.4. And a glorious Angell to Gedeon, Iudg. 6.12. The Lord is with thee thou valiant man. And the Psalmographer insinuates the commonnesse of this phrase among Gods people, Psal. 129.8. They which goe by, say not so much as the Lord prosper you. But why should I fish any longer in the Popish puddle? you may see by that which I haue deliuered already, that the Friers and Iesuites haue made [e] merchandize of Aue Maria, both in parcell, and in grosse. Let vs now come out of Babel into Gods Citie, from their foule abusing of this Scripture to the true construction of the same. Note then in Gabriels saluting of Mary, two things especially:

To wit, his { Formes, Haile, the Lord with thee. / Titles, full of grace, blessed among women.

And because both are double, we may learne that these Christian complements are not to be neglected or committed. A glorious Angell saluted a poore Virgin: superiours ought to salute inferiours, and inferiours to reuerence superiours, and all out of loue to respect one another. See Gospell Sunday 6. after Trinitie.

2. This Angelicall Aue teacheth vs to vse good formes in saluting, not such as are idle, prophane, vnsauourie. Not a pox, in stead of haile: nor the deuill take you, for the Lord be with you; not a curse, but a blessing; Haile, full of grace, blessed art thou among women.

3. We must vse salutation as sent from God, and not according to the worlds fashion only. For some [f] speak friendly to their neighbours, but imagine mischiefe in their hearts. [g] Iudas had an haile master, as well as Gabriel an haile Mary. Christians in their complements ought to be heartie, not hollow. See Gospell Sund. 4 after Trinitie.

Haile] The Greeke, χαῖρε, signifieth (as [h] Erasmus obserues) gaudere, saluere, valere. If we take it in the first acception, it is Gabriels giuing of the ioy to Mary. Teaching vs to wish much ioy to the good, and to labour for true ioyes in our selues, alway reioycing in the Lord, Philip. 4.4. If in the two latter, health is a good blessing of the Lord, to be desired in our owne selues, and for our other selues in this world, without which all our whole life is but a lingring death. O Lord grant thy seruant health and heauen. It was good for [i] Dauid that he was in trouble: so likewise it is good for the health of our soule, that our body be sometime sicke. [k] Affliction is the true purgatorie of the flesh; [l] infirmitas carnis vigorem mentis exacuit. Vpon this ground [m] Plato seated his Academie at Athens in an vnhealthy place. We must especially wish haile to the soule, praying alwaies, Vt sit mens sana in corpore sano.

The Lord with thee] [n] Some construe this clause by way of enunciation affirmatiuely, the Lord is with thee. [o] Other imprecatorie, by way of a good wish or salutation, the Lord be with thee. They who take this affirmatiuely, make it a reason of Maries haile reioyce Marie, because full of grace, because the Lord is with thee, because blessed among women. God is [p] in beatis per gloriam, in electis per gratiam, in assumpta carne per vnionem, in omnibus per prouidentiam: sed in virgine per super eminentem quandam operationem. As if Gabriel should haue said, I am sent from God, and so the Lord is with me: but he is with thee much more. The Lord is in me, because he made me: but with thee, because within thee, because he shall be borne by thee. [q] Ita Dominus est tecum vt sit in corde tuo, sit in vtero tuo, adimpleat mentem tuam, adimpleat carnem tuam. God the Sonne is with thee, for thou shalt conceiue him in thy wombe, God the Holy Ghost is with thee, for the Holy Ghost shall come vpon thee, and the power of the most high shall ouershadow thee.

[c] Marlorat. in loc. Culman. con. 2. in fest. annun.
[d] Beauxamis. Giron. Augustin de Leonissa.
[e] 2 Cor. 2.17.
[f] Psal 28.3.
[g] Matth. 26.49
[h] Annot. in loc.
[i] Psal 119.71.
[k] Tyndal prolog. vpon Genesis,
[l] Salui anus de gubernat Dei, lib. 1.
[m] Basil de legendis lib. gentilium.
[n] Maldonat. Iansen.
[o] Caietan. Aretius.
[p] Beauxamis in loc.
[q] Augustin. ser. 12 de tempore

God the Father is with thee, making his Sonne thy sonne. [r] Dominus Filius tecum, quem carne tua induis: Dominus Spiritus Sanctus, de quo concipis: & Dominus Pater, qui genuit quem concipis. But I follow their iudgement which vnderstand this imprecatorie, because the blessed Virgin her selfe tooke it so, verl. 26. She cast in her minde what manner of salutation that should be, ergo, all the words spoken by Gabriel vnto her hitherto were [t] salutatorie.

Blessed art thou among women] In comparison, or [t] aboue other women happie. The like phrase is vsed, Iudg. 5. 24. Iael the wife of Heber the Kenite shall be blessed aboue other women. It doth insinuate that Marie was highly fauoured of God, as also that she shall be praised of men throughout all generations. Elizabeth expounds Gabriel in this present chapter, at the 42. verse, Blessed art thou among women, because the fruit of thy wombe is blessed: and [u] Bernard expounds Elizabeth, Non quia tu benedicta, ideo benedictus fructus ventris tui: sed quia ille te præuenit in benedictionibus dulcedinis, ideo tu benedicta. Mary was blessed of God, in that she was chosen to be the mother of God. Other women haue beene and are the daughters of God, but Mary was both a daughter and a mother. The one is a speciall fauour, the other a singular honour, and Mary was blessed in respect of both. Albeit we doe not beare Christ bodily, yet if we spiritually beare him in our heart by faith, it is a great mercie, which we must acknowledge both in our selues and others. [x] For he that doth the will of God is a brother, and a sister, and a mother vnto Christ. As Mary was highly graced of God, so she was, and is, and shall be magnified of men. And from hence we may learne, that there is a time to commend, so well as to condemne, namely, 1. When the partie praised needeth encouragement. 2. When his gifts extolled are most excellent and eminent, as in Mary fulnesse of grace. 3. When he that is commended hath the grace to giue the glory to God, acknowledging himselfe to be freely beloued, and therefore blessed. 4. When the partie praising doth it as Gabriel here, not to flatter men, but to magnifie God.

I haue spoken of three remarkable persons in this Gospell, of the partie sending, God: of the partie sent, Gabriel an Angell: of the partie to whom he was sent, A Virgin whose name was Mary, full of grace, blessed among women. It remaineth I should now treat of the partie for whom all this annunciation was, and that is man. For all this was said, and all that followeth in our text was done for vs men and our saluation. I will here briefly glosse this Gospell in the words of [y] Bernard, Felix est qui mittitur, felix à quo mittitur, felix ad quam mittitur, vt homo fiat felix pro quo mittitur.

[r] Bernard. hom. 3. super missus est Angelus.

[t] Cajetan.
[t] Arctius.

[u] Vbi supra.

[x] Matth. 12. 50.

[y] Apud Dormisec. ser. de annun. B. Mariæ.

1
2
3
4

We beseech thee Lord, powre thy grace into our hearts, that as we haue knowne Christ thy Sonnes incarnation by the message of an Angell; so by his Crosse and Passion we may be brought vnto the glory of his resurrection through the same Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Epistle. Acts 10. 34.

Peter opened his mouth, and said, of a truth I perceiue that there is no respect of persons with God, &c.

[z] Aretius.

The [z] summarie pith in this accurate speech of Saint Peter vnto Cornelius is, that all men indifferently, whether they be Iewes or Gentiles, haue remission of their sinnes by faith in Christ, which is Lord ouer all things, and ordained of God to be the Iudge of all men quicke and dead. The whole Sermon is diuided into three parts.

- Proeme, verſ. 34, 35. wherein obſerue
  - What is ſaid for the matter, there is no reſpect of perſons with God, &c.
  - How it is ſaid for the manner, Peter opened his mouth, and ſaid, of a truth I perceiue.
- A Narration, ye know the preaching, &c. Wherein S. Peter[a] catechizeth his auditor Cornelius in the chiefe points of holy beleefe concerning the - Doctrine, verſ. 36, 37.
  - Miracles, verſ. 38.
  - Life, verſ. 39.
  - Death, ibid.
  - Reſurrection, verſ. 40. 41.
  - Comming to iudgement, verſ. 42.

  of Ieſus Chriſt.
- Confirmation, by production of witneſſes,
  - New, the bleſſed Apoſtles, verſ. 39 We are witneſſes of all things which he did, &c. and ſuch witneſſes as were choſen before of God, verſ. 41.
  - Old, the holy Prophets, verſ. 43. to him giue all the Prophets witneſſe.

[a] Tertul. de Corona militis, cap. 11.

Peter opened his mouth] This phraſe doth intimate a [b] weightie ſeriouſneſſe in the ſpeech, and a [c] free libertie in the ſpeaker. In the ſpeech, a weight and grauity; ſo Chriſt (in whom are hid all the treaſures of wiſdome and knowledge) when he made that excellent Sermon vpon the mount, is ſaid to haue [d] opened his mouth. And [e] Dauid in the perſon of Chriſt, I will open my mouth in parables, I will declare hard ſentences of old. In the ſpeaker, a libertie to deliuer his minde freely; ſo the Lord promiſed Ezechiel, [f] I will giue thee an open mouth in the middeſt of them. And [g] Paul ſaith, O Corinthians, our mouth is open vnto you. So that to ſpeake ore rotundo, with an open mouth, is nothing elſe, but after ſilence to ſpeake out of mature deliberation and freedome of ſpirit ponderouſly, fully, cheerefully. So S. Peter hauing ſeene a viſion, and heard a voice from heauen inſtructing and aſſuring him in the truth of the doctrine he was now to preach: opened his mouth, and ſaid of a truth I perceiue. That euery ſucceſſor of Peter may doe the like, he muſt often pray with [h] Dauid, O Lord open thou my lips: and entreat his people likewiſe to pray for him, as [i] Paul did his Epheſians, that vtterance may be giuen vnto him, and that he may open his mouth boldly to publiſh the ſecret of the Goſpell.

[b] Caluin. in loc.
[c] Vide Lorin. in act. cap. 8. verſ. 35.
[d] Matth. 5. 2.
[e] Pſalm 78. 2.
[f] Ezech. 29 21
[g] 2. Cor. 6. 11
[h] Pſal. 51. 15.
[i] Epheſ. 6. 19.

Of a truth I perceiue] Peter aſſuredly knew before, that there is no reſpect of perſons with God; but by this experiment he did vnderſtand it better, [k] Id nunc ſciri dicitur quod ſcitur magis. As Almighty God knew that Abraham was a good man before he would haue ſacrificed his ſonne, yet vpon that occaſion he did expreſſe it more, ſaying, [l] Now I know that thou feareſt God, ſeeing thou haſt not withheld thy ſonne, thine onely ſonne from me. Truth is more clearly perceiued in a particular experience, than in a generall notion, in which reſpect the New Teſtament is called truth, in compariſon of the Old; Iohn 1. 17. The Law was giuen by Moſes, but grace and truth came by Ieſus Chriſt. The Law prefiguring Chriſt was a truth conceiued, but the Goſpell exhibiting Chriſt, a truth perceiued. The Law was truth in the theorie, but the Goſpell a truth in experience, veritas facta, ſaith the beloued Diſciple, becauſe Chriſt only ſhadowed in the Law, was actually ſhewed in the Goſpell. And ſo Peters (of a truth I perceiue that there is no reſpect of perſons with God) is like to that of [m] Paul, In Chriſt Ieſu there is neither Iew nor Grecian, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female, neither circumciſion auaileth any thing, neither vncircumciſion, but faith which worketh by loue. Or we may take the clauſe (of a truth I perceiue) for an earneſt aſſeueration, anſwerable to that of [n] Chriſt, I tell you the truth, and to that of [o] Paul, I ſpeake the truth in Chriſt, and lie not. As if S. Peter ſhould haue ſaid, I deliuer nothing vnto you, but that which I certainly know to be true, by manifold reaſons, and infallible ſignes, as hauing read it in the Prophets, verſ. 43. and ſeene it in a viſion, verſ. 11, 12. and heard by voice from heauen, verſ. 13. 15. By this example, Preachers of the Word are taught, firſt exactly to know the truth, and then

[k] Lorin. in loc.
[l] Gen. 22. 12.
[m] Galat. 3. 28. & 5. 6.
[n] Ioh. 15 7.
[o] 1 Tim 2. 7.

then earnestly to deliuer it vnto Gods people. The Sermons of the Prophet Nahum are termed [p] the booke of the visions of Nahum, because saith [q] Hierome, he well vnderstood and saw whatsoeuer he said. A Pastor in like sort must see with Nahum, and say with Peter, of a truth I perceiue. For it is a shame that any should be Doctors of the Law (but a greater offence that any should be Preachers of the Gospell) and vnderstand not what they speake, neither whereof they affirme, 1 Tim. 1.7. Imitate this patterne of Peter, and eschew [r] vaine talkers, teaching otherwise for filthy lucres sake. It may be said better of a Minister than of a Monke; [t] Verus ecclesiastes non videt nisi aliena bona, & sua mala; illa vt æmuletur, hæc vt emendet.

There is no respect of persons with God] That we may well vnderstand and learne this lesson once, the Spirit repeats it often: as Deut. 10.17. 2 Chro. 19.7. Iob 34.19. Rom. 2.11. Ephes 6.9. Coloss. 3.25. 1 Pet. 1.17. [t] By person is meant not the substance but the qualitie, to wit, whatsoeuer is about or without a man; as his birth, education, honour, wealth, and the like; God respects not any, because they be Iewes or Gentiles, high or low, rich or poore; but in euery nation he whosoeuer he be, that feareth him and worketh righteousnesse, is accepted with him. Hee that is the [u] searcher of the heart, iudgeth not after outward appearance. Whereas Pelagius obiected, that God is a respecter of persons, in giuing grace to some, and denying it vnto other: Answer is made, that this comes to passe, non ex dignitate humana, sed ex dignatione diuina, it is [x] donation of bountie, not a dotation according to the rules of iustice. Now God saith in the [y] Gospell, Is it not lawfull for me to doe as I will with mine owne? Mans merit workes not this mercy, [z] by grace yee are saued through faith, and that not of your selues, it is the gift of God. And so God in giuing fauours, and forgiuing faults vnto this man, and not vnto that, is not an accepter of persons: for herein he [a] regardeth not the rich more than the poore, nor the Iew more than the Gentile, nor a man of peace more than a man of warre; as here you see Cornelius a Captaine, Cornelius a man of Cæsarea, Cornelius an alien from the common-wealth of Israel, is accepted with him as well as Peter borne among Gods owne people, and brought vp in Christs owne schoole. See S. Augustin. contra duas epistolas Pelagianorum, lib. 2. cap. 7. Thom. vbi sup. in margin. & part. 1. quæst. 23. art. 5 ad 3. Pet. Martyr. & Pareus in Rom 2.11. Zanchius in Ephes. 6.9. Caluin & Lorin. in loc.

Princes and Magistrates are stiled [b] Gods, as being the deputie lieutenants of God on earth, and (as it were) the fingers of that hand which rules all the world: and therefore they must be [c] followers of God as deare children, [d] mercifull as our Father in heauen is mercifull, [e] holy for that he is holy, no respecter of persons, as there is no respect of persons with him: as they stand in Gods place, so they should walke in Gods path: yee shall heare the small as well as the great, Deut. 1.17. wrest not the law, nor respect any person, neither take reward, Deut. 16.9. thou shalt not fauour the person of the poore, nor honour the person of the mightie, but thou shalt iudge thy neighbour vprightly, Leuit. 19.15. for it is not good to haue respect of any person in iudgement, Prou. 24.23. The [f] Thebans hereupon vsually pourtraied their Prince blinde, with eares, and the Iudges assisting him in iustice without hands. Blinde, lest he should haue respect of persons: with eares, that he might heare both parties indifferently: the Iudges without hands, lest otherwise they might be corrupted with bribes, [g] for the gift blindeth the wise, and peruerteth the words of the righteous: and for this end our forefathers ordained wisely, that euery Iudge should ride his Circuit in a Countrey farre distant from his owne home, whereby he might administer iustice freely without any fauour or feare. It was an old complaint of [h] Diogenes, that the greater theeues of the State did ordinarily punish the lesser: and another after him, that secret pillers of the Common-weale sit on the bench to condemne open robbers, standing at the barre. Magistrates in our dayes haue their houses seated so neere to Saint Bribes, as that few can say with [i] Iob, I put on iustice, and it couered me, my iudgement was a robe and a crowne, I was eyes to the blinde, and feet to the lame: fewer with Samuel,

[p] Nahum. 1.1. [q] Præfat. in Nahum.

[r] Tit. 1.10.

[t] Laurent. Pisan. in Euang. paradox.

[t] Aretius, Caluin. Iustus Ionas in loc.

[u] Ierem 17.10.

[x] Thomas 2 2e. quæst 63 art. 1. & Lessius de iust. & iure lib 2. cap 32. dubit. 1.
[y] Matth 20.15
[z] Ephes 2 8.
[a] Iob 34.19.

[b] Psalm 82.6.

[c] Ephes 5. 1.
[d] Luke 6.36.
[e] Leuit. 11.44.

[f] Reusner. in symbol.

[g] Exod 23.8.

[h] Laertius in vita Diog. cynic.

[i] Iob 29.14.

k Samuel, whose Oxe haue I taken? or whose Asse haue I taken? or to whom haue I done wrong? or whom haue I hurt? or of whose hand haue I receiued any bribe to blinde mine eyes therewith? and I will restore it you. None I feare with l Nerua, who was so good a Prince, that he did auow boldly, se nihil fecisse, quo minus posset imperio deposito priuatus tuto viuere. Some Magistrates vse the lawes as cob-webs, only to catch little flies: other as fox-nets, only to take great ones in a trap: and so the statutes of our kingdome (as a m reuerend Father of our Church once said) haue a good prologue, but bad epilogue: their inuention is wise, their intention honourable, but we faile in execution; and a n law without execution is as a bell without a clapper. A Iudge must haue two kindes of salt in him, as o Baldus truly, the salt of science to know the law, and the salt of conscience to determine according to the same; neither respecting the person, nor expecting the gifts of any.

k 1 Sam. 12.3.

l Ziphilinus in vita Nerua.

m B Vaughan Ser. at Pauls Crosse, Nouember 22. 1601.

n Henningus apud Bucholtzer. in Chron. ad ann 1521.

o Apud Cassaneum. catalog. part. 4. conside. rat. 6.

He that feareth him and worketh righteousnesse is accepted with him] To feare God and to keepe his commandements is the whole dutie of man, Eccles. 12. 13. and therefore these two, the fearing of God, and working of righteousnes, p comprehend our whole dutie. The first, all religious offices of pietie toward God: the second, all righteous offices of charitie toward our neighbour. Cornelius feare was not seruile, but filiall: he feared God as an obedient childe feareth a kinde father, and God is not our father after this sort but in Christ, in whom he is q well pleased, and in whom he doth r adopt vs his children, giuing vs his Spirit f whereby we cry Abba father: in a word, Cornelius feare was t faith, and by this faith he was accepted with God, and this faith openly shewed it selfe in working righteousnesse toward men. And therefore such as build vpon this example, free-will and iustification by works, are u deceiued exceedingly, x for Cornelius is said here, first to feare God, and then afterward to worke righteousnesse. He had heard among the Iewes of Gods holy promise concerning the sending of his Sonne our Sauiour, the which he beleeued as the Patriarkes and Prophets, and other of Gods people who liued before Christs comming into the world; and this faith (as Paul speakes) wrought by loue, Galat. 5.6.

p Caluin.

q Matth 3.17.

r Ephes. 1.5.

f Rom. 8.15.

t Aretius.

u Beza.

x Iustus Ionas.

It is worth obseruing, that this commendation of Cornelius, is remembred often in holy Scriptures, as a speciall infallible marke of Gods children. y Iob a iust man, and one that feared God, z Simeon was a iust man and feared God; but euermore, the fearing of God, as being the a beginning of wisdome, is mentioned as the chiefe note: father Abraham, a man who feared God, Gen. 22.12. Ioseph, a man who feared God, Gen. 42.18. the Midwiues in Ægypt feared God, Exod. 1.17. If the fearing of God once goe before, working of righteousnesse will instantly follow after, according to that of the Wiseman, b He that feareth the Lord will doe good. If thou seest a man in a desperate course, selling himselfe (as it is said of c Ahab) to worke wickednesse, d rising vp early to follow drunkennesse, and continuing at the tauerne till it be night, drawing in iniquity with cords of vanitie, and sinne as it were with cart-ropes; it is a sure signe that the true feare of God is not rooted in his soule, for whosoeuer hath a care to liue religiously toward God, will also (so farre as humane frailtie will suffer) liue soberly toward himselfe, and righteously toward his neighbour.

y Iob 1 1.

z Luke 2.25

a Prou. 1.7.

b Ecclesiasticus 15. 1.

c 1 King 21.25

d Esay 5.11.18

Ye know the preaching] The narration and confirmation ensuing, are a little creed, containing the chiefe articles of holy beleefe, but the point vrged by the blessed Apostle most, is the resurrection of Christ, expresly setting downe, 1. The author of his resurrection, him God raised vp. 2. The time when, the third day. 3. Before what witnesses, openly shewing him vnto vs witnesses chosen before of God. 4. What he did after he rose from death, he did eat and drinke with vs. 5. What he said, he commanded vs to preach vnto the people, and to testifie that it is he which was ordained of God to be the iudge of the quicke and the dead. In this argument of Christs resurrection, the Gospell and Epistle meet, and both are full and fit for the present feast of Easter. In that S. Peter maketh Apostles and Prophets ioynt witnesses of all these things, he doth insinuate that Christ is the [c] Paulinus epist. lib. 4. Epist. 1.

the beginning and end of the whole Scripture, [c] qui in lege velatur & in euangelio reuelatur. See Gospell 1. Sunday in Aduent.

The Gospell. Luke 24. 13. vnto v. 36.

Behold, two of the Disciples went that same day to a towne called Emmaus, &c

THis Scripture containeth a sweet conference betweene Christ and two Disciples, as they iourneyed in the way from Hierusalem to a towne called Emmaus. The [f] summe whereof is, that Christ Iesus is truly risen againe from the dead, as hauing fulfilled all things which Moses and the Prophets haue spoken of him. The whole may be diuided into three parts:

[f] Calman. con. 1. in loc.

- Prologue, which occasioned the conference, vers. 13, 14. wherein these circumstances are considerable:
  - Who, two of the Disciples.
  - When, that same day.
  - Where, in the way betweene Hierusalem and Emmaus.
  - What, they talked together of all the things that had hapned.
- A Dialogue, or the conference it selfe, wherein Christ sheweth his tender care toward his Disciples, in
  - Drawing neere to them, vers. 15.
  - Walking and talking with them, verse 17. 19.
  - Correcting them for their error, verse 25.
  - Directing them in the truth, and that by
    - Words, arguings [g] from
      - reason, v. 26.
      - authority, v. 27
    - Deeds, he sate at table with them, he tooke bread, &c. vers. 30.
- Epilogue, declaring what ensued vpon the conference, to wit, an
  - Ingenuous confession of the faith in the two Disciples, Did not our hearts burne within vs, &c.
  - Earnest desire to confirme the same truth in other, And they rose vp the same houre, and returned to Hierusalem, and found the eleuen gathered together, and them that were with them, and they told, &c. vers. 33, 34, 35.

[g] Ardens.

Behold two of the Disciples went the same day] [h] Two are better than one, for if they fall, the one will lift vp his fellow. And therefore the Disciples here went not alone, but in companie, two, that they might by their mutuall helpe and conference mitigate one anothers griefe. And for this end they went to Emmaus, which is [i] interpreted, a thirsting after good aduice; signifying hereby, that their afflicted soule desired earnestly to be releeued with healthfull and heauenly counsell in this extremitie. Two they were, and two of the Disciples: not of the twelue, (for [k] Iudas had hanged himselfe before this; and it is said in our present Text, at the 33. verse, that these two found the other eleuen gathered together) but of the [l] seuentie Disciples, as almost all Interpreters obserue. Yet (as [m] one notes) it may be that these were Disciples of Christ in secret, as Ioseph of Arimathea was. Ioh. 19. 38. One of the two Disciples is named here Cleophas, and he was (as [n] Hierome writes) a citizen of Emmaus, in whose house Christ was entertained at table, and so knowne by breaking of bread. That other Disciple not named is thought by [o] Gregorie the Great, [p] Theophylact, and [q] other, to be S. Luke, concealing his owne name out of modestie. But it is apparent in the proeme of this euangelicall historie, that S. Luke receiued his relations from other, and therefore not probable that he was one of these two. See Iansen concord. cap. 145. & Maldonat. in Luc. 1. 1.

[h] Ecclesiast. 4. 9
[i] Bernard hom. de duobus Disc. euntibus in Emmaus.
[k] Matt. 27. 5.
[l] Luk. 10 1.
[m] Maldonat. in loc.
[n] in Epitaph. Paulæ ad Eustoc Other, apud Maldonat, in loc. coniecture, that he was brother to Ioseph husband to Marie.
[o] Præfat in lib. Iob.
[p] In loc.
[q] Nicephorus lib. 1 cap. 34.
[r] Hæres. 23.
[s] Init. com. in Ioan.
[t] In Luc. lib. 10. cap. vlt.
[u] Bullinger. apud Marlorat. in loc.

[r] Epiphanius saith expresly, that this Disciple was Nathaniel, [s] Origen coniectures it was one Simeon, [t] Ambrose calleth him Amaon. [u] In this dissention of opinions, opinions, obserue two things especially: 1. That it is fruitlesse to search after this name curiously, seeing the Spirit of truth and wisdome concealeth it. 2. That traditions are vncertaine though ancient, and therefore we must build our faith vpon the word written, and not vpon tales vnwritten. These two Disciples went the same day Christ arose from the dead out of their Colledge, but they went not out in Apostasie, like to them of whom S. Iohn, 1 Epist. 2. cap. vers. 19. They went out from vs, but they were not of vs: for if they had beene of vs, they would haue continued with vs. Neither went they forth in curiositie, like to [x] Dina, who went out to see the daughters of the land; but they went out from the rest of their companie like [y] bees out of their hiue, that they might returne home laden with honie: for their communication is answerable to the present doctrine and griefe of their Colledge, they gather sweet from the flowers of Christs speech, hearing him expounding the Law and the Prophets attentiuely, compelling him importunately to stay with them, and neuer leauing him vntill in breaking of bread they knew him. And then as being filled with heauenly food (which is [z] sweeter than honie and the honie combe) they returned home to the blessed Apostles and other Disciples at Hierusalem, and told what things were done in the way.

x Gen. 34. 1.

y Ardens.

z Psal. 19. 10.

To a towne called Emmaus] [a] Plinie reckoneth Emmaus among the Toparchies of Iudea, called afterward [b] Nicopolis, vpon the [c] victorie which Augustus Cæsar got against Antonius and Cleopatra. This Citie was exceeding famous, as I finde in the records of [d] antiquitie; but our Euangelist nameth it here, not for the celebritie of the towne, [e] but for the certaintie of the truth.

a Hist. lib. 5. cap. 14.
b Hieron. in Dan. 8.
c Idem exposit. 1. epist ad Tit.
d Vide Baron. annal. Tom. 1. ad ann. 34 fol. 203. 204.
e Marlorat. in loc.

And they talked together of all the things that had hapned] [f] Of the death of Christ, and of the Iewes inhumane crueltie who put him to death, of the womens going to his Sepulchre, and of their report vnto the brethren: their heart was fixed on Christ, and out of their hearts abundance their mouth spake.

Quicquid agit Cleophas, nihil est Cleophæ nisi Christus, Si gaudet, si flet, si tacet, hunc loquitur.

f Augustin ser. 144. de temp.

The newes at Hierusalem how Christ was crucified, dead, buried, and risen againe, are called things that hapned and chanced, [g] in respect of the Disciples ignorance, not in respect of Gods knowledge: for as concerning the passion of Christ, it is said expressly by S. Peter, Act. 3. 23. that he was deliuered, and crucified, and slaine by the determinate counsell and fore-knowledge of God, and so nothing hapned casually, seeing euery thing was aforetime [h] written of him in the law of Moses, and in the Prophets, and in the Psalmes. And as for the [i] resurrection of Christ, himselfe saith in this present chapter at the 25. verse, O fooles, and slow of heart to beleeue all that the Prophets haue spoken, ought not Christ to haue suffered these things, and to enter into his glory? And he began at Moses and all the Prophets, and interpreted vnto them in all Scriptures which were written of him. [k] Mystically, these two Disciples are prayer and meditation, the which are two so neerely coupled together, as that they talke together often. In prayer our meditation is illuminated, and by meditation our deuotion in praying inflamed. Meditatio ruminat liuores vulnerum, fixuras clauorum, lanceam & acetum, persecutorum sauitiam, Apostolorum fugam, mortem turpissimam, & corporis sepulturam: oratio fundit suspiria, pia deuotionis stillat aromata, tota resoluitur in lamenta.

g Arctius.
h Luke 24. 44.
i Suarez Tom 2. in 3. Thom. d sp. 45. sect. 1.
k Bernard. hom. de duobus discipulis euntibus in Emmaus.

And it chanced while they communed together and reasoned, Iesus himselfe drew neere] [l] The Lord is nigh to such as are of a contrite heart, and in the [m] mids of such as are gathered together to praise him. In the tap-house, where the communication is idle, prophane, scandalous, and in euery respect vnsauourie, there the deuill is in the drunkards heart, and eares, and tongue: [n] but in Gods house when we meet together to magnifie his name, nay in our owne house, when as we meditate on Christs precious death and buriall, and other mysteries of holy beleefe, Iesus himselfe [o] standeth behind our wall, looking forth of the windowes, shewing himselfe thorow the grates, and [p] putting in his hand at the hole of the doore to helpe vs, he drawes neere to vs, and walketh along with vs, as he did with the two

l Psal 34. 17.
m Matth 18. 20
n Beda. Bernard. Culman.
o Cant. 2. 9.
p Cant. 5. 4.

two Disciples here, neuer leauing vs vntill he perceiue that we be thorowly confirmed and comforted in the truth. q Ambulat cum illis in via & non dum illis ambulabant in via, inuenit enim eos exorbitasse de via: he which is the way, seeing his Disciples out of the way, shewes them his r pathes, and s leads them forth beside the waters of comfort: and for this end he doth aske, what manner of communications are these? t not as doubting himselfe, but only to put them out of doubt: u quarit ab eis quid inter se loquerentur, vt quod ipse sciebat illi faterentur. He doth aske them and vrge them againe and againe, x that he might haue fit occasion and ample matter of discourse: and when he found them vpon conference to be dullards in his schoole, he chides them, O fooles, and slow of heart, &c. fooles in vnderstanding, slow in affecting the truth. y Arguit eos amentiæ in parte cognoscitiua, & tarditatis in parte affectiua. But yet in calling them fooles he brake not his owne law, (z whosoeuer shall say foole to his brother is worthy to be punished with hell fire) because this rebuke proceeds out of a a spirituall zeale for their good, and not out of any carnall hatred for their hurt. And such a reproofe is not a reproch, it is officium, and not conuitium, a work of charitie, and not a mark of malice. So b Paul called his Galathians foolish, and he gaue this precept vnto c Timothie, improue, rebuke, but with all long-suffering and doctrine, for Christ here did not only correct his Disciples error, but also direct them in the truth, and that by words and deeds. By words, vrging the truth of his death and resurrection: 1. By reason; ought not Christ to haue suffered these things, and to enter into his glory? 2. From authoritie, he began at Moses and all the Prophets, and interpreted vnto them in all Scriptures which were written of him. Here first note the sweet harmonie betweene the two Testaments, in that both agree together, and meet together in Christ, as being alpha and omega, the beginning of the Gospell, and the end of the Law. Secondly, that the grounds of all our Sermons are to be taken out of holy writ; the d Ministers and messengers of God ought to deliuer the e words of God. Thirdly, that in our preaching we should vse such Scriptures as are most apt and fit for our present occasion, as Christ here cited not all the Scriptures in all the Law, but only such as were written of him, euen those which euidently proued his death and resurrection. He did interpret vnto them in all Scriptures, and yet named none, f that he might incite vs hereby to the diligent searching and examination of them.

Secondly, Christ instructed his Disciples in this present controuersie with his actions; for as it is said at the 19. verse, he was a Prophet mightie in deed and word: g that is, in soundnesse of doctrine, and sanctitie of life. First (as h Theophylact obserues) powerfull in deed, and then powerfull in word. For he perswadeth vnto vertue most, who liueth best. As in this place Christ himselfe was knowne by breaking of bread, i sooner than by preaching of the word. Or as k other, powerfull in his miracles, and powerfull in his teaching. His actions here mentioned concerning the bread, are foure; He tooke it, and blessed it, and brake it, and gaue to them. Among all which, he was only knowne in breaking of bread, l for that he did miraculously breake bread with his hands, as other cut it with a knife. The which he did often in his life, and so by this easily knowne after his rising from death.

m By this dialogue you may see, that Christ is especially knowne in the Scriptures, and yet not in the Scriptures, except he first open our eyes, and breake and giue to each one the bread of life. And in the conclusion or epilogue following, you may see likewise the fruit of interpreting Scriptures, how the n ministerie of the word maketh the fire of Gods spirit to burne, first in our selues, and then afterwards to shine towards other. As the two Disciples here, so soone as their eyes were opened to see Christ, instantly the same houre they rose vp, and returned to Hierusalem, and found the eleuen gathered together, and they told what things were done in the way, and how they knew him in breaking of bread; the circumstance of the time, and distance of the place, manifestly shew their zealous affection in relating these newes vnto the brethren. Emmaus (as our Euangelist in the 13. verse) was about

q August ser. 140. de temp.
r Psal. 25. 3.
s Psal. 23. 2.
t Caluin. Ludolphus.
u Augustin. ser. 144. de temp.
x Aretius.
y Caietan.
z Matth. 5. 22.
a Marlorat.
b Galat. 2 1.
c 2 Tim 4. 2
d 1 Cor. 4. 1.
e 1 Pet. 4. 11.
f Aretius.
g Caluin.
h In loc. idem Iansen. & alij.
i Ardens.
k Euthym. Ludolphus. Aret.
l Caietan.
m Culman. con. 4. in loc.
n Marlorat.

about threescore furlongs from Hierusalem, [o] eight furlongs make an ordinary mile, and so threescore furlongs are about seuen miles and an halfe. Some Diuines affirme that it was a iourney of [p] three or [q] foure houres on foot. If then it were towards night when Christ vpon their importunitie sate at table with them, as we reade at the 29. verse; then it was (as we may coniecture probably) midnight before they could come to Hierusalem; and yet (saith our text) they went the same houre, neither deferring the time, nor preferring their priuate businesse before the publike good. Howsoeuer they were (doubtlesse) after trauell weary, & after meat in the night sleepy: yet they [r] would not suffer their eyes to sleepe, nor their eye-lids to slumber, nor the temples of his head to take any rest, vntill they had published vnto the brethren how Christ was risen againe from the dead, and how they knew him in breaking of bread. That we may performe the like diligence towards Gods people, as occasion is offered in our seuerall estates and callings, let vs pray with our mother the Church:

[o] Vide Maldonat in loc.
[p] Caluin apud Marlorat.
[q] Aretius

[r] Psal. 132. 4.

> Almightie God which through thy onely begotten Sonne Iesus Christ hast ouercome death, and opened vnto vs the gate of euerlasting life: we humbly beseech thee that as by thy speciall grace preuenting vs thou doest put in our mindes good desires: so by thy continuall helpe we may bring the same to good effect, through Iesus Christ our Lord. &c.

The Epistle. Acts 13 26.. vnto v. 42

Yee men and brethren, children of the generation of Abraham, &c.

THis text is part of that excellent sermon made by the blessed Apostle S. Paul at Antioch, a Citie of Pisidia to the Iewes assembled together in their Synagogue, on the Sabbath day. The maine scope whereof is, that Iesus Christ is the Sauiour of Israel, and Messias of the world, promised vnto the Fathers, and exhibited in the fulnesse of time to their children, euen vnto vs, as being by faith a generation of Abraham, and that through him all that feare God and beleeue, receiue forgiuenesse of their sinnes, and are iustified from all things, from which they could not be iustified by the law of Moses.

The whole Sermon hath especially two parts:

- Explication, from the 16. verse to the 26. intimating that Iesus Christ is the blessed seed promised in old time by the Prophets, and preached in these last dayes by Iohn the Baptist, who was [s] more than a Prophet.
- Application, in the words allotted for our present text, where in three points are principally regardable, to wit, an
  - Insinuation, yee men and brethren, &c.
  - Preoccupation, for the inhabiters of Hierusalem, &c.
  - Commination, beware therefore lest that fall vpon you, &c.

[s] Matth. 11. 9

The Gospell of Christ is a proclamation in writing common to all, and the Preacher is the [t] voice of a cryer, euen the mouth of God to giue notice to the people, that the contents of the proclamation concerne them and euery one of them. As Acts 2. 39. The Promise is made to you, and to your children, and to all that are a farre off, euen as many as the Lord our God shall call And Actes 3. 26. Vnto you hath God raised vp his Sonne Iesus, and him hee hath sent to blesse you, in turning euery one of you from your iniquities. And here, Yee men and brethren, children of the generation of Abraham, and whosoeuer among you feareth God, to you is the word of this saluation sent. And verse 38. Be it knowne vnto you that through the man Iesus is preached vnto you the forgiuenesse of sinnes.

[t] Iohn 1. 23.

[a] Marlorat.

Now that our Apostle might the better [n]insinuate himself into the mindes of his hearers, and thereby more powerfully perswade the truth of his doctrine, he cals them brethren, children of the generation of Abraham, and such as feare God.

[x] Lorinus.

[x] The first title was among the Iewes held gratious; the second and third glorious, esteeming it euer the greatest honour to be the seruants of God and sonnes of Abraham. And whereas Christ crucified is vnto the Iewes a [y] stumbling block, (for what Iew wil out of his own iudgement admit him for the Sauiour of Gods people, who was condemned by the chiefe Priests: and rulers, and inhabiters of Gods owne Citie Ierusalem; of which it is sayd, [z] The Law shall goe forth of Sion, and the word of the Lord from Hierusalem) our Apostle remoues the scandall of Christs Crosse, retorting and answering this obiection in his ensuing discourse.

[y] 1.Cor.1.23.

[z] Esay 2.3.

[a] Calvin.

First, he retorteth it, and maketh it aduantage in his present businesse. [a] As if hee should say, yee men of Antioch, children of the generation of Abraham, especially such as feare God among you; I say ye should the rather embrace the word of salvation sent vnto you, because the men of Hierusalem and their rulers killed the [b] Lord of life, condemning him in whom they found no cause of death. Hierusalem [c] vnderstood not the things appertaining to her peace, but [d] murthered the Prophets, and stoned such as were sent to her. Take heed therfore ye men of Antioch, that ye commit not the like sinne and ingratitude, lest that fall on you which is spoken of in the Prophets; behold ye dispisers, and wonder, and perish.

[b] Actes 3.15.
[c] Luke 19.42.
[d] Matth.23.37.

Secondly, S. Paul here giueth answer to this obiection. It is true that the men of Hierusalem and their rulers haue crucified the Lord of [e] glory; but it was out of their ignorãce, because they knew him not, nor yet the voices of the Prophets which are read euery Sabbath day. They killed, him indeed, but herein they fulfilled all the Scriptures that are written of him, especially that Scripture, [f] The same stone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner. And lastly, though it be granted vnto you that the Sauiour Iesus (through whom is preached vnto you forgiuenesse of sinnes) had a death full of ignominie, for that he was hanged on a tree: yet his rising againe from the dead the third day was exceeding glorious. in that he [g] led captiuitie captiue, triumphing ouer death, hell, and the graue.

[e] 1.Cor 2.8.

[f] Psa.118.22.

[g] Ephes.4.8.

Now that Christ is risen againe from death he proues by the witnesse of

- Apostles,
  - Himselfe, we declare, &c. For Christ after his resurrection was seene of Paul, 1.Cor.15.8.
  - Other, who went with him from Galilee to Hierusalem, of whom he was seene many dayes, as being witnesses chosen of God for the same purpose, Act.10.41.
- Prophets,
  - Esay, chap.55.3.
  - David, Psal.2.7.& 16.11,

The first testimonie cited by Paul is in the second Psalme, Thou art my son, &c. [h] the which I finde expounded of David and of Christ.

[h] Caluin in Psal.2.

If we take this spoken of David, hee may be called the sonne of God, as a

- King, for Princes haue their [i] power from God, and so stiled the children of the most High. Psalm. 82.6.
- Man, for we are the [k] generation of God, it is he who made vs, and not our selues. Psal. 100.2. and is not he thy father that made thee, Deut.32.6,
- Regenerate man, for euery one that is new borne is [l] borne of God, adopted his son, and made his heire, Rom.8.15.17.

[i] Iohn 19.11. Rom.13.1.

[k] Acts 17.28.

[l] 1.Iohn 3.9.

Thus it may be said by God vnto David in a type, this day haue I begotten thee but only to Christ in truth. And therefore [m] Rabbi Solomon, and other Doctors among the Iewes, vnderstand this of the Messias, and assuredly Paul in his Epistle

[m] Galat. de arcanis lib.3.cap.7

to

to the Hebrews, chap 1. verſ. 5. did the rather cite this text to prooue that Chriſt is God, for that he knew their Rabbines vſually conſtrued it of Iſraels Sauiour. The maine propoſition of the ſecond Pſalme is, that the Meſſias is the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, euen Gods onely begotten Sonne, very God of very God. The which is concluded in this argument. He that is to be worſhipped and kiſſed of all Princes, on earth, is doubtleſſe the King of Kings: but the Meſſias ought to be worſhipped of all other Kings and Rulers and Iudges of the earth, ergo, the Meſſias ſeated vpon Gods holy hill of Sion, is the King of Kings, euen the Lord who dwelleth in heauen. If the Princes of the world ſtand vp and take counſell together againſt the Lord, and againſt his anointed, it is but in vaine. For if his wrath be kindled (yea but a little) they ſhall inſtantly periſh, he ſhall bruſe them with a rod of iron, and breake them in pieces like a potters veſſell. On the contrary, bleſſed are they who kiſſe the Sonne, and put their truſt in him; happy men, and wiſe Kings are they, who ſerue the Lord in feare and reioyce before him in reuerence. ° God onely killeth and maketh aliue; bringeth downe to the graue, and rayſeth vp. Ergo the Meſſias hauing this abſolute power of life and death, is vndoubtedly Gods onely begotten Sonne, whom he hath made ᵖ heire of all things, and ᵠ iudge of all men. And therefore Diuines interpret the cited words as properly ſpoken of Chriſt.

And that in reſpect of his { Generation, { Temporall. / Eternall. / Reſurrection.

ʳ Some conſtrue this of his temporarie birth, in ſaying Thou art my Sonne, God ſheweth his diuine generation: and in ſaying this day haue I begotten thee, his humane natiuitie. For hodie, ſignifieth in holy Scripture the preſent life, Heb. 3. 7, Pſalm 95. 8. to day if ye will heare his voyce. So that I haue begotten thee this day; as if he ſhould haue ſayd, I haue ſbrought my firſt begotten ſonne into the world, I haue cauſed thee to become ᵗ fleſh, and in the fulneſſe of time to be borne of a ᵘ woman.

ˣ Other vnderſtand this of Chriſts eternall generation. ʸ As if God ſhould haue ſayd, other are my ſonnes improperly, but thou art my Son properly.ᶻ filius meus naturalis, ſingularis ſubſtantialis: A ſonne not by creation, as the whole world, nor through adoption, as the whole Church: but a ſonne by nature, my begotten and only begotten ſonne. Iohn 3, 16, The very brightneſſe, and expreſſe character of my Perſon, Heb. 1. 3. Whereas Arrians and other obiect againſt this interpretation the word hodie; ᵃ Saint Auguſtine anſwereth appoſitly that with God (vnto whom all things are preſent) there is neither yeſterday, nor to morrow, but onely to day. Apud Deum nunquam craſtinus, nunquam heſternus dies eſt, ſed ſemper hodie. And in his Enchiridion cap, 49, Vbi dies nec heſterni fine inchoatur, nec initio craſtini terminatur, hodiernus eſt.

ᵇ Hilary, ᶜ Euſebius, ᵈ Ambroſe, with ᵉ other expound this of Chriſts reſurrection, as Paul here. We declare to you how the promiſe made to the fathers, God hath fulfilled vnto their children, euen vnto vs, in that he raiſed vp Ieſus againe, euen as it is written in the ſecond Pſalme, thou art my Sonne, this day haue I begotten thee. For to raiſe vp againe from death vnto life euerlaſting is a new begetting; and in this ſenſe Chriſt is called elſewhere the firſt ᶠ begotten, and the firſt ᵍ borne of the dead. Againe the circumſtances of the place, leade the Reader to this conſtruction, Why doe the heathen ſo furiouſly rage together, and why doe the people imagine a vaine thing? that is, as Peter and Iohn haue well applied it, Acts 4. 27. Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and people of Iſrael, gathered themſelues together againſt the Lord and againſt his Chriſt, euen his holy Sonne Ieſus: and when they had filled all things that were written of him (as Paul in our text) they tooke him downe from the tree, and put him in a ſepulchre, ʰ rolling a great ſtone to the doore thereof, and ſealed it, and making it ſure with the watch. In all which (as the Prophet ſpeakes) their imaginations and actions were vaine; for he that dwelleth in heauen did laugh them to ſcorne, ᵘ Vide Bellarm. de Chriſt. lib. 1. cap 5 in principio.

° 1. Sam. 2. 6.

ᵖ Heb. 1 2.
ᵠ Acts 10. 42.

ʳ Euthym. Genebrard in Pſal. 2. Chriſoſt. Cyrill. Alex. Greg. Nyſſen. apud Suarez Tom. 2. diſp. 45. ſect. 1.
ˢ Heb 1. 6.
ᵗ Ioh 1. 14.
ᵘ Galath 4. 4.
ˣ Auguſt. in Pſal. 2 & Enchirid. cap. 49. Athanaſ ſer 3. contra Arianos. Ruffinus apud Lorin. in loc.
ʸ Suarez Tom. 1. diſp. 2. ſect 3.
ᶻ Ioan de Turrecremat in Pſalm. 2.
ᵃ Orat. de quinque hereſ. cap. 4. habetur Tom. 6. fol. 26.
ᵇ In Pſalm. 2.
ᶜ Demonſt. euangel. lib. 6. cap. 2.
ᵈ Lib. 3. de ſacram. cap. 1.
ᵉ Apud Lorin. in loc.
ᶠ Apocal. 1. 5.
ᵍ Coloſſ. 1. 18.
ʰ Mat. 27. 60. 66.

scorne, the Lord had them in derision: he raised his Christ againe the third day, making him a King ouer his holy hill of Sion, [i] that is, absolute head of his Church giuing him all the heathen for his inheritance, & the vttermost parts of the earth for his possession. And so God in raising Christ vp againe from the dead, euidently shewed that he was his only begotten Sonne. As if hee should haue said, thou wert euer my Sonne before to day, before there was any day; [k] but yet in this day of thy resurrection, I haue most especially manifested vnto the world, that thou art my Sonne whom I haue begotten. It is then an [l] idle conceit, to thinke that Paul is not Author of that Epistle written to the Hebrewes, because the words of Dauid vrged here to proue Christs resurrection, are cited here, chap. 1. verse 5. to shew Christs eternall generation. For (as Paul in his Epistle to the Romanes, chap. 1. verse 4.) Christ is declared mightily to be the Sonne of God by rising againe from the dead His resurrection is an infallible demonstration of his diuinitie, seeing none euer raised another from the dead but by God: none euer raised himselfe from the dead but God. I conclude this obseruation in the words of [m] Ambrose, Pulchre pater dicit ad filium, ego hodie genui te, hoc est, quando redemisti populum quando ad cœli regnum vocasti, quando implesti voluntatem meam, probasti meum te esse filium.

[i] Hierom: August. Genebrardus in Psalm. 2.
[k] Vide Caluin. in Psalm. 2. & Suarez Tom. 2. in 3. Tom. disp. 45. sect. 1.
[l] Apud Sixt. Senen bib sanct. lib. 7. hæres. 8. obiect. 11.
[m] Lib. 3. de sacram. cap. 1.

The next Scipture quoted here by Paul is, Esay 55.3. The promises of God made to Dauid concerning the sending of Israels Sauiour, are sure mercies, and faithfull words: he must of necessitie therefore fulfill them in euery respect, [n] the which he could not haue done, but in raising vp Iesus againe; for the resurrection of Christ is the [o] complement, and (as it were) Amen of all his promises, according to that of [p] Paul, he died for our sinnes, and is risen againe for our iustification, See conclusion of the Gospell on S. Thomas day.

[n] Aretius.
[o] Lorin.
[p] Rom. 4. 25.

The last authoritie cited in this place, to proue Christs resurrection. is taken out of the 16, Psalme, verse 11. Thou shalt not suffer thine holy one to see corruption: The Iewes vnderstood this of Dauid, but saith our Apostle) Dauid albeit hee was a King, and a Prophet, and a [q] Patriarke, a man according to Gods owne heart, as it is recorded of him in this present chapter, at the 22. verse, yet (after he had in his time fulfilled the will of God he fell on [r] sleepe, and was layd vnto his fathers and saw corruption. Earth he was, and to earth he returned againe. But Christ Iesus, although he was hanged on a tree, and put in a sepulchre; yet he saw no corruption. He rose againe the third day, triumphing ouer all his enemies [s] openly saying. [t] O Death I will be thy death O graue I will be thy destruction. And therefore this Iesus is hee through whom is preached vnto you forgiuenes of sinnes & by whom all that beleeue are iustifyed frō all things, from which yee could not be iustified by the law of Moses.

[q] Actes 2. 29.
[r] 1. King. 2 10.
[s] Colos. 2. 15.
[t] Hosea 13. 14.

Mors mortis morti mortem nisi morte dedisset,
A nobis vitæ ianua clausa foret.

Beware therefore, lest that fall on you which is spoken of in the Prophets] This text is taken out of the first of Habakuck, vers. 5. [u] but for as much as all the Propheties were collected together into one volume, he saith in the Prophets. [x] Or according to the Hebrew phrase, in the Prophets, is as if he should haue sayd, in one of the Prophets; as Genes. 23.6. In the chiefest of our sepulchres burie thy dead; that is in one of the chiefe. He doth alter the words of the Prophet according to the sound but not according to the sense. Habakuk saith, behold among the heathen; Paul here, behold ye dispisers. In which our Apostle doth expound and not confound the Prophet: for whereas the Iewes despised the word of God, he sent them to be taught by the Caldeans: [y] as if Habakuk had sayd, ye wil not obey Gods voyce, yee will not learne any thing in his Schoole; wherefore ye shall ere it be long be made to know his iudgements among the heathen: Loe (saith the Lord) I wil raise vp the Caldeans, that bitter and hasty nation, which shal march thorow the breadth of the land to possesse the dwelling places which are not theirs. And [z] this their ouerthrow as a type of their future reprobation and spirituall vastity for the contempt of the Gospell.

[u] Culman in loc.
[x] Ribera in Habacuc. 1. Num. 3.
[y] Caluin. in Habacuc. 1.
[z] Ribera vbi sup. Num. 7.

These

These things are [a] ensamples, and are written to admonish vs vpon whom the ends of the world are come. Let vs therefore beware, that these heauie iudgements fall not vpon vs, as they did vpon the Iewes, Videte & aspicite, admiramini, admiramini, take heed, and againe I say take heed, [b] quench not the Spirit, despise not propheſying, receiue not the grace of God in vaine. [c] Nemo malus nisi stultus, he that is a despiser of the sauing word is an arrant foole; for if hee were wiser he would kisse the Sonne, and beware lest that fall on his head which is spoken of in the Prophets, Behold ye dispisers, and wonder, and perish.

[a] 1. Cor. 6. 11.

[b] 1. Thes. 5. 19.

[c] Saluianus lib. 5. de guber. nat. Dei.

The Gospell. Luke 24. 36. Vide p. 49

Iesus stood in the middest of his Disciples, &c.

CONcerning the chiefe parts and passages of this Scripture; See Gospel 1. Sunday after Easter, and Gospel on S. Thomas day. Here pause and pray.

Almightie Father, which hast giuen thine onely Sonne to die for our sinnes, and to rise againe for our iustification: grant vs so to put away the leauen of malice and wickednesse, that wee may alway serue thee in pureness of liuing and trueth, through Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Epistle. Ephes. 4. 7. Vide p. 17

Vnto euery one of vs is giuen grace, according to the measure of the gift of Christ. &c.

SAint Paul doth especially [d] two things in all his Epistles: 1. treat. 2. intreat. Hauing sufficiently treated in the former chapters of doctrinals, he commeth in this present to morals; intreating his Ephesians in generall, to walke worthy of the vocation whereunto they were called: in more particular, to support one another through loue, keeping the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace: pressing this one point with arguments of [e] two sorts.

[d] Chrysost. in Rom 6.

[e] Aquin. Zanchius.

The first (of which Epistle 17. Sunday after Trinitie) is taken from such things as are common vnto the whole Church, as being in all the faithfull one and the same, there is one bodie, and one spirit, and one hope, one Lord, one faith, one baptisme, one God and father of all, which is aboue all, and through all, and in you all. As if he should argue thus, if the Church your mother be but one, God your father but one, Christ your Lord but one, the holy Spirit your Comforter but one, if yee haue but one hope, one faith, one baptisme; I see no cause why yee should not liue together and loue together as all one, labouring to keepe the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace.

The second (contained in our present text) is taken from such graces as are in euery one diuers. [f] shewing that this inequalitie of gifts is not an hindrance, but rather a furtherance to vnitie: for as much as all of them are giuen by the same author for the same end. Vnto euery one of vs is giuen some gift, vnto none, all, be that hath most hath but a measure. As then in the naturall bodie, [g] the eye cannot say to the hand I haue no need of thee: nor the hand againe to the feet, I haue no need of you; but euery part seeketh anothers and not his owne good: Euen so in the Church (which is Christs mysticall bodie) God made not all Apostles, or all Prophets, or Euangelists, &c. But some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c. There be diuersities of gifts, and diuersities of administrations, and diuersities of operations, 1. Cor. 12. euery one standeth in neede of anothers gift, and thereupon is occasioned to support one another in loue, preseruing the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace. See Epistle 2. Sunday after Epiphanie, and 10. after Trinitie.

[f] Aretius. Marlorat.

[g] 1. Cor. 12. 21. 25.

In the whole foure points are to be considered especially.

1. Who, Christ, and that is Proued out of the 68. Psalme verse 18. he led captiuitie captiuitie, and gaue gifts vnto men.
2. When, When he ascended vp on high, euen aboue all heauens to fullfill all things.
3. What, he made some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c.
4. Why, for the perfiting of the Saints, for the worke of the ministerie, for the edifying of the body of Christ.

Concerning the first: in that our Apostle doth auow here that the diuersitie of grace bestowed on the Church is the gift of Christ, whereas he saith elsewhere, that God the Father ordained Apostles, and Prophets, and Teachers, and that the Spirit maketh all these things, vnto euery one seuerally distributing as hee will, we may learne two conclusions in Diuiuitie. [h] 1. That all the workes of the sacred Trinitie, quoad extra, without it selfe, are common and communicable to euery person of the three, 2. That God the Sonne is [i] equall in might and mercie to God the Father, he being ascended before all heauens is the giuer of gifts vnto mẽ. And here we must accord to the Prophet and our Apostle: The one saith, he receiued gifts for men; the other, hee gaue gifts vnto men: and these two seeme to contradict each other. [k] Answer is made, that Dauid speakes of this donation in time to come, but Paul of this donation alreadie past and accomplished Dauid of the promise, Paul of the performance. [l] Or Christ as hee was God gaue gifts in heauen, and as man, he receiued gifts on earth: or hee receiued, [m] in that his members receiued; according to his owne saying, Mat. 25. 40. in as much as ye haue done it vnto one of the least of these my brethren, yee haue done it vnto me: or he receiued [n] to giue, as Exod. 25, 2 Speake to the children of Israel that they receiue an offering for me, that is, (according to the translation of our [o] present Church Bible) that they bring: where receiuing (as [p] Aben Ezra notes) is giuing, and so Paul alluding rather to the sense than to the words of Dauid, saith, hee gaue gifts vnto men.

Touching the second point: it is demanded how Christ is said here to haue made some Apostles, and some Prophets, &c. when he went vp on high, and led captiuitie captiue, seeing wee reade in the Gospels historie, that he chose his [r] Apostles and [s] Disciples, and gaue them a commission to preach in his life time; and that after his resurrection he confirmed them in his office, by [t] breathing on them, and giuing them the Holy Ghost, and saying, as my Father sent me, euen so send I you, [u] Goe teach all nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the holy Ghost. Answer may be, that Christ is reported in this Scripture to haue giuen Apostles vnto the Church after he went vp on high, in respect of their gifts extension, and ostension.

Extension, as hauing after Christs ascension receiued the gifts of the Holy Ghost after a more glorious manner, and in a farre greater measure. So the [x] text, The holy Ghost was not yet giuen, because that Iesus was not yet glorified; and [y] If I goe not away, the Comforter will not come to you: but if I depart, I will send him vnto you. And Christ at his ascension also charged them to wait for this promised power of the holy Ghost. See Gospel, Sunday after Ascention day.

Ostension, and that 1. in respect of the [z] solemne inauguration into their Apostleship, on the feast of [a] Pentecost in the sight of Gods people gathered together at Hierusalem out of euery nation vnder heauen. It is reported of Dauid, that he was first anointed King of Israel in the middest of his brethren. 1. Sam. 1. 16. and afterward in Hebron. 2. Sam. 2. But he was not called King, vntill he was annointed solemnly before the Tribes of Israel. 2. Sam. 5. Euen so, though it be granted that the Apostles were nominated and elected to their office before Christs death, and confirmed in their calling after Christs resurrection; yet they were not apparantly known vnto Gods people to be so, till he went vp on high and gaue the [h] Oecumen. in loc.

[i] Primasius in loc.
[k] Hieron. expos. 1. in loc.
[l] Aquin. in loc.
[m] August. in Psal. 67.
[n] Hieron. in Psal. 67.
[o] Idem Calui. & Bib. Heb. 8.
[p] Apud Genebrard. in Psal. 67
[q] Zanchius. Marlorat. in loc.
[r] Matth. 10. 1.
[s] Luke 10. 1.
[t] Iohn 20. 21.
[u] Mat. 28. 19.
[x] Iohn 7. 39.
[y] Iohn 16. 7.
[z] Zanchius.
[a] Acts 2.

the gifts of the holy Ghoſt vnto them in the viſible formes of clouen and fierie tongues, Actes 2, 3. See Epiſtle on Whitſunday.

2. Oſtention in regard of Execution of their office, for albeit they had a commiſſion before to preach firſt vnto the [b] loſt ſheepe of Iſrael, and then vnto all nations in the world. Matth, 28. 19, yet they did not execute this commiſſion in gathering together a Church out of both vnto God, [c] vntill Chriſt had aſcended farre aboue all heauens to fulfill all things: and the reaſon hereof is rendred in our text, becauſe Danid had ſo propheſied of him in the 68. Pſalme, when he went vp on high and led captiuity captiue, and gaue gifts vnto men. And indeed it was at this time moſt fit for him, and beſt alſo for his, to giue gifts; it was exceeding fit for himſelfe, becauſe glorious Conquerours in their ſolemne triumphs vſually leade their chiefe enemies fettered either in iron chaines, as [d] Paulus Æmilius triumphed ouer Perſeus: or in iron cages, as [e] Tamberlane the Great vſed proud Baiazet King of the Turkes, And ſo leading captiuitie captiue, they deuided the ſpoile to their friends and followers, as it is in the [f] Pſalme. Chriſt aſcending on high led captiuitie captiue, [g] that is, the deuill and all his complices, hell, death, and the graue, triumphing ouer them openly. Giuing all gifts vnto the Church, as Apoſtles, and Prophets, and Euangeliſts, and Paſtors and Teachers, who might [h] looſe ſuch as Satan [i] bindes: and it was at this time beſt for his followers, as not depending any longer vpon his bodily preſence. See Goſpel. 4. Sunday after Eaſter.

The third remarkable point in this Scripture is what he gaue to men, vnto euery one is giuen grace, according to the meaſure of the gift of Chriſt, &c, He doth vnderſtand by grace not ſauing grace, for that (as he ſhewed in the former part of this chapter) is in all the members of the Church one and the ſame: one faith, one hope, one baptiſme, &c. [k] But ἡ χάρις, is taken here for τὰ χαρίσματα, namely, for the diuers gifts of the holy Ghoſt, as interpretation of tongues, and diſcerning of ſpirits, and the gifts of healing, propheſie, and the word of knowledge, and the like, of which he diſputeth at large, 1. Cor. 12. and ſo Paul [l] expoundeth himſelfe in our preſent text at the 11. verſe, the ſame made ſome Apoſtles, ſome Prophets, ſome Euangeliſts, &c.

Apoſtles were ſuch as he called himſelfe (either in his ſtate mortall, as the 12. Diſciples: or in his ſtate glorious, as Paul, Acts 9. 15. and Matthias, Acts 1. 26.) to preach his Goſpell, and to plant his Church in euery nation of the world. Prophets were ſuch as [m] interpret the Scriptures of the Prophets, 1. Cor. 14. 4. He that propheſieth, edifieth the Church, and Mat. 23. 34. Behold, I ſend vnto you Prophets, that is, Preachers. [o] Or Prophets were ſuch as had maruellous wiſdome, and could foretell things to come, as Agabus, Acts 11. 28. ſignified by the Spirit, that there ſhould be great famine thorowout all the world: which alſo came to paſſe vnder Claudius Ceſar. Euangeliſts are ſo called, either of preaching the Goſpell, and ſo [p] Paul exhorted Timothy to do the worke of an Euangeliſt: or elſe of [q] writing the Goſpell, and ſo there be but foure Euangeliſts onely, Matthew, Marke, Luke, Iohn. And here we may note the reaſon why the Church appointed this Scripture to be read at this time, namely, becauſe Saint Marke was an Euangeliſt. Paſtors are ſuch as are placed ouer a [r] certaine Cure, whereas Apoſtles had the whole Church for their charge. So [s] Paul ſpeakes vnto the Elders of the Church at Epheſus, take heed to your ſelues, and to all the flocke whereof the Holy Ghoſt hath made you ouerſeers. And ſo [t] Biſhops in their Dioceſſe, and [u] Prieſts in their Pariſhes are Paſtors. Or as [x] Theophylact, Paſtors and Doctors are Presbyters and Deacons. Or (as ſome [y] late Diuines obſerue) Paſtors are Rectors of the whole Congregation, Doctors are Catechiſts, and Teachers of the youth and other new-comes into Chriſts ſchoole. Paſtors are ſuch as [z] feed Chriſts ſheepe, and Doctors are ſuch as feed Chriſts Lambs: or (as [a] Beza) Paſtors are they who gouerne the Church. and Doctors are they who gouerne the ſchooles. But I rather embrace their opinion [b] who thinke Paſtors and Doctors are diuers names of one office, [c] euen as feeding and teaching are all one: for otherwiſe Paul (as Hierome, Lombard, Anſelme haue noted vpon the place) would haue diſtinguiſhed

[b] Matth. 10. 6.
[c] Mark. 16. 20
[d] Liuius Decad. 5 lib. 5.
[e] Knoles in the life of Baiazet.
[f] Pſal. 68. 12.
[g] Hierom. Primaſius. Aquine.
[h] Mat. 16. 19.
[i] Luke 13. 16.
[k] Aretius & Zanchius ex Grec. ſchol.
[l] Marlorat.
[m] Lombard. Aquin.
[o] Anſelm. Beza. Zanchius.
[p] 2. Tim. 4. 5.
[q] Oecumen. Theophylact.
[r] Caluin. Zanchius.
[s] Acts 20. 21.
[t] Oecumen. Lombard.
[u] Anſelm.
[x] In loc.
[y] Aretius. Zanchius.
[z] Anſelm.
[a] Annot. in loc.
[b] Auguſtin. Chryſoſtom. Muſculus. Dr Whitgift defenſe of his anſwer of the admonition, fol. 234 Idem Bullinger & Piſcator in loc.
[c] See Suruey of pretended holy diſcipline, cap. 9.

distinguished them as he did the rest, and haue said, He gaue some Pastors some Teachers: as well as some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c. but hee ioyneth them together Pastors and Teachers, [d] Insinuating that Pastors should teach, and that as (our Church speakes) both by their preaching and liuing, ensamples in word, in conuersation, in loue, in spirit, in faith, and pureneſſe, 1.Tim.4.12.

[d] Anselm. Lombard.

[c] Some Diuines obserue, that these functions are partly temporall and extraordinary, as Apostles, Prophets, Euangelists: and partly continuall and ordinary, as Pastors and Teachers: but herein I tread in the steps of that holy Father, my most honoured and honourable master Archbishop Whitgift, who [f] writing against the Schismatickes of his age saith, and proueth out of this our present text also, that all these degrees of Ministers, remaine still in some sort vntill the worlds end. For first (as Nouelists acknowledge) Paul in this place maketh a perfit platforme of a Church, & a full rehearsall of all offices therein contained, and he saith expresly, that Christ ascending vp on high, gaue them for the gathering together of the Saints, and for the worke of the Ministery, &c. Till we all come to the vnity of the faith, and knowledge of the Sonne of God, vnto a perfect man, vnto the measure of the full age of Christ. That is, as Caluin, Zanchius, and [g] other, vntill we meet in that other world to come,

[c] Beza. Zanchius.

[f] Defense of his answere to the admonition fol.229.

[g] Aretius. Beza.

I know there were certaine things in the blessed Apostles, which were proper vnto themselues, as their immediate calling from God, the power of working miracles, and their commission to goe into the whole world, &c. but to preach the Gospel of Christ in places where neede requireth (although it be not peculiarly committed to them) or to gouerne the Churches already planted; I see no cause why it should not be perpetuall among the Ministers of the word.

Likewise the function of an Euangelist, if it be taken for the writing of the Gospell, it was temporall and hath his end. But if it be taken for preaching to the people plainely and simply, as [h] Bullinger thinketh: or generally, for preaching the Gospell: as [i] Musculus supposeth, in which sense Paul said vnto Timothie, doe the worke of an Euangelist: or for preaching more zealously than other, [k] Bucer imagineth; I make no doubt but that it still remaineth in the Church.

[h] In loc.
[i] Loc.com.tit. de verbi ministris.
[k] In loc

Moreouer, Prophets if they bee taken for such as our Apostle meaneth in his [l] Epistles often, I say for such as haue an especiall gift in interpreting the Scripture, whether in vnfolding the deepe mysteries thereof vnto the learned, or in expounding the plaine sence thereof vnto the people then it must of necessitie be granted that they be perpetuall officers in the Church, as Pastors and Doctors.

[l] Rom.12.6. 1.Cor.11 4.& 1 Cor.14.1.

[m] Saint Ambrose therefore construeth our text thus, Apostles are Bishops, Prophets are Interpreters of the Scriptures, Euangelists are Deacons. And [n] Hyperius saith, that God will alwayes haue these degrees in the Church, and Peter Martyr in his Commentaries vpon the 12. to the Romanes is of opinion, that our Apostle describeth in that place such gifts as are necessarie for the Church at all times, among which he mentioneth (as a chiefe one) propheſying. To be short, Bullinger vpon this text obserues, that the words Apostle, Prophet, Euangelist, are confounded; and the Pastors of Zurich, in the latter confession of [o] Heluetia, chap. 18. write thus, The Ministers of the new Testament are termed by diuers names, for they be called Apostles, Prophets, Euangelists, Bishops, Elders, Pastors, and Doctors.

[m] Com. in loc.
[n] In verb. Pauli 2.Cor.3.2. inter opuscula Hyperij. pag.671.

[o] See Harmon. confess sect.11. pag.339.

And heere Protestant Diuines haue well obserued against the Church of Rome, that Paul among all these degrees of the Ministrie, names not the Popes office, the which he would not haue forgotten, if it had been so necessarie for the deciding of controuersies, and preseruation of vnitie in trueth, as our aduersaries pretend. And whereas the Rhemists reply that Bishops, Elders and Deacons are not mentioned in this catologue: [q] Answere is made, that the functions of Bishops and Priests (as they respect the externall gouerment and policie of the Church) are named elsewhere generally and particularly: but in respect of teaching (Which is intended here more principally) they are contained vnder Pastors and Doctors. If the Pope will bee reputed an Apostle, then (as Cardinall [r] Caietane notes

[p] Zanchius. Marlorat.

[q] Dr. Fulk in loc.

[r] In loc.

notes) he must be both a Prophet: and an Euangelist, and a Pastor, and a Teacher, for (as he saith) an Apostleship eminently comprehendeth all these graces: it may be granted (as I conceiue, which Anselme collecteth here) that Archbishops and Primates haue the roomes of Apostles in the Church, but yet I see not how the Pope can be crouded into the text: for if this absolute supremacie were necessary then assuredly Paul would not haue sayd Christ made some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c. but rather Christ gaue to the Church * one Apostle, some Prophets, and many Teachers.

* One at one time, which as vniuersall Bishop of the Church, should haue the whole world for his Diocesse.

The fourth and last obseruable point in our text is, for what end Christ ascending vp on high gaue gifts vnto men, and that is threefold.

Namely, the { Perfecting of the Saints. / Worke of the Ministerie. / Edifying of the body of Christ.

[f] The first concernes such as are called already, Saints] The second, such as are to call, exercising the worke of the Ministry, to wit. Apostles, Prophets, Euangelists, &c. The third, such as are yet to be called, and to bee built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles. [t] Or the first concernes the people, the second the Pastor, and the third both.

[f] Caietan.

[t] Zanchius.

For the edifying of the Saints] I finde diuers readings of this clause. [u] Some reade ad [u] constitutionem, or ad [x] condendos Sanctos, agreeable to the present text of our Communion booke here. The Saints are of Gods [y] household; and the Church is Gods house, Hebr. 3. 6. The chiefe builders whereof vnder Christ are Apostles, Prophets, Pastors, and Teachers, as I haue shewed Epistle on Saint Thomas day.

[u] Caluin.
[x] Castalion.
[y] Ephes. 2. 19.

[z] Other reade ad instaurationem, for the repairing of such as are decayed in Gods building. [a] The iust man falleth seuen times, [b] in many things we sinne all, [c] eum dicimus optimum qui peccat minimum And therefore that we may not fall from grace finally, we need dayly to be [d] repaired and vnderpropt in Gods house by the powerfull exhortations of Pastors and Teachers.

[z] Erasmus. Marlorat. Vatablus.
[a] Prou. 24. 16
[b] Iam. 3. 2.
[c] August. Epist 54.
[d] Caietan.

Our new translation (herein agreeing with the Syriac and vulgar Latine) reads, for the perfecting of the Saints. And it may be so construed in two respects, first in regard of their daily growing from [e] strength to strength, vntill they bee perfect men in Christ: for the word is [f] profitable to teach, improue, correct, and to instruct in righteousnesse, that the man of God may be perfected, and throughly furnished vnto all good workes. 2. [g] for that their number is fully perfected and accomplished by the preaching of Apostles, Prophets, Euangelists, Pastors, Teachers. According to this exposition the Geneua Bible hath it, for the gathering together of the Saints. All of vs are by nature like [h] sheepe which haue gone astray; wherefore Christ, as being the [i] chiefe shepherd, gaue some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, to gather as together from [k] East and West, & to bring vs vnto his flocke, that there may be but [l] one sheepfold and one Shepherd. His sheepe heare his voyce, Pastors and Teachers vttering his words, are his [m] voice; he made therefore for the gathering together of his Elect, some Apostles, some Prophets, some Euangelists, &c.

[e] Psal. 84. 7.
[f] 2. Tim. 3. 16.
[g] Vt eorum numerus impleatur. Hierom. Vatablus.
[h] Esay 53 6.
[i] 1. Pet 5. 4
[k] Matth. 8. 11.
[l] Ioh. 10. 16.
[m] Iohn 1. 22. See Gosp. Sun. 4. in Aduent.

[n] Other reade ad coagmentationem Sanctorum, for the ioyning and ioynting of the Saints. He speaketh of the Church as of a body consisting of Gods Elect, as of many members, a body coupled and knit together by euery ioynt, verse 16. And therefore whereas the Saints, through Adams originall transgression, and their owne actuall offences, are many times out of ioynt, disunited from their head Christ, and diuided also from his members; it pleased the Lord, out of his infinite wisedome and goodnesse to giue some Apostles, and Prophets, and Euangelists, &c. As Chirurgians and Physitians of the soule, who might by the preaching of faith vnite them againe to their head, and by the preaching of good workes knit them together among them selues in the bonds of peace. And here you may note the true cause why the worst men and members of a parish, euermore regard a good Pastor least. It is because they be feet, and legs, and thighs, and and handes out of ioynt, and ſo cannot endure the touch of the Chirurgians hand, whoſe chiefe care is to worke their cure, He that is ſicke of a lethargie, deſires to ſleepe although he die for it; and hee that is lulled aſleepe in ſinne, cannot away with the [o] watchman of God. If a Miniſter ſhall either out of weakneſſe ſuffer his drowzie people to ſnort ſtill in their vncleannes, or out of wickedneſſe ſleepe with them a little himſelfe; then hee may peraduenture for a while bee reputed a good ſhepherd among thoſe ſcabbie ſheepe: but if he ſhall once rouze them, and raiſe them out of their ſecuritie, ſaying with [p] Paul, awake thou that ſleepeſt and ſtand vp from the dead; then inſtantly the wit-foundred drunkard crieth out, [q] away with ſuch a fellow from the earth, it is not meet he ſhould liue, for he [r] ſubuerts the ſtate of the world, and [ſ] troubleth our Citie. Then the couetous oppreſſor is ready to tell the Prophet, as [t] Ahab did Eliah, Haſt thou found me, ó mine enemie? Then the whole rabble furiouſly raging together againſt the Lord, and againſt his anointed, conclude peremptorily, that a peece of a pulpit is enough, and halfe a benefice too much for ſuch an vnquiet ſpirit. [u] S. Auguſtine ſweetly, Qui phreneticum ligat, & lethargicum excitat, ambobus molestus, ambos amat.

[n] Aretius. Beza. Zanchius.

For the worke of the miniſtrie] The gifts of Chriſt here mentioned are not theoricall, but [x] practicall, giuen vnto Paſtors for the worke of the miniſtery, [y] the word worke forbids loytering, and the word miniſtry lording. I pray miſconſtrue not this gloſſe, ſeeing I meane as [z] Paul, and ſpeake as B. Latimer did almoſt in euery Sermon. Domabis lupos, ſed non dominaberis ouibus, as [a] Bernard told Eugenius.

For the edifying of the body of Chriſt] [b] The gift of the Spirit is giuen to euery man to edifie withall; hee therefore that is a non edificant, is vnworthy to bee called an Apoſtle, or Prophet, or Euangeliſt. [c] Poſiti eſtis diſpenſatores, ſed in edificationem, non in deſtructionem: aliter non fidelis diſpenſatio, ſed crudelis diſſipatio. The Doctors office is to teach, and the Paſtors calling to feed. Our great Lord repeated this iniunction vnto [d] Peter thrice; feed my lambes, feed my ſheepe, feed my flocke, that is, as [e] Bernard excellently, paſce mente, paſce ore, paſce opere: paſce animi oratione, verbi exhortatione, exempli exhibitione. And here the people likewiſe may learne to reuerence their Paſtors and teachers, as the Miniſters of Chriſt ſent from aboue, to [f] watch for their ſoules. If they muſt [g] honorare bonum dominum etiam in malo ſerno, reſpect euery Prophet, and Euangeliſt, and Paſtor for his workes ſake, 1. Theſſal. 5, 13, then vnto ſuch as rule well, and labour in the word and doctrine, they muſt (as our [h] Apoſtle ſpeakes) giue double honour.

[o] Ezech. 3. 17.
[p] Epheſ. 5. 14.
[q] Acts 22. 22.
[r] Acts 17. 6.
[ſ] Acts 16. 20.
[t] 1 King. 21. 20
[u] Epiſt. 48.
[x] Aretius.
[y] Zanchius.
[z] 2 Cor. 1. 24.
[a] De Conſiderat. lib. 2.
[b] 1. Cor. 12. 7.
[c] Bernard lib. 3. de conſiderat.
[d] Iohn 21.
[e] Ser. 2 dereſur. Dom.
[f] Heb. 13. 17.
[g] Paulinus epiſt. lib 1 epiſt. 1.
[h] Tim. 5. 17.

The Goſpell. IOHN 15. 1. vnto. v. 12

I am the true vine, and my Father is an Husbandman. &c.

[i] Ianſen. concord. Cap. 135.

AS a kinde friend loth to depart with his familiars, in giuing a farewell often breakes off his ſpeech and begins a new diſcourſe: [i] ſo Chriſt here being now to leaue the world, after he had ended one ſermon vnto his Diſciples in the chapter going before, falleth into another of the like argument in this preſent, wherein he doth eſpecially two things, exhort and comfort.

Hee

He doth exhort all his followers.

1. To continue ſtedfaſt in the faith, and that vnder the Parable of the Vine, intimating that as the branch cannot beare fruit of it ſelfe, except it abide in the vine; ſo they can doe nothing, vnleſſe they abide in him. Vrging this one point by diuers reaſons; all which may be reduced vnto the

- Puniſhment of ſuch as abide not,
  - Pœna damni, they beare no fruit, v.4
  - Pœna ſenſus, they be taken away. v.2 withered, gathered, caſt into the fire, burnt, ver.6.
- Bleſſednes of ſuch as abide being
  - Purged by God the Father, verſ 2.
  - Cleanſed by God the Sonne, v.3.
  - Cõforted by God the holy Ghoſt, abide in me, and I will abide in you by my [k] Spirit, verſ 4.
  - Releeued in what ſoeuer they ſhal aske. verſ. 7.

2. To make demonſtration hereof in workes of piety, glorifying God, and louing one another.

He comforts them againſt the worlds hatred:

1. From his owne example, verſe 18.20.
2. From the cauſe of this hatred, verſ. 19.
3. From the cauſe of the cauſe, verſ. 21. 22. 24.
4. For that God and Chriſt ſuffer with them, ver, 23
5. From the prediction of holy Scripture, verſ. 25.
6. By promiſing to ſend the Comforter, ver. 26.

I am the true vine] Chriſt is called here a Vine, as elſewhere a [l] Lion, a [m] Sheepe, a [n] Lambe, a [o] Corner ſtone, a [p] Doore. A true vine by [q] way of difference from the wilde vine; or (as Rupertus vpon the place) to diſtinguiſh it from the Vines of Sodome and Gomorrah, whoſe grapes (as [r] Moſes ſpeaketh in his ſong) are grapes of gall, and their cluſters are bitter, their wine is the poiſon of dragons, and the cruell gall of Aſpes. A true Vine not ſimply, but in a ſimile: not truely a Vine, but like a true Vine Vera (ſaith [s] Auguſtine) per ſimilitudinem, non per proprietatem: a true vine, [t] as in the firſt chapter of this Goſpell, at the ninth verſe, the true light. Now the reſemblances betweene Chriſt and a true Vine are [u] manifold.

1. A Vine is not ſowne in the ground, but planted a yong ſlip of an old tree: ſo Chriſt is a naturall branch of God the Father, euen very God of very God; but for vs men and our ſaluation, hee was tranſlated from heauen, and planted on earth, that is, borne of the Virgin Marie; of whom it is ſaid, Eſay 45.8. Let the earth open, and let ſaluation and iuſtice grow foorth, let it bring them forth together, I the Lord haue created him. A bleſſed earth, in whoſe [x] bleſſed fruit [y] all the nations of the world are bleſſed.

2. The Vine that it may beare the more fruit, is cut and pruned: and ſo Chriſt, although hee were conceiued of the Holy Ghoſt, and borne without all ſinne: yet for our ſakes he was circumciſed on the eight day, [z] wounded for our tranſgreſſions, and broken for our iniquities. Againe, Chriſt albeit he were [a] Lord ouer all things, and [b] heire of the whole world: yet for our ſaluation he ſuffered his glory to bee pruned with the knife of ignominie; for whereas he was the [c] King of glory, hee made himſelfe of no reputation, Philip. 2. 7. Hee tooke on him the forme of a ſeruant, & was made man (as Dauid ſpeakes of him, a worme and no man, a very ſcorne of men, and outcaſt of the people, Pſal. 22.6. His wealth was pruned by the knife of pouertie, [d] Pauper in natiuitate, pauperior in vita, pauperrimus

[k] Caluin.

[l] Apoc 5.5.
[m] Acts 8.32.
[n] Ioh. 1.2.
[o] Epheſ 2.20.
[p] Ioh. 10.9.
[q] Caietan. Aretius.
[r] Deut. 32. 32.
[s] Tract 80. in Ioan.
[t] Maldonat. in loc.
[u] See Bernard tract. de paſſion. Dom cap. 1. 2, 3. 4 & Paratus ſer de S Marco.
[x] Luke 1.42.
[y] Gen. 92 18.
[z] Eſay 53.4.
[a] Acts 10.36.
[b] Heb 1.2.
[c] Pſal 24.7.
[d] Bernard. tract. de paſſion. Dom. cap. 2.

pauperrimus in cruce: So poore in his birth, that he was borne in another mans ſtable; ſo poore in his life, that hee ſayd of himſelfe, [c] the Foxes haue holes, and the birds of the heauen haue neſtes: but the Sonne of man hath not whereon to reſt his head. So poore when he was dead, that he was buried in another mans tombe, Matth, 27. 60. His pleaſure was pruned by the knife of ſorrow, Lament. 1. 12, Behold, and ſee, if there be any ſorrow like vnto my ſorrow. His familiar acquaintance was alſo cut away from him, by the knife of feare; Iudas betrayed him, Peter denyed him, other forſooke him, all were diſperſed. He did tread the winepreſſe alone, and of all people there was none to helpe him, as [f] Hierome and [g] Bernard apply that of the Prophet Eſay, chap. 63, 3.

3. The Vine is dunged and digged, as we reade in the fifth chapter of Eſay. So Chriſt was [h] dunged when the foule-mouthed [i] Iewes ſpit vpon him, and he was digged on euery ſide, when as his aduerſaries by propounding captious queſtions, had caſt a trench round about him; as in asking, [k] Is it lawfull that tribute be giuen to Ceſar or no? If he ſhould haue diſputed againſt the tribute, he had offended the Prince: if for the tribute, diſpleaſed the people who did beare this heauy burthen againſt their wils. See Goſpell, Sunday 23, after Trinitie. Againe, they digged a pit round about him, in bringing the [l] woman taken in adulterie before him, and demaunding What ſayeſt thou? for if he ſhould haue condemned her, he might ſeeme to contradict his owne ſayings, [m] I will haue mercie not ſacrifice, [n] learne of me for I am humble and meeke. If acquit her, he ſhould contrary Moſes Law, Leuit. 20. 10. The adulterer and adultereſſe ſhall die the death. See Bernard de paſſione Domin. cap, 3. Moreouer Chriſt on the croſſe was digged, his ſide with a [o] ſpeare, his [p] hands and feet with nailes, and thoſe ſo b g, that (as [q] Socrates reporteth in his Eccleſiaſticall hyſtory) Conſtantine made thereof an helmet and a bridle for his owne vſe in warre.

4. The Vine is bound vnto the wood, and faſtened vnto the wall on which it groweth: euen ſo Chriſt was led away [r] bound vnto Pontius Pilate, and nailed vnto the wood of the Croſſe, ſo fettered and faſtned with bonds, as that the Church ſaith of him in the [s] Canticles, my beloued is as a bundle of myrrhe vnto me. Myrrhe being bitter and ſharpe, doth inſinuate the greiuouſneſſe of his paſſion, and a bundle the multitude of his ſorrowes. And [t] ſo Chriſt is vnto the Church a bundle of myrrhe, when as ſhe meditateth on his death and paſsion; how hee was bound, that ſhee might be made free: how he was beaten that ſhee might eſcape puniſhment: how he was broken, that ſhe might bee healed with his ſtripes, Eſay. 53. 5.

5. The Vine beeing thus planted, pruned, cut, bound, digged, dunged, ſpreads her branches farre and wide. So Chriſt (as calling his followers from [u] Eaſt and Weſt, hauing the [x] Heathen for his inheritance, and the vttermoſt parts of the earth for his poſſeſſion) extends and [y] ſtretcheth out his branches vnto the ſea, and his boughs vnto the riuer: Chriſt is the Vine, and all Chriſtians are his branches. [z] All of vs are by nature dry, and fit for nothing but the fire: therefore that we may be fruitfull and liue, we muſt firſt bee grafted into Chriſt as into a Vine by the Fathers hand: without his grace we can doe nothing, and through his helpe able to doe all things, Philip. 4 13. now the diuine vnion is [a] threefold. Eſſentiall; and ſo God the Father is all one with God the Sonne, and God the Holy Ghoſt: perſonall, and ſo God the Sonne being made fleſh, is vnited to the humane nature: ſpirituall, and ſo ſuch as abide in Chriſt, and are ioyned in Spirit to the Lord, are one with Chriſt the Lord. 1. Cor 6. 17.

My Father is an husbandman] The blaſphemous [b] Arrians obiect here, that Chriſt and God, as the vine and husbandman, are of diuers natures, and that Chriſt as the vine, muſt of neceſſitie be ſubiect and inferiour to God, which is an husbandman. Anſwere is made, that a ſimilitude runs not on foure feet, but that it ſtandeth vpon one legge principally; now the maine drift of this compariſon is not to ſhew what care this husbandman hath ouer the roote of the vine, [c] but what he doth vnto the branches. Euery branch that beareth not fruit he will take away, and

[c] Matth. 8. 20.
[f] In loc. Eſaiæ.
[g] Vbi ſupra.
[h] Paratus.
[i] Matth. 27. 30.
[k] Matth 22. 17
[l] Ioh. 8 3.
[m] Matth. 9. 13.
[n] Matth. 11. 29
[o] Ioh. 19 34.
[p] Foderunt manus, Pſal 22 17.
[q] lib. 1. cap. 13. See S. Ambroſ. orat. de mort. Theodo. in fine. & Baron tom. 3. fol. 303.
[r] Matth 27. 2
[s] Cap. 1 12.
[t] Bernard. de paſſione Dom. cap. 4.
[u] Matth 8. 11.
[x] Pſal. 2 8.
[y] Pſal. 80. 11.
[z] Caluin. Beza.
[a] Giron. con. in feſt. B. Marci.
[b] Apud Ambroſ. de fide lib. 4. cap. 7.
[c] Theophylact. Euthym.

and euery branch that beareth fruit will he purge, &c. Christ vttered this parable [d] as our Mediator and Head of the Church, and he could not haue beene the Churches Head, [e] except he had beene God and man. Christ then [f] as touching his manhood was inferiour to the Father: Iohn 14.28. My Father is greater than I: yet equall as touching his Godhead: Ioh. 10.30. I and my Father are one, coequall in might and mercy. So the text here, God the Father as an husbandman purgeth euery branch that beareth fruit, verse 2. and God the Sonne likewise doth the same, verse 3. Now are yee cleane through the words which I haue spoken vnto you. [g] So that Christ as God is an husmandman so well as his Father, he purgeth and pruneth the boughs of the Vine so well as he, [h] vna enim operatio patris & filij, Ioh. 5.19. What soeuer the Father doth, the same things doth the Sonne also.

Euery branch that beareth not fruit in me he taketh away] Christ exhorting his followers to continue stedfast in the faith, argueth à pœna & præmio, from the punishment of such as abide not in him, and from the reward of such as abide.

The punishments of hypocrites and false Christians which abide not in him are seuen:

1. They beare no fruit.
2. Bearing no fruit, they be cut away from the Vine.
3. Being cut away from the Vine, they be cast out of the Vineyard.
4. Being cast out of the Vineyard, they wither.
5. Being withered, men gather and fagot them.
6. Being made fagots, they be cast into the fire.
7. Being cast into the fire, they burne in that vnquenchable flame, [i] where the worme dieth not, and the fire neuer goeth out.

First, they beare no fruit, for saith our Saviour, as the branch cannot beare fruit of it selfe, except it abide in the vine: no more can yee except yee abide in me, for without me can you doe nothing. The Pelagian heretikes affirmed, [k] à Deo habemus quod homines sumus, à nobis ipsis autem quod iusti sumus; that we are men, we receiue from God; that we are good men, commeth from our selues: but Truth it selfe here contradicit & dicit, a branch cannot beare fruit of it selfe, &c. This one clause (saith [l] Augustine) corda instruit humilium, ora obstruit superborum, it comforts a poore Publican, but it confounds a proud Pelagian. And that other sentence, (without me can yee doe nothing) confuteth also the semipelagian, I meane the Papist, auowing that a man hath a power of free will in his owne nature, which once being stirred, and helped, can and doth of it owne selfe cooperate with grace. The word nothing makes very much against this opinion, as Augustine noteth vpon the place. For Christ said not sine me parum potestis facere, sed sine me nihil. Now that we may the better vnderstand this controuersie, man is to be considered in a fourefold estate, to wit,

In statu
- Confectionis, as he was created.
- Infectionis, as he was corrupted.
- Refectionis, as he was renewed.
- Perfectionis, as he shall be glorified.

In the first estate we giue to the will of man a libertie of nature, Adamus ex im [m] acceperat posse si vellet, sed non habuit velle quod posset. In the third we grant a libertie of grace, for if the Sonne make you free, yee shall be free in deed, Iohn 8.36. The spirit of Christ which is free, Psalm 51.12. giueth libertie to the captiues, and openeth the prison to them that are bound, Esay 61.1. and deliuereth vs from the power of darknesse, Coloss. 1.13. In the fourth estate we confesse a libertie of glorie. All the doubt betweene vs and the Papists, is of the second estate, how man corrupted is renewed, how he commeth vnto regeneration after degeneration. And yet herein we consent that the will of man, in turning vnto God and in doing good, is not a [n] stocke or a stone, in [o] all and euery respect passiue, for euery man is willingly conuerted, and by Gods grace at the very [d] August. tract. 80. in Ioan.

[e] Maldonat. in loc.
[f] Athanasius in symbol.
[g] Ambros. & Augustin. vbi supra.
[h] Chrysostom. Theophylact. Euthym.
[i] Marke 9.48.
[k] August. tract. 81. in Ioan.
[l] Vbi supra.
[m] August. de correp. & grat. cap 11.
[n] Melanct. in loc.
[o] Perkins reformed Cat Tit. Frewill, & Dr. Abbot ibidem.

very time of his conuerſion he willeth his owne conuerſion, and ſo the will of man is in ſome ſort a co-worker with grace. For this end [p] Paul exhorteth vs not to receiue the grace of God in vaine, but to worke out our ſaluation in feare and trembling, Philip. 2. 12. To this purpoſe the ſaying of Auguſtine is very remarkable, [q] Qui fecit te ſine te, non iuſtificabit te ſine te, Fecit neſcientem, iuſtificat volentem. He who made thee without thee, will not iuſtifie thee without thee. What then is the maine difference betweene the Papiſts and vs in this queſtion? It is in one word this: They write that our will is a co-worker with grace by the force of nature: we ſay that it workes with grace by grace. They teach, that grace doth enable the will of it ſelfe to doe good workes if it pleaſe: but we further adde, that grace worketh in the will of man to pleaſe, to doe ſuch offices as God requireth at our hands He doth not hang his worke vpon the ſuſpended if, of our will, but he worketh in vs to will, and [r] cauſeth vs to doe the things that he commandeth vs to doe. We will indeed (ſaith [t] Auguſtine) but God worketh in vs to will: we worke, but God worketh in vs to worke: [t] we walke, but he cauſeth vs to walke: wee keepe his commandements, but hee worketh in vs to keepe his commandements. In the words of Paul, it is God that worketh in you, both the will, and the worke, euen of his good pleaſure, Philip. 2. 13.

If God onely made thee a man, and thou thy ſelfe haſt made thy ſelfe a good man, thy worke of neceſsitie muſt be greater than Gods worke. [u] Melius eſt enim iuſtum eſſe, quàm te hominem eſſe, our bare being is not ſo good as our better being: wherefore to ſtop thy preſumptuous mouth, and to beat the lie downe thy throat, Chriſt here ſaith expreſly, ye can beare no fruit except ye abide in me, without me can ye doe nothing. In naturall and humane actions it is true that your will is free, yet ſo that your will is alway ſubordinate to my will, [x] in whom ye liue, and moue, and haue your being: but in ſpirituall things appertaining to the kingdome of heauen, your ſelues are not ſufficient as of your ſelues to [y] thinke, much leſſe to ſpeake, leaſt of all to doe that which is good

Qui viret in ſolys venit à radicibus humor.

The iuyce which is in the branch, commeth originally from the root, and ſo qui viret in filys, &c. The graces eminent in the ſonnes of God are from aboue, proceeding from the Father of mercies and fountaine of all grace; qui à ſeipſo ſe fructum exiſtimat ferre, in vite non eſt: qui in vite non eſt, in Chriſto non eſt: qui in Chriſto non eſt, Chriſtianus non eſt. Auguſt. tract. 81. in Euang. Iohan, See Epiſt. Sund. 11. and 12. after Trinitie.

The reſt of the puniſhments here mentioned are very grieuous, as to be cut away from the Vine, to be caſt out of the vin yard, to wither, &c. but the laſt of all is the greateſt of all, I meane the burning of fruitleſſe branches in hell fire, which is vnquenchable. This of all terribles in the Scriptures is moſt terrible, whether we conſider in it the paine of the loſſe, or the paine of ſenſe: the reprobate which abide not in Chriſt haue paine of loſſe, for the Vine ſaith vnto ſuch branches at the laſt day, [z] depart from me, from me that am your firſt beginning and laſt end, from me that am your Redeemer, from me that made my ſelfe man for your ſakes and receiued theſe wounds for your remedy, from me that inuited you with pardon, and ye would not accept it. Wherefore depart for euer from my friendſhip, from my protection, from my kingdome, from my Paradiſe, from my ſight. And becauſe whatſoeuer is ſeparated from Chriſt, is alſo ſeparated from thoſe who goe with Chriſt; in ſaying, depart from me, he ſaith likewiſe depart from mine, from the Quires of my glorious Angels, from the ſweet company of my bleſſed mother, and from all my moſt happy martyrs, Apoſtles, Prophets, Confeſſors, in a word, from all the holy Saints and hoſt of heauen, into euerlaſting fire prepared for the deuill and his angels. For as in [a] ſin there is an auerſion from the Creator, and a conuerſion vnto the creatures, according to that of the [b] Prophet, they haue forſaken me the fountaine of liuing waters, and haue digged pits, euen broken pits that hold no water; ſo in the puniſhment of ſinners (as [c] Diuines obſerue) there is not onely pœna damni, which is anſwerable to their auerſion from the Creator,

[p] 2 Cor. 6. 1.

[q] Ser. 15. de verbis Apoſtoli.

[r] Ezech. 36. 27

[t] Lib. de bono perſeuerant. cap. 13.

[t] Auguſt cont. duas epiſt. Pelagian. lib. 4 cap. 6

[u] Auguſt. de verbis Apoſt. ſer. 15.

[x] Act. 17. 28.

[y] 2 Cor. 3. 5.

[z] Matth. 25. 41

[a] Dion Carthuſ. de 4 nouiſſ. part. 3. art. 11.

[b] Ierem. 2. 13.

[c] Thom. 1. 2e. quæſt. 87 art 4 Io de Combis compend theolog. lib. 7 cap. 22

Creator, but alſo pœna ſenſus, which is anſwerable to their conuerſion vnto the creatures, and therefore ſuch branches as beare no fruit, are not onely caſt out of the ſight of the Vine, and the whole vineyard: but alſo gathered together, and made the fagots and fewell of hell fire: the which in many reſpects is exceeding dreadfull, eſpecially becauſe the torments of this Ætna neuer dying, euer frying, are both vniuerſall and eternall. Hell paine is vniuerſall, afflicting euery power of the ſoule, euery part of the bodie. Concerning the ſoule, the imaginatiue facultie ſhall be tortured with horrid imaginations, more terrible than thoſe which a deepe melancholie man ſuffers in his dreames, or than thoſe the cruell Ægyptians ſaw, which (as the [d] Wiſeman ſpeakes) were fearfull viſions, and ſorrowfull ſights, affrighting viſages of wilde beaſts, and hiſſing of Serpents, &c. The will, as hauing in nothing it owne will, is an hell of it ſelfe to it ſelfe. The memorie ſhall be continually troubled with a fixed recordation of things paſſed, that it once poſſeſſed, and of the preſent which it now ſuffereth, and of thoſe which are to come in eternitie. So that it cannot thinke vpon any thing, which in any ſort ſhould adminiſter comfort: for if it calls to minde the pleaſures it had in the world, it is for its greater torment; [e] Materia triſtitiæ, non delectationis cauſa, ſaith Aquine. The vnderſtanding ſhall be ſo darkned, as that it ſhall be full of errors and illuſions, euen as a tumultuous ſea, with innumerable waues of imaginations, more bitter than gall, ſome going, other comming, all reſtleſſe.

[d] Wiſd 17.4.

[e] In addit. ad 3. part. ſum. quæſt. 98. art. 7.

As for the bodie, the damned are to be [f] bound hand and foot, crouded together in the priſon of vtter darkneſſe, like bricks in a fierie furnace, that they ſhall not be able to wrinch, hauing not ſo much as a chinke where any winde may enter to refreſh them in this [g] lake of fire burning with brimſtone. Their ſight is affrighted with vgly deuils and darkneſſe; their hearing with odious and hideous outcries; their ſmelling with noiſome ſtinks, and inſupportable ſweat reaking from the filthy bodies vnder torture; their taſte with a raging [h] thirſt, and a rauening hunger, taſting ſuch things as are more bitter than [i] gall or wormwood; the feeling afflicted in euery part with intollerable flames, in compariſon whereof our earthly fire is no more than as if it were but painted. The leaſt of theſe torments named, and infinite moe not named, is more grieuous than the greateſt, either ſickneſſe or ſorrow they ſuffered on earth; and yet all theſe ſhall eternally continue, without either eaſe or end. See Goſpell 1. Sunday after Trinitie. Lombard. ſent. lib. 4. diſt. vlt. & Sententiarios ibidem. Aquin. in additionibus ad tertiam ſuæ ſummæ partem quæſt. 97. 98. 99. Io. de combis compend. Theolog. lib. 7. cap. 21. 22. Dion. Carthuſian. de quatuor nouiſſimis part. 3. the meditations of Luys de la puente Ieſuite, tranſlated out of Spaniſh into Engliſh, by Ric. Gibbons, of the ſame Societie, meditat. 15. 16.

[f] Matth. 22. 13.

[g] Apoc. 16. 20.

[h] Luke 16. 24.

[i] Ierem. 23. 15.

Euery branch that beareth fruit will he purge] We collect here, firſt that our Purgatorie is in this life, while we go from ſtrength to ſtrength, and grow from fruit to fruit in the vineyard, that is, in the Church planted in this world. Secondly, that the [k] word and affliction are this our Purgatorie. The word, verſ. 3. Yee are cleane through the word which I haue ſpoken vnto you. Cleane, not by the water in Baptiſme, but by the word. For ſaith [l] Auguſtine, Detrahe verbum & quid eſt aqua niſi aqua? ſed accedat verbum ad elementum & fit ſacramentum. Cleane by the word, non quia dicitur, ſed quia creditur. The Phariſies and other hypocrites heard the word of Chriſt, but they were not hereby purged, becauſe they did not beleeue the word of Chriſt. Our fruit then ariſeth from faith; it is faith (as [m] S. Peter telleth vs expreſly) that purifieth our hearts. And ſo [n] Rupertus expounds the words of Chriſt here, you are cleane, becauſe you beleeue that which I haue ſaid vnto you concerning my death and reſurrection, how I muſt die for your ſinnes, and riſe againe for your iuſtification, and goe away to prouide a place for you. But becauſe the fleſh is ſo fraile, that we cannot do that [o] good we would, but the euill we would not; Almighty God hath appointed for vs another [p] Purgatorie; to wit, affliction, and the croſſe, the which is Gods rod wherewith he [q] ſcourgeth euery ſonne he receiueth, and purgeth euery branch that beareth

[k] Io. Frith preface before his anſwer to Raſtals dialogue.

[l] Tract. 80. in Ioan.

[m] Acts 15 9.

[n] In loc.

[o] Rom 7 19.

[p] Tyndal prolog. vpon Gen.

[q] Heb. 12. 6.

[r] Aretius in loc.

[f] Rom.5.3.
[t] Paulin. epist. lib.2. epist 2.

reth fruit, that it may bring forth more fruit. [r] The branch of the Vine that is cut vntill it bleed and weepe, beares the greater grapes, and so the good man is best vnder the crosse; [f] tribulation bringeth forth patience, and patience experience, and experience hope,&c. [t] Tanta summi patris est pietas, vt etiam ira eius ex misericordia sit: Our heauenly Father is so good to vs his children, that euen his anger is out of mercy, destroying the flesh to saue the spirit, 1 Cor.5.5.

3. We note from hence, that no man in this world is throughly perfect, euen the best of the Saints haue need to be purged, that they may bring forth more fruit. They be, saith [u] Augustine, Mundi & mundandi, not so pure, but that they must [x] increase more and more: Mundat itaque mundos, hoc est, fructuosos, vt tanto sint fructuosiores quanto fuerint mundiores. See Epist.2.Sund.in Lent.

[u] Tract.80.in Ioan.
[x] 1 Thess 4.1.

The Epistle. IAMES 1.1. vnto v. 13

Iames the seruant of God, and of the Lord Iesus Christ,&c.

THis Epistle consists of three parts; a
- Subscription, Iames the seruant of God, and of the Lord Iesus Christ.
- Inscription, To the twelue tribes that are scattered abroad, greeting.
- Prescription, My brethren, count it exceeding ioy when ye fall into diuers tentations.

Iames] Here two questions are moued ordinarily. The first concerning this Epistles authoritie. The second concerning this Epistles author. As for the first, I referre you to S. Hierom. Catalog. script. eccles. in vita Iacobi Iusti. Sixt. Senen. bibliothec. lib.1. pag.25. Bellarm. de verbo Dei, lib.1. cap.18. Dr. Whitaker, respon. ad Campian. rat.1. Tyndal Prologue vpon S. Iames. Doctor Hanmer obseruations vpon Euseb. Eccles. hist. in English, lib.2.cap.23. Rogers explanat. of the confession of England, art.6. Aretius, Caluin, Marlorat. argument. & prolegom. in epist. Iacob.

[y] Matth.10. Marke 3.
[z] Authores vbi sup in text.

As for the second quære, there were two blessed Apostles of this name, [y] Iames the sonne of Zebedeus, and Iames the sonne of Alpheus. Now this Epistle was not penned (as herein the [z] most and best Diuines accord) by Iames the sonne of Zebedeus, for he was slaine by cruell Herod, about the beginning of the preaching of the Gospell, Act.12. but by Iames the sonne of Alpheus, called elsewhere Iames the [a] lesser, and Iames the [b] Lords brother: this Iames was the [c] first Bishop of Hierusalem, of such vpright carriage toward men, as that he was surnamed [d] Iustus, and of such indefatigable deuotion in his prayers vnto God, that (as [e] Hegesippus reports) his knees were like a Cammels knee, benummed and made hard by reason of his continuall kneeling. And [f] S. Chrysostome further addeth, that his forehead also became brawnie, through his daily prostrating himselfe vpon the pauement in the Temple. The which I note, to condemne the proud and irreuerent behauiour of many, who comming into the Temple to pray, neither cast downe themselues as the Publican, nor yet stand vp as the Pharisee; but they sit on their cushions (I feare in the seat of the scornfull) as if they were to blesse God, and not God to blesse them.

[a] Mark.15.40.
[b] Galat.1.19.
[c] See Baron. Tom 1. ad an.63
[d] Euseb. hist. lib. 2. cap.23. Hierom. in eius vita. Aquin. in loc.
[e] Apud Euseb. vbi sup.
[f] Hom.5. in Matth.

Seruant of God] He that serueth himselfe, serueth a foole; he that serueth the [g] deuill, serueth his enemie; he that serues the world, serues his seruant: the perfect and only true freedome is to serue the Lord. Wherefore this stile is no way base, but exceeding honourable, desired euen of the best, ambitiously. Samuel was Gods seruant, Speake Lord, saith he, [h] for thy seruant heareth thee. Iob the [i] greatest of all the men of the East was Gods seruant, hast thou not considered my seruant Iob? said the Lord to Satan, Iob 1. 8. Dauid stiled in holy Scripture for his excellencie [k] the King, boasted notwithstanding of this title: Behold, O Lord, how that I am thy seruant, I am thy seruant, and the sonne of thine handmaid, Psalm.116.14. All the Patriarkes, and Prophets, and Apostles haue gloried in this

[g] See the song of Simeon.
[h] 1 Sam.3.10.
[i] Iob 1.3.
[k] Matth.1.6.

this ſeruice. For if it be reputed honourable to ſerue the King, it is aſſuredly greater preferment to ſerue the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords. It is more credit to be a[l] doore-keeper in the houſe of God, than to command in the Courts of other Princes. Now God (as earthly Kings) hath ſome ſeruants in ordinarie, and other extraordinarie. All Chriſtians are his ſworne ſeruants extraordinarie, for they vowed in holy Baptiſme to fight vnder Chriſts banner, againſt the world, the fleſh, and the deuil, and to continue his faithfull ſouldiers and ſeruants vntill their liues end. The true profeſſion of the true faith is Chriſts liuerie, and loue is the cognizance of his liuerie; for [m] faith working by loue, is the [n] wedding garment with Chriſts badge; by this (ſaith [o] he) ſhall all men know that yee are my diſciples, if yee loue one another.

[l] Pſal. 84. 11.

[m] Galat. 5. 6.
[n] Matth. 22. 12
[o] Iohn 13. 35.

Princes and Prophets are the ſeruants of God in ordinarie, ſo neere to God in office, that they are called Gods. A Magiſtrate is a finger (as it were) of Gods owne hand; a Preacher is a [p] ſteward in Gods owne [q] houſe. So S. Iames (as being an Apoſtle) was in this ſenſe the ſeruant of Ieſus Chriſt; and [r] therefore ſuch are deceiued greatly, who thinke that this author was not an Apoſtle, becauſe he calls not himſelfe an Apoſtle: for firſt Iude being an Apoſtle, doth vſe the ſame ſubſcription in his Epiſtle, Iudas the ſeruant of Ieſus Chriſt. Secondly, ſeruant in this acceptation is nothing elſe but an Apoſtle; wherefore many Greeke copies, and the Siriac, and the vulgar Latine make this title to this Epiſtle, The generall Epiſtle of S. Iames the Apoſtle. Here then obſerue, that to be called a Miniſter of Ieſus Chriſt is not (as the Papiſts obiect againſt our reformed Churches) any contemptible ſtile, ſeeing S. Iames here doth affoord vs a patterne, and S. Paul 1. Cor. 4. 1. a patent, ſic nos æſtimet homo vt miniſtros Chriſti; ſo the Romiſh tranſlation in Latine, and the Remiſh in Engliſh, let a man eſteeme vs as the Miniſters of Chriſt.

[p] 1 Cor. 4 1.
[q] Heb 3. 5.
[r] Aret. in loc.

Of God, and of the Lord Ieſus Chriſt] Theſe words are to be conſtrued [s] copulatiuely, Iames a ſeruant of Ieſus Chriſt, which is God and Lord, as Tit. 2. 13 looking for that bleſſed hope, and the glorius appearing of the great God, and our Sauiour Ieſus Chriſt. For the [t] Mediator betweene God and man, is perfect God, and perfect man, and yet not two, but one Chriſt; one not by confuſion of ſubſtance, but by vnitie of perſon, as Athanaſius in his Creed.

[s] Aret. & Marlorat. in loc. Deus quoad diuinitatem, Dominus quoad humanitatem Aquin. in loc.
[t] 1 Tim 2 5

To the twelue tribes which are ſcattered abroad] The Iewes were led captiue to Babylon, and other countries, out of which it is apparent, that ſome neuer returned into Iurie: for Paul (as we read in the ſtorie of the [u] Acts) found almoſt euerie where both in Europe and in Aſia, Synagogues of the Iewes. Now this diſperſion of Gods owne people for their inratitude towards him, is a manifeſt argument of his wrathfull indignation againſt ſinne, and it is written for our [x] inſtruction, vpon whom the ends of the world are come; for if God ſpared not his naturall branches, his peculiar incloſed [y] plant; [z] take heed leſt he alſo ſpare not thee, which art but a wilde Oliue by nature. Remember the words of [a] Azariah vnto King Aſa, [a] The Lord is with you, while ye are with him: and if yee ſeeke him, he will be found of you: but if yee forſake him, he will forſake you. Yet God in his wrath [b] remembers mercy; for among theſe ſcattered people ſome were gathered to the Church, and truly conuerted vnto Chriſt, vnto whom our Apoſtle wrote this excellent letter, [c] Vt qui diſperſi erant corpore, congregarentur mente. S. Iames, I ſay, ſent not this inſtruction vnto Iewes vnconuerted, [d] for then he would haue proued that Ieſus was the ſonne of Marie, the Meſſias of the world, promiſed to the fathers. If he had written vnto the Iewes in generall, he would (as S. Matthew did) haue penned a booke of the generation of Ieſus Chriſt the ſonne of Dauid, the ſonne of Abraham, &c. but his greeting is vnto ſuch Iewes as were turned Chriſtians, exhorting them to make demonſtration of their faith out of their workes, leading a life anſwerable to their profeſſion; for the light of the Goſpell appearing, [e] teacheth vs that we ſhould deny vngodlines & worldly luſts, and that we ſhould liue ſoberly, righteouſly, add godly in this preſent world. To conuert Iewes he wrote principally, but that which is ſaid vnto them, is ſaid vnto vs, and all;

[u] Cap. 13 14. 18. 4. 19 8
[x] 1 Cor 10. 11
[y] Eſay 5. 7.
[z] Rom 11, 21.
[a] 2 Chron, 15. 2
[b] Habakuk. 3 2
[c] Aquin. in loc.
[d] Aretius.
[e] Tit 2. 12.

[f] in which respect this letter is entituled, The Generall or Catholike Epistle of S. Iames.

Greeting] This kinde of salutation hath occasioned [g] some to doubt of this Epistles authority; Saint Peter and S. Paul, in their inscriptions haue grace and peace, S. Inde, Mercy, and peace, and loue be multiplied vnto you. But this (as they thinke) is prophane, taken rather out of Platoes Academie, than out of Christs schoole. For [h] Plato reports that in Greece the Physitians salutation is, ὑγιαίνειν, the Philosopher ἐν ἀρχῇ εὖ πράττειν, and the vulgars χαίρειν. [i] Answer is made, that this forme of saluting, although it were common among the Heathens, is notwithstanding apostolicall, and that a patterne hereof is found, Act. 15.23. The Apostles and the Elders, and the brethren, vnto the brethren of the Gentiles in Antiochia, and in Syria, and in Cicilia, χαίρειν, greeting. 2. Saint Iames being a [k] spirituall Physitian wisheth here perfect health of the [l] soule so well as the body. 3. Χαίρειν, signifying to reioyce (considering he wrote to people dispersed, and distressed vnder the Crosse) is both as fit, and as full as the salutation of peace; for there is no true ioy in the spirit, without peace of conscience, Rom. 14.7. The kingdome of God is not meat nor drinke, but righteousnesse and peace, and ioy in the Holy Ghost, an vpright life breeds in the iustified peace of conscience, and peace of conscience makes a ioyfull heart.

My brethren, count it exceeding ioy, when ye fall into diuers temptations] Wee reade Acts 8. that there was a great persecution against the Church at Hierusalem, and that all the conuerted Iewes were scattered abroad thorow the regions of Iudea and of Samaria. Now for the comfort of these distressed professours (as [u] some coniecture) S. Iames wrote this instruction: and because their condition vnder the crosse was, vnto flesh and blood exceeding grieuous, he beginneth [o] à re ipsa, with this exhortation [p] aptly, count it all ioy when ye fall into diuers temptations. He that suffers as a [q] murtherer, or as a theefe, or as an euill doer, hath hereby griefe of heart, but blessed is the man that endureth temptation in Christs cause. To cast our selues into temptation affords matter of sorrow, but if we for righteousnesse sake by Gods appointment fall into sundry temptations, our sorrow shall be turned into ioy, Iohn 16.20. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet, our Apostles (count it for exceeding ioy when ye fall into diuers temptations) is answerable to Christs (let not your hearts be troubled) and both are fitly read on this day, which is solemnized to the praise of God in commemoration of the ioyous Martyrdome of two blessed Apostles, Saint Philip, who for the constant profession of the Christian faith (as [r] Hyppolitus reports) was vnder Domitian the cruell Emperour crucified with his head downeward, and [s] S. Iames euen for the same cause being Bishop of Hierusalem was cast downe headlong by the Scribes and Pharisees from the pinnacle of the temple, and afterward stoned, and finally brained with a Fullers club.

This exhortation to constant cheerfulnesse vnder the crosse for the Gospell is pressed here by diuers and sundrie reasons (as [t] Expositors haue well obserued) all which in briefe may be reduced either to the fruit, or else to the root of this Christian vertue. The fruit in this world, knowing this that the trying of your faith gendereth patience, and let patience haue her perfit worke, &c. There is a twofold temptation (as [u] Augustine told Consentius) vna deceptionis, altera probationis: a temptation to deceiue, which is from the deuill and our owne concupiscence, verse 13,14. of this present Chapter. Againe, there is a temptation to proue and improue, the [x] which is from God, and so suffering for the Gospell is termed here temptation, and a triall of our faith. The fruit in the world to come is eternall happinesse, verse 12. Blessed is the man that endureth temptation, for when he is tried he shall receiue the crowne of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that loue him. See Gospell appointed for this day.

As for the root, if any lacke wisdome, [y] that is, true iudgement how to beare the crosse, let him aske it of God: he is a giuing God, from him is euery good and perfect gift, verse 17 Ergo, he giueth also this: he giueth vnto all indifferently without any respect of person: exclude not thy selfe from an vniuersall number, he liberally

[f] Oecumen. Aretius.
[g] Caietan. in loc.
[h] Epist. ad Dionys.
[i] Bellarm. de verb. Dei, lib. 1. cap. 18.
[k] Marlorat.
[l] Salutem in præsenti, gratiæ. in futuro, gloriæ. Aquin. in loc.
[m] Aretius in Rom. 14 17.
[n] Aquin. in loc.
[o] Aretius.
[p] Beza
[q] 1 Pet. 4. 15.
[r] Apud Baron. Rom. Mart. Maij 1.
[s] Hegesippus apud Euseb. hist. lib. 2. cap. 23. & Hieron in vita eius & alij.
[t] Aretius. Beza. Piscator.
[u] Epist. 146.
[x] See Drusius annot. in loc.
[y] Aquin. Aretius. Calvin.

liberally giueth, and vpbraideth not after he hath giuen, he giues for the measure fully, for the manner cheerefully. Wherefore come to him, and aske of him in faith, and it shall be giuen vnto you. See Gospell Sun. 5. after Easter.

The Gospell. IOHN 14. 1. vide p. 15

Iesus said to his Disciples, let not your hearts be troubled, &c.

THe Prophet [z] Dauid saith, a troubled spirit is an acceptable sacrifice to God, and it [a] was good for me that I was in trouble. How then is it true which is here said by the sonne of Dauid, let not your hearts be troubled? Answer is made, that the passions of the minde, as anger, feare, delight, and the like, are in their owne nature [b] neither simply commendable, nor yet absolutely vituperable, but either good or bad, as their obiects and ends are good and bad. To be troubled for sinne is a [c] godly sorrow, causing repentance to saluation, not to be repented of, and therefore grieue for offending God, and [d] grieuing his spirit, yea grieue much because thou canst grieue no more. [e] But an inordinate trouble for the things of this world, arising either out of enuie, sluggishnesse, or impatience, is forbidden in this sentence, let not your hearts be troubled. The Disciples as yet ambitiously sought after worldly honour, conceiuing that Christ ere it were long would [f] restore the kingdome of Israel, and so preferre them in his kingdome on earth [g] at his right hand and at his left; as yet they did expect a crowne, not a crosse. Wherefore Christ vnderstanding that they were dismayed at his words, in the former Chapter at thee 33. verse (little children yet a little while am I with you, ye shall seeke me, but whither I goe can ye not follow me now) he commeth in this present vnto that which is [h] Euangelij caput & summa, the chiefe part in the whole body of his Gospell, namely, to [i] binde vp the broken hearted, and to comfort such as mourne in Sion. Isaac the signe of Christ is interpreted laughter, [k] insinuating that Christ should be the consolation of Israel, and great ioy to all his people, Luke 2. 10. 25. feare not (as [l] one notes) is the first word in the first annunciation of his [m] conception, and the first word in the first annunciation of his [n] birth, and the first word, in the first annunciation of his [o] resurrection, and almost the last words in his last exhortation a little before his death, are let not your hearts be troubled, and [p] be of good comfort, strengthning his followers, and sweetning his crosse by diuers forcible reasons, in our text by two more principally.

The { 1. Is taken from the buckler of faith, ye beleeue in God, beleeue also in me.
2. From the hold of hope, in my Fathers house are many mansions, &c.

Ye beleeue in God, beleeue also in me] Concerning the fourefold reading of these words, examine Iansen. concord. cap. 134. Erasmus annot. & Maldonat. com. in loc. I take them as I finde them here, yee beleeue in God, &c. The Saints in old time [q] through faith haue subdued kingdomes, wrought righteousnesse, obtained the promises, stopped the mouths of Lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, of weake were made strong, waxed valiant in battell, and turned to flight the armies of Alians. In a word, faith is a shield, wherewith yee may quench all the fierie darts of the deuill, Ephes. 6. 16. If yee beleeue then in God, and cast all your care on him, he that is [r] the father of mercies, and God of all comfort, will assuredly so [s] care for you, that ye shall not any longer bee troubled in your hearts, a little faith, euen so small as a graine of mustard seed, is able to remoue mountaines of distrust out of your soule. Faith is a buckler, and a buckler guardeth especially the head and the heart; [t] that is, the vnderstanding and the will, [u] vt non turbetur intellectus, non formidet affectus. Here humane weakenesse doth obiect, (as Philip at the 8 verse) Lord, shew vs the Father, and it sufficeth vs. It is true, that we beleeue God, and beleeue in God also, but yet our hearts are troubled, thirsting after his sight and sensible knowledge, we would faine see that we beleeue; so Moses in the 33. chapter of Exodus, I beseech thee shew

[a] Aristot. ethic. lib. 1 cap. 5.
[c] 2 Cor. 7. 10
[d] Ephes 4. 30
[e] Paratus & Paluderfis ser. de S Philip & Iacob.
[f] Acts 1. 6.
[g] Matth 20. 21
[h] Ferus com. in loc.
[i] Esay 51. 1.
[k] Ambros de Abraham lib 1. cap. 5.
[l] Martin. Molerus in Euangel. S. Philip & Iacob.
[m] Luke 1. 30.
[n] Luke 2. 10.
[o] Matth 28. 5.
[p] Iohn 16. 33.
[q] Heb 11. 33.
[r] 2 Cor. 1. 3.
[s] 1 Pet. 5. 7.
[t] Diez com 1 in fest. Philip. & Iacob.
[u] Ferus com. in loc.

ſhew me thy glory: to whom anſwer was made by the Lord, thou canſt not ſee my face, for there ſhall no man ſee my face and liue: yet behold, there is a place by me, and thou ſhalt ſtand vpon the rocke, and while my glory paſſeth by, I will put thee in a cleft of the rocke, and will couer thee with mine hand whiles I paſſe by, then I will take away mine hand, and thou ſhalt ſee my backe parts, but my face ſhall not be ſeene.

x Melanct poſt. con. de S Philip. & Iacob.

x This rocke is Chriſt, as Paul in another caſe, 1 Cor. 10 4. and the Church is a doue in the holes of the rocke, Cant. 2. 14. Whoſoeuer then is placed in Chriſts Church, and hath faiths eye, may ſee God in his y hinder parts as in the world he paſſeth by, that is, in his workes of creation, and redemption, and preſeruation of his people: though he may not read Gods priora, yet he may know Gods poſteriora, beholding, him in his wonders, in his words, in his ſacraments, in his Sonne principally, being z the brightneſſe of his glory, and expreſſe character of his perſon: as Chriſt in our text, he that hath ſeene me, hath ſeene alſo my father, I am in the father, and the father in me. a Hereby prouing himſelfe to be God: 1. For that we muſt only beleeue in the Creator, and not in any creature. 2. b Becauſe God only knowes the ſecret perturbation of the heart, and c if ye beleeue that I am God, ye muſt alſo confeſſe that I am a d preſent helpe in trouble, willing and able to releeue you, for if e God be with you, who can ſtand againſt you? Why then are your hearts troubled? As if he ſhould haue ſaid; f albeit I am to ſuffer death as man; yet I will on the third day raiſe my ſelfe againe from the dead as God: it is expedient for you that I die for your ſinnes, and riſe againe for your iuſtification, and ſo prepare a place for you in my Fathers houſe, that where I am there you may be alſo.

y Ex poſtico tergo, non ex antica facie. Ram. de relig. lib. 1. cap 9.

z Heb 1 3.

a Illephonſ. Giron & Piſcator in loc.

b Theophylact.

c Marlorat.

d Pſal 46.

e Rom. 8. 31.

f Chryſol & Auguſt tract. 67 in Ioan.

In my Fathers houſe are many manſions] Saint Paul hauing at large diſputed of the reſurrection in his firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians 15. chapter, prouing that the dead ſhall riſe againe by manifeſt and manifold arguments taken out of the bookes aſwell of nature as of Scripture; concludeth in in fine, therefore my beloued brethren, be ye ſtedfaſt, vnmouable, abundant alwayes, in the worke of the Lord, for as much as ye know that your labour is not in vaine. So Chriſt in the Goſpell vnto his followers, g In the world ye ſhall haue affliction, and all the wicked of the world ſhall h hate you for my names ſake, they ſhall ſcourge you in their Synagogues, & perſecute you from citie to citie, not affording ſo much as an i hole wherein to reſt your head in peace, yet let not your hearts be troubled as long as in my Fathers houſe there be manſions, and I goe to prepare a place for you. The Church militant on earth is often called in holy k Scripture Gods houſe, l wherein he hath a great many manſions, as m dwelling in our hearts by faith, and we likewiſe haue many places of preferment, ſome being Apoſtles, and ſome Prophets, and ſome Euangeliſts, and ſome Paſtors, and Teachers, Ephes. 4. 11. It is true, that God and we too dwell here, but it is (ſaith n Iob) in houſes of clay, whoſe foundation is in the duſt, or (as Paul ſpeakes) in earthly tabernacles ſet vp to day and pulled downe to morrow: o non habemus hic manentem ciuitatem, in this world we haue no continuing citie. For our kingdome which cannot be ſhaken, Heb. 12. 28. Our habitation which is euerlaſting, Luke 16. 9. Our inheritance that fades not away, 1 Pet. 4. Our dwelling place mentioned in our text by Chriſt is not made with hands, but eternall in the heauens, 2 Cor. 5. Our beſt houſes on earth, albeit neuer ſo gorgeous, and neuer ſo glorious, hauing (if it be poſſible) wals of gold, and windowes of Saphyre, are notwithſtanding no better than Innes for ſtrangers and pilgrims, 1 Pet. 2. 11. Our p manſions and places of abode for euer, are in Hieruſalem aboue, which is without either death or danger, Apocal. 21. 4. Wherefore ſeeing we beleeue in God, and q looke for the bleſſed hope and glorious appearing of our Sauiour Chriſt (who when he commeth againe ſhall receiue vs vnto himſelfe, that where he is in his Fathers houſe, there we may be alſo) let vs ſay with r Dauid, Why art thou ſo heauie, ô my ſoule? & why art thou ſo diſquieted within me? O put thy truſt in God, and he ſhall one day ſ ſatisfie thee with the plenteouſneſſe of his houſe: t for there is not only roome for Chriſt in Gods houſe, but alſo place for all his followers: the manſions of heauen are many, the leaſt of all his ſouldiers, if g Iohn 16. 33.

h Matth 10. 22

i Matth 8. 20.

k 1 Tim. 3. 15. Heb 3 2.

l Paludenſis.

m Epheſ 3. 17.

n Iob 4. 19.

o Heb 13. 14.

p Vide Maldonat. in loc.

q Tit 2. 3.

r Pſal. 43. 5.

ſ Pſal. 36. 8.

t Eraſmus. Marlorat. Ianſen.

if he [a] fight a good fight, and continue [x] faithfull vnto death, is rewarded with an [y] incorruptible crowne of glory, hauing for his inheritance, no leſſe than a whole kingdome. Againe, theſe manſions are many, [z] becauſe the Saints in heauen haue diuers degrees of glory. So Paul, 1 Cor. 15.41. There is another glory of the Sunne, and another glory of the Moone, and another glory of the Starres, for one Starre differeth from another in glory; [a] ſo likewiſe in the reſurrection of the dead. A [b] great veſſell and a little, dipped in the ſame Well, hold notwithſtanding diuers meaſures, according to their capacitie: ſo in Gods houſe, euery choſen veſſell of honour is filled vp to the brim with the water of life, but the better man hath vndoubtedly the bigger manſion, he that held more charitie here, ſhall haue more charitie hereafter. Yet (as Auguſtine notes vpon our text) Non erit aliqua inuidia imparis claritatis, quoniam regnabit in omnibus vnitas charitatis.

I goe to prepare a place for you] It is ſaid, Matth. 25.34. That the manſions in Gods houſe were prepared before the foundation of the world; how then is it true, that Chriſt at this time goeth to prepare a place? [c] Anſwer is made, that the manſions indeed are prepared from all eternitie, but the men who ſhall inhabit them, as yet were vnprepared. It was expedient therefore, that the Redeemer of the world ſhould die for their ſins, and riſe againe for their iuſtification, and aſcend into heauen to take poſſeſſion of this kingdome, and to ſet open the doores of theſe prepared manſions vnto his followers, as alſo to ſend vnto them a comforter, and a conductor, euen the Spirit of truth, who might leade them in the right way to this place. So [d] S. Auguſtine acutely, Parat quodammodo manſiones, manſionibus parando manſores. He prepareth a place, by making men fit for the place. [e] For election is in Chriſt, and through Chriſt, and ſo conſequently, none come to the Father but by the Sonne, we paſſe by the kingdome of grace, to the kingdome of glory, for without [f] holineſſe it is impoſſible to ſee God. Touching other readings, I referre you to Ianſen. concord. cap. 134. and Eraſmus annot. in loc.

Lord, we know not whither thou goeſt] S. Thomas and S. Philip were ſo good proficients in Chriſts ſchoole, that their maſter in the former Chapter at the 10. verſe, ſaid of them and of the reſt of their fellowes (excepting Iudas the traytor) ye are cleane: and [g] S. Peter, as the [h] mouth of the company profeſſed openly, To whom ſhall we goe? thou haſt the words of eternall life, and we beleeue and know that thou art the Chriſt, the Sonne of the liuing God: And yet their faith in the houre of tentation (as you ſee) was ſo weake, that S. Thomas ſaid, Lord, we know not whither thou goeſt. And S. Philip, Lord, ſhew vs the Father, and it ſufficeth vs. Now theſe things are written for our [i] comfort; for if theſe great pillers of the Church had ſuch a ſhake, let vs not deſpaire though haply ſometime many mountaines of diſtruſt ariſe in our troubled hearts. Aſſure thy ſelfe thou haſt a good meaſure of faith, if thou feele want of faith. [k] As a woman that feeleth the mouing of the childe in her body, though very weake, aſſureth her ſelfe that ſhe hath conceiued, and goeth with childe: ſo if we haue theſe good affections, and vnfained deſires of faith in our ſoule; if hungring and thirſting after righteouſneſſe wee ſay with the man in the [l] Goſpell, I beleeue, Lord helpe mine vnbeleefe: let vs not in any caſe doubt, but that we haue the Holy Spirit (who is the giuer of theſe godly motions) dwelling in vs, and ſo conſequently that we haue true faith. It is ſaid, Pſal. 10.19. that the Lord heareth the deſire of the poore, yea that he fulfilleth the deſires of all ſuch as feare him, Pſal. 145.19. It is ſufficient then (in the middeſt of any grieuous tentation) if thou truly deſire to repent and beleeue. For God ([m] accepting the will for the deed) [n] taketh a heart deſirous to repent and beleeue, for a penitent and a beleeuing heart indeed. It is recorded in the 20. Chapter of S. Iohns Goſpell, that [o] Mary Magdalen ſeeking Chriſt at his ſepulchre, found afore ſhe felt him. He talked with her, and ſtood nigh her, and comforted her; and yet the text ſaith at the 14. verſe, ſhe knew not that it was Ieſus. In like ſort the ſpirit of Chriſt is ſometime preſent with vs, and within vs, [p] helping our infirmities, albeit we haue little ſight or ſenſe thereof; he is a ſecret friend, and doth vs often moſt good when we leaſt perceiue it. S. Thomas here ſaid, we know not the way,

[a] 2 Tim. 4.7.
[x] Apoc. 2.10.
[y] 1 Pet. 5.4.
[z] Auguſtine. Aretius. Maldonat.
[a] See Luther. Anſelme. Lombard. in loc. Pauli.
[b] Paluderſis.
[c] Luther. Rupert.
[d] Tract. 68. in Ioan.
[e] See Marlorat. in loc.
[f] Heb. 12.14.
[g] Ioh. 6.68.
[h] Bullinger in loc. citat.
[i] Luther. poſt. in loc.
[k] Taffin, Marks of Gods children.
[l] Mark 9.24.
[m] 2 Cor. 8.12.
[n] Bradford Epiſt. to Careleſſe.
[o] Rom 8.26.

way, nor whither thou goest, and yet Truth it selfe auowed the contrary, Whither I goe ye know, and the way ye know. They knew the way, but they did not know that they knew, saith [p] Augustine, Sciebant isti sed se scire nesciebant. See the song of S. Simeon, and The grace of our Lord, &c. in the Liturgie.

I am the way, the truth and the life] That (as [q] Ferus) Exordium salutis, ergo via: medium salutis, ergo veritas: finis salutis, ergo vita. The beginning of heauenly happinesse, and therefore the way: the meane, and therefore the truth: the end, and therefore the life. [r] Via incipientium, veritas proficientium, vita perfectorum. Or as [s] Euthymius, if I am the way, then I am able to bring you to the mansions in my Fathers house: if the truth, I lie not in saying, I goe to prepare a place for you: if the life, then neither [t] Angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor death it selfe, shall separate you from me; but I will receiue you to my selfe, that where I am, there ye may be also. Or as [u] Leo the great, Via conuersationis sanctæ, veritas doctrinæ diuinæ, vita beatitudinis sempiternæ. The which is expressed by [x] S. Bernard, in these words elegantly, Via in exemplo, veritas in promisso, vita in præmio: The way, in my workes, and the truth, in my words, and the life in my rewards. [y] Via ducens, veritas lucens, vita pascens. [z] Vnto such as wander in a by-way, I am the high way: to such as are doubting in the way, I am the truth: vnto such as are wearied vnder their heauie burthen in their courses, I am the life. Or as Cyril vpon the place, for as much as we shall ascend to the mansions in Gods house by faith, hope, charitie, (of all which only Christ is the donor) he may be termed the way, for giuing vs an [a] example that we should loue one another, as he hath loued vs: the truth, in deliuering such infallible rules of faith: and the life, by comforting vs with an assured hope that we shall one day raigne with him in his Fathers house for euermore. Thus Christ is [b] via, in qua per charitatem ambulare: veritas, cui per fidem adhærere: vita, ad quam per spem attolli debemus: [c] or as Augustine, Christ is the truth, and the way, qua itur; and the life, quo itur. And in [d] another place, Per me, venitur ad me, prouenitur in me, permanetur in me.

[e] Other taking this phrase for an hebraisme, construe it thus, I am the true way leading to life which is euerlasting. Or, I am the way to truth and life, making truth and life but Epitheta to way. Or I am the way, and the true light going before you in the way to life, as he doth [f] expound himselfe in the words immediatly following, No man commeth to the Father but by me, called [g] elsewhere the light, as well as here the life; which occasioned [h] Bernard to say, Nos populus tuus, & oues pascuæ tuæ sequamur te, per te, ad te. I will end this obseruation with a meditation of [i] S. Ambrose, Ingrediamur hanc viam, teneamus veritatem, vitam sequamur. Via est quæ perducit, veritas est quæ confirmat, vita quæ per se redditur. Suscipe nos Domine quasi via, confirma quasi veritas, viuifica quasi vita, nam in te sumus, viuimus, mouemur; mouemur quasi in via, sumus quasi in veritate, viuimus quasi in vita æterna.

This one sentence doth afford many comforts vnto troubled hearts; if Christ be the way to life, there is [k] none other name whereby we must be saued, [l] Aliter qui vadit, cadit. If the truth, all other religions opposite to the Christian faith are either ignorant fantasies, or else arrogant heresies. If the life, let vs not despaire in death, our [m] Redeemer liueth, he which is the [n] resurrection and the life, shall at the last day raise our vile body, making it like [o] his glorious body, receiuing vs to himselfe, that where he is in his fathers house, there we may be also.

[p] Tract. 69. in Ioan.
[q] Com. in loc. Idem fere Caluin. & Marlorat.
[r] Ferus vbi sup.
[s] In loc. idem. Chrysost. & Theophylact.
[t] Rom. 8. 38.
[u] Ser. 2. de resurrect. Dom.
[x] Ser. 2. de ascens. Dom.
[y] Ferus vbi sup.
[z] Bernard. tract. de gradibus humilit. in prin.
[a] Ioh. 13. 15. 34.
[b] Vide Iansen: concord. cap. 134. & Stapleton de vita Thomæ Apost. pag. 5. 6.
[c] Tract. 69. in Ioan.
[d] De doct. Christ. lib. 1. cap. 34.
[e] Maldonat. in loc.
[f] Aretius. Caluin.
[g] Ioh. 1. 4. 5.
[h] Ser. 2. de ascens. Dom.
[i] Lib. de bono mort. cap. 12.
[k] Acts 4. 12.
[l] Bernard ser. 2. in ascens. Dom.
[m] Iob 19. 25.
[n] Iohn 11. 25.
[o] Philip. 3. 21.

The

The Epistle. ACTS 1.1. vnto v. 12

In the former treatise (O Theophilus) we haue spoken of all that Iesus began to doe and teach.

IN this History of S. Luke, two points are more principally remarkable, namely, [p] the - Context, or connexion of this Treatise with his Gospell, verse 1.2.

- Text, or narration it selfe throughout the rest of the whole booke, diuided into two [q] portions,
  1. Generall, as setting downe the acts of all the blessed Apostles, in the twelue former chapters.
  2. Particular, as containing more specially the acts of Saint Paul in the sixteene latter chapters.

[p] Ardens. Caluin. Iustus Ionas in loc.

[q] Aretius.

In the former treatise] Saint Luke hauing already penned a tract of all that Iesus did and taught: he commeth in this present history to shew what his Apostles did and taught, [r] declaring at large that their doings and doctrine were conformable to the workes and words of their master. These two treatises howsoeuer dedicated vnto one man, are notwithstanding parted into two volumes, Vt [s] distinctio perspicuitatē afferret, breuitas tædium eximeret, varietas voluptate afficeret. They be parted indeed, yet so neerely linked together, that the first words of our text are nothing else but a [t] transition, or (as it were) a bridge betweene both.

[r] Dr. Fulke, argument in act.

[s] Chrysost. apud Lorin. præfat. in act.

[t] Ardens. Beza.

In this context or preamble, three persons are to be considered especially: By whom, To whom, Of whom — the former treatise was written.

The party writing the Gospell of all that Iesus did and taught was Luke, by birth (as [u] Eusebius, and [x] Hierome report) of Antiochia: by profession (as Paul writes, Coloss. 4. 14.) a Physitian, Luke the beloued Physitian greets you: by calling (as [z] some thinke) one of those seuentie Disciples our blessed Sauiour appointed, Luke 10. 1. the which is gathered by [a] Gregorie the great, and [b] other out of the 24. chapter of S. Luke, verse 13. but [c] Irenæus, [d] Tertullian, and the most [e] ancient Doctors affirme, that he was not Christs immediate Disciple, but only, sectator & discipulus Apostolorum: a follower and a Disciple of his Apostles. And this Saint Luke testifieth of himselfe in the first chapter of his Gospell, at the second verse, sicut tradiderunt nobis, &c. as they haue deliuered them vnto vs, which from the beginning saw themselues. Insinuating that he wrote his Gospell according to that which he heard of other: but this tract of the acts of the Apostles, according to that which he had seene himselfe.

[u] Hist. lib. 3. cap. 4.

[x] Catalog. script. in vita Luc. Idem Theophylact. & Euthym. præfat. enarrat. Luc.

[z] Epiphanius hæres. 51.

[a] Cap. 1. præfat. in Iob.

[b] Theophylact. in Luc 24. See Gosp Easter Munday.

[c] Lib. 3. cap 11.

[d] Lib. 4. contra Marcian.

[e] Euseb. Hierom. vbi sup Beda, Nicephorus, & aly.

This man is made by Gods appointment an Euangelist before Peter and Iames, who were counted to be [f] pillars of the Church, and seemed to be great, nay ten Apostles being passed by, this poore Physitian a companion of persecuted Paul, and at the best but a Disciple, was preferred to set downe the Gospels history, for so he saith, I haue made the former treatise of all that Iesus began to doe and teach. Here then obserue that God is tied to no man, he calleth whomsoeuer hee will vnto whatsoeuer office pleaseth him: he made silly fishermen, fishers of men: and of [g] Paul who was sometime a rauenous wolfe, first a milde sheepe, and then a diligent shepherd: of [h] Amos an herdman, a Prophet: of Peter a waterman, a chiefe Apostle: of Luke the physitian, a great Euangelist. And therefore let vs not ascribe too much vnto secondarie causes, but rather attribute all to God, who doth often greatest acts by weakest agents. And let vs be so much the more ready to beleeue this, because Luke wrote this, I haue made, &c. He was not principall author, but instrumentall actor in composing this Treatise: for the Gospell is God-spell, [f] Galat. 1. 9.

[g] Galat. 1. 22.

[h] Amos 1. 1.

God-spell, or the Ghosts-spell, euen the word of the Spirit, as [i] S. Peter teacheth vs: holy men of God in old time spake not according to the will of men, but as they were moued by the Holy Ghost, [k] ipse hæc scripsit, qui hæc scribenda dictauit.

The partie to whom our Euangelist inscribed his Gospell is Theophilus, and here the [l] Doctors doubt whether this name be common or proper. [m] Cardinall Baronius hath vndergone some paines in discussing this point, but (like himselfe) leaues it as he found it, vncertaine. If we take it for a common appellatiue, then vnderstand that the Gospell is written vnto such as are Theophili, that is, louers of God. The word is a peerelesse [n] pearle, and may not be cast vnto [o] swine who despise it, but opened vnto the louers of God, which are ready to sell all that they haue to buy it: euery true Christian is a Theophilus, and euery Theophilus hath a Gospell dedicated to him, as [p] Saint Ambrose sweetly, Si Deum diligis, ad te scriptum est: si ad te scriptum est, suscipe munus Euangelistæ, pignus amici, in penetralibus animi diligenter asserua. Seeing this inestimable iewell is sent vnto thee, [q] keepe that which is committed to thy care, lay it vp in the treasure house of your heart, [r] where neither the moath and canker corrupt, and where theeues neither digge thorow nor steale. [s] Consumit tinea si quod bene legeris, male credas. Arrius is a moath, and Photinus a moath, euery hereticke is a moath, as it were fretting the garment of our blessed Sauiour. But two reasons induce me to thinke that Theopilus is a proper name. 1. Saint Luke saith, It seemed good to me, to write vnto thee from point to point, that thou mightest acknowledge the certaintie of those things whereof thou hast beene instructed. By which he doth [t] insinuate, that he wrote to some one particular person whom he had heretofore catechized by [u] word of mouth. 2. The title giuen vnto Theophilus, Luke 1.3. maketh Interpreters conceiue, that he was a certaine man of eminent qualitie: [x] some therefore say that he was a Bishop of Antiochia, but [y] other, that he was some chiefe Gouernour in his Common-wealth, because the word κράτιστος, vsed by S. Luke, (which we translate most excellent, or most noble) is the same which is ascribed elsewhere to men of great command: So Paul to Festus, Acts 26. 25. I am not mad, O noble Festus, ὦ κράτιστε Φῆστε So Tertullus an Orator, and a great master of words, vnto Felix, Acts 24.3. We acknowledge it wholly and in all places, (κράτιστε Φῆλιξ, most noble Felix) with all thankes. So Claudius in his subscription to the same Felix. Acts 23 26. Claudius Lysius, τῷ κρατίστῳ ἡγεμόνι, to the most noble Gouernour Felix greeting: and the title optimus of all other, was most acceptable to Traian the great Emperour, as Xiphilinus out of Dio reports in his life.

Hence then obserue, 1. That rich men and great men are not excluded from Gods kingdome, [z] S. Paul saith indeed, not many mightie, not many noble are called; yet some mightie, some noble, as the noble [a] Ioseph of Arimathea, the noble Chamberlaine and Treasurer of [b] Candaces Queene of Æthiopia, the noble men of [c] Berea, and here noble Theophilus of Antiochia.

2. Note by this example, that Christians ought to speake and write courteously, giuing titles of due respect vnto men of worth and worship, feare to whom feare, honour to whom honour belongeth, Rom. 13.7.

3. Learne from hence, that goddly men ought to be religiously politick, so wise (saith our [d] Sauiour) as serpents, in inlarging Gods kingdome. It is likely S. Luke dedicated this present and that former history to noble Theophilus, not so much out of any priuate consideration, as for the publike good of the whole Church: for if a great man in authoritie receiue the word, other instantly will embrace the same. This vndoubtedly was our Euangelists policie, and till it be our practise, the wals of Iericho will neuer be throughly pulled downe; for so long as the Chaplaines are of the closet, flattering and fostering Nobles in their sinne, no maruell if the [e] whole world lieth in wickednesse: [f] Citharædo Principe, mimus est nobilis, when Princes are fidlers, the people turne dancers.

The third person is of whom, and that is Iesus: in the former treatise we haue spoken of all that Iesus began to doe and teach, &c. Of all; how then is it true which is deliuered by S. Iohn in the conclusion of his Gospell? there are many other things

[i] 2 Epist. 1.21.
[k] Gregor. cap 1. præfat. in Iob.
[l] Epiphan. hæres. 51.
[m] Annal tom. ad an 58.
[n] Matth. 13 46
[o] Matt. 7.6.
[p] Explanat. proœm Euang. Luc.
[q] 1 Tim. 6.20.
[r] Matth 6.20.
[s] Ambros. vbi sup.
[t] Maldonat. in Luc. 1
[u] Theophylact. in Luc. 1.
[x] Lyranus & Nicephorus lib. 2. cap. 5.
[y] Theophylact. argument in Luc. Oecumen. in Acts 1. Baronius vbi sup. fol 534.
[z] 1 Cor. 1.26.
[a] Mark 15.42.
[b] Acts 8.27.
[c] Acts 17.11.
[d] Matth. 10.16.
[e] 1 John 5.19.
[f] Iuuenal.

things which Ieſus did, the which if they ſhould be written euery one, I ſuppoſe the world could not containe the bookes that ſhould be written. Againe, Saint Luke himſelfe, after hee had reported the birth of Chriſt, and the purtenances thereof, adds no more of him vntill he was twelue yeere old, diſputing with the Doctors in the Temple, and then he relates not of any thing what he did for the ſpace of eighteene yeere, from twelue yeere to thirtie. By which it doth appeare, that all which Ieſus did and taught, neither is, nor can be written. Anſwer is made by Chryſoſtome and [g] other, that Saint Luke ſaid not, I haue written all, but of all: inſinuating that he wrote all that Ieſus did and taught, as neceſſary to the worke of our redemption. He did not in his former treatiſe mention euery thing Ieſus did and ſaid, but only ſo much, or the chiefe heads of ſo much as was expedient to be ſaid and done, for the full accompliſhment of our ſaluation, all is to be referred [h] ad genera ſingulorum, and not ad ſingula generum. [i] Here then is a pregnant text againſt the Papiſts, [k] holding that beſide the word written, there be certaine traditions vnwritten, which ought to be beleeued as neceſſarie to ſaluation. See Goſpell 1. Sund. in Lent.

[g] Eraſmus. Caluin. Aretius in loc.

[h] Ardens in loc.
[i] Marlorat. in loc.
[k] Bellar. de verb. Dei, lib. 4. cap. 3. Melchior. Canus loc com. lib. 3. cap 3. Pereſius de tradit. aſſert. 2.

It is not ſaid of all that Ieſus did, but of all that Ieſus began to doe and teach: [l] by which our Euangeliſt intimates, that his Goſpell is a ſtory not of ſuch acts as Chriſt did in the beginning as God, but of that only which he did after he was in the fulneſſe of time made man, and dwelt among vs, and became our Ieſus. And this hiſtory Saint Luke [m] diuides into the doings and doctrines of Chriſt, and by doings he doth vnderſtand not his morals onely, but his miracles alſo, yea whatſoeuer Ieſus either did or ſuffered for vs men and our ſaluation, recording his death as well as his life, his paſſions as well as his actions, and indeed they muſt goe together, becauſe Chriſts righteouſneſſe conſiſts in both, in doing and in ſuffering, for in ſuffering he obeyed, and in obeyeing he ſuffered, and the very ſhedding of his bloud (to which our redemption is aſcribed more particularly) muſt not onely be conſidered as it is paſſiue, that is a ſuffering: but alſo as it is actiue, that is an obedience, in which he ſhewed his exceeding loue both to God and vs, in fulfilling the Law for vs. In this ſenſe then all the ſufferings of Chriſt are comprehended vnder the word doing, his reſurrection alſo from the dead, and whatſoeuer elſe he wrought for our ſake.

[l] Aretius.
[m] Aretius.

This was Chriſts honour, that he was a [n] Prophet, mightie in deed and in word, before God and all the people. Firſt, he began to doe, then to teach, ſaying to his followers, I haue giuen an [o] example to you, [p] learne of me. [q] Euery Doctor in like ſort, muſt adorne the ſoundneſſe of his learning with holineſſe of life. [r] The preſent inſcription of this booke doth admoniſh vs of action, that a good Apoſtles dutie conſiſts in doing, as much as in teaching. I will here confeſſe ingenuouſly with [s] Ardens, In hoc mea, & mei ſimilium confunditur præſumptio, qui multa vobis prædico, quæ tamen non facio. Sed vtinam (fratres) per veſtras orationes, ipſa confuſio generet in me pudorem, pudor correctionem, correctio emendationem, vt quod prius non feci, poſt quam prædicauerim incipiam.

[n] Luke 24. 19.

[o] Iob 13. 15.
[p] Matth. 11. 29
[q] Aretius. Caluin.
[r] Lorin cap. 1. præfat. in Act.
[s] Hom in epiſt. aſcen.

In the text following, two points are chiefly conſiderable, namely, Chriſts
- Holy conuerſation with his Apoſtles after his reſurrection, for the ſpace of fortie dayes, verſe 3,4,5,6,7,8.
- Glorious aſcenſion enſuing that his conuerſation, verſ. 9,10.11.

I haue ſpoken of the former often elſewhere, the latter is onely proper to this our preſent feaſt:

In which obſerue three circumſtances eſpecially, the { Place, Time, Manner } of Chriſts aſcenſion.

The place from whence Chriſt aſcended (as we may collect out of this Chapter at the 12. verſe) was the mount of Oliues neere [t] Bethanie, containing a Sabbath dayes iourney from Ieruſalem. He did aſcend from a mount, an open, high, eminent place, [u] that he might aſſure the certaine truth of his aſcenſion. If hee ſhould haue withdrawne himſelfe in ſecret, haply the Diſciples would haue doubted of his aſcenſion, as they did a while of his reſurrection: but now beholding him openly, publikely mounting from a mount, they could not but affirme it themſelues, and confirme it vnto other.

[t] Luke 14. 50.

[u] Caluin.

2. Chriſt aſcended from a mount rather than from a valley, from an high place rather than from a low, for that it was one ſtep vnto his iournies end: [x] hereby teaching vs not to looke for extraordinary miracles, ſo long as ordinary meanes will ſerue: he went ſo farre to heauen as he could on earth, and then being on a mount, and ſo not able by naturall helpe to goe higher, a cloud receiued him out of their ſight.

[x] Maldonat. Lorin.

3. It may be Chriſt aſcended from a mount, for that he deſired to ſtay ſo long, and to ſpend ſo many houres as he conueniently could, in inſtructing his followers before he departed. Hereby demonſtrating his exceeding great loue to the Diſciples in particular, as alſo to the whole Church in generall, as you ſhall heare further in the diſcuſſing of the circumſtances of time when Chriſt aſcended.

The mount from whence he did aſcend was the mount of Olives, and it was the [y] ſame place from whence he went to be crucified. One place ſerued to be a paſſage both to his croſſe and to his crowne, [z] ſignifying hereby, that the way to heauen is by the gates of hell, as Paul and Barnabas preach, Acts 14.22. through many tribulations we muſt enter into the kingdome of God. A wicked man in proſperitie walketh as in the day, the Sunne is before, but the ſhadow behinde him: a good man on the contrary walketh as in the night, his ſhadow goes before, but great light and ioy commeth afterward. Dines and Lazarus exemplifie this in the 16. of Saint Luke, Dines in his life was furniſhed with rich apparell, and filled euery day with delicate fare, there was his Sunne-ſhine: but he died and was buried, and was exceedingly tormented in hell, there was his ſhadow, nay that which is called in the [a] Scriptures vtter darkneſſe. Lazarus on the contrary was an obſcure baſe creature, full of ſorrowes in his ſoule, and ſores in his body, there was his ſhadow: but when he died, he was conueyed by glorious Angels into the boſome of bleſſed Abraham, there was his light and glory. It is an hard and almoſt impoſſible thing (ſaith [b] Hierome) that any ſhould paſſe from great pleaſures in this world, to the greateſt pleaſures in the next, vt quis hic ventrem, & ibi mentem impleat, vt de delicijs tranſeat ad delicias. And as the ſame [m] Father told Heliodore, Delicatus es ſi & hic vis gaudere cum ſeculo, & poſtea regnare cum Chriſto. Here then is comfort for the diſconſolate, many through lingring diſeaſes, as the dead palſie, the gout, and the like, lie bed-rid, and as it were buried long before their death, in ſo much as their beds, which heretofore were places of reſt and eaſe to them, are now couches of teares and miſery, Yet theſe men hence haue great comfort, if they make good vſe of Gods viſitation, for their bed in their ſickneſſe on which they ſuffer ſo much heauineſſe, ſhall on their dying day be to them a Bethanie, from which they ſhall aſcend to the kingdome of eternall happineſſe.

[y] Luke 22.39.
[z] Perkins expoſ. Creed, art. Aſcen.
[a] Matth. 8. 12. & 22. 13.
[b] Conſolat. ad Iulian tom. 1. fol. 208.
[m] Epiſt. ad Heliod. de vita Eremetica.

Or [n] Bethanie ſignifies the houſe of obedience, wherefore ſeeing Chriſt was obedient vnto God his Father in all things, vnto the death, euen the death of the Croſſe; therefore God hath exalted him highly, Philip. 2.8. Through diſobedience we were caſt out of Paradiſe, and through obedience we ſhall enter in againe, [o] ſola obedientia accepit palmam, & inobedientia pœnam.

[n] Paluden. ſer. de aſcen. Dom. See Ferus ſer. 3. in aſcen. Dom.
[o] Auguſt. apud Palud. vbi ſup.

I paſſe from the circumſtances of place, to the circumſtances of time. When he had ſpoken theſe things, &c. that is, as you may reade, verſe 3. all thoſe things which appertaine to the kingdome of God. After he had [p] bleſſed them, and (as it is in the Goſpell allotted for this day) giuen them a large commiſſion to preach, adorned with many ſingular priuiledges and promiſes, aſſuring them and their poſteritie, that he would be preſent in Spirit with them alway [q] till the end of the world; when he had ſpoken all theſe things, he was taken vp on high, &c. This ſheweth euidently, that he is a moſt induſtrious and vigilant Paſtor of his Church, affecting and effecting alſo the good thereof. As the [r] gouernment is on his ſhoulder, ſo

[p] Luke 24.50.
[q] Matth. 28. 28
[r] Eſay 9.6.

was

was he more faithfull in Gods houſe than Moſes was, Heb.3.5,6. He did not aſcend and (as it were)breake vp ſchoole,till he had inſtructed his Diſciples in all points appertaining to their calling and his kingdome. Now locke what care Chriſt at his aſcenſion had ouer his Church, the ſame muſt euery Maſter haue ouer his houſhold, and euery Miniſter ouer his Cure, when it ſhall pleaſe God to take them out of this world. A Prophet is ſent to [f] King Hezechia,to bid him put his houſe in order, for he muſt die: ſignifying hereby, that it is the dutie of a good Maſter of a family, to haue care not only for the gouernment of his houſe whileſt he is aliue, but alſo that it may be well ordered when he is dead. The ſame care muſt in like ſort be practiſed of Miniſters, according to the patterne of [t] S.Paul, I haue kept nothing backe,but haue ſhewed all the councell of God vnto you; take heed therefore,&c.for I know this, that after my departing, ſhall grieuous wolues enter in among you, not ſparing the flocke. So likewiſe [a] S. Peter, I know that the time is at hand that I muſt lay downe this my tabernacle, I will endeuour therefore alwayes,that ye may be able to haue remembrance of theſe things after my departure. If it be part of thy fidelitie that Gods people, committed vnto thy particular charge, may be well inſtructed after thy death; O how carefull oughteſt thou to be for their good in thy life? Rapite (ſaith [x] Auguſtine) quos poteſtis hortando,portando,rogando,diſputando,&c. that is, in the words of [y] Paul, Preach the word, be inſtant in ſeaſon and out of ſeaſon,improue,rebuke,exhort, with all long ſuffering and doctrine.

The ſecond circumſtance of time is while his Apoſtles beheld,&c. If any demand, why he would not haue the whole nation of the Iewes ſee him aſcend, that ſo they might aſſuredly know that he was riſen againe from the dead, and ſo beleeue in him: [z] Anſwer is made, that it is Gods good pleaſure that the myſteries of holy beleefe, whereof Chriſts aſcenſion is one, ſhould rather be learned by [a] hearing than by ſeeing,according to that of [b] Clemens Alexandrinus, faith is the ſoules eare. Chriſts owne Diſciples indeed were taught his aſcenſion by ſight, that they might the better teach other, who did not ſee, they were witneſſes of theſe things choſen before of God for the ſame purpoſe,Acts 10.39 41. Whereas therefore [c] Paul had no witneſſe of his being taken vp into the third heauen: and [d] Eliah one ſpectator only, who ſaw him as he went vp in a chariot of fierie horſes and a whirle-winde into heauen; Chriſt had many beholders of his aſcenſion, he was taken vp on high, videntibus illis, in the ſight of all his Apoſtles aſſembled together. He did aſcend, paulatim (as [e] Auguſtine ſpeakes) he was neither ſuddenly ſnatched away, nor yet ſecretly ſtolne away: but while they beheld, he was taken vp on high, as it followeth in the manner of his aſcending to be conſidered, A cloud receiued him out of their ſight.

Now whereas he cauſed a cloud to come betweene himſelfe and their ſight, it [f] ſignified vnto them that hereafter they muſt be content with that which they had ſeene, and not curiouſly to ſeeke to know further what became of him. And the ſame thing is taught vs alſo, we muſt content our ſelues with that Almightie God hath in his holy word reuealed, and inquire no further in things appertaining to God. His word is a ſufficient lanterne to our feet, and a guide to our paths; a perfect gloſſe, yea [g] glaſſe of his knowne will, in which euery true beleeuer may ſee ſo much as he need to ſearch in this life. For the like end in giuing the Law on mount Sinai, God appeared in a [h] thicke cloud; and when he did manifeſt his glory in Salomons Temple, a darke cloud [i] filled the ſame.

Haply ſome will obiect,how Chriſt elſewhere promiſed he would neuer leaue his Church, I am alway with you till the end of the world, Matth.28.20. Anſwer is made, that theſe words are to be conſtrued of the preſence of his God-head, or Spirit, not of the preſence of his manhood: and therefore two glorious Angels at the 11. verſe, chide the Diſciples hanging on his bodily preſence, Why ſtand ye gazing into heauen? It is true that Chriſt is to be found in heauen, [k] yet not with the gazing eyes of fleſh, but only with the ſpirituall eyes of faith. It may be further alledged,if the God-head be preſent on earth, then the manhood muſt of neceſſitie be preſent there, becauſe both are vnited together. Our [m] Diuines anſwer, [f] Eſay.38.1.

[t] Acts 20.27.
[a] 2 Pet.1 14.
[x] In Pſal.33. con 2.
[y] 1 Tim.4.2.
[z] Perkins expoſit Creed, art. Aſcen.
[a] Rom 10.17.
[b] Stromat. 5.
[c] 2 Cor.12.2.
[d] 2 King 11.
[e] *Ser.*178 de tempt.
[f] Caluin.in loc.
[g] Iam 1.23.
[h] Exod.19.9.
[i] 1 King.8.10
[k] Marlorat. in Matth 28.20.
[m] See Perkins vbi ſup & B Bilſo. againſt the Ieſuites, *fol.*786.787.&c anſwer that this argument followes not, Chriſts manhood ſubſiſts in that perſon which is euery where, ergo, his manhood is euery where. The reaſon is plaine, ſaith [n] Aquine, becauſe the Sonne of God doth not not only ſubſiſt in his diuine nature, but alſo by his diuine nature: whereas he doth not ſubſiſt at all by the manhood, but in the manhood only; for the Word was in the beginning, when the manhood was not; God of the ſubſtance of his Father, begotten before the worlds, man of the ſubſtance of his mother borne in the world, as Athanaſius in his Creed. And therefore Chriſt alway was, is, and euer will be with vs in his ſpirit, though abſent in his body; for a cloud on this day tooke him vp on high out of our ſight, [o] whom the heauens muſt containe till the time that all things be reſtored, which God hath ſpoken by the mouth of all his holy Prophets ſince the world began. I conclude this argument in [p] Saint Auguſtines gloſſe, Videte, aſcendentem, credite in abſentem, ſperate venientem, ſed tamen per miſericordiam occultam etiam ſentite præſentem.

[n] Contra gentes, lib. 4. cap. 49.

[o] Acts 3.21.

[p] In Pſal. 46.

The Goſpell. Marke 16.14.

Ieſus appeared vnto the eleuen as they ſate at meat, &c.

[q] Albeit religion be not tied vnto time, yet can it not be planted or exerciſed, without a due diuiding and allotting out of time for it. Euery Church therefore chuſeth vnto it ſelfe a certaine time for publike prayers, and for the preaching of the Goſpell, and for the celebration of the Sacraments. And for as much as it is kindly to conſider euery great bleſſing of God in the day wherein it was wrought: it is well ordered by the true Churches, as well [r] ancient, as moderne, to ſolemnize the memoriall of Chriſts natiuitie, circumciſio, paſſion, reſurrection, aſcenſion, and ſending of the Holy Ghoſt on certaine ſet holy dayes euery yeere, ne volumine temporum ingrata ſubrepat oblinio, ſaith [t] Auguſtine, leſt haply the maruellous workes of our gratious Lord, ſhould be forgotten in a while, which ought to be had in a perpetuall [t] remembrance.

[q] Confeſſ. Heluet. poſt. cap. 24.

[r] Vide Auguſt. epiſt. 118. cap. 1. & lib. cont. Adimant. cap 16

[t] De ciuit. Dei, lib. 10. cap. 4.

[t] Pſalm. 111. 4.

Now Chriſts aſcenſion is the conſummation of all that which hee did, and taught, whileſt he dwelt among vs, aptly termed by [u] Bernard, Fœlix clauſula totius Itineravij filij Dei, the very [x] Sabbath of all his labour in the working of our redemption. He laboured ſix daies, and then he reſted on the ſeuenth. His natiuitie was the firſt; his circumciſion was the ſecond; his preſentation in the Temple the third; his baptiſme the fourth; his paſſion the fifth; his reſurrection the ſixth; and then followed his aſcenſion, in which he was receiued into heauen, and now ſitteth at the right hand of God, as hauing finiſhed the whole worke for which he came into the world. [y] Dauid ſaith of the naturall Sunne, it reioyceth as a Giant to runne his courſe, it goeth forth from the vttermoſt parts of the heauen, and runneth about vnto the end of it againe, and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof. The which (as [z] Auguſtine and [a] other haue noted) may be well applied vnto the ſupernaturall Sunne Ieſus Chriſt the Sonne of [b] righteouſneſſe. As a Giant he did runne his courſe, there you haue his incarnation, and peregrination in the fleſh: his circuit was from the vttermoſt part of heauen vnto the end of it againe, there you haue his reſurrection and aſcenſion: nothing is hid from his heat, there you haue his ſending of the Holy Ghoſt in the forme of fierie tongues, Acts 2.3. As a Giant he ran his race, for he firſt deſcended into the loweſt parts of the earth, and then aſcended farre aboue all heauens, that he might fulfill all things, Epheſ. 4.9.10. Wherefore ſeeing Chriſts aſcenſion is the complement of all his doings, and of all his doctrines, our Church is worthie to be honoured, in making this feſtiuall one of the chiefe holidaies in the whole yeere.

[x] Ser. 2 in aſcen. Dom.

[x] Raulin. ſer. 2. in aſcenſ. Dom.

[y] Pſal. 19. 6.

[z] Lib. 2. contra lit. Petilian. cap. 32.

[a] Didac. de Yanguas, con. 1. de aſcenſ. Dom.

[b] Malac. 4. 2.

In

* In the Gospell allotted for this holy Thursday two points are most obseruable: namely,

- Christs goodnesse toward his Apostles, in his
  - Apparition, Iesus appeared vnto the eleuen.
  - Correction, and cast in their teeth, &c.
  - Commission, Goe ye into all the world, &c.
  - Consolation, These tokens shall follow, &c.
  - Ascension, So when the Lord had spoken vnto them, he was receiued into heauen, &c.
- The Apostles obedience toward Christ, and they went forth and preached euery where, &c.

Iesus appeared vnto the eleuen] He had often appeared vnto his followers after his resurrection, and now he manifested himselfe to the eleuen Apostles as they sate at meat. Wherein he did appeare like himselfe, full of meeknesse and mercie, giuing vs assurance that he will be present with vs, [c] orationi incumbentibus, at our meetings in the Temple, Quando nec recumbentibus quidem dedignatur adesse, seeing he vouchsafed his company to his Apostles in their meales at the table. It is reported, Luke 24.43. that he did eat with them also; now this comestion (as the [d] Schoolemen out of the Fathers haue disputed) was not egestatis, but potestatis. He did eat to feed our soules, and not to fill his owne body, being after his resurrection immortall and impassible. That which he did eat, was not (as Durandus imagined) turned into the substance of his body, for as [e] Gregorie the Great disputes out of S. Paul, Rom.6.9. Christ being raised from the dead, dieth no more, death hath no dominion ouer him, his glorified body needed no sustenance to preserue life. Neither was this eating (as [f] other thinke) a seeming only to take bread, and fish, and honie: but it was a true comestion, albeit assuredly there followed no digestion, or ordinary eiection. And so by consequence he did not eat to nourish his owne flesh, [g] but only to cherish our faith, in that great article concerning the truth of his resurrection. [h] Or he did in this appearing eat with his Apostles at the table familiarly, that he might hereby the better imprint in their hearts a memoriall of his sweet loue toward them. Or he did appeare to his Apostles at meat, [i] to signifie that he giueth our food in due season, and that he filleth all things liuing with his plenteousnesse, Psal.145.15.

[c] Bernard ser.1. in ascen.Dom.

[d] Vide Suarez in 3.Thom. disput.47. sect.5.

[e] Moral. lib. 14. cap 31.

[f] Apud Suarez vbi sup.

[g] Gregor. in Euang hom.29.

[h] Ardens hom. in l.c.

[i] Raulin.ser.4. in ascen.Dom.

And cast in their teeth their vnbeleefe] The Patriarks, and Prophets, and Apostles instruct vs, not only by their vertues, but also by their infirmities. As there the Disciples vnbeleefe turned in fine to the confirmation of our Creed. [k] Dubitatum est ab illis, ne dubitaretur à nobis, vndoubtedly some did doubt (the diuine prouidence sweetly so disposing) that all other might be put out of doubt. And therfore [l] Thomas in beleeuing Christs resurrection so slackly, did vs hereby more good than Mary Magdalen in beleeuing so quickly, because Christs correction of his fault occasioned further direction for our faith, [m] Infidelitas bona, quæ seculorum fidei militauit. See Gospell on S. Thomas day.

[k] Leo ser.1 de ascen Dom

[l] Gregor. vbi sup.

[m] August.ser. 156. de temp.

The world doth exalt first, and then humble, Prou.14.13. The end of the worlds mirth is heauinesse. [n] But God on the contrary first humbleth, and then exalteth. As Christ here first humbled his Apostles, in rebuking their vnbeleefe, and hardnesse of heart, and then he doth exalt them, in making the whole world their Dioceese, Euntes in mundum vniuersum prædicate, &c. He being the true [o] Samaritane, powred into their wounds oyle and wine; first [p] vinum tribulationis, and then oleum consolationis, he [q] chasteneth all such as he loueth, and he scourgeth euery sonne that he receiueth.

[n] Dieu con.1. in ascen. Dom.

[o] Luke 10.34.

[p] Raulin. vbi sup.

[q] Heb 12.6.

In Christs commission or grant to his Apostles obserue two things especially,

1. Their warrant, goe and preach; for [r] how shall they preach except they be sent? he that runneth of his owne accord, without a calling, is a false Prophet, Ier.23.21. See Gospell 1. Sund. after Easter, and 8. after Trinitie.

2. Their work, in respect of their
- Dioces where they must preach, in the whole world to euery creature.
- Doctrine what they must preach, and that is said expresly, to be the Gospell.

[r] Rom.10.15.

[f] Gregor. Beda, Ardens.

Concerning their Dioces, [f] it is not the meaning of our blessed Sauiour that his Apostles should preach vnto liueles stones, or senseles plants, or witles beasts; but he doth vnderstand by (all creatures) only men, as being an abridgement of all the creatures. Stones haue a being, but not a life; plants haue both a being and a life, but not sense: beasts haue being, life, sense, but they want vnderstanding: Angels haue being, life, sense, vnderstanding. Now man as being a little world, and as it were the compendious Index of Gods great book in folio, participates a being with stones; life, with plants; sense, with beasts; vnderstanding with Angels: and therefore fitly called euery creature, as hauing the chiefe perfections of euery creature. [t] Or man may be called all creatures, as being that excellent creature for whom all other creatures were made, Psalm.8.6. Thou makest him to haue dominion ouer the workes of thine hands, and thou hast put all things in subiection vnder his feet. Or preach the Gospell vnto all creatures, vnderstanding onely such as are capable to receiue the Gospell. So Christ [u] elsewhere said, all things that I haue heard of my Father haue I made knowne vnto you, that is, all things which are necessary for your saluation, and are fit for you to know. And Ioh.12.17. If I were lift vp from the earth, I will draw all men vnto me, that is, all which are to be drawne. So [x] Paul, Loue suffereth all things, beleeueth all things, hopeth all things; that is, all which are to be suffered, and beleeued, and hoped. [y] Or preach the Gospell vnto all creatures, that is, all nations, for so Saint Marke may be well expounded by S. Matthew, who relating this commission saith, Euntes ergo docete omnes gentes, goe and teach all Nations. Hereby repealing a former edict, Matth.10.5. Goe not into the way of the Gentiles, and into the Cities of the Samaritans enter ye not. That commission is determined; now therefore goe into all the world, and preach the Gospell vnto all creatures, to men of all countries and conditions whatsoeuer. This vnlimited extraordinarie commission is expired and hath his end; for now the successors of the Apostles, as Bishops and Pastors, haue their peculiar prouinces, and proper Parishes assigned for their cure; [z] yet so, that they may preach the Gospell of Christ in other places also where need requireth, albeit the same be not particularly committed vnto them. And therefore the Church of England [a] enioyneth euery learned Pastor sometime to preach in Chapels and Churches adioyning neere to his benefice.

[t] Aretius. Raulin.

[u] Iohn 15.15.

[x] 1 Cor.13.7.

[y] Iansen. Piscator. Marlorat.

[z] Dr. Whitgift defense of his answer to the admonit. fol. 229.

[a] Can 45.

As for their worke, [b] they must employ their time neither in secular actions of the world, nor yet in idle speculations of the Schoole: but apply themselues vnto preaching, goe yee into the world and preach. And they must preach not their owne wisdome, but the Gospell; if any man speake, let him deliuer [c] oracles of God, [d] consenting to the wholesome words of our Lord Iesus Christ, and to the doctrine which is according to godlinesse. And for as much as the Law, the Psalmes, and the Prophets, are nothing else but as it were a preface to the booke of the generation of Iesus Christ; I say for as much as Christ is the supplement of the Prophets, and end of the Law: they must especially preach vnto the world the glad tidings of saluation, making this sentence the period of all their Sermons, [e] vnto vs a childe is borne, vnto vs a Sonne is giuen: or that of Christ himselfe [f] So God loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten Sonne, that whosoeuer beleeueth in him should not perish, but haue euerlasting life. To the preaching of the [b] Ardens.

[c] 1 Pet.4.11.

[d] 1 Tim.6.3.

[e] Esay 9.6.

[f] Ioh.3.16.

the Goſpell, adminiſtration of the Sacraments is adioyned, and enioyned alſo, Matth.29.19. Goe to teach all Nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the Holy Ghoſt. The which our Euangeliſt implieth here, when he ſaith, he that beleeueth and is baptized ſhall be ſaued, but he that beleeueth not ſhall be damned. Concerning Baptiſmes neceſſitie, ſee Goſpell on Trinity Sunday.

And theſe tokens ſhall follow them that beleeue] Theſe words are to be digeſted with a little ſalt, to be conſtrued with a great deale of caution, otherwiſe the ſimple ſoule will obiect, how ſhall I know that I beleeue, ſeeing I worke no miracles? If we take them (as many learned and ancient [g] Diuines haue done) myſtically, then euery true beleeuer in Chriſts name caſteth out of his heart deuils, that is, euils: for euery foule ſinne is a foule fiend to man; and then his ſoule being ſound, his mouth [h] ex abundantia cordis, out of the hearts abundance, ſpeakes with new tongues. His communication heretofore was impious toward God, and vncharitable toward his neighbour, his [i] throat an open ſepulchre, his tongue deceiuing, his lips [k] flattering, his mouth full of curſing and bitterneſſe. But now hauing put on the new man, he ſpeakes in a new language words of truth and ſoberneſſe, Acts 26.25. words of meekeneſſe and courteſie, Titus 3.2. words agreeable to the wholſome words of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, and to the doctrine which is according to godlineſſe, 1 Tim.6.3. After this compunction in his heart, and confeſſion of his mouth, if any venomous temptation be ſuggeſted, he ſhall haue power to driue away ſerpents, and if he drink any deadly thing, it ſhall not hurt him, although he taſte of it a little, yet he ſhall not in any caſe ſwallow it downe to his vtter deſtruction. And laſtly, he ſhall impoſe his hands vpon the ſicke, and they ſhall recouer, that is, he ſhall out of his loue beare the [l] infirmities of his weake brethren, and [m] hide a multitude of their ſinnes, his exhortation and doctrine (the Lord working with them, as it is in the laſt words of our text) ſhall heale the ſicke, yea raiſe the very dead in ſinne to newneſſe of life.

If we take Chriſts promiſe (theſe ſignes ſhall follow them that beleeue) literally, then it muſt of neceſſitie be conſtrued with a few limitations and exceptions. As firſt, in reſpect of the time, [n] miracles are not neceſſarie for a Church alreadie planted, but onely for a Church in planting. So Paul, 1 Cor. 14. 22. Strange tongues are for a ſigne not to them that beleeue, but to them that beleeue not: a young plant, muſt often be watered at the firſt ſetting; but after it is once throughly rooted in the ground, it will eaſily ſprout and ſpring without irrigation; euen ſo the Church primitiue was a while watered by ſignes and tokens in thoſe who did beleeue: but being now perfitly grounded in Chriſt, it may not ſay, thy wonders, O Lord, but thy [o] word, O Lord, is a lanterne vnto my feet, and a guide to my paths.

The ſecond limitation is in reſpect of the perſons, [p] all beleeuers in the primitiue time were not workers of wonders, but only ſome few, whereof euery one had a ſeuerall gift, as S. Paul teacheth expreſly, 1 Cor.12.30. Are all doers of miracles? haue all the gift of healing? doe all ſpeake with tongues? it is ſaid indefinitely (them that beleeue) becauſe theſe tokens were wrought at the firſt preaching of the Goſpell vnto euery creature for the common good of ſuch as beleeue; but euery true beleeuer was not endued with a gift actually to worke theſe ſignes himſelfe. Iohn the Baptiſt, albeit he was [q] more than a Prophet, yet he did no miracle, Ioh.10 41. He had as [r] one diſtinguiſheth vpon this text, poteſtatem faciendi miracula, ſed non actum, a power to haue done many wonders, if need had beene, but he did act none. The meaning then of theſe comfortable words vttered by Chriſt vnto his Apoſtles is plaine; though I goe now to my Father, and ſo leaue you, yet in executing your miniſterie, ye ſhall haue power to worke ſignes and tokens, your preaching of my Goſpell vnto the world ſhall euery where be confirmed with miracles. I haue done many ſtrange things among you, yet [ſ] I ſay vnto you, verily, verily, he that beleeueth in me, the workes that I doe he ſhall doe alſo, yea greater than theſe ſhall he doe. And he did performe ſo much as he did promiſe, [g] Gregor hom. 29 in Euangel. Bernard ſer. 1. in Aſcen Dom. Ardens hom. in loc. Ianſen. concord. cap 149.

[h] Matth.12.34
[i] Pſal.14.3,6.
[k] Pſal.12.2.
[l] Rom.14.1.
[m] Iames 5.20.
[n] Gregor. Ardens. Ianſen. vbi ſup. Idem Auguſt. de vtilitate credendi cont. Manichæos cap. 16.
[o] Pſal.119.105
[p] Aretius in loc. & Marlorat. in Matth.28.19.
[q] Matth 11 9.
[r] Maldonat.
[ſ] Ioh.14.12.

promise, for we reade that his Apostles in his name did cast out deuills, Acts 16.18. and spake with new tongues, Acts 2.4 and driue away serpents, as Paul, Act.28.5. shooke off a viper from his hand into the fire and felt no harme: and heale the sicke, as Peter, Acts 9 34. There was a certaine man at Lydda, named Æneas, which had kept his bed eight yeeres, and was sicke of the palsie, to whom Peter said, Æneas, Iesus Christ maketh thee whole; arise, and make vp thy bed, and he arose immediatly. Yea they did greater signes in Christs name than Christ himselfe, greater in [t] number, for whereas Christ wrought all his workes either about the borders, or else within the bounds of Iudea; his Apostles preached vnto all the world, and had the word confirmed euery where with miracles. [u] Other thinke that they did greater works in nature, maius est enim vt sanet vmbra, quàm simbria, saith [x] Augustine; it was a greater miracle, that the very shadow of Saint Peter as he walked in the street should heale many sicke, Acts 5.15. than that the hemme of Christs vesture should heale one woman, who had an issue of bloud, Matth.9.22. But here you must obserue, [y] that Christ said not, he that beleeueth in me shall doe greater workes than I can, or than I will doe; but only greater than these which I haue done. Hereby signifying, that they should not doe greater works out of their owne power, but only through his helpe. Hoc (saith Euthymius) est demonstratio potentiæ eius qui signa dedit, non eius qui signa edit. And Augustin. tract.71. in Ioan. Maiora quàm ipse fecit dicit eos esse facturos, sed in eis, vel per eos se faciente, non ipsis tanquam ex seipsis. He saith [z] elsewhere, without me can yee do nothing, but in my name they shall cast out deuils, and speake with new tongues, &c. [a] The seruant is not greater than his Lord, nor the Disciple greater than his Master, nor man greater than his Maker. In the beginning he made [b] the world without them, and he made [c] them also without them, and in vouchsafing to be man he made himselfe without them, [d] ipse sine ipsis fecit hunc mundum, ipse sine ipsis fecit eos, ipse sine ipsis fecit & seipsum: but alas what haue they without him, excepting sinne. Christ then in saying (he that beleeueth in me shall doe greater works than I doe) [e] meaneth vndoubtedly this, if your heart be so troubled that yee cannot now beleeue that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: yet when I am gone to the Father, and shall in his kingdome sit at his right hand, yee shall euidently see that I am God, and that [f] I and my Father are one; for I will in my corporall absence from you, doe greater works in you, and by you, than euer I did hitherto before you. So himselfe doth interpret himselfe in the words immediatly following, whatsoeuer yee aske in my name, that will I doe, that the Father may be glorified in the Sonne: and againe, if yee shall aske any thing in my name, I will doe it The which is agreeable to the tenour of our Text, verse 17. In my name they shall cast out deuils, &c. and vers.20. The Lord wrought with them, and confirmed the word with miracles following.

He was receiued into heauen] [g] S. Augustine, [h] Gregorie the Great, and [i] other Diuines obserue, that the foure beasts mentioned Ezechiel 1. and Apocalyps 4 mystically represent the foure chiefe actions of Christ in his working of our redemption. The first beast had a face like a Man, the second like a Bullocke, the third like a Lion, the fourth like a flying Eagle. So Christ in his incarnation was found as a Man, in his passion as a sacrificed Bullocke, in his resurrection like a Lion, in his ascension as a flying [k] Eagle, mounting aboue the clouds, and sitting at the right hand of God in the highest heauens. And therefore S. Marke relating here the glorious ascension of Christ, adds to the name Iesus, the title Dominus: so when the Lord had spoken vnto them, he was receiued into heauen, [l] hereby shewing that he was Lord of all things, able to command the clouds in heauen, as well as the clods on earth. He manifested himselfe to be Lord of the seas, in [m] walking on the water without a ship, and in [n] calming the stormie waues when he was in a ship. He manifested himselfe to be Lord of the land, in commanding the graue to giue forth her prisoner [o] Lazarus, which had beene dead foure dayes. He manifested himselfe to be commander of hell, in casting out [p] deuils, and when hee did ouercome Sathan in his temptations, and [q] take from him all his armour wherein [t] Aretius. Arboreus in Ioan.14.

[u] Augustin. Beda, Rupert. in Ioan.14.
[x] Tract.71.& 72.in Ioan.
[y] Theophylact. Euthym. Maldonat.in Ioan.14
[z] Iohn 15.5.
[a] Matth.10.24
[b] Iohn 1.3. Heb.1.2.
[c] Psal 100.3.
[d] Augustin. tract.72.in Ioan.
[e] Vide Marlorat.& Maldonat in Ioan.14.
[f] Ioh.10.30.
[g] Ser.157.de temp.
[h] Hom.4.in Ezechiel.
[i] Rupert. Aretius. Meyer.in Apocalyp.4.
[k] Vide Didac. de Yanguas con.2. in Ascen. Dom.
[l] Ferus ser 2 in Ascen.Dom.& Aretius in Act.1
[m] Matth 14.25
[n] Matth 8.26.
[o] Ioh 11.44.
[p] Matth 8.32.
[q] Luke 11.22.

wherein he truſted, and diuided his ſpoiles, openly triumphing ouer him and his, on the Croſſe, Coloſſ.2.15. And now to ſhew that he was Lord of heauen, and [r] equall with God, he did aſcend [f] farre aboue all heauens, and is (ſaith our text) on the right hand of God. To ſit (as Ardens vpon the place pithily) quieſcentis, regnantis, & iudicantis eſt, ergo bene Redemptor noſter poſt paſſionem aſcenſionem q. ſuam ſedere deſcribitur; quia poſt laborem requieſcit, poſt prælium regnat, & poſtquam iudicatus eſt iudicat.

[r] Philip 2. 6.
[f] Epheſ 4.10.

Is Chriſt aſcended on high? Then let vs [t] ſeeke thoſe things which are aboue, where Chriſt ſitteth at the right hand of God. Albeit our bodies be tied with the fetters of fleſh on earth, yet let our ſoules aſcend with the wings of faith into heauen, euen to the place from whence commeth all our helpe and hope. Saluator noſter aſcendit in cœlum, non ergo turbemur in terra: ibi ſit mens, & hic erit requies, as [u] Auguſtine ſweetly. The way to make a ladder vp to heauen (as the ſame Father teacheth in his third Sermon preached on this day) is to trample ſinne vnder our feet, de vitys noſtris ſcalam nobis facimus, ſi vitia calcamus; tread pride vnder thy feet, and thou ſhalt inſtantly paſſe one ſtep, [x] he that humbleth himſelfe ſhall be exalted; tread couetouſneſſe vnder thy feet, and it will proue another ſtep, [y] how hard is it for them who truſt in riches to enter into the kingdome of God? tread maliciouſneſſe vnder thy feet, and thou ſhalt approach as yet neerer vnto heauen, for [z] God is loue, and he that dwelleth in loue dwelleth in God, and God in him.

[t] Coloſſ.3.1. See Auguſt. ſer. 174. de temp. & Greg hom.29. in Euang.
[u] Ser.175. de temp.
[x] Luke 18.14.
[y] Matth.10.24
[z] 1 Ioh 4.6.

Grant we beſeech thee, Almighty God, that like as we doe beleeue thine onely begotten Sonne our Lord to haue aſcended into the heauen: ſo we may alſo in heart and minde thither aſcend, and with him continually dwell. Amen.

The Epiſtle. Acts 10.34.

Then Peter opened his mouth, &c.

THe former part of this text is expounded on Eaſter Munday, the contents of the latter on Whitſunday.

The Goſpell. Iohn 3.16.

So God loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten Sonne, that whoſoeuer beleeueth in him ſhould not periſh but haue euerlaſting life, &c.

IT is reported of a noble Lantgraue, [a] Fredericke by name, that the very gingling of his ſpurre was a terrour to his foes. And ſo the very repeating of this ſweet text, is able to make Satan our greateſt enemie to quake, for it is (as [b] one calleth it) a common armorie for the Chriſtian, as it were the Tower of [c] Dauid, a thouſand ſhields hang therein, and all the targets of the ſtrong men. Apply this one ſentence to thy ſoule, and thou ſhalt in thy moſt grieuous agonie, [d] quench all the fierie darts of the deuill.

[a] Manlius loc. com tit. de calamitat.
[b] Martin. Molleri in loc.
[c] Cant. 4.4.
[d] Epheſ 6.16.

It brancheth it ſelfe into three conſiderations eſpecially;
- Who, God loued.
- What, the world.
- How, ſo that he gaue his onely begotten Sonne, &c.

Ambitious men in the Court, loſe their time, libertie, their eſtate, yea ſometime with Iſcariot they ſell vnder hand their owne ſoule, their owne Sauiour, to gaine the Princes reſpect, or elſe ſome fauour of his chiefe Fauourite. But behold a greater than Salomon in all his royaltie, higher than the higheſt, immortall, almightie, without beginning or end, loued vs, and [e] his loue muſt of neceſſitie be greater than others loue, for that himſelfe is the greateſt of all.

[e] Dietz Cont. 1. in loc.

God

God loued, and herein he neither expected nor yet reſpected any correſpondence of loue, for (ſaith our text) he loued the world. That he ſhould loue the glorious Angels is not ſtrange, becauſe they be his [f] meſſengers and miniſters, executing his [g] pleaſure. That he ſhould loue good men is not ſtrange, becauſe they loue him, O thou whom my ſoule loueth, Cant.1.6. That he ſhould loue both his witleſſe and his ſenſeleſſe creatures is not ſtrange, becauſe [h] fire and haile, ſnow and vapours, winde and ſtorme fulfill his word. [i] But herein appeares the greatneſſe of his loue, that he loued the world, mundum immundum, the worthleſſe world [k] lying in wickednesse, caſting out its malice (ſaith the [l] Prophet) as the fountaine caſteth out her waters. A world (as [m] Auguſtine deſcribeth) impuris voluptatibus illecebroſus, nefandis crudelitatibus furioſus, erroribus & terroribus inimicus. A bad world, a mad world, a deceiuing world, a blinde world that knew him not, Ioh.1.10. A bloudy world, that [n] hated him and all his. Herein God ſetteth out his loue toward vs for that he reconciled vs to himſelfe, euen while we were his enemies, Rom.5.10. he loued [o] vs firſt, euen before we would, yea before we could loue him. [p] He that is moſt high and moſt holy, debtor vnto no man, and wanting nothing, loued vs which are but [q] duſt and aſhes, [r] conceiued in ſinne, and brought forth in iniquitie, [ſ] corrupt in our conuerſation, and abominable, doing no good, and infected with euery kinde of euill, euen from the ſole of the foot vnto the head, there was in vs nothing whole, but wounds and ſwelling, and ſores full of putrifaction, Eſay 1.6.

But how did he loue? ſo loued, that is, ſo fatherly, ſo freely, ſo fully, that hee gaue. He did not ſell, or let, or lend: but giue. [t] Not an Angell, or a Prophet, or any ſeruant: but a ſonne. And that not anothers, but his: and his ſonne not adoptiue, but naturall, his begotten ſonne: and further, not one among many, but his onely begotten ſonne. If a man had 32. ſonnes as [u] Babo, or ſeuentie ſonnes as Gideon, Iudg.8.30, Or 80. ſonnes as Sciburus, or if a man had as many ſonnes as a woman in Paris, called [x] Yolond Baillie, from whoſe body while ſhe liued (as we read) iſſued 295. children; yet he would hardly part with any to his friend, much leſſe to his foe. When the Patriarke Iacob had conceiued that Ioſeph his ſonne was deuoured of ſome wilde beaſt, [y] he rent his clothes, and put ſackcloth about his loines, and ſorrowed for him a long ſeaſon. And when his other ſonnes and his daughters roſe vp to comfort him, he would not be comforted, but ſaid, I will ſurely go downe into the graue vnto my ſonne mourning. How bitterly did Dauid lament the death of a rebellious ſonne, [z] O my ſonne Abſalon, my ſonne, my ſonne Abſalon: would God I had died for thee, O Abſalon, my ſonne, my ſonne! How did an harlot pitie the fruit of her wombe before king Salomon, 1 Kings 3. O my Lord, giue her the liuing childe, and ſlay him not. Almightie God then manifeſted the riches of his mercy toward vs, in giuing his only ſonne, not only to be borne, but alſo to die for vs, and that vpon the Croſſe moſt ignominiouſly. So Chriſt in the words immediatly going before this our preſent text, as Moſes lift vp the Serpent in the wilderneſſe, ſo muſt the ſonne of man be lift vp, probatio dilectionis exhibitio operis, his exceeding great gift is a demonſtration of his exceeding great loue. Thus in briefe you ſee the fact, let vs examine now the fruit, for what end God gaue his onely begotten ſonne.

That whoſoeuer beleeueth in him] In which obſerue [a] two things eſpecially:

The { Felicitie gained by this gift, { A deliuerance from damnation, he ſhall not periſh. / A poſſeſſion of ſaluation, he ſhall haue life euerlaſting.
Facilitie how to get it, whoſoeuer beleeueth, Almightie God requires not at thy hands an exact obſeruation of his law, but only that thou beleeue in his ſonne whom he gaue to die for thy ſinnes, and to riſe againe for thy iuſtification. He did abundantly ſatisfie the law for thee, making thy ſinnes his ſinnes; and on the contrary, making his righteouſneſſe, thy righteouſneſſe, [b] couering all thine iniquities, and [c] healing all thine infirmities.

This

[f] Heb.1.7.
[g] Pſalm.103. 20,21.
[h] Pſal.148.8.
[i] Aretius. Culman. Mollerus in loc.
[k] 1 Ioh.5.19.
[l] Ier.6.7.
[m] De ciuit. Dei, lib.1.cap.17.
[n] Matth.10.22 Iohn 15.19.
[o] 1 Iohn 4.19.
[p] Ianſen. concord. cap.10 & Kilius in loc.
[q] Gen.18.27.
[r] Pſalm.51.5.
[ſ] Pſalm.14.2.
[t] See Theophylact. Aretius. Ianſen. in loc.
[u] Kilius in loc.
[x] Reſtitut. of decayed intelligence, pag.3. and it is written on her tombe in Saint Innocent Churchyard Paris.
[y] Gen.37.34.
[z] 2 Sam.18.33
[a] Aretius. Ianſen.
[b] 1 Ioh.2.2.
[c] Pſalm.103.3.

This one ſentence doth afford many profitable leſſons appertaining to doctrine and exhortation. 1. It ſheweth our dignitie, though a man be duſt and dung, fading like graſſe, fickle like glaſſe, like a thing of nought, Pſalm. 144 4. yet God ſo much honoured him, as that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, to bee liſt vp, as Moſes liſt vp the Serpent in the wilderneſſe; that is, to be crucified for him. [d] O Lord, what is man that thou haſt ſuch reſpect vnto him; or the ſonne of man that thou ſo regardeſt him?

[d] Pſal. 8 4. & 144. 3.

2. It doth adminiſter comfort in temptation; if the deuill obiect againſt thy ſinne Gods ſeuere iuſtice, thou maiſt anſwer that God is alſo [e] rich in mercy, [f] louing vs in [g] his beſt beloued, and that with an euerlaſting loue, Ierem. 31. 3. If thy cunning aduerſary make reply, that theſe ſweet texts only concerne the iuſt and godly, thou haſt here Chriſt on thy ſide, ſaying, God loued the world, reconciling ſinners his enemies vnto himſelfe by the death of his Sonne, Rom. 5. 10.

[e] Epheſ 2. 4.
[f] Iohn 16. 27.
[g] Epheſ. 1. 5.

3. It proues euidently that Chriſt is very God of very God, againſt [h] Arrius, as being not only Gods Sonne, but his only begotten, for a ſonne begotten, is a naturall and a true ſonne.

[h] Cyrillus. Theophylact.

4. It confutes the [i] Nouatian hereſie, denying repentance to ſuch as after Baptiſme fall into grieuous ſinnes. If we muſt be ſo mercifull as our Father in heauen is mercifull, how ſhall we denie repentance to thoſe whom God ſo loued as that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whoſoeuer beleeueth in him, ſhould not periſh, but haue euerlaſting life.

[i] Ambroſ de pœnit lib. 1. cap. 10.

5. This confoundeth all [k] merit-mongers aſcribing iuſtification and ſaluation vnto their owne good workes. He that beleeues ſhall not periſh, but haue euerlaſting life. We are ſaued by grace [l] through faith, apprehending and applying the mercies of God the Father, and the merits of Chriſt his Sonne. He that beleeueth in him ſhall not be condemned, but he that beleeueth not is already condemned, as it followeth in our text. [m] Quare ſaluator dictus eſt mundi, niſi vt ſaluet mundum, non vt iudicet mundum, ſaluari non vis ab ipſo, ex te ipſo iudicaberis.

[k] Melanct. Culman. Marlorat.
[l] Epheſ. 2. 8.
[m] Auguſt. tract. 12. in Ioan.

As for exhortation, [n] if God ſo loued vs, let vs alſo loue one another: if he [o] ſpared not his owne and only Sonne, but gaue him for vs: [p] it is meet that we ſhould expend our ſubſtance for the good of his Church and children in need. It is an old prouerbe, loue me, loue my friend. Let vs then manifeſt our loue to Chriſt in louing his members, and in cheriſhing ſuch as mourne in Sion. His firſt comming (as it followeth in our text) was not to condemne, but ſaue the world. He came to call [q] ſinners vnto repentance, to ſeeke the [r] loſt ſheepe, to binde vp the [ſ] broken hearted, to [t] refreſh the weary, to giue reſt vnto the laden ſoule. His ſecond comming ſhall be to iudge the world, and then there ſhall be [u] iudgement mercileſſe to him that ſhewed no mercy, but vnto thoſe which haue beene mercifull, as his Father in heauen is mercifull, he ſhall ſay, come ye bleſſed, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you from the foundations of the world, for I was hungrie, and ye gaue me meat: I thirſted, and ye gaue me drinke, &c.

[n] 1 Ioh. 4. 11.
[o] Rom 8. 32.
[p] Euthym. in loc.
[q] Matth. 9. 13.
[r] Luke 15 6.
[ſ] Eſay 61. 1.
[t] Matth 11. 28
[u] Iames 2. 13.

If any ſhall aske why this text is allotted for a Whitſun holiday, which is a memoriall of the Goſpell, and of Chriſts ſending downe the Holy Ghoſt; [x] anſwer may be that the ſpirit of truth teacheth vs [y] all things according to Chriſts owne doctrine preached in the world, the ſumme whereof is this one little line, ſo God loued the world, &c.

[x] Martin. Moſerus in loc
[y] 1 Iohn 2 27.

The Epiſtle. Acts 8. 14. vnto v. 18

When the Apoſtles which were at Hieruſalem, had heard ſay that Samaria had receiued the word of God, they ſent vnto them Peter and Iohn, &c.

THe bleſſed Apoſtles inioyned by Chriſt at his laſt appearing to [z] goe into the whole world, and to teach [a] all nations, hearing now that Samaria had receiued receiued the Word of God, they sent vnto them Peter and Iohn, to build vp the Churches of Samaria, whose foundation had beene laid afore by Philip.

[z] Mark. 16. 15.
[a] Matth 28. 19

In this embassage two points are more chiefly regardable, namely, the { Vigilant care of the whole Colledge in sending, vers. 14. / Diligent faithfulnesse of Peter and Iohn, that were sent, executing their charge by { Prayer, verse 15. / Imposition of hands, verse 17.

When the Apostles of Hierusalem heard] They shew their solicitous care for the Churches in [b] hearkning after their good, and in [c] affording their helping hand of their own accord readily when any fit occasion was offered. For we read not here that the brethren of Samaria wrote to the Colledge to send them an Apostle, yet they did send two, and those two which of all their companie were of the most [d] eminent note, Peter and Iohn. Euery Bishop (as more properly succeeding Apostles in office) is taught from hence to be [e] non tam celer ad cathedram, quàm vigil ad curam, If any congregation in his Dioceese need confirmation, he must either send those Suffragans which are fit like to Peter and Iohn, or else come himselfe to pray for them, and to lay his hands on them.

[f] Protestant Diuines vrge this example, to proue that S. Peter was not head of the Apostles, or absolute soueraigne, because the text is plaine, Ioh. 13. 16. the messenger is not greater than he that sent him. I know the foure great Cardinals of Rome, [g] Turrecremata, [h] Caietan, [i] Baronius, [k] Bellarmine, (which vpon the point, are the foure chiefe supporters of S. Peters chaire of estate) haue found out many shifts how to decline the heauy blow of this weightie reason, and [b] they who gather sticks vnder these Cardinals hedge, report and repeat their distinctions as vnanswerable. But examine them, and you shall instantly see, that they be like Hercules tragicall club, in shew massie, but in substance nothing else but shreds and straw (as the Poet speakes) an affrighting vanitie.

To their first example, God the Sonne is sent into the world by God the Father, and yet in the Trinitie none is greater or lesse than another: [m] Answer is made, that Christ was sent into the world as he was in the forme of a seruant, according to that of Paul, Galat. 4 4. God sent forth his Sonne made of a woman; and Christ as man acknowledgeth himselfe to be lesse than his Father, Iohn 14. 18. my Father is greater than I: but Christ (if you consider him in the forme of [n] God) [o] filled heauen and earth, and so he may be said to send himselfe, as [p] elsewhere, to giue himselfe for vs. See S. Augustin. vbi sup. in margin. Lombard. sent. lib. 1. dist. 15. Thomas part. 1. quæst. 43. art. 8.

Touching that eternall sending of the Holy Spirit from the Father and the Sonne: [q] we say, that the mysteries of the sacred Trinitie being ineffable, the words are almost all borrowed that are vsed to shew the distinct operations of the same. [r] S. Augustine speaking of the generation of the Sonne, and proceeding of the Holy Ghost, ingenuously confessed his want of wit and words, Inter illam generationem, & hanc processionem distinguere nescio, non valeo, non sufficio: quia & illa & ista est ineffabilis. But here the Apostles in proper phrase of speaking, sent Peter and Iohn, ergo they were subiect to their authoritie.

Thirdly, whereas they say, that there is a twofold sending, one which is amoris, and another which is imperij: for an equall or an inferiour, may perswade his friend to doe his businesse for him, a bodie politike may send their head to the Parliament, and a Common-weale their Prince to the warres: Our answer is ready, that an inferiour intreating his friend, cannot truly say that he sent his peere, much lesse his superiour, neither can a corporation that is vnder a soueraigne head (such as the Church of Rome would haue Peter to be) choose him to be their foot to goe for them, he may peraduenture goe by his owne consent or desire, but he cannot be sent; neither can a Common-weale thrust their absolute King into the danger of warre, [t] Sponte hoc ille faciendum iudicat, sed ab illis ad bellum gerendum extrudi non potest. Lastly, [s] we say that Peter here was sent not

[b] Aretius.
[c] Calvin.
[d] Galat. 2. 6. 9.
[e] Bernard.
[f] B. Iewel answer to Harding art suprem. diuis. 20 Caluin. Institu. lib. 4 cap. 6 §. 7. Dr. Sutlif. de Rō. Pont. lib. 2. cap. 1 Aretius. Beza. Marlorat. in loc.
[g] Lib 2. sum. cap 14.
[h] In loc.
[i] Annal. tom 1. ad ann 35. fol. 253.
[k] De Rom Pont. lib. 1. cap. 16. §. ad illud autem
[l] Rhemist & Lorin. in loc.
[m] Augustin. de Trinit. lib 2. cap. 5.
[n] Philip. 2. 8.
[o] Ier 23. 24.
[p] Ephes 5. 2.
[q] Dr. Fulke in loc.
[r] Contra Maximinum, lib 3. cap. 14.
[s] Dr. Sutlif. vbi sup.
[t] Aretius. Caluin.

not as a Prince, but as a peere, for Iohn was ioyned with him in the mission and commission, as a [u] copertner in his office: so the text, they sent Peter and Iohn. And Peter being sent into Samaria by his brethren [x] repined not as holding himselfe their gouernour, but went his way as their messenger; and [y] elsewhere being questioned by the Apostles for going to Cornelius, and eating with vncircumcised heathens, he forthwith excused himselfe and came to his answer.

Fourthly, whereas they be driuen here to confesse, that the Colledge of Apostles comprising Peter, was greater than Peter their head alone: [z] We say (this being granted) that Peters Popedome was not the soueraigne power of Christ, neither was Peter head of the Apostles as Christs Vicar, for the whole Church comprising Christ the head thereof is not of greater authoritie than Christ himselfe. Againe, it is a receiued opinion among moderne Iesuited Papists, [a] that the Church is nothing else but the Pope; so that the successor of Peter, is now farre greater than Peter himselfe, for he will be tied neither to Councell, nor Canon, nor custome, more than himselfe liketh.

Who when they were come downe, prayed for them, that they might receiue the Holy Ghost] It is probable, that Peter and Iohn did preach as well as pray, [b] but S. Luke reporteth only, what new thing hapned to Samaria by their comming, namely, the receiuing of the Holy Ghost, through imposition of hands and prayer. Here [c] S. Augustine, [d] Lombard and [e] other obserue, that Christ is God in giuing the Holy Spirit, quantus Deus est qui dat Deum. His Apostles did not giue the Holy Ghost at Samaria, they prayed for them that they might receiue the Holy Ghost, and they laid their hands on them: and they receiued the Holy Ghost. Euery good gift is from aboue; Samaria then had extraordinarie gifts of the Spirit, by Peter and Iohn, not from Peter and Iohn; and Simon Magus insinuates so much in his offer of money to them, at the 19. verse, giue me this power, that on whomsoeuer I lay the hands, he may receiue the Holy Ghost. He did not say, that I might giue; but only that he may receiue. Haply some will obiect, that Paul gaue the Spirit to the Galathians, as it may seeme when he saith, [f] he that ministreth vnto you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doth he it through the workes of the Law, or by the hearing of faith preached? Our answer may be gathered out of the text, [g] that he gaue not the Spirit by his proper power, but only that they receiued the Spirit through his preaching and ministry.

They were baptized only in the Name of Christ Iesus] You must here referre the word [h] only to baptized, and not to the clause following, in the name of Christ Iesus. It is not the meaning of Saint Luke, that they were baptized in the name of God the Sonne only: for it is Christs owne Canon, Matth. 28. 29. that all the three persons of the blessed Trinitie must expresly be named in Baptisme, Goe teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the Holy Ghost. See Bellarm. de Baptismo. lib. 1. cap. 3. Suarez in Thom 3. part. tom. 3. disput 21. Caluin & Lorin. in Act. 2. 38. So that to be baptized in the name of Iesus Christ, in this and other like places of this booke, [i] is to baptized in the faith of Iesus Christ, or in the power of Iesus Christ, or according to the prescript of Iesus Christ. Here then a question is moued, how the faithfull in Samaria were baptized, and yet the holy Ghost was come on none of them. He that is baptized, must acknowledge that Christ is the Lord, and no man (as [k] Paul telleth vs) can say that Iesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost. All that are [l] Baptized into Christ haue put on Christ, and are [m] buried with him in his death, that like as Christ was raised vp from the dead by the glory of the Father, so they likewise should walke in newnesse of life, [n] Answer is made, that the Samaritans had already receiued inuisible graces of the sanctifying Spirit, which are common vnto all such as truly beleeue: but as yet Samaria had not any singular and extraordinarie miraculous gifts, as in Christs name to cast out deuils, and to speake with new tongues, and to heale the sicke, &c. the which in the Primitiue time was conferred vpon certaine persons, acording to the will of the Spirit, for the confirmation of the Gospell. It is apparant, that the Apostles had the sanctifying and illuminating Spirit for their [u] Sibi socium, vt Arator lib. 1. Carm. in Act.

[x] B Iewel vbi sup.
[y] Act. 11 3.
[z] Dr. Fulke in loc.
[a] See B Bilson against the Iesuits, part 3. fol. 367.
[b] Caluin in loc.
[c] De Trinit. lib. 15. cap : 6
[d] Lib. 1 sent. dist 14. cap hic quæritur.
[e] Lorin.
[f] Galat. 3. 5.
[g] Lombard vbi sup. cap. sed huic videtur. Idem August. Ambros. Aquin in Gal. 3.
[h] Lyran & Lorin. in loc.
[i] Bellarm. de baptismo lib. 1. cap. 2.
[k] 1. Cor 12 3.
[l] Gal. 3. 17.
[m] Rom. 6. 4.
[n] Caluin instit. lib. 4. cap 19. § 8. Idem Aretius. Iustus Ionas. Marlorat. Lorin. in loc.

guide from the very beginning of their preaching, Matth. 10.20. It is not ye that speake, but the spirit of your Father which speaketh in you. Yet we reade, Iohn 7.38. that the Holy Ghost was not yet giuen, because Iesus was not yet glorified. For they receiued not those miraculous gifts of healing, and speaking with strange tongues, according to the comfortable promises of Christ at his [o] farwell, vntill the Holy Ghost on the feast of Pentecost, came downe to them, appearing in clouen and fiery tongues, Acts 2.

[o] Mark. 16. 17.

[p] Other thinke that the Churches of Samaria by these prayers and imposition of hands, receiued a greater measure of sanctification, and so they cite this text, to proue confirmation after baptisme. As also that Bishops only must administer this confirmation; and hereupon we call it in our Country, Bishopping. Philip, as a Deacon, did his part in baptizing and in preaching the word, but imposition of hands appertaining not to his order and office. See Chrysost. in loc Cyprian. Epist. 73. ad Iubaian. August. de Trinit. lib. 15. cap. 26. Ambros. & Haymo. in Hebr. 6. 2. Thom. 3 part quæst. 72. art. 11. Hooker vbi sup. in marg. Dr. Hakewill tract. of confirmation, cap. 3

[p] Gloss inter lin. & ordinar. Beda. Hugo. Caietan. in loc. Hooker Eccles. polit li. 5 § 66. and Dr Fulke disallowing it not in Act 8. and his testimonie is cited sum. conference, pag. 32.

The Gospell. Iohn 10.1.

Verily, verily, I say vnto you, he that entreth not in by the doore into the sheepfold, but climbeth vp some other way, the same is a theefe and a murtherer, &c.

THE text following in this Chapter (I am the good shepherd) appointed for the Gospell, 2. Sund. after Easter, is both an [q] explication, and an application of this our present parable. Thither I send the courteous Reader, and so my loue be with him in the Lord, to whom only wise, be glory through Iesus Christ euermore. Amen.

[q] Aretius. Bullinger. Piscator in Ioan. 10. Idem Pontan. con. ser. 3. Pentecost. See S. August. tract. 45. 46. 47. in Ioan.

SAINT

SAINT IONH
BAPTISTS DAY.

The Epistle. Esay 40.1. Vnto ℣ 12

Be of good cheere, my people; O yee Prophets, comfort my people, saith your God, &c.

THE Sermons of Isaiah are for the greater part so Gospell-like, that (as [a] Hierome notes) he seemes to be rather an Euangelist, or Apostle, than a Prophet: for he speakes of Christs [b] conception, as if he had beene taught by the glorious Angell, who brought the first annunciation of it vnto the blessed Virgin his mother: of Christ [c] birth, as if with old Simeon he had lulled him in his armes: of Christs death [d] and passion, as if with the beloued Disciple Iohn he had stood by the Crosse when he was crucified: of Christs [e] resurrection, as if with all the faithfull Apostles he had beene Present vpon mount Oliuet, where the Lord vsed a cloud, as his heauenly Chariot, to conuey him out of the world to his Father.

The text now read is a propheſie concerning the comming of Christ in the [f] flesh, and the comming of Christ in the flesh is the [g] consolation of Israel, and comfort of Hierusalem; and this comfort, the [h] God of all comfort, will haue proclaimed vnto Hierusalems heart, by the mouth of all his Preachers, as namely, his Prophets, his Apostles, his Prodromus or Harbinger, Iohn the Baptist a [i] midling betweene the Prophets and Apostles.

1. By the Prophets, Comfort my people, O ye Prophets, comfort my people, &c. verse 1, 2,

2. By Iohn the Baptist, A voyce cried in the wilderneſſe, prepare the way of the Lord, &c. verſ. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8.

3. By the Apostles, Goe vp into the high hill (O Sion) thou that bringeſt good tidings, &c. verſ 9, 10, 11.

Comfort my people] In this commission obserue first Gods bountie, then his Prophets dutie. You may behold the riches of Gods mercy toward his afflicted people, 1. In raising vp Prophets vnto them in their captiuitie, when as otherwise they might haue complained with the Psalmist, [k] O God, wherefore art thou absent from vs so long, and why is thy wrath so kindled against the sheepe of thy pasture? we see not our tokens, there is not one Prophet more, no not one is there among vs that vnderstandeth any more.

2. [l] For that he sent not one or two, but many: the number is plurall, comfort ye, speake ye, [m] the Lord giuing his word, great was the number of the Preachers.

3. For that he called not all his Prophets at once, but at sundry times, according

[a] Proœ. com. in Esa. & epist. Paulin. tom 3 fol. 9. Non prophetiam videtur texere, sed Euangelium.
[b] Cap 7. 14.
[c] Cap 9. 6.
[d] Cap. 53. verſ. 3. 4. 5 6.
[e] Cap. 53. verſe. 8.
[f] Muſculus. Hyperius. Caluin. in loc.
[g] Luke 2. 25.
[h] 2. Cor 1. 3.
[i] Tertullian. cont Marcian. lib 4. cap. 33. Cyril. Cat. 3. Auguſt de Io. Baptiſt. ſer. 1.
[k] Psal 74. 1.
[l] Caluin.
[m] Psal. 68. 11.

ding to the Churches exigence. Wherefore [n] some reade not as our translation here, saith your God, in the present; but in the future, will your God say: [o] Signifying hereby, that God will in all ages to come so prouide for his Church, as that it shall neuer be destitute of Prophets; and so we finde in holy Bible, that he stirred vp Daniel, Haggai, Malachi, Zachariah, Ezra, Nehemiah, and other (vntill the comming of Christ himselfe the [p] chiefe shepherd) who did alwayes exhort his people to be of good comfort; and to [q] hope against hope; so Zacharias in his hymne, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people, raising vp the horne of saluation vnto vs, as he spake by the mouth of all his Prophets which haue beene since the world began. So S. Peter in his Sermon ad populum, Acts 3.24. All the Prophets from Samuel, and thenceforth, as many as haue spoken, haue likewise foretold of these dayes; and to Cornelius, Act. 10.43. To him all the Prophets giue witnesse, that through his name all that beleeue in him shall receiue remission of sinnes.

[n] Musculus. Calain.
[o] Genena Gloss.
[p] 1. Pet. 5.4.
[q] Rom. 4.18.

4. The [r] doubling and tripling of this charge to the Prophets (comfort ye, comfort yee, speake yee comfortably) expresseth as it were the very bowels of compassion in God, as if he could not endure that his people should suffer any more miserie, giuing them also further assurance, that he will euer be their God, euen in their greatest aduersitie, when as they seeme to be swallowed vp of death and desperation, and that they shall be still his Hierusalem and his people, your God will say, comfort my people.

[r] Hyperius. Musculus.

Concerning the Prophets office, God in this charge requireth on their part, that they speake comfortably to his Hierusalems heart: Yet here you must obserue with [s] Ecclesiastes, that there is a time for all things; a time for admonition, a time for reprehension, a time for consolation; a time [t] to shew Gods people their transgression, and to the house of Iacob their sinnes; as well as a time to tell Hierusalem in distresse, that her trauell is ended, and her iniquitie pardoned; a time, saith our Prophet [u] elsewhere, to denounce woe to such as iustifie the wicked for a reward; a time to denounce woe to such as speake good of euill and euill of good; a time to denounce woe to such as follow drunkennesse, and are strong to powre in strong drinke. And assuredly (beloued) the Prophets haue iust occasion in this age to cry out against such [x] as are at ease in Sion, making (as [y] Paul speakes) their belly their God, and their gullet their glory. For swinish, idle, base drunkennesse, heretofore scorned as the beggers fault, is now reputed (among moe then a good many) not only the Seruingmans complement, but also the Gentlemans grace. God as hauing [z] no pleasure in the death of a sinner, but a longing desire to haue the coles of his wrath quenced with the teares of our repentance, commandeth his Prophets in the dayes of securitie, to sound out the threats of his seueritie, denouncing a woe before woe, that is, a woe of instruction, before there come the woe of destruction. For albeit the [a] axe be laid vnto the root of the tree, yet shall it not be hewen downe, so long as there is any hope of the fruits of amendment. Though there be [b] yet but fortie dayes, and Nineue shall be destroyed, yet if Nineue proclaime a fast, and put on sackcloth from the greatest vnto the least, the Lord will repent of the euill he said he would doe vnto them, and turne away from his fierce wrath. As soone then as Hierusalem hath receiued at the Lords hand sufficient correction for all her sinnes, it is time to tell her that her trauell is at an end, and that her offence is pardoned. After once the law hath humbled and terrified distressed consciences; after all her [c] waues and stormes haue rent asunder troubled spirits, it is time to bring [d] glad tidings of saluation vnto the poore, to bind vp the broken hearted, to preach libertie to the captiue, to comfort all that mourne in Sion, to giue beauty for ashes, and the garment of gladnesse for the spirit of heauinesse; among many, this one doubtlesse is the maine part in the Prophets office, to comfort Hierusalem at the heart.

[s] Eccles. 3.1.
[t] Esay. 58.1.
[u] Esay 5.
[x] Amos 6.1.
[y] Philip 3.19.
[z] Ezech. 33.11.
[a] Luke 3.9.
[b] Ionas 3.
[c] Psal 42.9.
[d] Esay 61.

This ought to be performed plainely, painfully, powerfully: [e] Plainly, cry to her, and lift vp thy voyce, for if the Prophet whisper only, this consolation haply might seeme doubtfull or weake, but all doubting is taken away, seeing it is to be deliuered freely with a loud voyce: [f] Painefully, comforting Hierusalem againe and and againe, comfort ye, comfort ye, &c. [g] Powerfully, for the Prophet ought to speake not only to Hierusalems eare, but also fully to her heart, that he may like a good Orator relinquere aculeos in auditorum animis: [h] the words of the wise are like goads, and like nailes fastned by the masters of the assemblies, and the best way to fasten a naile is to strike home. Gods word is an [i] hammer, and our exhortations are like nailes, and therefore we must often and earnestly strike home, that we may pricke the hearts of the hearers, as S. Peter did, Acts 2 37.

[e] Calain.
[f] Musculus.

Or as [k] other expound this clause, to speake to the heart of Hierusalem, is in Scripture phrase nothing else but to speake that which is pleasing and acceptable. So Sychem the sonne of Hamor is said to speake to the heart of Dinah, Gen. 34. 3. Now the glad message to be preached vnto Hierusalem, is, that her trauell is at an end, and her offence pardoned: for as Physitians in healing bodily diseases, or dirily remoue first the cause from whence they spring; euen so the Lord dealeth with vs in curing our spirituall infirmities. The rods wherewith he beateth vs, proceed from our sinnes, he must of necessitie therefore pardon them, ere his strokes can cease, so that remission of our sinnes is the ground of our comfort, that man and only that man is blessed, [l] whose vnrighteousnes is forgiuen, and whose sinne is couered, he that trauels with mischiefe, conceiues sorrow, Psalm. 7. 15. [m] There is no peace to the wicked, saith our God; a [n] heathen Philosopher could say, that the best way to shun sadnesse is to liue well. Idolatrie, stinking drunkennesse, and other sinnes are called by the Prophet [o] Hosea shame, because they bring with them alway confusion and shame: Hierusalems warfare was neuer at an end, till her sinnes on her part were repented, and on Gods part pardoned,

But how was her offence forgiuen? because she had receiued at the Lords hand double for all her sinnes: [p] that is, double grace for her double griefe. As Hierusalem had a double punishment, one in her soule, another in her bodie: so now she shall haue by Christ a double blessing, to wit, in the world collation of grace, and in the world to come possession of glorie: or a double fauour, 1. in that her trauell is ended: 2. for that her sinne is pardoned; or double, [q] that is, many benefits, a certaine number for an vncertaine, the sufferings of Christ are a sufficient propitiation for all her sinnes, and for the sinnes of the wole world, 1. Iohn 2. 2. yea where sinne abounded there grace superabounded, Rom. 5. 20.

[r] Other haue construed it as our Church here translateth it, she hath receiued double, that is, sufficient correction of all her sinnes, insinuating that the Lord will afflict his people no more so long, nor so sharply, because his louing kindnesse hath ouercome his heauy displeasure, [s] So the word double ought to be taken for enough or full, as it is vsed, Chap. 61. 7. Here then a question is moued, if Hierusalems iniquitie were forgiuen, how did she receiue sufficient correction at the Lords hand for all her sinnes? If she were pardoned freely, what place could there be for satisfaction or satif-passion? [t] Answer is made, that this punishment was inflicted on Gods people, not as a satisfaction for their offence, but as an exercise rather for their humiliation, and when Almightie God had exercised them enough in the schoole of affliction, he commanded his Prophets againe and againe to comfort them at the very heart. And whereas it is obiected further, that their sinne deserued eternall punishment, ergo, this temporarie could not be sufficient correction: It is answered in a word, that howsoeuer it was not in it selfe sufficient, yet vnto God being pleased it was enough; albeit they deserued to be beaten with a great many moe stripes, yet those few blowes sufficed the Lord, as [u] smiting in measure, moderating his strokes, as a [x] father that pitieth his children, in his very [y] wrath remembring mercy: so the Prophet [z] Ieremie desires the Lord to correct him in iudgement, [a] that is, in measure, that so the blowes might be proportionable to his infirmitie, not answerable to his iniquitie: God, saith [b] Paul, is faithfull, and will not suffer vs to be temped aboue that we are able to beare, [c] for he knoweth whereof we are made, he remembreth that we are but dust, and therefore chasticing vs for our good, he doth accept a little punishment for a sufficient correction.

[g] Hyperius. Dan. Arcularius.
[h] Eccle. 12. 11.
[i] Ierem. 23. 29.
[k] Hieron. Vatablus, Caluin.
[l] Psalm 32. 1.
[m] Esay 57. 21.
[n] Socrates.
[o] Cap. 4. vers. 18 See Ribera in loc.
[p] Musculus.
[q] Vatablus, Arcularius,
[r] Hieron. Hyperius. Castalion.
[s] Caluin.
[t] Musculus in loc. Idem caluin Instit lib. 3. cap. 4. §. 33.
[u] Esay 27. 8.
[x] Psal 103 13.
[y] Abacuc 3. 2.
[z] Cap. 10 ver. 24.
[a] Caluin in Esai 27. 8.
[b] 1. Cor. 10. 13.
[c] Psal. 103. 14.

A voyce cryed in the wildernesse] All the [d] foure Euangelists expound this of Iohn the Baptist, how fitly, see Gospell on the fourth Sunday in Aduent. The summary pith of the proclamation, verse 6,7,8. is in briefe [e] this our selues are mortall, it is good therefore that we should haue something else to rest our soules vpon: we consist of flesh, and that is like vnto the grasse, and if we should imagine other men to be better than our selues, and so put our trust in [f] Princes, yet are they but as we are: for all flesh is grasse, and all the grace thereof is as the flower of the field. Wherefore let vs embrace the mercy which is offered by the Sonne of God, the Sauiour of the world, the Redeemer of mankinde, the great Shepheard of our soules, he shall gather the lambes together with his arme, and carry them in his bosome, &c.

All flesh is grasse, and the grace, that is, the best of all flesh (as Peter expounds it) all the glory of man, as wisdome, valour, industry, iudgement, all is like grasse: [h] for the drift of the text sheweth euidently, that Esay speakes not of the outward man only, but also comprehends the gifts of the minde, whereby men are beautified aboue other, [i] intelligit totum hominem, & quicquid in rebus humanis illustre: all men are corruptible like grasse, and the most gracefull among all men are like the flower of the field, the which haply whilest it flourisheth is more glorious [k] than Salomon in all his royaltie, but the flower of the field being deuoured at a trice by the beast of the field, becommeth in a few houres a stinking excrement. I could here compasse you about with a very great cloud of witnesses: the witty Poet [l] Anacreon was in a moment choaked with the kernell of a rayson, and [m] Fabius a graue Senator in drinking milke was strangled with a haire: the famous Emperour [n] Fredericke Barbarossa going for Palestina to recouer the holy land out of the hands of the Saracens (a seruice which he thought acceptable o Christ, and for effecting whereof he left his friends and country) was by the way as he passed suddenly drowned in the riuer Sapheth. When [o] Harrald King of Denmarke made warre vpon Harquinus, and was ready to ioyne battell, a dart was seene in the ayre flying this way and that way, as though it sought vpon whom to rest, and when all men stood wondring what would become of this strange matter, euery man fearing himselfe; at the last the dart fell vpon Harquinus head and slew him. The French King [p] Charles the 8. as he was beholding tenisse players, among other talke he said, that he hoped to doe nothing hereafter that should offend God; which words were no sooner out of his mouth but he fell downe speechlesse, and languishing a few houres, he died in the same place. A popish priest called [q] Nightingall in the dayes of Queene Marie, Parson of Crondall in Kent, as he was boasting in the pulpit of the Popes absolution, and by reason of it of his owne pureneſſe, most fearfully fell downe and died instantly. The Pope (though he doth exalt himselfe aboue all that is called God) perisheth notwithstanding as a man, and hereupon at his inauguration, the [r] master of the Ceremonies vsed to burne an handfull of flax before him, as in solemne procession he passed by, saying with a loud voyce ecce pater sancte, sic transit gloria mundi. I conclude this argument in [s] Gregories glosse, man is like to grasse, quia per natiuitatem viret in carne, per iuuentutem candescit flore, per mortem aret in puluere, by his birth he is greene in his flesh, by his youth he is white in his blossome, by his death he is withered in the dust.

Whether the grasse wither, or that the flower, fade away. yet the word of God endureth for euer] [t] This repetition is added once more to bring all the glory of proud flesh vnto nothing: it also containeth an excellent comfort, namely, that the Lord hauing humbled his seruants in aduersitie, forthwith affords them matter of ioy, the grasse withers but the word of the Lord (which is the ground of our consolation) endures for euer; it is (as [u] Saint Peter termeth it) an incorruptible seed, a liuing, yea euerliuing word. And that in [x] two respects especially: 1. in respect of the giuer, as being the word of the [y] liuing God, which [z] onely hath immortalitie: 2. in respect of the receiuers, in that it bringeth all true beleeuers vnto life which endures for euer, according to that of Peter vnto Christ, [d] Matth. 3.3. Marke 1.3. Luke 3.4. Ioh. 1.23.

[e] Melanct. in Ioan. 1. See Dr. Abbots sermon at the funerall of Thomas Earle of Dorset, pag. 2.
[f] Psal. 146.2.
[g] 1. Epistle, 1.24.
[h] Caluin.
[i] Arcularius in loc.
[k] Matth 6.29.
[l] Plin. nat. hist. lib 7 cap. 7.
[m] Idem.
[n] Ibid. Matth. Paris in Ric.
[o] Sir Ric. Barckley, discourse of felicitie, lib 5. pag. 450.
[p] Philip. Commi. hist. li. 8. cap. 18.
[q] Fox Mart. fol. 1731.
[r] Walsingham in Hen. 5. pa. 444. Idem Paradinus in symbol pag. 126.
[s] in Psalm. 5. pœniten. vers. 4.
[t] Caluin.
[u] 1. Pet. 1.23.
[x] Arcularius.
[y] Heb. 10.31.
[z] 1. Tim. 6.16.

Christ [a] thou hast the words of eternall life. [b] Here then in a few words is comprehended the whole summe of the Gospell; it consists in acknowledging our owne miserie, weakenesse and vanitie, that being humbled enough in the consideration of our faults and frailtie, we might haue recourse to Christ our only Sauiour, by whose grace we shall be wholly restored. Againe, from hence we may learne to seeke true consolation and contentment no where but in eternitie, the which is only to be found in God: all flesh is grasse, and the grace thereof as the flower of the field, the grasse withereth, and the flower fadeth away, there can be no stabilitie in earth and earthly things, and therefore let vs not set our affections on things below, but alway [c] seeke those things which are aboue, let our conuersation be in heauen, and from thence let vs looke for saluation, Philip. 3.20.

[a] Iohn 6 68.
[b] Caluin.
[c] Coloss 3.2.

Get vp vnto the high hill, O Sion] This commission (as [d] some thinke) concernes especially the Apostles: in which obserue, 1. How they must preach. 2. What they must preach. How they must get vp into the high hill, [e] euen so high, that their exalted voice may well be heard, and accordingly we finde, that [f] their sound went into all the earth, and their words vnto the ends of the world. [g] Here you may see that the dumbe Idols in the Papacie boast of the name of the Church absurdly, for the Church (as being the [h] piller of truth and [i] mother of all the faithfull) is not taught of God that she should keepe her knowledge to her selfe, but that she should proclaime that vnto other which shee hath learned, and that earnestly with a free spirit, O thou preacher Hierusalem lift vp thy voyce without feare. Now the tenour of the doctrine to be published by the Apostles and their successors in the Church for euer is briefly this, that Christ Iesus is our God and Sauiour, behold your God, both able and willing to redeeme his people, able, for that he shall come with power, & a strong arme, who can measure out the waters in his fist, & mete heauen with his span, and comprehend the dust of the earth in a measure, and weigh the mountaines in scales, and the hills in a ballance: willing for that he shall feed his flocke like an heardman, he shall gather the lambes together with his arme: and carry them in his bosome, and shall intreat kindly those that beare young.

[d] The translators of our Church Bible in the contents of this chapter. & Arcularius in loc.
[e] Musculus.
[f] Rom. 10. 18.
[g] Caluin.
[h] 1. Tim 3. 15.
[i] Esa. 66. 11, 12, 13.

The Gospell. Luke 1. 57.

Elizabeths time came that she should be deliuered, and she brought forth a sonne, &c.

SAint [k] Ambrose preaching on this day was a great deale troubled, where he should either begin or end the praises of Iohn the Baptist: for whatsoeuer was eminent almost in [l] all other, is found in this one Saint, as being an [m] Angell, a [n] Prophet, an [o] Apostle, an [p] Euangelist, a Confessor constantly teaching the truth, and patiently suffering for the same, his ingresse into the world, progresse in the world, egresse out of the world, were not (as our text speakes) without a maruellous noise throughout all the countries of Iurie, and the [q] coast about Iordan; he was in his death a Martyr, in his life a miracle, yet his natiuitie surmounted both; and therefore whereas the Church ordinarily celebrates the liues and deaths of other Saints, it doth especially solemnize the birth of Iohn the Baptist; allotting for this feast a Gospell accordingly, that sets downe the chiefe parts and purtenance thereof, as namely,

[k] Serm 63.
[l] See Ferus ser. 1. de Io. Bapt.
[m] Malac 3. 1. Angelus officio.
[n] Luk. 1. 76.
[o] Iohn 1 6.
[p] Mar. 1. 7. Iohn 1. 29.
[q] Matt 3. 5.

1. Elizabeths safe deliuerance, when her time was come, vers. 57.
2. The congregation of neighbours and cousins for this great mercy shewed vpon her, vers. 58.
3. The circumcision of Iohn, verse. 59.
4. The contention about his name, vers 60, 61, 62, 63.
5. The maruelling of such as were present vpon the sight of these things, and of such as were absent vpon the report noised abroad, vers. 63, 65, 66.

The Benedictus of Zacharie, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel. &c.

Elizabeths

Elizabeths time was come] The word of the Lord is true, Psalme.33.4. I the Lord haue spoken it, and I will performe it, Ezech 37.14. Whereas therefore God promised old Zacharie by the mouth of his Angell at the 13. verse, that Elizabeth his wife should beare him a sonne; he now deales with his seruant according to his word, for albeit Zacharie was a forspent man, and Elizabeth in respect both of yeeres and sickneſſe a [r] barren woman; yet when her time came that she should be deliuered, she brought forth a sonne. The most almightie Truth, and most true Almightinesse effected whatsoeuer he determined. [t] Plinie, [t] Gellius, and [u] other secretaries of nature, report that some children are borne in the 7. moneth after their conception, other in the 8. other in the 10. but ordinarily children are borne in the 9. moneth: and [x] so Iohn was brought into the world, when his mother Elizabeths time came that she should be deliuered, according to the most vsuall course of nature.

[y] Hereupon we may build a generall rule, namely that nothing is able to disappoint Gods holy determinations and purposes, and therefore whereas he hath [z] appointed that all men shall once die, and after death come to iudgement, whereas he saith expresly that they who [a] sleepe in the dust of the graue, shall awake some to perpetuall contempt, and other to an [b] incorruptible crowne of glory; (for the [c] sea and the sepulchre shall deliuer vp the dead which are in them at the last day:) let vs looke for the [d] blessed hope and glorious appearing of Christ our Sauiour, who shall [e] change our vile body that it may be like his glorious body; though haply the resurrection of the dead seeme most impossible to nature, yet let vs which are [f] borne not of bloud, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God, comfort our selues in these things, as being assured that our [g] Redeemer liueth, and that he which is the [h] resurrection and the life, shall himselfe [i] descend from heauen with a shout, and with the voyce of the Arch-angell, and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ shall arise first, and then the liuing that remaine shall also be caught vp with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the ayre, and so we shall be with him euermore.

Shee brought forth a sonne] It is probable that Zacharie being at his deuotion in the temple, prayed not for any priuate blessing, but for the publike good of the whole congregation; and namely, that God would (according to his gratious promises) giue his Sonne, and so forgiue the sinne of his people: the coherence then of Gabriels speech vnto him at the 13. verse (feare not Zacharie, for thy prayer is heard, and thy wife Elizabeth shall beare thee a sonne) may be [k] this, thy prayer is heard for the Messias of the world, in that thy wife shall beare a sonne, who shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall goe before him in the spirit and power of Elias, as a Prophet to prepare his wayes, and to make readie a people for him. He which is the [l] light of the world, and [m] delight of his people, shall ere it be long be borne of a Virgin, and Elizabeth thy wife shall haue a sonne, who shall as his beadle goe before his face, the sonne of a barren shall preach vnto the world the sonne of the Virgin, [n] Et pulchrè de sene & sterili nascitur, qui nasciturum de virgine prædicare veniebat, vt mirabiliter natus mirabilius nasciturum demonstraret.

Or as other [o] obserue, thy prayer is heard for the sinnes of the people, because thy wife Elizabeth shall beare thee a sonne, who shall openly proclaime the Messias, and say, Behold the Lambe of God which taketh away the sinne of the world, [p] Dum ille solicitus pro salute populi supplicat, promissus est per quem populus saluaretur.

Or as Saint [q] Ambrose, God according to his [r] rich grace [s] giuing to all men liberally, did not only heare the prayer of Zachary for the common good, but also for his owne comfort in particular: and therefore [t] some construe the clause (thy prayer is heard) of his priuate suit for a sonne, commenced either at this instant in Gods house (for being high Priest as [u] many coniecture, his office was to [x] make an atonement for himselfe, and his household, and for all the congregation of Israel) or else often [y] heretofore in his owne house praying with Elizabeth his wife.

[r] Luk.1.7.
[t] Nat.hist.lib.7. cap.5.
[t] Attic.noc.lib.3. cap.16.
[u] Arist de nat. animal.lib.7. cap 3.4.
[x] Aretius. Maldonat.
[y] Heming post. in fest.Io.Baptist.
[z] Heb.9.27.
[a] Dan.12.2.
[b] 1.Pet 5.4.
[c] Apocal.20.13
[d] Tit.2.13.
[e] Philip 3 21.
[f] Iohn 1.13.
[g] Iob 19.25.
[h] Iohn 11.25.
[i] 1.Thess.4.16.
[k] Augustin. quæst.Euang. lib.2 cap 1.
[l] Iohn 1.9.
[m] Cant. 1.3. Haggai 2.8.
[n] Ardens hom. in loc.
[o] Theophylact. Euthym. Iansen.
[p] Eusch Emisen. hom.2.de.S.Io. B.
[q] Com in Luc.1. verse 13.
[r] Ephes.1.7.
[s] Iames 1.5.
[t] Arboreus. Caluin
[u] Apud Marlorat & Maldonat.in loc.
[x] Leuit.16.17.
[y] Heming. Caluin. Maldonat.

wife. We finde a parallel example to this, Acts 10.4. Cornelius a deuout man euidently saw in a vision an Angell of God comming vnto him and saying, thy prayers and thine almes are come vp into remembrance before God. It is not said, that Cornelus at that houre was either praying vnto God, or giuing almes vnto men: but the Lords Angell speakes of duties and bounties already past: and so Gabriel in saying thy prayer is heard, insinuates that his former and frequent suit for a childe was obtained now, thy wife shall bare thee a sonne, and our text reports accordingly, that in due time she brought forth a sonne: from hence learne, 1. That the prayer of the righteous [z] availeth much if it be feruent: Iohn is gotten, and (as [a] Ambrose speakes also) begotten of his parents, non tam complexibus, quàm orationibus.

[z] Iames 5.16.
[a] Ser. 63.

2. [b] That we must not cease from praying because many times our requests are delaied long; it is our dutie to continue knocking vntill the Father of mercies open the doore of grace; Christ in his preamble to that exquisite forme of prayer inioyneth vs to call vpon God in faith, hope, loue: faith, in saying father: loue, in saying our: hope, in saying which art in heauen: I finde the like conceit in [c] Augustine vpon the fish, egge, and bread, mentioned Luk. 11. fides in pisce, spes in ouo, charitas in pane. [d] Paulinus said of the woman anointing Christs feet, that she was pudenter impudens, & piè improba: so we must in our prayers vnto God (as it were) put on a modest impudence, fainting occasioneth a failing, whereas [e] importunitie preuaileth euen with vnrighteous men on earth, and therefore much more with our holy Father in heauen.

[b] Heming. post. in fest. 10. Bap.
[c] Epist. 121. cap. 8.
[d] Epist. lib. 1. epist. 4.
[e] Luk. 18.5.

3. That married couples ought to liue in the feare of God, alway relying vpon his gratious prouidence both in wealth and woe: more principally the Preachers of the word and their wiues ought to shine before others in all kinde of vertues, in feruent and frequent prayers especially.

[f] Plutarch. " "

And her neighbours and her cousins] [f] Themistocles intending to sell a farme, caused the Crier to proclaime that it had among other commodities a good neighbour, as being assured that this one circumstance would the rather induce chapmen to purchase it: old Zachary and Elizabeth had good neighbours, who did not enuy their happinesse, but according to the precept of [g] Paul, reioyce with those that reioyce. A Preacher that liueth among such hath obtained a fair benefice, he may well acknowledge with [h] Dauid, the lot is fallen vnto me in a faire ground, and I haue a godly heritage, but woe to that Zacharie which is a [i] brother vnto Dragons, and a companion of Ostriches, [k] constrained to dwell with Mesech and to haue his habitation among the tents of Kedar.

[g] Rom. 12.15.
[h] Psal. 16.7.
[i] Iob 30.29.
[k] Psal. 120.5.

As Zacharie the Priest had good neighbours, so likewise kinde cousins, for albeit they might haue well expected large legacies if he had died without issue, yet they reioyced at the birth of his sonne; an [l] enuious man hath a great deale of lesse wit in his malice than a very brute, for whereas neither fowle nor fish is taken in a snare without a baite, the spitfull wretch is brought to the deuils hooke without any pleasant bite: the voluptuous man hath a little pleasure for his soule, the couetous a little profit for his soule, the proud and ambitious a little honour for his soule; but an enuious man hath nothing of the deuill, or flesh, or world, for his soule, but hearts-griefe, [m] hoc solũ inuidus bene agit quod se cruciat. Wherefore [n] laying aside all maliciousnesse and enuie, let vs imitate the good neighbours and allies of Elizabeth here: let vs as feeling and fellow members of the same mysticall body, [o] remember those that are in bonds, as though our selues were bound with them, and if any [p] member be had in honour, to reioyce with it.

[l] Diez con. 1. in fest. 10. Bap.
[m] Laurent. Pisan. Euang. paradox.
[n] 1. Pet. 2.1.
[o] Heb. 13.2.
[p] 1. Cor. 12.26.

These neighbours and cousins visiting Elizabeth in childe-bed, came not (as [q] one notes vpon the place) with basket and bottle to drinke and eat, (though I confesse that kinde of neighbour-hood were better vsed in a Priests house, than in a tap-house) neither came they like the gossips in our time with a great deale of [r] tattle, speaking things vncomely: but they came to praise God for his goodnesse shewed vpon their friend Elizabeth: 1. [s] In taking away the reproach of barrennesse: 2. For giuing her a sonne; so the text, they heard how the Lord had shewed ſhewed great mercie vpon her, and they reioyced with her; it was mercie that ſhee brought forth a ſonne; great mercie, that ſhe bare ſuch a ſonne. The Thracians vſed to laugh at the death, and to weepe at the birth of men; but the Scripture teacheth vs to reioyce when a ſonne is borne: [t] children and the fruit of the wombe are a gift that commeth of the Lord, and therefore when Euah conceiued and bare Cain, ſhe ſaid, [u] I haue gotten a man from the Lord: and [x] Lamech hauing gotten a ſonne, called his name Noah, ſaying, this ſame ſhall comfort vs concerning our worke and ſorrow of our hands &c. When Iſaac was borne, Sarah his mother ſaid, [y] God hath made me to laugh: a woman (as Chriſt ſpeakes Iohn 16.21.) when ſhe is in trauell hath ſorrow, becauſe her houre is come, but as ſoone as ſhe is deliuered of the childe, ſhe remembers no more the paine, for ioy that a man is borne into the world: [z] quid dulcius in humanis quàm gignere ſibi ſimilem, aut beatius in terris quàm natos videre natorum? Elizabeth then had good cauſe to praiſe God in the gift of a ſonne; but her ſelfe and her friends had greater cauſe to reioyce, becauſe ſhe bare ſuch a ſonne, [a] tantum & talem filium, a ſonne ſo great in the ſight of the Lord, filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and ſtrong in ſpirit, euen from his mothers wombe; ſuch a ſon, of whom as yet in ſwadling clouts, his father moued by the Spirit ſaid, he ſhould be the Prophet of the moſt high; of whom alſo (when he was growen vp and executed his office) [b] Chriſt himſelfe gaue this teſtimony, that among thoſe which are borne of women, there hath not riſen a greater then Iohn the Baptiſt. If a [c] wiſe ſonne make a glad father, and a fooliſh ſonne bring heauineſſe to his mother; Elizabeth had great mercie ſhewed vpon her, in that ſhe brought forth a Iohn into the world.

[q] Culman con. 1. in loc.
[r] 1. Tim. 5.13.
[s] Paluanss. Beauxamis.

[d] Myſtically, gracious Iohn borne of barren Elizabeth, liuely repreſents the fulneſſe and fruitfulneſſe of the Gentiles, ariſing from the barrenneſſe of the Iewes, and therefore the [e] Prophet exhorts the Church, Reioyce thou barren that beareſt not, breake forth into ſinging thou that trauelleſt not, for the deſolate hath many moe children than ſhe which hath an husband.

In the eighth day they came to circumciſe the childe] Zacharias and Elizabeth [f] walking in all the Commandements and Ordinances of the Lord without blame, cauſed their new borne babe to be circumciſed according to the preſcript of the Law. Concerning the time when, part where, cauſe why; ſee Goſpell on the Circumciſion of Chriſt.

Now [g] baptiſme ſucceeds circumciſion, and ſo conſequently parents are taught by this example to bring their children in due time to holy baptiſme; wherein they be made the members of Chriſt, the children of God, and inheritours of the kingdome of heauen. Againe, parents may learne by this [h] preſident (except ſome great neceſſitie compell them otherwiſe) to baptize their infants in the face of the congregation, and not in the corner or a chamber or chimney: there was a great meeting of neighbours and couſins at the circumciſion of Iohn in his fathers houſe, and the Iewes at this day circumciſe their children in their publike Synagogues: and laſtly, from hence we may further obſerue three things, eſpecially concerning impoſition of names among Gods children in old time:

1. That names were giuen in circumciſion, as among vs in baptiſme, they came to circumciſe the childe, and called his name Zachary: the reaſon hereof is plaine, [i] that as often as we heare our ſelues named, we might inſtantly call to minde the ſolemne couenant betweene God and vs in holy baptiſme: or (as [k] other obſerue) becauſe circumciſion and baptiſme are ſeales of Gods grace, whereby men are firſt admitted into the Church, and as it were [l] written in the booke of the liuing: it is fit that none ſhould be named or regiſtred as the ſeruants and ſouldiers of Chriſt afore they haue receiued his Sacrament, which is the [m] badge of their profeſſion, and ſigne of their new birth.

2. From hence we may note, [n] that Gods people did vſually name their children after the names of their anceſtours, except God in ſome ſingular caſe, by reuelation, inioyned the contrary: for the neighbours and couſins of Elizabeth (as not knowing the Lords expreſſe pleaſure concerning the naming of her childe)

[t] Pſal. 127.
[u] Gen. 4.1.
[x] Gen. 5.29.
[y] Gen. 21.6.
[z] Æneas Syluius epiſt. progenitori ſuo.
[a] Paludenſis.
[b] Matth 11.11.
[c] Prou 10.1.
[d] Euſeb. Emiſen. hom 2 de Io. Bap. Idem Beaux. & alij.
[e] Eſay 54.1. Galat. 4.27.
[f] Luke 1.6.
[g] Coloſſ. 11.12
[h] Caluin Bacuxamis.
[i] Heming poſt. in Euangel. Circum Chriſti.
[k] Theophylact. Ianſen. Beauxam in loc.
[l] Pſal. 69.29. See Sixt. Senen. Bibliothec ſanct. lib. 2. fol. 126.
[m] Anglican. confeſſ. art. 27.
[n] Maldonat.

childe) began to call his name Zachary, after the name of his father; and when Elizabeth answered and said, Not so, but his name shal be called Iohn; they replied, there is none of thy kindred that is named with this name. This example condemnes the niceneſſe of ſome, who thinke it vnlawfull to giue their children [o] vſuall names of their nation and families, as Edward, George, Robert, and the like: as alſo the prophaneſſe of other, who giue names of [p] flowers, or ſtones, or heathen names vnto Chriſtians: if we name not our children after the names of our anceſtours, it is fit that we ſhould take the names of [q] Saints that may put vs in minde of their vertues, as Iohn, Peter, Stephen, &c. and not the names of Idols, as Venus, Mercurie, Bacchus, or the ſtrange names of Saxon and Romane Infidels: and therefore the Popes and Cardinals are worthily cenſured by reuerend [r] Fulke, for that hauing moſt antichriſtianly renounced their names giuen in baptiſme, by which they were firſt dedicated vnto Chriſt: they chuſe many times vnto themſelues prophane names, as Sergius, Leo, Iulius, Cæſar, Sixtus, &c.

3. We may learne from hence, that impoſition of names is a dutie belonging properly to parents, eſpecially to the father, and therefore Gabriel ſaid vnto Zachary, thou ſhalt call his name Iohn. And in our preſent text, the determination of the queſtion about the childs name was wholly referred vnto the father, they made ſignes to his father how he would haue him called, and he asked for writing tables, and wrote, ſaying, his name is Iohn.

Not ſo, but his name ſhall be called Iohn] It [f] may be (Zachary being now dumbe and not able to ſpeake) that the neighbours asked Elizabeth his wife how the childe ſhould be named, or haply hearing their conſultation about this buſineſſe, ſhe might (as knowing the Lords pleaſure herein) anſwer them vnasked, his name ſhall be called Iohn. Here then a queſtion is moued, by what meanes Elizabeth vnderſtood Gods expreſſe commandement in appointing his name, ſeeing her husband (to whom only Gabriel had made this knowne) was mute: to this obiection [t] anſwer is made, that ſhe knew the name by reuelation as a Propheteſſe, per prophetiam didicit, quod non didicerat à marito, ſaith [u] Ambroſe: or (as [x] other aſſoyle the boubt) it may be Zachary ſignified ſo much vnto her in writing heretofore, as now to his neighbours and kinſmen, for he asked for writing tables, and wrote, ſaying, his name is Iohn. [y] Here then obſerue, that the parents of Iohn obey the commandement of God before the counſell of their friends and kinſmen, albeit they were neuer ſo deare to them. [z] Agamus quæ Chriſtus iuſſit, vt adipiſcamur quæ Chriſtus ſpoſpondit, veritas illius nobis adſit, illi fides noſtra non deſit, &c. If the Lord ſay follow me, then inſtantly we muſt forſake all, and leaue the dead to bury the dead, Matth. 8 22.

His name is Iohn] [a] As if Zachary ſhould haue ſaid, I gaue not this name, but God himſelfe hath appointed it. The words of his Angell (thou ſhalt call his name Iohn) are [b] non ſolum prædictio, ſed [c] etiam præceptio nominis imponendi. Now the word ſignifies fauoured of God, or the grace of God, a name fit for the Baptiſt in many reſpects, as firſt, [c] for that he was the fore-runner and firſt preacher of Chriſt, [d] of whoſe fulneſſe we receiue grace vpon grace, for the Law was giuen by Moſes, but grace and truth came by Ieſus Chriſt. [e] The bunch of grapes that the ſpies of the children of Iſrael caried from the land of promiſe, was borne by two ſtrong men vpon a ſtaffe or pole, he that went before could not ſee the grape, but he that was behind might both ſee and eat of it: So the Fathers of the old Teſtament did not in like manner ſee the bunch of grapes, that was the Sonne of God made man, as they that went behinde vnder the new Teſtament ſaw and taſted it, after Iohn had openly ſhewed this grape, behold the Lambe of God that taketh away the ſinne of the world.

2. The Baptiſt is ſo called, [f] as being filled with the Holy Ghoſt, abounding with a great many [g] prerogatiues of grace both in his conception, birth, and conuerſation.

3. So called, as being borne not by natures ordinarie power, [h] but beſtowed vpon his parents by Gods extraordinarie grace.

4. So

[o] Aretius.

[p] Eſtius, hiſt. of the Goſpell, pag. 125.

[q] Rhem. in loc.

[r] Annot. in loc.

[t] Theophylact. Euthym. Caietan.

[u] Com. in loc.

[x] Dio Carthuſ. Aretius.

[y] Beauxam. Culman.

[z] Paulinus epiſt. lib. 1 epiſt. 1

[a] Ambroſ. Ianſen.

[b] Maldonat.

[c] Ardens. Luther. Culman.

[d] Iohn 1. 16.

[e] Num. 13. 23.

[f] Aretius Paludenſis.

[g] See Raulin. ſer. de nat. Io. Baptiſt.

[h] Bonauent. Beauxamis.

4. So called, as being [i] gratious among men, for many reioyced at his birth, and moe at his doctrine, [k] Hierusalem and all Iudea went out vnto him in the wilderneſſe, and were baptized of him in the riuer Iordan.

- God the
  - Father, as being vpon the point his God-father, [l] impoſing his name by the mouth of his Angell.
  - Sonne, for [m] Christ highly commended him in reſpect of his calling and cariage.
  - Holy Ghoſt, as being ſtrong in ſpirit, and going before Christ in the power of Elias, Luk. 1. 17.
- To compendiat all theſe notes in a few words, Iohn was gratious in the ſight of
  - Kindred,
    - The bleſſed Virgin Marie viſited his mother afore his birth, Luk. 1. 40.
    - Other Couſins reioyced at his birth, acknowledging it for a great mercy.
  - Men,
    - Good, who were both [n] aduiſed by him, and baptized of him: he ſpeake comfortably to Hierusalems heart, and therefore gratious in the eyes of all good people.
    - Bad, for they thought his life too ſtrict, Matth. 11. 18. and his greateſt enemie cruell Herod, [o] who bound him, and put him in priſon, and in fine beheaded him alſo, for Herodias ſake his brother Philips wife, did notwithſtanding [p] reuerence him, and in many things heard him gladly, knowing that he was a iuſt man, and an holy.
  - Strangers,

[i] Paratus ſer. 2. de Io. Baptiſt.
[k] Matth. 3. 5. Mark. 1. 5.
[l] Luke 1. 13.
[m] Matth. 11.
[n] Luke 3.
[o] Matth. 14.
[p] Mark. 6. 20.

[q] Pſal 48. 9. We may pronounce then in ſome ſort of Iohn, as the [q] Pſalmiſt of God, according to thy name, ſo is thy praiſe vnto the worlds end: Iohn is thy name and gratious was thy perſon. O bleſſed Saint, if thou wert now liuing, thou wouldeſt goe to the Courts of Princes, and tell Herod to his face (whileſt other Prophets haply ſowe [r] pellowes vnder his elbowes) that [s] it is not lawfull for him to haue his brothers wife: if he were now liuing, he would call our Pharisies a [t] generation of vipers: if he were now liuing, he would not ſtand vpon by-queſtions and idle diſputations, which are fruitleſſe, but the ſumme of all his Sermons ſhould be, repent, for the kingdome of heauen is at hand: if he were now liuing and preaching in the wilderneſſe, he would teach vs all to be more modeſt in our apparell, and moderate in our diet.

[r] Ezech. 13. 18.
[s] Mark. 6. 18.
[t] Matth. 3. 7.

This gratious Saint hath a [u] ſurname added to his name, called Matth. 3. 1. Iohn the Baptiſt, either [x] for that he baptized Christ, or elſe for that he was the [y] firſt miniſter of holy baptiſme.

[u] Caietan. in Matth. 3.
[x] Maldonat.
[y] Aretius. Marlorat. Piſcator.

And his mouth was opened immediatly] The dumbneſſe of Zacharie (ſaith [z] Euſebius Emiſenus) & fidem rei præſentis expreſſit, & myſterium figurauit: it was a ſeale of Gods preſent promiſe, for when old Zacharie doubted, and ſaid vnto Gabriel at the 18. verſe, whereby ſhall I know that I ſhall haue a ſonne? the Lords Angell anſwered, behold thou ſhalt be dumbe, and not able to ſpeake vntill the day that theſe things be done, becauſe thou beleeueſt not my words which ſhall be fulfilled in their ſeaſon. His puniſhment is [a] anſwerable to his fault, he was ſtricken [z] Hom. 2. de S. Io. Bap.

[a] Theophylact. Caluin.

striken deafe, for that he would not hearken vnto the word of God; and dumbe, for that he contradicted it: he was made mute through vnbeleefe, but as soone as he beleeued, his mouth was opened, [b] quam vinxerat incredulitas, fides soluit: so that Zacharie might apply that of the [c] Psalmist vnto himselfe, I beleeued, and therefore haue I spoken. At the birth of Iohn (which, as I haue shewed, signifies the grace of God) he who was dumbe began to speake and to praise the Lord. [d] Sinne closed his mouth, and on the contrary grace loosed his tongue. The guilt of grieuous sinne confoundeth a man, and maketh him mute, not daring to [e] open his mouth any more because of his shame. Ignorance maketh a man mute; Ecclesiast. 20.6. Some man holdeth his tongue, because he hath not to answer. Esay 56.10. Their watchmen are all blinde, they haue no knowledge, they are all dumbe dogs and cannot barke. The forgetting of Gods aboundant mercy maketh a man mute; Psal. 137.6. If I doe not remember thee, let my tongue cleaue to the roofe of my mouth. Now Gods grace remoueth all these stops and impediments, it is he that [f] teacheth man knowledge, it is he that out of the mouth of [g] infants hath obtained strength, it is he that openeth a [h] doore of vtterance. Wherefore let vs pray with Dauid, O Lord open thou my lips, and my mouth shall shew thy praise.

[b] Ambros. com. in loc.
[c] Psal. 116.10
[d] Hugo Card. Beauxamis.
[e] Ezech. 16.63.
[f] Psal. 94.10.
[g] Psal 8.2.
[h] Colos 4.3.

2. The dumbenesse of Zacharie the Priest vpon the conception of Iohn the Baptist is [i] mystically insinuating that now the Priests and Prophets also should hold their peace. So Christ himselfe teacheth in the [k] Gospell, all the Prophets and the Law propheſied vnto Iohn, but after once Iohn had not only painted out in his preaching, but also pointed out with his finger the Messias of the world, saying, behold the lambe of God, &c. After once the center of the Prophets, and end of the Law was come, it was time for Priest and Prophet to be silent, he shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease. Dan. 9.27. Then as [l] Hierome doth apply the words of Iob, The Princes stayed talke, and laid their hand on their lips, and their tongue cleaued vnto the roofe of their mouth, Iob 29.9. In this houre the time drew nigh, wherein there should be [m] neither Prince, nor Prophet, nor burnt offering, nor sacrifice, nor oblation, nor incense. Iohn is the voyce of him that cryeth in the wilderneſſe, it was therefore fit that his father Zacharie should vpon his conception become mute, as [n] Augustine acutely, Tacet Zacharias generaturus vocem. Hence we may learne to confound the stubborne Iewes as yet continuing in vnbeleefe, [o] Aut Christum veniſſe conſentiant, aut si renuunt, dent prophetas qui annuncient eſſe venturum, either they must acknowledge that the Messias is come, or else shew the Priests and Prophets in holy Bible which as yet foretell his comming.

[i] Hieron. com. in Iob, cap 29. Origen. hom. 5. in Luc. Augustin. hom. 44.
[k] Matth. 11.13.
[l] Vbi sup.
[m] Song of the three children, ver 38.
[n] Hom 44.
[o] Emisen. hom. 2. de Io. Baptist.

The hand of the Lord was with him] Almightie God is said in sacred Writ to haue feet, and hands, and eyes, [p] not properly, but metaphorically, not simply, but in a simile, Nihil enim in Deo nisi Deus, nihil habet in se, nisi se, non partibus conſtat vt corpus, non affectibus diſtat vt anima, non formis subſtat vt omne quod factum eſt, vnus eſt, sed non vnitus, as [q] Bernard excellently.

[p] August. de gen. ad lit. lib. 6 cap 12 & ollo 11. quæſt. 12 quæſt. Thomas part 1. quæſt 3 art. 1.
[q] Lib. 5. de conſid. ad Eugen.

Now the word hand, in a borrowed sense signifies sometime counsell, as in the words of Dauid vnto the woman of Tekoah, [r] Is not the hand of Ioab with thee in all this? Sometimes hand is vsed for power, as Psal. 102.25. The heauens are the workes of thy hands, and [s] Ier. 18.6. Behold, saith the Lord, as the clay is in the potters hand, so are ye in mine hand. And [t] Dauid reports, how God brought his Israel out of Ægypt, with a mightie hand and stretched out arme. Sometime the giuing of the hand is a token of amitie, so [u] Iehu to Ionadab, Giue me thine hand. So [u] Iames and Cephas and Iohn gaue to Paul and Barnabas the right hand of fellowship. In all these respects, the hand of the Lord was with Iohn, his counsell, and power, and loue was with him. 1. Iohn being filled with the Holy Ghost had the Spirit of [x] counsell, he was the fore-runner of the [y] counsellor, and so consequently well acquainted with that hidden [z] mystorie of Christ in other ages vnknowne vnto the sons of men. 2. The power of the Lord was apparently with him in his conception and birth, in so much that all marueiled at these things, and said in their heart, what manner of childe shall this be? 3. Gods grace and loue was with him euen from his [r] 2. Sam. 14.19.

[s] Psal. 136.12.
[t] 2 King. 10.15.
[u] Galat 2.9.
[x] Esay 11.2.
[y] Esa 9.6.
[z] Ephes. 3.4.

his mothers wombe, both in his conuerſation and doctrine. See Illephonſ. Giron. con 3. in feſto Io. Baptiſt.

[a] Auguſt. cont. Fauſt. Man. lib. 14 cap. 5.

A mans writing is called his [a] hand, ſo the Client hath his Lawyers hand to his bill, and the Merchant his debtors hand to his booke; the cunning Artificer alſo calleth his painting his hand, and his caruing his hand; and ſo the piller of Abſolon is termed manus Abſolom in the vulgar tranſlation, 2 Sam. 18.18. After this manner the Lords hand was with Iohn, he was ſo powrefull in his preaching, ſo ſanctified in his life, that euery one might ſay with [b] Dauid, how that this is thine hand, and that thou Lord haſt done it. [c] A Bird taken in the neſt is ſoone made gentile; whereas a flying bird caught in a net is hardly tamed: our bleſſed Sauiour encloſed his Apoſtles within the net of his mercy when they were growne ancient; and therefore they forſooke their old nature with a great deale of difficultie; but he tooke Iohn the Baptiſt in the neſt as it were, ſanctifying him euen in his mothers wombe, ſo that he was from his childhood [d] a burning and a ſhining light, that is, as [e] Aquine gloſſeth, Ardens per exemplum, lucens per verbum.

[b] Pſal. 109 26.
[c] Diez con. 1. in feſt Io. Baptiſt.
[d] Ioh. 5.35.
[e] Ser feſt. in loc.

God hath two hands, a right hand of mercy, and a left hand of iuſtice. So we reade in the [f] Goſpell, how Chriſt at the laſt day ſhall ſet the ſheepe on the right hand, and the goats on his left. His right hand is full of mercies, able to guard, open to giue: Able to guard his people; for he ſaith of it, [g] none ſhall plucke my ſheepe out of my hand: Open to giue, for he doth [h] open his hand, and filleth all things liuing with plenteouſneſſe. In theſe two reſpects, his hands are termed by the Church, as [i] gold rings ſet with the berill, that is, exceeding rich vnto ſuch as call vpon him. Rom. 10.12. the cup of wrath is in his left hand, Eſay 51. 17. The [k] fingers of his hand wrote vpon the plaiſter of the wall of Balſhazzars palace, Mene, mene, Tekel, vpharſin. Of this hand Iob ſaid, withdraw thine hand from me, Iob, 13.21. And [l] Paul, It is a fearefull thing to fall into the hands of the liuing God.

[f] Matth. 25.33.
[g] Ioh. 10.28.
[h] Pſal. 145.16.
[i] Cant. 5.14.
[k] Dan. 5.25.
[l] Heb. 10 31.

Now both hands of God are right hands vnto the iuſt and godly [m] thouoh he fall he ſhall not be caſt away, for the Lord vpholdeth him with his hand; [n] all things, euen woe ſo well as weale, worke together for the beſt vnto him, he findes and feeles each hand of the Lord gentle, for [o] in his right hand is length of dayes, and in his left hand riches and glory. Both hands of the Lord were ſo with Iohn the Baptiſt, as that it was no wonder if all men wondred at him. The firſt part of Zacharies hymne concerning Chriſt and his kingdome, is expounded in the Liturgie, tit. the Benedictus. The latter touching Iohn the Baptiſt and his office, Goſp. Sund. 3. and 4. in Aduent.

[m] Pſal 37.24.
[n] Rom. 8.28.
[o] Prou. 3.16.

The Epiſtle. Acts 12.1. vnd. p. 12

At the ſame time Herod the King ſtretched forth his hands to vex certaine of the Congregation, &c.

THis Chapter containeth a relation of Herods
- Bloudy life, in
  - Killing Iames the brother of Iohn with the ſword.
  - Impriſoning Peter.
- Terrible death, An Angell of the Lord ſmote him in the middeſt of his pride, becauſe he gaue not glorie vnto God, ſo that he was eaten vp of wormes and gaue vp the Ghoſt.

I am to treat of Saint Iames martyrdome vpon his proper holy day; that which eſpecially concernes our preſent feſtiuall, is S. Peters impriſonment. Wherein (according to the record of S. Luke) two things are more chiefly remarkable;

To

- To wit, his
  - Durance by Herods cruelty in
    - Apprehending and taking him aggrauated by circumstances of the
      - Cause why, for that it pleased the Iewes,
      - Time when, in the dayes of sweet bread.
    - Holding and keeping him fast:
      1. He put him in prison.
      2. He deliuered him to foure quaternions of souldiers to be kept.
      3. He caused him to be bound with two chaines.
      4. He set keepers and a double watch ouer him.
  - Deliuerance by Gods mercie, wherein also note the
    - Motiues, prayer without ceasing of the congregation.
    - Meane an Angell of the Lord.
    - Manner, a light shined, &c.

Because he saw it pleased the Iewes] Herod persecuted the Saints of God [P] not out of any hatred to Christs Gospell, or any loue to Moses law, but onely to serue his owne turne, namely, to please the people. So Pilate to content the Iewes (as it is apparent in the 4 Gospels historie) quit Barrabas a notable prisoner, Matth. 27.16. a notorious murtherer, Marke 15.7. but scourged Iesus, and deliuered him into their hands to be crucified, albeit he did openly confesse that he was a iust man, in whom he could finde no fault at all, Iohn 19.4. So Felix willing to get fauour of the Iewes, left Paul bound, Acts 24.28. It is a base sinne in a subiect to be made his Princes instrument in any wicked designe, as [r] Ioab was king Dauids agent in murthering Vriah the Hittite, and the [f] nobles of Iezreel Ahabs and Iezebels instruments in killing Naboth for his Vineyard. But it is a most vnworthy thing for a Prince to flatter and to follow his subiects in their giddie courses, for ordinarily the people walke not in the best but in the barren way, [t] non qua eundum est, sed qua itur. It is a good [u] obseruation that popular and military dependence in noble men to make them great, are like Icarus two wings, which were ioyned on with wax, they will haply for a while mount them aloft, and then faile them at the height. It is therefore better to stand vpon two feet than to flie vpon two wings, the two feet are the two kinds of Iustice, Commutatiue and Distributiue, for great men shall grow greater if they will aduance merit, and releeue wrongs.

The Scriptures are plentifull in this argument, [x] If sinners entice thee, consent not; [y] thou shalt not follow a multitude to doe euill: [z] Blessed is the man that hath not walked in the counsell of the vngodly, nor stood in the way of sinners, &c. If (said [a] Paul) I should yet please men, I were not the seruant of Christ: and therefore let Princes and Prelates also take heed that they be not too popular in their courses, alway remembring the wards of Peter and Iohn, Acts 4.19. Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken vnto you more than vnto God, iudge ye.

2. From hence we may learne, that the wicked accord in doing mischiefe, though otherwise they be most opposite. The Sadduces, Herodians and Pharisees, were Sectaries of diuers and [b] aduerse factions, all differing one from another, and yet all these ioyned together against Christ, Matth. 22. The Libertines, and Cyreneans, and Alexandrians, and Cilicians, and Asians, disputed against S. Stephen, Acts 6. The Macedonians, Arrians, and Eunomians had [c] confused language like the Giants in old time, who built the tower of [d] Babell; and yet in malice they were linked against the true Catholikes. Herod neither loued the Iewes, nor the Iewes Herod, yet both agree to vex the Church, according to that in the second Psalme, The kings of the earth stand vp, and the rulers take counsell together against the Lord, and against his anointed: and therefore that [e] Wisdome may be iustified of all her children, let vs which are true Christians [f] endeuour to keepe the vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace, being of [g] one heart, and of one soule, of one [h] accord.

P Caluin & Pelargus in loc.

P Matth. 27. Marke 15. Luke 23. Iohn 19.

r 2 Sam 11.
f 1 King 21.

t Seneca.
u Sir. Fran. Bacon. apolog. pag. 17.

x Prou 1.10.
y Exod 23 2.
z Psalm. 1.1.
a Galat. 1.10.

b Iosephus antiquit. lib. 18. ca. 2.

c Socrates hist. lib. 5 cap 10.
d Gen. 11.

e Luke 7.35.
f Ephes. 4.3.
g Acts 4.32.
h Philip. 2.2.

and of one iudgement, that as there is a ſocietie of Ieſuites, a family of Anabaptiſts, a brotherhood of Schiſmatickes; euen ſo to confront all theſe, let there be ſtill a Communion of Saints, and a perpetuall holy league in truth, againſt all ſuch as trouble Gods Iſrael. See Goſpell Sund. 18. and 23. after Trinitie.

Then were the dayes of ſweet bread] The feaſt of vnleauened bread was inſtituted by [i] Moſes according to Gods owne direction, and afterward repeated by Duke [k] Ioſua, and from his time, celebrated by Gods people ſolemnly till this day. [l] This circumſtance then aggrauates the bloudie ſinne of Herod, who did not abſtaine from his michieuous enterpriſes on a feaſt ſo high and holy. The Iewes obſerued their Eaſter in abſtaining from leauened bread, the myſterie whereof and morall (as [m] Paul teacheth) is, that we ſhould purge the old leauen of ſinne, [n] that corrupteth and ſowreth all the ſweetneſſe of our life before God, and become a new lumpe, voide of the leauen of malicious neſſe and wickednesse: but Herod here contrariwiſe ſowred the whole dough with his leauen of miſchiefe and malice.

[i] Exod. 12.
[k] Ioſua 5.10.
[l] Aretius. Salmeron.
[m] 1.Cor.5.7,8.
[n] Church hom. of the reſurrection of Chriſt

Againe from hence we further obſerue Herods [o] hypocriſie, who ſeemed to reuerence the feaſt in ſuch ſort that he would not ſlay Peter in the dayes of ſweet bread, and yet he caught him, and put him in priſon, and deliuered him to foure quaternions of ſouldiers to be kept, intending after Eaſter to bring him forth to the people: ſo the chiefe Prieſts who gaue Iudas Iſcariot thirtie peeces of ſiluer to betray Chriſt, afterward ſaid, [p] it was the priſe of bloud, and therefore not lawfull for vs to put them into the treaſurie: ſo the Phariſies [q] ſtrained out a gnat, and ſwallowed vp a camell: ſo the [r] Popiſh Monks hold it an honeſter thing for a Prieſt to be intangled with many concubines in ſecret, than openly to be ioyned in mariage with one wife.

[o] Caluin. Kilius. Arcularius.
[p] Matth.27.6.
[q] Matth.23.24.
[r] See Epiſtle Sun.1.in Lent.

He put him in priſon.] [s] Foure things increaſe the miſeries of a man in cuſtodie, the priſon, ſouldiers, chaines, and keepers, all which Herod vſed in the perſecution of S.Peter at this time. 1. He put Peter in priſon. 2. [t] Doubting that the priſon was not ſtrong enough, he deliuered him vnto foure quaternions, [u] that is, ſixteene ſouldiers: for [x] quaternion is not as centurion, a word of office, but of number. Now theſe ſixteene, by foure and foure, did euery [y] ſix houres throughout the whole night and day watch Peter, or elſe euery [z] three houres in the night only: [a] or it may be, that all the ſixteene did watch all the night, two within the priſon, and the reſt in a guard without. 3. Herod fearing that his priſoner, notwithſtanding all this, might eſcape, cauſed him to be bound with two chaines. 4. Leſt haply chaines and all ſhould faile, the keepers before the doore kept the priſon, his intent was to make all ſure, that he might after Eaſter bring him forth, and expoſe him vnto the peoples malice. Poore Peter was bound, not only with one, but with two chaines and he ſlept betweene two ſouldiers, and he was guarded by two watches, the firſt and the ſecond. So [b] Nebuchadnezzar full of indignation and rage, commanded that the fierie furnace, into the midſt whereof Shadrach, Meſhech, and Abednego were to be caſt, ſhould at once be made hot ſeuen times more than it was wont. So the perſecutors of [c] Daniel, after he was throwne by them into the Lions den, laid a ſtone vpon the mouth of the den, leaſt otherwiſe he might eſcape their violent iawes and pawes. So the Prieſts and Phariſies intreated Pilate when Chriſt was dead, that he would giue [d] command for the making of his Sepulchre ſure, leaſt his Diſciples ſhould come by night and ſteale him away. Now the Lord who dwelleth in heauen, and is a preſent helpe to his ſeruants in trouble, [e] laughs them to ſcorne, for when the three children were now ready to be caſt into the flames of the ſcorching furnace, they told Nebuchadnezzar vnto his face, we are not carefull to anſwer thee in this matter. And Daniel in the Lions den had an Angell of God for his guard, who ſtopped the mouthes of the beaſts, and ſo no manner of hurt was found vpon him: and ſo S. Peter here, though he were caſt into priſon, and bound with two chaines, yet (hauing a good cauſe and a good conſcience) ſecurely ſlept betweene two ſouldiers, euen the night before cruell Herod would haue brought him out vnto the people. The prophane [f] Poet ſpake diuinely, ſat fautorum habet ſemper qui rectè facit; and therefore Peter in his indurance caſt his burden

[s] Laurinus & gloſſa in loc.
[t] Aretius.
[u] Oecumen. vertit ſyrus ſexdecem. militibus.
[x] Lorinus.
[y] Arius Montan.
[z] Oecumen.
[a] Aretius.
[b] Dan.3.19.
[c] Dan 6.17.
[d] Matth.27.64.
[e] Pſal.2.4.
[f] Plaut.prolog. Amphit.

[g] burthen vpon the Lord, and ſaid happily with [h] Dauid, I will lay me downe in peace, and take my reſt, for it is thou Lord only that makes me dwell in ſafetie. God either deliuereth his ſeruants out of perſecution, as he did Peter; or elſe if he crowne them with martyrdome as he did S. Iames, he will in his kingdome of glory giue them in ſtead of this bitter a better inheritance. [i] Pro veritate morientes, cum veritate viuentes.

Prayer was made without ceaſing of the Congregation] Prayers and teares are the Churches armour, and therefore when Peter was impriſoned by cruell Herod, the Congregation commeth vnto prayer, and not vnto powder for his deliuerance, they did not aſſault the priſon, nor kill the ſouldiers, nor breake the chaines, only prayer and patience were their weapons, [k] arma Chriſtianorum in aduerſis alia eſſe non debent quàm patientia & precatio: prayer (quoth [l] Auguſtine) is the key of heauen, and as it were that fierie chariot of [m] Eliah, whereby we mount vp, and haue our conuerſation with God on high, it is the hand of a Chriſtian which is able to reach from earth to heauen, and to take forth euerie manner of good gift out of the Lords treaſure; ſo the Scripture ſpeakes in expreſſe termes, [n] aske & ye ſhal haue, &c, The prayer of a righteous man auaileth much if it be feruent, Iames 5.16. Aske in [o] faith, and then all things are poſſible to him that beleeueth, Marke 9.23. Many times our prayers are ſent out like to incenſe, made happily according to the Lords direction, but not kindled with fire from his altar; that is, petitions lawfull enough, and agreeable to Gods holy word, but not poured out in feruencie. We fall into them often without preparation, and vtter a number of words without deuotion, and therefore no maruell if we miſſe, when as we thus aske amiſſe. But if our prayer be, like the Churches here, made without ceaſing, if it be faithfull and feruent, the God of all grace will out of the riches of his mercy giue vs either that we deſired, as [p] Eliah prayed for raine, and the heauen gaue raine: or elſe that which is better, as God tooke [q] Moſes into the ſpirituall Canaan, becauſe he did not enioy that earthly Canaan: or at the leaſt that which is ſufficient, as he told Paul, 2.Cor.12.9. My grace is ſufficient for thee. See Goſp. Sun. 5. after Eſter.

There is nothing in the word [r] more ſtrong than a man who giueth himſelfe to feruent prayer, his deuotion is ſo powerfull as that it [ſ] commandeth all things in heauen, earth, and hell; it commandeth all the foure Elements, ayre, fire, water, earth: Ayre, Iames 5.17. Elias prayed earneſtly that it might not raine, and it rained not on the earth for three yeares and ſix monethes, he ſhut vp heauen as the [t] Wiſeman reports of him, he ſaid, [u] as the Lord God of Iſrael liueth before whom I ſtand, there ſhall be neither dew nor raine theſe yeeres, but according to my word: againe he prayed for raine, and the raine fell, and the earth brought forth her fruit. Fire, the ſame Prophet Elias by his prayers [x] three times brought fire from heauen, Eccleſiaſticus 48.3. Water, at the [y] crying of Moſes vnto the Lord, the red ſea runne backe and was made drie land, ſo that Gods Iſrael walked vpon firme ground in the middeſt of the ſea: but when their enemies purſued them, all the diuided waters returned, and ouer-whelmed them in the deepe; and at the prayer of the ſame Moſes, bitter waters were made ſweet, Exod.15.25. Earth, vpon the complaint of Moſes vnto God, the [z] earth opened her mouth, and ſwallowed vp Korath, Dathan and Abiram, and all their families, and all their goods: inſo much that they together with all theirs went downe quicke into the pit, and the ground cloſed vpon them, and they periſhed in the ſight of Gods people. Nay the prayer of one deuout man is able to conquer an hoaſt of enemies in battell, for in the fight betweene Iſrael and Amalek, [a] when Moſes held vp his hand, Iſrael preuailed, but when he let his hand downe, Amalek preuailed. In this preſent text the prayer of the congregation without ceaſing, fetched an Angell out of heauen, and brought a ſhining light into the darke dungeon, and looſed the fetters from Saint Peters feet, and the chaines from his hands, it brake thorow the firſt and ſecond watch, and opened an iron gate, and ſo deliuered the ſeruant of God from the waiting of the Iewes.

[g] Pſal.55 23.
[h] Pſal.4.9.
[i] Auguſt. de Ciuit. Dei, lib.4. cap 30.
[k] Salmeron tract 35. in Act.
[l] Church. hom. concerning Prayer, part.2.
[m] 2.King 2.11.
[n] Matth.7.7.
[o] Iames 1.6.
[p] Iames 5.18.
[q] Deut.34.
[r] Chryſoſtom.
[ſ] Eſt quædam omnipotentia precum, Alſtedius ſyſtem. Theolog. lib.4. cap.2
[t] Eccleſ 48 3.
[u] 1.King.17.1.
[x] 1.Kin.18.38. 2 Kin 1.10.12
[y] Exod.14.
[z] Numb.16.
[a] Exod.17.11.

What ſhould I ſay more? prayer is ſo potent, that it raiſeth the[b] dead; it ouercommeth [c] Angels, it caſteth out[d] deuils, and that which is yet more wonderfull, it maſtereth euen God himſelfe: for when [e] Iacob wreſtled with God, he ſaid, I will not let thee goe, except thou bleſſe me: when the Lord ſaid, let me goe, becommeth it Iacob to ſay, I will not let thee goe? yea (beloued) there be ſome things wherein the Lord is very well content that his ſeruants ſtriue with him as namely, when they haue his word for their warrant, it is a commendable ſtrife to take no refuſall at his hand, and in effect it is nothing elſe but a conſtant affirmation that his truth is inuiolable. So the woman of [f] Canaan ſtroue with Chriſt, ſhe would take no deniall of that which he had promiſed: and blinde [g] Bartimeus made Chriſt as he paſſed in his way to ſtand ſtill, he could not for the multitude lay hands on him, and yet his prayers reached vnto him, and held him faſt vntill he receiued a comfortable anſwer, receiue thy ſight, thy faith hath ſaued thee: So when Almightie God would haue deſtroyed his people becauſe they worſhipped the golden Calfe, ſaying, theſe be thy Gods O Iſrael, which haue brought thee out of the land of Ægypt: Moſes fell downe on his face before the Lord, and prayed vnto his God, he ſtood (ſaith the [h] Pfalmiſt) in the gap as a mediator betweene God and his people, to turne away his wrathfull indignation, and this prayer was ſo powerfull, as that it conſtrained the Lord in the middſt of his anger to ſay vnto Moſes [i] let me alone, that my wrath may waxe hot againſt them: all the powers of heauen, and the crying of all men on earth, are not able to hold the Lord from doing any worke he is about to doe, for he can[k] meaſure the waters in his fiſt; and mete heauen with his ſpan; and weigh the mountaines in ſcales; and the hils in a ballance; [l] whatſoeuer pleaſeth him he doth in heauen, and in earth, and in the ſea: yet the prayers of his children are able to binde him hand and foot, and to compell him (as it were) to powre downe an vndeſerued bleſſing, and to turne away a iuſt deſerued puniſhment: the very crying of an infant that vtters no diſtinct voyce, moues a mother vnto compaſſion, and ſo the Lord pittying vs as a [m] father, and comforting vs as a [n] mother, heareth our very groanes, and ſo [o] fulfilleth our deſires, if we call vpon him in faith and feare.

Now the reaſon why the prayers of the faithfull are ſo powrefull, is, becauſe they be not ours, but the interceſſion of Gods owne ſpirit in vs, powred out in the name of Chriſt his owne Sonne, in whom he is euer [p] well pleaſed. For as for vs, [q] we know not what to pray as we ought, but the ſpirit it ſelfe makes requeſt for vs with ſighes which cannot be expreſſed; it is the ſpirit whereby we cry abba father; [r] as in vs the ſpirit makes requeſt for vs, ſo with the Father he grants our ſuits, and forgiues our ſinnes, that for which we pray, euen he giueth vnto vs who giueth vs this grace to pray: God inuiteth vs to [s] come vnto him, and to [t] call vpon him in all our troubles; and his holy ſpirit when as we preſent our ſelues before the throne of grace, helpeth our infirmities, and maketh interceſſion for vs: and therefore no maruell if the Lord be bound by deuout men with his owne promiſes, as [u] Sampſon was by Dalila with his owne haire. Let theſe godly meditations ſtrengthen our feeble hearts and weake hands, that they faint not in deuotion, but according to the patterne of the Saints here, and the precept of Paul [x] elſewhere, we may without ceaſing alwayes pray, [y] that is, vpon all occaſions offred as well for our ſelues as other: [z] Omne quod agis oratione obſignato, id verò maximè de quo mentem vides dubitantem.

Behold the Angell of the Lord was there preſent] I am occaſioned here to treat of two queſtions eſpecially: The firſt concerning Angelicall protection in generall, as namely, whether Angels helpe and keepe men from euill or no? The ſecond, whether beſide the generall protection of many or all Angels in common, euery man hath one peculiar Angell as his peculiar guard and guide? The doctrine concerning Angelicall protection in generall at the firſt appearance may ſeeme ſtrange becauſe the Scripture teacheth vs expreſly, that [a] the pathes of man are directed by the Lord, and Pſalm. 34. 18. Great are the troubles of the righteous, but the Lord deliuereth him out of all: and for this ſo particular care and prouidence, God

[b] 1. Kin 17. 21.
[c] Gen. 19. 22.
[d] Matth. 17. 21.
[e] Gen. 32. 26.
[f] Matth 15.
[g] Marke 10. Luke 18.
[h] Pſal. 106. 23.
[i] Exod. 32. 10.
[k] Eſay 40. 12.
[l] Pſal. 135. 6.
[m] Pſal. 103. 13.
[n] Eſay 66. 13.
[o] Pſal. 145. 19.
[p] Matth. 3. 17.
[q] Rom. 8. 26.
[r] Bernard. in feſto Pent. ſer. 1.
[s] Matth. 11. 28.
[t] Pſal. 50. 17.
[u] Iudges. 16.
[x] Epheſ. 6. 18. 1. Theſſ. 5. 17.
[y] Zanchius in loc ad Epheſ. ſee Thomas 2. 2e. queſt. 83 art. 14.
[z] Nilus in ſententijs.
[a] Pſal. 37. 23.

God is often compared vnto a [b]Father, [c]Mother, [d]Paſtor, [e]Bridegroome, [f]Buckler, [g] Eagle, &c. to ſhew that he only is to vs [h] all in all: Eſay 63.16. Doubtleſſe thou art our Father, though Abraham be ignorant of vs, and Iſrael know vs not: yet thou, O Lord, art our Father, and our Redeemer. As who would ſay, thoſe that are fathers according to the fleſh, are not worthy of that name, if they be compared with thee: Can a woman forget her childe? and not haue compaſſion on the ſonne of her wombe? though ſhe ſhould forget (ſaith the Lord, Eſay 49.15.) yet I will not forget thee: behold I haue grauen thee vpon the palme of my hands, and thy walls are euer in my ſight. [i] If thou beeſt burdened with vnrighteouſneſſe, Chriſt is thy righteouſneſſe: if thou need helpe, he is thy ſtrength: if thou feare death, he is life: if thou deſire heauen, he is the way: if thou hate darkeneſſe, he is light: if thou ſeeke for meat, he is food: for although he be but one in himſelfe, yet he is all things vnto vs for the releeuing of our neceſſities, which are without number: and therefore if the rule be true, non ſunt multiplicanda entia ſine neceſſitate, what need any man expect other aid from other powers, though Angelicall and neuer ſo great, ſeeing Almightie God himſelfe is the [k] keeper of Iſrael, our immediate Protector, [l] ſtrength, hope, and helpe in trouble?

[m] Anſwer is made, that Angelicall cuſtodie doth not extenuate, but rather extoll the greatneſſe and goodneſſe of God toward mankinde, for as much as it is an execution of his high and holy prouidence. For as by the [n] wiſdome of an excellent Emperour, all the Towers, all the Cities, all the Caſtles, are fortified with men and munition againſt the common enemies aſſault, leaſt by barbarous innaſion they ſhould be deſtroyed: euen ſo, becauſe the deuils are in euery corner raging & ranging for our ouerthrow, God hath ordained for our guard that an hoſt of Angels ſhould [o] pitch their tents about vs, and [p] keepe vs in all our wayes. Indeed God is able to defend vs himſelfe by himſelfe, through his immediate concourſe which he hath in all things, but to manifeſt his aboundant loue to men, which are [q] wormes, and rottenneſſe, and meere [r] vanitie, he doth inioyne the pages of his honour, and princes of his court, euen his glorious Angels, to become meſſengers and miniſters for their ſakes, who ſhall be heires of ſaluation, and that all the time of this life, in the houre of death, and in the day of iudgement.

The good which Angels procure to the Saints in this life, concerneth either the body or the ſoule: as for the body, theſe miniſtring ſpirits attend vs euen from the beginning of our dayes vnto the end, moſt carefully performing all manner of offices appertaining neceſſarily to the preſeruation of our temporall life. When [s] Agar caſt out of Abrahams family wandred in the wilderneſſe, an Angell appeared vnto her, and aduiſed her to returne to her miſtreſſe, and to humble her ſelfe vnder her hands: the reuenging Angels caught and carried [t] Lot out of Sodome and Gomorrha, before they did burne thoſe Citties with fire and brimſtone. [u] Abraham as being aſſured of the protection of Gods Angels in all his wayes, ſaid vnto his ſeruant, the Lord God of heauen who tooke me from my fathers houſe, &c. will ſend his Angell before thee: when [x] Iacob feared his brother Eſau, he met Angels comming vnto him, & thereupon he did acknowledge, that they ſhould be his guard in his iourney, ſaying, this is Gods hoſt: an Angell appeared vnto Duke [y] Ioſua, when he was about to ſacke Iericho, with a drawne ſword in his hand, as a Captaine to fight for Iſrael: an Angell comforted and fed [z] Elias when he fled from Iezabel: an Angell deliuered the three children out of the fierie furnace, Dan. 3. an Angell aſſiſted Daniel in the Lions den, and kept him alſo from all manner of hurt, Dan. 6. an Angell directed [a] Ioſeph to flie into Ægypt: an Angell miniſtred vnto [b] Chriſt in his heauineſſe, and in our preſent text, The Lords Angell brought Peter out of priſon, and deliuered him out of the hands of Herod, and from all the waiting of the people of the Iewes.

Angels procure good vnto the ſoules of the faithfull, illuminando & confortando, ſaith [c] Aqui. becauſe they be maintainers & furtherers of the true worſhip of God and of all good meanes whereby ſaluation is attained. The [d] Law was deliuered in Mount Sina by the hands of Angels: an Angell expounded vnto [e] Daniel the 70. weekes

[b] Deut 32.6.
[c] Eſay 49.15.
[d] Pſal.23.1.
[e] Cant 5.
[f] Pſal.18.1.
[g] Exod 19 4.
[h] 1.Cor.15.28.
[i] Ambroſe.
[k] Pſal.121.4.
[l] Pſal.46.1.
[m] Thom.part.1. quaſt.113.a.1. & 2.
[n] Chryſoſt ſer.de Aſcenſ. Dom.
[o] Pſal 34.7.
[p] Pſal.91.11.
[q] Iob 15.6.
[r] Pſal 39.6.
[s] Gen.16.7.
[t] Gen 19.16.
[u] Gen.24.7.
[x] Gen.32.1.
[y] Ioſua 5.13.
[z] 1.King.19.
[a] Matth.2.13.
[b] Matth.4.11. Luk.22.43.
[c] Part.1.quaſt. 11 art.1.
[d] Galat.3.19. Act.7.38.
[e] Dan.9.21.

weekes: an Angell forbids [f] Iohn to worſhip him, and inioyned him to worſhip God the Creator of heauen and earth: an Angell declared the will of God vnto father [g] Abraham, that he ſhould not kill his ſonne Iſaac: an Angell reuealed the myſterie of Chriſts [h] conception, vnto the Virgin his mother: of Chriſts birth, vnto certaine ſhepherds in the field attending their flocks by night, Luk. 2.10. of Chriſts reſurrection, vnto Marie Magdalen, and other deuout women, Mat. 28.5. In a word, Angels are purſiuants, harbengers, and heralds betwixt heauen and earth, alwayes in a a readineſſe to make knowne the will of God vnto men.

In the houre of death Angels conuey the ſoules of the faithfull, as they did the ſoule of [i] Lazarus into bleſſed Abrahams boſome. And in the day of iudgement they ſhall [k] gather together all Gods elect from the foure windes, and from the one end of heauen vnto the other, that they may come before Chriſt, and enter into the fruition of eternall glory both in body and ſoule.

The vſe of this doctrine is manifold. 1. It ſerues to terrifie the wicked who deſpiſe Gods children, for ſo Chriſt himſelfe reaſoneth, Matth. 18.10. Deſpiſe not one of theſe little ones, becauſe I ſay vnto you, that in heauē their Angels alway behold the face of my Father. It behoues reuiling ſcoffers therefore to take heed whom they mocke, for though haply good men (called little ones in reſpect of their innocencie and humilitie) for their parts are content to put vp abuſes and iniuries; yet their Angels may take iuſt reuenge by ſmiting them (as they did Herod in this chapter) with heauy puniſhments for their offences.

2. This may teach vs humilitie; for if Angels high and holy ſerue vs, let vs not thinke it any bad or baſe dutie to [l] ſerue one another in loue.

3. We may learne from hence to behaue our ſelues in open and in ſecret places after a reuerent & ſeemly manner, as being ſpectacles vnto glorious Angels, which are [m] witneſſes and obſeruers of all our words and deeds, to this purpoſe [n] Paul ſaith, that the woman ought to haue power on her head, becauſe of the Angels. [o] That is, not only the Miniſters of the Church, but Gods heauenly Angels, which daily wait vpon his children, and guard them in all their wayes.

4. This ought to ſtirre vs vp vnto the Lords praiſe, ſaying with [p] Dauid, Lord, what is man, that thou haſt ſuch reſpect vnto him, or the ſonne of man that thou ſhouldeſt ſo regard and guard him? Alas all fleſh is graſſe, and man is like a thing of nought; yet behold, if he truly loue God, [q] all things are for his good, for God is his father, the Church his mother, Chriſt his brother, the Holy Ghoſt his comforter, Angels his attendants, all other creatures his [r] ſubiects, the whole world his [ſ] Inne, and heauen his [t] home. I will end this obſeruation with a meditation of Saint [u] Auguſtine.

O Lord, thou makeſt thy ſpirits meſſengers for my ſake, to whom thou haſt giuen charge ouer me to keep me in all my waies, that I hurt not my foot againſt a ſtone. For theſe are the watchmen ouer the [x] walls of the new Ieruſalem, & of the mountaines about the ſame, which attend and keep watch ouer the flock, leſt he as a lion make a pray of our ſoules, while there is none to deliuer; he, I meane that old [y] ſerpent, our aduerſary the deuill, who walketh about as a [z] roaring lion, ſeeking whom he may deuoure. Theſe citizens of Ieruſalem aboue walke with vs in all our waies, they go in and out with vs, diligently conſidering how godly & how honeſtly we do walk in the [a] midſt of a naughty & crooked generation, how earneſtly we ſeeke the [b] kingdome of God and the righteouſnes thereof; with what [c] feare and trembling we do ſerue thee, and how our hearts [d] reioyce in thee, O Lord: thoſe which labour they ſtrengthen, thoſe which reſt they protect, ſuch as fight they encourage they crowne ſuch as ouercome, they reioyce with ſuch as [e] reioyce, ſuch I meane, as reioyce in thee; and they ſuffer with ſuch as ſuffer, I ſay, with ſuch as ſuffer [f] for thy names ſake: great is the care which they haue of vs, & great is the affectiō of their loue towards vs, & all this for the honor of thine ineſtimable good will, wherwith thou haſt loued vs: for they loue thoſe, whom thou doeſt loue: they keepe thoſe, whom thou doeſt keepe: they forſake thoſe, whom thou doeſt forſake: neither can they abide ſuch as worke iniquitie, becauſe thou alſo [g] hateſt all them that worke iniquitie.

[f] Apoc. 19.10.
[g] Gen. 22.12.
[h] Luke 1.31.
[i] Luke 16.22.
[k] Matth. 24.31.
[l] Galat. 5.13.
[m] Bucan. loc. com. tit. Angel. quæſt. 34.
[n] 1. Cor. 11.10.
[o] Perkins expoſ. Creed. tit. Creation of Angels.
[p] Pſal. 144. 3.
[q] Rom. 8.28.
[r] Pſal. 8.6.
[ſ] 1. Pet. 2.11.
[t] Iohn 14.2.
[u] Soliloqu. cap. 27.
[x] Eſay 62.2.
[y] Reuel. 12.9.
[z] 1. Pet. 5.8.
[a] Philip 2.15.
[b] Matth. 6.33.
[c] Pſal. 2.11.
[d] Zachar. 10.7.
[e] Rom 12.15.
[f] 1. Pet. 4.14.
[g] Pſal. 5.5.

iniquitie. When we doe well the Angels reioyce, but the deuils are ſad: when we doe ill the deuils reioyce, but the Angels are ſad: grant therefore, good Lord, that they may alwaies reioyce ouer vs, that both thou alwaies maiſt be glorified in vs, and we may be brought with them into thy fold, that together we may praiſe thy name, O Creator of men and Angels.

To the ſecond quære, whether beſides the generall protection of all Angels in common, euery particular man hath one peculiar Angell for his guard; I finde that many learned and ancient Doctors hold the affirmatiue part. So [h] S. Baſil categorically, to euery one that beleeueth in Chriſt an aſſiſtant Angell is appointed, vnleſſe we driue him away from vs by our wicked actions: for as ſmoke driueth away bees, and ſtinch doues; ſo filthy ſin the Angell the keeper of our life. The which aſſertion he confirmes [i] elſewhere more at large by diuers teſtimonies of holy writ: ſo [k] S. Hierome, that euery one of vs hath his Angell, many places of Scripture teach, as namely that of Chriſt, Mat. 18.10. See that ye deſpiſe not one of theſe little ones, for I ſay vnto you, that in heauen their Angels alway behold the face of my Father, &c. as alſo that which is recorded, Acts 12.15. it is Peters Angell. So [l] Chryſoſtome, Euery faithfull one hath his Angell; indeed at the firſt holy Angels were according to the number of the nations, but now not ſo, but according to the number of the faithfull. So [m] Theophylact, All men, eſpeciall the faithfull, haue their Angels. So [n] Gregorie Nyſſen ſpeaking of this argument, inſinuates that it was ordinarily, holden of the Fathers; A true ſpeech hath deſcended vnto vs, by which we beleeue that our nature ſince our fall into ſinne is not altogether forlorne of the diuine clemencie, neither left without his ſuccour, but that then alſo there is giuen to euery man one of the Angels as an helper and protector. So [o] Primaſius, Vnto euery man (as the Doctors ſay) there is generally giuen an Angell for his cuſtodie, and this either from his birth, or rather from his baptiſme. Vnto theſe Fathers I might adde [p] Origen, [q] Iuſtine Martyre, [r] Clemens Alexandrinus, [s] Auguſtine, [t] Euſebius, & c. as alſo moſt of the [u] Schoolemen, and [x] many Proteſtant Diuines.

Yet for mine owne part I ſay (ſaluo ſemper meliore iudicio) with Caluin. Inſtitut. lib 1. cap. 14. §. 7. An ſingulis fidelibus ſinguli Angeli ſint ad eorum defenſionem attributi pro certo aſſerere non auſim: and my reaſon is, for that I ſee not any cleare ground in holy Bible for ſuch an aſſertion. The two chiefe places, in the iudgement of Diuines as well ancient as moderne, are, Matth. 18.10. and Act. 12.15. The firſt whereof (as [y] Caietan and [z] other popiſh expoſitors obſerue) proues not euidently, that euery little one hath one peculiar Angell for his guardian in particular, but only that all are appointed ouer all in generall, as the Scripture conſtrueth it ſelfe Luk. 15.10. ſaying of euery one of thoſe little ones which turne from their ſinnes, that all Gods holy Angels reioyce at it: and as for the words of the Diſciples aſtoniſhed at the ſudden newes of Peters comming, it is not he, but his Angell: [a] anſwer is made, that this allegation is a very ſlender proofe; becauſe the Diſciples in Maries houſe being amazed, vpon the ſtrange report of Rhode, ſpake they knew not what: ſo we might proue that the Saints departed may dwell in tabernacles; becauſe [b] Peter ſaid, Lord, let vs make tabernacles, one for Moſes, another for Elias. And whereas it is further obiected, that they ſpake after the common opinion of men in that age; we reply, that in thoſe dayes it was a receiued opinion, that dead men did walke, as it appeares by [c] Herod, who thought our Sauiour was Iohn Baptiſt riſen againe from the dead. Vox populi is not alway vox Dei, common errors are noe certaine rules of truth: and what if that place were ſo manifeſt as they could wiſh it, why might it not be conſtrued thus, it is his Angell, [d] that is, ſome Angell which Almightie God hath ſent for his deliuerance, this being according to the Scripture more than that, to haue it his particular Angell; ſo the preſent text here, behold the Angell of the Lord was there preſent, and a light ſhined in the priſon, and he ſmote Peter on the ſide, and ſtirred him vp, ſaying ariſe vp quickly, and his chaines fell from his hands, &c.

The

h In Pſal. 33. & 48.

i Lib 3. contra Eunomium, circ. prin.

k Com. in Eſaiæ. 66.

l Hom 3. in 1. Coloſſ.

m In Matth 18.

n In vita Moſes.

o In Heb. 1.14.

p Hom. 8 in Gen.

q Quæſt. 30.

r Strom. 6.

s Soliloq. cap. 27.

t De præparat. Euang. lib. 13. cap. 7.

u In 2. ſent. diſt. 11.

x Salkeld treat of Angels, cap. 44.

y Com. in loc.

z Ambroſ. Compl. Epiſ. apud S. Senen Bibliothec. lib. 6. annot 77.

a Deering lect. 6. in Hebr.

b Matth. 17.4. Marke. 9.5.

c Matth. 14.2.

d Caluin. Inſtit. lib. 1. cap. 14. §. 7. & com. in loc.

The Gospell. MATTH. 16.13. vnto v. 20

When Iesus came into the coasts, of the city which is called Cæsarea Philippi, &c.

THis Scripture being a dialogue betweene Christ and his Apostles, of it owne accord falleth into two questions, and two answers vnto those questions.

1. Quest. Whom doe men say that I the Sonne of man am? answer, some say thou art Iohn Baptist, &c.

2. Quest. Whom say ye that I am? answer, thou art the Christ the Son of the liuing God: the which answer is
- Commended, blessed art thou Simon, &c.
- Rewarded, vpon this rocke I will, &c.

Cæsarea Philippi] There were two Cæsareaes, one called [e] Stratonis vpon the Mediterrane sea, which Herod sumptuously built in the honour of Augustus Cæsar; another called Cæsarea Philippi, [f] founded by Philip (a brother of Herod the Tetrarch who beheaded Iohn the Baptist) in honour of Tiberius Cæsar, at the foot of Libanon. Philip built, [h] or rather repaired and enlarged this towne out of his seruiceable loue to Cæsar, but yet for his owne glory he did adde a Philippi to Cæsarea. The Papists in mingling the bloud of their Saints with the precious bloud of our Sauiour, and in making themselues also (by relying too much vpon their owne merits) halfe mediators, and ioynt purchasers of saluation with Christ, haue set vp in the Synagogue of Antichrist, as it were a Cæsarea Philippi. The Iesuited Papists especially swearing to the Kings Supremacie, with a Romish equiuocation, or Spanish reseruation, adde a Philippi to Cæsarea. This as [i] some thinke, was the citie where the Kings in old time receiued their tribute, and therefore the King of heauen aptly required of his Disciples in the very same place tributum confessionis: [k] or it may be, that Christ exacted this confession of faith in the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi, to signifie, that his Apostles should not only preach the Gospell among the Iewes, but also that [l] their sound should goe thorow all the earth, and their words vnto the ends of the world; or he made this demand farre from Hierusalem out of the Scribes and Pharisees hearing, [m] that they might the more fully and freely confesse what they thought of him.

Whom doe men say] He did not aske this question, as being [n] ignorant hereof himselfe, but to teach other, especially his Apostles, and such as hold the like place, nor to be [o] negligent in examining what opinion the world conceiueth of them, that if they heare ill, they may labour to cut off all iust occasions of so bad a report: if well, endeuour to deserue and preserue the same to Gods and the Gospels honour: [p] or he began with this quære, Whom doe men say? that he might hereby come the better vnto that other, whom doe ye say? he did not inquire what the [q] Pharisies or Priests say, for they reputed him a [r] deceiuer, a [s] Samaritan, a [t] glutton, and drinker of wine; but he doth aske what the people say, for so [u] S. Luke doth expound S. Matthew, whom say the people that I am?

The Sonne of man] He did ordinarily vse this stile speaking of himselfe for [x] three causes especially: 1. To put vs in minde how much he did abase himselfe for our sake [y] who being in the forme of God, made himselfe of no reputation, and tooke on him the forme of a seruant, and was found in shape as a man. 2. To confute the [z] Manichees and other Heretickes denying his humanitie. 3. By his example teaching vs, how we should thinke and speake of our selues with humilitie.

Some say that thou art Iohn Baptist, some Elias, some Ieremias] [a] They who conceiued he was Iohn Baptist, agreed with [b] Herod the Tetrarch, for when he heard of the fame of Iesus, he said vnto his seruants, This is Iohn Baptist, he is risen againe from the dead, and therefore great workes are wrought by him: other thought him Elias, [e] Ioseph. antiq. lib. 15. cap. 13. & de bello Iudaico lib. 1. cap. 16.

[f] Ioseph antiq. lib. 18 cap. 3.
[g] Hieron. Anselm.
[h] Aretius. Marlorat. Iansenius.
[i] Ardens.
[k] Dionys. Carthus. in fest. Pet. & Pauli.
[l] Rom. 10. 18.
[m] Theophylact. Iansen.
[n] Euthym. Rabanus.
[o] Caietan. Ardens. Iansen. ex Origine.
[p] Aretius.
[q] Theophylact. Euthym.
[r] Matth. 27. 63.
[s] Iohn 8. 48.
[t] Matth. 11. 19
[u] Luke 9. 18.
[x] Ardens.
[y] Philip. 2. 6.
[z] August. heres. 46.
[a] Theophylact.
[b] Matth. 14. 1.

Elias, for that he did ſo ſharply rebuke all degrees of men in his [c] preaching: other ſaid that he was Ieremy, for that he was endued with excellent knowledge, which he learned of no man, and that as [d] Ieremy from his childhood.

[e]Hence we may learne, that the rumors of the vulgar ſort are moſt vſually falſe, Bugs (as one [f] ſaid) to feare children and fooles. Againe, we note here [g] that there were ſundrie diſcrepant opinions of Chriſt among thoſe who were not of his ſchoole, ſome ſaid he was Iohn Baptiſt, other Elias, other Ieremias,

Scinditur incertum ſtudia in contraria vulgus;

But his owne Diſciples agreed all together in one truth, one ſpeaking it, and all according in it.

Now the reaſon why men erre ſo much, and haue ſo many Creeds almoſt as heads, is, becauſe they be men; for [h] all men are liers, and being left vnto themſelues, are [i] not able to thinke any thing which is good. The Philoſophers ingenie was great, and induſtrie greater, yet becauſe they were not guided by Gods ſpirit, their [k] imaginations were ſo vaine, that (as [l] Auguſtine notes) alij atque alij, aliud atque aliud opinati, Schollers of the ſame ſchoole differed among themſelues, [m] diſſenſerunt à magiſtris diſcipuli, & inter ſe condiſcipuli, neuer agreeing in any thing but in the vanitie of vanitie. The taletell Aſtrologers and Chronologers are ſo conſtant in their vnconſtancie, that it is truly ſaid of them, [n] inter horologia magis conuenit quàm inter exactos temporum calculatores. [o] Eraſmus hath obſerued the like of the Rabbins, and all Heretickes are in the ſame predicament, for being once run out of Chriſts ſchoole, they be diuided among themſelues, hauing confuſed language like to the builders of [p] Babel, and contrary tales like to the wicked accuſers of Suſanna. [q] Suaue mari magno, &c. quoth a Poet, It is a view of delight, to ſtand on the ſhore and to ſee ſhips toſſed with a tempeſt on the ſea: or in a fortified tower to behold two battels ioyne vpon a plaine: but it is a greater pleaſure for the minde of man, to be firmly ſetled in the certaintie of truth, and from thence to deſcry the manifold perturbations, errours, wauerings and wanderings vp and downe of other in the world. Bleſſed is Peter and bleſſed are all ſuch, as [r] endeauour to keepe the vnitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace, confeſſing one Lord, one Faith, one Baptiſme.

Whom ſay ye that I am] As who would ſay, men haue diuers, yea peruerſe iudgements of me, becauſe they be meere men: but what ſay ye which are more than men, as being directed by the Spirit of God? For S. Hierom, Ardens, Anſelme, Druthmarus, vpon the place haue noted an Antitheſis here, [s] prudens lector attende, quod ex conſequentibus textuq; ſermonis, Apoſtoli nequaquam homines ſed dij appellantur. The ſonnes of men, as being [t] lighter than vanitie it ſelfe, haue many fond imaginations of me, but I would know of you which are the ſonnes of God, of you which haue ſeene my wonders, and heard my words, of you which haue long conuerſed with me, whom ſay ye that I am? Simon Peter, as the [u] mouth of the reſt, and [x] head man of the queſt, anſwered for [y] all the company ſaying, thou art that Chriſt, the Sonne of the liuing God: a ſhort, but a ſweet confeſſion, comprehending in one ſentence the [z] whole Goſpell of Chriſt, as well concerning his natures, as his offices: he confeſſeth his natures, in affirming thou which art the Sonne of man, art alſo the Sonne of the Liuing God: his offices, in auowing, thou art that Chriſt.

It is a wittie ſaying of [a] Bernard, Fides linceos habet oculos, and therefore Simon Bar-Iona, though he beheld Chriſt with his corporall eyes, in the forme of a ſeruant, as the ſonne of man, yet with his ſpirituall eyes of faith he perceiued that he was alſo the Sonne of the liuing God. The Lord is termed a liuing God, to diſtinguiſh him from Idols, which are dead gods, [b] hauing mouthes and ſpeake not, eyes and ſee not, eares and heare not, neither is there any breath in their mouthes. And for as much as Angels and Kings are ſtiled Gods in holy Scripture, to diſtinguiſh him alſo from theſe liuing Gods, he is called the liuing God, [c] in whom all other Gods liue, and moue, and haue their being. And becauſe Saints are called often ſonnes of God, he is termed [d] that the Sonne, [d] inſinuating, that Chriſt is not

[c] Matth. 3. Luke 3.
[d] Ierem 1.5.
[e] Ardens.
[f] Socrates.
[g] Steph. Gard Serm. before King Edw. 6. ann. 1550. idem. Ianſen. con. cap. 66.
[h] Pſal. 116. 10.
[i] 2. Cor. 3. 5.
[k] Rom 1. 21.
[l] Lib. 8 de Ciuit. Dei, cap. 3.
[m] Idem lib. 18. De Ciuit. Dei, cap 41.
[n] Theodor. Bibliander de rat. temp. pag 1.
[o] Annot. in Matth 21.
[p] Gen. 11. 19.
[q] Lucret.
[r] Epheſ. 4. 3.
[s] Hieron. in loc.
[t] Pſal 62 9.
[u] Maldonat. ex Auguſtin. & Chryſoſt. in loc. Idem Ianſen. con. cap 66.
[x] Steph. Gardiner Winch. epiſc.
[y] Anſelm.
[z] Melanct. Marlorat. Beza.
[a] Serm. 1. in Epiphan.
[b] Pſal. 135. 16.
[c] Acts 17. 28.
[d] Theophylact. Caietan.

not a ſonne of God by grace, but the Sonne of God by nature, that [e] only begotten Sonne of God, ὁ μονογενὴς. As for his offices, it is ſaid [f] Emphatically, that Ieſus is ὁ Χριστὸς, not a Chriſt only, but alſo the Chriſt, or that Chriſt, euen the promiſed Meſſias of the world, for ſo that word is expounded, Iohn 1.41. We haue found the Meſſias, which is by interpretation the Chriſt. Ieſus then is that annointed of God, anointed with oyle of gladneſſe [g] aboue his fellowes, our annointed King to gouerne vs, our anointed Prophet to teach vs, our anointed Prieſt, who did ſuffer and offer vp himſelfe for our ſinnes, and for the ſinnes of the whole world. [h] Aaron the Prieſt was anointed, [i] Eliſa the Prophet anointed, [k] Saul the King anointed. In the Sauiour which is Chriſt, all theſe meet, that he might be a perfect Sauiour of all, he was all. A Prieſt after the order of Melchiſedech, Pſal. 110.4. A Prophet, to be heard when Moſes ſhould hold his peace, Deut.18.18. A King to ſaue his people, whoſe name ſhould be the Lord our righteouſneſſe, Ier. 23.6. Dauids Prieſt, Moſes Prophet, Ieremies King, and theſe formerly had met double, two of them in ſome other; Melchiſedech, King and Prieſt; Samuel, Prieſt and Prophet; Dauid, prophet and King, neuer all three, but in him alone, and ſo no perfect Chriſt but he: but he all, and ſo perfect. Thus in S. Peters confeſſion, euery particle and article hath his force, thou which art the Sonne of man, as being borne of Mary the Virgin, art the Chriſt the Sonne of the liuing God. S. Luke [l] reports that Peter anſwered the Chriſt of God, and [m] S. Marke ſaith only, thou art Chriſt, whereas our Euangeliſt here, thou art the Chriſt the Sonne of the liuing God, [n] but all in effect is one, ſeeing Chriſt alone is the whole: for he that confeſſeth thorowly Chriſt, is thorowly a Chriſtian, and doth hereby confeſſe him to be the Sonne of God, and Sauiour of men, euen that anointed [o] Biſhop of our ſoules, who [p] died for our ſinnes, and is raiſed againe for our iuſtification, and [q] appeareth in the ſight of God for vs as our agent and [r] aduocate, Bleſſed art thou Simon Bar-Iona] Vpon Peters anſwer, thou art the Chriſt, the Sonne of the liuing God, Ieſus replied after this ſort, [s] as if he ſhould haue ſaid, I am the naturall Sonne of God, as thou art the ſonne of Iona. Myſtically Simon ſignifieth obedience, and Ionas a doue: to [t] ſignifie that euery Scholler in Chriſts ſchoole muſt haue theſe two properties, obedience and ſimplicitie. Curious pride is a great let in Chriſtianitie, [u] God reſiſteth the proud, and giueth grace to the humble. The Philoſophers in [x] profeſſing themſelues to be wiſe, became fooles, and were ſo farre from acknowledging Ieſus for the Sonne of God, as that the preaching of Chriſt crucified, ſeemed fooliſhneſſe vnto them, 1.Cor.1.23. [y] or Simon is called the ſonne of a doue, becauſe fleſh and bloud reuealed not this myſterie, but the Holy Spirit which appeared in the likeneſſe of a doue, Matth. 3.16. or as [z] Hierome, Bar-Ionas is put for Bar-Iohanna, the ſonne of Iohn, as Chriſt in the 21. Chapter of S. Iohns Goſpell at the 15. verſe. Now Iohanna ſignifies the grace of God, inſinuating (as the ſame Father and [a] other Doctors obſerue) that Peter in vnderſtanding this hidden myſterie was the ſonne of grace, ſo Chriſt in the words immediately following, fleſh and bloud hath not opened that vnto thee, [b] not my fleſh and bloud, for if thou looke vpon me with a corporall eye, thou ſeeſt a man and nothing elſe: not thy fleſh and bloud, non conſanguinei, [c] thy father and thy mother taught it not, [d] this knowledge comes not from other men, or from thy ſelfe, no fleſh and bloud, [e] that is, the will and wit of man (as Paul Galath. 1.16. I communicated not with fleſh and bloud) I ſay, the wiſdome of man hath not opened this vnto thee, but my Father which is in heauen, as [f] Leo the Great gloſſeth it, non opinio te terrena feſellit, ſed inſpiratio cœleſtis inſtruxit. Faith is the [g] worke of God, and [h] no man knowes the Sonne but the Father, and no man commeth vnto me, except my Father draw him, Iohn 6.44. Bleſſed art thou therefore Simon Bar-Iona, becauſe my Father which is in heauen hath inſpired this confeſſion into thee: bleſſed art thou here, yet more bleſſed hereafter, as hauing hereby the [i] promiſes of the life preſent, and of that which is to come. So Truth it ſelfe telleth vs expreſly, [k] this is eternall life to know God, and whom he hath ſent, Ieſus Chriſt. He that is a true beleeuer is [l] bleſſed in the citie, bleſſed in the field, bleſſed in his going

[e] Iohn 3.16.
[f] Arctius. Eraſmus.
[g] Heb.1.9.
[h] Leuit.8.12.
[i] 1.Kin.19.16.
[k] 1.Sam.10.1.
[l] Luke 9.20.
[m] Mark.8.29.
[n] Steph. Gardiner vbi ſup.
[o] 1.Pet.2.25.
[p] Rom 4.25.
[q] Heb 9.24.
[r] Ioh 2.1.
[s] Chryſoſt. Theophylact. Ianſen.
[t] Ste. Gardiner.
[u] Iames 4.6.
[x] Rom.1.22.
[y] Eraſmus.
[z] Com in loc.
[a] Anſelm. Ianſen.
[b] Hilarius.
[c] Anſelm.
[d] Ardens.
[e] Euthym.
[f] Ser.2.in nat. Pet & Paul.
[g] Iohn. 6 29.
[h] Matth.11.27.
[i] 1.Tim 4.8.
[k] Iohn.17.3.
[l] Deut.28.

going forth, and bleſſed in his comming home, bleſſed in the [m] labours of his hands, in the fruit of his ground, in the flocks of his ſheepe, bleſſed in his wealth, and bleſſed in his [n] woe, bleſſed in his health, and bleſſed in his ſickneſſe alſo, for the Lord will comfort him when he lieth ſicke vpon his bed, and make his bed in his ſickneſſe, Pſal. 41. 3. bleſſed in all his life, bleſſed in his houre of [o] death, and moſt bleſſed in the day of Iudgement, when he ſhall haue perfect conſummation of bliſſe both in body and ſoule, Come ye bleſſed, inherit ye the kingdome, &c.

Vpon this rocke will I build my Church.] Stephen Gardiner preaching vpon this text before King Edward the 6. ſaid, It is a maruellous thing, that vpon theſe words the Biſhop of Rome ſhould found his ſupremacie, for whether it be ſuper Petram, or Petrum, all is one matter, it makes nothing at all for that his purpoſe: This place (quoth he) ſerues only for Chriſt, and nothing for the Pope: but afterward in the dayes of Queene [p] Marie, reading this Scripture with the Popes owne ſpectacles, he maintained that the Biſhop of Rome was the ſupreme head of the Catholike Church, and he bloudily perſecuted all thoſe which held the contrary doctrine. And after him in our age [q] Bellarmine, [r] Baronius, and other Papiſts of moſt eminent note for learning, cite this text as a pregnant teſtimonie, to proue S. Peters Lordſhip ouer the reſt of the Apoſtles, and ſo (though inconſequently) the Popes vnlimited iuriſdiction ouer all the Biſhops in the world, wherein (as our Diuines haue ſhewed) they contradict, 1. The Scriptures, 2. The Fathers, 3. Their owne writers, 4. Their owne ſelues.

The Scriptures affirme plainly, that the Church is [f] built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles, Ieſus Chriſt himſelfe being the chiefe corner ſtone, to wit, a [t] tried ſtone, a pretious ſtone, a ſure foundation, and [u] other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Ieſus Chriſt.

The Fathers auow likewiſe, that Chriſt is the rocke vpon which his Church is built, ſo [x] S. Auguſtine in many places of his works, Petrus à Petra, non Petra à Petro, quomodo non à Chriſtiano Chriſtus, ſed à Chriſto Chriſtianus vocatur: vpon this rocke then I will build my Church, is nothing elſe but vpon my ſelfe the Sonne of the liuing God I will build my Church, ædificabo te ſuper me, non me ſuper te, and whereas he did once conſtrue this of Peter, he [y] retracted his opinion, and expounds it of Chriſt; [z] Hierome, [a] Gregorie the Great, [b] Primaſius, [c] Anſelme, accord in the ſame iudgement.

Other of the moſt ancient Fathers interpret it thus, vpon this rocke, that is, vpon this faith as being a firme rocke, vpon this confeſſion (thou art the Sonne of the liuing God) I will build my Church, and hell gates ſhall not preuaile againſt it. So [d] S. Ambroſe, fundamentum eccleſiæ fides eſt: ſo [e] Chryſoſtome, vpon this faith and confeſſion I will build my Church, [f] fortitudo fidei petra eſt, propter quam Simon dictus eſt Petrus: ſo [g] Theophylact, this confeſſion is the foundation of all ſuch as beleeue: ſo [h] Gregory Nyſſen, delect. teſtimon. ex vet. teſtament. de ſanct. trinit. contra Iudeos, vpon this rocke, that is, vpon this confeſſion of me to be the Sonne of the liuing God: ſo [i] S. Auguſtine, vpon that which thou haſt acknowledged and ſaid, I will build my Church: ſo Cyril and Hilarius, and other Doctors apud Maldonat. in loc. In one word, Ionas ſometime Biſhop of Orleance writes peremptorily [k] lib. 3. de cultu imaginum, that many, yea moſt expound (vpon this rocke) to be nothing elſe but vpon this confeſſion of faith in ſaying thou art the Chriſt, the Sonne of the liuing God: ſo that I am occaſioned here iuſtly [l] to returne Campians flouriſh vpon the papiſt, patres admiſerit, captus eſt: excluſerit, nullus eſt.

Their owne writers in their commentaries vpon this text accord with vs and the Fathers about this expoſition, as namely, Hugo Cardinal, ord. gloſſ. Dio. Carthuſia; Soarez Epiſ. Conimbricenſis; Iohan. Arboreus; Iohan. Ferus; Alphonſ. Toſtatus, and many moe. I conclude this obſeruation with [m] Ambroſe, Chriſt denied not to his diſciple, the grace of this name that he ſhould be called Peter, becauſe he he had ſoliditie of conſtancie, and ſtedfaſtneſſe of faith of the rocke, endeuour therefore that thou maiſt alſo be a rocke, ſeeke the rocke not without thee, but within thee, thine act is thy rocke, thy mind is thy rocke, let thine houſe be

[m] Pſal. 128.
[n] Pſal. 119. 71.
[o] Apoc. 14. 13.
[p] Fox Martyr. examination of Iohn Rogers Martyr.
[q] De Rom. Pont. lib. 1. cap. 10.
[r] Tom. 1. ad an 34 fol. 207.
[f] Epheſ 2. 20.
[t] Eſay 28. 16.
[u] 1 Cor. 3. 11.
[x] Tract 124. in Ioan. & ſer. 13. de verbis Dom. ſecundùm Matt.
[y] Retract. lib. 1. cap. 21.
[z] Com. in Amos 6.
[a] Moral. lib. 31. cap. 34.
[b] In Epheſ. 2.
[c] In loc.
[d] Lib 6. in Luc. cap de interr. Ieſu.
[e] Hom. 55. in Matth.
[f] Idem operis imperfect. hom. 7
[g] In loc.
[h] Inter opera Nyſſen. Latin. Baſiliæ fol 255.
[i] Expoſit. in Epiſt. Ioan. tract. 10.
[k] Habetur in monument. patrum, fol. 1578. See B. Tonſtal. Ser. before K. Hē 8. on Palm-Sun and letter to Card Poole, apud Fox Martyr.
[l] Rat. 5.
[m] Lib 6. in Luc. cap de interrog. Ieſu.

be built vpon this rocke, that it may not be beaten with any ſtormes of ſpirituall wickedneſſe: faith is thy rocke, faith is the foundation of the Church, if thou be a rocke, thou ſhalt be in the Church, becauſe the Church is vpon a rocke, &c.

* De Rom. Pont. lib. 1. cap. 10. § reſpond. fidem.

* Lib. & cap. vbi ſup. præfat Tom. 1. & cat. cap. 1.

* Bellarmine being compaſſed about with ſuch a cloud of witneſſes, anſwereth by diſtinction, affirming that faith as it is conſidered in it ſelfe, is not the foundation of Gods houſe, but as it hath a relation vnto the perſon of Peter: in which aſſertion he contradicteth himſelfe ° elſewhere both alledging often and approuing alſo the ſaying of Auguſtine, Domus Dei credendo fundatur, ſperando erigitur, diligendo perficitur. As to make an houſe (ſaith he cap. 1. Catechiſ.) it is needfull firſt to place the foundation, then to raiſe the wals, and laſt of all to couer it with the roofe, and to doe theſe things there be ſome inſtruments neceſſarie: ſo to make in our ſelues the building of ſaluation, we need the foundation of faith, the wals of hope, the roofe of charitie, and the inſtruments are the moſt holy Sacraments. It is Bellarmines opinion then in that place, that faith in abſtracto conſidered without any mention of any relation vnto Peter, is the foundation of our iuſtification and eternall ſaluation. Now the vniuerſall Church, and euery particular temple of the Holy Ghoſt (as P Theophylact obſerues) haue one and the ſame foundation, and that is faith, and that faith is not the perſonall and particular faith of Peter alone, for hell gates (as q Abulenſis noteth) haue preuailed againſt it, and r Lyra telleth vs, that many Popes haue beene Apoſtataes, and ſ Io. Arboreus confeſſeth honeſtly, that Romanus Pontifex poteſt eſſe ſchiſmaticus & hæreticus. It is a ſilly ſhift of t Alanus Copus, to ſay that Peter denied not the faith of Chriſt; but, his faith ſaued, he denied no more than Chriſt: for as reuerend u Iewell acutely replies, by this prettie tricke a man may haue both Chriſt without faith, and alſo faith without Chriſt. The Fathers then in making faith the foundation of Gods houſe, meane the common faith (of which a confeſſion is made here by Peter as the mouth of his fellowes, and type of the whole Church) it is the x Creed of the Apoſtles, and not the ſingular beleefe of Peter only. Saint Paul told his Epheſians, that they were built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles, Ieſus Chriſt himſelfe being the chiefe corner ſtone; y that is, vpon Chriſt as being the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles, vpon that z faith and doctrine which the Prophets and Apoſtles taught in the a Old and New Teſtament; the ſumme whereof is briefly this, that Ieſus is that Chriſt the Son of the liuing God. The ſame Paul in the ſame letter affirmes, that there is but one Lord, and but one faith: Vna (quoth b Aquine) ratione obiecti ſed diuerſa ratione ſubiecti, faith in regard of her eſpeciall obiect is but one, becauſe there is but one Lord the Sonne of the liuing God; but it is diuers in reſpect of diuers beleeuers, all which are Peters, & liuing ſtones in the building of Gods houſe, 1 Pet. 2. 5. If Bellarmine then vnderſtand by the faith of Peter, that generall faith that was in all the Apoſtles, who did all by Peters mouth confeſſe the ſame: c then are they all by Chriſts anſwer made foundation-ſtones of the Church as well as Peter. It is certaine that Chriſt had his Church from the beginning of the world built vpon the foundation of the Prophets, himſelfe being the corner ſtone, ſet vp in the moſt conſpicuous place thereof, and a head ſtone in the very top and higeſt part of all, and therefore he ſpeakes in this text of the continuance and enlarging of his Church among the Gentiles by the miniſtration of his Apoſtles.

P Com. in Mat. 16.

q In loc.

r In loc.

ſ In loc.

t Dialog. 1.

u Defenſ. of Apolog part. 6 cap 5. diuiſ. 2.

x D Mortons Apolog. part. 2 cap 21. obiect 5. Nos vni dicta dicimus, ſed vni vnitatem Eccleſiæ repræſentanti. Elienſis reſp ad Apolog Bellarm. pag. 214.

y Lombard. Anſelm. Caietan in Epheſ 2.

z Salmeron in 2. ad Epheſ diſp. 6.

a Ambroſ. in 2. ad Epheſ.

b 2 2æ Queſt. 4. art. 6.

c D. Fulke in loc.

Among other contradictions of the Papiſts, it is an axiome receiued in their owne d ſchoole, ſymbolica theologia non eſt argumentatiua, that is, we may not fetch an argument in diuinitie from allegories and metaphors, vnleſſe we can elſewhere ſhew that the ſame thing is taught in a literall ſenſe; but the Papiſts are not able to produce ſo much as one Scripture where Peter is expreſly called the foundation of the Church, ergo, to raiſe his abſolute Monarchie vpon the bare metaphor of a rocke, is not to build on a firme rocke, but vpon the fickle ſand: how they further oppoſe the Fathers, and e Ægyptian like fight one againſt another in their expoſitions of this place, ſee Doctor Fulke in loc. D. Sutlif. de Rom. pon. lib. 2. cap. 2. 3. 4. D. Morton. Apolog. cat. part. 2. lib. 5. cap. 21. 22. M. Maſon tract d Thom. 1. part. queſt. 1. art. 10. & Caietan. ibid.

e Eſay 19. 2.

of Conſecration, lib.4. cap.2. but eſpecially Caſaubon, Exercit. ad Annal. Eccleſ. Baron. where you ſhall finde euery word of this our text examined moſt exactly.

The Epiſtle. Acts 11.27. vulg. cap. 12 in ℣. 3

In thoſe dayes came Prophets from the citie of Hieruſalem vnto Antioch, &c.

THe contents of this text are dearth and death; the dearth is generall, a great dearth thorowout all the world: the death is particular, of one perſon only, to wit, of Iames the brother of Iohn, whoſe memorie we celebrate this day.

In the dearth obſerue
1. Gods iuſtice in puniſhing the wicked, with a dearth, and that a great dearth, and that thorowout the world.
2. Gods mercie in preſeruing the godly, foretelling it by his Prophet Agabus, and ſo conſequently preuenting the rage of it by the prouident care and charitable contributions of Diſciples and brethren.

In the death obſerue the
- Murther, Herod the King.
- Martyr, Iames the brother of Iohn.
- Matter, or cauſe why, for that he was of the Church.
- Manner, with the ſword.

Dearth is one of Gods foure ſore iudgements, Ezech. 14.21. Barrenneſſe of the ground is a maine ſtring of his whip againſt ſinne, when (ſaith [f] he) the land ſinneth againſt me by committing a treſpaſſe, then I will ſtretch out mine hand vpon it, and wil breake the ſtaffe of the bread thereof, and will ſend famine vpon it. If ye will not obey me, nor hearken vnto my Commandements, [g] I will make your heauen as iron, and your earth as braſſe, your ſtrength ſhall be ſpent in vaine, neither ſhall your land giue her increaſe, neither ſhall the trees of the land giue their fruit. Famine then is brought vpon a kingdome by [h] Gods appointment, and that for the ſinnes of the land: and ſurely [i] S. Luke points at the cauſes of this vniuerſall dearth, in ſaying it came to paſſe in the dayes of Claudius Cæſar. For by the worlds Emperour we may iudge much of the worlds eſtate, the vices of Princes firſt infect the Nobles, and then afterward the Nobles infect the Gentlemen, and the Gentlemen in fine corrupt the Commons, [k] qualis rex, talis grex, ſuch Prince, ſuch people. It is reported of this Claudius, that he did [l] indulgere conuiuijs & concubitibus effuſiſſimè, growing, through his intemperance, ſo dull and vnfit for any good ſeruice, that his [m] mother vſed to ſay, he was a monſter of men, a worke of nature begun, but not finiſhed: he got his Empire by corrupting the ſouldiers, and during his reigne he ſerued his belly, committing all vncleanneſſe [n] euen with greedineſſe; no maruell then if the Lord ſent a dearth in the dayes of Claudius, no wonder if he denied the fruits of the ground vnto ſuch a drunken and diſſolute generation: in our age moe than one Claudius reignes, there be many Kings of good fellowes in the world; drunkenneſſe domineeres in euery place (the countrey village not excepted) abuſing the manifold bleſſings of God in wantonneſſe and idleneſſe: and therefore we may feare iuſtly, that the Lord ere it be long will ſend ſome great dearth among vs, as he did in the dayes of our forefathers: he hath already [o] whet his ſword, and bent his bow, and prepared his arrow to ſhoot at vs, he hath in theſe latter yeares turned our Winters into Summers, & our Summers into Winters, ſo that whereas [p] Chriſt ſaid, the harueſt is great, and the labourers are few: we contrariwiſe, the labourers are many, but the harueſt is little; he hath in the Spring nipped the fruits of our trees, & in Autumne taken away the flocks of our ſheepe, he hath alſo curſed our [q] basket and our dough, in ſo much as the poore haue long felt a dearth, and the rich alſo begin to feare a famine, the which is the [r] moſt grieuous of all the foure ſore iudgements of God, for the noiſome beaſts and the ſword kill in a moment, but there be many lingring deaths in a dearth, as the [s] Prophet in his Lamentations, They that be ſlaine with the ſword are better than they that be killed with hunger; and to the ſame purpoſe [t] Vegetius, ferro ſauior fames: And as for the peſtilence, there was alwaies in nature ſo well as in name

[f] Ezech. 14.13.
[g] Leuit 26.19 Deut. 28.23.
[h] Amos 3.6.
[i] Gualter in loc.
[k] Traian ſymb. vti Reuſner in ſymb.
[l] Xiphilin. in vita Claudij.
[m] Suetan. in Claudio.
[n] Ephes 4.19.
[o] Pſal. 7.13.
[p] Luke 10.2.
[q] Deut 28.17
[r] See Lorin. in loc & in Act. 7 11.
[s] Ierem Lament. cap 4.5.
[t] De re milit. lib.3. cap.3.

so great affinitie betweene λιμος and λοιμος, that (as [a] Physitians and experience daily teach) after a great dearth ordinarily there followeth a great plague, because men in a scarsitie of victuals, are constrained out of necessitie to feed on vnwholsome and vnsauoury meats: in holy Bible we finde example, that extreme hunger made mothers murtherers, and so turned the sanctuary of life into the shambles of death, Lament. 4. 10. The hands of pitifull women haue sodden their own children, which were their meat in the destruction of the daughter of my people. Famine then, as [x] S. Basil termeth it, is the top of all humane calamities, for whereas the noisome beasts, and the sword, and the pestilence, make quicke dispatch out of miserie: fames diutiùs malum, ocyùs torquet, lentiùs tabefacit, sensim occidit.

In this great dearth it is certaine, that the godly suffered among the wicked, the good among the bad, the beleeuing Christians among vnbeleeuing Gentiles: the Church of Antioch (as we read in the former part of this present chapter) endued with many notable graces, and adorned with this eminent honour, that the Disciples were first called Christians in Antioch, is afflicted now with a grieuous dearth, I say now [y] when her goods were partly taken away by the rage of persecution, and partly giuen away to releeue the poore brethren: all the world was infested with this dearth, and the Church (in these respects) more than all other of the world.

Now the reasons are manifold, why God suffers his own people to be crossed: 1. To bridle the lust of our flesh, that we should not be [z] condemned with the world: 2. To teach vs patience, saying with holy [a] Iob, shall we receiue good at the hand of God, and shall we not receiue euill? 3. To shew that he is as well able to deliuer vs in aduersitie, as to keepe vs in prosperitie, Psal. 37. 19. The godly shall not be confounded in the perillous time, and in the dayes of dearth they shall haue enough. So we finde here, that God in his [b] anger remembring mercie, comforted his Church in this vniuersall hunger-rot ouer all the world: first in foretelling it, and afterward by stirring vp the charitable mindes of good people to preuent the furiousnesse of it, as well in themselues as in other. He foretold this famine, for [c] surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he reuealeth his secret vnto his seruants the Prophets. He foretold the floud, vnto [d] Noe; the destruction of Sodome, to father [e] Abraham and righteous [f] Lot; the dearth in Ægypt, vnto Ioseph; Gen. 41. And here the Prophet Agabus [g] not by starre-gazing, or figure-flinging, or coniuring, or any curious Art, but by the Spirit signified, that there should be great dearth thorowout all the world, which also came to passe in the dayes of Claudius the Emperour.

It is obiected here, which is said, Matth. 11. 13. All the Prophets and the Law propheſied vnto Iohn, how then could there be Prophets in this age? To this obiection answer is made, that the [h] meaning of those words is, that Christ is the [i] end of the Law and the Prophets, and so consequently their office, who propheſied he should come, was at an end when Iohn the Baptist had openly preached that he was come: but there continued still in the Church other Prophets of another kinde, for Christ ascending vp on high gaue gifts vnto men, and ordained some to be Apostles, and some Prophets Ephes. 4. 11. Now these Prophets are such as [k] interpret the words of the Prophets, as 1 Cor. 14. 4. He that propheſieth edifieth the Church, and Matth 23. 34. Behold (saith our blessed Sauiour) I send vnto you Prophets, that is, Preachers. Or else Prophets are such [l] as by the powerfull instinct of the Spirit foretold things to come, as the foure daughters of Philip, Acts 21. 9. and Agabus in this historie. See further Epist. on S. Markes day.

Then came Prophets from Hierusalem vnto Antioch] [m] Haply to get some releese for the poore brethren in Iurie: or else to confirme the new planted Church in Antiochia, for as the [n] Iewes required a signe, so the Grecians sought after wisdome. And therefore the Prophets in speaking with diuers tongues, and in foretelling things to come, manifested exquisite wisdome among those Conuerts, and thereby strengthned them in the faith: it is said here, that many Prophets came from Hierusalem, and yet Agabus onely stood vp, and signified by the Spirit, that there should

[a] Galen apud Lorin. in loc.

[x] Ser. 3. contra diuites auaros.

[y] Gualter.

[z] 1 Cor. 11. 32.
[a] Iob 2. 10.

[b] Habacuc. 3. 2

[c] Amos 3. 7.
[d] Gen. 5.
[e] Gen. 18.
[f] Gen. 19. 13.
[g] Caluin. Salmeron. Arcularius.

[h] Musculus. Aretius in Matth. 11. See Lorin. in Acts 2. 17.
[i] Rom 10. 4.

[k] Lombard. Aquin. in Ephes 4.
[l] Anselm. Bez. Zanchius.
[m] Lorin. in loc.

[n] 1 Cor. 1. 22.

ſhould be great dearth in all the world, hereby ſhewing that euery Prophet had his particular gift, and that in a certaine proportion according to the will of the Spirit diuiding to euery man a ſeueralll grace, 1 Cor. 12. See Epiſt. 2. Sund. after the Epiphan. and 10. Sund. after Trinitie.

Then the Diſciples, euery man according to his abilitie, purpoſed to ſend ſuccour] There be two principall heads of Chriſtianitie, faith and good workes. The Diſciples of Antiochia were ſo thorowly conuerted vnto the faith of Chriſt, as that they receiued this honour, to be the firſt of all the world that were called Chriſtians. And [o] now they ſhew their faith by their good works, in ſending ſuccour vnto the brethren in Iurie. Faith is operatiue, made full, and fat, and faire by deeds of charitie; for ſo [p] Luther and Chemnitius write, [q] Fides eſt radix charitatis, & charitas eſt fructus fidei, fides efficit filios Dei, charitas probat. And it hath often beene obiected againſt the profeſſors in our age, [r] that our forefathers in the daies of ignorance did more than they knew; but we liuing in the great light of the Goſpell, know more than we doe: many purpoſe much in their minde, and promiſe much alſo with their mouth, who faile notwithſtanding in performance. The witleſſe vnthrift hath a purpoſe ſometime to follow the works of his calling diligently, yet either all the day bowling or bowzing hold him as a priſoner in his idleneſſe: a factious Schiſmaticke promiſeth vnder his hand conformitie, yet ſometime to pleaſe the people, he runneth a courſe contrarie to the proceedings of the Church; euen the beſt men haue their fallings and failings in this kinde, for after we purpoſe to viſit the ſicke, and to ſend ſuccour vnto the poore brethren, either our pleaſures abroad, or elſe profit at home, keepe vs (often I feare) from ſo good a worke: but it is ſaid of the Diſciples here, that they did not only purpoſe to releeue the diſtreſſed members of Chriſt among the Iewes; but alſo that they performed it indeed: ſo the text, which thing alſo they did, and ſent it to the Elders, by the hands of Barnabas and Saul. [s] One ſaid, that hell is like to be full of good wiſhes, but heauen full of good works. If a good motion then ariſe in our minde, let vs inſtantly cheriſh it, and if it breake forth into promiſe, let vs according to our abilitie performe it.

Worldly minded Cormorants in a deare yeere deſire to make the famine greater, [t] quanto æſtu, quanto æſtu, how doe they ſweat in braine and body, to hoord vp corne to their neighbours hinderance? if theſe Merchants had the ſpirit of propheſie but one yeere, they would afterward turne Gentlemen all the dayes of their life. But the Chriſtians of Antiochia contrariwiſe being admoniſhed by the Prophet Agabus of a great dearth in all the world, conſult preſently how to leſſen and mitigate the furiouſneſſe of it, as well in other as in themſelues: and this prouiſion and preuention is not againſt our [u] Sauiours precept, be not carefull for your life, what ye ſhall eat, or what ye ſhall drinke, care not for the morrow, becauſe Chriſt in ſo ſaying, only forbids extraordinarie diffidence, not ordinarie prouidence; immoderate carking, not a moderate care: for euery man muſt [x] labour in his vocation, and [y] prouide for his owne, namely for them of his houſhold, otherwiſe he denieth the faith, and is worſe than an Infidell. If it be not lawfull to care prouidently for to morrow, wherefore ſhould the [z] Scripture magnifie the wiſdome of Ioſeph, in laying vp corne for ſeuen yeeres to come? Wherefore did Salomon commend the good houſe-wife, Prou. 31. 13. and ſend the ſluggard vnto the piſmire, Prou. 6. 6. Wherfore did [a] Paul aduiſe fathers to lay vp for their children? wherefore had Beniamin a [b] ſacke, Dauid a [c] ſcrip, Chriſt himſelfe a [d] bag? See Epiſt. 3. Sunday after Trinitie.

[e] Ariſtotle requires in true liberalitie theſe foure circumſtances eſpecially, { Quid, what. Quibus, to whom. Quando, when. Quomodo, how.

The Diſciples of Antioch obſerued in their almes all theſe: firſt for quid, they gaue neither too little, which had beene miſerableneſſe; nor yet too much, which on the contrarie had beene prodigalitie; but euery man ſent ſuccour according o Iuſtus, Ionas, Gualter.

p Chemnit. loc. com. tit. de bonis operibus quæſt. 4.

q Alſted. Syſtem. Theolog. lib. 3. loc. 17.

r Camden. epiſt. before his Britan.

s Gueuara epiſt.

t Brentius in loc.

u Mat. 6. 25. 34

x Epheſ. 4. 28.

y 1 Tim 5. 8.

z Gen 41. 35. 48

a 2 Cor. 12. 14.

b Gen. 44. 12.

c 1 Sam. 17. 40.

d Iohn 13. 29.

e Ethic. lib 4. cap 1.

to his ability. We muſt indeed giue (ſaid [f] Chriſt) omni petenti, but as [g] Auguſtine gloſſeth it ſweetly, non omnia petenti, we may not exhauſt the fountaine of bounty, but ſo giue to day that we may likewiſe giue to morrow, and that not niggardly, for [h] he that ſoweth ſparingly, ſhall reape alſo ſparingly, and he that ſoweth liberally, ſhall reape alſo liberally.

2. The Diſcipies here gaue quibus, vnto ſuch as they ſhould, in ſending ſuccour vnto the brethren who dwelt in Iewry. [i] Seneca ſaid, Beneficia ſine vllo delectu proficimus magis quàm damus: as therefore they did not giue profusè, but according to their abilitie, ſo likewiſe not confusè, but addreſſed their almes vnto thoſe who wanted moſt, and had deſerued beſt of them. The brethren in Iewrie had more need than Infidels, in Antiochia, becauſe they were [k] ſpoiled of their goods, as Paul witneſſeth in an Epiſt. to them. And theſe conuerts of Antiochia were debtors vnto the Iewes, [l] as hauing receiued the ſweet comforts of the Goſpell from them. It is our dutie to [m] do good vnto all men, eſpecially to thoſe which are of the houſhold of faith, and among the houſhold of faith, aboue the reſt, vnto ſuch as haue beene our ſpirituall fathers in [n] begetting vs vnto Chriſt. [o] If the Gentiles be made partakers of the Iewes ſpirituall things, their dutie is to miniſter vnto them in carnall things, as [p] Paul told his Corinthians, if we haue ſowen vnto you ſpiritual things, is it a great matter if we reape your temporall things? This patterne condemnes exceedingly the practiſe of ſome profeſſors in our age, whoſe chiefe policie, yea pietie, conſiſts in contriuing how to leſſen the Clergie-mans eſtate. The Merchants trade concernes our daintie diet and brauerie, the Lawyers occupation our goods, the Phyſitians Art our bodie; but the Paſtor hath a cure of our ſoules: now ſaith Chriſt in the Goſpell, [q] Is not the life more worth than meat, and the body than rayment? and the ſoule more precious than [r] all? and yet the carnall Goſpellers enuie not the prodigious wealth of Merchants, of Lawyers, of Players, al is well if the Prieſt be poore; this vpon the point is their only Diana, both in publike parlie, and in priuate conference; they labour to decreaſe the Miniſters wages, and yet increaſe his worke: the which is like Pharaohs oppreſſing Gods people, mentioned Exod. 5. Get you ſtraw where yee can finde it, yet ſhall nothing of your labour be diminiſhed. I know worldlings entertaine ſome Prophets kindly, but it is not as [s] Chriſt ſaid, in the name of a Prophet, it is haply for that the Prophet is a kinſman, or a Gentleman, or a merry man, a good neighbour, a good fellow, a man of their owne humour; but a Prophet is not embraced of them in the name of a Prophet. The diſciples of Antiochia, becauſe they receiued the Goſpell of ſome Iewes, acknowledged themſelues debtors vnto all Iewes: but vncharitable factious hypocrites in our time, becauſe they haue receiued a litle hard vſage from ſome one Preacher, hate the whole reuerend order of the Clergie for the ſame, [t] Neminem hic ſpecialiter meus ſermo pulſauit, generalis de vitijs diſputatio eſt, qui mihi iraſcuntur [u] ſuam indicant conſcientiam, & multo peius de ſe, quàm de me iudicant.

3. For quando, they prouided a medicine ſo ſoone as they heard of the maladie, when Agabus had ſignified by the ſpirit, that there ſhould be great dearth in all the world, then the diſciples, euery man according to his abilitie, purpoſed to ſend ſuccour, &c. A good man is [x] like a good tree, that will bring forth fruit in due ſeaſon. [y] Hope deferred is the fainting of the heart; one bird in the hand is worth two in the buſh; in giuing of almes, bis dat qui citò dat, is a better rule than ſerò ſed ſeriò: a late largeſſe contents not a diſtreſſed ſoule ſo much, as little giuen opportunely, non bona tam penſat quàm benefacta Deus. [z] Seneca who ſpent many houres in diſcuſſing of this argument, giues this aduice, fac ſi quid facis, tardè velle nolentis eſt, an non intelligis tantum te gratiæ demere, quantum moræ adijcis, eſt proprium libenter facientis citò facere. Lend to thy neighbour in time of his need, Eccleſiaſt. 29. 2. it is not a good turne, vnleſſe it be done in a good time.

4. For quomodo, the diſciples of Antiochia beſtowed their almes cheerfully and carefully. [a] Cheerefully, for that euery man according to his ability purpoſed to ſend ſuccour, it was an act not enforced by law, but onely proceeding out of their loue, the which exceedingly cõmended their bounty, for a benefit conſiſts in the minde more

[f] Matth. 5. 42.
[g] Lib. 1. de ſer. dom. in monte.
[h] 2 Cor. 9. 6.
[i] De benefic. lib. 1. cap. 1.
[k] Heb. 10. 34.
[l] Brentius, Caluin, Arcularius.
[m] Galat. 6. 10.
[n] 1 Cor. 4. 15.
[o] Rom. 15. 27.
[p] 1 Cor. 9. 11.
[q] Matth. 6. 25.
[r] Mat. 16. 26.
[s] Mat. 10. 41.
[t] Hieron. epiſt. ad Nepot. de vita Cleric.
[u] Idem epiſt. ad Ruſtic. de viuen. di ſer. ma.
[x] Pſalm. 1. 3.
[y] Prou. 13. 12.
[z] De benefic. lib. 2. cap. 5.
[a] Aretius, Brentius, Caluin.

more than in the mine, [b] manu non tangitur, animo cernitur, & multo gratius venit quod facili, quàm quod plena manu datur: and it is ſaid in holy Scripture, that God loueth a cheerfull giuer, 2 Cor. 9. 7. [c] He that beleeueth in me (quoth our bleſſed Sauiour) ſhall haue riuers of liuing waters flowing out of his belly; [d] that is, all good works, and all gifts of grace ſpring out of him, euen by their owne accord, thou needeſt not to wreſt any good deeds out of him, as a man would wring verjuice out of crabs, becauſe they flow naturally out of him as ſprings out of rocks. Againe, the Diſciples here gaue their almes carefully, vſing truſty meſſengers and miniſters in this buſineſſe: they ſent not their ſuccour vnto the people promiſcuouſly, but to the gouernours and elders of the Church, that it might be diſtributed with diſcretion and diſtinction, according to the ſeuerall neceſſities of the Saints; and that it might be ſafely conueied vnto the brethren, it was deliuered into the hands of Barnabas and Saul, men of [e] approued credit.

Hitherto concerning dearth: it remaines I ſhould now ſpeake of death, to wit, of S. Iames martyrdome, and in it firſt of the murtherer Herod the king, not Herod the great, who butchered the Bethlehemitiſh innocent infants, Matth. 2. nor Herod the Tetrarch, who beheaded Iohn the Baptiſt, Math. 14. but [f] Herod Agrippa, grand-childe to Herod the great, the which I finde thus diſtinguiſhed in 8 verſe:

Aſcalonita necat pueros, Antipa Ioannem,
Agrippa Iacobum, claudens in carcere Petrum.

This Herod ſtretched out his hands, and Kings haue [h] long hands, not to cheriſh, but to vex: for Tyrants delight moſt in deſtructiue power: [i] not to vex ruffians, or ribalds, or robbers, but certaine of the Church: [k] for the deuill and all his inſtruments are diſquieted at the light of the Goſpell. Herod therefore ſtretched out his hands againſt the Church, and vexed certaine, [l] that is, ſome who were ſtrong ſouldiers in fighting the Lords battell, for God will not ſuffer the weake to be tempted aboue their abilitie, 1 Cor. 10. 13. Firſt, Herod killed Iames the brother of Iohn with the ſword, and afterward he proceeded further, and tooke Peter alſo. Iames firſt dranke of Chriſts cup, and [m] ſo conſequently was the firſt of all the twelue Apoſtles in Chriſts kingdome, according to the requeſt of his mother in the Goſpell alloted for this day: now the reaſon why God ſuffers bloudie tyrants to vex his Church is [n] threefold. 1. For the triall and exerciſe of the godly, quod enim fornax auro, quod lima ferro, quod aqua panno, hoc confert tribulatio iuſto. 2. For the confuſion and illuſion of the wicked, becauſe ſanguis martyrum is ſemen eccleſiæ. 3. For the manifeſtation of his infinite power and wiſdome, who can bring light out of darkneſſe, and vſe wicked inſtruments vnto good purpoſes.

[b] Seneca de benefic. lib. 1. cap. 5.
[c] Ioh. 7. 38.
[d] Tyndal proleg. vpon Exod.
[e] Concerning Paul's care, ſee Rom 15. 1 Cor. 16. & 2 Cor. 8.
[f] Salmeron, Arcularius.
[g] Guido ex Lyran. & Aretius ex Bartholdo in loc. See D. Hamer notes vpon Euſeb. hiſt. lib. 2. cap. 10.
[h] Non noſti longas regibus eſſe manus? Ouid.
[i] Aretius.
[k] Marlorat.
[l] Salmeron.
[m] Pelargus.
[n] Ardens hom. in Epiſt. in feſto Petri.

The Goſpell. MATTH. 20. 20. vnto v. 29

Then came to him the mother of Zebedeus children with her ſonnes, &c.

There bee two parts of this Scripture:

1. An indiſcreet petition, in which obſerue the
   - Mouer of the ſuit, a woman and a mother.
   - Manner of ſuing, ſhe came worſhipping him and ſaying, &c.
   - Suit it ſelfe, grant that theſe my two ſons, &c
2. A diſcreet anſwer to the ſame, containing a
   - Correction in particular, addreſſed eſpecially to the mother and her ſons, ye wot not what ye aske, &c.
   - Direction in generall, vnto the reſt of his Diſciples, and in them vnto all Chriſtians, ye know that the princes, &c.

Then came to him the mother of Zebedeus children] This woman (as it is apparant by comparing Matth. 27. 56. with Marke 15. 40.) was Solome, the ſiſter (as ſome o ſome thinke) of Ioſeph, husband vnto the bleſſed Virgin mother of Chriſt. Her ſonnes were p Iames and Iohn, Iames the greater, ſo called, q for that he was elected an Apoſtle before Iames the ſonne of Alpheus, otherwiſe ſtiled Iames the r leſſe. ſ Or Iames the greater, becauſe he was more familiar and great with his maſter Chriſt than that other Iames, for (as we read in the Goſpels hiſtory) Ieſus ſuffered none of his Apoſtles to ſee his t transfiguration, or the raiſing of u Iairus daughter from the dead, ſaue Peter, and Iames, and Iohn: or Iames the greater, x for that he was endued with great courage to drinke firſt of Chriſts cup, and to become the firſt Martyr of all the 12. Apoſtles: his brother Iohn was y the Diſciple whom Ieſus loued, who leaned on his maſters breaſt at ſupper, vnto whoſe care Ieſus on the croſſe commended his mother, Iohn 19. 27. Theſe two moue their mother, to moue their maſter for their aduancement, it was ſhe who came worſhipping Chriſt and deſiring, &c. but it was by the z ſuggeſtion and inſtigation of her ambitious children. And a therefore Chriſt in his anſwer ſaid not, thou knoweſt not what thou doeſt aske, but, ye know not, addreſſing his ſpeech vnto the ſonnes, ſo well as to the mother: and indeed Saint b Marke reports expreſly that they came to Chriſt in their owne name to make this ſuit, they did vſe the mediation of their mother haply, c that if Chriſt in any ſort miſliked the requeſt, it might be thought a fond womans error; if approued, then it might be granted eaſily to a mother earneſtly ſuing for her ſonnes. Now (ſaith our text) when the ten heard this, they diſdained at the two brethren: all the twelue were faulty, two ſinned in ambition, and ten in enuie. Iſti (quoth d Anſelme) ambitioſi, illi inuidioſi, vtriq; tamen nobis proſunt runt. Iames and Iohn were carnall in their pride, the reſt as carnall in their malice: yet we may reape benefit by them all. For e here we may ſee that euen the beſt men haue their infirmities, and they be recorded in holy Bible for our f learning, that we might neither preſume, becauſe the chiefe Saints haue had their ſlips: nor yet deſpaire, becauſe Chriſt himſelfe forgiues them, and inioyneth other alſo to ſtrengthen them. g If a man be ouertaken in a fault, ye which are ſpirituall reſtore ſuch an one in the ſpirit of meekneſſe, conſidering thy ſelfe leſt thou alſo be tempted.

In the manner of Solomes ſuing, obſerue the time when, and how ſhee ſued: then came the mother of Zebedeus children, &c. h That is, after Ieſus had tooke his Diſciples apart in the way to Hieruſalem, and had ſaid vnto them (as you may reade in the words a little before this text) Behold we go vp to Hieruſalem, and the ſonne of man ſhall be deliuered vnto the chiefe Prieſts, and vnto the Scribes, and they ſhall condemne him to death, and ſhall deliuer him vnto the Gentiles to mocke, and to ſcourge, and to crucifie, but the third day he ſhall riſe againe. When the ſonnes of Zebedeus heard this, inſtantly they conceiued, that Chriſt after his reſurrection would i reſtore the kingdome of Iſrael, and ſo reigne as a Monarch in this preſent world. Wherefore they thought it a fit time now to make ſome motion for their promotion in his kingdome, namely, that one might ſit at his right hand, and the other on his left in glory. For the better effecting whereof, their mother Solome commeth vnto Chriſt, and worſhippeth him, and deſireth, &c. Ambitious wretches (as S. Iude ſpeaketh in his Epiſtle) haue the perſons of men in admiration for aduãtage, k till they receiue, they kiſſe their hands, and humble their voice. So long as they be mendicant, they be Friers obſeruant, what will they not ſay, what will they not doe, to ſerue their owne turnes? the mother here comes worſhipping and fawning, and her ſonnes flattering and lying, for in the iudgement of l many learned Doctors, they did anſwer raſhly, we are able. Chriſt himſelfe was afraid to drinke of this cup, m O my father, if it be poſſible, let this cup paſſe from me: neuertheleſſe not as I will, but as thou wilt. It is enough for the Diſciple to be as his Maſter is, and the ſeruant as his Lord, Matth. 10. 25. If Iames and Iohn had aduiſedly conſidered of the buſineſſe, they would not haue giuen a peremptorie poſſumus, but haue rather anſwered in the words of n Paul, of our ſelues we are not ſufficient, all our ſufficiencie is of God, o able to doe all things through the helpe of Chriſt who ſtrengtheneth vs. Ambition is charities ape, for as p loue for veritie, ſo ambition for

* Aretius in loc. vide Thom. Aquin. in Galat. 1. lect. 5.
p Matth. 10. 2.
q Aquin. vbi ſup.
r Mark. 15. 40.
ſ Raulin ſer. 2. de Iacob maio.
t Mat. 17. 1.
u Luk. 8. 51.
x Didac. de Yanguas con. de S. Iacob.
y Iohn 21. 20.
z Auguſtin. Aidens, Anſelm. a Hieron. in loc.
b Cap 10. 37.
c Paludenſis ſer. de S. Iacobo.
d In loc.
e Melanctbon. Marlorat. Mollerus.
f Rom. 15. 4.
g Galat. 6. 1.
h Hieron. Anſelm. Caietan.
i Acts 1. 6.
k Eccleſ. 29. 5.
l Chryſoſt. Theophylact. Euthym.
m Mat. 26. 39.
n 2 Cor. 3. 5.
o Philip. 4. 13.
p 1 Cor. 13. 7.

for vanitie, ſuffereth all things, beleeueth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. An ingenious man aſſuredly makes a parentheſis of his good nature, whileſt he runneth ambitious courſes, he ſeldome or neuer returnes to himſelfe and true ſenſe, till his ſuits end. For he muſt (if he will vnderſtand his trade) turne [q] Gnatho, pleaſing euery mans humour, as a reed ſhaken with euery winde, blowing hot and cold out of the ſame mouth, holding diſſimulation and impudence commendable vertues: in a word, making preferment his God, and Mammon his mediator.

Grant that theſe my two ſonnes] Solome [r] ſeemes here to beg of Chriſt for her children eſpecially three things: Eaſe, riches, honour: Eaſe, that they may ſit: Riches, in thy kingdome: Honour, one on thy right hand, and the other on thy left hand, [s] that is, next vnto thy ſelfe, and before the reſt of their fellowes, on [u] each hand firſt. It is ordinarily ſeene, that mothers are more fond in their loue, and more ſolicitous in their care for their children than fathers are, [x] Can a woman forget her childe, and not haue compaſſion on the ſonne of her wombe? The reaſon hereof (as [y] Ariſtotle teacheth vs) is twofold: 1. Becauſe mothers are beſt aſſured that their children are their owne: 2. Becauſe mothers endure more paines than fathers in breeding, in bearing, and in bringing vp of their babes; Honour thy father that begat thee, (ſaid [z] Salomon) and thy mother that bare thee: that bare thee nine moneths in her wombe, twelue moneths in her armes, many yeares in her heart. [a] Illa te diu portauit in vtero, diu aluit, & difficiliores infantiæ mores blanda pietate ſuſtinuit, lauit pannorum ſordes, & immundo ſæpe fœdata eſt ſtercore, &c. Wherefore though a father in reſpect of his dignitie (being [b] principium generationis noſtræ per modum agentis) is to be loued more than our mother, as being rather principium per modum patientis & materiæ; yet our mother (as [c] Phalaris aduiſeth) is to be reuerenced ſo much, if not more than our ſire, for her affectionate tender care. [d] S. Auguſtine writes of his mother Monica, Maiori ſolicitudine me parturiebat ſpiritu quàm carne: and in [e] another place, Ita pro nobis omnibus curam geſſit, quaſi omnes genuiſſet; ita ſeruiuit, quaſi ab omnibus genita fuiſſet.

[q] Magdeburg. epiſt præfix. cent. 7.
[r] Budæus lib. 5. de aſſe.
[s] Paludenſis.
[u] Ianſenius, Didac. de Yanguas.
[x] Caietan.
[x] Eſay 49.15.
[y] Ethic. lib 9. cap. 7.
[z] Prou. 23.22.
[a] Hieron epiſt. de ſaſſeſſo conturbernio.
[b] Thomas 2 2æ. quæſt. 26. art. 10
[c] Epiſt 19.
[d] Confeſſ. lib. 5. cap. 9.
[e] Confeſſ. lib. 9. cap. 9.

Yee wot not what yee aske] For either yee erre very much in the matter, or elſe in the manner: in the [f] matter, if yee thinke that my kingdome is of [g] this world; in the manner, if yee deſire to ſit in my kingdome, before yee haue drunken of my cup: I muſt (as yee ſhall one day further vnderſtand) firſt [h] ſuffer, and then enter into glory. [i] If any man will be my Diſciple, let him forſake himſelfe, and take vp his croſſe, and follow me; you muſt enter into my kingdome through many tribulations, Acts 14.22. They that ſowe in teares ſhall reape in ioy, Pſal. 126.6. He that will haue wages at night, muſt labour firſt about the Lords vineyard in the day, Matth. 20.8. None receiue the prize before they runne, 1 Cor. 9.24. And if any man alſo ſtriue for a maſterie, yet is he not crowned except he ſtriue as he ought to doe, 2 Tim. 2.5. Well then (I tell you the truth) if yee ſeeke to ſit on my right hand and on my left in my kingdome, ye muſt firſt drinke of the cup that I ſhall drinke of, and be baptized with the baptiſme that I am baptized with: [k] that is, yee muſt of neceſſitie beare the croſſe, before yee can weare the crowne. [l] To him that ouercommeth will I grant to ſit with me in my throne, euen as I ouercame, and ſit with my Father in his throne. When holy Moſes, Exod 33. ſaid vnto the Lord, I beſeech thee ſhew me thy glory; the Lord anſwered, thou canſt not ſee my face, but thou ſhalt ſee my backe parts. [m] Inſinuating hereby, that we cannot enter into Chriſts glory, vnleſſe we follow him, and ſee his hinder parts in this world. Why Chriſt called his ſufferings a cup, and baptiſme; ſee Ianſen. concord. cap. 104. Theophylact, Aretius, Marlorat, Maldonat, in loc.

[f] Marlorat. Mollerus. Kilius.
[g] Iohn 8 36.
[h] Luke 24. 26.
[i] Matth 16.24
[k] Theophylact. Euthym. Ardens.
[l] Apocal. 3.21.
[m] Didac de Yanguas con. de S. Iacob.

Yee ſhall drinke indeed of my cup] [n] He ſaid not yee can, as being able by their owne vertue: but yee ſhall, as being made able by grace: but how did they drinke both of Chriſts cup, ſeeing Iohn is ſaid in Eccleſiaſticall hiſtorie to haue died in his bed peaceably? [o] Remigius anſwereth in one word, Bibit Iacobus in paſſione, Ioannes in perſecutione, Iames dranke of Chriſts cup in his martyrdome, being being slaine with the sword by cruel Herod, as our Epistle this day witnesseth, and Iohn tasted of Christs cup, as being banished [p] into the Isle Pathmos for the word of God, and for the witnesse of Iesus Christ. Iohn dranke of the cup of [q] confession, as the three children in the fierie furnace, though he were not actually martyred; actually, I say, for in [r] readines to suffer, he was a very Martyr, yea the [t] Proto-martyr, suffering for Christ vnder the Crosse, when he saw Christ suffer on the Crosse.

[n] Origen apud Aquin caten. in loc.
[o] Apud Paludenſ. in loc.

But to sit on my right hand, or on my left, is not mine to giue] Christ saith in his Gospell, chap. 11. vers. 27. All things are giuen vnto me of my Father; and chap. 28. 18. All power is giuen vnto me both in heauen and in earth; and Ioh. 14. 2. In my Fathers house are many mansions, and I goe to prepare a place for you; and Luk. 22. 29. I appoint vnto you a kingdome, &c. How then is it true, to sit on my right hand, and on my left, is not mine to giue? [t] S. Augustine, [u] Basil, [x] Remigius, and [y] other answer thus; It is not mine to giue as I am a man, and allied vnto you; but as I am God, equall to my Father, and heire of all things. Or as [z] Ardens, It is not mine to giue you now, namely, before yee haue drunke of my cup. [a] Or it is not in my power to giue as you conceiue, to wit, in respect of kindred & alliance. [b] By which example, Bishops may learne, not to prefer their nephewes on their right hand and on their left hand in their Dioceese, except they be men of merit. For God saith expresly, Non ascendes per gradus ad Altare meũ, Exo. 20. 26. & Melchisedek the first Priest is said, Heb. 7. 3. to haue been without father, without mother, without kindred, hereby signifying, that we must ascend to dignities in the Church of God not by degrees of consanguinitie, but by steps of vertue: or it is not mine to giue to [c] such as you are now, namely, to proud and ambitious men, according to that in 101. Psalme, ver. 7. Who so hath a proud looke, and high stomacke, I will not suffer him in mine house, so that (as [d] Ambrose notes) Asserit non sibi potestatem deesse, sed meritũ creaturis; or as Christ here construeth himselfe, it is not mine to giue, but it shall be giuen vnto those for whom it is prepared of my Father. [e] I and my Father are one, and therefore most [f] vnfit either for you to request, or for me to grant any thing contrary to the determination of my Father. His kingdome is an inheritance [g] prepared before the foundations of the world. [h] Whom he did predestinate, them he also called; and whom he called, them he also iustified; and whom he iustified, them he also glorified. Concerning Christs direction here following addressed vnto all his Apostles, and in them vnto all Christians; see Gospell on S. Bartholomewes day.

p Apocal. 1. 9.
q Hieron.

r Missus in seruentis olei doliũ siue solium, illæsus exijt. Ba. o1 ad ann. 99.
t Io. Osorius in Euang. fest. Io. Euang.
t Lib. 1 de Trinit. cap. 12.
u Epist. 141 ad Cæsarianos.
x Apud Paludan. in loc.
y Ambros. lib. 5. de fide, cap. 3.
z Hom. in loc.
a Musculus. Iansenius.
b Ardens. Didac. de Yanguas.
c Epiphan. hæres. 69. Idem Hieron Chrysost. Maldonat. in loc. & Augustin. in Psal. 126.
d Vbi sup.
e Iohn 10. 30.
f Aretius. Musculus.
g Matth. 25. 34
h Rom. 8. 30.

The Epistle. Acts 5. 12. vnto v. 17

By the hands of the Apostles were many signes and wonders shewed among the people, &c.

SOme thing in this Epistle concernes more specially the Pastors, by the hands of the Apostles were many signes & wonders shewed; some thing more specially the people, the people magnified them, and the number of them that beleeued in the Lord both of men and women grew more and more; some thing generally both Pastors and people, they were all together with one accord in Salomons porch, [i] insinuating that it was their ordinarie custome to meet in that holy place, not only to preach & pray; but also to consult about the proceedings of the Gospel & busines of the Church. From which assembly no Conuert absented himself, either vpon any proud opinion of his own priuate conceits, or vnder pretence [k] that the Temple was now superstitiously prophãed, or for feare of the cõmon enemie the [l] Pharisies especially: but al, ὁμοθυμαδὸν, according, concording, ioyned together for the good of the publike weale. Wherin obserue not only their vnanimity, but also their magnanimity, not only their louing cariage one toward another, but also their resolution & zeale for the Gospel, exposing themselues vnto very much danger in a place of such sort and resort. The chiefe point is the working of miracles by the hands of the Apostles, & that is nothing else but an execution of Christs promise, Mark. 16. 17, 18. In my name

i Caluin. in loc. k Aretius.
l Iustus Ionas in loc.

name they ſhall caſt out deuils, and they ſhall lay their hands on the ſicke, and they ſhall recouer, &c. of which I haue ſufficiently ſpoken in my notes vpon the Goſpell on Aſcenſion day.

The Goſpell. Luke 22.24. vulg 31

There was a ſtrife amõg them which of them ſhould ſeeme to be the greateſt, &c

Christ in this Scripture teacheth his Apoſtles ambitiouſly contending for rule, { 1. By precept, The kings of the nations, &c. but ye ſhall not ſo be, &c 2. By patterne, I am among you as one that miniſtreth, &c.

But ye ſhall not ſo be] Or as [m] S. Matthew, it ſhall not be ſo among you. Now this kinde of ſpeech is vſed in holy Scriptures, and in our Engliſh tongue two manner of waies, either forbidding a thing to be done, or elſe foretelling a thing not to be done: as a maſter in ſaying to his ſeruant, this ſhall not be done to day, forbids a thing to be done: but when an Aſtronomer ſaith of the weather, it ſhall not be cold, or hot, vpon ſuch a moneth or day, he doth not forbid, but only foretell a thing that ſhall not be: ſo the words, οὐκ ἔσται, are vſed Apocalyp. 10.6. and 22.5. According to this twofold acception, I finde a twofold conſtruction of this clauſe (but ye not ſo) firſt, by way of prophecie; ſecondly, by way of propoſition or prohibition: if it be taken prophetically, then it is a prophecie concerning the Diſciples eſtate either in this, or in the world to come. If in this life, the meaning is briefly this, the kings of the Gentiles doraigne, and they that are in authoritie are called benefactors; but ye not ſo; that is, I doe foreſhew vnto you that ye ſhall not be ſo; as if he ſhould ſay, they in their gouernment are called benefactors, but you exerciſing authoritie ſhall be called malefactors: they ruling ill are called good men, ye ruling well ſhall be reputed euill men: [n] in the world ye ſhall haue affliction, and ye muſt of neceſſitie drinke of my cup, and be baptized with the baptiſme that I am baptized with, and ſo Chriſt is made to ſpeake that in this place which he ſaith [o] elſewhere, The diſciple is not aboue his maſter, nor the ſeruant aboue his Lord: If they haue called the maſter of the houſe Belzebub, how much more them of his houſhold? If they haue perſecuted me, they will alſo perſecute you: me, who came to miniſter vnto them, and to giue my life for them; euen ſo you, which in your authoritie ſhall intend the good of all, and ſpend your liues in ſeruing them all. This ſenſe doubtleſſe is true, for by wofull experience we finde it to be ſo, when as [p] among vs ſome for their ſuperioritie are called Antichriſts; other for their authoritie, tyrants; other for reſtraining the licentiouſneſſe of certaine factious people, perſecutors.

If we take (but ye not ſo) for a prophecie touching the life to come, the meaning is, the kings of the Gentiles haue lordſhip ouer them, &c. but ye not ſo: that is, in my kingdome (which you falſely conceiue to be vpon earth) I doe foretell vnto you, that it ſhall not be ſo. For though I appoint vnto you a kingdome, and ye ſhall eat and drinke at my table in my kingdome, and ſit on ſeats iudging the twelue tribes of Iſrael in my kingdome: yet my kingdome is not of [q] this world, ye ſhall not (I aſſure you) tyrannize in heauen, as the kings of the nations vpon earth. This ſenſe likewiſe is good, and fitting other places of Scripture, but it doth not fit our preſent text: for it wil appeare by comparing one Euangeliſt with another, that Chriſts [r] οὐκ ἔσται, it ſhall not be, is nothing elſe but οὐκ ἔστω, let it not be: for whereas Saint Marke ſaith, chapter 10. 43. ſhall be your ſeruant; and verſe 44. ſhall be ſeruant of all: S. Matthew chap. 20. 26. hath it in termes imperatiue, let him be your ſeruant; and S. Luke here, he that is greateſt among you, let him be as the leaſt, and he that is chiefe, as he that doth ſerue. Theſe termes of command inſinuate that our bleſſed Sauiour ſpake (vos autem non ſic) imperatiuely, forbidding

[m] Mat. 20. 26.

[n] Iohn 16. 33.

[o] Matth. 10. 20. Iohn 15. 20.

[p] See dangerous poſitions vnder pretence of reformatiõ, lib. 2. cap. 5. 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13.

[q] Iohn 18. 36.

[r] Piſcator ſchol. in Mat. 20. 26.

ding a thing to be done. Wherefore let vs examine two points eſpecially; firſt, what is ſaid; ſecondly, whom it concernes.

[f] Some referre ſo to the word benefactors, here tranſlated gracious Lords, making the ſenſe to be, they that are in authority, are called gracious Lords, but ye not ſo; that is, ye ſhall not be called gracious Lords. [t] Other referre ſo to the verbes, reigne and rule, making the ſenſe thus, the kings reigne, and great men rule, but you not ſo; that is, ye ſhall not rule: other attribute ſo to the ſame verbes, yet make the conſtruction otherwiſe, the kings of the Gentiles doe rule, but ye not ſo; [a] that is, ye ſhall not ſo rule, to wit, as the kings of the nations rule. So that either titles of honour are forbidden as gracious Lords, or ruling, or elſe ſo ruling. The Nouelists in the firſt expoſition haue condemned the titles of our Archbiſhops; in the ſecond, the iuriſdiction of our Biſhops; our [x] Diuines therefore like beſt of the third, affirming that Chriſt here prohibited neither titles of honour, nor ruling, but only ſo ruling.

Not titles of honour, as Lord, ruler, benefactor: for as Chriſt in ſaying [y] elſewhere, be not ye called Rabbi, for one is your maſter: and call no man father vpon earth, for one is your father which is in heauen; and be not called Doctors, &c. [z] forbids not ſimply the names of Rabbi, father, and Doctor; for a childe may call his parent father, and a ſcholler may call his teacher Doctor, and a ſeruant may call him vnder whoſe gouernment he liues maſter; and ſo Paul called himſelfe the [a] Doctor of the Gentiles, and the [b] Corinthians father. As I ſay Chriſt there forbids not abſolutely the names of father and maſter, much leſſe the functions; but only the phariſaicall affection, and arrogant affectation of ſuperioritie: ſo Chriſt here likewiſe forbids not his Apoſtles to be called Lords, or rulers, or benefactors: but condemnes onely the carnall ambition of theſe titles, and inſolent vſing of the ſame. For we reade in holy Scripture, that theſe titles were giuen to Chriſt and his Diſciples, as Iohn 13.13. Ye call me maſter, and Lord (ſaith he) and ye ſay well, for ſo am I. Yea his Apoſtles are ſtiled by that title which is rendred elſewhere Lords, Acts 16.30. Lords, what muſt I doe to be ſaued, ſaid the Iaylor to Paul and Silas? and yet they reprehended not this title, which they would haue done had it beene vnlawfull; as [*] Paul and Barnabas rebuked the men of Lyſtra when they would haue ſacrificed vnto them as vnto Gods, O men, why do ye theſe things? ſo likewiſe Preachers of the word are ſtiled rulers, Heb. 13.7. Remember thoſe which haue the rule ouer you, who haue preached vnto you the word of God: and verſe 17. of the ſame Chapter, [c] obey thoſe which haue the rule ouer you, and ſubmit your ſelues, for they watch for your ſoules. Hence the parſonages in England were termed anciently Rectories, and the Parſons Rectors: as for the ſtile gracious Lords, vrged ſo much by the [d] Nouelists againſt our reuerend and honourable Primats: anſwer is made that there is not one ſyllable in the word εὐεργέται that ſignifieth a Lord. It is true that our learned Engliſh Interpreters in old time ſought by (the periphraſis) gratious Lords, to ſet downe the meaning of Chriſt, vſing Lord for a title of honour, and gracious for a title of doing good. But our new tranſlation expreſſeth it better in reading benefactors: the Kings of the Gentiles exerciſe Lordſhips ouer them, and they that exerciſe authority vpon them are called benefactors: ſo Beza, benefici vocantur: ſo the vulgar Latine, Eraſmus, Ro. Stephanus, and other as well ancient as moderne Interpreters: ſo that the clauſe vos autem non ſic, is referred by the two other Euangeliſts, and almoſt all [e] learned expoſitors vnto the fond ambition and tyrannicall oppreſſion of the Gentile Kings, and not vnto their titles or names. Indeed we finde that the Kings of [f] Ægypt and of other [g] nations vain-gloriouſly deſired to be called εὐεργέται munificent benefactors, when as they deſerued rather the names of tyrants and oppreſſors: as the Popes of Rome haue called themſelues (I verily thinke contrary to Chriſts but you not ſo) Clement, Pius, Boniface: when they were moſt vnmercifull and impious malefactors. All that may be gathered hence then is, that the Kings of the Gentiles aſſumed flattering titles vnto themſelues, beeing indeed nothing leſſe than that which their ſtiles imported; and it may bee a good admonition

[f] T.C. Reply to D. Whitg. ſis anſwer to the admonit pag. 11. ſect. 1. 2.
[t] T.C. Vbi ſup. pag. 10. Marlorat. & Piſcator. in Mat. 20. 25, 26.
[a] Theophylact. Euthym. Bucer. Muſculus, in Matth. 20.
[x] D Whitgift defence of his anſwer to the admonit cap 1. diuiſion 1. following the Doctors aboue cited.
[y] Matth 23.8.
[z] D. Whitgift vbi ſup. cap. 2.
[a] 1 Tim. 2.7.
[b] 1 Cor. 4.15.
[*] Acts 14.15.
[c] Loquitur hoc de paſtoribus eccleſiæ ſicut D. Fulke, Marlorat. Piſcator in loc.
[d] T.C. vbi ſup.
[*] D Whitgift vbi ſup.
[f] Caluin apud Marlorat. in loc. Matth. 20 25. See prolog. of Eccleſiaſticus & Strabo Geograp. lib. 17. & Plutarch in vita Coriolani.
[g] Clemens K. of Sparta ſo called.

admonition for all men, especially for Clergy men, to frame their liues answerable to their names and titles of honour giuen vnto them. An ambitious desire to be called benefactor is prohibited here, but the name it selfe is commendable, for Saint Peter applieth it vnto Christ, Act. 10. 38. Iesus of Nazareth went about doing good, and [h] S. Paul exhorteth vs to doe good vnto all men, especially to them of the houshold of faith.

[h] Galat. 6. 10.

As for ruling, we say that it is against all sense, that where the titles of rulers are giuen, there ruling should be denied: nay Christ in the word immediatly following (he that is greatest among you, let him be as the least, &c.) insinuates that there must be some great among them. He saith not (as [i] Musculus obserues) no man ought to be chiefe among you, which he would haue said, if it had not beene lawfull in the kingdome of God for some to be great and chiefe, or if it had beene necessary that all should haue beene in all things equall, The celestiall spirits are not equall, the starres are not equall, the Disciples themselues were not in all things equall. It is not therefore Christs meaning to haue none great or chiefe among Christians, seeing our state requires necessarily that some be superiour, and other inferiour. So [k] Martin Bucer, the fond Anabaptists collect here that no man may be together a Christian, and a magistrate, because Christ said to his Disciples, it shall not be so among you, not considering that those which according to the will of the Lord beare rule godly, nihil minus quàm dominari, immo maxime seruire, & tanto pluribus quanto pluribus præfuerint, doe nothing lesse than domineere, yea verily doe most of all serue, and euen so many doe they serue, ouer how many soeuer they beare rule. So Chrysostome, Theophylact, Euthymius, and it is the [l] common opinion of other writers, that these words of Christ doe not condemne superioritie, Lordship, or any such like authoritie: but onely the ambitious desire of the same, and the tyrannicall vsage thereof. If Christ here would haue forbidden ciuill gouernment in all men, he would haue said, the Kings of Israel haue rule, but ye not so: or if his intent had beene to forbid it in Ministers only, then he would haue said, the Priests of Israel rule, but ye not so; but in saying, the Kings of the Gentiles beare rule, but ye not so: he doth euidently shew that he mislikes onely such an insolent kinde of ruling as the Gentiles vsed. He condemnes neither temporall authoritie, nor Ecclesiasticall: not temporall authority, whether it be supreme or subordinate; not supreme, for [m] Paul appealed to Cæsar as supreme gouernour, aduising euery soule to be [n] subiect vnto superiour powers; not subordinate, for [o] S. Peter gaue this rule concerning Rulers, Submit your selues to euery ordinance of man for the Lords sake, whether it be to the King as to the chiefe head, or vnto Gouernours, as vnto them that are sent of him, for the punishment of euill doers, and for the laud of them that doe dwell.

[i] Com. in Mat. 20. 26.

[k] In Mat. 20. 26 Idem Luther postil maior. in feste Bartho.

[l] D. Whitgift vbi sup.

[m] Acts 25. 11.
[n] Rom 13. 1.
[o] 1 Pet. 2. 13.

Not Ecclesiasticall authoritie, for [p] S. Peter notwithstanding this (but you not so) iudicially sate vpon Saphira: and Paul exercising this authoritie, deliuered [q] Hymineus and the incestuous [r] Corinthian vnto Satan. And the same Paul exhorts Timothie the Bishop of Ephesus, [s] against an Elder receiue none accusation vnder two or three witnesses. He grants vnto Timothie, to receiue bils of complaint, and so iudicially to proceed against Elders in citing them, and examining them, and if need be, deposing them.

[p] Acts 5.
[q] 1 Tim. 1. 20.
[r] 1 Cor 5. 5.
[s] 1 Tim. 5. 19.

Well then, if Christ here forbade neither titles of Rulers, nor yet ruling it selfe, whether it be ciuill or Ecclesiasticall: it remaines, that he prohibited only so ruling, that is, such a tyrannicall kinde of gouernment as the Gentile Kings vsed, and that ambitious desiring of the same which ruled in them. And indeed Christ often in the Gospell vseth to call backe those that are his, from errors and corrupt affections, by the behauiour of the Gentiles, Matth. 6. 7. The Gentiles doe thinke, that by their much babling they shall be heard, be not ye therefore like vnto them: and in the same chapter vers. 31, 32. Take no thought, saying what shall we eat or what shall we drinke, or wherewith shall we be clothed, (for after all these things seeke the Gentiles) but seeke ye first the kingdome of God, &c. And that this is Christs meaning, I proue by these three reasons collected out of the context it selfe,

1. He ſaith Matth. 20. 25. and Marke 10. 42. Ye know that the Kings of the Gentiles, ſpeaking of thoſe Rulers they knew, and they were Tyrants and oppreſſors, as Pontius Pilate who condemned Chriſt an [t] innocent, in whom he found no fault; and [u] Herod Antipas, who beheaded Iohn the Baptiſt (a iuſt and holy man, whom he reuerenced and heard in many things) at the requeſt of his minion; and Herod the Great, who butchered all the male children in [x] Bethelem, and vnder pretence to worſhip, eagerly ſought to worrie Chriſt in his cradle: ye know that theſe Kings now reigne, but ye not ſo, that is, I would not haue you ſo to reigne.

[t] Ioh 19.4 16.
[u] Mar. 6.20.27.
[x] Matth. 2.16.

2. κατακυριεύειν, vſed in Matthew and Marke, is to tyrannize; ſo learned Eraſmus in his [y] Paraphraſe, Qui principatum gerunt inter gentes, dominatum ac tyrannidem exercent in illos quibus imperant, and in his annotations, dominantur in eas, ſiue aduerſus eas. So Muſculus in his comment vpon theſe words in S. Matthew, non regunt populum, ſed premunt, ſuiſq; affectibus ſeruire cogunt: ſo [z] Benedict. Aretius, κατακυριεύειν, eſt dominari cum aliena [a] tyrannide, & κατεξουσιάζειν, in poteſtate violenter tenere: ſo κατακυριεύειν is taken in other places of the new Teſtament, as namely, 1 Pet. 5. 3. and Acts 19. 16. Whereas it is obiected, that in our preſent text the ſimple verbe is vſed, and therefore not tyrannie but iuriſdiction is forbidden: anſwer is made that this of S. Luke muſt be conſtrued by the places of Matthew and Marke, ſeeing all three meane one and the ſame thing by the concent of all Harmonies.

[y] In Matth. 20.
[z] Com. in Matt. 20. 25.
[a] Cum acerbitate quadam, as the compiler of the leſſer & latter annotations vnder Bezaes name, in Mat. 20. 25.

3. Chriſt expounds himſelfe thus in the words immediately following, let the greateſt among you be as the leaſt, and the chiefe as he that ſerueth. [b] As if he ſhould ſay, the Kings of the nations are Tyrants in their gouernment, making miſchiefe their miniſter, and luſt their law: but I would haue you to beare rule ſo moderately, that euen the Soueraigne may behaue himſelfe as a ſeruant, and the Maſter as a Miniſter. I would haue Princes among you to be [c] nurſing fathers vnto the Church, and Prelates among you to be [d] Paſtors of my people. So [e] S. Paul exerciſing authoritie, ſaid, we preach not our ſelues, but Chriſt Ieſus to be the Lord, and our ſelues your ſeruants for Ieſus ſake, and in [f] another place, I made my ſelfe a ſeruant vnto all men. A Miniſter muſt (as it is in our Engliſh phraſe) ſerue his cure, a magiſtrate muſt alſo miniſter vnto thoſe which are vnder him, euen the King himſelfe is a great ſeruant of the common weale: he muſt (as [g] Iob ſpeakes) become eyes to the blinde, and feet to the lame, he muſt with [h] Epaminondas watch, that other may the more ſecurely ſleepe; and labour, that other may the more freely play. Magna ſeruitus magna fortuna, quoth [i] Seneca nam ipſi Cæſari cui omnia licent, propter hoc ipſum multa non licent: omnium domos illius vigilia defendit, omnium otium illius labor, omnium delicias illius induſtria, omnium vacationem illius occupatio. As thoſe Princes are moſt vnprofitable, qui nihil in imperio niſi imperium cogitant, which in their Empire thinke of nothing ſo much as of imperiouſneſſe: ſo they doubtleſſe are moſt happy to the ſtate, who being greateſt are as the leaſt, and being chiefe as they that ſerue. I conclude this obſeruation in [k] Bernards aduice to Pope Eugenius, præſis vt prouideas, vt conſulas, vt procures, vt ſerues, præſis vt proſis, &c. O [l] bleſſed is that faithfull and wiſe ſeruant, whom his maſter when he commeth ſhall finde ſo ruling ouer his houſe.

[b] Ardens. Muſculus. Bucer.
[c] Eſay 49.29.
[d] Epheſ 4.11.
[e] 2 Cor. 4. 5.
[f] 1 Cor 9.19.
[g] Iob 29.15.
[h] Plutarch com. ad prin. indoctum.
[i] Conſolat. ad Polybium.
[k] Lib. 3. de conſiderat.
[l] Matth. 24 46

Thus haue I ſhewed what is ſaid, let vs ſee now whom it concernes; it is certaine that Chriſt ſpake this vnto his Apoſtles onely, but in them vnto ſome other repreſentatiuely; the queſtion is then here whether he ſpake repreſentatiuely to the whole Church, that is all Chriſtians; or elſe repreſentatiuely to the Miniſters of the Church only. We ſay with Aretius, Bucer, Muſculus, in their Commentaries vpon Matth. 20. that he doth vnderſtand all Chriſtians, as well Lay-men as Clergy-men, and this alſo we proue by theſe reaſons enſuing.

1. Chriſt in this chapter immediately before, and alſo preſently after, vſing this word you, and ſpeaking vnto his Diſciples and none but them (as in this place) ſpeaketh vnto them as repreſenting the whole Church, and not onely the Miniſters, as verſ. 19 This is my body, which is giuen for you; and verſ. 20. This cup is the new teſtament in my bloud, which is ſhed for you, by you, though it be ſpoken only to the the Diſciples, is not vnderſtood the miniſters only, for if Chriſts body were giuen, and his bloud ſhed only for them, it would follow that none ſhould be ſaued but Miniſters, and that is contrary to the text [m] elſewhere, Chriſt died for all; againe verſ. 29 I appoint vnto you, as my Father hath appointed vnto me, a kingdome. Where by you, he meanes all true Chriſtians of whatſoeuer eſtate, qualitie, degree: for as [n] many as receiued him and beleeued in his name, to them he gaue power to be the ſonnes of God, and if they be ſonnes and children of God, then heires alſo, Rom. 8.17. So that if thou wilt haue any part in Chriſt and his kingdome, then thou muſt alſo take ſome part of this text, thou muſt become as one of vs, and be numbred among theſe you, but ye not ſo.

[m] 2 Cor. 5. 15.

[n] Iohn 1. 12.

2. The oppoſition here which is betweene Gentiles and you, doth euidently proue that it is ſpoken vnto the whole Church; as for example, the Kings of the Gentiles doe tyrannize ouer them, that is, ouer the people: among them are Kings tyrannizing, and people tyrannized: but you not ſo, that is, I doe command that among you there ſhould be neither Kings tyrannizing, nor people tyrannized. It is thus with them, it ſhall not be ſo with you Miniſters, is no good oppoſition; it is thus with the Gentiles, it ſhall not be thus with you Chriſtians, is a full and a fit antitheſis, the like whereof is found, Matth. 6. 7,8. 31.32. Luke 12.29,30. 1 Theſſ 4.4,5.

3. This place compared with that of Matth. chap. 23. verſ. 8,9 ſhewes plainly that it is ſpoken vnto the whole Church, for Chriſt in that place ſpeaking of the ſame mater, vſeth a like forme of words, as for example, the Scribes and the Phariſees are called Rabbi, &c. but be not ye ſo called. Now that he deliuered this exhortation as well to the people as to the paſtors, is apparent in the very firſt verſe of the Chapter, then ſpake Ieſus to the multitude, and to his Diſciples. I will end this expoſition with an [o] Epitaph which I thinke may ſerue for a gloſſe to the whole Goſpell.

Hic humilis diues (res mira) potens pius, vltor
Compatiens, mitis cum pateretur erat.
Noluit eſſe ſuis Dominus, ſtuduit pater eſſe,
Semper in aduerſis murus & arma ſuis.

[o] Epitaph Roberti Lincol. epiſc. apud Huntindon hiſt. lib. 7. pag 218.

The Epiſtle. 2 Cor. 4.1.

Seeing that we haue ſuch an office, &c.

THis text is part of S. Pauls apologie iuſtifying his doctrine as wel for the matter as the manner againſt all the ſlanders of his aduerſaries the falſe Apoſtles:

Hee remembers here more particularly three vertues in his preaching,
- Sedulitie, ſeeing we haue ſuch an office, euen as God hath had mercy on vs, we goe not out of kinde, or wee faint not.
- Sinceritie, but haue caſt from vs the cloakes of vnhoneſty.
- Humilitie, for we preach not our ſelues, but Chriſt Ieſus to be the Lord, and our ſelues your ſeruants for Ieſus ſake.

Seeing that we haue ſuch an office] [p] Two things eſpecially cauſed Paul to be diligent in his office. 1. The worthineſſe of his miniſtery, ſeeing that we haue ſuch an office. 2. The goodneſſe of God in calling him to ſuch an high calling, euen as God hath had mercie on vs. The miniſtration of the Goſpell (as hee ſhewed in the Chapter before) doth excell [q] in grace and glory the miniſtration of the law: In grace, for the letter killeth, but the ſpirit giueth life, the law being the miniſtration of condemnation, but the Goſpell the miniſtration of righteouſneſſe; In glory, both in reſpect of countenance, for it is more honourable to be the miniſter of mercy, than executioner of iudgement: and in reſpect of continuance, for Moſes glory is done away, but the Goſpels miniſterie remaineth: all Moſes glory was but a type of Christs glory, now the substance being come, the shadow vanisheth; [r] all the Prophets and the law prophecied vnto Iohn, but [s] truth and grace came by Iesus Christ. As farre then as the Sunne doth obscure the lesser lights; euen so farre the Gospell exceeds in glory the Law, [t] for when that which is perfect is come, then that which is imperfect is abolished.

[p] Aretius, Piſcator.

[q] See Epiſt. 1 ſ. Sun. after Trinitie.

The second thing that made Paul constantly diligent in his function, is Gods mercy shewed on him in his office, being an Apostle, [u] not of men, neither by man, but by Iesus Christ, [x] put apart to preach the Gospell by [y] the will of God. I was (saith he 1 Tim. 1.) both a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and an oppressor, but Christ receiuing me to mercy, put me in his seruice, by whose grace I am whatsoeuer I am, 1 Cor. 15.10. wherefore seeing we haue such an excellent office, so gracious, so glorious; and seeing God hath (out of the riches of his mercie, [z] not out of any worth of our owne merit) called vs vnto such an office, we faint not in this our ministerie for any [a] tribulation or trouble whatsoeuer. [b] So Paul expounds himselfe in this present Chapter, we are troubled on euery side, yet not distressed: in pouertie, but not in despaire: persecuted, but not forsaken: cast downe, but not cast away: therefore we faint not, for though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renued daily, for our light affliction which is but for a moment, causeth vnto vs a farre most excellent and an eternall weight of glory, while we looke not on the things which are seene, but on the things which are not seene, for the things which are seene are temporall, but the things which are not seene eternall. As if he should say, seeing our worke is excellent, and our reward (when we haue [c] fought our fight and ended our course) most excellent: we slacke not our dutie for any crosse or care, but [d] approue our selues as the ministers of God in all things, in afflictions, in necessities, in anguishes, in stripes, in strifes, in labours, &c. by honour & dishonour, by bad report and good report; as sorrowing, and yet alway reioycing; as poore, yet making many rich; as hauing nothing, and yet possessing all things.

We haue cast from vs the cloakes of vnhonestie] For as much as the [e] deuill is the most diligent preacher in the whole world, [f] walking about as a roaring lion seeking whom hee may deuoure, and his agents [g] compasse sea and land to make men of their profession: our Apostle to his industrie further addeth in his preaching sinceritie, we cast from vs the cloakes of vnhonestie, &c. that is, we haue renounced ([h] as a father vtterly forsakes a disobedient sonne) [i] not only notorious and open crimes, but also those which are hidden, and as it were cloathed with cloakes and colours of excuse: for so Paul [k] construeth himselfe in the clause following, we walke not in craftinesse, &c. that is, we deale not as the false Apostles in [l] hypocrisie, [m] comming vnto you in sheepes cloathing, but inwardly are rauening wolues; neither handle we the word deceitfully, that is, [n] as he said in this [o] Epistle before, we doe not as many, make merchandise of the word. [p] We preach not for gaine or glory, for such are hirelings, Iohn 10.12. neither doe we sophisticate the word, as they who mingle heauen and earth, and ioyne the ceremonies of Moses law with the Gospell of Iesus Christ as necessarie to saluation, for such are wolues. We preach neither [q] flatteringly, nor falsly, but open the truth, and commend our selues to euery mans conscience in the sight of God, [r] that is, we haue deliuered the word so plainly, so purely, neither [s] adding any thing to it, nor diminishing any thing of it, [t] as that our deeds speaking for our doctrine, we appeale to the consciences of all such as haue heard vs, and to God himselfe who seeth all things, and vnderstandeth euery secret of our heart so well as euery word of our mouth, euen he that knoweth all things [u] knoweth that I lie not.

If our Gospell be yet hid, it is hid among them that are lost.] [x] Here Paul preuenteth an obiection, If you faint not in opening the truth vnto the consciences of all men, how commeth it to passe that many beleeue not your Gospell? He doth answer directly, that the fault is not in the Gospell it selfe, for that is a shining light to such as are in darkenesse: but in vnbeleeuers, whose mindes are blinded by the god of this world, lest the light of the Gospell of the glory of Christ (which is the image of God) should shine vnto them.

That

[r] Matth. 11.13
[s] Iohn 1.17.
[t] 1 Cor. 13.10.

[u] Gal. 1.1.
[x] Rom. 1.1. Acts 13.2.
[y] 2 Cor. 1.1.

[z] Theophylact. Aquin. Anselm.
[a] Hieron. Primasius. Lombard.
[b] Marlorat.

[c] 2 Tim. 4.7.

[d] 2 Cor. 6.4.

[e] B. Latymer. ser. at Pauls.
[f] 1 Pet. 5.8.
[g] Matth. 23.15

[h] Aretius.
[i] Lombard. Aquin.
[k] Theophylact.

[l] Anselm.
[m] Matth. 7.15.
[n] Aretius. Marlorat. Beza.
[o] Cap. 2. ver. 17.
[p] Aquin. Lombard. Anselm.
[q] Primasius.
[r] Bullinger.
[s] Apoc. 22.18.
[t] Theophylact.
[u] 2 Cor. 11.31
[x] Aquin. Aretius. Beza.

That is euery mans god in this world which he likes beſt, and loues moſt, as [y] gold is a couetous mans god, and [z] belly cheere a voluptuous mans god, and preferment an ambitious mans god. And [a] theſe gods blinde the minde of vnbeleeuers, that they ſhould not in this world ſee the light of grace, nor in the world to come the light of glory. So we reade Luke 14. when a certaine man had ordained a great ſupper, and inuited many, ſaying, come, for all things are ready: the firſt ſaid, I haue bought a farme, and I muſt needs goe to ſee it, Honour was the god that blinded his eyes. Another ſaid, I haue bought fiue yoke of oxen, and I goe to proue them, Riches was the god that blinded his eyes. A third ſaid, I haue maried a wife, and therefore I cannot come, Pleaſure was the god that blinded his eyes. See Goſpell 2. Sun. after Trinitie.

y Ephes 5.5. Iob 31 24.
z Philip. 3.19.
a Aquin. Caietan.

[b] Other vnderſtand this of the true God, which is the God of this world, for that he made it, according to that of [c] Dauid, The earth is the Lords, and all that therein is, the compaſſe of the world, and they that dwell therein. And God is ſaid to blinde the mindes of vnbeleeuers, [d] Non inducendo malitiam, ſed merito potius demerito precedentium peccatorum ſubtrahendo gratiam. It is Gods mercie, that the light of the word ſhines in the hearts of his elect, and it is Gods iuſtice, that it is hidden among thoſe which are loſt. I am come (ſaid [e] Chriſt) vnto iudgement in this world, that they which ſee not might ſee, and that they which ſee might be made blinde. And Rom. 11.8. God hath giuen them the ſpirit of ſlumber, eyes that they ſhould not ſee, and eares that they ſhould not heare: that the Goſpell in it ſelfe a ſhining light, and the [f] power of God vnto ſaluation, ſhould be hidden among the loſt, and ſo become the [g] ſauour of death vnto death; is an heauie, yet an holy iudgement: For, [h] as they regard not to know God, euen ſo God deliuers them vp vnto a reprobate ſenſe, [i] ſuffering their eyes to be blinded, leſt the light of the Goſpell ſhould ſhine vnto them. [k] As by the bright beames of the Sunne wax is ſoftned, and yet dirt is hardned: euen ſo by the preaching of the word, the hearts of ſuch as ſhall be ſaued are mollified, but the hearts of ſuch as are loſt are further hardned. To day then, euen while it is called to day, ſuffer the words of exhortation, if thou haue an eare to heare, harden not thine heart, but harken vnto Gods voice, ſpeaking in the bookes of his Scriptures, and by the mouthes of his Prophets vnto thee.

b Theophylact. Primaſius. Anſelm.
c Pſal. 24. 1.
d Aquin.
e Iohn 9.39.
f Rom. 1.16.
g 2 Cor 2.16.
h Rom 1.28.
i Theophylact. Oecumen.
k Arctius.

[l] Other vnderſtand this of Satan, here called the god, as elſewhere, [m] the prince of this world, that is, ſeculariter viuentium, of the wicked of the world, in [n] whom he ruleth and worketh, as yeelding to his ſuggeſtions. It is not Satans power that makes him a god, and a prince, but onely the weakneſſe of the wicked, admitting him as a lord of miſ-rule; for, he (ſaith [o] Paul) is our maſter to whom we ſubmit our ſelues as ſeruants. Chriſt is the Lord of heauen and earth by a threefold right, [p] iure creationis, merito redemptionis, dono patris: but the deuill is god of this world onely (quoth Aquine) imitatione, becauſe the wicked of this world are his followers, as hauing their [q] vnderſtanding darkned, and their mindes blinded, and hearts hardned through his entiſing temptations. And ſo Paul in this preſent Epiſtle chap. 11. verſe 3. I feare leſt as the ſerpent beguiled Eue through his ſubtiltie; ſo your mindes ſhould be corrupted from the ſimplicitie that is in Chriſt. The Goſpell is a glaſſe where in we may behold Chriſt; and Chriſt is an [r] expreſſe character and image of God, as himſelfe ſaid, [ſ] he that hath ſeene me, hath ſeene my father, and this is eternall life to know God, and whom he hath ſent Ieſus Chriſt, Iohn 17.3. If then thou heare the word often, and yet continue ſtill in vnbeleefe, the fault is not in God or his Goſpell, but in thy ſelfe and Satan, who blindes the mindes of ſuch as are loſt, &c.

l Lombard. Aquin. Caluin.
m Iohn 12.31.
n Epheſ. 2. 2.
o Rom. 6.16.
p Bernard lib. 3 de conſiderat.
q Epheſ 4.18.
r Heb. 1.3.
ſ Iohn 14.9.

We preach not our ſelues] [t] Leſt he ſhould be thought arrogant in commending his ſedulous and ſincere preaching, he confeſſeth humbly that himſelfe and his fellowes were not principall agents in their conuerſion, but inſtrumentall onely; Chriſt is the Lord, and we your ſeruants for his ſake, for it is God that commands the light to ſhine out of darkneſſe, which hath ſhined in our hearts, for to giue the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Iesus Christ. And we haue this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellencie of that power might be of God, and not of vs. See Epist. 3. Sun. in Aduent, and 1. in Lent.

t Caluin. Marlorat. Piſcator.

This Scripture may be termed aptly manipulus Curatorum; 1. Instructing all such as haue cure of soules to be diligent in their ministerie, considering the worthinesse of their function, and the goodnesse of God in making them [u] apt to teach, and in calling them vnto such an high office. 2. To be rather solide than subtle, preaching plainly to the conscience. 3. To be humble, [x] not as though they were lords ouer Gods heritage, but in meeknesse of spirit, behauing themselues as seruants for Iesus sake.

[u] 1 Tim 3. 2.

[x] 1 Pet. 5. 3.

The Gospell. Matth. 9. 9. vnto v. 14

As Iesus passed forth from thence he saw a man named Matthew, &c.

IN this text two points are more chiefely regardable, namely, the

- Calling of Matthew, wherein obserue the
  - Bountifulnesse of Christ in calling, he saw a man named Matthew, &c.
  - Dutifulnesse of Matthew in comming, he arose, and followed him.
- Cauilling of the Pharisees, and in it
  - Their accusation, Why eateth your master with Publicans and sinners?
  - Christs excusation, answering for himselfe by grounds of
    - Reason, they that bee strong need not the Physitian.
    - Religion, go ye rather and learne, &c.

As Iesus passed forth from thence] We may not slightly passe ouer the passing of Iesus here from place [y] to place doing good, and acting works of mercy and miracle. Craftie Politicians thrust themselues into the center of the world, as if all times should meet in their ends, neuer caring in any tempest what becommeth of the ship of estate, so they may be safe in the coc-boat of their owne fortune. But Christ here neglecting his priuate boat, was al for the publike ship of the Church, being not only painful in his own person all his life, but also careful in calling Apostles who might as cūning masters & pilots guide the churches ship after his death

[y] Acts 10. 38.

[z] By this example, Princes (which ought to be [a] nursing fathers vnto the Church) are taught, not only to see that matters be well ordered for the present; but also to foresee such things as may be for the good of the Church in time to come. They must especially maintaine the schooles of the Prophets, as the seminaries & nurseries of the Clergy, that there may be from time to time Peters & Matthewes, apt & able [b] labourers in the Lords haruest. As for you which are men of meane qualitie, though it be true that yee cannot found Colledges, or endue the Church with any large reuenues; yet ye can [c] pray for the peace of Hierusalem, & wish heartily that plenteousnes may be within her palaces: And therfore when any suit concerning the Clergy shall be tried by your verdite, [d] forsake not the Leuite as long as thou liuest vpon earth. Let no malignant humour cause thee to rob God of his due, the Minister of his dutie, that the Gospell may not only flourish in our daies, but that there may be still a succession of learned men in all ages to come, who may [e] comfort Hierusalem at the heart, and withstand all her [f] enemies in the gate.

[z] Musculus in loc.

[a] Esay 49. 23.

[b] Luke 10. 1.

[c] Psalm. 122. 6.

[d] Deut. 12. 19.

[e] Esay 40. 2.

[f] Psalm. 127. 6.

He saw a man named Matthew sitting at the receit of custome] He saw Matthew not (as then he saw many moe) with his corporall eyes only, [g] but also with his all-seeing eyes of prescience, knowing that he was a [h] pearle in a dunghill, a chosen vessell vnto the Lord from all eternitie. And with his pitifull eyes of mercie, euen with the verie same eyes he saw the grieuous troubles of his children in [i] Ægypt, and with the same eyes he saw Peter weeping, and with the same eyes he saw [k] Nathaniel vnder the fig-tree. Now the greatnesse of his exceeding rich

[g] Ardens. Rupert.

[h] Chrysost apud Panigarol. hom. in loc.

[i] Exod. 3. 7.

[k] John 1. 48.

mercies

mercies is amplified here by circumſtances of the perſon, and of the place, and of the time. By circumſtance of perſon, he ſaw and called Matthew, a rich man, a couetous rich man, a couetous rich man in a corrupt office, Matthew the Publican. [l] Other Euangeliſts in relating this hiſtorie, call him Leui, [m] but he cals himſelfe by that name he was beſt knowne, he confeſſed his fault, and acknowledged his folly, ſtiling himſelfe Matthew the Publican. And this he did vnto Gods glorie, for the greater was his miſerie, the greater was his Sauiours mercie. The children of Iſrael payed no cuſtome before their captiuitie, wherefore toll-gatherers, as being ſubiect to many foule extortions & oppreſſions, were moſt odious officers among the Iewes; in ſo much as Publicans and notorious malefactors are coupled vſually together in the Goſpell: as [n] if he refuſe to heare the Church alſo, let him be to thee as an heathen man and a Publican, and Matth 21.31. Verily I ſay vnto you, that the Publicans and the harlots ſhall goe before you into the kingdome of God, and Luke 15.1. Then reſorted vnto him all the Publicans and ſinners; and in our preſent text, why eateth your Maſter with Publicans and ſinners? So that Publicans are ioyned ſometime with heathens, ſometime with harlots, alway with ſinners.

[l] Mark 2.14. Luke 5.27.
[m] Hieron. Ianſen. Maldonat.
[n] Matth. 18.17

But the goodneſſe of Chriſt is amplified more by circumſtances of place and time, for that he called Matthew ſitting at the receit of cuſtome; he called [o] Peter and Andrew while they were fiſhing; Iames and Iohn while they were mending their nets; he called other, while they were doing ſome good; but (ô the deepneſſe of the riches of Chriſts vnſpeakable mercies) he called Matthew when he was doing hurt, executing his hatefull office, ſitting at the receit of cuſtome. [p] There be three degrees in ſinne, mentioned Pſal. 1.1. The firſt is, walking in the counſell of the vngodly: the ſecond is, ſtanding in the way of ſinners: the third is, ſitting in the ſeat of the ſcornfull: now Matthew the Publican had proceeded Doctor in his facultie, he was ſeated in the chaire, ſitting at the receit of cuſtome, the which is worſe than either walking in the counſell of the vngodly, or ſtanding in the way of ſinners.

[o] Matth. 4.18.
[p] Euthym. Caluin. Genebrard. in Pſalm. 1.

Hence we may learne not to deſpaire of other, much leſſe of our ſelues: not of other, albeit they be neuer ſo couetous miſers and great oppreſſors. Indeed [q] Chriſt ſaid, It is eaſier for a Camell (or as [r] other read) for a cable to goe thorow the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdome of God, but he doth adde withall and ſay, with man this is impoſſible, but with God all things are poſſible. He can vntwine a cable rope in euery cord and thred, and ſo draw it thorow the eye of a needle: he can vndoe the cords of vanitie and cart-ropes of iniquitie, which hold couetous men from him, and ſo make them (as he did here Matthew) to follow him. He did vntwine Zacheus when he ſaid, [s] Behold Lord halfe of my goods I giue to the poore, and if I haue taken from any man by forged cauillation, I reſtore him foure-fold: and ſo Zacheus notwithſtanding his Camels backe, that is, in former time his prodigious wealth, entred into the ſtrait gate of heauen.

[q] Matth. 19.24
[r] Theophylact. Eraſmus. Druſius in loc. Matth.
[s] Luke 19.8.

And let no man euer deſpaire of himſelfe, ſeeing Chriſt called Matthew when he was doing of euill, and the theefe on the Croſſe, Luk. 23. when he was ſuffering for euill. [t] According to his name ſo is his praiſe, [u] Ieſus is his name, and he is a Sauiour of his people; comming into this world (as he proteſteth and proueth in this Scripture) not to call the righteous but ſinners to repentance.

[t] Pſal. 48.9.
[u] Matth. 1.21.

In Matthewes obedience to Chriſts call, obſerue with [x] Ardens, a threefold abrenunciation:

1. Of his wickedneſſe, he aroſe, namely from his old vnconſcionable courſe vnto newneſſe of life.
2. Of his wealth, he left all, Luk. 5.28.
3. Of his will, he followed him, and that as [y] one writes,
   - Celeriter.
   - Lætanter.
   - Conuenienter.
   - Perſeueranter.

[x] Hom. in loc.
[y] Paratus ſer. de S. Matth.

1. He followed Chriſt immediatly without delay, for as ſoone as Chriſt had ſaid, follow me; forthwith he aroſe and followed him.

2. He

2. He followed Christ cheerefully [z] without any murmuring or disputing who should execute his office, or looke to his account. [a] It was in the worlds eye a great folly to leaue such a gainfull occupation, a greater folly to forsake that which he had already got, and the greatest of all to follow him who was so poore, that he wanted a nest and an hole where to rest his head, Matth. 8.20. Yet Matthew beholding his Sauiour with eyes of faith, and [b] looking not on the things which are seene, but on the things which are not seene, simply and cheerefully followed him, and in [c] token hereof (as [d] S. Luke reports) he made him a great feast in his owne house.

3. Matthew followed Christ conueniently, because he left all and followed him: all his worldly businesse, all his vnconscionable gaines, all his corrupt affections, and w hatsoeuer hindred him in the way to God. And [e] herein he dealt not (as prophane Porphirius and Iulian obiect) vnaduisedly to forsake all things, and to follow one which had nothing, for Matthew doubtlesse had before seene many miracles of Christ, and at this present he was also drawne by the Holy Spirit, according to that of our Sauiour, [f] no man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him. And this Spirit assured his spirit that Christ as God is [g] all-sufficient, and a [h] rewarder of such as seeke him and come vnto him. Here the Gospell and Epistle meet, Paul preached not the word for worldly gaine, Matthew left all and followed Christ. He did not abandon all his estate, for he feasted Christ in his owne house: but he was [i] willing to leaue the whole world to gaine that good which he could neither [k] prodere nor perdere.

4. Matthew followed Christ constantly, being first a Disciple, then an Apostle, afterward an Euangelist, and last of all a Martyr: as a Disciple he heard the Gospell of Christ, as an Apostle he preached the Gospell of Christ, as an Euangelist he wrote the Gospell of Christ, as a Martyr he suffered for the Gospell of Christ. He was not onely a Disciple, but an Apostle, numbred among the twelue, preaching the Gospell in [m] Iudea and [n] Æthiopia, for I remember [o] one saith of him, Æthiopiam nigram doctrinâ fidei fecit candidam. And that he might preach vnto the whole world after his death, he penned the booke of the generation of Iesus Christ, &c. In which (as Euseb. Emisen. obserueth) he makes a great feast vnto Christ, and that in [p] sundry respects, as, 1. His Gospell is great, as being written in Hebrew, the most ancient and most holy tongue. 2. Great, as being the [q] first of all the Gospels. 3. Great, as being the most large, [r] diuided by the moderne Latines into 28. Chapters, but according to the partition of Hilarius in former ages into 33. or as Druthmarus into 67. Canons. Among the Grecians, Euthymius parteth it into 68. chapters, Eusebius, Ammonius, Suidas, into 355. And lastly great, as intending principally to shew that the man Christ is the Messias and Sauiour of the world, promised by the Prophets, and prefigured in the sacrifices of the Law. S. Matthew hauing cheerefully followed Christ in hearing his Gospell, in preaching his Gospell, in writing his Gospell, [s] on this day suffered martyrdome constantly for his Gospell.

Christ euery day calleth vs, and saith vnto vs as here to Matthew, Follow me, though he doe not this immediately by himselfe, yet he speaketh vnto vs by the tongues of his Preachers, as he spake in [t] old time to our fathers by the mouths of the Prophets. It is our dutie therefore to come when he calleth (as his seruant Matthew) quickly, conueniently, constantly, cheerefully, Quickly without delay, [u] make no tarrying to turne vnto the Lord, but to day, [x] while it is called to day, let vs heare his voice: conueniently, forsaking our selues, & casting away euery thing that presseth downe, and hindreth vs in our way to Christ, Heb. 12.1. constantly, [y] going from strength to strength, and continuing [z] faithfull vnto the death: cheerefully, making Christ a great feast in our owne house.

Haply thou wilt obiect, if I had liued in that golden age, when Christ my Sauiour blessed the world with his bodily presence, then I would haue worshipped him, and followed him, and feasted him: but alas, I haue good cause to complaine with Marie Magdalen, [a] they haue taken away the Lord, and where should I finde

[z] Aretius.
[a] Musculus.
[b] 2 Cor. 4.18.
[c] Rupert. in loc.
[d] Luke 5.29.
[e] Hieron. Caietan.
[f] Iohn 6.44.
[g] Gen 17.1.
[h] Heb 11.6.
[i] Apostoli quantum ad voluntatem totum mundum reliquerunt. Hieron. Epist. ad Pammac.
[k] Augustin. de Ciuitate Dei, lib. 1. cap. 10.
[l] Matth. 10.3.
[m] Euseb. hist. lib 3 cap 21. Idem Magdeburg. cent. 1. lib. 2. col. 576.
[n] Socrates hist. lib. 1. cap. 15.
[o] Cassianus catalog. part 3. considerat. 29.
[p] Panigarol. hom in loc. part. 1.
[q] August. de consensu Euangel. lib. 1. cap. 2.
[r] See Panigarol vbi sup. & Sixt. Bibliothec. lib. 1. pag. 17.
[s] Vide not. Baron. in Rom. Martyr. Septemb. 21.
[t] Heb. 1.1.
[u] Eccles. 5.3.
[x] Heb 3.13.
[y] Psal 84.7.
[z] Apocal. 2.10.
[a] Iohn 20.2.

finde him, if I would now feast him? O beloued, albeit Christ [b] is in heauen, and thou art on earth, yet thou mayest (and that in thine owne house) make to him a [c] double feast; a spirituall feast, and a corporall: a spirituall, for his meat is to doe the will of God, Iohn 4.34. And the will of God is to beleeue in him whom he hath sent, Iohn 6.29. So that whosoeuer beleeueth in Christ, and openeth the doore to his knocke, maketh him a feast in the parlour of his heart. So [d] himselfe saith, I stand at the doore and knocke, if any man heare my voice, and open the doore, I will come in vnto him, and will sup with him, and he with me. The Poets fained that their God Iupiter fed on Nectar and Ambrosia, [e] Iupiter Ambrosia satur est, & Nectare plenus. But the God of heauen is refreshed with the [f] fruits of the Spirit, loue, ioy, peace, long-suffering, gentlenesse, goodnesse, faith, meeknesse, temperance, these dishes are his dainties.

Thou mayest also feast him corporally; for whatsoeuer is done to his followers, he taketh as done to himselfe, because they be [g] members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bone: this he will openly protest at the last day, Matth.25.35. I was an hungred, and ye gaue me meat: I thirsted, and ye gaue me drinke: for in as much as ye haue done it vnto one of the least of these my brethren, ye haue done it vnto me.

And when the Pharisies saw it] In the Pharisies accusation obserue these two circumstances especially: To whom; and of whom it was made; to whom, they said vnto his Disciples: of whom, of Christ and the rest of the guests in Matthewes house, why eateth your master with Publicans and sinners, &c. In making this obiection vnto the Disciples, and not vnto Christ himselfe, they shew themselues to be craftie calumniators. It was [h] craft to set vpon the weake Disciples being a little before confounded by their master: and it was a [i] calumnie to mutter that behinde his backe, which they dare not vtter vnto his face. But this was their ordinarie guile to vent their gall, when they conceited that the Disciples did amisse, they cauilled with Christ, [k] why doe thy Disciples transgresse the traditions of the fathers, for they wash not their hands when they eat bread. And when they thought Christ offended, they told his Disciples, why eateth your Master with Publicans and sinners? In the fact of the Disciples, they cauilled with Christ: in the fact of Christ, they cauilled with the Disciples; in both, their malicious intent was to dishonour the Gospell, and estrange the Disciples from Christ, and Christ from his Disciples. In our age there be many such enuious Sycophants, who being once got betweene the pot and the wall, chat in secret against that which Christ and his Ministers haue chaunted in publike.

The Pharisies accusing Christ and his company, Publicans and sinners, offended in vncharitablenesse and pride: in vncharitablenesse toward Christ, [l] ac si consentiens in culpa, qui consentiens in cœna, as if he had communicated with them in mischiefe, as he did common with them at meat: whereas Christ conuersed with Publicans and sinners, as the Physitian with the sicke; [m] they made not him worse, but he made them better; he had no fellowship with [n] vnfruitfull works of darknesse, but only with the workers, he did loue their persons, but leaue their vices: see Gospell on the 3. Sund. after Trinitie. Againe, the Pharisies were very cruell and vncharitable toward the Publicans, in that they despised them, and had no feeling of their miseries, or care for their conuersion: and lastly, they shew their pride by iustifying themselues impudently, whereas they should rather haue confessed ingenuously with the [o] Psalmist, enter not into iudgement with thy seruants, for no flesh is righteous in thy sight: and with [p] Iob, if the starres are vncleane in his sight, how much more man a worme, euen the sonne of man which is but a worme? and with [q] Esay, we haue all been an vncleane thing, and all our righteousnesse is as filthie clouts.

When Christ heard that, he said vnto them] He replied vnto the Pharisies [r] not as hoping to mend them by his answer, but lest his Disciples otherwise might be scandalized, hereby giuing vs an example to meet with opprobrious cauils and calumnies against the Gospell, and that not to satisfie so much our aduersaries, as to strengthen our auditors.

They

[b] Ecclesiast. 5.1
[c] Ardens. Musculus in loc.
[d] Apocal. 3.20
[e] Persius.
[f] Galat. 5.22.
[g] Ephes 3.30.
[h] Aretius. Marlorat.
[i] Bullinger.
[k] Matth. 15.2
[l] Ardens.
[m] Aretius.
[n] Ephes. 5.11.
[o] Psal 143.2.
[p] Iob 25.5.
[q] Esay 64.6.
[r] Musculus. Culman.

They that be ſtrong need not the Phyſitian] This ſentence may be conſidered as a [f] ſcomma to the Phariſies, who where ſo righteous and ſtrong in their own conceit, as that they did not in any caſe need a Phyſitian; but as a Lemma for [t] others, in which (as in the reſt of his Apologie) Chriſt inſinuates, that he came into the world, not to conſtraine, but to call; not the righteous [u] who iuſtifie themſelues, but ſinners, euen ſuch as feele their wickedneſſe and weakneſſe, ſuch as are [x] broken hearted, ſuch as are laden and [y] wearie with the burden of their iniquitie: [z] not to licentiouſneſſe in their ſinne, or to puniſhment for their ſinne, or to ſatisfaction for their ſinne, but to repentance for their ſinne, that they being deliuered out of the hands of all their enemies, might ſerue God in holineſſe and righteouſneſſe all the dayes of their life. [a] Paulinus ſaith excellently, that a ſinner irrepentant is like Samſon in the mill, grinding corne for his enemies: but if he [b] confeſſe his ſinnes, and be ſorrie for the ſame, Chriſt is faithfull and iuſt to forgiue him his ſinnes, and to cleanſe him from all vnrighteouſneſſe.

[f] Theophylact.
[t] Caluin.
[u] Hilarius. Panigarol. Marlorat.
[x] Luke 4 18.
[y] Matth. 11.28
[z] Muſculus. Caluin.
[a] Epiſt. lib. 1. Epiſt. 4.
[b] 1 Iohn 1.9.

Almightie God, which by thy bleſſed Sonne diddeſt call Matthew from the receit of cuſtome, to be an Apoſtle and Euangeliſt: grant vs grace to forſake all couetous deſires and inordinate loue of riches, and to follow thy ſaid Son Ieſus Chriſt, who liueth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghoſt, &c.

The Epiſtle. APOCAL. 12. 7. vnto v. 13

There was a great battell in heauen, &c.

- IN this Scripture three points are to be conſidered, & they bee points of warre, to wit, a
  - Battell, verſe 7. deſcribed by circumſtances of the - Time, when it was fought, there was.
    - Field, where it was fought, in heauen.
    - Captaines and Souldiers, by whom it was fought, on the one ſide, Michael and his Angels, on the other, the Dragon with his Angels.
  - Victorie following the battell, ſet downe
    - Negatiuely, they preuailed not, neither was their place found any more in heauen, verſ. 8.
    - Poſitiuely, the Dragon and all his Angels with him are caſt out of heauen into the earth, verſ. 9.
  - Triumph after the victorie, containing the
    - Cauſes
      - Principall, the blond of the Lambe.
      - Inſtrumentall,
        - A ſound profeſſion of the faith, & by the word of their teſtimonie.
        - A reſolute conſtancie to the end, they loued not their liues vnto the death, verſe 11.
    - Effects and fruits of the victorie, verſ. 10. and 12. I heard a loud voyce ſaying, in heauen is now made ſaluation, &c. Therefore reioyce, ô ye heauens, &c.

For

For the better vnderſtanding of the whole text, I purpoſe to treat firſt of the commanders and ſouldiers in this warfare, Michael and his Angels fought, and the Dragon & his Angels fought. Cardinal[c] Bellarmine affirms that Michael euer ſince the fall of Lucifer is head of the glorious Angels, & the Rhemiſts obſerue the reaſō here why S. Michael is ordinarily painted fighting with a Dragon: but I thinke neither the fooliſh painter, nor yet learned Bellarmine can tell vs how Michael came to be choſen into Lucifers roome. For all the wicked Angels (as S. Iude teacheth in his Epiſtle) who left their habitation, are reſerued in euerlaſting chaines vnder darkneſſe, and ſuch as fell not are not preferred vnto higher place, but continue ſtill in their firſt eſtate and dignitie: we grant that there be certaine diſtinctions & degrees of Angels in the quire of heauen, as reading in holy Scriptures of [d] principalities, and powers, and thrones, and dominions, and [e] Seraphims, and [f] Cherubims; but we finde not in the Bible that Michael is the chiefe commander of all. Indeed S. Iude calleth him an Archangell, and [g] Daniel, vnum de principibus, that is, one of the principall Angels, as Vatablus vpon the place; but he neuer was or ſhall be monarch and head of all Angels, and that I proue (by theſe reaſons enſuing) vnto the Papiſts.

1. According to the doctrine of their [h] owne ſchoole, Michael being imployed as a meſſenger betweene God and man, is not of the firſt Hierarchie, but of an [i] vnderling order, and ſo conſequently not ſupremus Angelorum, as their owne Doctor [k] Georg. Bartholdus Pontanus acknowledgeth.

2. Becauſe the greateſt Angell is vſed in the greateſt embaſſage, but Gabriel was ſent for the contracting of that ſacred match betweene the bleſſed Virgin and the God of heauen, ergo, Gabriel is rather ſupreme both in naturall and ſupernaturall graces and prerogatiues. So [l] Gregorie the Great, ſometime Biſhop of Rome, notes, Ad hoc myſterium ſummum Angelum venire dignum fuerat, qui ſummum omnium nunciabat: It was conuenient (ſaith he) that to this ſupreme myſterie of myſteries, the ſupreme of all Angels ſhould be deſtinated, who ſhould annunciate the conception of the ſupreme Lord of all.

3 Becauſe Chriſt is the Michael here mentioned, as the Commentarie vnder [m] Auguſtines name, Michaelem intellige Chriſtum, by Michael vnderſtand thou Chriſt. [n] For the bleſſed Angels cannot be ſaid to be any other Michaels Angels, but only the Angels of God and Chriſt: in the viſion haply Michael and an hoſt of Angels appeared vnto Iohn, but they repreſented [o] Chriſt and his members. The name Michael ſignifies quis vt Deus, who is as God, a name beſt agreeing vnto Chriſt, as being very God of very God, euen the brightneſſe of his glory and ingraued forme of his perſon, Heb. 1. 3. Michael (as we finde in the 10. and 12. chapter of Daniel) was the patron of the Iewes, and the defendor of Gods people. But herein he was a type of Chriſt and a figure, for Ieſus alone is this Sauiour, as [p] Eſay foretold, and Zacharias in his Euangelicall hymne chaunted plainly, the light of the Gentiles, and the glory of his people Iſrael.

So that the meaning of our text is briefly [q] this, Chriſt & his mēbers fight againſt the deuill & his complices: & indeed it is againſt the principles of holy beleefe to aſcribe this victory to Michael or any other Angell whatſoeuer, ſeeing the Scripture ſaith expreſly, [r] The ſeed of the woman ſhall breake the Serpents head, & [ſ] the God of peace ſhall tread downe Satan vnder our feet, and a loud voice from heauen proclaimes in this chap. at the 11. v. they ouercame the Dragō by the blood of the Lamb.

Our bleſſed Sauiour did fight a ſingle combat with the Dragon in the wildernes, and ouercame him, Matth. 4. A point full of inſtruction and comfort, as I haue ſhewed in my notes vpon the Goſpell 1. Sunday in Lent. Againe, Chriſt fought with the deuill and all his complices on the Croſſe, where, ſaith [t] Paul, he ſpoiled principalities & powers, and made a ſhew of them openly. For as a mighty [u] Samſon he did beare away the gates of his enemies vpon his own ſhoulders, killing at his death moe than he had ſlaine in his life: by death he deſtoyed death; and by his going downe to the graue he did open the graue, and gaue life to the dead, in the houſe of death, and kingdome of hell; he triumphed ouer Satan, & ſpoiled him of all

[c] De Rom. Pont. lib. 1. cap. 9 §. poſt caſum verò.

[d] Epheſ. 1. 21. Coloſſ. 1. 16.
[e] Eſay 6. 2.
[f] Gen. 3. 24.
[g] Dan. 10. 13. & 12. 1.

[h] Thom part. 1. queſt. 142 art. 2 & 4.
[i] Pererius in Dan. 10.
[k] Præfat. in ſer. de S. Michael.

[l] Hom. 34. in Euangel.

[m] Hom. 9. in Apocalyp.
[n] D. Fulk in loc.
[o] Bullinger, Aretius, Marlorat.

[p] Cap. 7. 14.

[q] Auguſt. vbi ſup.

[r] Gen. 3. 15.
[ſ] Rom. 16. 20.

[t] Coloſſ. 2. 15.
[u] Iudges 16. 30.

all his ſtrength and power, as[x] Bernard ſweetly, Diaboli fortitudo per Redemptoris vulnera traducta & deducta ad nihilum.

As Michael did fight, ſo likewiſe his Angels, [y] Chriſtus eſt eccleſiæ ſuæ promachus, Angeli eius ſymachi. [z] Some conſtrue this of the glorious Angels, as being miniſtring ſpirits for the good of ſuch as ſhall be heires of ſaluation, Heb. 1. 14. Theſe ſouldiers being more than twelue legions, Mat. 26. 53. thouſand thouſands and ten thouſand thouſands, Dan. 10. 7. a number without number, Heb. 12. 22. [a] pitch their tents about vs, and fight againſt ſuch as fight againſt vs. Here the Goſpell & Epiſtle meet: Michael and his Angels (ſaith our Epiſtle) fight againſt the Dragon & his Angels: and the Goſpell inſinuates as much, in ſaying, take heed that ye d. ſpiſe not one of theſe little ones, for I ſay vnto you that in heauen their Angels do alway behold the face of my Father, &c. And here you may note the reaſon alſo why both are appointed by the Church to be read on this Feſtiuall of Angels.

[b] Other expound this of the Miniſters of Chriſt, often ſtiled in reſpect of their honourable function & miſſion, Angels. Theſe beare the Captaines colours, preaching the true faith whereby the ſouldiers of Chriſt are diſtinguiſhed from all other. Or as [c] other, by the word Angels is meant all the members of Chriſt in heauen, and on earth, as well Magiſtrates as Miniſters; as well people as Paſtors; all his Apoſtles, Confeſſors, Martyrs, and whoſoeuer elſe fighteth vnder his banner.

The Deuill is the Generall on the contrary ſide, called here for his [d] open miſchiefe, a great Dragon; for his cunning and ſecret malice, an old Serpent; for his falſe cauils, an accuſer of his brethren and a Deuill; for his obſtinate contradiction and oppoſition of God & godlineſſe, Satan. And the Dragon is not only chiefe of Deuils, but alſo [e] god of this world, that is, of al wicked men in the world: Deceiuing (ſaith our text) all the world, [f] that is, endeuouring to deceiue all in the world, but actually deceiuing al ſuch as are [g] of the world, ſtirring them vp alway to fight againſt Michael & his Angels, [h] againſt the Lord, & againſt his anointed. Entiſing the Magiſtrate to tyrannie, the people to ſecuritie, the learned to curious impietie, the ſimple to brutiſh Epicuriſme, all to diſorder & diſſolutenes. [i] Quo enim vel vnde ſeducit vel abducit orbem terrarum, niſi à cultu Dei debito ad cultum ſuimet indebitum?

Now we know the Captaines and the ſouldiers: let vs ſee when the battell is fought, and where; when, there was a battell, indefinitely; for there was, is, and euer will be warre betweene Michael and the Dragon vntill the worlds end. And therfore this battell is called in our & ſome other tranſlations prælium magnum, as being great, not only in regard of the great number of thoſe who fight, or in regard of our enemies great might, great malice, great experiẽce, great cunning, al which are very great: [k] but alſo great in regard of the great time this warre ſhal continue; for God ſaid vnto the ſerpent in the beginning of the world, [l] I wil put enmitie betweene thee and the woman, and betweene thy ſeed and her ſeed, he ſhall breake thine head, and thou ſhalt bruiſe his heele. And S. Paul liuing in the latter ends of the world, ſaith in his Epiſtle to the [m] Galatians, as then he that was borne after the fleſh, perſecuted him that was borne after the ſpirit: euen ſo it is now; ſo that as long as there is a world, & a prince of the world, ſo long the children of God muſt put on the armour of light, and fight againſt the works and princes of darkneſſe. Euery Chriſtian is a profeſſed ſouldier, not only for a time to ſee the faſhion of the wars, as yong Gentlemen vſe in our time; but (as he hath in holy baptiſme vowed) manfully to fight vnder Chriſts banner againſt ſinne, the world, and the deuill, and to continue his faithfull ſouldier and ſeruant vnto his liues end. When [n] William the Conquerour had landed his men in Suſſex, he cauſed all his ſhips to be ſunke, that all hope of flying backe might be taken away: Beloued, ſeeing we are landed on this valley of teares, as it were the Battell of the world, let vs neither faint nor flie, but fight it out valiantly, till death our [o] laſt enemie be deſtroied.

3. This battell is deſcribed by the place, there was a great battell in heauen: this cannot fitly be cõſtrued of heauen in heauen, for the deuil in the beginning was caſt out of that heauen, and there is no war-fare, but all well-fare, no iarre but loue, yea ſuch a peace as paſſeth all vnderſtanding. But by heauen is meant the Church of God

[x] Ser. de quadruplici debito.
[y] Aretius.
[z] Ardens, Rupert.
[a] Pſal. 34 7.
[b] Marlorat.
[c] Bullingerꝰ
[d] Ardens.
[e] 2 Cor. 4 4.
[f] Ardens.
[g] Marlorat.
[h] Pſalm. 2. 2.
[i] Rupert.
[k] Marlorat.
[l] Gen. 3 15.
[m] Cap 1. 29.
[n] Reſtitution of decayed intelligence, pag 176.
[o] 1 Cor. 15. 26.

God on earth, as [p] Interpreters obſerue generally, called in holy Scriptures, Heauen and Hieruſalem aboue, for that her chiefe treaſure is in heauen, Mat.6.20. her affections in heauen, Coloſſ.3.2. her conuerſation in heauen, Philip.3.20. and for that the Lord of heauen dwels in her heart by faith, Epheſ.3.17. All this battell then is fought in heauen vpon earth, according to that of [q] Iob, The life of man is a warfare vpon earth: Here is the field where we muſt [r] ſo runne, that we may obtaine; ſo fight, that we may ouercome; no part of the battell is fought in Hell or Purgatorie, but all vpon earth. Or this battell is ſaid to be fought in heauen, as being a ſpirituall warfare, Epheſ.6.12. We wreſtle not againſt fleſh and bloud, but againſt ſpirituall wickedneſſes, which are in high places. Groſſe wickedneſſe is eaſily ſeene, and preuented ſoone, but our aduerſaries abound with inuiſible wickedneſſe, being our greateſt enemies while they ſeeme our beſt friends: and therefore ſeeing we liue in a beſieged Citie, which is aſſaulted on euery ſide by cruell and cunning oppoſers (as the [t] Wiſeman ſpeaks) in the midſt of ſnares, it behoueth vs, as Paul exhorts, to put on the whole armour of God, that we may ſtand againſt all the aſſaults of the deuill. Let vs feare nothing in this holy warre, for our Captaine is good, our Michael is the Lord of Hoſts, Nil deſperandum Chriſto duce, & auſpice Chriſto, our cauſe good, for we fight for the word of truth againſt the father and fauourers of lies; againſt the Dragon and his angels, our companie good, all the glorious Angels in heauen, and all the good men on earth are on our ſide; our reward good when our fight is finiſhed, palmes in our hands, and crownes on our heads. See Epiſtle 21. Sunday after Trinitie.

And preuailed not] Albeit the deuill as a great dragon, and an old ſerpent, and a roaring lion, ſeeke daily whom he may deuoure; yet the gates of [u] hell are not able to conquer the Church: albeit Satan rage and raue neuer ſo much, he ſhall haue no preuailing power againſt Gods elect, he ſhall not pluck any of Chriſts ſheepe out of Chriſts hand, Ioh.10.28. The prince of this world is [x] caſt out, and hath nought in me, ſaith our bleſſed Sauiour, Iohn 14.30. no part in me, no part in mine, which are [y] fleſh of my fleſh, and bones of my bones. I know the Dragon and his angels aſſault Michael and his Angels euery houre, but all the hurt they can do is to bruiſe the heele, Gen.3.15.

Neither was their place any more found in heauen] [z] That is, in the hearts of the godly, whoſe conuerſation is in heauen. Albeit the deuill and his aſſociats beſiege Gods elect euery day, yet they finde in them no reſting place, their dwelling is among the reprobate wicked according to that of [a] S. Matthew, When the vncleane ſpirit is gone out of a man, he walketh thorowout drie places, ſeeking reſt, & finds none, then he ſaith, I will returne into mine houſe, from whence I came; and when he is come, he findeth it emptie, ſwept, and garniſhed, then he goeth, and taketh vnto him ſeuen other ſpirits worſe than himſelfe, and they enter in and dwell there; and the end of this man is worſe than the beginning. The deuill is caſt out of heauen into the earth, as in the text following, [b] that is, into men of earthly mindes, who [c] go vpon their bellies, and eat duſt all the daies of their life. The deuill is caſt out of the Temple into the court, [d] which is without the Temple, [e] that is, out of the bounds of the Church, among the Gentiles, and ſuch as know not God, or elſe knowing God, glorifie him not as God, Rom.1.21. profeſſing that they know God, but denie him in their works, Tit.1.16. In theſe who [f] minde earthly things, Satan ruleth and [g] worketh as their God and Prince.

I heard a loud voice, ſaying, in heauen is now made ſaluation] Here begins the Saints Ἐπινίκιον, or victoriall hymne; for the loud voice from heauen is nothing elſe [h] but the publique conſent of the faithfull in magnifying the mercies of God toward them in their fight againſt the Dragon and his angels. And this conqueſt is termed in reſpect of men, ſaluation: in reſpect of God, the ſtrength of his kingdome, and the power of his Chriſt. Where Satan and ſinne reigne, there deſtruction is at hand, for the wages of ſinne is death, Rom.6.23. but when once Satan is caſt out, and the Word of God, which is the [i] ſauing Goſpell, and the word of [k] life [l] dwelleth in vs plenteouſly, then (as [m] Chriſt ſaid vnto Zacheus)

[p] Auguſtin. Ardens. Rupert. Bullinger.
[q] Iob 7.1.
[r] 1 Cor.9.24.
[t] Rupert. Eraſ. Sarcerius.
[t] Eccleſiaſticus 9.15.
[u] Matth.16.18
[x] Iohn 12.31.
[y] Epheſ.5.30.
[z] Auguſtin. Bullinger. Marlorat.
[a] Cap.12.43.
[b] Rupert. idem Primaſius apud Marlorat.
[c] Gen.3.14.
[d] Apoc.11.2.
[e] Apocalyp. Apocalypſ.
[f] Philip.3.19.
[g] Epheſ.2.2.
[h] Rupert. Bullinger. Marlorat.
[i] Epheſ.1.13.
[k] Philip.2.16.
[l] Coloſſ.3.16.
[m] Luke 19.9.

saluation is come to our house. It is termed the power of Christ, and strength of Gods kingdome, [n] becauſe this euidently ſheweth his might and maieſtie. So the text following, They ouercame the Dragon by the blond of the Lambe. Chriſt fighteth in vs, and for vs, and through his [o] helpe we are able to doe all things, euen to caſt out Satan, and to caſt downe holds, and whatſoeuer is exalted againſt the knowledge of God, 2 Cor. 10.4. So that we may triumph and ſay with [p] Paul, Who ſhall lay any thing to the charge of Gods elect? it is God that iuſtifieth, who ſhall condemne? it is Chriſt which is dead, yea rather that is riſen againe, who is at the right hand of God, and maketh interceſſion for vs: and 1 Cor. 15.55. O death where is thy ſting? O grane where is thy victorie? the ſting of death is ſinne; and the ſtrength of ſinne is the Law: but thanks be vnto God which hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Ieſus Chriſt.

And by the word of their teſtimonie] The bloud of the Lambe, that is, the death of Chriſt our Paſchall Lambe, is the chiefe cauſe of this one victorie, but [q] faith is the hand and inſtrument applying the merits of Chriſt, and oppoſing them againſt all the dangerous aſſaults of the Dragon. For when that common informer and accuſer of his brethren ſhall accuſe thee before God for breaking his lawes (as in [r] many things all of vs offend) then thou maiſt anſwer, [s] The bloud of Ieſus Chriſt cleanſeth vs from all ſinne; and [t] there is no condemnation vnto thoſe which are in Chriſt; he ſo [u] loued me, that he died for my ſinnes, and roſe againe for my iuſtification. All that is borne of God ouercommeth the world, and this is the victorie that ouercommeth the world, and the prince of this world, euen our faith, 1 Iohn 5.4. See Epiſtle Sunday 1. after Eaſter. And therefore Paul aduiſeth the Chriſtian ſouldier aboue all other weapons in the ſpirituall warfare, to put on faith, Aboue all take the ſhield of faith, wherewith yee may quench all the fierie darts of the deuill, Epheſ. 6.16. See Epiſtle Sunday 21. after Trinitie.

Now for as much as it is not ſufficient vnto ſaluation to beleeue with thine heart, vnleſſe thou likewiſe [x] confeſſe with thy mouth: It is ſaid here that the ſouldiers of Chriſt ouercame the Dragon by faith in the Lambs bloud, and by the word of their teſtimonie. And [y] for as much as a true faith is neuer idle, but alway [z] manifeſting it ſelfe by good works; it is added in the next clauſe, they loued not their liues vnto the death; as who would ſay, they were willing to ſacrifice their loues and their liues in the quarrell of Chriſt againſt the Dragon and his Angels; they remembred the words of their Generall, [a] he that loueth his life ſhall loſe it, and he that giueth his life in this world, ſhall keepe it to life eternall; and [b] whoſoeuer ſhall loſe his life for my ſake and the Goſpell, he ſhall ſaue it.

n Ardens.
o Philip. 4. 13.
p Rom. 8.33.
q Rupert. Ardens.
r Iames 3.2.
s 1 Iohn 1.7.
t Rom 8.1.
u Galat. 2.20.
x Rom. 10.9.
y Ardens.
z Iames 2.18.
a Iohn 12.25.
b Mark. 8.35.

The Goſpell. MATTH. 18. 1. vnto v. 11

At the ſame time came the Diſciples vnto Ieſus, ſaying, who is the greateſt in the kingdome of heauen?

THere be two parts of this text,
- 1. A queſtion, verſ. 1. wherein obſerue,
  - 1. When it was asked, at the ſame time.
  - 2. By whom, the Diſciples.
  - 3. Of whom, they came vnto Ieſus
  - 4. What, who is the greateſt in the kingdome, &c.
- 2. An anſwer to the ſame, verſ. 2. 3. &c.

The ſumme whereof is briefly this, [c] he that in Chriſts Church is moſt ſeruant is the greateſt, and he that is moſt lordly the leaſt: [d] or he that is leaſt in his owne conceit, is the greateſt in Gods eye; the leaſt in [e] this kingdome of heauen which is preſent, ſhall be the greateſt in that kingdome of heauen which is to come. The which one point is preſſed by the great Doctor of humilitie with a great deale of earneſtneſſe: for 1. (as [f] S. Marke reports) he ſate downe. 2. He called the twelue. 3. When they were called together, he taught them by ſpectacle to their

c Heming. poſtil. in loc.
d Ardens.
e Maldonat.
f Mark. 9.35.

their eye, ſo well as by precept to their eare, he ſet a childe in the midſt of them, and ſaid. 4. He vſed a vehement aſſeueration, verily I ſay vnto you. 5. A commination, except yee turne, and become as children, yee ſhall not enter into the kingdome of heauen.

At the ſame time] The occaſion of this queſtion among the Diſciples (as [g] Hierome and [h] other learned Doctors write) was vpon emulation toward Peter, whom alone they ſaw preferred before the reſt in the payment of the tribute, by theſe words of Chriſt in the former chapter at the laſt verſe, that take and pay to them for me and thee. But S. Marke relates chap. 9. verſ. 34. that this contention began in the way, before they came into the houſe where Chriſt appointed Peter to pay tribute for them both, and [i] therefore the queſtion here for maioritie was not vpon that occaſion, it was haply [k] cheriſhed by it, but ingendred in their mindes long before, for that Chriſt had admitted none of his Apoſtles to the ſight of his [l] transfiguration, and the raiſing of [m] Iayrus daughter from the dead, ſaue Peter, and Iames, and Iohn. Or it may be this emulation aroſe, for that Chriſt had ſaid vnto Peter, Matth. 16.19. I will giue vnto thee the keyes of the kingdome of heauen, &c. But what need we ſo curiouſly to ſeeke for the reaſon of this quere, [n] ſeeing theſe two things are certaine: 1. A deſire to be like Gods on earth is an in-bred ſinne deriued from the tranſgreſſion of our firſt parents Adam and Eue: 2. The Deuill is euer moſt buſie to nouriſh this ambitious humor in the miniſters of the word, as it is apparent in the [o] Goſpell and [p] Churches hiſtorie. What a deale of time was vſually ſpent in the Councels about precedence of Biſhops? And in our age the queſtion of the Popes primacie is termed by Cardinall [q] Bellarmine, Summa rei Chriſtianæ.

Came the Diſciples vnto Ieſus] In whom are hid [r] all the treaſures of wiſdome and knowledge: and this fact of theirs is [s] imitable, for when any doubt ariſeth in our mindes concerning the kingdome of heauen, it is our beſt way to come vnto Ieſus, who [t] lighteth euery man that commeth into the world. If any lacke wiſdome (ſaith S. Iames in his Epiſtle cap 1. verſe 5.) let him aske of God, for God is only wiſe, Rom 16.27. Come therefore to his [u] law, to his teſtimonie, [x] ſearch his Scriptures which are able to teach, and inſtruct, and to make the man of God abſolute, 2 Tim. 3 16.17. And for the better vnderſtanding of the dead letter come to his liuing Oracles and walking Bibles, I meane the true Prophets and learned Preachers of his word, for he cals them expreſly [y] the light of the world, and their [z] lips ſhould preſerue knowledge, [a] præsy ſunt & monſtrantes ſemitam in ſcripturis. Come to Ieſus, come to the word of Ieſus, come to the Preachers of the word of Ieſus, leſt haply the Lord ſay to you as he did once to the Iewes, ye haue not asked at my mouth, Eſay 30.2.

Who is the greateſt in the kingdome of heauen] It is certaine that there aroſe a diſputation among [b] them, which of them ſhould be greateſt, and [c] yet to cloake their ambitious pride, they do not aske who ſhall be greateſt among vs, but indefinitly, who is the greateſt in the kingdome of heauen, [d] vnderſtanding by the kingdome of heauen, the kingdome of Chriſt in this world, for they carnally conceiued that Chriſt after his reſurrection would [e] reſtore the kingdome of Iſrael, and ſo reigne as a Monarch vpon earth, and therefore they make ſuit to [f] ſit next to him at his right hand and on his left in his kingdome. I know [g] Chryſoſtome conſtrueth it of the kingdome of heauen in that other world, condemning the men of his age, becauſe they did not attaine to the defects of the Diſciples, all our queſtion is (ſaith he) who ſhall be greateſt in the kingdoms vpon earth, and not who ſhall be greateſt in the kingdome of heauen. But by Chryſoſtomes leaue, to contend who ſhall be greateſt in heauen is charity, not vanitie. Luke 13.24. Striue to enter in at the ſtrait gate. As in the Arke there were three [h] lofts one aboue another: euen ſo there be many manſions in Gods houſe, Ioh. 14.2 There be degrees among the Saints in heauen, as there be degrees among Angels: there is a Prophets reward, and a Diſciples reward, Mat. 10.41,42. We ſhould therfore ſtriue to be greateſt in heauen, out-ſtripping one another in goodneſſe, as they who run in a race, 1 Cor. 9 24.

[g] In loc.
[h] Chryſoſt. Theophylact, Druthmarus.
[i] D. Fulk. Muſculus, Marlorat.
[k] Maldonat.
[l] Matth. 17 1.
[m] Luke 8.51.
[n] Muſculus.
[o] Matth. 20.21. Mark 10.37. Luke 22.24.
[p] Legantur epiſt. decretales & gesta conciliorum.
[q] Præfat. in libros de Rom. pont.
[r] Coloſſ 2.3.
[s] Origen. apud Them. in loc.
[t] Iohn 1.9
[u] Eſay 8.20.
[x] Iohn 5.39.
[y] Matth 5.14.
[z] Malac. 2.7.
[a] Hie. in epiſt. ad Paulin.
[b] Luke 9 46.
[c] Caſtalio.
[d] Melanct. Muſculus. Marlorat.
[e] Acts 1.16.
[f] Matth. 20 21.
[g] Apud Them. in loc.
[h] Gen. 6 16.

Againe, it is apparant by Christs answer, both in our present text, and also Matth. 20. and Luke 22. that his Disciples expected a kingdome after the fashion of this world, [i] dreaming that he should reigne as a Soueraigne, and themselues domineere like Dukes and Lords vnder him. They call it indeed the kingdome of heauen, in [k] imitation of their Master, often terming his kingdome the kingdome of heauen; [l] or for that they thought his kingdome (though vpon earth) should notwithstanding be diuine and heauenly. See Gospell on S. Iames, and on S. Bartholomewes day.

[i] Melanct. Heming.
[k] Aretius.
[l] Iansen. concord cap. 70.

Iesus called a childe vnto him] Iesus seeing the thoughts of his Disciples, and vnderstanding the causes of their errour, [m] heales the desire of glory with the contention of humilitie, in reading of his lecture. S. Marke reports that he sate downe: now we finde in the Gospels historie, that the Doctors among the Iewes in their teaching vsed sometime to stand, and sometime to sit; [n] Peter in Hierusalem, and [o] Paul at Antiochia preached standing, but the Scribes and the Pharisies are said to sit in Moses chaire, Matth. 23. 2. So Christ himselfe sometime taught standing, as Luke 6. 17. And sometime sitting both in the [p] mount and in the [q] Temple. It may be therefore that it was the Iewes custome [r] partly to stand and partly to sit, for Christ (as it is apparant in the [s] fourth chapter of S. Luke) preaching at Nazareth in the Synagogue, stood vp when he read his text, and sate downe when he did expound it. Whatsoeuer the Iewes order was, at this instant there was no fitter gesture for Christ then sitting, for this (as [t] Augustine notes) shewed that he taught as one which had authoritie. When he was sate downe, he called all the twelue: doubtlesse he knew who they were which ambitiously contended to be greatest in his kingdome, [u] yet he called all his Apostles, as being assured that his lesson of humilitie was exceeding necessarie for them all. It is reported in the 20. chapter of this Gospell, how Iames and Iohn only desired to sit on his right hand and on his left in his kingdome: yet Christ admonished them all, and said, Ye know that the Princes of the nations haue dominion ouer them, and they that are great, exercise authoritie vpon them: it shall not be so with you, but whosoeuer will be chiefe among you, let him be your seruant. Now the reason why Christ, and after him his Church, vse generall admonitions in rebuking of particular malefactors which are worse then the rest, is two fold. First, That the delinquents may the better admit that checking which is common, and not particular or personalll. 2. That such as haue not offended in that kinde, may learne to be more carefull in their waies, and to hate the garment spotted by the flesh, as S. Iude speakes. Often hauing in minde the saying of Augustine, Aut sumus, aut fuimus, aut possumus esse quod hic est.

[m] Hieron.
[n] Act. 1. 15. & 2. 14.
[o] Act. 13. 16.
[p] Matth. 5. 1.
[q] Iohn 8. 2.
[r] See Panigarol. hom in fest. om. sanctorum & Latinum Act. 1. 15.
[s] Vers. 16. 20.
[t] Lib. 1. de ser. dom. in monte.
[u] Musculus in loc.

When Christ had called his Apostles vnto him, he set a childe in the midst of them, as it followeth in our present text. He set him by him, according to the record of [x] S. Luke; and tooke him in his armes, as [y] S. Marke; yet all agree, for it may be (saith [z] Euthymius) that Iesus first set him in the midst of them, as S. Matthew; then afterward set him beside him, as S. Luke; and last of all embraced him in his armes, as S. Marke. [a] Some thinke that this childe was one Martialis, afterward a famous Bishop in France; but this idle tradition is beside the text, and therefore not of the necessitie of faith. [b] Other imagine that Christ himselfe might be this little one being among his Disciples as a seruant, Luke 22. 27. but this opinion is against the text. Iesus called a childe, and set him by him, and tooke him in his armes; it saith, he set a childe in the midst of them, but what childe it doth not say, not a great boy, but a little childe, παιδίον, which Erasmus translates puellum; Beza, puerulum; the vulgar Latine, paruulum; as Musculus vpon our text, Oportet imitari puellos anniculos, & fortè bimulos. And so [c] S. Peter exhorteth vs to be like new borne babes: and surely [d] parents are commonly so negligent in instructing their children, as that Christ hardly could finde any yongling aboue three or foure yeeres old of such innocent behauiour, of whom he might say, Whosoeuer humbleth himselfe as this childe, and except ye turne and become as children.

[x] Luke 9. 47.
[y] Marke 9. 36.
[z] Com. in loc.
[a] Anselm. Iansen post. maieres cum glossis & figuris in loc.
[b] Hieron. in loc.
[c] Epist. 2. 2.
[d] Diez con. 1. festo Michael.

Let

Let vs examine therefore wherein we muſt be like to children, and wherein vnlike. Firſt, we may not be like to children in [e] ignorance, ſo Paul 1 Cor. 14. 20. In malice be ye children, but in vnderſtanding men. 2. Not like to children in vnconſtancie, [f] wauering and carried about with euery winde of doctrine. 3. Not weake in faith as children, which are not able to diſcerne ſpirituall things for want of yeeres of diſcretion. 4. Not like to children in [g] ſeeking after vntoward things, becauſe their ſenſes are not yet ſetled, our [h] affections are to be ſet on things which are aboue, hauing our conuerſation in [i] Heauen, and therefore we may not imitate children in eating dirt, and in padling in the mire. The childe plaies with the light of the candle till his finger be burnt, and [k] ſo the reprobate-wicked plaies with hell fire, reputing it a fable, till at the laſt he comes to be tormented in that vnquenchable flame. The childe doth eſteeme an apple more than his fathers inheritance; ſo the witleſſe worldling prefers things temporall in this life before the things eternall in the kingdome of Heauen. In theſe childiſh humors and the like, we may not be like to children.

[e] Theophylact.

[f] Epheſ. 4. 14.

[g] Heming poſt. in feſto Michael.
[h] Coloſſ. 3. 2.
[i] Philip. 3. 20.
[k] Diez con. 2 in feſto Michael.

But we muſt be like children, 1. As being [l] mundi corpore, ſancti animo, chaſte in body, pure in minde. 2. Like to children in [m] obedience, for good children ſtand not reaſoning what manner of thing it is that their father commands, but inſtantly they follow his will and word as their rule to worke by. So faithfull Abraham at Gods commandement was ready to ſacrifice his only begotten ſonne Iſaac, he ſtood not arguing the caſe, the death of my childe can doe no good vnto God, and it will procure much euill vnto me, but rather he thought that it is my father in Heauen who commands, and I will obey.

[l] Clemens. ſtrom. 4.
[m] Heming.

[n] He's loath (alas) his tender ſonne to kill,
But much more loath to breake his fathers will.

[n] Du Bartas hiſt. of Abraham.

3. Like to children in reſpect of merit, for as children cannot boaſt of their owne deſeruings againſt their parents: euen ſo the followers of Chriſt may not brag of their merits before God, but acknowledge themſelues to be babes, able to doe nothing without his fatherly fauour.

4. As little children commit themſelues altogether vnto the tuition of their parents and guardians: euen ſo Chriſtians ought to [o] caſt all their care on Chriſt, as looking for euery good gift at his hand.

[o] 1 Pet. 5. 7.

5. Like to children as concerning [p] malice, both [q] innocentia & ignoſcentia: for as little children being iniured take not any reuenge, but onely make complaint either to their father or mother: euen ſo, when any wrong vs, we may not [r] auenge our ſelues in recompenſing euill for euill, or [s] rebuke for rebuke, but only complaine to God our Father in heauen, or to the Church our mother on earth. It is written that vengeance belongs vnto God, and therefore we muſt humbly call vpon him in our perſecutions, as the [t] Prophets did, O Lord, plead thou my cauſe with them that ſtriue with me, and fight againſt them that fight againſt me. [u] Giue ſentence with me, O God, defend my cauſe againſt vngodly people. And Pſalme 80 1. Heare thou ſhepherd of Iſrael, thou that leadeſt Ioſeph like a ſheepe, ſhew thy ſelfe thou that ſitteſt vpon the Cherubims. And Pſalme 83. 1. Hold not thy tongue O God, keepe not ſtill ſilence, refraine not thy ſelfe, for thou Lord haſt beene our [x] refuge from one generation to another.

[p] 1 Cor. 14. 20.
[q] Culman.
[r] Rom. 12. 19
[s] 1 Pet. 3. 9.
[t] Pſal. 35. 1.
[u] Pſal. 43. 1.
[x] Pſal. 90. 1.

I haue [y] read of a reuerend and religious Archbiſhop of Mentz, who (being a long time depraued, and in fine depriued of his dignities and office by two corrupt Cardinals his Iudges, and a falſe harted Aduocate his familiar friend) out of the bitterneſſe of his ſpirit made this appeale from them vnto the Lord of Heauen. God knoweth (vnto whom all things are naked) that I am vniuſtly condemned, yet I will not appeale here from your ſentence, for that I know yee ſhall ſooner be beleeued in your lying, than I am in ſpeaking the truth; and therefore I receiue this heauie cenſure for the rebellions of my youth and other ſinnes; Neuertheleſſe I appeale from your iudgement to the Iudge eternall, and onely wiſe, which is Chriſt Ieſus, before whom I ſummon you. The Cardinals fell into a laughing, and ſaid, That if he would goe before, they would follow. It hapned that the poore Biſhop hauing withdrawne himselfe into a Monasterie, died within a yeere and halfe after, and the Cardinals, hearing thereof, in a scoffing manner said one to another, that they must go seeke the Archbishop. Now within a few dayes after, one of them was bloudily slaine, and the other grinding his teeth, eat vp his owne hands and died mad. And lastly, the Iudas who betrayed him (I meane his false friend placed in his roome) was so mortally hated of all men for his sedition and crueltie, that being assaulted in a Monasterie, he was there butchered, and his carcase cast into the towne ditch, where lying three daies, all sorts of people, both men and women, vsed all manner of despight vpon it. An example very remarkable, teaching vs not to despise one of these little ones, because in heauen their Angels alway behold the face of our Father which is in heauen.

[y] Sir Ric. Barkley tract of felicitie, lib. 5 pag. 451.

Againe, we may complaine to the Church our Mother, as in this present chapter at the 17. verse, If thy brother trespassing against thee, will not vouchsafe to heare thy selfe alone, nor yet thy witnesses and arbitrators, tell it to the Church. He that commits his cause to the Magistrate ciuill or ecclesiasticall, giues place to diuine iudgement, for as much as all higher powers are [z] Gods ordinance, substituted Iudges and Deputies in his place. See Epistle 3. Sunday after Epiphanie.

[z] Rom. 13 1.

Lastly, like to children (as Christ expounds himselfe) in humblenesse and harmlesnesse. In humblenesse, vers. 4. Whosoeuer humbleth himselfe as this childe, &c. In harmlesnesse, vers. 6. Whosoeuer offendeth one of these little ones, &c. So [a] S. Ambrose, [b] Theophylact, [c] Euthymius, and other as well ancient as moderne writers. As [d] if Christ should haue said, Except yee turne from your ambition and indignation, and become like to children, little ones in your mindes, as they be little ones in their bodies; vnlesse yee become that by grace, which children are by nature, yee shall not enter into the kingdome of heauen. I say, by grace, for euery good gift is from aboue, descending from the Father of lights, and therefore Christ here said not (as [e] one notes) Nisi efficiatis vos sicut parvulos, sed nisi efficiamini. To become like to little children in humblenesse is not in our power, it is the worke of Gods hand and helpe: [f] yet to shew that we must (as we may worke with his preuenient grace, Christ addeth in the next clause, Whosoeuer humbleth himselfe: according to the saying of Gregorie; The good which a man doth, is both the worke of God, and the worke of man; of God, as being author in giuing grace; of man as being an actor in vsing grace, yet so that he co-operate with grace by grace. See Epistle Sunday 11. and 14. after Trinitie, and Gospell on S. Markes day.

[a] Ser. 10.
[b] In loc.
[c] In loc.
[d] Iansen. Druthmarus.
[e] Diez.
[f] Pontan ser. in festo Michael.

Whosoeuer humbleth himselfe] [g] That is, humbleth his heart, for as Plato said, euery mans soule is himselfe: it is not sufficient that our words are humble, our gestures humble, our habits humble (though I see that be more than many professors in our age will afford) vnlesse our soules and our selues are humble. Lord (said [h] Dauid) I am not puft in minde, I do not exercise my self in great matters which are too high for me, but I refraine my soule and keepe it low, like as a child that is weined from his mother, yea my soule is euen as a weined child. Men of great wits are commonly state-criticks, ouer-curious eauesdroppers of the Councell table, prying in the secrets of Court and Prince so long, vntill in fine they complaine with Actæon, Cur aliquid vidi? for when our hearts are sowred with the leauen of our pride, there ariseth oftentimes a bitternesse out of the stomack into the mouth, so that we cannot forbeare to speake [i] ill of such as are in authoritie, yea prophanely of the Kings sacred Maiestie. The spirit of wisdome giueth another rule, [k] studie to be quiet, and to meddle with your owne businesse: a priuate person hath a commonwealth of his owne, let him intend the gouernment thereof, in [l] prouiding for his houshold, in [m] laying vp for his children, in [n] reioycing with the wife of his youth, abounding with all workes of pietie toward God, and pitie toward his neighbour. He that thus humbleth himselfe as a little childe, the same doubtlesse is a good subiect vnto the King, and shall hereafter proue the greatest in the kingdome of heauen.

[g] Iansen.
[h] Psalm. 131.
[i] 2 Pet 2. 10.
[k] 1 Thess. 4. 11
[l] 1 Tim. 5. 8.
[m] 1 Cor. 13. 14
[n] Ecclesiast. 9. 9 Prou. 5. 18.

All they which are drunken, are not drunken with wine, saith [o] Esay, for there [o] Cap. 29. 9.

is

is a drie drunkennesse so well as a wet; ambition is a drie drunkennesse, making such as are giuen ouer to humours of vaine glory, to stagger often in the way, and sometime reele out of the way. This kinde of drunkennesse made Lucifer reele out of heauen, Adam out of paradise, Saul out of his kingdome. Nabuchadonozer out of mens societie to conuerse with beasts. It is impossible that great ones (I meane such as are drunken with their owne greatnesse) should either walke in the [p] narrow path, or enter in at the strait gate, only little ones are great ones in Gods kingdome. So the text here, whosoeuer humbleth himselfe as a little childe, the same is greatest in the kingdome of heauen: so the text elsewhere, blessed are the poore in spirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen; theirs is the kingdome of grace, which is heauen on earth; and theirs is the kingdome of glory, which is heauen in heauen. See Gospell on all Saints day.

[p] Matth 7. 14

The Epistle. 2 Tim. 4. 5. Vnto v. 16.

Watch thou in all things, suffer afflictions, &c.

THis Epistle was written by Paul at [q] Rome in his last apprehension and imprisonment there, for so we may gather out of these words, cap. 1. verse 16. Onesiphorus was not ashamed of my chaine, but when he came to Rome carefully sought me, and found me, &c. It is an admonition vnto Timothie to [r] stirre vp the gift of God in him by the putting on of hands, and [s] that is done by preaching sound doctrine painfully, and by suffering for the same patiently. This our text then is a short abridgement of the [t] chiefe points in the whole letter, for Paul exhorts Timothie to diligent preaching of the truth, in saying, watch thou in all things, doe the worke of an Euangelist; and to martyrdome for the truth, in saying, suffer afflictions: and to both, in saying, fulfill thine office vnto the vttermost: all which exhortations are hedged in as it were with a forcible reason at each side.

[q] Euseb. hist. lib. 2. cap. 22. Idem Primasius, Anselm. Lombard.
[r] Cap. 1. 6.
[s] Aretius in dispositione huius epist.
[t] Bullinger apud Marlorat. in loc.

1. Timotheus ought to be vigilant in executing his office thorowly, because the time will come when as men shall not endure wholesome doctrine, &c.

2. Because Paul cannot any longer continue to helpe him, I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departing is at hand, &c.

Watch thou in all things] The time will come when as men will not endure sound doctrine, but hauing their eares itching, shall after their owne lusts get them an heape of teachers, and shall turne away their eares from the truth, and shall be giuen vnto fables. And therefore [u] while thou hast time, [x] before this dangerous time come, that [y] grieuous wolues enter in among you, be watchfull ouer the flocke committed vnto thy charge: such as haue itching eares are like to proue scabbie sheepe, and therefore [z] preuent that mangie disease, by possessing their eares with a [a] forme of sound words. [b] Before they turne away from the truth, and giue themselues vnto fables, [c] instruct them in meekenesse, [d] preach the word in season, and out of season; reproue, rebuke, exhort, be watchfull, in [e] discipline and doctrine, yea vigilant in all things, [f] that is, in all things which are profitable for thine hearers: [g] or in all the workes of an Euangelist and offices of thy calling vse watchfulnesse: or ἐν πᾶσι, may be construed of all [h] men, as if he should haue said, the time will euen shortly come, when as many shall not endure wholsome doctrine; but endeuour thou to conuert all sorts of men vnto the truth, according to that, Matth. 28. 19. Goe teach all nations, and Marke 16. 15. Preach the Gospell vnto euerie creature, teach all men, and that by all meanes, doe the worke of an Euangelist thorowly, that is, as he speakes [i] elsewhere, be to them an ensample, both in word and in conuersation, in loue, in spirit, in faith, in pureneſſe. Many which are called lights of the world, are [k] fumantes magis quàm flammantes, affording more smoke than flame; but let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorifie your Father which is in heauen; instruct thy flocke by good deeds as well as holy doctrine. Thorowly to doe the worke of an Euangelist, is

[u] Lombard.
[x] Theophylact.
[y] Act. 20. 29.
[z] Oecumen.
[a] 2 Tim. 1. 13.
[b] Anselm.
[c] 2 Tim 2. 25.
[d] 2 Tim. 4. 2.
[e] Lombard.
[f] Primasius, Claudius, Espencæus.
[g] Aretius.
[h] Aquin Lombard. Espencæus.
[i] 1 Tim. 4. 12.
[k] Ardens hom. in Euangel. in festo S. Luc.

l Primaſius. Anſelm. Caietan.

[l] is to preach well and to liue well, he that doth both, executes his office vnto the vttermoſt.

The perillous times inſtant in the dayes of Paul, are become extant in our age. This propheſie (beloued) is fulfilled among vs in the Church of England; for albeit I confeſſe to Gods glory, that there may be found a righteous Abraham in Caldea, a iuſt Lot in Sodome, a godly Daniel in Babylon, a patient Iob in the land of Vz, a deuout Tobias in Nineuee, a zealous Ananias in Damaſco: Though (I ſay) there be found wheat among tares, and corne among chaffe, and a pearle in a dunghill, and a lilie among thornes: Albeit there be many good profeſſors and true Chriſtians among vs, [m] abundant alwayes in the worke of the Lord; yet I feare that there be moe, which either reuolt to Poperie, turning away their eare

m 1 Cor. 15 58

n 1 Tim. 4. 1.

from the truth vnto fables, attending the ſpirits of [n] errour, and doctrines of deuils: or elſe ſtart aſide to ſchiſme, hauing itching eares, and getting vnto themſelues after their owne luſts an heape of ſuch irregular and hypocriticall inſtructors, as ſhall doe nothing elſe but increaſe their itch by clawing: or elſe falling into foule Epicuriſme, will not endure the wholſome words of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, and the doctrine which is according to godlineſſe, 1 Tim. 6. 3.

Our Biſhops and Paſtors therefore need to be watchfull in all things, doing throughly the works of Euangeliſts, and executing their office to the full. The Patrio Gen 31. 40.

arke [o] Iacob, commending his paſtorall care to Laban, ſaid, I was in the day conſumed with heat, and with froſt in the night, and my ſleepe departed from mine eyes. In p Prolog. in 2. epiſt. ad Tim.

which obſerue with [p] Aquin, three remarkable vertues in a good Paſtor, Aſſiduitie, Patience, Solicitouſneſſe: Aſſiduitie, looking to his flocke night and day without intermiſſion. He that is a watchman ought continually to ſtand vpon his watch-tower in the day time, and to ſet in his watch euery night, Eſay 21. 8. feeding his ſheepe in the day, praying for his ſheepe in the night: Patience, both enduring the heat of preſent perſecution, and the froſt of future feare: Solicitouſneſſe, in that his ſleepe departed from his eyes.

Now ſeeing our calling is ſo good, and our charge ſo great, it behoueth all people to [q] remember and obey thoſe which haue the ouerſight of them, and ſubmit themſelues, becauſe they watch for their ſoules, as they that muſt giue account, that they may giue it with ioy, and not with griefe.

q Heb. 13. 7. 17.

Suffer afflictions] All that will according to the rules of Chriſtianitie liue

r 2 Tim. 3. 12.

godly, ſhall ſuffer [r] perſecution, eſpecially the Preachers of righteouſneſſe, to whom it belongeth ex officio, to reproue, to rebuke, to exhort with all long ſuffering and doctrine, 2 Tim 4. 2. to plucke vp, and to root out, and to throw downe, Ierem. 1. 10 in a word, to lift vp their voice like a trumpet, ſhewing Gods people their tranſgreſſions, and to the houſe of Iacob their ſinnes, Eſay 58. 1. When our

f Matth. 10. 16

bleſſed Lord ſent forth his Apoſtles to preach, he ſaid, [f] Behold, I ſend you forth as ſheepe in the midſt of wolues; and when he ſent his Diſciples to preach (as it is in the Goſpell appointed to be read this day) he ſaid, Goe your wayes, I ſend you forth as lambes among wolues. Biſhops ſucceeding the Apoſtles, are like ſheepe among wolues, inferiour Miniſters ſucceeding the Diſciples, are like lambes among wolues; not as wolues among wolues, or ſhepherds among wolues, or ſheepe about wolues; but as ſheepe among wolues, harmleſſe and innocent lambs in the middeſt of hurtfull and hungry wolues. And Matth. 23. 34. Behold, I ſend vnto you Prophets, and Wiſemen, and Scribes, and of them yee ſhall kill and crucifie, and of them yee ſhall ſcourge in your Synagogues, and perſecute from Citie to Citie.

t Hom. 6. de laudibus Pauli.

So that (as [t] Chryſoſtome ſaid) a man ſhould not enter into this high and holy calliug, except he be willing to ſuffer a thouſand deaths, as Paul 1 Cor. 15. 31. I die daily.

u Matth. 11.

[u] Iohn Baptiſt came neither eating nor drinking, and yet the people ſaid, he had a deuill. Chriſt himſelfe came both eating and drinking, and they ſaid, he

x Iohn 13. 16.

was a glutton and a wine-bibber. [x] The ſeruant is not greater than his maſter,

y Matth 10. 25

neither is an Embaſſador greater than he that ſent him. [y] If they haue called the maſter of the houſe Beelzebub, how much more them of the houſhold? That Timothie therefore may fulfill his office, doing throughly the worke of an Euan-geliſt, geliſt, he muſt ſuffer afflictions a ſa good ſouldier of Chriſt, euer ready to beare bloudie blowes of open enemies, and drie bobs of falſe friends. The reſolute Doctor Martin Luther, oppoſing the deuill and the Pope, who doth exalt himſelfe [z] againſt all that is called God, in the midſt of his trouble for the Goſpell, vſed merily this by-word, [a] Mitte mundum vadere ſicut vadit, nam vult vadere ſicut vadit. Art thou called to preach, execute the worke of an Euangeliſt vnto the full, and leaue the ſucceſſe to God. If the world doe not beleeue, What is that to thee, ſaid [b] Chriſt vnto Peter in the like cauſe, follow thou me, [c] Tu me, me, me ſequere, non tuas quæſtiones aut cogitationes. And a reuerend Biſhop in our age, who hath had his part in afflictions, often repeats this diſtichon:

Spernere mundum, ſpernere nullum, ſpernere ſeſe,
Spernere ſe ſperni, quatuor iſta beant.

[d] Oeconomicall labour is great, Politicall greater, Eccleſiaſticall greateſt of all, [e] as Luther ſpeakes, to preach the Goſpell as we ſhould, is to ſtirre vp all the furies of hell againſt vs. And yet let not any Timothie be diſcouraged in his office, ſeeing after his fight is ended, and his courſe finiſhed, a crowne of righteouſneſſe is laid vp for him, and ſhall be giuen vnto him at the comming of our Lord Ieſus vnto iudgement.

Fulfill thine office vnto the vttermoſt] [f] As if he ſhould haue ſaid, thou canſt not execute thine office to the full, vnleſſe thou be watchfull, and ſuffer afflictions. Or by theſe things thou ſhalt make [g] proofe of thy miniſterie to the whole world, when as they ſhall ſee thy doings and ſufferings anſwerable to thy doctrine and ſayings. Painfully to preach, and patiently to perſeuere, doing the works of an Euangeliſt, and ſuffering affliction for the Goſpell, are true [h] notes of a true Paſtor.

I am ready to be offered, and the time of my departing is at hand] Euery true Chriſtian offers vp himſelfe an holy [i] ſacrifice to the Lord, [k] the which is begun in our baptiſme, continued in our life, finiſhed at our death. And ſurely (beloued) if all be bleſſed who die [l] in the Lord, much more they who die for the Lord, [m] right deare in the ſight of the Lord is the death of ſuch Saints. The glorious Martyr Polycarpus, like a notable Ram picked out of a great flocke, fit for an acceptable burnt ſacrifice to God, vſed [n] this prayer when he was offered vp: O Father of thy well-beloued and bleſſed Sonne Ieſus Chriſt, through whom we haue knowne thee; O God of the Angels, and powers, & of all ſorts of iuſt men that liue in thy preſence; I thanke thee that thou haſt graciouſly vouchſafed this day and this houre to allot me a portion among the number of Martyrs, among the people of Chriſt, vnto the reſurrection of euerlaſting life both of bodie and ſoule in the in corruption of the Holy Ghoſt, among whom I ſhall be receiued in thy ſight this day as a fruitfull and a well pleaſing ſacrifice, &c. How death is called a departing, ſee Nunc dimittis in the Liturgie: how our life is a fight, Epiſtle 1. Sunday after Eaſter, and Epiſtle 21. Sunday after Trinitie: how a courſe or race, Epiſtle on Septuageſima Sunday.

There is laid vp for me a crowne of righteouſneſſe] Almightie God rendreth heauen as a iuſt Iudg, [o] not to the worthineſſe of our works, but to the merits of Chriſt, and as due to vs by his promiſe freely made in Chriſt; in reſpect of vs it is a garland of fauour only, but in reſpect of Chriſt who meritoriouſly purchaſed it for vs, it is a crowne of iuſtice. So [p] S. Auguſtine conſtrueth our text, Cui redderet coronam iuſtus Iudex, ſi non donaſſet gratiam miſericors pater? & quomodo eſſet iſta corona iuſticiæ, niſi præceſſiſſet gratia qua iuſtificat impium? quomodo iſta debita redderetur, niſi prius illa gratuita donaretur? How ſhould he repay as a iuſt Iudge, vnleſſe he had firſt giuen as a mercifull Father? and how ſhould this be a crowne of iuſtice, if grace had not gone before, which iuſtified the vngodly man? Dona ſua coronat Deus, non merita tua; ſi ergo Dei dona ſunt bona merita tua, non Deus coronat merita tua tanquam merita tua, ſed tanquam dona ſua. See Goſpell on Septuageſima Sunday.

The

[z] 2 Theſſ. 2. 4.
[a] Loc. com. tit. Antidota contra curas in qualibet vocatione.
[b] Iohn 21. 22.
[c] Luther. vbi ſup.
[d] Luther. loc. com. tit de miniſterio verbi.
[e] Vbi ſup.
[f] Marlorat.
[g] Eraſmus.
[h] Caluin.
[i] Rom 12. 1.
[k] Aret in loc.
[l] Apocal. 14. 13
[m] Pſal. 116. 13.
[n] Euſeb. hiſt. lib. 2. cap. 15. Diuers other holy Martyrs vſed the like forme of praier apud Fox Martyrol.
[o] D. Fulke. Marlorat. Piſcator.
[p] Lib. de grat. & libero arbitrio, cap 6 & 7 tom. 7 fol 890.

The Goſpell. Lvke 10.1. ~~ab~~ in p. 7.

The Lord appointed other ſeuentie, &c.

IN this Scripture two points are to be conſidered eſpecially,
- Vox Domini, Chriſts word and ordination of his Diſciples, the Lord appointed other ſeuentie, &c. To whom he ſaid, goe your wayes, behold, I ſend you forth, &c.
- Via Diſcipuli, the Diſciples worke and condition, as labourers in an harueſt, as lambe among wolues.

Of all which I haue treated often elſewhere, but of the moſt obſeruable notes hereof eſpecially, Goſp. 1. Sunday after Eaſter, and Goſp. on S. Andrewes and Aſcenſion day. The reaſon why the Church allotted this Epiſtle for this feſtiuall, is becauſe S. Luke was (as ¶ ſome thinke) one of the ſeuentie Diſciples, and the reaſon in appointing our Goſpell is for that S. Luke was an Euangeliſt.

¶ Epiphan. hæreſ. 15.

The Epiſtle. Ivde 1. Vnto p. 9.

Iudas the ſeruant of Ieſus Chriſt, &c.

THis Epiſtle may bee diuided in two parts, a
- Salutation, in which obſerue the
  - Saluter, deſcribed by his
    - Name, Iudas.
    - Office, ſeruant of Ieſus Chriſt.
    - Kindred, brother of Iames.
  - Saluted, commended by three graces,
    - Called.
    - Sanctified.
    - Preſerued.
  - Salutation it ſelfe, mercie vnto you, and peace and loue be multiplied.
- Salue, conſiſting of an
  - Exhortation, to continue ſtedfaſt in the faith once giuen vnto the Saints, &c.
  - Reaſon, becauſe certaine vngodly men are craftily crept in, &c.

Iudas] Iudas ſignifieth a [r] Confeſſour, of which name there was another Apoſtle called Iudas [ſ] Iſcariot who betrayed Chriſt: in theſe two Iudaaſſes is ſhadowed this myſterie, that in the viſible Church there will alway be ſome bad as well as good profeſſors; Iudas a [t] Deuill as well as Iudas a Saint. See Goſpell Sunday next before Eaſter.

[r] Iſiodor. Origen. lib 7 cap 7.
[ſ] Matth. 10.4.
[t] Iohn 6. 70.

The ſeruant of Ieſus Chriſt] Among all his titles he reputed this moſt honourable, for it is an excellent freedome to ſerue the Lord, 1 Cor. 7.22. [u] Paul and [x] Peter name themſelues firſt ſeruants of Ieſus Chriſt, and then Apoſtles: and S. Iames which is called the Lords brother, Gal. 1.19. leauing that name, ſtileth himſelfe the ſeruant of Ieſus Chriſt, Iames 1.1. If it were ſuch a noble priuiledge to be ſubiect vnto [y] Cæſar, how much more to be ſeruant vnto Chriſt which is the King of all Kings? And that in regard of his protection and prouiſion: as for his protection, he ſaith, [z] I the Lord thy God will be with thee whitherſoeuer thou goeſt, I will not [a] faile thee, nor forſake thee; and then if God be for vs, who can be againſt vs, Rom. 8. 31. As for prouiſion, all his ſeruants in this world haue bread enough, Luke 15.17. and in the world to come they ſhall be no leſſe than Kings, [b] ſitting vpon thrones, hauing [c] palmes in their hands, and on their heads crownes of gold, Apoc. 4.4. See Nunc dimittis, and Epiſt. on S. Iames day.

[u] Rom. 1.1.
[x] 2 Pet. 1.1.
[y] Act. 22, 25.28
[z] Ioſua 1.9.
[a] Heb. 13.5.
[b] Matth. 19.28
[c] Apocal. 7.9.

The brother of Iames] He remembreth his kindred and alliance partly to [d] diſtinguiſh himſelfe from Iudas the Traytor, and partly to gaine credit to his writing.

[d] Aquin. Aretius.

writing. [e] For albeit the word of God depend not vpon the worth of men, yet it is certainly true that his doctrine is best accepted, whose person is most honoured. If a Preacher then be borne of Nobles, or allied to men of great name and qualitie, let him not in any sort neglect this outward blessing of God, but vse it (as S. Iude here) to the furtherance of the Gospell, and setting forth of Gods glorie: Iames and Iude were brethren in bloud, and brethren in good; (as Aquin and the glosse) fratres natura, fide, doctrina, vita. How Iudas is distinguished from Simon, and why both are ioyned together in one festiuall, I referre thee to Baronius[f] Annal. Eccles. & notat. in Rom. Martyrolog, Octob. 28.

To them which are called and sanctified] To be called into the Church, and vnto the hearing of Christs Gospell, is [g] vocation externall, to be sanctified is vocation internall, to be preserued in Christ is vocation [h] eternall. Here then are set three parts of our insition and incorporation into Iesus Christ, vocation by God the Father, sanctification by the Holy Ghost, preseruation by Christ. Vocation is an [i] effect of election, and so haply S. Iude cals them called, whom God hath elected, as Rom. 1.7. Beloued of God, called to be Saints: [k] he doth insinuate that we come not vnto God except he call vs; if we loue him, it is because he loued vs first, 1 Iohn 4.19. As he speakes by the mouth of his holy [l] Prophets, I haue beene sought of them that asked not, I was found of them that sought me not, he calleth vs before we call on him.

The 2. grace is sanctification, and sanctified; such as are called, are by nature the children of [m] wrath, as well as other; it is in vaine therefore to be called, that is, stirred and moued to receiue the faith, vnlesse we be sanctified: Iames 2. 14. What auaileth it (my brethren) though a man saith he hath faith, when he hath no works? [n] Herod seemed to be called, and somewhat inwardly touched, but he would not forsake his secret sinne of incest, in keeping his brothers wife. [o] Simon Magus was baptized, and so called, but he was not sanctified to leaue his gainfull sinne of couetousnesse. Iudas as being an Apostle was called, and yet he was a deuill: and many deceiue themselues, who thinke hearing of the word to be sufficient without doing, Iames 1. 22. A sheepe resembleth a true Christian, euerie thing in a sheepe is good and vsefull, his fleece is good, his fell is good, his flesh is good, his entrailes, yea his excrements are good: and so the sanctified Christian is a seruant vnto all the seruants of God, euerie good gift in him is profitable, to some he lendeth his fleece, cloathing the naked: to some his bread, in feeding the hungrie: to some he lendeth his eyes, and so becommeth a guide to the blinde: to some he lendeth his strength, and so becommeth feet to the lame: to some he lendeth his vnderstanding, and so becommeth an instructor of the simple: he becommeth (as [p] Paul speakes) all things vnto all men, that he may win some vnto Christ. In this point of doctrine the Papists haue slandered vs exceedingly, saying, that our Diuines in preaching of faith, haue destroyed good works; whereas we professe that our calling is fruitlesse without holinesse of life. See Epistle 2. Sund. in Lent.

Preserued in Iesus Christ] As it is in vaine to be called first, vnlesse we be sanctified: so likewise to be sanctified, vnlesse we may be kept and preserued in Iesus Christ, not to lose our sanctification. Our life is a continuall warfare vpon earth, and therefore though we be called outwardly, and sanctified in some part inwardly; yet the [q] Dragon and his Angels fight against vs daily, that we may fall from faith and hope receiued, that we may [r] turne the grace of God into wantonnesse, like the [s] dogge returned to his owne vomit, and the sow that was washed to the wallowing in the mire, and so [t] end in the flesh, howsoeuer we began in the Spirit. [u] Demas fell away from the Gospell, embracing the present world; many are called, but few chosen, Matth. 20. 16. It behoueth vs therefore continually to pray that Christ Iesus the great[x] Shepheard of our soules, may hold vs in his hands from the griping pawes and grinding iawes of the roaring Lion, who goeth about daily seeking whom he may deuoure. And surely such as are giuen vnto Christ, effectually called, and truly sanctified; shall be preserued to the end. [y] Zerubbabel did

[e] Calain.
[f] Tom. 3. ad ann. 68. fol. 645.
[g] Piscator.
[h] D. Willet in loc.
[i] Bullinger.
[k] Marlorat.
[l] Esay 65.1.
[m] Ephes. 2.3.
[n] Mark. 6. 20.
[o] Acts 8.13.
[p] 1 Cor. 9.22.
[q] Apocal. 12 7.
[r] Epist. Iude vers. 7.
[s] 2 Pet. 2 22.
[t] Gal. 3.3.
[u] 2 Tim. 4. 10.
[x] 1 Pet. 2. 25.
[y] Zach. 4 9.

did both lay the foundation of the temple, and finish it: so God will establish and make perfect his worke begun in vs, Psalm. 68 28 He that hath begun this worke of our saluation, will also performe it, Philip. 1 6. I know Gods elect may for a time lose some good meanes, and some great measure of grace too: David, and Aaron, and Peter, and other haue fallen foully, yea fully, but none finally: God is more watchfull in helping vs, than Satan is or can be wrathfull in hurting vs. He which is the Father of mercies giueth vs preuenient grace, subsequent grace, co-operant grace, grace before grace, and grace after grace, [z] keeping vs by his power through faith, and preseruing vs to his heauenly kingdome. It is not of our selues that we persеuere thus vnto the end and in the end, it is the power of God, who giueth (as our Apostle sheweth here) grace first to be called, secondly, to be sanctified, thirdly, to be reserued or preserued in Iesu Christ.

[z] 1 Pet. 1. 5.

[a] Aretius.

Mercy vnto you, and peace, and loue be multiplied] [a] Mercy from God the Father, in the forgiuenesse of your sins: Peace in Christ, in feeling this forgiuenesse: Loue in the holy Ghost, in being assured of Gods grace toward vs euery day more and more: Mercie from God the Father of mercie: Peace, from God the Sonne, the Prince of peace: Loue, from God the Holy Ghost, the loue of the Father and the Sonne. Mercie, in pardoning your sinnes; Peace, in quieting your conscience; Loue, ioyning you to God, and one to another: [b] or he wisheth increase of Gods mercie toward them, and a multiplication of their peace and loue toward one another. [c] That their sinnes may be forgiuen, he praies for Gods mercie: that they may forgiue other men their trespasses, he praies for peace: that both these may be multiplied in them, he praies for loue. First, he begins with Gods mercy, which is the fountaine of euery good and perfect gift, if we taste of his mercy, we shall soone be filled with his other graces, he that hath enough mercie, can want nothing. For as Samsons chiefe strength was in his haire, so Gods chiefe vertue in his mercie. Mercie (good Lord) is the totall summe, in the humble suit of a sinner; O Lord haue mercie vpon vs miserable sinners, is the first petition; and the grace of our Lord Iesus Christ, is the last in our Liturgie.

[b] Marlorat.

[c] Aquin.

When I gaue all diligence] Here S. Iude begins to prescribe his salue, which is an exhortation to contend earnestly for the faith, and the causes mouing him to write this vnto the Saints are two: 1. His dutie, when I gaue all diligence to write vnto you of the common saluation, &c. 2. Their danger, because they nourished certaine seducers as serpents in their owne breasts,

- Whom he describes by their
  - Sinne,
    - In generall, v. 4. shewing their
      - Vngodly carriage being entred,
        - Hypocriticall entring into the Church, craftily crept in.
        - In their life, turning the grace of God into wantonnesse.
        - In their doctrine, denying God, which is the onely Lord, and our Lord Iesus Christ.
    - In particular, from the 4. verse to the 17.
  - Punishment, of old ordained to this condemnation, and so S. Iude describes these wicked impostors and false brethren, as Pope [d] Celestine did his successor Bonifacius the 8. Ascendisti vt vulpes, craftily crept in; regnabis vt leo, denying God, and turning his grace into wantonnesse: morieris vt canis, of old ordained to this condemnation.

[d] Walsingham in Ed. 1. pag. 26.

The

The Gospell. Iohn 15.17. vnto 27 end

This command I you, that ye loue together, &c.

CHrist in this Gospell is said to do three things especially: 1. He doth exhort his followers vnto mutuall loue: 2. He comforts them against the worlds hatred: 3. He promises to send vnto them the Holy Ghost, who being the Comforter and the Spirit of loue, may both instruct them how to loue together, and how to suffer affliction in the world. Of the first I haue spoken Epist. Sund. 1. after Trinit. Of the second, Epist. 2. Sund. after Trinit. Of the third, Gosp. on the Sund. after Ascension.

The Epistle. Apocal. 7. 2. vnto v. 13

Behold, I Iohn saw another Angell, &c.

IN this Scripture concerning the sealing of the Saints and seruants of our God, obserue the { Minister sealing, An Angell ascending from the rising of the Sunne, &c. / Men sealed, I heard the number of them who were sealed, &c.

Behold, I Iohn saw another Angell] In the words immediately going before, S. Iohn said, he saw foure Angels stand on the foure corners of the earth, holding the foure windes of the earth, that the winde should not blow on the earth, neither on the sea, neither on any tree. These foure Angels are foure agents of Satan, [c] Hypocrites with their impostures, Antichrists with their pestilent decrees and traditions, Tyrannous Princes with their bloudie Lawes, Vngodly Magistrates with their ignorant blindnesse. These foure reigne in the foure quarters of the world, with lies in hypocrisie, with errours in superstition, with tyrannie in power, and with crueltie in executing humane Lawes. Or these foure Angels imployed by the Prince of darknesse, are foure works of darknesse, Contention, Ambition, Heresie, Warre, [f] Contention arising from the East; Ambition arising from the West; Heresie from the South; Warre from the North. Or as [g] Ardens, These foure Angels are the spirit of Luxurie, the spirit of Pride, the spirit of Gastrimargie, the spirit of Auarice. For as the [h] Prophet speakes, That which is left of the palmer worme hath the grashopper eaten, & the residue of the grashopper hath the canker worme eaten, & the residue of the canker worme hath the caterpiller eaten. Luxurie consuming the flesh in which it is bred, resembles the palmer worme; Loftie pride with her low fall, the skipping grashopper; Rauenous gluttonie the canker worme; Cut-throat auarice the caterpiller. Now Luxurie doth hurt many trees in the garden of God, and that which luxurie hath left, hath pride deuoured; and that which is left of pride, gluttonie hath eaten; & that which is left of al these vices, is often ouercome by couetousnesse. [i] Or haply these foure Angels, are foure great powers in the world, the Turke, the Romane Emperour, the Pope, the King of Spaine, combined in a bloudie league with other Popish Princes, as [k] brethren in euill. All these furiously raging together against the Lord, & against his anointed, withhold the foure windes of the earth, that the winde should not blow, [l] that is, They persecute the Preachers of the word, and hinder the doctrine of the Spirit called often in [m] holy Bible Winde; lest it should blow vpon the earth, which is the [n] garden of God, driuing from thence all filth and corruption: Or on the sea, [o] that is, a wauering conscience, bringing men to a quiet hauen and hold in the Lord: Or vpon any tree that is growing here, which are men [p] planted by God on earth, to bring forth fruit in Christ vnto the comfort of other. All these wicked Angels exercise both head and hand, [c] Balaam. Martyrat. in loc.

[f] Apocalyp. Apocalypseos.
[g] Hom. in loc.
[h] Ioel 1.4.
[i] Arethas.
[k] Gen. 49.5.
[l] Bullinger.
[m] Iohn 3.8. Acts 2.2.
[n] Cant. 4.16.
[o] Balaam.
[p] Psal. 1.3.

how to croſſe the proceedings of the Goſpel,& to driue this heauenly blaſt away. The Turke doth infeſt Chriſtendome with his war; the Roman Emperor with his Edicts;the Pope with his excommunications and Buls; the Popiſh Princes (which haue committed abomination with the great whore of Babel, and are q drunken with the wine of her fornication) hold the winds of the earth by their inquiſition, fire,faggot,trecherie,rebellion. And for this end they found and feed Monaſteries of Friers, and Colledges of Ieſuits, as the Seminaries of ſedition and conſpiracie.

q Apocal.17.2.

Or foure,being a r compleat number, it doth inſinuate that all execrable miniſters of Satan in the whole world,croſſe (ſo much as may be poſſible)the blowing of the Spirit, both in the bookes of holy Scriptures, and in the mouthes of godly Preachers. In nature there is but one winde,yet ſaid to be diuers,in reſpect of the diuers corners of the earth out of which it bloweth, Eaſt, Weſt, North, and South; and ſo called foure windes,in regard of the foure quarters of the world. In like ſort the Spirit is but one, Epheſ.4.4. but it is termed here foure windes, in reſpect of the s foure Euangeliſts,who wrote the Goſpell.It is diuers t for that it bloweth on diuers men diuerſly,giuing to one the word of wiſdome, to another the word of knowledge,to another faith,to another the gifts of healing,to another propheſie, to another diſcerning of ſpirits,to another diuerſitie of tongues ; all theſe things worketh euen the ſelfe ſame Spirit,diſtributing ſeuerally to euery man as he will, 1 Cor.12.11. Theſe manifold blaſts of the Spirit,or(as u S.Paul ſpeakes)theſe diuerſities of gifts, and diuerſities of adminiſtrations, and diuerſities of operations, are withſtood by reprobate men and Angels in euery corner of the world; by the Papiſts eſpecially,inhibiting the people to read the Goſpell in the mother tongue, and prohibiting the Paſtors to preach the Goſpell in any tongue.

r Aretius.

s English Gloſſe.
t Bullinger. Marlorat.

u 1 Cor.12.4.

Now while theſe curſed Angels were ſtopping the winde, or letting the Goſpels free paſſage, Behold,another Angell aſcending from the riſing of the Sunne,which had the ſeale of the liuing God,and he cried with a loud voice to the foure Angels (to whom power was giuen to hurt the earth and the ſea) ſaying, hurt not the earth, neither the ſea,neither the trees,till we haue ſealed the ſeruants of our God in their forehead. Albeit the Dragon and his Angels rage neuer ſo much againſt the Church, yet the x foundation of God remaineth ſure;and hath this ſeale,the Lord knoweth who are his;and y they ſhall neuer periſh,neither ſhall any plucke them out of his hand. Indeed the foure foule Angels haue power to hurt the land and the ſea, but it is limited,a power giuen of God,and God is z faithfull,who will not ſuffer his Elect to be tempted aboue their abilitie, but ſends one good Angell to ſuppreſſe foure bad, crying to them,and that with a loud voice, hurt not the earth, neither the ſea, nor the trees.

x 2 Tim.2.19.
y Iohn 10. 28.
z 1 Cor.10.13

Some thinke this Angell ariſing from the Eaſt, was a Conſtantine the Great ; b other expound this of Chriſt;other of the c Miniſters of Chriſt;it is certaine,that Conſtantine ſucceeding immediatly Diocleſian and other perſecuting Emperours, was a notable b nouriſhing father vnto the Church, vnder whoſe c ſhadow the Chriſtians dwelt and proſpered a long time. He did according to the tenour of our text) aſcend from the d Eaſt, and he had the ſeale of the liuing God, that is, the true faith of Chriſt, openly profeſſing it, and e eſtabliſhing it alſo by the conſent of three hundred eighteene reuerend Biſhops in the Councel of Nice, ſummoned by him againſt Arrius, and other impious Angels, holding the foure windes of the earth. This Emperour cried with a loud voice to the wicked inſtruments of Satan, hurt not the earth, &c. He made many f proclamations and edicts in fauour of the Chriſtians, in ſo much as the whole rabble of the hatefull enemies of God (as g Euſebius reports)ſeemed to be wiped away from the ſight of men,according to that of the h Pſalmiſt, I ſaw the wicked exalted as the Cedars of Libanus, and flouriſhing like a greene Bay tree : but I went by,and loe he was gone, I ſought his place,but it could no where be found.

a Brightman in loc.
b Ardens. Aretius. Meyer.
c Balaus.
b Eſay 49 23.
c Ezech.31.6.
d See Apocalyp. Apocalypſ.
e Socrates hiſt. lib.1.cap.8.
f Euſebius hiſt. lib.10.cap 5,6,7 & de vita Conſtantin.lib.2. cap.43,44,45.
g Hiſt.lib.10. cap 1.
h Pſal.37.36.

Other conſtrue this rather of Chriſt,as being i Angelus teſtamenti, the meſſenger and Angell of the couenant, the k Sun of righteouſneſſe, manifeſting himſelfe in the great darkneſſe of Anti-chriſtianiſme. He hath indeed the ſeale of the liuing God, as being i Malac.3.1.

k Malac.4.2.

being the [l] character of his person, and brightnesse of his glorie, [m] declared mightily to be the Sonne of God. He cries with a loud voice to the foure foule Angels, [n] that is, he fights against such as fight against his elect seruants, and deliuereth vs out of the hands of all our enemies. In the [o] darknesse of blinde superstition, he doth illuminate his, and seale them in their forehead, making them [p] openly to confesse his faith vnto saluation [q] among an adulterous and sinfull generation. [r] This sealing in the forehead is not an allusion to the signe of the crosse, for many reprobates haue receiued that in baptisme; the true mark whereby Gods Elect are discerned from all other, is a liuely faith in the heart, breaking forth into confession with the mouth, according to that of [s] Paul, with the heart man beleeueth vnto righteousnesse, and with the mouth he confesseth to saluation.

Now for as much as faith is by hearing, and hearing is not without a Preacher, and how shall any preach except they be sent, Rom. 10. 14, 15? therfore some Diuines haue conceiued, that the true Prophets and Preachers are this Angell ascending from the rising of the Sunne. [t] They haue power to marke the faithfull vnto life euerlasting, their tongues are the [u] writing pens of the Holy Ghost, by whom the word of God is registred in the hearts of them that beleeue. This Angell had the seale of God in his hand, and the Prophets haue the powerfull and effectuall word of truth in their mouth; and they cry with a loud voice to the wicked instruments of Satan, hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees. As if they should say, though some hearts are worldly, some consciences wauering, some mindes vnfruitfull and barren; yet they may repent and come to goodnesse. When the seed is sowen, some falleth vpon [x] good ground, and brings forth fruit in abundance, cease therefore from with-holding the sweet blast of the Scriptures, till we haue sealed vp the chosen seruants of our God in their forehead, and imprinted a true beleefe in their hearts by his Spirit. Saint [y] Paul hath said all this in a few words, After that yee heard the word of truth, euen the Gospell of your saluation, and therein beleeued, yee were sealed with the holy Spirit of promise.

[z] Some think this Angell is Elias the Prophet, imagining that he shall in the latter end of the world come againe to fight against Antichrist, and to seale Gods Elect in their forehead. But our renowned Soueraigne King Iames in his [a] premonition, hath excellently discouered the vanitie of this idle Iewish fable; besides, our text saith in the plurall number, till we haue sealed, &c. [b] Insinuating that by this Angell is not meant one Preacher only, but many, yea so many as be both instant and constant in crying with a loud voice to the lewd Angels, hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees. If this one point were well vnderstood and learned, it would make you more diligent in comming to the Temple, which is the house of God; in reading the Scriptures, which is the book of God; in hearing the true Prophets, which are the Ministers of God, appointed for this end to separate you from the wicked of the world, and to seale you with his marke for his kingdome. Hitherto concerning the Ministers sealing, I am now to treat of the men sealed, all agreeing in one confession, howsoeuer differing in condition and countrey.

There were sealed one hundred and fortie and foure thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel] The Iewes are sealed first, as being Gods [c] eldest sonnes, a peculiar and precious people chosen to himselfe [d] aboue all other in the world. After the main course follow the Gentiles, as the yonger sons of God, for there was sealed an infinite number of other nations, as well as a great number of the Iewes. And among both Iewes and Gentiles all sorts of men were sealed, the people so well as the Priest, euen twelue thousand of euery tribe, so well as twelue thousand of the tribe of Leui. And among the people, men of all occupations and trades, for [e] by the land, he meanes such as till the ground; and by the sea, Mariners & Merchants [f] occupying their businesse in great waters; and by trees, such as are noble, rich, & potent in a flourishing estate. So that men in [g] euery nation, of euery fashion, if they feare God & work righteousnes, are sealed with his seale for his chosen seruants: [h] Ezechiel reports that none are sealed, but such as mourne and cry for all the abominations that are done here, none but such as grieue to see the Gospell of Christ

[l] Heb 1. 3.
[m] Rom. 1 4.
[n] Aretius.
[o] Bullinger.
[p] English Gloss.
[q] Marke 8. 38.
[r] D. Fulke in loc.
[s] Rom. 10. 10.
[t] Balæus.
[u] Psal. 45. 2.
[x] Matth. 13. 8.
[y] Ephes. 1. 13. Vide Zanchium ibidem.
[z] Victorinus com. in loc.
[a] From the 62. page to the 80
[b] Balæus.
[c] Exod. 4. 22.
[d] Deut. 7. 6.
[e] Aretius.
[f] Psal. 107. 23.
[g] Acts 10. 35.
[h] Cap. 9. 4.

deſpiſed, a nd his Church deſpighted. On the contrary, ſuch as are common blaſphemers of his name, contemners of his word, and perſecutors of his Prophets, haue not the ſeale of the liuing God, but the [i] mark of the dying beaſt. In that it is ſaid, one hundred and fortie foure thouſand were ſealed of the children of Iſrael, Aretas obſerues, that euery one of the twelue Apoſtles multiplied his talent twelue times, a curious and a conſcionable conceit too, but how conſonant to the text, I leaue to the iudicious examination of the learned and godly, remembring the reſolution of [k] S. Auguſtine in a caſe not much vnlike, Quiſquis hæc legit, vbi pariter certus eſt, pergat mecum: vbi pariter hæſitat, quærat mecum: vbi errorem ſuum cognoſcit, redeat ad me; vbi meum, reuocet me. Nam in his, vt in omnibus meis ſcriptis, non modò pium lectorem, ſed etiam liberum correctorem deſidero.

[i] Apocal. 13.16

[k] Lib. 1. de Trinit cap. 3.

[l] Auguſt. proœm. in lib 3. de Trinit.

The Goſpell. Matth. 5. 1.

Ieſus ſeeing the people, went vp into a mountaine, and when he was ſet, his Diſciples came to him, and after that he had opened his mouth, he taught them, ſaying, Bleſſed are the poore in ſpirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen, &c.

THe firſt word of the firſt leſſon in Chriſts firſt Sermon is Bleſſed, a point of conning and of comfort; of conning and good Art, wooing vs in the very firſt entrance to marke well his whole diſcourſe, becauſe [m] neuer any was, is, or ſhal be, but he deſires (according to his own ſenſe) to be bleſſed. It is the deuils oratorie to deterre men from pietie with an opinion of vnhappines & trouble which accompanie the godly, but the Rhetoricke of Gods holy Spirit alloureth vs contrariwiſe by ſweet premiſes and gracious promiſes, Bleſſed are the poore, bleſſed are they that mourne, bleſſed are the meek, &c. And it affords comfort, for hereby we know that the Goſpell is a good-ſpell, euen [n] tidings of great ioy to all people; when as we reade that the firſt apothegme of Chriſts firſt Homilie reported [o] at large, was, bleſſed are the poore in ſpirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen; and the laſt period in his laſt Homilie, [p] Behold, I am with you alwaies vntill the end of the world.

[m] Ariſt. ethic. lib. 1. cap. 1. & 2.

[n] Luke 2.10.

[o] Aretius.

[p] Matth. 28.20.

Now (beloued) all his actions are our inſtructions, it therefore behoueth vs in winning our children, our friends, our auditors vnto God and godlineſſe, to learne and vſe this gentle craft, being the ſonnes of conſolation, as well as the [q] Boanarges the ſons of thunder. As ſometime we muſt [r] mourne, that the people may lament; ſo likewiſe ſometime pipe, that the people may dance. There was in the Arke of the Teſtament, Heb. 9.4. the golden pot of Manna, ſo well as the rod of Aaron; and a Preacher (as Bernard wittily) ſhould reſemble a good mother, which hath vbera, ſo well as verbera; like a Bee, ſaith [s] Ambroſe, which hath honie ſo well as a ſting. As it is our part to be [t] diſpoſers of the Goſpell, and meſſengers of peace: [u] ſo let it be our Art to call home ſuch as are out of the way, and to reſtore ſuch as fall in the way with the ſpirit of [x] meekneſſe, for bleſſed are the poore in ſpirit, &c.

[q] Marke 3.17.

[r] Matth. 11.17.

[s] Ser. 83.

[t] 1 Cor. 4.1.

[u] Rom. 10.14, 15.

[x] Galat. 6.1.

Of this Apothegme there be two parts, a
- Propoſition, bleſſed are the poore in ſpirit.
- Expoſition, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen.

In the propoſition obſerue the
- Subiect, poore in ſpirit.
- Predicate, bleſſed; for ſo we may conuert it aptly, the poore in ſpirit are bleſſed.

Concerning the ſubiect, I finde three ſorts of poore, namely
1. The worlds poore.
2. The deuils poore.
3. Gods poore.

The

The worlds poore are either impotent, or impudent poore: impotent by birth, or caſualtie; by birth, as the fatherleſſe orphans, and beggers children, eſpecialy ſuch as are creeples, or borne blinde; by caſualtie, as the decayed houſholder, the maimed ſouldier, the viſited with any grieuous plague or ſicknes: all theſe kindes of poore wretches are to be releeued, as wel with our almes as aduice. To binde vp their broken [y] hearts, and to [z] beare part of their burden, is a great euidence that thou art Gods heire, [a] mercifull as our Father in heauen is mercifull; Bleſſed in this world, for ſo Dauid in the 41. Pſalme, Bleſſed is he that conſidereth the poore and needie, the Lord comforteth him in his affliction, and makes all his bed in his ſickneſſe. Bleſſed in the world to come, for ſo the Sonne of Dauid, euen Chriſt himſelfe, Come ye bleſſed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you, for I was an hungred, and ye gaue me meat: I thirſted, and ye gaue me drinke: I was a ſtranger, and ye lodged me: I was naked, and ye clothed me: I was ſicke, and ye viſited me. It is therefore my humble ſuit to thoſe (which are by ſtatute made ouerſeers of our ouerſeers for the poore) that hereafter in euerie village, the diſtreſſed members of Chriſt, euen [b] fleſh of his fleſh, and bone of his bone, may be more charitably prouided for, according to the true meaning of godly lawes eſtabliſhed in this caſe.

Among impudent poore, ſome be little beggers, and ſome be great beggers; among little beggers I marſhall the riotous ſpend-all, and the lazie get-nothing. The drunkard and the glutton ſhall be poore, ſaith [c] Salomon, and no maruell, ſeeing in a little while they draw their whole patrimonie, woods, houſe, land, thorow the narrow paſſage of their throat, &c. It is therfore my humble ſuit to the reuerend and graue Iudges of the land, that they would in their circuits, vpon all occaſions offered, endeuour to ſuppreſſe and diſgrace theſe brutiſh, incorrigible, ding-thriftie dearth-makers. It is ſaid of the Surgeon, that he muſt haue a Ladies hand and a Lions heart: But it is to be wiſhed, that a Iudge in this corrupt age, ſhould haue contrariwiſe, the heart of a Lady, for, Bleſſed are the poore in ſpirit, yet in puniſhing offenders, the hand of a Lion. It is an old ſaying, Qui non corripit, corrumpit; and all honeſt men, howſoeuer otherwiſe poore in ſpirit, haue notwithſtanding euermore complained of a cruell pitie, which is the mother of licentiouſneſſe, and licentiouſneſſe is the mother of contempt, and contempt is the mother of ſedition, and ſedition is the mother of rebellion, and in fine rebellion is the mother of deſolation.

Of Rogues, I meane vagabond idle perſons, out of couenant, out of courſe, there be two ſorts, as namely, wilde rogues ſo bred, a great part whereof is an vncircūciſed generation, vnbaptized, out of the Church, & ſo conſequently [d] without God in the world. Other being better bred, for want of good diſcipline turne rogues, & become tame ruffians, & theſe drones haue ſwarmed ſo much in ſome parts of our Countie, that they driue many good Bees out of their hiues, in plaine engliſh, many Gentlemen & Iuſtices too, during all the hard winter, out of the Countrey into the Citie, where they lie non-reſident from their benefice, their manſion houſe where their liuing is; and non-reſident alſo from their charge, where they ſhould execute his Highneſſe Commiſſion for the peace. I do not thinke with [e] Innocentius, Iuſtitia non datur niſi vendatur, that Iuſtice is dearely bought in any corner of our Kētiſh ſoile (God forbid) & yet in the behalfe of my poore neighbours, I muſt ſay, that it is pitie Iuſtice ſhould (conſidering the number of Iuſtices) be ſo far fetched in the midſt of winter. Vngodly Politicians, who make the works of Luciā their old Teſtament, and Machiauels Prince their new: thruſt themſelues into the center of the world, as if all times ſhould meet in them & their ends, neuer caring in any ſtorme what becōmeth of the ſhip of eſtate, ſo they may be ſafe in the cockboat of their own fortune. But nature tels thee, that no man is borne for himſelfe; and [f] Scripture tels thee, that we muſt in loue ſerue one another. Our Chriſtiā eſtate neceſſarily requires, that ſome ſhould be great, and other little; that ſome ſhould be ſubiect, and other ſoueraigne; that ſome ſhould command, and other obey: but ſaith our bleſſed Sauiour (ſpeaking to his Diſciples, as repreſenting the whole

[y] Eſay 61.1.
[z] Galat.6.2.
[a] Luke 6.36.
[b] Epheſ 5.30.
[c] Prou.23.21.
[d] Epheſ.2.12.
[e] De vtilitate condit human. lib.2.cap.5.
[f] Galat.5.13.

Church) [g] He that is greateſt among you, let him be as the leaſt, and he that is chiefe, as he that doth ſerue. Præſis, vt proſis, as [h] Bernard told Eugenius, and as [i] Martin Bucer noteth out of theſe words of Chriſt againſt Anabaptiſts, He which according to the wil of the Lord beares rule godly, doth nothing leſſe than domineere, yea, moſt of all ſerue. The Iuſtice, the Iudge, yea, the King himſelfe (as States-men are bold to call him) is a great ſeruant of the Common-wealth. It is therefore my humble ſute to the worthy Knights, and other Iuſtices (hauing receiued large money for the building and maintaining of Bridewels in our Countie) to performe better offices in baniſhing all vnprofitable vagabonds out of our coaſts.

[g] Luke 22. 26.
[h] Lib. 3. de conſid ad Euang.
[i] In Mat. 20. 27

I am now to ſpeake of ſmall beggars; of ſuch as beg in the courts and houſes of Kings; of ſuch as come to ſomething, when other come to nothing; of whom in old time [k] complaint was made to the Parliament of England, That they did by cob-web ſubtleties of the law, firſt rob the ſubiect, & thē afterward rob the king. I hope there be none ſuch in our dayes, vnder the gouernment of our moſt illuſtrious, wiſe, learned, meek, religious, & pious Prince K. Iames (whom I beſeech God of his infinite goodnes to proſper long among vs in health, & wealth, & al happineſſe, as well concerning this, as the world to come) But if a Iudge hereafter in another age ſhould vnhappily meet with ſuch a ſturdie beggar, I wiſh heartily that he may follow Iuſtice [l] Iobs example, who ſaith of himſelf, I put on righteouſnes, & it cloathed me; my iudgement was a robe & a crowne. I was eyes, to the blinde, & feet I was to the lame. I was a father vnto the poore, & the cauſe which I knew not, I ſearched out diligently. I brake alſo the iawes of the wicked, & pluckt the prey out of his teeth. If he proue too great a fiſh to be caught in thy net, enuie not his proſperitie, for he buildeth his houſe as the [m] moth; & if thou poſſeſſe thy ſoule in patience but a little while, [n] thou ſhalt look after his place and he ſhall not be found. As he was a beggars brat, ſo he ſhal die the firſt gentlemā, & the laſt knight of his name

[k] Roderic Mors complaint to the Parliamēt of England, cap. 10. printed at Geneua by Michael Boys.
[l] Iob 29. 14.
[m] Iob 27. 18.
[n] Pſal. 37. 10.

There be three rankes of the Deuils poore { Couetous. / Vain-glorious. / Superſtitious.

The Couetous, who want euen that they haue, being as they are termed aptly the greateſt Miſers in the world, like the market horſe laden with daintie cates, and yet feeds on thiſtles.

The Vain-glorious, who to get a name, forget often their eſtate, as certaine Philoſophers in old time (whom I will not name, becauſe they did it for a name) caſt al their goods into the Sea, leſt they ſhould hinder their courſes in the ſtudies of Philoſophie. Nolebant cenſu abundare terreno, vt magis ſenſu abundarent ſuo, ſaith a [o] learned expoſitor vpon this text. And certaine Schiſmatickes in latter ages, haue for the craſie credit of a deſperate cauſe forſaken their own Conntries, and their owne free-holds which were certaine, to depend vpon the breath and bread of other men which is vncertaine.

[o] Ianſen. concord. cap 39.

The Superſtitious, as the popiſh Monkes and Friars, who tranſported with a blinde deuotion, abandoned all worldly poſſeſſions, and yet abounded in all riot and exceſſe; Regulares gulares, they were more than men at their meat, leſſe than women at their worke, ſaith [p] Eraſmus. [q] Albertus Duke of Saxonie was wont to ſay, that he had three wonders in one Citie, namely three Monaſteries, For the Friers of the firſt had children, and yet no wiues: The Friers of the ſecond had a great deale of corne, and yet no land: the Friers of the third abounded with moneies, and yet had no rent.

[p] In collequio Franciſcan
[q] Manlius in loc com.

[r] Hic dolus eſt magnus, lupus eſt qui creditur agnus.

[r] Poem. de corrupto ſtatu Eccleſiæ per Illiricum.

So then (as you ſee) the Deuils poore differ very much one from another: for the Couetous haue the poſſeſſion, but not the free vſe: the Superſtitious haue the vſe, but not the free poſſeſſion: the Vain-glorious vpon the point haue neither free vſe, nor free poſſeſſion of ſuch worldly wealth as they deſire, being all in their ſeuerall kinds exceeding poore.

The third ſort of poore are Gods poore, which abound with inward wants, and and want alſo many times outward abundance. Whereof ſome vndergoe patiently loſſe of their goods, as Iob; other forgoe cheerfully the vſe of their goods, as the bleſſed Apoſtles. Theſe are the poore in ſpirit, or (as [f] S. Baſil conſtrueth it) the poore for the ſpirit, wholly ſubmitting themſelues to be ruled by Gods holy Spirit, the humble and the meeke, truly feeling their inward, and patiently bearing their outward pouertie. Chriſt then here doth not vnderſtand ſuch as are meerely the worlds poore; for albeit they be humbled, yet are they not humble; nor the deuils poore, for they are neither actually humbled, nor humble; but onely Gods poore, which are both humbled and humble, humbled in their pouertie, humble in their ſpirit, bleſſed are the poore in ſpirit.

So [t] S. Hierome, [u] Auguſtine, [x] Ambroſe, [y] Gregorie Nyſſen, [z] Theophylact, [a] Euthymius, and other Doctors expound it. And this appeares to be Chriſts meaning, in that the word ſpirit ſignifieth elſewhere will, as Matth. 26 41. The ſpirit indeed is ready, but the fleſh is weake, and 1 Cor. 7.34. The virgin cares for the things of the Lord, that ſhe may be holy both in body and in ſpirit, that is, in thought & minde. So that to be poore in ſpirit, is nothing elſe, but willingly to [b] forſake our ſelues, and to follow Chriſt, euermore being ready for his ſake to beare the loſſe of our wealth, when as we are made poore; and to forbeare the vſe of our wealth, when as we are rich, [c] vſing the world as though we vſed it not. For this bleſſing belongs as well to the rich, as to the poore. As the bad poore are proud in ſpirit; ſo the good rich are poore in ſpirit. [d] As ſome be poore in ſubſtance and not in ſpirit; ſo ſome rich in ſubſtance, yet poore in ſpirit. A cable vntwined in euerie cord and thred, may goe thorow the [e] needles eye: ſo the rich man, if once he be well vntwined, diuiding his goods according to the will of the giuer, may notwithſtanding all his greatneſſe, walke in the narrow path, and enter into the ſtrait gate of Heauen.

The worlds poore are miſerable, becauſe deiected in their pouertie: The deuils poore curſed, becauſe proud in their pouertie: Gods poore only bleſſed, as hauing nothing, and yet poſſeſſing all things, 2 Cor. 6.10.

Here then obſerue what an excellent vertue contentation and lowlineſſe of minde is. As the firſt vice the deuill thruſt vpon Adam was diſcontentment and pride: ſo the firſt vertue Chriſt commends vnto his followers, is an humble contentment. The eight beatitudes (ſaith [f] Cromatius) are like Iacobs ladder, reaching from earth vnto heauen; and the very firſt ſtep of the ladder, as the [g] foundation of the reſt, is lowlineſſe of minde. For as God is ſaid to [h] hang the earth vpon nothing, that it might wholly depend vpon him: euen ſo doth he found the world of his Chriſtian Common-wealth vpon nothing; and this nothing is an humble diſ-priſing and forſaking of all our own abilities, and an only relying vpon his almightie power and goodneſſe. As pride is the beginning and originall of ſinne, Eccleſiaſticus 10.14. becauſe iniquitie is nothing elſe but inequalitie, and pride is moſt vniuſt, attributing vnto it ſelfe too much, vnto all other too little: ſo contrariwiſe, contented humbleneſſe is the Primer, and as it were A.B.C. of our Chriſtian Ethicks; it is as Ambroſe & Bernard write, the mother vertue, yea Cuſtos ſigilli magni, the keeper of all Gods great ſeales and graces, without which his other gifts are rather curſes than bleſſings to vs. It is an eminent grace for a man, to ſpeake with the tongues of [i] Angels, and ſo to tranſport other with the winde of words and flouds of eloquence whither he liſt; and yet if learning be not ſeaſoned with humilitie; knowledge, ſaith [k] Paul, puffeth vp, and as Ariſtotle ſpeakes, it is armata iniuſtitia, like a ſword in a mad mans hand. Faſting that tames the body, without humilitie, makes proud the minde, I faſt twice in the weeke, quoth the Phariſie, Luk. 18.12. Almes are a [l] ſacrifice pleaſing to God, for he that [m] giueth vnto the poore, lendeth vnto the Lord: yet if a trumpet be blowne, and we giue meerely to be ſeene of men; if we beare not our poore brethren in our bowels and boſome, we ſhall haue no reward of our Father which is in heauen, Matth. 6.1. And therfore Chriſt inculcates often this one leſſon, as well by patterne as precept, Learne of me, for I am humble and meeke.

In

[f] In regulis contractioribus quæſt. 205. Idem Beza in loco.

[t] In loco.
[u] Lib. 1. de ſer. Dom. in monte.
[x] Lib. 5 in Luc cap. de beatitud.
[y] Lib. de beatitud.
[z] In loc.
[a] In loc.
[b] Matth 16.24
[c] 1 Cor. 7.31.

[d] Ardens hom. in loc.
[e] Mark 10. 25.

praiſe of Humility

[f] Ser. de 8. Beatitud
[g] Theophylact. in loc.
[h] Iob 26. 7.

[i] 1 Cor. 13.1.

[k] 1 Cor 8.1.

[l] Heb. 13.16.
[m] Prou. 19.17.

n Iohn 16.33.
o Matth 16.24
p Mark.10.29.

n In the world yee ſhall haue affliction, he that will follow me, muſt of neceſſitie o forſake himſelf, and yet be of good cheere, for p there is no man that hath forſaken houſe, or brethren, or ſiſters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my ſake and the Goſpels, but he ſhall receiue an hundred fold, now at this preſent, houſes, and brethren, and ſiſters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with perſecutions, and in the world to come eternall life. I tell you that in the beginning, which you ſhall finde moſt true in the end, Bleſſed are the poore in ſpirit.

For, Bleſſed is the predicat of the propoſition. And there is a twofold bleſſednes, beatitudo viæ, and beatitudo patriæ, bleſſedneſſe in this world, and bleſſedneſſe in the next. The poore in ſpirit haue the promiſes of both, 1 Tim.4.8. The preſent happineſſe is either outward and worldly, or elſe inward and ghoſtly: Outward, as Pſalm.132.16. I will bleſſe her victuals with increaſe, and I will ſatisfie her poore with bread. And Pſalm.144.15. Happy are the people that be in ſuch a caſe. And Deut. 28. Bleſſed ſhalt thou be in the field, and bleſſed in the Citie, bleſſed ſhall be the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattell, the increaſe of thy kine, and the flocks of thy ſheepe. Theſe temporall and worldly bleſſings often accompanie the meeke more than the proud, becauſe fortune, as q Charles the fift told his ſonne, is like a woman, if ſhee be too much wooed ſhee will be the farther off. Howſoeuer it be, r godlineſſe is great gaine, and the poore in ſpirit want nothing, as being content with any thing. But the bleſſednеſſe promiſed by Chriſt here, ſurpaſſing al worldly treaſures and pleaſures, is inward and ghoſtly, conſiſting in the riches of the minde, & in a ſweet contentation of the conſcience, which is a f continuall feaſt, and a daily Chriſtmas, wherby the poore in ſpirit are made lords, and as it were tyrants ouer the whole world, domineering ouer Iuſtices & Iaylor, ouer Iudge & Iurie. Treaſons, and murthers, & felonies, & other routs & riots inquired after at Seſſions & Aſſiſes, are bred of diſcontentment and pride: but though all the deuils in hell, and all their agents in earth & aire, combine themſelues againſt one little one, yet Qui vadit planè, vadit ſanè, t he that walks vprightly, walks confidently: The u text will alway be found true, They that put their truſt in the Lord, ſhall be euen as the mount Sion, which may not be remoued, but ſtandeth faſt for euer.

q Aduancement of Learning, lib. 2. pag. 105.
r 1 Tim.6.6.
f Prou. 15.15.
t Prou.10.9.
u Pſal.125.1.

But here we muſt obſerue with incomparably learned x Melanchthon, and y other Proteſtãt Diuines, that in this, & al other like places of holy Scripture, where good works are commanded, or commended in any, that Chriſt is the ſole cauſe of our happineſſe; Without me (ſaith z he) you can do nothing, and without faith in him, it is impoſſible to pleaſe God, Heb.11.6. Our perſons muſt be firſt reconciled vnto God, hauing for Chriſts ſake pardon of our ſins, and imputation of righteouſnes, and then our works ſhall be bleſſed and acceptable; Pſal.32.1. Bleſſed is the man whoſe vnrighteouſneſſe is forgiuen, and whoſe ſin is couered. Bleſſed, a that is, iuſtified, for iuſtification is bleſſednеſſe begun, glorification bleſſednеſſe perfited. It is a ſweet ſaying of our b Church, Faith is the neſt of good works; albeit our birds be neuer ſo faire, yet they will be loſt, except they be brought forth in true beleefe. The ſparrow hath found her an houſe, and the ſwallow a neſt, where ſhee may lay her young, euen thine Altars, O Lord, Pſal 84.3. Such as are true beleeuers, hauing their vnrighteouſneſſe forgiuen, and their ſin couered, are bleſſed men; and all their works as being laid vpon Chriſts Altar, are a ſweet ſmelling ſacrifice to God. But (ſaith c Auguſtine) Heretikes and Infidels in doing glorious acts and honourable deeds, haue no where to lay their young, and therefore they muſt of neceſſitie come to nought; as the fathers of our commõ Law ſpeake, Moritur actio cum perſona, their actions are damnable with their perſons. He which is poore in ſpirit is bleſſed, he which is merciful is bleſſed, he which is a peacemaker is bleſſed. But as our diuines haue iudiciouſly noted againſt the papiſts, in al theſe beatitudes a liuely faith is preſuppoſed, according to that d Apoſtolicall axiome, Whatſoeuer is not of faith is ſinne. The ſaints of God are ſealed inwardly with faith, as it is in our Epiſt. but outwardly with goodworks, as in our Goſpel. To be poore in ſpirit, to mourne, to be merciful, are not cauſes, but effects of our iuſtificatiõ, as we cõmonly ſpeake out of Bernard, Via regni, non cauſa regnandi: e for the followers of Chriſt are bleſſed, not becauſe they x Com in loc. & apolog con. ſect. Auguſtin tit. de Dilect. & implet. legis.

y Calain inſtit. lib.3. cap.17.
z Iohn 15.5.
a Martyr in Rom.4.8.
b Hom. of good works, part.1.
c In Pſal 83.
d Rom 14.23
e Muſculus, Marlorat.

they be poore in ſpirit, but becauſe theirs is the kingdome of heauen. That is the right expoſition of the propoſition, Bleſſed are the poore in ſpirit.

Now the kingdome of heauen in holy Scripture, ſignifieth either the kingdome of [f] grace, which is heauen on earth; or elſe the kingdome of [g] glory, which is heauen in heauen: and both theſe belong vnto the poore in ſpirit. [h] Some conſtrue this of the kingdome of grace, becauſe Chriſt ſaith expreſly, Luk. 4. 18. The ſpirit of the Lord hath anointed me, that I ſhould preach the Goſpell vnto the poore; he hath ſent me that I ſhould heale the broken hearted; that I ſhould preach deliuerance to the captiues, and recouering of ſight to the blinde; that I ſhould ſet at libertie them that are bruiſed. And, [i] I am not come to call the righteous, but the ſinners to repentance. And, I giue thee thanks, O Father, Lord of heauen and earth, becauſe thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and men of vnderſtanding, and haſt opened them vnto babes. The carnall wiſe, Credentes oculo magis quàm oraculo, relie more vpon their fiue ſenſes, than the foure Euangeliſts; and therfore, [k] becauſe they cannot finde a reaſon of naturall things, they make to themſelues falſe gods; and becauſe they cannot finde a reaſon of ſupernaturall things, they denie the true God. The curious while they deſire to know what they ſhould not, are not able to conceiue what they ſhould; by diuing too much into the ſubtleties of reaſon, they forget often the principles of Religion. As wholſome lawes are loſt many times in the Caſes of the Law; ſo Religion it ſelfe is loſt among Sophiſters in the queſtions of Religion. It was the Serpent that firſt opened Adams eyes, and intic[ed] him to prie into the ſecrets of God. Our care therfore (ſaid [l] Luther) muſt be to ſhut vp our eyes againe, that we ſeeke not ambitiouſly to ſee more than Almighty God would haue vs to know. Chriſt would haue vs to bring faith & humilitie to his ſchoole, leauing our arguments at home, Non vult nos eſſe curiſtas & quariſtas. [m] He reſiſteth the proud, and giues grace to the humble. The [n] poore receiue the Goſpell, as it is in our text, Theirs is the kingdome of heauen.

But [o] other Expoſitors vnderſtand this of that incorruptible crowne of glory: as this world ſeemes to be made for the preſumptuous and proud; ſo that other only for the humble and meeke. It is Theirs, and that in preſent Is, and it is a kingdome, and that a kingdome of heauen. According to the termes of our common Law, [p] there be two ſorts of Freeholds; A Freehold in deed, when a man hath entred into lands or tenements, and is ſeiſed thereof actually and really; A Freehold in law, when a man hath right to lands or tenements, but hath not yet made his actuall entrie. Now the kingdome of heauen is our Freehold in law, though as yet while we liue, we cannot actually be ſeiſed thereof. It is ours, as being [q] prepared for vs by God the Father. It is ours, as being purchaſed in our behalfe by God the [r] Son. It is ours, as being aſſured to our ſpirit by God the Holy Ghoſt, Rom. 8. 16. 17. We haue now right to this inheritance, Habemus ius ad rem (as [s] Melanct hon acutely) nondum in re. Or as Auguſtine, and other of the Fathers vſually, the kingdome of heauen is ours already, Non in re, ſed in ſpe. The Scripture ſaith as much in plaine termes; We are [t] ſaued by [u] bleſſed hope, which is [x] immoueable, without [y] wauering. [z] Fides intuetur verbum rei, ſpes verò rem verbi, Rom. 5. 2. Through our Lord Ieſus Chriſt we haue acceſſe by faith vnto this grace, wherein we ſtand and reioyce vnder the hope of the glory of God.

And we may well vnder hope reioyce, ſeeing our reward (when our [a] fight is finiſhed) is no leſſe than a kingdome. The citizēs of Tyrus are deſcribed by the Prophet [b] Eſay, to haue beene companions vnto Nobles and Princes: but in that heauenly Hieruſalem, euery burgeſſe by his [c] ſecond birth, is the [d] brother of a King, the [e] ſonne of a King, and himſelf a King: hauing in token hereof a triumphant [f] palme in his hand, and a [g] golden crowne on his head. And this kingdome is not a [h] fading inheritance, but a kingdome of heauen, an immortall and euerlaſting life. Men on earth haue life, but it is [i] full of trouble, & of ſmall continuance, not euerlaſting. The damned in hell haue an eternall being, but becauſe they cannot moue, but are perpetually tied vnto their torments, it is not a life, but a death. Only the [k] rich in grace, the poore in ſpirit ſhall haue, whē this world hath his end, an euerlaſting life without [f] Matth. 3. 2. Luke 18. 17.

[g] Matth. 7. 21. Acts 14. 22.
[h] Heron. Muſculus. Aretius.
[i] Matth. 9. 13
[k] Dr. Ed. Ser Phyſick for the Plague.
[l] Loc. com. tit. de pugna fidei & rationis humanæ
[m] 1 Pet. 5. 9.
[n] Matth. 11. 5.
[o] Euthym. Rupert. Caietan.
[p] Termes of the Law, pag 103.
[q] Matth. 25. 34
[r] 1 Pet 14. 19.
[s] In Rom 8. 24. Idem Caietan. in loc.
[t] Rom. 8. 24.
[u] Tit 2. 13.
[x] Coloſſ. 1. 23.
[y] Heb 10 23.
[z] Addedum Sy ſtem. theolog. lib 3. loc 17.
[a] Tim 4. 7.
[b] Cap. 23 8.
[c] Ioh. 3. 3.
[d] Heb. 2. 17.
[e] Rom. 8. 14.
[f] Apocal 7. 9.
[g] Apocal 4. 4.
[h] 1 Pet. 1. 4.
[i] Iob 14. 1.
[k] Non dicit pauperes ſpiritu ſed ſpiritu. Caietan in loc.

without end. Tell, O man, what thou moſt earneſtly deſireſt? Is there any thing thou loueſt beter than life? Is there any life better than a bleſſed life? Is there any bleſſed life without hope here, and hold hereafter of euerlaſting life? Yet all theſe things, and more than I can vtter, or you conceiue, are [1] prepared and reſerued for ſuch as are poore in ſpirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen.

[1] 1 Cor. 2. 9.

Preached at Maydſton Aſſiſes, Iulie 28. 1614. vpon the requeſt of my much honoured and worthily beloued friend and kinſman, Sir Anthonie Aucher Knight, high Sheriffe of Kent.

Almightie God, which haſt knit together thy elect in one communion and fellowſhip in the myſticall bodie of thy Sonne Chriſt our Lord; Grant vs grace ſo to follow thine holy Saints in all vertuous and godly liuing, that we may come to thoſe vnſpeakable ioyes, which thou haſt prepared for them that vnfainedly loue thee, through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

GVN-POWDER TREASON DAY.

Psalme 150.

O praiſe God in his holineſſe, &c.

ALl the Pſalmes of Dauid, are compriſed in two words, [a] Halleluiah, and Hoſanna, that is, bleſſed be God, and God bleſſe; as being for the greater part either prayers vnto God for receiuing mercies, or elſe praiſes vnto God for eſcaping miſeries. This our preſent Hymne placed as a [b] concluſion of the whole booke, yea, the beginning, middle, end, to which al the reſt (as [c] Muſculus obſerueth) are to be referred, inuiteth vs in preſcript and poſtſcript, in title, in text, in euery verſe, and in euery clauſe of euery verſe, to praiſe the Lord. Teaching theſe two points eſpecially:

1. For what } God is be magnified.
2. With what }

For what, verſ. 1, 2. O praiſe God in his holiniſſe, praiſe him in the firmament of his power, praiſe him in his noble acts, praiſe him according to his excellent greatneſſe.

With what, euen with all that is
- Without vs, verſ. 3, 4, 5. Praiſe him in the ſonnd of the trumpet, &c.
- Within vs, ver. 6. Omnis ſpiritus, &c. Let euery ſpirit praiſe the Lord, praiſe yee the Lord

This in briefe is the whole texts Epitomie, I come now to the words Anatomie, cutting vp euery part and particle ſeuerally, beginning firſt at the firſt, O praiſe God in his holineſſe. Of which one ſentence the Doctors haue many (though not aduerſe yet diuerſe) readings, eſpecially three: Praiſe God in his Saints, praiſe God in his ſanctitie, praiſe God in his Sanctuarie. S. Hierome, Auguſtine, Proſper, and [d] other, as well ancient Interpreters as moderne, tranſlate here, praiſe God in his Saints. For if he muſt be praiſed in all his creatures, how much more in his new creatures? if in the witleſſe wormes and ſenſleſſe vapours, Pſal. 148. much more doubtleſſe (as Theodorit here collects) in men, in holy men, in Saints, vpon whom he hath out of his [e] vnſearchable riches of mercy, beſtowed the bleſſings of the [f] life preſent, and of that which is to come.

First, Almightie God is to be bleſſed, for giuing his Saints ſuch eminent gifts of grace for the good of his Church, and for the ſetting forth of his glory. So Chryſoſtome, Baſil, Euthymius, Proſper, Placidus, Parmenſis, expound it. [g] Euery good and perfit gift is from aboue, deſcēding from the Father of lights; a good thought in a Saint is gratia infuſa, a good word in a Saint is gaatia effuſa, a good deed in a Saint is gratia diffuſa, through his grace, which is the God of [h] al grace, ſaints are [i] whatſoeuer they are. Wherefore praiſe the Lord in his Saints, often remember their vertues,

[a] Gueuara.

[b] Lyra in loc.

[c] In loc.

[d] Chryſoſt. Baſil. Euthym. Arabs apud Muſcul. Lyra. Hugo Card. Turrecremat. Anonymus.

[e] Epheſ. 3. 8. 16

[f] 1 Tim. 4. 8.

[g] Iames 1. 17.

[h] 1 Pet. 5. 10.

[i] 1 Cor. 15. 10

vertues, as their true reliques, & as it were bequeathed [k] legacies vnto Gods people. So the wiſe man, Eccleſiaſticus 44. Let vs now commend the famous men in old time. by whom the Lord hath gotten great glory, let the people ſpeake of their wiſdome, and the congregation of their praiſe. So the Confeſſion of Bohemia, chap. 17. [l] We teach that the Saints are worſhipped truly, when the people on certaine dayes at a time appointed, doe come together to the ſeruice of God, and doe call to minde and meditate vpon his benefits beſtowed vpon holy men, & through them vpon his Church, &c. And for as much as it is kindly to conſider, opus diei in die ſuo, the work of the day [m] in the ſame day it was wrought; it is well ordered by the Church of England, that the moſt illuſtrious and remarkable qualities of the Saints are celebrated vpon their proper Feſtiuals, that on S. Stephens day we may learne by S. Stephens example, to loue our enemies: on S. Matthews day, to forſake the world, and to follow Chriſt: on S. Iohn the Baptiſt his day, to ſpeake the truth conſtantly, and to ſuffer for the ſame patiently. Thus in ſtedfaſtneſſe of faith and godlineſſe of life (non legere modò ſed degere ſanctorum vitas, as [n] one wittily) to be followers of them as they were followers of Chriſt; is (as [o] bleſſed Latymer was wont to ſay) the right worſhipping of Saints, and of God in his Saints.

Againe, for as much as there is a cõmunion of Saints, as we confeſſe in the Creed, a knot of fellowſhip betweene the dead Saints and the liuing; it is our dutie to praiſe God for their good in particular, as they [p] pray to God for our good in generall. It is required on our part, I ſay, to giue God moſt humble thanks for tranſlating them out of this [q] valley of teares into Hierusalem aboue, where they be [r] clothed with long white robes, hauing palmes in their hands, and [s] crownes of gold on their heads, euer liuing in that happy kingdome without either dying or crying, Apocal. 21. 4. and this alſo (in the iudgement of Auguſtine, Hierome, Hugo, Raynerius, and other) is to praiſe God in his Saints.

Theſe reaſons are the grounds of certaine holy dayes eſtabliſhed in England by law, namely, to bleſſe God for his Saints eminent grace while they were liuing, & exceeding glory now they be dead. Wherein our Church aſcribes not any diuine worſhip to the Saints, but all due praiſe to the ſanctifier: in celebrating their memorie (ſaith Auguſtine) we neither adore their honour, nor implore their helpe: but (according to the tenour of our text) we praiſe him alone, [t] who made them both men and martyrs. In the words of [u] Hierome to Riparius: Honoramus reliquias martyrum, vt eum cuius ſunt martyres adoremus: honoramus ſeruos, vt honor ſeruorũ redundet ad Dominum: If thou deſire to do right vnto the Saints, eſteeme them as patternes, and not as patrons of thy life; honour them only ſo farre, [x] that thou maiſt alway praiſe God in them, and praiſe them in God.

The gunpowder men erre very much in this one kinde of honouring God, for either they worſhip his Saints as himſelfe, or elſe their own ſaintlings, and not his ſaints. In praying to the dead, in mingling the bloud of their Martyrs with the precious bloud of their Maker, in applying their merits, & relying vpõ their mercies; it is plaine, that they make the Saints (as Melanchthon tells them in his [y] Apologie for the Confeſſiõ of Auſpurge) quartermaſters with God, & halfe mediators with Chriſt, I ſay, ioint mediators not of interceſſiõ only, but of [z] redemption alſo Nay they make the bleſſed Virgin vpon the point their only mediatrix & aduocate, ſo they ſing, and ſo they ſay. They ſing in their publique ſeruice, [a] Maria mater gratiæ, mater miſericordiæ, &c. the which is Gods own ſtile, 1 Pet. 1. 10 & 2 Cor. 1. 3. ſo they likewiſe ſay, Maria conſolatio infirmorum, redemptio captiuorum, liberatio damnatorũ, ſalus vniuerſorum. [b] Giſelbertus in lib. altercationis Synagogæ & Eccleſiæ, cap. 20. Maria quaſi maria, ſaith Auguſtinus de Leoniſſa, ſermon 5. vpon Aue Maria, for as all riuers come from the ſeas, & returne to the ſeas againe, Eccleſiaſtes 1. 7. [c] ſo forſooth (if you will vndertake to beleeue him) all grace is deriued frõ Marie, and ought to be returned againe to Marie. We finde ſo much in [d] Roſario Mariæ, Reparatrix & ſaluatrix deſperantis animæ, &c. That which is worſe, their own Pope (who cannot, as they teach, erre in a point of doctrine as Pope) calleth her expreſly Deã. Pet. Bembus in his Epiſtles writtẽ in Pope Leo the 10. name, li. 8 epiſt.

[k] Euſeb. Emiſen. Hom. de S. Maximo.

[l] See Harmon Confeſſ ſect. 16. pag. 486.

[m] Maior præfat. in Pſal. 22.

[n] Owen epigram. lib. 3.

[o] Sermon on Chriſtmas day preached at Bexterly, and Sermon on S Stephens day at Grimſtorpe.

[p] Apocal. 6. 10

[q] Pſal 84. 6.

[r] Apocal 7. 9.

[s] Apocal. 4. 4.

[t] De Ciuit. lib. 8. cap. 27.

[u] Tom. 2 fol. 118

[x] Philip. Mornæus de Miſſa, lib. 3 cap 11 See Melanct. reſp ad Bauar. art. 25.

[y] Tit de ſanct. inuocat.

[z] See Dr. Fulke in 1 Tim. 2. 5.

[a] Bellar. de ſanct. beat. 17.

[b] Apud Magdeburg. Cent. 10. col. 275.

[c] See Goſpell Annunciat.

[d] Chemnit. exam Con. Trident part. 3. pag. 151.

epist. 17. printed at Strasburg an. 1609 that which is worst of all, in their most approued Bible, they translate Gen. 3.15. ipsa conteret caput tuũ, she shall breake thine head, although (as their owne Iesuit[e] Ribera confesseth honestly) the Hebrew text, the Chaldee paraphrase, the translation of the Septuagint, & all good Latine copies, reade ipse conteret, he shall bruise the Serpents head, applying it to Christ, according to that of Paul, The God of peace shall tread downe Satan vnder your feet, Rom. 16..0. By this euidence you may see, that the gunpowder crue praise not God in the Saints, nor the Saints in God: but on the contrary, the Saints as God.

Againe, these S. Peter men (and as I haue warrant to terme them on this day, Salt Peter men) erre from the true meaning of our text, because they do not praise God in sanctis eius, in his saints; but dishonour God in sanctis eorũ, in saints of their own making, vsually praying vnto some who were no men, and to many who were not holy men. It is doubted by the two great lights in their glorious firmament, Bellarmine and Baronius, whether there were euer any such man as S. George, or such a woman as S. Catharine. Cardinall Bellarmine, lib. de beatitudine sanct. ca. vlt. §. Respondeo sanctorum, doth acknowledge that they worship certaine Saints, whose stories are vncertaine, reputing the legend of S. George apocryphall, according to the censure of Pope[f] Gelasius: and Cardinall Baronius, eccles. annal. tom. 2. ad an. 290. according to the impression at Rome, fol. 650. as also de Martyrologio Romano cap. 2. confesseth as much of Quiriacus and Iulitta, declaring plainly that their acts are written either by fooles or heretikes, and in his annotations vpon the Romane Martyrologie 23. Aprill, he taketh vp Iacobus de Voragine for his leaden Legend of our English S. George, concluding in fine, that the picture of S. George fighting with a Dragon is symbolicall, and not historicall. If the Scripture be true, [g] whatsoeuer is not of faith is sinne; then assuredly these men (as[h] Paul speaks) are damned of their owne selues in their owne conscience, who (notwithstanding all their doubts) pray still in their publik seruice, [i] Deus, qui nos beati Georgij martyris tui meritis & intercessione latificas, Concede propitius, &c. An Idoll, as Paul affirmes, 1. Cor. 8.4. is nothing, Ergo, the Papists in worshipping S. George which is nothing, commit (euen themselues being Iudges) abominable Idolatrie.

As they worship some who were no men, so many who were not[k] holy men, as a reuerend[l] Doctor of our Church, acutely, Non martyres Domini, sed mancipes diaboli: the souldier who pierced Christs holy side was a Pagan,[m] neither doth any story, which is authentical, speake of his conuersion, and yet they worship him vnder the name of S. Longinus or Longesse, March 15. Papias (as[n] Eusebius & [o] Hierome report) held the heresie of the Millenariãs, & yet he is honoured as a Saint in the Romane Calender vpon the 22. of Februa. Becket was a bad subiect in his life, and no good Christian at his death, in that he commended himselfe and the cause of his Church vnto[p] S. Denis, & our Ladie: yet S. Thomas of Canterbury was honoured at Canterbury in the daies of popish ignorance, more than either the worlds Sauiour or the blessed Virgin his mother: in which relatiõ I appeale to the records of that Church, as also to the very stones vnder his shrine, worne with the knees & hands of such as came thither to worship him. Boccace reporteth, how one Sir Chappalet, a notorious Italiã vsurer & cousener, came to be honoured as a saint in France. Sanders among them is a saint, albeit he liued in plotting, and died in acting rebellion against his gratious Soueraigne Q. Elizabeth of famous and blessed memory. Nay Dauus is Diuus. Saul is amongst the Prophets, Pater Personatus, Father Parsons all the daies of his life was a perpetuall Martyr, as his fellow [q] Ribadeneira termeth him: and yet one (who sometime was his inner man, and knew him as I presume, better than euer did Ribadeneira) transposing the letters of Robertus Parsonius Iesuita, found this Anagram, Personatus versuti oris abi: the wit-foundred drunkard Henry Garnet (who did not according to the counsell of [r] Paul vse vino modico; but as[s] Paulinus pretily, modio) that lecherous treacherous arch-priest, arch-traitor, arch-deuill in concealing, if not in cõtriuing; in patronizing, if not in plotting the powder intended massacre, is returned a Saint from beyond the seas, with [t] a Sancte Henrice intercede pro nobis: his action is iustified, his life commended,

[e] In Habacuc. cap. 1. num. 32.

[f] Can. sanct. Roman. dist. 15.

[g] Rom. 14. 23.
[h] Tit. 3. 11.

[i] Missal Roman. ex Con. Trident. decret. restit. in festo Georgij.

[k] Dr. Sutclif examin of Rom. cap. 7.
[l] Dr. Abbot Anti og pag 3.
[m] Sutclif vbi sup
[n] Hist. lib. 3 cap. vlt.
[o] Catalog script. in vita pap.
[p] Heuenden annal part poste. pag. 298.

[q] Catalog. script. Iesuit. in vita Parsonij.

[r] 1. Tim. 5 23.
[s] Epist. lib. 3. epist. 6.
[t] Sheldon preface before his motiues.

his death honoured, his miracles and memorie celebrated by that Ignatian ſpirit, (u portentum nominis portentũ hominis, hauing a great deale of name, though a very little modeſty) Andreas Eudæmon Ioannes Cydonius: but notwithſtanding his Apologie, the ſaintſhip of Henry Garnet is ſo buffeted by the replies and antilogies of our accuratly learned Diuines, as that his ſtraw face will hereafter hardly be worth a ſtraw. Catesbie, Winter, Rookwood, and the reſt of the cole-ſaints, and hole-ſaints, (who laboured in the deuils mine by the Popes mint) are numbred among the holy ones alſo: Babylon and Ægypt praiſe God in them, and for them. I haue heard much of roaring Gentlemen in London and Canterburie, but if the Lord himſelfe had not watched ouer his Church, if the Lord himſelf had not written England in the x palmes of his hands, if the Lord himſelfe had not kept King Iames as the y apple of his eye, z if the Lord himſelfe had not beene on our ſide (now may Gods Iſrael in England ſay) if the Lord himſelfe had not been on our ſide, when they roſe vp againſt vs, if the Lord himſelfe had not (out of his vnſpeakable goodneſſe toward vs and our poſteritie) broken the ſnares, and deliuered our ſoules out of that horrible gunpowder pit; theſe bellowing buls of Baſan, and Canon-mouthed hell-hounds, would haue made on this day ſuch a roare, that all Chriſtendome ſhould haue felt it, and the whole world haue feared it. a O Lord God of all power, bleſſed be thy name, which haſt this day brought to nought the enemies of thy people, b ſo let all thine enemies periſh, O Lord, that our c mouthes may be filled with laughter and our tongue with ioy. Sint diui modo non vini, let England hang ſuch, although afterward Rome hallow ſuch: he that hath an eye to ſee without the ſpectacles of a Ieſuit, will afford as good credit to the regiſter at Tiburne, as to the calender of Tyber: for if theſe be Martyrs, I wonder who are Murtherers? If theſe be Saints, I pray you who are Scythians? If theſe be Catholikes, who are Canibals?

I paſſe to the ſecond expoſition of theſe words, O praiſe God in his ſanctitie, ſo Munſter, Pagninus, Beza, Tremelius, and our old tranſlation here, Praiſe God in his holineſſe: now God is holy formaliter & effectiuè, holy in himſelfe, and making other holy; the Lord is glorious in holineſſe, Exod. 15. 11. whereas other gods are famous for their vnholineſſe, Venus was a wonton, Mercurius a theefe, Iupiter a monſtrous adulterer; an ingenious man (as d Baſil writs) would bluſh to report that of beaſts, which the Gentiles haue recorded of their gods. If ſuch imputations are true, ſaith e Auguſtine, quàm mali, how wicked are theſe gods: If falſe, quàm malè, how wretched and fooliſh are theſe men, adoring the ſame things in the Temple, which they ſcoffe at in the Theater? in turpitudine f nimium liberi, in ſuperſtitione nimium ſerui: ſo that their gods are not as our God, euen our enemies being Iudges, Deut. 32. 31. there is none holy as the Lord, 1. Sam. 2. 2. called g often in holy Scripture the holy one, yea thrice holy, holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hoſts, Eſay 6. . his h name is holy, his i law is holy, his ſpirit k is holy, his will holy, his word holy, righteous in all his wayes, and holy in all his workes, Pſal. 145. 17. making vs alſo which are his ſeruants, an holy people, Deut. 7. 6. an holy prieſthood, 1. Pet. 2. 5. his holy temple, 1. Cor. 6. 19. our bodies, our ſoules, our ſelues, our whole l ſeruice holy, wherefore praiſe God in his holineſſe.

m Luther, Caluin, Vatablus, your Engliſh-Geneua Bibles, and our new tranſlation haue, praiſe God in his Sanctuarie, the which in holy Scripture ſignifieth, either heauen, or the temple: heauen is often called in ſacred writ, Gods ſanctuary, for n thus ſaith he that is high and excellent, he that inhabiteth eternity, whoſe name is the holy one, I dwel in the high & holy place. Chriſt in cõming to vs is ſaid to breake the heauens, Eſa. 64. 1. and when he went from vs vnto his Father, a cloud tooke him vp into heauen, Act. 1. & from heauen he ſhall come againe to iudge the quicke and the dead, 1. Theſ. 4. 16. That his ſanctuary may be taken here for heauen, is gathered out of the very next clauſe (praiſe him in the firmament of his power) the which (as o Caluin & other Expoſitors haue well obſerued) is exegeticall, and expounds the former, as if Dauid ſhold haue ſaid, praiſe the Lord in his ſanctuary, that is, in the firmamẽt of his power, for the heauẽs declare the glory of God, & the firmamẽt ſheweth his handy work, Pſ. 19. 1. let al people praiſe God our father in heauẽ, eſpecially ſuch u Elienſ epiſt. rector. ante reſp. ad Bellar. apol.

x Eſay 49. 16.
y Deut. 32. 10.
z Pſal. 124.

a Iudith 13. 4.
b Iudges 5. 31.
c Pſal. 126. 2.

d Lib. de legend. libris Gentilium.
e De Ciuit. Dei, lib. 6. cap. 6.
f Auguſt contra Fauſt. Man. lib. 12. cap. 40.
g Eſay 1. 4. & 10. 20.
h Luke 1. 49.
i Pſal 19. 7.
k Marke 12. 36.

l 1. Pet. 3. 2.
m Idem Genebrard. & aly.

n Eſay 57. 15.

o In loc.
p Bellarmin. in loc.

such as dwell with him [q] in heauen, O praise the Lord all yee blessed Angels and Saints, inhabiting his Sanctuarie, which is highest and holiest.

[r]Other apply the word Sanctuary to the Temple, so termed for two respects especially. 1. Because God manifesteth his holines toward vs in that holy place more principally, calling it expresly [f] his house. 2. A Sanctuarie, in regard of our holy service toward God, for albeit euery day be to the good man a Sabbath, & euery place a Temple; yet the God of order hath appointed certaine times, and certaine places also, wherein he will be worshipped publiquely, saying, Leuiticus 19.30. Ye shall obserue my Sabbaths, and reuerence my Sanctuarie, For our holinesse toward God concerneth vs [t] one way in that we are men, & another way in that we are ioyned as parts to that visible mystical body which is his Church as men; we are at our own choise both for time, and place, and forme, according to the exigence of our owne occasions in priuate, but the seruice which is to be done of vs as the members of a publique body, must of necessitie be publique, and so consequently to be performed on holy dayes in holy places. And for this doctrine the Scriptures afford both patent and patterne: the patent is reported by the Prophet Esay, chap. 56. vers. 7. and repeated by Christ in [u] three seuerall Euangelists; my house shall be called an house of prayer for all people. The patternes are manifold, I will enter into thine house in the multitude of thy mercies, and in thy feare will I worship toward thine holy Temple, saith our Prophet, Psal. 5.7. The Publican and the Pharisie went into the Temple to pray, Luk. 18. Peter and Iohn went vp together into the Temple at the ninth houre of prayer, Act. 3. Anna fasted and prayed in the Temple, Luk. 2. This one word Sanctuary, teacheth vs how we should behaue our selues in the Church as in Gods presence: Doest thou come to that holy place to receiue the blessed Supper of our Lord? remember that the Temple is sanctuarium, non promptuarium, a sanctuarie, not a buttrie; [x] Haue ye not houses to eat and drinke in, despise ye the Church of God? Doest thou come to pray? [y] take heed to thy foot when thou entrest into Gods house, compose thy knees, and eyes, and hands, and heart, after such a deuout manner, as that thou maist not only praise God vpon the loud cymbals, but (as it is vers. 5.) praise him vpon the well tuned cymbals also. Doest thou come to heare the Sermon? remember that the preaching of the Gospell is [z] not the word of a mortal man, but the [a] power of the immortall God vnto saluation: and albeit the Preacher be neuer so simple, neuer so sinfull; yet the word is holy, the action holy, the time holy, the place holy, ordained by the most holy to make thee holy. Vpon whatsoeuer occasion thou commest into the temple, remember alwayes that the ground is holy whereon thou standest, it is a Sanctuarie, the habitation of God, and place of his holinesse; and therefore not to be [b] prophaned with ordinarie, though lawfull worldly businesse, much lesse with vnlawfull pastimes and enterludes; it is a place for praise, not for playes, O praise God in his Sanctuarie.

Or (as [c] Martin Luther interprets it) praise God in his Sanctuarie, that is, for his Sanctuarie, for [d] shewing his word vnto Iacob, his statutes and ordinances vnto Israel, for his adoption, and his couenants, and his promise, and his seruice, Rom. 9.4. O praise the Lord for his [e] true Church established for the present among the Iewes & hereafter in the fulnes of time to be constituted among Christians vntill the worlds end. For this cause may be construed of the mystical heauen & temple, so well as of the materiall heauen and temple. The good man (I meane the true Christian) is not only Gods [f] house, but also Gods [g] temple, yea, Gods heauen, as [h] Augustine expounds the words of Christ, Our Father which art in heauen, that is, in holy men of heauenly conuersation, in whose sanctified hearts he dwelleth as in his [i] sanctuary. Archimedes in his conference with Hiero said, Giue me a place where I may stand out of the world, and I will moue the whole earth: In like manner, he that will be reputed a Saint, and so take vpon him to remoue men earthly minded from their worldlines, must himself at the least haue one foot out of the world, seeking (as the blessed [k] Apostle speaks) the things aboue, that [l] other may see his good works, & glorifie God which is in heauen, that is, (according to the true soule of our text) praise God in his Saints, which are his sacrarie, his sanctuarie, his house, his heauen.

[q] Genebrard, Agellius Acernensis epist. in loc.
[r] Luther Vatablus Chald. apud Genebrard. English Cem. dedicated to Mr. Herlakinden
[f] Esay 56.7.
[t] Hooker eccles. pol. lib. 5. §. 24.
[u] Mark. 11.7. Luke 19 46. Matth. 21.13.
[x] 1. Cor. 11.22.
[y] Eccles. 4.17.
[z] 1. Thess 2.13
[a] Rom. 1.6.
[b] Canon. 88.
[c] In loc.
[d] Psal. 147.19.
[e] Christ. Corn. in loc.
[f] Hebr. 3.6.
[g] 1. Cor 3.16.
[h] Lib. 2. de ser. Dom. in mont.
[i] Bellarm & Corn. in loc. vel hoc dicit de populo, vel de vita sancta Chrysost. Basil. in loc.
[k] Coloss 3.1.
[l] Matth. 5.16.

Here then all the three diuers lines(praise God in his Saints, praise God in his sanctitie, praise God in his Sanctuarie) meet in one center; namely, God is to be praised in his sanctuarie, for his sanctitie conferred vpon his Saints; whereby they shined as [m] lights in this heauen on earth, and now shine like [n] stars in that heauen of heauen. If I were not(according to the text and the time) forward to prosecute Gunpowder men, as the more dangerous enemies of God and his Gospell, I might vpon this ground take vp the bucklers against idle Noueliſts, vtterly condemning the Festiuals of holy Saints established in our Church by good order of law. Their principall obiection is taken out of Pauls Epistle to the Galathians, Chap. 4. vers. 10. Ye obserue dayes and moneths and times and yeeres, I am afraid of you, lest I haue bestowed vpon you labour in vaine.

To which answer is made, that there is a [o] fourefold obseruation of dayes, { Naturall. Politicall. Ecclesiasticall. Superstitious.

Of all which, only the superstitious is condemned, as Aretius and Illiricus, and other Protestants Diuines vpon the place. Now the superstitious obseruation is either Iudaicall or Idolatricall; it is apparant, that Paul meant the first hereof especially, [q] because the Galathians after they were conuerted vnto Christ, were seduced by false teachers vnto the ceremonies of the Iewes, as concerning the Sabbaths & the new Moones, and the like, the which were figures of Christ, and had their end in him. [r] Are ye so fooliſh, that hauing begun in the spirit, ye would now be made perfit by the fleſh? As for Idolatricall obseruing of times, it is granted easily, that the Pagans (in dedicating feasts vnto false gods, and in making [s] differences of dayes dismall & fortunate, either by curious Arts, or by particular fansies, or popular obseruations) are worthily reputed superstitious. And the [t] Papiſts also (solemnizing holy dayes of the Sanits in their Churches with idolatrous worshipping of the creatures, and their images; and out of their Churches with Epicure-like belly-cheere, reuelling and idlenesse) turne againe to the beggerly rudiments and fashions of the world: But the festiuals of England (celebrated according to the doctrine and iniunctions of our Church) are very farre from these and all other kinds of superstition, [y] For then is God truly worshipped in the publike congregation, I say, the true God is truly praised in the true Saints; on our holy dayes the Sacraments are rightly ministred, the Scriptures are fruitfully read, the word is faithfully preached; all which are maine meanes to withdraw men not only from superstition and idolatrie, but also from all sorts of error and impietie whatsoeuer.

Yea, but the words of the Commandement are six daies shalt thou labour: Ergo there should be no holy day besides the Lords day. [x] Protestāt Diuines answer, that the clause (six dayes shalt thou labour) is a permission, or a remission of Gods right, who might challenge to himselfe all our time for his worke, and not a restraint for any man from seruing of God on any day. For the Iewes besides the Sabbath had diuers other feasts; as Easter, the feast of vnleauened bread, the feast of first fruits, Whitsuntide, the feast of blowing Trumpets, the feast of Tabernacles; all which (as we reade Leuiticus 23.) they kept by Gods appointment holy, notwithstanding these words of the Law, six daies shalt thou labour. And so the Christian Church in all ages, hath vpon iust occasions separated some weeke dayes vnto the praising of the Lord, and rest from labour. Ioel. 2.15. Blow the trumpet in Sion, sanctifie a fast, call a solemne assembly. [y] Daies of publike fasting for some great iudgement, daies of publik reioycing for some great benefit, are not vnlawful, but exceeding commendable, yea necessarie. Whosoeuer doubts of the Churches libertie herein or of the practise of this liberty, may peruse the ninth chapter of Easter, in which it will appeare, that Gods people by the cōmandement of Mordecai did euery yeere solemnize & keep holy the fourteenth and fifteenth day of the moneth Adar, in remembrance of their great deliuery from the treason of Haman. Vpon these grounds, the last euer renouned Parliament enacted, That we should for euer spend the prime part of this present fifth of Nouember in praying and praising the Lord, for his vnspeakable

[m] Philip. 2. 15.
[n] Dan. 12 3.

[o] Illiric. in Galat. 4.

[p] See Sir Christopher Heydons answer to Mr. Chambers, p. 368 and how the Fathers answer this. Bellarmin de sanct. cultu, cap 10.
[q] English gloſſe
[r] Galat 3.3.
[s] See Ambrose in Galat. 4. & August. epist. 119. cap. 7.
[t] Dr. Fulke in Galat 4.10.
[u] See Dr. Whitgifts defence of his answer to the admonit. fol. 538. 539.

[x] B Babington in 4. Com. Caluins Cat. Dr. Whitgift vbi supra, fol. 542. & 553. Six dayes thou maist labour.

[y] Perkins aur. cat. cap. 23.

vnſpeakable goodneſſe in deliuering our King, Queene, Prince, and States of this Realme from that helliſh, horrible, bloudie, barbarous intended maſſacre by Gunpowder. Now that I may for my part execute the will of the Parliament, (ſparing the Nouelists, and referring ſuch as deſire to be further ſatisfied in this argument of holy dayes, vnto the iudicious writings of my moſt honoured and honourable matter, Archbiſhop Whitgift, in the [z] defence of his anſwer to the Admonition) I proceed in the text, praiſe him in his noble acts, praiſe him according to his excellent greatneſſe.

[a] Some read, Laudate eum in [b] virtutibus eius, praiſe him in his powers: [c] other, ob fortitudinem eius, praiſe him in his power. And according to theſe two diuers tranſlations, I finde two different expoſitions; one conſtruing it of Gods glorious [d] Angels, and the other applying it to Gods glorious acts. For the firſt, it is euident in holy writ, that there be certaine diſtinctions and degrees of Angels in the Quire of heauen, there be Seraphines, Eſay 6.2. Cherubins, Gen. 3.24. Thrones, Dominions, Principalities, and Powers, Coloſſ. 1.16. in all which and for all which God is to be praiſed, as being his [e] miniſtring ſpirits for the good of ſuch as ſhall be heires of ſaluation; as long as we ſerue God, all theſe ſerue vs, euen the Cherubins, and Seraphins, Angels and Archangels: I ſay, ſo long as we ſerue the Lord, theſe pages of his honour and parts of his courts attend vs, and pitch their tents about vs. A doctrine very profitable, very comfortable, yet for as much as I hold it leſſe pertinent to the preſent occaſion, I thus ouerpaſſe it, and haſte to that other expoſition, interpreting theſe words (as our Church readeth) of Gods noble acts.

Now the works of God are of two ſorts, ad intra & ad extra: ſome be confined within himſelfe, other extended towards vs: works of the ſacred Trinitie within it ſelfe, (as that the Father begets, and the Sonne is begotten, and the Holy Ghoſt proceeds from both) are wonderfull acts of ſuch an high nature, that it is our dutie rather ſimply to adore, than ſubtilly to explore them: all his acts extended toward vs, are ſummarily reduced vnto two, namely the works of creation and redemption. [f] The worke of creation is attributed in the maſſe of the matter to God the Father, in the diſpoſition of the forme to God the Sonne, in the preſeruation of both to God the Holy Ghoſt. So likewiſe that of redemption, in election vnto God the Father, in the conſummation vnto God the Sonne, in the application vnto the Holy Ghoſt, all which are very noble acts, and God is to be praiſed in them according to his excellent greatneſſe. The worke of creation is ſo mightie, that none could bring it to paſſe but the Father Almightie: that God ſhould haue nothing but nothing, whereof, wherewith, whereby to build this high, huge, goodly, faire frame; is a principle which Nature cannot teach, and Philoſophie will not beleeue. The worke of redemption is of farre greater might and mercy: for the making of the world was (if I may ſo ſpeake) only lip-labour vnto God, he ſpeake the word and it was done, he commanded and it ſtood faſt, Pſalm. 33.9. but Chriſt in redeeming the world ſaid many words, and did many wonders, and ſuffered alſo many wounds. It is true that the leaſt ake of his leaſt finger is infiniti meriti, ſed non definiti meriti, that is, of an infinit merit, yet not that determined ranſome for the ſinnes of the whole world. It coſt him more to redeeme ſoules, [g] he died for our ſinnes, and roſe againe for our iuſtification; he ſuffered for vs, and that death, and that a violent death, and of all violent deaths the moſt accurſed death on the Croſſe.

The worke of ſanctification is a noble act alſo, for euery man (if you rightly conſider his making) is a wonder: I am (ſaith our [h] Prophet) fearfully and wonderfully made: but a good man (if you conſider his new making) is a wonderfull wonder, as [i] Paul ſpeakes, a ſpectacle to men and Angels, as the vulgar Latine runs in the 68. Pſalme, at the laſt verſe, mirabilis Deus in ſanctis, O God wonderfull art thou in thy Saints.

But Dauid [k] here meaneth eſpecially the valiant acts of God in gouerning and guarding his people from their enemies, [l] O come hither and behold the works of [z] From pa. 538. to 555.

[a] Vulgar Latine Caſtalio.
[b] Pagnin. In fortitudinibus
[c] Vatablus. Munſter.
[d] Turrecremat. & Reyncrius in loc.
[e] Heb. 1.14.

[f] Aduancemēt of learning, lib. 2. pag. 116.

[g] Rom. 4.25.

[h] Pſal 139.15.
[i] 1 Cor 4.9.
[k] Placid. Parmen. and the Engliſh Com. dedicated to M. Herlakinden.
[l] Pſal 66.4.

of God, how wonderfull he is in his doing toward the children of men; he turned the sea into drie land, so that his people went on foot thorow the mid-
[m] Exod. 14. 29. deſt of the sea, the [m] waters were a wall vnto them on the right hand and on their left; but the waues of the sea returned and couered the chariots and horsemen, euen all the hoast of Pharaoh that pursued them. Almightie God rained hailestones out of heauen vpon the cursed Amorites at Bethoran, and [n] Iosua 10. they were more ([n] saith the text) that died with the haile, then they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword. And when Duke Iosua praied, Sunne stay thou in Gibeon, and thou Moone in the valley of Aialon; the Sunne abode and the Moone stood still, vntill the people auenged themselues vpon their enemies. When Zenacherib and his innumerous hoast came to fight against Hezekiah King of Iuda, Gods Angell in one night slew an hundred eighty and fiue thousand Assyrians, 2. Kings 19.

And vndoubtedly (beloued) there is no nation vnder the cope of heauen hath had greater occasion to praise God in this kinde than England. The preseruation of the most illustrious Princesse the Ladie Elizabeth, vnder the fiery triall of her vnkinde sister Queene Mary, was a noble act, and the seminary of much happinesse vnto this kingdome for many yeeres after, and so much the more noble, because Philip King of Spaine hath often confessed that he spared her life (when wildy Winchester and bloudy Bonner had brought her into the snare) not out of any pietie or pittie, but only out of policie. Her exaltation to the Crowne was ano-
• See M. Fox Martyr. in fine. ther noble act, so noble that some •Popish Prelates in their enuie burst asunder and died for very griefe of heart. Well might that good Lady sing and say with the blessed Virgin, He that is mightie hath magnified me, and holy is his name, he hath put downe the mightie from their seat, and hath exalted the humble and meeke. Her flourishing in health, wealth, and godlinesse, more then 44. yeeres (in despight of all her foes abroad, at home, schismaticall, hereticall, open, intestine) was another noble act: for after once the Bull of Pope Pius Quintus had roared, and his fat Calues had begun to bellow in this Island, there passed neuer a yeere, neuer a moneth, neuer a weeke, (I thinke I might say) neuer a day, neuer an houre, but some mischiefe was intended either against her person or her people. The resisting of the rebellion in the Northerne parts of England, was a noble act: the discouering, and so consequently the defeating of Campions treason, a noble act: of Panns treason, a noble act: of the Lupus Lopus his treason, a noble act: of Squires treason, a noble act. Her glorious victories against her fell and insolent enemies the Spaniards in Ireland, in Flanders, in France, in their owne dominions of Portugal, Indies, and Spaine, were noble acts. It was a wonder of wonders, that a Maiden Queene should at one time be both a staffe to Flanders, and a stay to France, a terror to Pope, a mirror to Turke, feared abroad, loued at home, Mistresse of the Seas, wonder of the World. She might ttuly be called a Prince of Peace, for she was crowned in peace, she liued in peace, she died in peace, she was buried in peace: and when she had slept with her fathers, it was another noble act of the Lord, to send vs in the midst of all our feare, so learned, so meeke, so pius a Prince as King IAMES, in such exceeding sweet peace, that neuer a sword was drawne, happily neuer a word spoken against him. All these were noble acts, and ought to be had in a Perpetuall remembrauce. But of all other noble preseruations, our deliuerance from that intended mercilesse and matchlesse massacre both in fact and fiction, the fifth of Nouember, in the yeere 1605. is most nobly noble. King IAMES
[p] 2. Sam. 22. 41. on this day might haue said with King [p] Dauid, O Lord which art my rocke and my fortresse, thou hast giuen me the necks of mine enemies, that I might destroy them that hate me, that I might breake them as small as the dust of the earth, and tread [q] Psal. 118. them flat as the clay of the street. [q] O giue thankes vnto the Lord, for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer. Let Israel now confesse that he is gracious, and that his mercy endureth for euer, Let the house of Aaron now confesse that his mercy endureth for euer. Yea let all such as feare the Lord now confesse that his mercy endureth for euer. All the Congregation of the Saints in the whole world, haue

haue good cauſe to thanke God our ſtrength and deliuerer. Scotland hath good cauſe, for if England had beene but a Tueſday breakefaſt, aſſuredly Scotland ſhould haue beene but a Fridayes drinking, one morſell as it were for the greedie deuourer. The Churches in France releeued often by vs, haue good cauſe to reioyce with vs. Our neighbours of Holland haue good cauſe to triumph as they doe, for if our houſe had beene ſet on fire, their houſe (being the next) would haue beene quickly pulled downe. The Churches in Germanie, Denmarke, Hungarie, Geneua, likewiſe haue good cauſe to praiſe God in this noble act according to his excellent greatneſſe.

More principally the Common weale of England, and in it all men of all factions, and all faſhions whatſoeuer. Atheiſts (if they thinke there be a God) haue good cauſe to thanke God, acknowledging his mercy toward them in ſparing vs, and ſo ſauing the bad for the [r] righteous ſake. Carnall Goſpellers haue good cauſe to thanke God, confeſſing that ſo long as [ſ] Lot is in Sodome, it cannot be deſtroied; and ſo long as Moſes ſtandeth in the [t] gap, and [u] praieth for his people, Gods wrathfull indignation cannot deuoure vs. Yea, let the Gunpowder men themſelues (if they haue any ſparke of grace) confeſſe that God is to be praiſed in this noble act; for ſuppoſe (God be thanked, we may ſuppoſe and diſpoſe thus of theſe matters vnto our comfort) I ſay, ſuppoſe their deuilliſh plot had beene acted, I aſſure my ſelfe our cauſe had beene farre better, and our number farre greater than theirs; and as for our ſinnes (which are indeed our greateſt enemies) they would haue brought into the field ſo many as we: ſo that hauing ſo much armour of light, and more armour of proofe than they, [x] Cauſa iubet melior ſuperos ſperare ſecundos.

[r] Gen. 18.26.
[ſ] Gen. 19.22.
[t] Pſal. 106.23.
[u] Exod. 32.11
[x] Lucan.

But ſuppoſe the leaſt and the worſt part had ouercome the bigger and the better, yet (if they be not hewen out of hard rocks) if theſe Romaniſts haue not ſucked the milke of wolues (as it is reported of the firſt founder of Rome) they would haue relented to ſee their natiue Countrey made nothing elſe but a very ſhambles of Italian and Ignatian butchers. When Alexander ſaw the dead corps of Darius; and Iulius Cæſar, the head of Pompey; and Marcus Marcellus, Syracuſa burne; and Scipio Numantia ſpoiled; and Titus, Hieruſalem made [y] euen with the ground, they could not abſtaine from weeping, albeit they were mortall enemies. But aboue all other in this kingdome, the truly zealous, and zealouſly true-hearted Proteſtants haue greateſt occaſion of reioycing; for if the Lord had not according to his excellent greatneſſe, and according to his excellent goodneſſe too) deliuered vs out of this gun-powder gulfe, our bodies haply might haue beene made food for the fowles, or elſe fewell for the fire; and that which would haue grieued our poſteritie more, ſuperſtition and idolatrie might in ſhort time haue beene replanted in this Land; I meane that vpſtart Antichriſtian Religion of Rome, wherein many things, eſpecially foure (as iudicious [z] Fox well obſerued) are moſt abominable.

[y] Luk. 19.44.
[z] Martyr. pag. 1

1. Vnlimited iuriſdiction, derogatorie to all Kings and Emperors.
2. Inſolent titles, preiudiciall to all Biſhops and Prelates,
3. Corrupt doctrine, iniurious to all Chriſtians.
4. Filthy life, deteſtable to all men.

The greater was our danger, the greater was our deliuerance; the greater our deliuerance, the greater our thanks ſhould be; for as it followeth in my text, God is to be praiſed according to his excellent greatneſſe. It is true that our moſt and beſt praiſes are few for the number, and little for the meaſure; whereas God is infinit for his goodneſſe, and in his greatneſſe incomprehenſible. So that the meaning of [a] Dauid is, that we ſhould praiſe him according to our capacitie, and not according to his immenſitie; according to the grace beſtowed vpon vs, and not according to the glory which is in him. Eccleſiaſticus 43.30. Praiſe the Lord, and magnifie him as much as ye can, yet he doth farre exceed. Exalt him with all your power, and be not wearie, yet can ye not attaine vnto it.

[a] Baſil. Muſcu-lus, Placid Parmen in loc.

Now where the Lord giueth a greater meane, there he requireth a greater meaſure;

ſure; where he beſtoweth a greater portion of gifts, he doth expect a greater proportion of glorie. Wherefore ſeeing the Lord hath out of his abundant mercy conferred vpon this kingdome ineſtimable bleſſings, in the preaching of his word for the ſpace of more than fiftie yeeres; it is queſtionleſſe he lookes for no little thanks or ſmall praiſe, but for great thanks and great praiſe, according to his excellent greatneſſe manifeſted in this our deliuerance. I come therefore to the ſecond part of this Pſalme, ſhewing with what God is to be praiſed, In the ſound of the trumpet, &c.

[b] In Pſalm. 147.

God is to be praiſed (ſaith [b] Auguſtine) totis viribus de totis vobis, with all your ſoules, and with all your ſelues. That therefore we may manifeſt our inward affections by ſuch outward actions as are commendable, where there be trumpets, let them ſound: where there be lutes and harpes, let them ſtrike vp: where there be loud Cymbals and well tuned cymbals, let them ring, let them ſing the praiſes of God for this our moſt happy deliuerance; let trumpet and tongue, viol and voice, lute and life, witneſſe our hearty reioycing in the Lord. If our true zeale were more fierie within, it would doubtleſſe breake forth into moe publike works than it doth, againſt that bloudy brood of the Gunpowder crue. There haue beene many collections in euery Dioces for the reedifying of the Churches of Saint Albones and Arthuret, the which I aſſure my ſelfe were good works: there haue beene in this latter age many gorgeous, I might ſay glorious buildings erected about and in this honorable Citie, the great ornament of our Countrie, the which I thinke you may number among your good works: there haue beene Lotteries to further Virginean enterpriſes, and theſe (for any thing I know) were good works alſo: there haue beene many new Play-houſes, and one faire Burſe lately built, Paris-garden in a flouriſhing eſtate makes a great noiſe ſtill, and as I heare Charing Croſſe ſhall haue a new coat too: but in the meane time while ſo many monuments are raiſed, either to the honour of the dead, or elſe for the profit and pleaſure of the liuing: Dic mihi Muſa virum, I pray muſe and ſhew mee the man, who ioynes with that euer zealous, reuerend, learned Deane, in founding a Colledge for a Societie of writers againſt the ſuperſtitious Idolatries of the Roman Synagogue, the which happily might be like the [c] Tower of Dauid, where the ſtrong men of Iſrael might haue ſhields and targets to fight the Lords battell: [d] Is it time for your ſelues to dwell in your ſeiled houſes, and this houſe lie waſte?

[c] Cant. 4. 4.
[d] Haggai 1. 4.

[e] 2. Chron. 15. 2.

Remember, I beſeech you, the words of [e] Azariah vnto King Aſa and the men of Iuda, The Lord is with you while you are with him, and if ye ſeeke him, he will be found of you; but if yee forſake him, he will forſake you. Be not cold in a good cauſe, flie not out of the field, play not the cowards in the Lords holy warres; for albeit haply your ſelues are like for your time to do well enough, in deſpight of the deuil, and the Pope his darling; yet your poſteritie will aſſuredly rue it, and haue iuſt cauſe to curſe their daſtardly ſpiritleſſe, and worthleſſe progenitors. I ſay no more concerning this point, only I pray with our forefathers in the firſt Engliſh Letanie, ſet out in the dayes of King Henrie the 8. From all ſedition and priuie conſpiracie, from the tyrannie of the Biſhop of Rome, and all his deteſtable enormities, from all falſe doctrine and hereſie, from hardneſſe of heart, and contempt of thy word and commandement, Good Lord deliuer vs.

Where note by the way, that the Popes abominable tyrannie is hedged in (as it were) on the one ſide with ſedition & priuie conſpiracie, and on the other ſide with falſe doctrine and hereſie. I haue another prayer, and for as much as it is in Latine, I muſt intreat all ſuch (if any ſuch here be preſent, who loue Bonauentures pſalter and the Romiſh ſeruice) to ioyne with vs in this oriſon Papa noſter qui es Romæ, maledicitur nomen tuum, intereat regnum tuum, impediatur voluntas tua, ſicut in cœlo, ſic & in terra. Potum noſtrum in cœna dominica da nobis hodie, & remitte nummos noſtros quos tibi dedimus ob indulgentias, ſicut & nos remittimus tibi indulgentias, & ne nos inducas in hæreſin, ſed libera nos à miſeria, quoniam tuum eſt infernum, pix & ſulphur, in ſecula ſeculorum.

The

The word of God is a[f] two edged ſword, ſharpe in a literall, and ſharpe in an allegoricall expoſition. Hitherto you haue heard the hiſtorie, now there remaineth a myſterie, nihil enim hic ludicrum aut lubricum, ſaith [g] Auguſtine, and therefore [h] Diuines vnderſtand here by the ſounding of the trumpet, the preaching of the Goſpell, [i] whoſe ſound went out thorow all the earth vnto the ends of the world: at the ſeuentold ſounding of the trumpet, the wals of [k] Jericho fall, that is all the pompes and powers of this world are conquered and brought to nought, this trumpet is mightie through God, to caſt downe holds, and imaginations, and euery high thing that is exalted againſt the knowledge of God, 2. Cor. 10. 4.

[l] Other ſay, that the Saints are theſe trumpets, and harps, and cymbals, and that their [m] members make this muſicke to the Lord: our eyes praiſe the Lord, while they be [n] lifted vp vnto their maker in heauen, and wait vpon his mercie: our tongues praiſe the Lord in ſinging [o] Pſalmes, and hymnes and ſpirituall ſongs vnto the Lord: our eares praiſe the Lord, while they [p] heare the word of God with attention: our hands praiſe the Lord, while they be [q] ſtretched out vnto the poore, and while they [r] worke the thing that is good: our feet praiſe the Lord, when they be not [s] ſwift to ſhed bloud, but [t] ſtand in the gates of Gods houſe, readie to [u] run the wayes of his Commandements. In tympano ſicca & percuſſa pellis reſonat, in choro autem voces ſociatæ concordant, ſaid [x] Gregorie the Great: wherefore [y] ſuch as mortifie the luſts of the fleſh, praiſe God in tympano, and they who keepe the [z] vnity of the ſpirit in the bond of peace: praiſe God in choro: the Browniſt, in ſeparating himſelf from the Church, though he ſeeme to praiſe God in tympano, yet he doth not praiſe God in choro: and the carnall goſpeller, albeit he ioyne with the Church in choro, yet he praiſeth not God in tympano; they praiſe God in well tuned cymbals, who tune their ſoules before they preach or pray; whoſoeuer deſires to be a ſweet ſinger in Iſrael, muſt be learned in the ſchoole, before he be loud in the temple: the heart likewiſe muſt be prepared for praying, as the harpe for playing; if our inſtruments of praiſe be not in tune, then our whole deuotion is like the [a] ſounding braſſe, or as the tinckling cymbal: in Gods Quire there is firſt tune well, and then ſound well: if once we can ſay with [b] Dauid. O God mine heart is ready, my heart is ready, then our Lute and Harpe will awake right earely: let thy ſoule praiſe the Lord, and then all that is either without or about thee will inſtantly do the ſame.

Let euery thing that hath breath praiſe the Lord] That is, [c] omne ſpirans, [d] omnis ſpiritualis, [e] omnis ſpiritus, let euery creature praiſe the Lord for his eſtate of confection, euery Chriſtian praiſe the Lord for his eſtate of refection, euery bleſſed ſpirit looſed out of the worlds miſery praiſe the Lord for his eſtate of perfection, let euery creature, man aboue all the creatures, and the ſoule of man aboue all that is in man, praiſe the Lord. Omnis ſpiritus, i. [f] totus ſpiritus, [g] all the heart, all the ſoule, all the minde, as the Pſalmiſt [h] elſewhere, I will thanke thee, ô Lord my God, with all mine heart, euen with my [i] whole heart; or omnis ſpiritus the ſpirit of euery man in euery place, for this ſaying is [k] propheticall, inſinuating that God in time to come, ſhall not only be worſhipped of the Iewes at Ieruſalem with outward ceremonies, in the ſound of the trumpet, and vpon the lute and harpe; but in all places, of all perſons, in ſpirit and truth, as Chriſt expounds Dauid in the 4. of S. Johns Goſpell, at the 23. verſe; whereas vnbeleeuing Iewes are the ſonnes of Abraham according to the fleſh, only beleeuing Gentiles are the [l] ſeed of Abraham according to the ſpirit, and heires by promiſe, more Iſrael, ſaith [m] Auguſtine, than Iſrael it ſelfe. The ſonnes of Abraham (as Chriſt tels vs in the [n] Goſpell) are they who do the works of Abraham, and Abrahams chiefe worke was faith, Abraham beleeued (ſaith the [o] text) and it was imputed to him for righteouſneſſe: Ergo, the true beleeuer is a right Iſraelite, bleſſed with faithfull Abraham, Galath. 3. 9. [p] Some ſtretch this further, applying it not onely to the ſpirits of men in the Church militant, but alſo to the bleſſed Angels and Saints in the triumphant: for this Pſalme conſiſts of a three-fold Apoſtrophe.

1. Dauid inuiteth all the Citizens of heauen, O praiſe God in his Sanctuarie, praiſe him in the firmament of his power.

2. All

[f] Heb. 4 12.

[g] In loc.
[h] Proſper. Luther. Hugo Card.
[i] Rom 10. 18.
[k] Ioſua 6. Stridior eſt tuba ex parte buccinantis quàm ex altera, quia prædicator ſtrictius ſe debet examinare. Hugo Card. in loc.
[l] Auguſtin. in loc.
[m] Chryſoſt. Euthym in loc.
[n] Pſal. 123.
[o] Coloſſ. 3. 16.
[p] Matth 13 9.
[q] Eccleſ. 7 32.
[r] Epheſ 4. 24.
[s] Pſal 14 6.
[t] Pſal. 122. 2
[u] Pſal 119. 32.
[x] Paſtoral part. 3 admonit. 23.
[y] Auguſt. Caſſiod. Hugo Card. in loc.
[z] Epheſ. 4. 3.
[a] 1. Cor 13 1.
[b] Pſal. 108. 1.

[c] Agellius Vatablus.
[d] Hieron. Auguſt.
[e] Genebrard. & aly plerique.
[f] Hugo. Junius.
[g] Luke 10 27.
[h] Pſal 86. 12.
[i] Pſal 111. 1.
[k] Calain. Genebrard in loc.

[l] Galat. 3 29.
[m] Pſal 148.
[n] John 8. 39.

[o] Gen. 15. 6. Rom. 4. 3.

[p] Genebrard.

2. All the dwellers vpon earth, praiſe him in the ſound of the trumpet, praiſe him vpon the lute and harpe, &c.

3. Both and all, let euerie thing that hath breath, euery thing which hath either the life of nature or of grace, or of glorie, let euery ſpirit whether it be terreſtriall or celeſtiall, of what ſoeuer condition, age, ſex, praiſe the Lord.

[q] Placidus Parmenſis & Bellarmin. in loc.

It is a[q] Rabinicall conceit, that this hymne conſiſts of 13. Halleluiahs, anſwering 13. properties of God mentioned, Exod, 34.6, 7. verſes, and in that our Prophet after a dozen Halleluiahs hath not done, but addeth a thirteenth, he doth inſinuate that when all our deuotion is finiſhed, it is our dutie to begin againe with Gods praiſe, for as [r] of himſelfe, and through him, and for him are all things, euen ſo to him is due all glorie for euermore: as his mercies are from euerlaſting to euerlaſting, from euerlaſting election, to euerlaſting glorification: ſo likewiſe his praiſes are to be ſung for euer and euer. In this life we begin this hymne ſinging (as Muſitians ſpeake) in briefs and ſemibriefs, a ſtaffe or two, but in the world to come ſtanding before the throne of the Lambe, cloathed in long white robes, accompanied with all the ſweet voices of heauens incomparable melodious Quire; we ſhall eternally ſing, [s] Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almightie which was, and which is, and which is to come, [u] praiſe, and glory, and wiſdome, and power, and might, be vnto our God for euermore. Amen.

[r] Rom. 11.36.

[s] Apocal 4.8.

[u] Apocal. 7.12.

Felix qui quod amat defendere fortiter audet.

Glorie be to God on high, and peace to men on earth.

CHRISTMAS

AN EXPOSITION OF THE PROPER PSALMES VSED IN OVR ENGLISH LITVRGIE.

TOGETHER VVITH A REASON WHY THE Church did chuſe the ſame.

By IOHN BOYS, Doctor in Diuinitie, and Deane of Canterburie.

PSALM. 49. 4.

Aperiam in Pſalterio propoſitionem meam.

LONDON

Printed by George Miller for William Aſpley at the ſigne of the Parot in Pauls Churchyard. 1630.

TO THE RELIGIOVS
AND EVERY WAY NOBLE KNIGHT, SIR THOMAS WOTTON

of Bocton Malherbe, Sonne and Heire to the Right Honourable EDVVARD Lord WOTTON, Baron of Marleigh, Comptroler of his Maiesties Houshold, Lord Lieutenant of the Countie of Kent, and the Citie of Canterburie, and one of the most Honourable Priuie Councell.

SIR, as the Scriptures excell other writings in veritie; so the Psalmes, other Scriptures in varietie: for whereas some sacred bookes are legall, as the Pentateuchue of Moses: other historicall, as the Kings, Chronicles, Acts: a third kinde Propheticall, as the Vision of Esay, Sermons of Ieremie, Reuelation of S. Iohn: a fourth Euangelicall, as the Gospels and Epistles: the Psalter, (as [a] Augustine, [b] Basil, [c] Euthymius, and [d] other ancient Doctors honour it) is a common treasure-house of all good arguments and instructions: and in this respect aptly termed, [e] The Soules Anatomie, the [f] Lawes Epitomie, the [g] Gospels Index: in one word, The [h] Register, [i] Enchiridion, [k] Summarie pith, and (as it were) [l] Briefe of the whole Bible.

Vpon this ground the Church in [m] old time, diuiding the Psalmes into seuen portions, inioyned that they should be read in Diuine Seruice (thorow) once euery Weeke:

[a] Prolog. in lib. Psalmorum.
[b] Hom. de laudibus & virtute Psalm.
[c] Præfat in Psalm.
[d] Athanasius. Chrysost.
[e] Calvin epist. præfix Com. in Psalm.
[f] Tremel. argument in Psalm.
[g] See Victorinus, Strigellius epist. Dedicat. & Tilemanus Heshusius præfat. in Psalm.
[h] Turrecremat. prolog in Psalm.
[i] Io. Gaweius epist. lect. in od. Dauid.
[k] Ex cæteris omnibus quasi collectus. Hem. Mollerus præfat. in Psalm.
[l] Agellius prolog. in Psalm.
[m] Preface Com. Booke.

Weeke: and in our time parting them into thirtie, once euery Moneth: whereas other parts of holy writ are read thorow but once in the yeere. And the Noueliſts, howſoeuer they miſlike bare reading of Chapters, approue notwithſtanding by their poſitions and practiſe, ſinging of Pſalmes in the Congregation.

By which it doth appeare that nothing is eſteemed generally more neceſſarie for the worſhip of God, than the word of God, and no parcell of the word more full and fit than the Pſalmes: vnto which I will adde, that no Pſalmes are more profitable than the proper, as vnfolding the foure chiefe myſteries of holy beleefe, namely, Chriſts Incarnation, Paſsion, Reſurrection, Aſcenſion.

An expoſition whereof I haue begun in the name of the Lord Ieſus, and that for his Sions ſake; the which I dedicate to your worthy ſelfe, as being a noble Theophilus, that is, a true ſeruant of God, and obſeruant of his Church, affected ſo right honeſtly (which is right honourably) to her doctrine and diſcipline; that your humble Comportament in Gods houſe, giueth vnto the world good hope, that you will become an open booke of vnfained deuotion and pietie. Now the God of all comfort, according to the multitude of his mercies, and riches of his glory, bleſſe you and your honourable Familie, that you may long enioy good dayes on earth, and hereafter eternall happineſſe in heauen.

Hollingbourn, Aprill 2.

Yours in all good offices of dutie and loue,

IOHN BOYS.

CHRISTMAS DAY
MORNING PRAYER.

PSALME 19.

The heauens declare the glorie of God,&c.

THE world reſembleth a Diuinitie-ſchoole,(ſaith[a] Plutarch) and Chriſt (as the[b] Scripture telleth) is our Doctor, inſtructing vs by his works, and by his words. For as[c] Ariſtotle had two ſorts of writings, one called Exotericall for his common auditors, another Acroamaticall for his priuate ſchollers and familiar acquaintance: ſo God hath two ſorts of bookes, as Dauid intimates in this Pſalme.

Namely, the { Booke of his Creatures, as a common-place booke for all men in the world, The heauens declare the glorie of God. verſ. 1,2,3, 4,5,6.
Booke of his Scriptures, as a ſtatute booke for his domeſticall auditorie the Church, The Law of the Lord is an vndefiled Law, verſ. 7,8.

The great book of the creatures[d] in folio, may be termed aptly the Shepherds Kalender, and the Plough-mans Alphabet, in which euen the moſt ignorant may runne (as the[e] Prophet ſpeakes) and reade. It is a Letter Patent, or open Epiſtle for all, as Dauid in our text, Their ſound is gone out into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world: there is neither ſpeech nor language but haue heard of their preaching. For albeit heauen, and the Sunne in heauen, and the light in the Sunne are mute; yet their[f] voices are well vnderſtood, catechizing plainly the firſt elements of religion, as namely[h] that there is a God, and that this God is but one God, & that this one God excelleth all other things infinitely both in might and maieſtie. Vniuerſus mundus (as[i] one pithily) nihil aliud eſt quàm Deus explicatus: The whole world is nothing elſe but God expreſt. So Saint Paul, Rom. 1. 20. Gods inuiſible things, as his eternall power and Godhead are cleerely ſeene by the creation of the world being vnderſtood by the things that are made. The heauens declare this, & the firmament ſheweth this, & the day telleth this, & the night certifieth this, the ſound of the thunder proclaimeth (as it were) this in all lands, & the words of the whiſtling winde vnto the ends of the world. More principally the Sunne, which as a Bridegroome commeth out of his chamber, and reioyceth as a Gyant to run his courſe, The[k] bodie thereof (as Mathematicians haue confidently deliuered) is 166. times bigger than the whole earth, and yet it is euery day carried by the finger of God ſo great a iourney, ſo long a courſe, that if it were to be taken on the land, it ſhould runne euery ſeuerall houre of the day 225. Germane miles. It is true that God is incapable

[a] Com. de tranquil. animi.
[b] Matth. 23. 8.
[c] Tull. lib. 5 de finibus.
[d] Du Bartas 1 day, 1. weeke
[e] Abacuc 2. 2.
[f] Non loquuntur quidem vt homines, tamen velut loquentes à nobis intelliguntur. Tremel. in loc.
[g] Athenagoras orat pro Chriſtianis.
[h] Thom part. 1. quæſt. 12 art. 12. & Caietan ibidem.
[i] Cardinal Cuſanus.
[k] Victorinus Striggel. in loc. Vide Bellar. de aſcenſione mentis in Deum per ſcalas Creat. grad. 7. cap. 2.

incapable to ſenſe, yet he makes himſelfe (as it were) viſible in his works; as the diuine [l] Poet ſweetly:

Therein our fingers feele, our noſtrils ſmell,
Our palats taſte his vertues that excell,
He ſhewes him to our eyes, talkes to our eares,
In the ordered motions of the ſpangled ſpheares.

So the heauens declare[m] that is, they make men declare the glory of God by their admirable ſtructure, motions, and influence. Now the preaching of the heauens is wonderfull in [n] three reſpects.

1. As preaching all the night and all the day without intermiſſion: verſ. 2. One day telleth another, and one night certifieth another..

2. As preaching in euery kinde of language: verſ. 3. There is neither ſpeech, nor language, but their voices are heard among them.

3. As preaching in euery part of the world, and in euery pariſh of euery part, and in euery place of euery pariſh: verſ. 4. Their ſound is gone into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world.

They be diligent Paſtors, as preaching at all times: and learned Paſtors, as preaching in all tongues: and Catholike Paſtors, as preaching in all townes. Let vs not then in this Vniuerſitie (where the voices of ſo many great Doctors are heard) be like to trewants in other ſchooles, who gaze ſo much vpon the babies, and guilded couer, and painted margent of their booke, that they neglect the text and leſſon it ſelfe. This booke is Gods Primer (as it were) for all ſorts of people: but he hath another booke proper only for his domeſticall auditorie the Church, [o] He ſheweth his word vnto Iacob, his ſtatutes and ordinances vnto Iſrael, he hath not dealt ſo with any nation, neither haue the Heathen knowledge of his Lawes. Heathen men reade in his Primer, but Chriſtian men are well acquainted with his Bible. The Primer is a good booke, but it is imperfect, for after a man hath learned it, he muſt learne more: but the Law of the Lord, [p] that is, the bodie of the holy Scriptures, is a moſt abſolute Canon of all doctrines appertaining either to faith or good manners; it is a perfit Law, conuerting the ſoule, giuing wiſdome to the ſimple, ſure, pure, righteous, and reioycing the heart, &c.

But before we treat of that part, let vs examine the myſticall expoſition of this part of the Pſalme, being guided herunto by the Spirit of God, Rom 10.18. and by the direction of our Church accommodating this text to this time.

Allegorically then is meant by heauens generally the [q] Saints, eſpecially the bleſſed [r] Euangeliſts and [ſ] Apoſtles. A good man and a true Chriſtian is not only Gods houſe, Heb. 3.16. but alſo Gods heauen, as S. Auguſtine expounds the words of Chriſt, Our Father which art in heauen, that is, dwelling not in the material heauen only, but in the myſticall heauen alſo: to wit, in holy men of heauenly conuerſation, hauing their affections ſet on things which are aboue, Coloſſ. 3.2. Theſe kinde of heauens declare the glory of God in their workes, as much and more than in their words, euer [t] ſhining as lights in the world, [u] their whole life being nothing elſe but a perpetuall ſermon (as it were) to their neighbours, and ſo they declare Gods glorie, for that other ſeeing their good deeds, are thereby moued to glorifie our Father which is in heauen.

More particularly the bleſſed Euangeliſts and Apoſtles annunciate Gods glory, the Goſpell is Gods throne, [x] wherein his Maieſtie rideth as in a chariot, and the foure wheeles of this chariot are the foure Euangeliſts, & therfore this firmament ſheweth Chriſts handy-work, becauſe the written Goſpel is a tract of all that Ieſus did & taught, Act. 1.1. and the bleſſed Apoſtles in preaching the Goſpell, haue likewiſe declared Gods glorie: for in teaching that men are [y] freely iuſtified by grace, what doe they but annunciate the [z] riches of his glory? The Goſpell is the power of God vnto ſaluation; and if thou beeſt hereby ſaued, it is not thine but Gods glorie. Wherefore ſing with heauens hoſt on this day, [a] Glorie be to God on high; and with holy [b] Dauid, Not vnto vs, ô Lord, not vnto vs, but vnto thy name giue the glorie, for thy mercies and truthes ſake. [c] Or the Apoſtles declare Chriſts glorie,

[l] Du Bartas vbi ſup. fol. 6.

[m] Placidus Parmenſis. Genebrardus in loc.

[n] Bellar. in loc.

[o] Pſal. 147.19.

[p] Bucer. Tilemann. Caluin. in loc.

[q] Auguſt. expoſit. 2. in loc. & Bellarm. de Sacramentis in genere, lib. 1. cap. 25.

[r] Auguſt. expoſit. 1. in loc.

[ſ] Hieron. Melanct. Strigelius.

[t] Philip. 2.15.

[u] Oecumen. apud Bellar. vbi ſup.

[x] Caluin. epiſt. dedic. Harmon.

[y] Rom 3.24.

[z] Epheſ 3.16.

[a] Luke 2.14.

[b] Pſal. 115.1.

[c] Turrecremat.

glory, in preaching that he was and is equal with God, as being the character of his person and brightnesse of his glory, Heb. 1. 3. and they shew Christs handie worke, in relating all he said, and did, and suffered for vs men and our saluation, from his cradle to his crosse, and afterward from his crosse to his crowne. These were the Trumpeters of his Gospell, and as it were the[d] Bell-weathers of his flocke, whose sound is gone out into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world, as S. Paul interprets our text, Rom. 10. 18. There is neither speech nor language, but their voices are heard among them. [e] Andrew preached in Scythia, Thomas in Parthia, Iohn in Asia, [f] Peter to the dispersed Iewes thorowout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, Bithynia; [g] Bartholmew in India; Matthew in Æthiopia: for (as [h] Cassanæus reports) Æthiopiam nigram doctrina fidei fecit candidam. In England (as by tradition we haue receiued) [i] Simon Zelotes first preached the Gospell, and [k] Ioseph of Arimathea built a religious house for professors in Glascenbury. S. Paul how soeuer he was not one of the twelue, yet he laboured more abndantly than they all. 1. Cor. 15 10. he declared the glory of God in [l] Arabia, Syria, Cilicia, [m] Antiochia, Seleucia, Cyprus, [n] Lycaonia, Lystra, [o] Athens, [p] Corinth, Troas. In a word, he made the Gospel of Christ abound in euery place from Hierusalem vnto Illyricum, as himselfe witnesseth of himselfe, Rom. 15. 19. he was a chosen vessell of the Lord to beare his name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and the children of Israel, Acts 9. 15. Thus all the Saints in generall, the foure Euangelists, and twelue Apostles, and euery sound Preacher of the Gospell in particular, annunciate the glory of God.

But what is the meaning of the next words, one day telleth another, and one night certifieth another? Literally, dies diem dicit, is nothing else but dies diem docet. One day telleth another, is one day teacheth another. [q] The day past is instructed by the day present; euery new day doth afford new doctrine. The [r] day is a most apt time to learne by reading and conference; the night a most apt time for inuention & meditation: now that which thou canst not vnderstand this day, thou maist haply learne the next; and that which is not found out in one night, may be gotten in another. Mystically (saith [s] Hierome) Christ is this day, who saith of himself, [t] I am the light of the world. And his twelue Apostle are the twelue houres of this day; for Christs spirit reuealed by the mouthes of his Apostles the mysteries of our saluation, in [u] other ages not so fully known vnto the sons of men. One day telleth another, [x] that is, the spirituall vtter this vnto the spirituall: and one night certifieth another, that is Iudas insinuates as much vnto the Iewes in the night of ignorance saying, [y] Whomsoeuer I shall kisse, that is he, lay hold on him. Or the [z] old Testament only shadowing Christ, is the night: & the new Testamēt plainly shewing Christ, is the day.

In them hath he set a tabernacle for the Sun] That is, as [a] other by way of [b] Hypallage, He hath his tabernacle in the Sun: meaning that God the Father dwelleth in Christ his Sun [c] bodily, which is the Sun of righteousnesse, Malac. 4. 2. by whom he doth [d] inlighten and reconcile the world to himselfe, 2. Cor. 5. 18. The [e] Manichees, abusing the text, adore the Sun, conceiuing that Christ at his ascending set his tabernacle, that is, left his flesh in the Sun. [f] But this idle paradox contradicts the Scriptures, affirming that Christ ascended farre aboue all the heauens, Ephes. 4. 10. and that he there sitteth at the right hand of God, as our Agent and Aduocate, till he come again to iudge the quick and the dead. Ergo, his flesh is not in the Sun, but in the highest places, Heb. 1. 3. euen in the heauen of heauens, Act. 7. 56. The sense then of [he set his tabernacle in the Sun] in [g] Origens iudgement is briefly this: Almightie God placed his Church in the Sun of righteousnesse, according to that of Paul, Ephes. 2. 20. The Church is built vpon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, Iesus Christ himselfe being the chiefe corner stone. Or as [h] other, He set his tabernacle in the Sun, that is, his Church in open view, that it may be so cleerly seene as the Sun; like a citie that is set on a hill and cannot be hid, Matth. 5. 14. So the word Sun is vsed 1. Sam. 12. 12. Thou diddest it secretly, but I will do this thing before all Israel, and before the Sun. Or because the Scripture calleth our flesh a tabernacle, 2. Cor. 5. 1. We know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle be destroyed, we haue a building giuen of God, not made with hands, but eternall in the heauens, And

[d] August. ep 89.

[e] Euseb. hist. lib. 3 cap. 1.
[f] 1. Pet. 1.
[g] Socrates hist. lib. 1. Cap 15.
[h] Catalog. gloriæ mundi, part. 3. considerat 29.
[i] Niceph. lib. 2. cap 40.
[k] Capgrane in Catalog. sanct. Angl. & Magdeburg. epist. præfix. Cent. 4.
[l] Galat. 1.
[m] Acts 13.
[n] Acts 14.
[o] Acts 17.
[p] Acts 20.
[q] Vatablus in loc.
[r] Placidus Parmen in loc.

[s] In loc.
[t] Iohn. 8. 12.

[u] Ephes 3 5.
[x] August. Hieron. Turrecremat.
[y] Matth 26 48.
[z] D. Incognitus.
[a] Vulgar Latin. August.
[b] Genebrard.
[c] Colos. 2. 9.
[d] Iohn. 1. 9.
[e] Senensis Bibliothec. lib. 5. annot. 160.
[f] See S. August. contra Faustum Manich lib. 20.

[g] Apud Senen. vbi sup.

[h] August. in loc. & tract 2 in ep. Ioan. & lib 3. cont. lit. Petilian cap. 32.

2.Pet.1.13. As long as I am in this Tabernacle. Thefore S. Auguſtine and [i] other expound it thus: He ſet his tabernacle in the Sunne: that is [k] the Word became fleſh, and appeared in the [l] ſhape of a ſeruant, ſo manifeſtly, that as S. Iohn ſpeakes in his 1.Epiſtle, Chap 1.verſ.1. he was heard, and ſeene, and felt, that which was from the beginning, Which we haue heard, which we haue ſeene with our eyes, which we haue looked vpon, & our hands haue handled of the word of life. If Chriſt had not on earth a true body, then he was not borne of the Virgin Marie, nor wrapped in ſwadling clothes, nor laid in a cratch, nor circumcized on the eighth day, nor preſented in the Temple. If his body was fantaſticall (as Valentius imagined) how did he thirſt, and hunger, and weepe, and in concluſion, how did he die for our ſinnes, and riſe againe for our iuſtification? His natiuitie, life, death, euidently demonſtrate that he was made fleſh, and that he dwelt among vs, Ioh.1.14,

[i] D. Incognitus. Tuvrecremat.
[k] Iohn 1.14.
[l] Philip.2.7.

Which commeth forth as a Bridegroome out of his chamber] The Sun of righteouſneſſe appeared in three ſignes eſpecially, Leo, Virgo, Libra: 1. In Leo, roaring as a Lion in the Law, ſo that the people could not [m] endure his voice: 2. In Virgo, borne of a pure Virgin in the Goſpell: 3. In Libra, weighing our works, in his [n] ballance at the day of iudgement. Or, [o] as Bernard diſtinguiſheth his three-fold comming aptly, Venit ad homines, venit in homines, venit contra homines: In the time paſt, he came vnto men as vpon this day; in the time preſent, he comes by the Spirit into men euery day; in the time future, he ſhall come againſt men at the laſt day. The comming here mentioned is his comming in the fleſh; for ſo the [p] Fathers vſually gloſſe the text, he came forth of the Virgins wombe, as a Bridegroome out of his chamber. As a Bridegroome, for the King of heauen at this holy time made a great wedding for his Sonne, Matth.22.1. Chriſt is the Bridegroome, mans nature the Bride, the [q] communction and bleſſed vnion of both in one perſon is his mariage. The beſt way to reconcile two diſagreeing families, is to make ſome mariage between them: euen ſo the Word became fleſh, and dwelt among vs in the world, that he might hereby make our [r] peace, reconciling God to man, and man to God. By this happy match the Son of God is become the ſon of [s] man, euen fleſh of our fleſh, and bone of our bones: and the ſons of men are made the ſons of [t] God, of the fleſh, and of his bones, as Paul ſaith, Eph 5.30. So that now the Church being Chriſts owne Spouſe, ſaith, I am my welbeloueds, and my welbeloued is mine, Cant.6.2. My ſin is his ſin, and his righteouſneſſe is my righteouſneſſe; he who knew [u] no ſin, for my ſake was made ſin; and I contrariwiſe hauing no [x] good thing, am made the righteouſneſſe of God in him. I which am browne by perſecution, and blacke by nature, Cant.1.4. ſo foule as the Sow that walloweth in the mire, 2.Pet.2.22. through his fauour am comely without ſpot or wrinckle, ſo [y] white as the ſnow, [z] like a Lilly among thornes, euen the faireſt among women, Cant.1.7. This happie mariage is not a marre age, but it makes a merrie age, being [a] the conſolation of Iſrael, & comfort of [b] Ieruſalems heart. Indeed Chriſt our husband doth abſent himſelfe from vs in his body for a time, but when he did aſcend into heauen, he tooke with him our pawne, namely his fleſh: and he gaue vs his pawne, namely his Spirit, aſſuring vs that we ſhall one day, when the world is ended enter with him into the [c] wedding chamber, and there feaſt with him, and enioy his bleſſed company for euermore.

[m] Exod.20.17.
[n] Dan.5.27.
[o] Serm.3.de aduent.Dom.
[p] Hieron. Auguſt.
[q] Greg.hom.38.
[r] Ephe.2.14.16.
[s] Matth 16.13
[t] Iohn 1.12.
[u] 2.Cor 5.21.
[x] Rom 7.18.
[y] Eſay 1.18.
[z] Cant 2.2.
[a] Luk 2.25.
[b] Eſay 40.2.
[c] Matth 25.10

And reioyceth as a Giant to runne his courſe] As the naturall Sunne in his courſe goeth forth from the vttermoſt part of the heauen, and runneth about vnto the end of it againe: [d] ſo the ſupernaturall Sunne, Chriſt Ieſus ariſing in our Horizon, [e] deſcended into the loweſt parts of the earth, and there continued vntill he had finiſhed the worke, for which he came into the world, and afterward aſcended farre aboue all heauens, that he might fulfill all things.

As a Giant he did runne his courſe] There ye haue his incarnation, and peregrination in the fleſh: his circuit was from the vttermoſt part of the heauen vnto the end of it againe, there you haue his reſurrection and aſcenſion: and there is nothing hid from his heat; there you haue his ſending of the Holy Ghoſt in the forme of fierie tongues, Acts 2.3. The reſemblance, betweene Chriſt and the Sunne are [f] manifold. 1. As the Sunne is the worlds eye: ſo Chriſt is the light of the world. 2. As the

[d] See S Auguſt. contra literas Petiliani.lib 2. cap 32. & Didac. de Yanguas Con 1 de aſcen. Dom
[e] Ephes.4.9.
[f] Strigilius in loc.

the Sunne arising obscures the starres lustre: so the righteousnesse of Christ imputed to sinners, darkneth all the merit and worth of our workes. 3. As the Sunne in the greatest height causeth the greatest heat: so the crosse followeth euer the most incorrupt and pure profession of the Gospell. 4. As the Sunne in winter is neerest vs: so Christ in our afflictions, in our persecutions, especially for his truth, is neerest vs, as holy [g] Bradford diuinely said, if there be any way to heauen on horsebacke, surely this is the way, to suffer for Christ.

[g] Fox Martyr. fol. 1492.

Now (beloued) as the Prophet [h] Elisha together with his seruant Gehezi said vnto the Shunamite, Behold, thou hast had all this care for vs, what shall we do for thee? so let vs say to the Sun of righteousnes, O sweet Iesu, thou hast as a Giant run all this course for vs, whether shall we go, or what shall we doe for thee? Christ answers our question in the 14. of S. Iohn: If ye loue me, keepe my commandements. His chiefe commandement is, that we [i] beleeue in him; and the next is, that we loue one another. Ioh. 13. 34. Our faith in him, is confirmed and increased at this time by comming to his Table; our loue toward him, in inuiting his mẽbers vnto our table. We may be fed at his table spiritually, he may be fed at our table corporally; for he that feeds the hungry, puts meat into Christs owne mouth; he that giues to the needy, puts money into Christs owne hand; he that cloaths the naked, puts a coat on Christs own backe. So himself protesteth, & that with a great deale of earnestnes; Verily I say vnto you, in as much as ye haue done it vnto one of the least of these my brethren, ye haue done it vnto me. A noble Ladie being readie to die, sent vnto her absent husband two rings for a token; wherof one was her mariage ring, & the other a ring with deaths head on it, heartily desiring him after her departure to be good vnto her poore children: Our blessed Sauiour on this day for pure loue came down from heauen, and was maried after an ineffable manner vnto the flesh, and on good Friday he laid downe his life for our sakes; he therfore doth intreat vs by his incarnation, and passion, that we would in his absence remẽber the poore, his children. If [k] Pericles an Heathen reioyced on his death-bed, for that no citizen of Athens had euer worne a mourning gowne through his occasion; how shall a Christian (as knowing that his [l] Redeemer and his [m] rewarder liueth) be comforted in his dying houre? when as he cannot only say with [n] Samuel, Whose oxe haue I taken, or whom haue I done wrong to? but also with [o] Iob; I was eyes to the blinde, and feet was I to the lame, I was a father to the poore, and I caused the widdowes heart to reioyce.

[h] 2 King 4. 13.

[i] Ioh. 3 16 24. & Ioh. 6. 29.

[k] Plutarch in vita Periclis.

[l] Ioh. 9. 25.
[m] Heb 11. 6.
[n] 1. Sam 12 3
[o] Iob. 29. 15.

The Law of the Lord is a perfit Law] In this part of the Psalme Dauid commends the Scripture: [p] 1. From the Author, it is the Law of the Lord: 2. From the sufficiencie thereof, it is perfit: 3. From the vtilitie, conuerting the soule, giuing wisdome to the simple, &c. 4. From the infallibilitie, the testimony of the Lord is sure, the feare of the Lord endureth for euer. 5. From the sweetnesse, it reioyceth the heart, and is sweeter than the honey or the honey combe.

[p] Turrecremat.

First, it is the Law of the Lord, against the [q] Manichees, affirming, that two disagreeing Gods were authors of the two Testaments, one of the old, another of the new: but S. Paul telleth vs expresly, that there is [r] one Spirit, and one Lord, Ephes. 4. 4, 5. and [s] S. Peter assureth vs, that holy men of God in old time spake as they were moued by this one Spirit of one Lord.

[q] August. hæres. 46. & Tertull. cont. Marcian. lib. 4.

[r] 2. Pet. 1 21.

Now the Scripture (being in euery part the law of the Lord) is vndefiled & perfit, so perfit, that we may neither [t] add thereto, or take therefro. So Moses Deu. 4. 2. and 12. 32. Ye shall put nothing vnto the word I command you, neither shall ye take ought therefrom. Here then is a pregnant testimony to confute the [t] Papists, accusing the word of God of insufficiency, making it like a sicke mans broken and imperfit will, halfe written and halfe paroll; adding to the written truth, vnwritten traditions as necessary to saluation. Dauid, a man according to Gods owne heart, and in penning the Psalter, a finger of Gods own hand, saith it is a perfit law: but the Pope, which is a member of Satan, and (as many great Diuines conceiue) [u] that man of sin, proclaimeth on the contrarie that it is an vnperfit Law. [x] S. Paul auowes that the Scriptures are profitable to teach, to improue, to correct, and instruct in righteousnesse. That is, to teach all necessarie truths, & confute all errors in doctrine, to correct all faults

[t] Prou 30. 6. Reuel. 22. 18.

[t] Bellarm. de verbo Dei, lib 4. cap. 3. See Dr. Mortons appeale. lib. 2. cap 25.
[u] 2. Thess. 2. 3.
[x] 2. Tim. 3. 16.

faults in manners, and instruct all men in all duties; and so by consequent able to make the man of God absolutely furnished with all good works. But the [y] Romanists hold, that the written word is only milke for babes in Christ, and infants in Diuinitie, which are the simple sort of people; but vnwritten traditions are strong meat for the learned. Their answer to the cited text out of Deuteronomie, Ye shall adde nothing, &c. is manifold.

[y] See Perkins Reformed Cat. tit. traditions, & Dr. Abbot. ibidem.

First, [z] that it may be so well vnderstood of the word vnwritten as written, because Moses saith, Hearken vnto the lawes which I teach and command, and not vnto the words I write. But this euasiō is idle, seeing it is apparēt, that these very words are as a preface to a long exposition of the law written, ergo to be construed of the written word only. Againe, we say that euery word of the law was written in the book of the law: for so the [a] text plainly, When Moses had made an end of writing the words of this Law in a booke, till he had finished them, then he commanded the Leuites, which bare the Arke of the Couenant of the Lord, saying, take the booke of this Law, & put it in the side of the Arke, &c. and therfore that which is set downe by Moses, Deut. 27.26 Cursed be he that continueth not in all the words of this Law to doe them; is thus related by Paul, Gal. 3.10. Cursed is euery one that cōtinueth not in all things, that are written in the booke of the Law, to doe them. Hereby, shewing that all the words of the law were written in the book of the law, and nothing left vnwritten, that was any part or parcel therof. And the Lord giuing directions vnto Iosua, that he should obserue the whole law, which his seruant Moses had cōmanded, addeth in fine, [b] Let not this booke of the Law depart out of thy mouth, but meditate therein day and night, that thou maist obserue and do according to all that is written therein.

[z] Bellar. vbi sup. cap. 10.

[a] Deut 31.24.

[b] Iosua 1.8.

Their [c] second shift is, God himselfe did adde to his Law, ergo we may likewise add to the Scriptures. After Moses had vttered the words, ye shal neither add to, nor take fro, &c. The Prophets were added to the Law, and the Gospell vnto both. Our answer to this obiection is threefold: 1. Moses did not say, God shall not adde, but ye shall not adde. The Lord of the Law is aboue the Law, but all of vs are vnder the Law: the Soueraine may dispense with his law, but the seruant must obey his law. 2. The books added by God agreed with the law; for the Chronicles, and Psalmes, and Prophets, add no point of doctrine thereto, but are rather expositions & commentaries vpon the Law, shewing the meaning and practise therof. And touching the new Testament, as the Law was a hidden Gospell; euen so the Gospell is a reuealed law. Concinunt noua veteribus, vetera nouis, saith [d] Augustine: The two Testaments are like the Seraphims, Esay 6.3. crying each to other; one and the same thing; and therfore [e] Peter was vnwise to make three tabernacles in Mount Tabor; one for Moses another for Elias, and a third for Christ; because the Law and the Prophets, and the Gospell accord all in one, differing only in circumstance, but not in substance. If a man (quoth [f] Augustine) vse one kinde of prayer in the morning, and another at night, he neither changeth his God, nor his religion: if one bid thee good morrow before dinner, and good night after supper, he doth not alter his good will or wish, but only his forme of saluting: so the Sacraments of the Gospell, and the sacrifices of the Law, point out one and same Sauiour, which is Christ the Lord. Thus all added by God vnto his Law, was nothing else but an explanation of his Law; but Popish traditions and additions are contrary to the word, not expositions, but oppositions; rather destructions, than constructions of it; as their inuocation of Saints, creeping vnto crosses, auricular Confession, Indulgences, Purgatorie, prayers for the dead, denying marriage to Priests, and the like; the which are so dissonant to Gods holy Law, that they be [g] doctrines of deuills.

[c] Bellar. vbi sup.

[d] In Psal. 49.

[e] Matth. 17 4.

[f] Epist. 5. Marcellin & 49. Deo grat. ad quæst. 3.

[g] 1. Tim 4.1.
[h] Lib. 3. cap. 8.
[i] Hom. 25. in Matth.
[k] Hexam. lib. 3. cap. 3. & de vocat. gent. lib. 1. cap 3.
[l] Cont. lit. Petil. lib. 3. cap. 6.
[m] Apud Dr. Morton Appeale, lib. 2. cap 25 § 11.

3. Though Almightie God added vnto the Law, yet that part of Scripture was omni-sufficient for his seruants at that time; and therefore seeing now the whole is written, it ought to be receiued as an absolute Canon for all times, a common treasure-house of all instructions, appertaining either to the reforming of our manners, or informing of our faith. So reuerend [h] Irenæus, [i] Oregin, [k] Ambrose, [l] Augustine, and [m] other of the most ancient Fathers account it. And so many learned Papists acknowledge, when as we treat of God, nothing may be said (as Aquine doth aduise, aduise, part. 1. queſt. 36. art. 2) but what is found in the Scriptures. If we ſeeke to confute blaſphemous Hereticks, there is no other way (ſaith[n] Stella) than by Scriptures. If we will examine the differences of Churches, and ſo diſcerne the true from the falſe, the only meanes (as their Ieſuite[o] Salmeron telleth vs) is by the Scriptures. In briefe, what can any Proteſtant ſay more for the Scriptures prerogatiue, than to profeſſe that which their Biſhop[p] Roſſenſis hath openly confeſſed, that the holy Scripture is Conclaue quoddam omnium veritatum, quæ Chriſtianis ſcitu neceſſariæ ſunt, a Conclaue of all neceſſarie Chriſtian truth.

As the word of God in it ſelfe is a perfect and vndefiled Law: ſo likewiſe making other perfect; It conuerteth the ſoule, and giueth wiſdome to the ſimple. The Secretaries of Nature tell vs, that in the life naturall, our heart is the firſt in liuing, and laſt in dying: euen ſo in the life ſpirituall, our heart is conuerted firſt, and then all other members haue their proportionable perfection. And therefore[q] Dauid praieth, O Lord creat in me a new heart. Almightie God requires, that we[r] beleeue with our heart, and[s] loue with our heart, and performe euery good deed with our heart: Son, giue me thine heart, Pro. 23. 26. If we can once truly profeſſe with the[t] Pſalmiſt, O God, my heart is ready, my heart is ready;[u] praiſe the Lord, ô my ſoule, &c. then all that is either without vs, or about vs, inſtantly will do the ſame. Then our feet will be ready to run in his wayes; our eyes ready to wait vpon his will; our eares ready to heare his word; our hands ready to do his worke. It is reported of[x] Archbiſhop Cranmer, that his heart (after his fleſh and bones were conſumed in the mercileſſe flames of fire) was found vnſcorched and whole: ſo let vs in the middeſt of all tentations in this world, which is[y] in maligno, that is, in malo igne poſitus, keep our heart ſound and whole for the Lord, that we may profeſſe with[z] Paul, I do not the good things which I would, but the euill which I would not, that do I: now then, if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but the ſinne that dwelleth in me.

If any ſhall aske, wherewith ſhall a man cleanſe his heart: [a] Dauid doth anſwer, by ruling himſelfe after Gods word, that is a perfect Law, conuerting the ſoule: that is the[b] power of God vnto ſaluation, an[c] immortall ſeed, and the word of life, whereby men are borne againe to the kingdome of God. All of vs are by nature the[d] children of wrath; our ſoules are[e] like the porches of Betheſda, Ioh 5. in which are lodged a great many ſicke folke, blinde, halt, withered. And the Scriptures are like the poole of Betheſda, into which whoſoeuer entreth, after Gods holy Spirit hath a little ſtirred the water, is made whole, of whatſoeuer diſeaſe he had. He that hath angers phrenſie, being ſo furious as a Lion by ſtepping into this poole, ſhall in good time become ſo gentle as a Lambe: he that hath the blindneſſe of intemperance, by waſhing in this poole, ſhall eaſily ſee his folly: he that hath enuies ruſt, auarices leproſie, luxuries palſie; ſhall haue meanes and medicines here for the curing of his miladies: the word of God is like the drug Catholicon, that is in ſtead of all purges; and like the herbe Panaces, that is good for all diſeaſes. Is any man heauie? the ſtatutes of the Lord reioyce the heart: Is any man in want? the iudgements of the Lord are more to be deſired than gold, yea than much fine gold, and by keeping of them there is great reward: is any man ignorant? the teſtimonies of the Lord giue wiſedome to the ſimple: [f] that is, to little ones, both in ſtanding and vnderſtanding. In ſtanding, as vnto little[g] Daniel, little[h] Iohn the Euangeliſt, little[i] Timothy: to little ones in vnderſtanding; for the great Philoſophers, who were the Wizards of the world, becauſe they were not acquainted with Gods law, became fooles, while they profeſſed themſelues wiſe, Rom. 1. 22. but our Prophet ſaith, [k] I haue more vnderſtanding than my teachers, becauſe thy teſtimonies are my meditation & ſtudy. To conclude, whatſoeuer we are by corruption of nature, Gods law conuerteth vs, & maketh vs to ſpeak with[l] new tongues, and to ſing new[m] ſongs vnto the Lord, and to become new men and new creatures in Chriſt, 2. Cor. 5. 17. The law of the Lord giueth euery man a new-yeeres gift, if he haue faiths hand to receiue it. Vnto the couetous it giueth a new-yeeres gift, in telling him plainly, that ſuch as truſt in vncertaine riches, and not in the liuing God, fall into tentations, and ſnares, and into many fooliſh and noiſome luſts, which drowne men in perdition and deſtruction, 1. Tim. 6 9. It

[n] In Luc. 1. præfat.

[o] Com in Rom. in præam. part. 3. diſp 3.

[p] Art. 37. aduerſus Lutherum, fol. 222.

[q] Pſal. 51. 10.
[r] Rom 10 10.
[s] Luke 10. 27.
[t] Pſal. 108. 1.
[u] Pſal. 103. 1.

[x] Author Latin Chron. de Cantuarienſ. Archiepiſ. in vita Cranmeri, pag. 403.

[y] 1. Ioh 5. 19.
[z] Rom. 7. 16.

[a] Pſal. 119. 9.

[b] Rom 1. 16.
[c] 1. Pet. 1. 23.
[d] Epheſ 2. 3.
[e] Paulinus epiſt. lib. 2. epiſt. 4. in fine.

[f] Euthym.
[g] Hiſtorie of Suſanna, ver. 45.
[h] Diſcipulum minimum Ieſus amabat plurimum, Hieron. epiſt. ad Eliodor.
[i] 2. Tim 3. 15.
[k] Pſal 119. 99
[l] Mark 16. 17.
[m] Pſal. 98. 1.

giues the voluptuous & incontinent man a new-yeeres gift, aduising him, 1. Thess. 4.4. to possesse his vessell in holines and honour. It giues the proud man a new-yeeres gift, in saying, [n] God resisteth the proud and giueth grace to the humble. It giues the lustie gallant a new-yeeres gift, in remembring him to [o] remember his Creator in the dayes of his youth. It giues euery man a new-yeeres gift, in bringing this newes into the world, that [p] vnto vs is borne this day a Sauiour, which is Christ the Lord, and that [q] whosoeuer beleeueth in him, shall not perish, but haue euerlasting life.

[n] Iames 4.6. 1. Pet. 5.5. Prou 3.34.
[o] Eccles. 12.1.
[p] Luke 2.11.
[q] Ioh. 3.16.

The Pope then in denying the lawes of God, vnto the people of God, in a tongue which is knowne, in persecuting those who translated them, as Wickliffe and Tyndal; and other who sold them, as a godly [r] Stationer was burnt in Auinion, with two Bibles about his necke; and other for [s] reading and hauing them; and other for repeating only [t] certaine sentences out out of them, euidently sheweth himselfe a great Antichrist, and aduersarie to the Gospell. For (as holy [u] Bradford said) how can he with his Prelates meane honestly, who make so much of the wife, and so little of the husband? The Church they magnifie, but Christ they contemne. The truth is, if their Church were an honest woman (that is, Christs own spouse) vnlesse they would make much of her husband (Christ and his word) she would not be made much of them. If the Law of the Lord be perfect, conuerting the soule, giuing wisdome to the simple, reioycing the heart, cleane, sure, pure, more to be desired than gold, yea than much fine gold; sweeter also than honey, and the honey combe: what impudent Pharisies are they, who (professing that the keyes are in their hands only) [x] shut vp the kingdome of heauen before Gods people, they neither goe in themselues nor suffer such as would enter, to come in.

[r] Fox Martyrol. fol. 863.
[s] Fol. 752, 753.
[t] Fol. 761, 762.
[u] Letter to the Vniuersitie and towne of Cambridge.
[x] Matth 23.13.

It was said of them in old time, by [y] some of their owne side, that it was so great a wonder to heare a Bishop preach, as to see an Asse flie. Now they preach (I confesse) more than heretofore, but their doctrine sauours of policie, more than of pietie, tending rather to King-killing than soule-sauing. Whosoeuer is verst in their bookes, is able to giue this verdict, that their Diuinitie tracts are worse than their humane learning: and that their Sermons are the worst of all their Diuinitie, being framed in affaires of state, not according to the word of Christ, but according to the will of Antichrist: and in matters of deuotion, according to the fopperies of their owne Legend, and not according to the wisdome of Gods Law.

[y] D. Bissinet in a pub. oration before the Bishops assembled in Auinion, vti Fox Martyrolog. fol. 862.

[z] Seneca said pithily, Magna vitæ pars elabitur malè agentibus, maxima nihil agentibus, tota aliud agentibus. The Iesuites in their preaching are malè agentes, as making [a] merchandise of Gods holy word. The Friers in their preaching are nihil agentes, [b] vnderstanding neither what they speake neither whereof they affirme. For the most part, all Papists in their preaching are aliud agentes, either beyond the text, or behinde the text, or beside the text. The too little learning of their Friers, & too much of their Iesuites, haue so wrested the Scriptures, to serue their owne turne, that (as [c] Polydore Virgil said of Lawyers) they haue stretched Gods booke, as shooe-makers extend a boot. See Gospell 1. Sund. in Aduent.

[z] Epist lib. 1. epist. 1.
[a] 2. Cor. 2.17.
[b] 1. Tim. 1.7.
[c] De inuent. rerum, lib. 4. cap 9.

To leaue them and to come neerer our selues; seeing the booke of Scripture is the word and will of God, and that a perfect law, so perfect, that nothing may be taken therefrom, or put thereto; not only perfect in it selfe, but also making others perfect, conuerting the soule, and giuing wisdome to the simple: let it (as the blessed [d] Apostle doth exhort) dwell in you plenteously with all wisdome. It is Gods best friend, and the Kings best friend, and the Courts best friend, and the Cities best friend, and the Countries best friend, and all our best friend; and therefor let vs not entertaine it as a stranger, but as a familiar and a domesticke, let it dwell in vs. And for as much as it brings with it exceeding profit and pleasure: profit, more to be desired than gold, yea than much fine gold: pleasure, reioycing the heart, sweeter also than honey, and the honey combe, let it dwell in vs plenteously. Yet in all wisdome, let vs heare it in all wisdome, reade it in all wisdome, meditate on it in all wisdome, speak of it in all wisdome, preach it in all wisdome; not only in some, but in all wisdome, that the words of our mouthes, and the meditations of our hearts may be most acceptable in thy sight, O Lord our strength and our Redemer. Amen.

[d] Colos. 3.16.

Psalme

Psalme 45. is expounded on Whitsunday. The next allotted for this our present Festiuall is

Psalme 85.

Lord, thou art become gracious vnto thy land, &c.

THis Psalme may be diuided into two parts: a

- Prayer, whereof there be [e] two grounds,
  1. The Churches experience of Gods former mercies, vers. 1, 2, 3.
  2. The due consideration of Gods nature, slow to conceiue wrath, and ready to forgiue, v. 4, 5, 6, 7.

  The summary pith is briefly this; Lord thou hast bin heretofore fauourable to thy land, and therefore we hope thou wilt be so now, that thy people may reioyce in thee.
- Precept, consisting of two branches:
  1. Aduising vs in all our afflictions and misery, to haue recourse vnto the comfortable promises of God I will heare what the Lord will say.
  2. That we should lead a godly life, lest our folly stop the free passage of these promises, as well touching things spirituall, vers. 9. 10. 11. as temporall, vers. 12.

[e] Tremelius.

Mystically, the whole Psalme, in the iudgement of Hierome, Augustine, Basil, and other ancient Fathers, is nothing else but a propheſie concerning the redemption of mankinde, from the tyrannie of Satan and sinne, by the comming of Christ into the world, prefigured by the deliuerances of Gods people from their bondage, both in Ægypt and Babylon.

Now the Prophet treating of Christs aduent, [f] speakes

- 1. In the Preterperfect tense, Lord thou hast beene gracious, thou hast turned away, thou hast forgiuen, &c. Shewing three notable fruits of his comming:
  1. Benediction, in taking away the curse from his land, and captiuitie from his people, vers. 1.
  2. Iustification, in forgiuing their offences, and couering all their sins, vers. 2.
  3. Reconciliation, turning away Gods wrathfull indignation and displeasure, vers. 3.
- 2. In the future tense, praying that he may come, turne vs then, ô God, our Sauiour, &c.

[f] D. Incognitus in loc.

Or it may be parted into a [g]

- Prediction, of our deliuerance from the hands of all our spirituall enemies, vers. 1, 2, 3. for the Psalmist (as propheſying by the Spirit of the Lord) speakes in time past, of that which as yet was to come.
- Petition, for executing of the prediction in the rest, an heartie prayer, that the fact might answer the figure.

[g] Bucer. Bellarmin.

Lord

Lord thou art become gracious] The Translators of the vulgar Latine reade, benedixisti: but Athanasius, and other Greeke Interpreters, εὐδόκησας Tremellius, beneuolus fueras: Munster, benignus factus es: Castalio, fauisti: Vatablus, propitius. And our English Bibles accordingly, thou hast beene gracious, fauourable, mercifull vnto thy land. Here then obserue, that the good will and fauour of God is the fountaine of all goodnesse, and blessing to his people; [h] God so loued the world, that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, &c. It was his owne loue which induced him to send his Sonne, and Ephes. 1. 3. Blessed be God, euen the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, which hath blessed vs with all spirituall blessings in heauenly things in Christ, as he hath chosen vs in him, before the foundations of the world, that we should be holy, and without blame before him in loue: who hath predestinated vs to be adopted through Iesus Christ vnto himselfe, according to the good pleasure of his will, &c.

[h] Iohn 3. 16.

Vnto thy land] God cursed the land for the first Adams disobedience, saying, [i] Cursed is the earth for thy sake, in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the dayes of thy life. [k] But he blessed the land for the second Adams obedience, [l] swearing by himselfe, that in him all the nations of the earth shall be blessed. The land, ô Lord, is thy land, though of it selfe it can bring forth nothing but thistles and thornes; it is thy creature, wherefore [m] thou which hatest nothing that thou didst make, hast, out of the riches of thy mercy, become gracious vnto it.

[i] Gen. 3. 17.
[k] Hieron. Euthym. Turrecremat.
[l] Gen 22. 16. 18.
[m] Wis. 11 21.

As the [n] sea is his, for that he made it: euen so the [o] earth is the Lords, and all that therein is, the compasse of the world, and they that dwell therein, for he hath founded it, &c. [p] Other thinke, that the land of Canaan is called here, thy land, because God had chosen it, and hedged it in (as it were) from the commons of the whole world for his peculiar people the Iewes, according to that of the [q] Prophet, Surely the vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel, and the men of Iudah are his pleasant plant, inclosed [r] vnto himselfe aboue all places vpon earth.

[n] Psal 95. 5.
[o] Psal 24 1.
[p] T Wilcox exposit. in loc.
[q] Esay 5. 7.
[r] Deut. 7. 6. Exod. 19. 5.

Thou hast turned away the captiuitie of Iacob] [s] All true beleeuers are the sonnes of Iacob, and seed of Abraham, [t] as well the beleeuing Gentiles, which are the sons of Iacob according to the spirit, as the beleeuing Iewes the sons of Iacob according to the flesh; and the [u] Church of these true Iacobines and Israelites, are the land of the Lord, and the captiuitie here mentioned, is bondage vnder sin, so Paul, Rom. 7. 23. I see another law in my members, rebelling against the law of my minde, and leading me captiue vnto the law of sinne, which is in my members. O wretched man that I am, who shall deliuer me from the bodie of this death? In this captiuitie, Satan is the Iaylor, the flesh is our prison, vngodly lusts are the manicles, a bad conscience the tormenter, all of them against vs; only Christ is Emmanuel, God with vs; he turneth away the captiuity of Iacob, in forgiuing all his offences, and in couering all his sinnes. For the blessed order of our redemption is [x] briefly this: God out of his meere loue to the world qui bene voluit terræ, gaue his Sonne; the Sonne by his death appeased the wrath of his Father, and abundantly satisfied the diuine iustice, for the sinnes of the whole world; God pleased in his Son Iesu, forgiueth all our offences, and couereth all our sinnes, and remission of sinne releaseth our captiuitie. Whosoeuer then is a true beleeuer in Christ, is the Lords [y] free-man, [z] in this life so set at libertie, that sin shall not raigne in his mortall members, Rom, 6. 12. but in the world to come fully free from all corruption and concupiscence, when as his vile bodie shall be made like to Christs glorious bodie, Philip, 3. 21. the which is called by Paul, the glorious libertie of the sonnes of God, Rom. 8. 21.

[s] Bucer. Bellarmin. Genebrardus.
[t] Augustin.
[u] Bucer.
[x] Bellarmin.
[y] 1 Cor. 7. 22.
[z] See Aquin. lect 4. Rom. 7.

Turne vs then O God our Sauiour] Here begins the [a] petition, or [b] application of the former prophecie, wherein the Church heartily desires the father of mercies, that he would execute his holy promise concerning our deliuerance, by sending his only Sonne and our only Sauiour Christ Iesus into the world. Whereas it is said in the prophecie, Thou hast turned away the captiuitie of Iacob; it is said in the praier, Turne vs then O God our Sauiour. In the prophecie, Thou hast taken away all thy displeasure, and turned thy selfe from thy wrathfull indignation: in the praier, Let thine anger cease from vs: wilt thou be displeased at vs for euer, and wilt thou stretch out of thy wrath from one generation to another? In the prophecie, Thou hast been fauourable to thy land, thou hast forgiuen the offences of thy people, and couered all their sinnes: in the praier, Quicken vs O Lord, that thy people may reioyce in thee, shew vs thy mercy, and grant vs thy saluation: [c] that is, thy Sonne Iesus, [d] by whom onely thou sauest.

[a] Bucer.
[b] Bellarmin. Genebrardus.

out

[c] Euthym.
[d] Acts 4.12.

The whole Prayer hath (as [e] one notes) two parts:

1. The Churches request vnto God, that the Messias of the world may come, and that for foure causes especially:
   1. For our reconciliation vnto God, vers. 4.5.
   2. For our iustification, vers. 6.7.
   3. For our illumination, vers. 8.
   4. For our glorification, vers. 9.
2. Gods grant to the request of his Church in the fulnesse of time, Mercy and truth are met together, &c.

[e] D. Integritus.

I will hearken what the Lord will say] The word of God is a lanterne vnto our feet, and a light vnto our paths, a trusty [f] counseller in all our affaires, in our afflictions especially. The Lord speakes peace vnto his people, both in the bookes of his holy Scriptures, and by the mouths of his godly [g] Preachers. And therefore such as [h] despise prophecying, and for some by-respects of tithes, and other worldly toyes, hate their learned and vigilant Pastors, [i] vnderstand not these things which belong vnto their peace. It was euer held commendable policie both among Christians and Heathens, that a good thing for the Commonweale, should be broached by the gratious lip of some man highly honoured in his country, because his precept is vsually dis-respected, whose person is despised. And this among other is one cause, why some men in Gods house, during the time of praying and preaching prattle so much vnto their mates; or (if their pew-fellow be more deuout) prate by nods and fleares, and other secret signes, vnto their lewd companions further off. It is hard for any (said Plutarch) to change himselfe so much, but that a man (at one time or other) may catch his heart at the tip of his tongue: and so surely no hypocrite can so deepely dissemble, but a man (euer and anon) may see his heart at his fingers end: his wandering lookes, and other irreuerent behauiour in the Temple, bewray that his soule doth not magnifie the Lord, nor his spirit reioyce in God his Sauiour. When thou commest into the Sanctuary, thou must either in thy deuotions speake vnto God, or else heare what God by his ministery speaketh vnto thee.

[f] Psal. 119.24.
[g] Tileman in loc.
[h] 1 Thess. 5.20.
[i] Luke 19.42.

It is the fashion of worldlings to sue their neighbours for euery trifling trespasse: but a true Christian is resolued here with our Prophet, I will heare what the Lord God will say concerning me. Now he saith, [k] Is it so, that there is not a wise man among you? no not one, that can iudge betweene his brethren? but a brother goeth to law with a brother, and that vnder such aduocates and Iudges, [l] qui hac lege defendunt miseros, vt miseriores faciant defendendo, like the thorny bush fleecing the poore sheepe, which in a storme commeth vnto it for shelter.

[k] 1. Cor. 6.5.
[l] Saluianus li. 5 de gubernat. Dei.

It is the fashion of worldlings, if they lose goods out of their closet, or cattle out of their close, presently to rake hell for helpe, consulting with abominable witches, and other wicked agents of the deuill: but a good Christian on the contrary saith, I will heare what the Lord will say. He saith in his law, [m] Thou shalt not suffer a witch to liue. Shall I then forsake God, who [n] rideth vpon the heauens, for my helpe? & the Magistrate, Gods deputy, to [o] take vengeance on him that doth euill, and seeke comfort at the hands of a Coniurer, by black Arts & works of darknes? No Satan, if thou wouldest in consideration of my little losse, giue me my house full of siluer and gold, or couldest (as once thou diddest impudently boast vnto my blessed Sauiour) bestow on me [p] all the kingdomes of the world, [q] I cannot goe beyond the word of the Lord my God to doe lesse or more.

[m] Exod. 22.18.
[n] Deut. 33.26.
[o] Rom. 13.4.
[p] Matth. 4.9.
[q] Num. 22.18.

It is the fashion of wordlings, when their consciences afflict them at any time for sinne, to see merry plaies, or read merry bookes, or heare merry tales, or talke merry merry cups and so they make the remedy worse comm only than the disease. But a good man and a true Christian heares what the Lord saith vnto him in his word and ministery, [r] Call vpon me in the time of trouble, so will I heare thee, and thou shalt praise me. [s] Be strong, and he shall stablish your heart, all ye, that put your trust in the Lord. Come to me all ye th at labour and are laden, and I will ease you. Though hope seeme to tarrie, [t] yet wait, for it shall surely come and not stay. [u] God is like the bridegroome, Ioh. 2. who kept his best wine for his last seruice. First he propounds and propines vnto his followers the cup of his Crosse, ye shall drinke indeed of my cup, Matth. 20. 23. but in conclusion, he turnes his Crosse into a Crowne, Reuel. 2. 10. Be thou faithfull vnto death, and I will giue thee the crowne of life. First he doth humble, then exalt: first he [x] killeth, and then he cureth. A tristibus semper sed necessarijs inchoat Deus, deinde progreditur ad hilariora, saith [y] Origine: God euer begins at necessarie discontentments, and so proceedeth vnto things more pleasing. He saith, I wound, and I make whole: I kill, and giue life. He saith not, I will first make aliue, and then I will destroy: but first he [z] plucketh vp, and then hee planteth: first he doth ouerthrow, then he buildeth: first he mortifieth our earthly members of sinne, then he quickneth our inward man to grace. Ioseph after he had worne the Iaylors iron chaine, Gen. 40. 3. was adorned with the golden chaine of Pharao the King, Gen. 41. 42. Mordecai first among pages at the Court [a] gate, was afterward honoured with the Kings ring and raiment, and mounted on the Kings horse, and it was openly proclaimed before him euen through the streets of the Citie, Thus shall be done to the man whom the King will honour, Ester 6. 11. All which examples are commentaries vpon our text, and shew, that howsoeuer Almightie God punisheth his people for a time, yet if they will heare what he saith, he will in fine speake peace vnto them.

But the Psalmist addeth here by way of caueat, Let them not returne againe to their follie. Sinners are fooles, & their faults are their follies, as the Scriptures euery where speake, in the Prouerbs especially. Couetousnesse is a folly. Drunkennesse a folly, Whoredome a folly, Atheisme folly, Idolatry folly. God in his Son speaketh vnto his people peace, but let them take heed that they returne not againe to their folly, like the [b] sowe to the wollowing in mire, and the dogge to his owne vomite, [c] Behold, thou art now made whole, sinne no more, lest a worse thing come vnto thee. Thou dost euery day beg of our heauenly Father that his kingdome may come: looke then vnto the next clause, that his will may be done in earth, as it is in heauen.

Mercy and truth are met together] [d] When as Gods people heare what he saith vnto them in his holy word, then all things are full of mercy, truth, righteousnesse and peace; then the land shall giue her increase, that is, the Church abound with these good fruits of faith. [e] Some say, that these vertues meet together and kisse, but in diuers subiects. As for example, mercy from God, and truth from men: as if he should say, God will turne his owne iustice towards his people into mercy, and their hypocriticall hearts and foule hands into sound and sincere dealing, and so righteousnesse and peace kisse. The righteousnesse of God in executing his promises faithfully breeds in his people peace of conscience to their endlesse comfort. Other affirme, that these vertues meet together in one subiect,

And that in { God. / Man. / Christ, God and man.

They meet together in God: for all the pathes of the Lord are mercy and truth, Psal. 25. 9. [f] mercy in making, and truth in keeping his promise to his people. [g] S. Paul saith, Iesus Christ was a minister of the Circumcision for the truth of God, to confirme the promises made vnto the Fathers; & that the Gentiles might glorifie God for his mercy. God promised his Sonne vnto the [h] Iewes, and he gaue him in the [i] fulnesse of time to be both a [k] light to the Gentiles, and glory of his people Israel. [l] Herein shewing his mercy more principally to the Gentiles, his truth vnto the Iewes, and so his mercy and truth embraced each other, in that he made [m] both people but one, to wit, one, flocke, in [n] one sheepfold, vnder one sheepherd.

If

r Psal. 50. 15.
s Psal. 31. 27.
t Habacuc 2. 3.
u See Dr. Hall ser. of the blessed In-mate.
x Deut 32. 39.
y In Iere. hom. 1.
z Ierem. 1. 10.
a Ester 4. 2.
b 2. Pet 2. 22.
c Iohn 5. 14.
d Tileman. Buser. Vatablus:
e Genebrard. Tremel. Wilcox.
f Agellius. Bellarm. in Psal. 24.
g Rom. 15. 8.
h Rom 9. 4.
i Galat. 4. 4.
k Luke 2. 32.
l Hieron. Augustine. Turrecremat.
m Ephes. 2. 14.
n Iohn 10. 16.

If we take truth and righteousnesse for Gods iustice in punishing, mercy and peace for his gratiousnesse in pardoning: yet they meet together in all his waies, vnto such as keepe his couenant and his testimonies. For as the[o] mercies of the wicked are full of cruelty: so the very iudgements of God vpon his seruants are full of mercy. In his [p] wrath he remembers pitie; punishing a little, that he may pardon a great deale; destroying the flesh only, to saue the spirit, 1. Cor. 5. 5. [q] Misericordiæ est aliquando subtrahere misericordiam: It was good for Ioseph that he was a captiue, good for Naaman that he was a leaper, good for Bartimæus that he was blinde, good for Dauid that he was in trouble. [r] Bradford thanked God more of his prison, then of any parlour or pleasure: [s] All things are to the best vnto the faithfull. And so Gods mercy and truth are met together, righteousnesse and peace haue kissed each other, his mercy being iust, and his iustice being mercifull. But God in giuing his only Sonne vnto the world, more abundantly shewed his mercy and iustice kissing one another. His iustice requires [t] that euery soule that sinnes should die; but his mercy desires not the death of a sinner, Ezech. 33. 11, He therefore gaue his Sonne to die for our sinnes, and to rise againe for our iustification, and so both his iustice is satisfied, and sinners are saued. In Christs aduent, mercy and truth are met together, righteousnesse and peace haue kissed each other. [u] Bernard hath a pretti: dialogue to this purpose, betweene righteousnesse and truth on the one side, mercy and peace on the other part, contending about the redemption of mankinde. Christ our blessed Messias and Mediator ended the quarrell at his comming, and made them all exceeding kinde kissing friends: for in giuing himselfe a [x] ransome for all men, he did at once pay both vnto Iustice her debt, and grant vnto Mercy her desire.

2. Righteousnesse and peace meet together in man: so [y] S. Augustine expounds it; an vniust man is full of quarrels, like Ishmael, [z] euery mans hand is against him, and his hand against euery man: but he which is righteous, and giueth euery man his due, shall haue peace. so much as is [a] possible with all men, especially with his owne se.fe and soule. Righteousnesse and peace are so neere, so deere, that thou canst not haue the one without the other. Vnam vis & alteram non facis, haply thou wouldest enioy peace, but thou wilt do no iustice. The [b] Poet could say, --Pacem te poscimus omnes. Interroga (saith [c] Augustine) omnes homines, vultis pacem, vno ore respondet totum genus hominum, opto, cupio, volo, amo. Well then, if thou desire peace, doe iustice; for peace saith, I am a friend only to such as loue my friend. [d] What man is he that lusteth to liue, and would faine see good dayes? keepe thy tongue from euill, and thy lips that they speake no guile; eschew euill, and do good; seeke peace and ensue it. Nay thou needest not seeke it, for it will of it selfe come to kisse her sister Righteousnesse. [e] If men haue truth and righteousnesse, God will afford mercy and peace. So the Prophet expresly, Keepe innocencie, and take heed vnto the thing that is right, and that shall bring a man peace at the last, Psal. 37. 38. At the first haply thou maist haue warre with the vngodly men of this world, (for [f] do well, and heare ill, is written on heauens doore) but hereafter, at the last assuredly thou shalt haue peace to thy soule, [g] Or righteousnesse and peace meet in euery true beleeuer, because being iustified by faith, we haue peace toward God, through Iesus Christ our Lord, Rom. 5. 1.

3. Righteousnesse and peace meet in Christ, God and man: for by these two, [h] some Diuines vnderstand the Old Testament and the New. The Law doth exact iustice, requiring of a malefactor [i] eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot: but the Gospell is full of mercy and peace, saying vnto the sinner, who truly repenteth him of his sins, and vntainedly beleeues the word of promise, [k] Son, be of good comfort, thy sinnes are forgiuen thee. Daughter, be of good cheere, thy faith hath made thee whole. [l] Goe thy way, thy beleefe hath saued thee. [m] Behold, thou art now made whole, sinne no more. These two Testaments meet together in Christ, as in their proper center, they kissed each other on this day, because the Gospell performed what the Law promised.

[n] Or he shewed truth in his words, and mercy in his workes. [o] He deliuered the will of God vnto men, and his word is truth. He made the [p] blinde to see, the lame

[o] Pro. 12. 10.
[p] Habacuc 3. 2.
[q] Bernard. serm. cont. vitium ingrat.
[r] Fox Martyr. fol. 1476.
[s] Rom. 8. 28.
[t] Ezech. 18. 20.
[u] Ser. 1. de annun. Dom.
[x] 1. Tim 2. 6.
[y] In loc.
[z] Gen 16. 12.
[a] Rom 12. 18.
[b] Virgil.
[c] Vbi sup.
[d] Psal 34. 12.
[e] Basilius. Agellius.
[f] Bradford apud Fox Martyr. fol. 1491.
[g] Tileman. Tremellius.
[h] D. Incognitus in loc.
[i] Exod. 21. 24.
[k] Mat 9. 2 22.
[l] Marke 10. 52.
[m] Iohn 5. 14.
[n] Euthym.
[o] Ioh. 17. 6. 17.
[p] Matth. 11. 5.

lame to goe, the deafe to heare, he cleanſed the leapers, he cured the ſicke, he raiſed vp the dead: and theſe without queſtion are workes of mercie.

Or by theſe two vertues vnderſtand [q] Chriſts two natures, his diuine nature by mercie, hauing [r] power to forgiue ſinnes, and to heale [ſ] all manner of ſickneſſe: by truth his humane nature, 1. For that he had true fleſh, and not (as Heretikes imagined) a phantaſticall bodie. 2. For that he was a man after Gods owne image, [t] created in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe, he was blameleſſe and vndefiled, Heb 7.26. he knew no ſinne, 1.Cor.5.21. he did no wickedneſſe, neither was any deceit in his mouth, Eſay 53.9. and ſo truth and mercie met together in the perſonall vnion of his two natures. And this expoſition is more probable by the next verſe: Truth ſhall flouriſh out of the earth, and righteouſneſſe hath looked downe from heauen. Chriſt is truth, as he [u] ſaith of himſelfe, I am the way, the truth, &c. and Chriſt is our righteouſneſſe, 1.Cor.1.30. [x] Now Chriſt as man, and borne of the Virgin Mary, budded out of the earth: and as God, he looked downe from heauen. That men might be iuſtified by grace from heauen, it pleaſed him on this day to bud out of the earth, in the words of [y] S. Auguſtine, Vt iuſtitia proſpiceret de cœlo, id eſt, vt iuſtificarentur homines diuinâ gratiâ, veritas nata eſt de Maria Virgine, vt poſſit pro illis iuſtificandis offerri ſacrificium paſſionis, ſacrificium crucis: & vnde offerret ſacrificium pro peccatis noſtris niſi moreretur? quomodo autem moreretur, niſi carnem indueret? & quomodo, carnem indueret, niſi veritas de terra oriretur?

[z] Otherwiſe, when righteouſneſſe, that is, Gods grace lookes downe from heauen, then truth among men flouriſheth vpon earth. [a] Or before Chriſts comming the whole world was full of vntruths, all the Gentiles adored falſe gods, and many Iewes worſhipped the true God falſly. But the Sunne of righteouſneſſe appearing in our Horizon, [b] called vs out of darkeneſſe into maruellous light, teaching that onely [c] the Lord is God, and that an [d] Idoll is nothing, and ſo truth flouriſheth out of the earth, and righteouſneſſe hath looked downe from heauen.

[e] Or, truth ſprings out of the earth, and righteouſneſſe lookes downe from heauen, when a ſinner humbly confeſſeth his faults vnto God: according to that of [f] S. Iohn, If we ſay that we haue no ſinne, we deceiue our ſelues, and truth is not in vs: if we acknowledge our ſinnes, he is faithfull and iuſt to forgiue vs our ſinnes, and to cleanſe vs from all vnrighteouſneſſe.

[g] Or, the diuine iuſtice manifeſted it ſelfe from heauen, in Chriſts ſpringing out of the earth. For hereby we know the [h] wrath of God is reuealed from heauen againſt all vngodlineſſe and vnrighteouſnes, becauſe nothing could expiate the ſins of men, but the death of Gods owne and only Sonne, he budded out of the earth, and was buffeted vpon the earth, and buried vnder the earth; and all this, and more than this he did ſuffer and doe for our redemption and ranſome. [i] Quid illi pro malis meis quæ pertulit, quid pro bonis ſuis quæ contulit, referam? quid pro ſuſcepta carne, quid pro alapis? quid pro flagellis? pro cruce, obitu, ſepultura, rependam? eſto, reddamus crucem pro cruce, funus pro funere, numquid poterimus reddere, quod ex ipſo, & per ipſum, & in ipſo habemus omnia, &c. reddamus ergo amorem pro debito, charitatem pro munere, animum & affectum Domino impendamus, & ſolnimus.

q Euthym.
r Matth 9.6.
ſ Matth 8.16.
t Epheſ.4.24.

u Iohn 14.6.
x Hieron. Arnobius. Agellius.

y In loc.

z Cœlebrad.
a Placidus Parmen.

b 1.Pet.2.9.
c 1.Kin.18.39.
d 1.Cor.8.4.

e Auguſtine. Tilemin.
f 1.Epiſt.1.8.9.

g Bellarmine.
h Rom.1.18.

i Paulinus epiſt. lib.1.epiſt.4.

PSALME

Psalm. 89.

My song shall be alway of the louing kindnesse of the Lord, &c.

THis one short verse containes the summarie pith and [k] argument of the whole long Psalme; wherein obserue the Songs dittie, the louing kindnes and truth of the Lord, manifested vnto the whole world generally, to Dauids house (that is, the Church) especially.

Singers dutie, magnifying the mercies of God alwaies, euen from one generation to another. And by all meanes; with his mouth, for that is expressed in this verse; with his minde, for that is implied in the next, I haue said, &c. [l] that is, beleeued it in my heart, and therefore spake it with my tongue, Psalm 116.10. For out of the hearts abundance the mouth speaketh, Matth. 12. 34.

[k] Bellarmin.

[l] Geneua gloss. Wilcox.

My song shall be alwayes of the louing kindnesse] Or as other translations, I will sing the mercies of the Lord, his [m] manifold and sundry mercies: as if he should say, we haue tasted of more than of one, yea we haue felt all his mercies; I will therefore praise the same for euer. I will sing his mercy for creating this vniuerse, which is [n] Macrocosmus, a great world; and for making man, which is Microcosmus, a little world. 1. My song shall set forth his kindnesse, for that he gaue me being. 2. For adding to my being, life, which he denieth vnto stones. 3. To life, sense, which he denieth vnto plants. 4. To sense, speech, and vnderstanding, which he denieth vnto bruit beasts. I haue great cause to praise the Lord, for that I am a man; and yet greater, for that I am a sound man, hauing a due portion of wit, and a true proportion of limbs and lineaments, maimed neither in the powers of my soule, nor in the parts of my bodie. Some men are like the carued images of Pagans, and Papists, [o] hauing mouthes and speake not, eyes and see not, eares and heare not, feet and walke not, hands and handle not. I will therefore sing of thy mercies, O Lord, for giuing vnto me perfect limbes, and perfect vse thereof; eyes to see, tongue to speake, eares to heare, feet to walke. I doe not want so much as the left hand, or the little finger of that hand, or the least ioynt of that finger. Againe, some men are maimed in their mindes, as being either borne starke fooles (ô heauy punishment!) or else for abusing their good wits in bad workes, are (by Gods secret and seuere iudgement) bereft of their intellectuals. Some, which haue heretofore worshipped Christ at Bethlem, and haue preached also Christ vnto the King and his Court, in Bethel, are now lunaticke, bound hand and foot in Bedlem. [p] In nature, the middle participates euer with his extremes, as the Spring, which is the middle betweene Winter and Summer, hath (as you know) part of the Winters cold, and part of the Summers heat; and the morning, which is the middle betweene night and day, hath a little darknesse of the night, and a little light of the day: so man is created by God, tanquam medius inter Angelum & brutum, a midling betweene an Angell and a brute; being a good deale better than a beast, and a little [q] lower than an Angell: hauing in respect of his bodie, some thing of a bruit, being sensuall and mortall; and in respect of his soule, some thing of an Angell, as being intellectuall and immortall. Now then, if the Spring haue not any heat of Summer, it is so cold as Winter; and if the morning haue no light of the Sunne, it is so darke as night: so man, if he want angelicall abilities of the soule, is little better than a beast, as [r] horse and mule without vnderstanding: for as [s] Synesius said, A wise man excels a foole, more than a foole doth excell a beast.

[m] Vatablus.

[n] Io. de Combis compend. theolog. lib. 2. cap. 2.

[o] Psal. 135. 16.

[p] Fatius de mortificatione, cap. 2.

[q] Psalm 8. 5.

[r] Psal 32. 10.

[s] Orat de Dione.

As God is principium effectiuum in creatione: so refectiuum in redemptione. I am exceeding much bound vnto God for creating me when I was not; and for preseruing me vnder his wings, euer since I was: yet I am more bound to his mercy for redeeming me, for blessing me with al spirituall blessings in heauenly things in Christ his Sonne, Ephes. 1. 3. for his electing of me, for his calling of me, for his iustifying of me, for his sanctifying of me. These graces are the [t] riches of his goodnesse and gloric, [u] misericordiæ in æternum, euerlasting mercies, as reaching from [x] euerlasting predestination, to euerlasting glorification. O Lord, I will alway sing thy mercies in promising, and euer shew thy truth in performing thy promise made to Dauid, thy chosen seruant, concerning thy Sonne, my Sauiour, saying, thy seed will I establish for euer. So the [y] Fathers expound our text, I will euer sing thy mercies, in vouchsafing to send thy Sonne to visit thy seruants, sicke to death in sinne, First, I will euer sing of thy mercifulnesse: and then I will euer be shewing thy faithfulnesse. [z] Neque enim exhiberetur veritas in impletione promissorum, nisi præcederet misericordia in remissione peccatorum. And what is Gods mercie set vp for euer, and his truth established in the heauens? but that which [a] Esay termes the sure mercies of Dauid: that is, as [b] Paul construeth Esay, the holy promises made to Dauid: and the promise made to Dauid, is briefly this, thy seed will I stablish for euer, and set vp thy throne from generation to generation. For the Prophet Ethan here doth [c] allude to the Prophet Nathan, 2 Sam. 7. I will (saith he from the Lord vnto Dauid) set vp thy seed after thee, and I will stablish the throne of his kingdome for euer. Now this holy promise was not fulfilled in the temporall kingdome of Dauid, as Gods people complaine in this Psalme from the 37. to the 45. verse. It is therefore to be construed of Christ, and his spirituall kingdome. Christ, according to the flesh, is the [d] seed of Dauid, and the [e] sonne of Dauid: of him it is true which is said here by the Lord, My couenant will I not breake, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips; I haue sworne once by my holinesse, that I will not faile Dauid. His seed shall endure for euer, and his seat is like as the Sunne before me. He shall stand fast for euermore as the Moone, and as the faithfull witnesse in heauen. Of him it is true, [f] thy throne is for euer and euer. Of him it is true, heauen and earth shall perish, and wax old as doth a garment, and as a vesture thou shalt fold them vp, and they shall be changed: but thou art the same, and thy yeeres shall not faile Psal. 102. 27. Heb. 1. 12. Thou sweet Iesus art a Priest for euer, and a Prince for euer. And surely God would haue Danids earthly kingdome to determine in Iehoiachim and Zedechia, that his people might [g] vnderstand the holy couenant made with Dauid of Christ, and that they might pray, Lord, where are thy old louing kindnesses, which thou swarest vnto Dauid in thy truth? See S. August. de ciuit. Dei, lib. 17. cap. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13.

[t] Ephes 2. 4. & 3. 16.

Now the Prophet, in processe of his hymne, describes the natures and vertues of Christ, as well inherent in his owne person, as infused into his people.

His Humane nature, because the seed of Dauid, a perfect man in soule and bodie, against [h] Eutycheans, [i] Apollinarists, [k] Valentinians, [l] Nestorians, [m] Monothelites, &c.

His Diuine nature: First, for that the Church inuocates him as God, vers. 5. O Lord, the very heauens shall praise thy wondrous workes, and thy truth in the congregation of the Saints. By heauen, is meant the [n] Church, and the [o] Preachers of Christ in the Church.

Secondly, Ethan proues Christ to be God by comparison, in the 6 7, 8. 9 verses, Who is he among the clouds that shall be compared vnto the Lord; or what is he among the gods, that shall be like vnto him? as if he should say, there is neither Monarch on earth, nor Angell in heauen his peere.

Thirdly, from the preseruation of all things, vers. 10, 11. Thou rul'est the raging of the sea, thou rulest the waues thereof when they arise, &c.

Fourthly, for that he created the world, vers. 12, 13, 14. The heauens are thine, the earth also is thine, thou hast laid the foundation of the round world &c.

Hauing thus expressed his natures, & shewed him to be [p] verus homo, verusq; Deus, tamen vnus vterq;. He begins in the 15. verse, to sing of his vertues, as well in his own person, as people. For himself, righteousnes & equity is the habitation of thy seat, mercy & truth shall goe before thy face. For his people, blessed are they that can reioyce in thee, they shall walke in the light of thy countenance, their delight shall be daily in thy name, &c. These things afford manifold instructions, according to the prefixed title, a [q] Psalme for instruction of Ethan the Ezrarite. But the point aimed at most, is vndoubtedly, [q] that in al our tentations, and tempests of conscience, we should flie to the sure mercies

[u] Bellarmin.
[x] Bernard ser. 2. in ascen. Dom.
[y] Hieron. Turrecremat. Augustin.
[z] Hoc admonet vox intellectus in titulo posita, Bellar. argum. huius Psalmi.
[a] Esay 55. 3.
[b] Acts 13. 34.
[c] August. de Ciuit. Dei, lib. 17 cap. 9. Idem Euthym & Tileman in loc.
[d] Rom. 1. 3
[e] Matth. 1. 1.
[f] Psal. 45. 7. Heb. 1. 8.
[g] Hoc admonet vox intellectus in titulo posita, Bellar. argum. huius Psalmi.
[h] Bellarmin. de Christo lib. 2. cap. 2.
[i] Epiphan. hæres. 77.
[k] August. hæres. 11.
[l] Alphons. de hæres. lib. 4. fol. 70.
[m] Idem ibid. fol. 73.
[n] Euthym. Tileman
[o] Augustin. Haeren.
[p] Alphons. de hæresibus, lib. 1. fol. 25.
[q] Vatablus. Caluin

mercies, and holy promises of God in Christ. If once we stay our soules on this anchor-hold, we shall escape shipwracke of faith. Ethan, who was either penner, or singer of this hymne, is by [r] interpretation robustus, one which is strong: now no man is strong in this world, but he who relieth vpon the sure promises of God. The consideration of our owne merits, is able to make vs faint and feeble: but our trust in the Lords euerlasting mercies, maketh vs like mount Sion, which cannot be remoued, but abideth fast and firme for euer, Psal. 125. 1. And therefore [s] some Diuines haue construed this Scripture, by that Ierem 9.23. Thus saith the Lord, let not the wise man glory in his wisdome, nor the strong man glory in his strength, neither the rich man glory in his riches: but let him that glorieth, glory in this, that he vnderstands and knowes me to be the Lord, which shew mercy, iudgement, and righteousnesse.

[r] Augustin.

[s] Galat. de arcan. lib. 6. cap. 12.

And as the Fathers vnder and before the law, comforted themselues in all afflictions and misery, with the consideration of Christs first comming: so let vs in the middest of our tentations and troubles, be stedfast and immoueable, because we look for his second comming. He deferred his first comming a great while, yet in the [t] fulnesse of time he dealt with his seruants [u] according to his word. So the Saints expecting his second comming, crie with a loud voice, [x] How long Lord, holy and true, doest not thou iudge and auenge our bloud on them that dwell on earth? And mockers in the last dayes also say, [y] Where is the promise of his comming? for since the Fathers died, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the Creation. And yet the Lord (saith S. Peter) is not slacke concerning his promise, (as some men count slackenesse) but is patient toward vs, and would haue all men come to repentance. [z] Yet a very little while, and he that shall come, will come, and will not tarrie. Behold (saith he who neuer vttered vntruth) [a] I come shortly, and my reward is with me, to giue euery man according as his workes are. The life present is so full of diseases and disasters, that our happinesse is [b] hid with Christ in God: but when he which is our life shall appeare, then we shall also appeare with him in glory, for he shall [c] change our vile bodie, that it may be like his glorious bodie: [d] Non eu acuabitur veritas corporis, sed non erit pondus & fragilitas corruptionis. Wherefore let vs alway be rich in the worke of the Lord, for as much as we know, that our labour is not in vaine in the Lord, 1 Cor. 15. 58.

[t] Galat. 4 4.
[u] Luke 2.29.
[x] Apoc. 6.10.
[y] 2 Pet. 3.4.
[z] Heb 10.37.
[a] Apoc. 22. 12
[b] Coloss. 3.4.
[c] Philip 3 21.
[d] Martialis ad Burdegal. epist. 8.

Hitherto concerning the dittie of the song: I come now to the dutie of the singer. I will alway sing thy mercies with my mouth, I will euer be shewing thy truth from one generation to another. I know [e] some ioyne in æternum to the noune misericordias, and not to the verbe cantabo, making the sense to be this: I will alway sing thy mercies which endure for euer. But alwayes is referred as well, if not better, vnto the verbe, I will sing: as who would say, Lord, thy mercies are so manifest, and so manifold, so great in their number, and so good in their nature, that I will alway, so [f] long as I haue any being, sing praises vnto thee. Haply some will obiect, All flesh is grasse, and the grace thereof as the flower of the field: the grasse withereth, and the flower fadeth away. Dauid being persecuted by Saul, said, [g] there is but a step betweene death and me. Nay, Dauid, thy life is shorter than a stride, but a span long, as thy selfe witnesseth, Psalm. 39. 6. How can he then that begs his bread but for a day, promise to spend his breath in magnifying the Lord for euer? Answer is made, that the Prophet will not onely commend the mercies of the Lord in word, but also commit them vnto writing.

[e] Bellarmine.
[f] Psal. 146 1.
[g] 1 Sam. 20. 3.

[h] Vt sciat hæc ætas, posteritasq; legat.

As the tongue of the Prophet is termed [i] elsewhere, the pen of a readie writer: so the writing of the Prophet is here termed his mouth, as Euthymius vpon the place, Liber Psalmorum * os Dauid.. [k] He doth intend to note the mercies of God, and to set forth his truth in a book, the which he will leaue behinde him (as an instrument) to conuey the same from generation to generation, from the generation of [l] Iewes to the generation of Christians. [m] Or from the old Testament to the new: for the blessed Apostles in their Sermons vsually cite sentences out of the Psalmes. [n] S. Peter telleth vs, that the Gospel was preached vnto the dead; so may we say, that the Gospel is preached by the dead. For the most ancient Fathers, and other iudicious authors, [h] Eobanus Hessus.

[i] Psal 45.2.
* Acts 4.25.
[k] Wilcox.
[l] Euthym. Incognit. Turrecremat.
[m] Hieron.
[n] 2 Pet. 4 6.

which haue ſpent their dayes in writing learned expoſitions and godly meditations vpon the holy Scriptures, although they be dead, and ſleepe in the bed of their graue, yet they ſing alway the mercies of the Lord, and ſhew the truth of his word from one generation vnto another. It is reported in our [o] Chronicles of Athelſtan: Parum ætati vixit, multum gloriæ. So many zealous and induſtrious Doctors haue liued (in reſpect of their age) but a little, yet in reſpect of their acts, a great while, ſhining ſtill in their works and writings, as lights of the world.

Or the Prophet may be ſaid, to ſing euer intentionally, though not actually. [p] For as the wicked, if he could liue alway, would ſinne alway: ſo the good man (if God ſhould ſuffer him alway to breathe on earth) would ſing alway the mercies of the Lord. He will in [q] all things giue thankes vnto God, [r] earely telling of his louing kindneſſe in the morning, and of his truth in the night ſeaſon. In the morning, [ſ] that is, in a proſperous eſtate, when as the Sunne ſhineth vpon him, he will acknowledge that euery good gift in him is from aboue, comming downe from the Father of lights and Father of mercies. And in the darke night of aduerſitie he telleth of Gods iuſtice, confeſſing ingenuouſly, [t] We receiue things worthie of that we haue done. He giueth thanks vnto the Lord in both, in the one highly magnifying Gods fauour; in the other humbly vilifying his own fault.

[u] Or becauſe God hath inſpired into man, not only the breath of [x] this preſent life, but of [y] that alſo which is to come; the Saints are ſaid to continue their ſong of Gods praiſe in the kingdome of glory, which here they beginne in the kingdome of grace. For ſo the Spirit, Apocal. 19. 1. I heard a great voice of a great multitude in heauen, ſinging Hallelujah, ſaluation, and glorie, and honour, and peace be to the Lord our God.

It is obiected, if the Saints in heauen alway ſing the mercies of the Lord, then they remember their miſeries on earth; and if they remember their ſin and ſorrow here, how can they be perfitly bleſſed there? for the Lord ſaith, [z] I will create new heauens, and a new earth, and the former ſhall not be remembred, nor come into mind. [a] Anſwer is made, that as men in perfit health often remember their terrible fits of their former ſickneſſe, with exceeding ioy: yea the more they call into minde their danger paſt, the greater is their delight preſent: euen ſo the Saints, in the kingdome of glory, remember haply their miſdeeds and miſhaps in this valley of teares, but it is without any pollution of ſin, or touch of ſorrow. So [b] Gregorie the Great, Erit in illa beatitudine culpæ memoria, non quæ mentem polluat, ſed quæ nos arctius lætitiæ aſtringat; vt dum doloris ſui animus ſine dolore reminiſcitur, & debitorem ſe medico verius intelligat, & eò magis acceptam ſalutem diligat, quò moleſtiæ meminit quam euaſit. [c] Heauenly happineſſe conſiſteth in two things, in the neceſſarie poſſeſſing of euery thing which is good, and in the neceſſarie remouing of euery thing which is euill. Miſerie then is not remembred of the Saints, as a matter of griefe, but as a motiue to ioy, becauſe they be now [d] deliuered from this body of death, and enioy the Crowne of euerlaſting life; where God is to them [e] all in all, a glaſſe to their ſight, honey to their taſte, muſicke to their hearing, Balſome to their ſmelling: where [f] Salomons wiſdome ſeemes folly; [g] Ahaſels agilitie, ſlowneſſe; Samſons ſtrength, weakneſſe; [h] Abſaloms comelineſſe, deformitie; Cæſars Empire, beggerie; Methuſalems long life, ſhortneſſe of dayes, or a ſpeedie death. Thus I haue ſhewed how the Prophet may be ſaid to ſing alwayes the mercies of the Lord, in this life vnto the worlds end, in the next for euer and euer world without end.

As for all meanes: he praiſes the Lord with his mouth, and all that is without him; as alſo with his minde, and all that is within him. His [i] heart indites a good matter, and his tongue is the pen of a readie writer. All his members are for the ſeruice of his Maker, as [k] S. Auguſtine gloſſeth our text, Obſequantur membra (inquit) mea, Domino meo loquor, ſed tua loquor, annunciabo veritatem tuam in ore meo. Si non obſequor ſeruus non ſum: ſi à me loquor, mendax ſum. Ergo vt abs te dicam, & ego dicam, duo quædam ſunt, vnum tuum, vnum meum: veritas tua, os meum.

Now let vs according to this copie, draw the lines of our liues, vſing all meanes to ſet forth the the louing kindneſſe and truth of the Lord. [l] O giue thankes vnto the Lord,

[o] Malmesbur. de geſtis Reg. Anglorum, lib. 2. cap 6.

[p] Io. de Combis comp Theolog. lib. 7. cap. 21.

[q] 1 Theſſ. 5. 28

[r] Pſal 92. 2.

[ſ] Dr Incognit. Turrecremat. Gloſſa.

[t] Luk. 23. 41.

[u] Placidus. Incognitus.

[x] Gen 2. 7.

[y] Iohn 3. 16. Apoc. 2. 10.

[z] Eſay 65. 17.

[a] Gregor. Moral. lib. 4. cap 42.

[b] Vid ſup Idem Auguſtin lib. 22 de Ciuit. Dei, cap. vlt.

[c] Auguſt. apud Io. de Combis comp Theleg. lib 7. cap. vlt.

[d] Rom. 7. 24.

[e] 1 Cor 15. 28

[f] 1 King. 3. 12.

[g] 2 Sam 2. 18.

[h] 3 Sam. 14. 25.

[i] Pſal 45. 1.

[k] In loc.

[l] Pſal. 105. 1.

Lord,

Lord, and call vpon his name, tell the people what things he hath done. O let your songes be of him, and praise him, and let your talking be of his wondrous works: O my soule praise the Lord, and all that is within me praise his holy name; praise the Lord, o my soule, and forget not all his benefits, who forgiueth all thy sinnes, and healeth all thine infirmities; who saueth thy life from destruction, and crowneth thee with louing kindnesse, Psal. 103. A good Christian is a tymbrell of the Holy Ghost, his whole life being nothing else but a well-tuned song of Sion, alway magnifying the mercies of God in his owne person, and inuiting other to do the same. But the [m] mouth of the wicked is full of cursing and bitternesse, their throat is an open sepulchre, destruction and vnhappinesse is in their wayes. A man of a foule mouth is a beast in the forme of a man, his tongue is the tongue of a [n] Serpent, Adders poyson is vnder his lips; nay worse than a Serpent, for it hurts not a man except he be present to see him, or to bite him, or to strike him with his taile: but he which hath a blasphemous and a bitter tongue, hurteth all, as well absent as present; neither sea nor land, neither scepter nor sepulchre, neither heauen nor hell hindereth him; he blasphemes God, wrongs his neighbour, he raileth on the dead, and rageth against the liuing, his tongue is the tongue of a Fiend, of a Furie. For as the holy Prophets of God, when they preached, had their tongues (as it were) touched with a [o] coale from the altar of God; and as godly men haue their tongues inflamed with the [p] fire of Gods Spirit, when as they speake graciously: so contrariwise, when a man speaketh euill, his tongue (saith [q] S. Iames) is kindled by the fire of hell, and Satan comes from thence with a coale to touch his lips, and to set them on fire to all manner of mischiefe. When as good men speake good things, their tongue is [r] Christs tongue; but all manner of cursed and vngodly speaking, is no better than the Deuils language. Think on this all ye that forget God, whose mouthes are so farre from singing his mercies alway, that ye can hardly come in your communication to any full period, without interlacing an oath or two. It is no wonder, that in Italy (which is a parcell of Antichrists kingdome) blasphemies should be darted out against God and his Christ ordinarily, openly, being made [s] phrases of gallantrie to the brauer, and verie interiections of speech vnto the vulgar. But in England (where the scepter of Christs kingdome hath a long time flourished) it cannot but wound the hearts of such as mourne for the sinnes of the land, to consider how commonly, not only the ruffian at the tauerne, and the rascall on the stage: but also the Labourer at his worke, and the Gentleman at his recreation, and the very boyes, yea babes in the street curse their Maker, and reuile their Redeemer. Other sinnes are clothed (in some sort) with excuse before men, in respect either of profit, or pleasure, content, or credit: but in swearing there is neither good, nor gaine, nor glorie. I beseech you therefore (my deare bowels in the Lord) instruct your children and seruants, how to serue God in a liuely faith, and a reuerend feare, let your whole life be to them a walking Catechisme, that they may sing alway the mercies of the Lord, and shew forth his truth from generation to generation.

[m] Psal. 14. 6.

[n] Psal. 140. 3.

[o] Esay 6. 6.
[p] Matth. 3. 11. Acts 2. 3.
[q] Chap. 3. 6.

[r] Chrysost. hom. 99. in Matth.

[s] Relation of Religion, sect. 33.

PSALME 110.

The Lord said vnto my Lord, sit thou on my right hand, vntill I make thine enemies thy footstoole.

THis Psalme (saith [t] Augustine) is in the number of words short, but in the weight of matter ample, containing so many deepe mysteries, and opposing so many dangerous heresies; that (as [u] Chrysostome notes) we need many eyes for the right reading and exact vnderstanding of it.

If we literally referre this vnto Dauid, he bringeth in a subiect or a fauourite speaking thus of himselfe, The Lord said vnto my Lord the King. Dauid as a King is a Lord, because the Lieutenant, and (as it were) Vice-gerent of the Lord. In this sense Paul telleth vs, that there be many Gods and many Lords, 1 Cor. 8. 5. many Gods in title and type, but in deed and truth one God only. Princes are Gods in name: for (saith the Lord) [x] I haue said, yee are Gods: but not in nature, for yee shall die like men. All higher powers hold their Scepters from the [y] highest power, [z] he putteth downe one, and setteth vp another, according to the stile, Iames by the grace of God, &c. [a] More principally Dauid, who was called to his kingdome by Gods especiall grace, and vsed his kingdome to Gods especiall glory. For he was a man according to Gods [b] own heart, turning from nothing the Lord commanded him all the daies of his life, saue only in the matter of Vriah the Hittite, 1 King. 15.5.

[t] In loc. Breuis numero verborum, sed magnus pondere sententiarum.
[u] In loc.

And surely (Beloued) if we will in sensu similitudinario, consider earnestly the wonderfull vnion of these two kingdomes, England and Scotland, and the flourishing estate of the Gospell, vnder the gouernment of our dread Soueraigne: we shall haue good cause to take vp this song, The Lord said vnto King Iames our Lord, sit in thy throne, for I haue both appointed and anointed thee King our Great Britannie.

[c] Or haply Dauid might speake this of himselfe, The Lord said vnto me, concerning my Lord Saul persecuting me, sit thee downe by the power of my right hand, and be well assured of my protection, vntill I haue made all thine enemies thy footstoole: that is, all such as hindred thee from thy kingdome, obedient subiects vnto thee, saying, [d] Behold, we are thy bones and thy flesh. So the Lord spake by the Prophet Nathan, 2 Sam. 12.7. I anointed thee King ouer Israel, and deliuered thee out of the hand of Saul, and gaue thee thy Lords house, and thy Lords wiues into thy bosome, and gaue thee the house of Israel and Iudah, and would moreouer (if that had beene too little) haue giuen thee such and such things, &c.

But because S. Peter, Acts 2.34. and S. Paul, Heb. 1.13. expound this text of Christ, and Christ himselfe applieth it vnto himselfe, Matth. 22.44. Mark. 12.36. Luk. 20.42. I forbeare to treat any longer of shadowes, and come to the substance, taking this Psalme for a prophesie concerning Christ in fact, and Dauid only but in figure.

[e] Genebrard.

Christ then is described here,
1. [e] As a King, vers. 1, 2, 3.
2. As a Priest, vers. 4, 5.
3. As a Iudge, vers. 6, 7.

His kingdome is great in respect of
- Countenance, The Lord said vnto my Lord, sit thou on my right hand.
- Continuance, Vntill I make thine enemies thy footstoole, &c.

[f] Tremellius.

Or, [f] three points are remarkable concerning his kingdome;
1. His calling to this kingdome by God the Father, vers. 1.
2. His administration of this kingdome by the scepter of his word, vers. 2.
3. His subiects obedience to this administration, vers. 3.

[g] Apud Pet. Galatin. de arcanis lib. 8. cap. 24.
[h] Heb. 1.13.
[i] Apud Hieron. in Matth. 22. & D Incognit & Agellium in loc.
[k] Iustin Martyr. in dialog. contra Triphonum, & Tertullian. lib. 5. contra Marcian.
[l] Vti Chrysost. in loc.
[m] Heb 1.8.

[g] Some Doctors among the Iewes haue construed this of Danids Angell, appointed by the Lord for his peculiar guard and guide. But I say to them out of [h] S. Paul, Vnto which of the Angels said the Lord at any time, sit at my right hand, vntill I make thine enemies thy footstoole? [i] Other Rabbins expound this of Abraham, as making it a thanksgiuing vnto the Lord, for the victorie which he got against the foure Kings, Gen. 14. Other vnderstand this of [k] Ezechiah: other of Zorobabel. But all these holy Fathers are dead, and haue slept long in the dust of their graue: whereas the Lord (here mentioned) is a Priest for euer, and hath a kingdome [m] without end. And so consequently, this Psalme cannot aptly be construed either of man, or Angell, or of any other meere creature; but of Christ alone the Messias and Mediator, being the sonne of Dauid as man, and the Lord of Dauid as God. Non dixit Dauid, Dominus Domini mei; sed Dominus Domino meo. Chrysost. ser. de Trinitate.

The Iewes vnderstood not this, and therefore they could not answer Christs question, Matth. 22.45. If Dauid call him Lord, how is he then his sonne? neither should we haue learned this, except Christ and his Apostles had taught it vs. Nunc ergo, saith saith [n] Augustine, quia didicimus, dicimus; as we haue read, so we beleeue, that Christ, as being [o] equall to God, is the Lord of Dauid: and as found in the forme of a seruant, the sonne of Dauid. As [p] in the beginning, the Lord of Dauid: as made flesh, the sonne of Dauid; as [q] conceiued and borne of a Virgin, the sonne of Dauid: as Emmanuel, the Lord of Dauid. See Hierom. in Matth. 22. Pet. Galatin. de arcanis lib. 3. cap. 17. & lib. 8. cap. 24. Chrysost. om. D. Incognit. August, Steuchus, Caluin, Tileman, Agellius, Bellarmine, & alios in loc.

The Lord said then vnto my Lord, is (as [r] if he should haue said) God the Father said vnto God the Son. And therefor [s] Rabbi Ionathas translateth it in the Chalde, dixit dominus verbo suo, the Lord said to his Word. Here then obserue [t] the distinction of persons in the Godhead against [u] Artemon, Sabellius, and Seruetus. The Father said vnto the Sonne, ergo, the Father is distinguished from the Sonne, [x] alius, howsoeuer not aliud, another person, albeit not another substance: for as the Father is Lord, so the Sonne Lord, and the holy Ghost Lord; and yet not three Lords, but one Lord, as Athanasius in his Creed.

The Lord said] But how, when, and where? the words of our mouthes are first (as the [y] Philosopher truly) notions of our minde. So God hath a twofold word, [z] ad intra, conceiued within himselfe, and ad extra, reuealed vnto men. According to both he said this, [a] Immensa sapientia decretum fecit, & id generi humano patefecit. First, according to his intrinsecall word, he said it before the worlds; as it is in the second Psalme, verse 7. The Lord said vnto me, thou art my sonne, this day haue I begotten thee. Secondly, according to his extrinsecal and reuealed word, he said it in the world; [b] to wit, in the beginning, Gen. 3. 15. the seed of the woman, &c. I (said the Lord vnto the serpent) will put enmitie betweene thee and the woman, and betweene thy seed, and her seed: he shall breake thine head, and thou shalt bruise his heele. Christ is that promised seed of the woman, as being [c] made of the seed of Dauid, according to the flesh; he shall breake the Serpents head, is all one with our text, sit thou on my right hand, vntill I haue made all thine enemies thy footstoole.

My] Not onely, because to be borne of my seed and posteritie; [d] but mine, in regard of mine affection, and particular application. As his mother Mary called him, my Sauiour; and his Apostle Thomas, my God; and Paul, Galath. 2. 20. Christ loued me, and gaue himselfe for me.

Lord] Saint [e] Hierome, and [f] other learned (in the Hebrew) note, that in the first place, the word translated here Lord, is proper only to God; but in the second, communicable to men. And so Christ according to his manhood, began to sit at the right hand of God after his ascension into heauen, and not before. Christ (as the Sonne of God) was euer at Gods right hand, equall in might and maiestie: for in the Trinitie none is afore or after other, none is greater or lesse than another, but all the three persons are coeternall, and coequall. As the Sonne is said in this verse, to sit at the right hand of the Father: so the Father on the Sonnes right hand, verse 5. The Lord vpon thy right hand shall wound euen Kings in the day of his wrath. But Christ as man, was not exalted vnto this honour before his glorious ascension, as Saint Peter expoundeth our text, Acts 2. 34. Dauid is not ascended vp into heauen. but the Lord said vnto my Lord, sit thou at my right hand, vntill I make thine enemies thy footstoole. Therefore let all the house of Israel know for a surety, that God hath made him both Lord and Christ; this Iesus (I meane) whom ye haue crucified. And Paul, Philip. 2. 8. He humbled himselfe, and became obedient vnto the death, euen the death of the Crosse; wherefore God hath highly exalted him. And in [g] another place, God raised him from the dead, and set him at his right hand in heauenly places.

Yet the Lord said not this vnto Christ, as vnto a meere man, [h] I am the Lord (quoth he) this is my name, and my glory will I not giue to another: but to Christ God and man, our Messias and Mediator, one person in two natures. As Christ is our Iesus and Emmanuel, he hath [i] all power in heauen, and on earth. [k] At the name of Iesus, euery knee shall bow, both of things in heauen, and things in earth, and things vnder the earth. [l] Angels and Saints in heauen; men on earth, and the deuils of hell vnder

[n] In loc.
[o] Philip. 2 6, 7.
[p] Ioh. 1. 1 14.
[q] Esay 7. 14.
[r] Turrecremat. Tremellius. Genebrardus.
[s] Galatin. de arcanis lib. 8. cap. 24 & Steuchus in loc.
[t] Placid. Parmen.
[u] Tileman.
[x] August. de ciuit. Dei, lib. 11. cap. 10. & Lombard. 1. sent. distinct. 2.
[y] Aristotle. Perihermin. cap. 1.
[z] Dr. Incognit.
[a] Melancth. in loc.
[b] Tileman.
[c] Rom. 1. 3.
[d] Agellius.
[e] In loc.
[f] Apud Genebrard. in loc. Adonai. Adoni.
[g] Ephes. 1. 20.
[h] Esay 42. 8.
[i] Mat. 28. 18.
[k] Philip 2. 10.
[l] Chrysost. Theophylact. Gorran in loc. Pauli.

vnder earth. Christ hath all power in heauen, [m] as hauing the godly subiect to him out of their deuotion: and all power on earth, as hauing the wicked made subiect to his footstoole, will they, nill they. For there is a [n] twofold subiection; one voluntary, another extorted. All glorious Angels, all blessed spirits, all good men of their owne accord yeeld obedience to Iesus fully, cheerefully: but the wicked men on earth, and the damned fiends in hell, in despite of their teeth, are blockes at his footstoole. [o] Videre ergo, quem locum habeas sub pedibus Domini Dei tui, nam necesse est vt habeas, aut gratiæ, aut pœnæ: for as euery knee should bow, so euery knee shall bow, (saith [p] Esay) that knee, that will not out of faith, shall out of feare: so Dauid here, the Lord said vnto my Lord, sit at my right hand, vntill I make thine enemies thy footstoole.

Vntill] This word [q] notes here, not a peece of time, but a perpetuitie. For Christ (after all his enemies are made his footstoole) shall euer sit at the right hand of God; his throne is for euer and euer, Heb. 1. 8. And power is vnto him that sitteth vpon the Throne for euermore, Apocal. 5. 13. So donec is vsed, Deut. 7. 23. The Lord thy God shall destroy them with a mightie destruction, vntill they be brought to nought: hereby meaning that they shall vtterly be consumed, because they cannot any more resist, after once they be brought to nothing. And Psalm. 112. vers. 8. The good mans heart is established, and will not shrinke, vntill he see his desire vpon his enemies. If his heart were not afraid for any euill tidings, when his enemies stood vp against him; how shall he shrinke when he sees their necks giuen vnto him? And Matth. 1. 25. He knew her not, vntill she had brought forth her first borne sonne, &c. Vntill, in that place doth not import (as the [r] Doctors haue well obserued against Heluidius) that Ioseph afterward carnally knew Marie; for shee was a perpetuall Virgin, as well after, as before the birth of her sonne Iesus. See 2 Sam. 6. 23. Mat. 5. 18. and 28. 20.

It is obiected against this interpretation out of S. Paul, 1 Cor. 15. 24. that Christ, after he hath put downe all things vnder his feet, shal in fine, deliuer vp the kingdome to God. Answer is made by Chrysostome, vpon our text out of Iohn 16. 15. All things that the Father hath, are mine. And Ioh. 17. 10. All mine are thine, and thine are mine. [s] As then God the Father was not without his kingdome, when as God the Sonne said, [t] all things are giuen vnto me of my Father: no more shall God the Sonne be dethroned, when he shall deliuer vp his kingdome to his Father. [u] He now raignes in secret, but when all his enemies once shall be made his footstoole, then he shall openly rule, much more, sitting at his Fathers right hand for euermore.

I make] Christ is [x] able to subdue all things vnto himselfe, and according to his power he shall also put all things vnder his feet, 1 Cor. 15. 27. How then is it true that God the Father saith, vntill I make thine enemies thy footstoole? Answer is made, that [y] whatsoeuer things the Father doth, the same things also doth the Sonne: [z] for this action is common to the Sonne with the Father, I say, common to the Sonne, [a] in respect of his eternall generation, as God, and in respect of the hypostaticall vnion as man. Yet this worke is ascribed especially to the Father, as being a work of might; according to that Orthodoxall axiome, Works of power are ascribed to the Father; of wisdome, to the Sonne; of loue, to the Holy Ghost.

Thine enemies] [b] Here note, that the Church is not a kingdome liuing alwayes in pompe, and peace; but (as [c] Salomon speakes) as an armie with banners, exposed to great danger, as being opposed by cruell and cunning enemies. If any man will take the Churches portraiture, let him (saith [d] Luther) paint a sillie poore maid sitting in a forlorne wood, or wildernesse, compassed about on euery side with hungry Lions, Wolues, Boares, Beares; in one word, with all hatefull and hurtfull beasts, and in the middest of a great many furious men, assaulting her euery minute (as they did here Christ) with [e] swords and staues; and that which is more terrible, threatning fire and water; fire, to consume her flesh and bones into ashes; water, to consume her ashes into nothing, if it were possible.

To speake more distinctly, Christ and his Church haue [f] two sorts of enemies; secular, and spirituall. Secular, as idolatrous Gentiles, blasphemous Turkes, and other

[m] Dr. Incognit.

[n] Euthym Placid. Parmen. in loc. Idem Aquin. in Philip. 2. lect. 3

[o] August in loc.

[p] Esay 45. 23.

[q] Gregor moral. lib. 8. cap 40. Chrysost. Incognit. Agellius in loc.

[r] Hieron. Chrysost. Theophylact. Euthym.

[s] Marlorat. in 1 Cor. 15. 24.

[t] Matth. 11. 27. Iohn 3. 35.

[u] See Luther, Anselme, Lombard in 1 Cor. 15. 24.

[x] Philip. 3. 21

[y] Iohn 5. 19.

[z] Euthym.

[a] Bellarmin in loc.

[b] Tileman.

[c] Cant. 6. 3.

[d] Loc com. tit. de persecut. verae Eccles.

[e] Matth. 26. 47.

[f] Tileman.

other barbarous Infidels out of the Church: as also violent Tyrants, virulent Heretikes, fradulent Antichrists in the bosome of the Church. For (as g Luther notes out of Augustine) the Church hath had a threefold oppression. The first violent, by persecuting Emperors: the second fradulent, by subtle heretikes: the third both violent, and fraudulent, by pestilent Antichrists in the kingdome of Poperie; where the temporall power, and spirituall are ioyned together, against all that is called God.

g Vbi sup.

Now Christ is a ruler in the middest of all these: h the Lord is King, be the people neuer so impatient; he sits betweene the Cherubims, be the earth neuer so vnquiet. Howsoeuer the i Gentiles furiously rage together, and vngodly Princes take counsell together, against his anointed: he that dwelleth in heauen shall laugh them to scorne, he shall haue them in derision; he shall bruise them with a rod of iron, and breake them in peeces like a potters vessell. Albeit k foure wicked Angels stand on the foure corners of the earth, holding the foure windes, that the winde should not blow on the earth, neither on the sea, neither on any tree: yet l Christ hauing the seale of the liuing God, cries with a loud voice to the foure Angels, to whom power was giuen to hurt the earth and the sea: Hurt yee not the earth, neither the sea, neither the trees; vntill we haue sealed the seruants of our God in their foreheads. He sits at Gods right hand, till his enemies are made his foot stoole: m that is, vntill he say to Tyrants, and Hypocrites, and Heretikes, and Antichrists, and to the whole rabble of the reprobate, depart from me yee cursed into euerlasting fire, which is prepared for the deuill and his angels.

h Psal 99.1.
i Psal.2.
k Apoc.7.1.
l See Epist on All Saints day
m Vatablus in loc.

The spirituall enemies of Christ and his Church, are Satan and all his complices, sinne, torment of conscience, malediction of the law, death, hell; ouer all which our blessed Sauiour n triumphed openly. For in dying, he did ouercome death; and in rising againe from the dead, he made the graue his foot stoole, saying, o O death, I will be thy death; O graue, I will be thy destruction. Now (beloued) his conquest is our victorie; for he did ouercome the world for vs, and the deuill for vs, and death for vs. He was wounded for our p transgressions, and broken for our iniquities; his name is q the Lord our righteousnesse; he therefore died for our sins, and rose againe for our iustification. He deliuered vs out of the hands of all our enemies, that we might serue him all the dayes of our life without feare. As for our sinnes, he saith, Esa.43.25, I, euen I am he, that putteth away thine iniquities for mine owne sake, and will not remember thy faults. r Albeit they were like crimson, they shall be made white as snow: though they were red as scarlet, they shall be like wooll: the bloud of Iesus Christ cleanseth vs from all sinne, 1 Ioh.1.7. He redeemed vs from the curse of the Law, when he was made a curse for vs, Galath.3.13. He put out that handwriting of ordinances against vs; he cancelled that obligation, and tooke it out of the way, fastning it vpon his Crosse, Colos.2.14. Concerning torment of conscience, being iustified by faith, we haue peace toward God, through Iesus Christ our Lord, Rom.5.1.

n Colos.2.15.
o Hos.13.14.
p Esay 53.5.
q Ierem.23.6.
r Esay 1.18.

Lastly, touching death and hell; he s destroyes death for euer, and wipes away the teares from the faces of all his people, that they may triumph in the words of t Paul, O death where is thy sting? O graue where is thy victorie? the sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the Law: but thanks be to God, that hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Iesus Christ. He that beleeueth in the Lord Iesus, hath u eternall life; neither shall he taste of the x second death. If God then be with vs, who can be against vs? If the Lord haue said vnto my Lord, sit on my right hand, vntill I haue made thine enemies thy footstoole; what need I feare what either man, or Angell, or deuill is able to doe against me? My Iesus is a y refuge against the tempest, and a shadow against the heat, a z present helpe in my tribulation and trouble. a Who shall lay any thing to my charge, seeing it is God that iustifieth? and who shall condemne, seeing Christ which is dead, yea rather which is risen againe, sitteth at the right hand of God, and maketh intercession for vs daily? b He saith, I am with you till the end, and then he will say vnto vs in the end, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

s Esay 25.8.
t 1 Cor.15.55.
u Iohn 17.3.
x Apocal.20.6.
y Esay 25.4.
z Psalm 46.1.
a Rom.8.33.
b Mat.28.20.

The

The Lord shall send the rod of thy power out of Sion.] A [c] Captaine sent from Cæsar, vnto the Senatours of Rome, to sue for the prolonging of his gouernment abroad; vnderstanding (as he stood at the Counsell chamber doore) that they would not condescend to his desire, clapping his hand vpon the pummell of his sword; Well (said he) seeing you will not grant it him, this shall giue it him. So when the Citizens of Messana, despising Pompeies iurisdiction, alleaged ancient orders, and priuileges of the Romans in old time granted vnto their Towne: Pompey did answer them in choller, (as Plutarch relates in his life) What doe you prattle to vs of your law, that haue our swords by our sides? So [d] Mahumet dissolueth all arguments by the sword; in [e] his kingdome no man is aduanced vnto places of any great worth or worship, but the Souldier; and the [f] left hand among the Turks is accounted most honourable, because the sword hangs on that side. So Tyrants and Potentates of the world, end all their quarrels, and make their enemies their footstoole, by the sword. But the scepter of Christs kingdome is not a sword of steele, but a sword of the Spirit; he ruleth in the middest of his enemies, and subdueth a people to himselfe, not by the sword, but by the [g] word: for the Gospell is the power of his arme to saluation, Rom. 1. 16. casting downe holds, and imaginations, and euery high thing that is exalted against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captiuitie euery thought vnto the obedience of Christ, 2 Cor. 10. 5.

[c] Plutarch in the life of Cæsar.

[d] Caluine. Turcis. lib. 1. cap 4.
[e] Vbertas Folieta. tract. de causis magnitud. imperij Turcici.
[f] Augerius. Busbequius legat. Turcic. epist. 1.
[g] Melanthon. Tileman. Vatablus. Agellius.

And the Lord is said here to send the rod of his power out of Sion, according to the prophecies of [h] Isaiah, and [i] Micah; the law shall goe forth of Sion, and the word of the Lord from Hierusalem. The blessed Apostles (as we read, Acts 2.) receiued the gifts of the holy Ghost at Hierusalem, and exercised also these gifts of vtterance first in Hierusalem. It is true that their [k] sound went out thorow all the earth, and their words vnto the ends of the world; and that they did execute their commission in preaching vnto [l] euery creature: but yet according to their masters iniunction, Luke 24. 47. they began at Hierusalem. So Paul and Barnabas told the Iewes, Act. 13. 46. It was necessary that the word of God should first haue beene spoken vnto you: but seeing yee put it from you, and iudge your selues vnworthy of euerlasting life; lo we turne to the Gentiles Here then is a pregnant text, to proue that the Gospell is not the word of [m] man, but the wisdome of [n] God, and [o] sword of his spirit; for that it is agreeable to the predictions of all his holy Prophets, euer since the world began. Againe, [p] this euidence confutes the Iewes, obstinately denying that the promised Messias is come. His word commeth out of Sion, he must (according to this prophecie) begin his spirituall kingdome in Hierusalem, euen while the Iewes Commonwealth and religion is standing: for the scepter shall not depart from Iuda, nor a lawgiuer betweene his feet, vntill Shilo come, and the people shall be gathered vnto him, Genes. 49. 10. But alas, Hierusalem hath a long time beene made leuell with the [q] ground: [r] she that was great among the Nations, and Princesse among the Prouinces, is now made tributary. Barbarus has segetes-the Lord hath so darkned the daughter of Sion in his wrath, and cast downe from heauen vnto the earth Israels glory, Lam. 2. 1. that the barbarous [s] Gog and Magog are now lords of that (sometime) holy land; Hierusalem in old time the City of God, is now (being possessed by the Turkes) nothing else but a den of theeues. Ergo, Christ is that promised Messias: it is [t] he that should come, neither need we looke for another.

[h] Cap. 2. vers. 3.
[i] Cap. 4. vers. 2.
[k] Rom. 10. 18.
[l] Mark. 16. 15.
[m] 1 Thess. 2. 13
[n] 1 Cor. 2. 7.
[o] Ephes. 6. 17.
[p] Tileman in loc.
[q] Luk. 19. 44.
[r] Lament. 1. 1.
[s] Apocal. 20. 8.
[t] Matth. 11. 3.

Be thou ruler in the midst among thine enemies] By [u] rod, is meant Christs scepter; because strong rods are for the scepters of them that beare rule, Ezech. 19. 11. and Ier. 48. 17. How is the strong staffe broken, and the beautifull rod? And by his scepter is meant his power; and the word is that his power, by which he rules in the middest of all his enemies: conuerting such enemies as appertaine to Gods election; and confounding such enemies as are the sonnes of perdition: his Gospell is vnto the one, the sauour of life vnto life; and to the other, the sauour of death vnto death, 2 Corinth. 2. 16.

[u] Agellius, Bellarmin.

The blessed Apostles preached the Gospell in the middest of their enemies, [x] as being sheepe in the middest of woolues, Mat. 10. 16. And [y] Irenæus, who liued in the next age, witnesseth also that the Church increased in Egypt, Lybia, France, Spaine, Germanie, [x] Chrysost. Euthym.

[y] Lib. 1. cap. 2. & 3.

Germanie, comparing the light of the Gospell vnto the Sunne, illuminating all men excepting such as are lost, hauing their mindes blinded by the Prince of this world, 2 Corinth.4.4.

In all after times vnto this present day Christ ruled, & his kingdome flourished in despight of al his enemies, in the middest of Atheists, in the middest of Infidels, in the middest of Heretiks, in the middost of Hypocrites, in the middest of Tyrants, in the middest of Turkes, in the middest of Anti-christs. At the worlds end (when our blessed Sauiour sitting at his Fathers right hand shall vtterly [z] put downe all things vnder his feet) the good shall be separated from the bad, as a shepheard separates the sheepe from the goats, Mat.25.32. But so long as the world (that [a] lieth in wickednesse) continueth, the [b] wheat groweth among tares, and the Church is euer as a lillie among [c] thornes, assaulted on the one side by vnbeleeuers, and on the other side by mis-beleeuers. On the left hand by the blasphemous propositions of Heretikes, on the right hand by the contentious oppositions of Schismatikes: openly wronged by cut-throat tyrants, and secretly wringed by bac-biting hypocrites. [d] Varro writes, that the Romanes in old time did ouercome their enemies sedendo: but the Romanists in our time thinke to make their enemies (as it were) their footstoole cadendo, by dagge and dagger, by powder-plots, and powder-shots, by fire, force, furie. Yet notwithstanding Christ is a Ruler, and his subiects are [e] more than Conquerours in the very middest of Anti-christianisme. For the beheading of Martyrs is like the [f] cutting of vines, the more they be cut, the more they prosper and fructifie. The [g] Church saith, as Paul, 2 Cor.12.10. When I am weake, then am I strong. [h] Martin Luther (assisted doubtlesse by Gods owne spirit) so little regarded the bloudie Papists in the quarrell of Christs Gospell, as that he said peremptorily, Contemptus est à me Romanus furor & feruor. And therefore being aduised by some good friends, that he would not aduenture himselfe to be present at the meeting of the Germane Princes at Wormes; he did answer them in this wise: For as much as I am sent for, I am resolued and certainly determined to enter Wormes, in the name of our Lord Iesus Christ, although I knew there were so many deuils to resist me, as there are tyles to couer all the houses in Wormes: Fox Martyr.fol.776. And [i] B. Latymer being brought to the stake, was so well assured, that Christ euen by his weakenesse should rule in the middest of his enemies, as that vpon the kindling of the first fagot, he said to his fellow Martyr, Bishop Ridley: Courage brother Ridley, we shall (by Gods grace) this day light such a candle in England, as I hope shall neuer be put out againe.

In the day of thy power, shall the people offer thee free-will offerings.] Christ (by the preaching of his word) subdueth vnto himselfe a good and a great people. Good, They shall offer thee free-will offerings with an holy worship. Great, The dew of thy birth is of the wombe of the morning. In the dayes of thy power, [k] that is, in the dayes of thy solemne assemblies, in the dayes of thy [l] Gospell, vntill thou shalt ouercome thine enemies with the [m] spirit of thy mouth, and abolish them with the brightnesse of thy comming: thy people shall offer free-will offerings vnto thee, [n] not enforced by law, but comming out of loue; not out of fashion or faction, but in pure deuotion and cheerefull obedience. They shall appeare before thee with an holy worship, or as our new translation, in the beauties of holinesse: that is, in thy [o] Temple, which is a glorious Sanctuarie, Psalm.29.2. [p] Or in a holinesse equalling the holinesse of thy Sanctuary; for good Christians are the temples of God, 1 Cor.3.16, Or by beauties of holinesse, he meaneth haply the [q] Priests garment, insinuating, that Christs elect people should be named [r] the Priests of the Lord, a chosen generation, a royall Priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people, shewing forth the vertues of him that hath called them out of darknesse into maruellous light, 1 Pet.2.9. The summe of all is, that the subiects of his kingdome shall appeare before him in [s] all kinde of sanctitie, [t] resplendent in holinesse, and shining in good workes as lights in the world, Philip 2.15.

If all Christs people then offer him free-will offerings with an holy worship, he will not abide such as are hypocrites, who serue the truth onely to serue their turne, [u] taking his couenant in their mouth, and yet hate to be reformed. [x] To the petition (let [z] 1 Cor.15.19.

[a] 1 Iohn.5.19.
[b] Mat.13.30.
[c] Cant.2.2.

[d] Lib. de re rustica.

[e] Rom.8.37.

[f] Iustin Mart in dialog.cum Tryphon.
[g] Baronius praefat.tom.8.annal
[h] Loc.com.tit.de Luthero.

[i] Mr Fox in his martyrdome.

[k] Caluin.
[l] Tremellius.
[m] 2 Thess.2.8.
[n] Melanct. Mollerus. Tileman.
[o] Tremel. Wilcox.
[p] Agellius.
[q] Tileman. Melanct. Mollerus.
[r] Esay 61.6.

[s] Genebrard.

[t] Bellarm.
[u] Psal.50.16.
[x] Bradford in a letter to the City of London.

(let thy kingdome come) we must adioyne thy will be done, done on earth, as it is in heauen. He will (as [y] S. Iohn telleth vs) spue such out of his mouth as are neither hot nor cold, mungrils in religion, [z] halting betweene God and Baal, hauing (as the [a] Prophet speakes) a diuided heart, an heart and an heart, like the [b] Hares in Bisaltia, or the Partriges in Paphlagonia. [c] The way of Christ is so strait, that it will suffer no reeling to this side, or that side: if any halt in it, he is like to fall off the bridge into the pit of eternall perdition. The Lord (for our example) hath inflicted heauie iudgement in all ages, vpon such as haue not vprightly walked, but halted before him: I will only remember one, which hapned vpon [d] Castellanus, who (hauing first inriched himselfe by the Gospell, and afterward forsaking the pure doctrine thereof, and turning againe to his popish vomit, so that he persecuted the Christians in Orleance) by the hand of God was stricken in his bodie with a grieuous sickneſse, vnknowne to the Physitians, the one halfe of his body burning as hot as fire, and the other being so cold as ice, and so miserably crying and lamenting, ended his life.

The dew of thy birth is as the wombe of the morning] A very difficult place, diuersly construed, either of Christ himselfe, or of his gifts, or of his people. First of Christ himselfe, and that in respect of his Godhead, and of his Manhood. Of his [e] Godhead, that the Father saith vnto him, of the wombe (that is, of mine owne essence (before the early morning (that is, before the world was) thou hast the dew of thy youth, or birth; noting his eternall generation before all worlds, as is shewed Prou. 8. 22, 23, 24, 25. And according to this sense, the Septuagint Interpreters haue translated, of the womb before the morning starre begat I thee. If it be meant of his Manhood, it may be [f] thus expounded, of the wombe of the darke morning, or Virgin, thou hast the dew of thy birth. If we will vnderstand of his [g] gifts and grace, the plentifull and abundant dew of thy gifts and gladnesse aboue thy fellowes, was in thee from the very wombe. But because Dauid in this verse speakes neither of the person, nor of the gifts of the Messias, but of his subiects, I side with [h] our Diuines, who reade and interpret it after this sort, thy youth, or new-borne people, shall be to thee as the morning dew. By the preaching of thy word, thou shalt bring forth a people not onely good, but also great, whose increase shall be so plentifull and wonderfull as the drops of the morning dew. For as the dew, that secretly falls from heauen abundantly, couereth and refresheth all the earth: so thy word, by the secret operation of the Holy Spirit [i] stilling as the dew, and as the showre vpon the herbes, is that [k] immortall seed, by which an incredible number of children are begotten vnto God, ouer-spreading the face of the whole world, according to that of [l] S. Iohn, To them he gaue power to be the sonnes of God, euen to them that beleeue in his name, which are borne not of bloud, nor of the will of the flesh nor of the will of man, but of God. This exposition I take to be most agreeable to the drift of our text, and to the words of our translation.

[m] Non roris imber ante lucem argenteis
tot vestit arua gemmulis, Quàm multa cunctis gentium de finibus ad te propago confluet.

The Lord sware and will not repent] Men (as Paul teacheth, Heb. 6.) sweare by him that is greater than themselues: but Almightie God, as hauing none greater to sweare by, sware by himselfe to father Abraham, Genes. 22. 16. By my selfe haue I sworne (saith the Lord) because thou hast done this thing, and hast not spared thine onely Sonne, therfore will I surely blesse thee, and will greatly multiply thy seed as the starres of the heauen, and as the sand which is vpon the sea shore, and thy seed shall possesse the gate of his enemies, and in thy seed all the nations of the earth shall be blessed. This oath is repeated and renewed againe vnto Isaac, Genes. 26. 3. The Lord appeared vnto him, and said, I will performe the oath which I sware vnto Abraham thy father. And the seruants and Saints of God euer highly reuerenced and esteemed this oath. He (saith our [n] Prophet) is the Lord our God, he hath alway beene mindfull of his couenant and promise, that he made to a thousand generations, euen the couenant that he made with Abraham, and the oath that he sware to Isaac. And Ierem. 11. 4. Thus saith the Lord, ye shall be my people, and I will be your God, that I may confirme the [y] Apoc. 3. 16.

[z] 1 King. 18. 21
[a] Hosea 10. 2.
[b] Aul. Gellius Noct. attic. lib. 16. cap. 15.
[c] Bradford in a letter to Dr. Hill Physitian.
[d] Fox Mart. fol. 1911.

[e] Chrysost. Hieron. Augustine. Fulgym in loc Idem Ambrose de fide, lib 1. cap 6. & Euseb. hist. lib. 1 cap 4.
[f] See Tertull. lib. 5 cont. Mar. & Iustin. dialog. cum Tryphon. Galat. de arcanis lib. 3 cap 17 Melanct. in loc.
[g] See Stenchus & Mollerus in loc.
[h] Bucer. Caluin. Mollerus. Tilemin. Genua gloss. Strigellius. Trimellius.
[i] Deut. 32. 2.
[k] 1 Pet. 1. 23.
[l] Iohn 1. 12.
[m] Buchanan Paraphras. in loc.

[n] Psal. 105. 8.

the oath, which I haue ſworne vnto your fathers. And Zacharias in his hymne, Bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael, for he hath viſited and redeemed his people, &c. As he ſpake by the mouth of his holy Prophets euer ſince the world began, &c. performing that oath, which he ſware to our forefather Abraham.

It was in the Lord great mercie to giue his word, that he would in the fulneſſe of time ſend his Sonne for the redemption of the world, ſaying, The ſeed of the woman ſhall breake the Serpents head: but it was aſſuredly greater mercie to ſweare by his [o] holineſſe, that he would performe this promiſe. God is truth, and we haue good cauſe to beleeue him vpon his word, who made vs and all things elſe by his [p] word: but yet for our better aſſurance, being deſirous more abundantly to ſhew vnto the heires of promiſe the ſtableneſſe of his counſell, bound himſelfe with an oath, that by two immutable things, in which it was impoſſible for him to lie, we might haue ſtrong conſolation, Heb. 6. 18.

[o] Pſal 89.34.
[p] Pſal. 33. 9.

Theſe two things are his word and oath His word is true, Pſal. 33. 4. I (quoth the Lord) [q] haue ſpoken it, and I will performe it. [r] God is not as man, that he ſhould lie; neither as the ſonne of man, that he ſhould repent: hath he ſaid, and ſhall he not doe it? and hath he ſpoken, and ſhall he not accompliſh it? [s] Heauen and earth ſhall paſſe away, but not one iot of his word ſhall paſſe away till all things be fulfilled. And if his bare word be thus immutable, then his * oath much more, which among men is an end of all ſtrife, Heb. 6. 16. Behold then here the goodneſſe of the Father of mercies, and God of comfort, who for our ſake did not only ſay, but alſo ſweare, that Chriſt is our Prieſt for euer. Happie men are they who beleeue this promiſe, for that is [t] eternall life: but accurſed are ſuch as [u] neglect ſo great ſaluation. He that beleeues not God, maketh him a lier (ſaith [x] S. Iohn:) Nay, ſeeing God hath bound his word with an oath, he that beleeues not his record concerning his Sonne, doth accuſe God of periurie. This ought to comfort vs in all our tentations, at the houre of death, and in the day of iudgement. For albeit we haue ſinned againſt heauen, and againſt earth; againſt God in heauen, againſt our brethren on earth: although our ſins are great for their number, and grieuous for their naturre; yet let vs goe [y] boldly to the throne of grace, that we may receiue mercie. For as much as we haue ſuch an high Prieſt, as is touched with a feeling of our infirmities, and ſaith, [z] I am not come to call the righteous to repentance, but ſinners, and ſweareth, [a] as I liue, I deſire not the death of a ſinner; let not any deſpaire, [b] though he haue denied Chriſt, as Peter; and betrayed Chriſt, as Iudas; and crucified Chriſt, as Pilate.

[q] Ezech. 37. 14
[r] Numb. 23. 19
[s] Luk. 21. 33. Matth. 5. 18.
* Quoad nos.
[t] Ioh. 17. 3.
[u] Heb 2. 3.
[x] 1 Epiſt. 5. 10.
[y] Heb 4. 16.
[z] Matth. 9. 13.
[a] Ezech. 33. 11.
[b] Ferus poſtil. ſer. 5, in Dom. Septuageſ.

And will not repent] The paſſions of men are aſcribed to God, ſecundùm effectum, (as [c] Aquine ſpeakes) but not ſecundum affectum. And ſo the Scripture ſpeaking [d] groſly to mans vnderſtanding, ſaith, that the Spirit is [e] grieued, and that the Lord [f] repented he had made man, and [g] Saul King; and Ionah 3. 10. God repented of the euill that he had ſaid that he would doe to Nineueh. The Lord in his ſecret counſell, is yeſterday, and to day, and the ſame alſo for euer, Heb. 13. 8. But vnto vs men (in his reuealed word) he ſeemes to put on affections of anger and griefe, [h] behauing himſelfe as one who repents and grieues. Againe, God ſpeakes in his reuealed word, ſometimes conditionally, ſometimes abſolutely. His ſentence concerning the deſtruction of Nineueh was only conditionall, if they did not repent; according to that of the [i] Pſalmiſt, If a man will not turne, then he will whet his ſword. And therefore when the Lord ſaw the works of the men of Nineueh, that they turned from their euill wayes, he turned away his wrath from them. Et ſic Deus (as one pithily) non vertitur, ſed auertitur orationibus noſtris. But when Almightie God ſpeakes abſolutely, thou art my Sonne, and as in our text categorically, thou art a Prieſt for euer, &c. he will not repent, nor [k] alter the thing which is gone out of his mouth. See S. Auguſtine de diuerſis quæſt. ad Simplicium lib. 2. quæſt. 2. Rupert. Caluin. in caput 3. Ionæ, Auguſtin. D. Incognit. Bellarmin. & alios in loc.

[c] 1. Part. quæſt. 21. art. 3.
[d] Rom 6. 19.
[e] Epheſ. 4. 30.
[f] Gen. 6. 6.
[g] 1 Sam. 15. 11
[h] Placid. Parmen.
[i] Pſal. 7 13.
[k] Pſal 89. 34.

Thou art a Prieſt for euer] The Lord teacheth vs how we ſhould ſweare, by precept, and patterne. By precept, Ier. 4. 2. Thou ſhalt ſweare in truth, in iudgement, & in righteouſneſſe. Where [l] Diuines obſerue, that theſe three vertues ought to be the companions of all our oathes. Iudgement forbids all raſh and idle ſwearing; truth, all lying and false swearing; righteousnesse, all blasphemous and vngodly swearing by the creatures. God (according to this precept) sweareth himselfe here; he sweares in righteousnesse, as swearing by himselfe, being both omnipotent, and omniscient: in truth, for that he will not repent: in iudgement, saying to his Son, thou art a Priest for euer. [m] When he spake before of Christs kingdome, he said only, sit thou at my right hand: but now treating of Christs Priesthood, he sweares: [n] insinuating that the Priesthood of Christ is of exceeding great consequence; for the Lord (instructing vs how we may sweare by his own example) sweares not in any trifling case, but for the confirmation of a serious and necessarie truth of a most high nature.

[l] Hieron. in loc & Thomas 2 2 æ quæſt. 89. art. 3.

[m] Agellius in loc.
[n] Caluin. in loc.

Let vs examine therefore how Christ is a Priest for euer. An high Priest (as the [o] Scripture defineth) is a person called of God from among men, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices vnto God for the sins of men. Such an high Prist is Christ, immediatly called of God, in that he said, thou art a Priest, and he gaue himself for vs, to be both an [p] offering, and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling sauour to God, Ephes. 5.2. [q] He is the reconciliation for our sinnes, and as an Aduocate with the Father in the court of heauen, euer pleading the merit of his oblation & obedience, the sole Mediator betweene God and man, 1 Tim. 2.5. and he is a Priest for euer, because with one offering he consecrated for euer, them that are sanctified, Heb. 10.14. The powerfull operation of his passion endureth for euer, being the [r] Lambe slaine from the beginning of the world, and bleeding (as it were) to the worlds end. S. Paul in his Epistle to the Hebrewes, hath vnfolded this part of our text so fully, that (as [s] Hierome speakes) it is superfluous to bring an after (or other) interpretatiō.

[o] Heb. 5.1.
[p] See Epist 3. Sund. in Lent.
[q] 1 Iohn 2,2.
[r] Apocal. 13. 8.
[s] In loc.

I will here rest only in his Commentarie, consisting of two points especially; the

1. Shewing the difference betweene the Priesthood of Aaron, & Christ.
2. Describing the resemblance betweene the Priesthood of Christ, and Melchisedech.

1. The Priesthood of Aaron, with al the sacrifices & ceremonies belonging thereunto, was nothing else but a type of things to come: the [t] tabernacles and holy places, were figures of the true Sanctuarie; the diuers washings, & other carnall rites, were similitudes of heauenly things. In a word, the whole Law had the shadow of good things to come, but not the very substance of the things, Heb. 10.1. But Christ is the [u] bodie of the shadow, and his Priesthood the truth of Aarons type. Ioh. 1.17. The Law was giuen by Moses, but grace and truth came by Iesus Christ, as being our only Priest appeasing the wrath of God, and taking away the sins of the world; for [x] among men there is giuen no other name vnder heauen, whereby we must be saued. And therefore the holy Fathers in their killing of beasts, & sprinkling of bloud, had euer an eye to the shedding of Christs bloud on the Crosse, beleeuing that his bloud should [y] cleanse them from all their sins, and [z] not the bloud of Goats, and Calues, and Buls. And the Prophets in their Sermons vsually taxe their hypocrisie, who neglecting spirituall deuotions, & faith in Christ, only rested and trusted in outward oblations. [a] What haue I to doe with the multitude of your sacrifices (saith the Lord) I am full of the burnt offerings of Lambes, and the fat of fed beasts, I desire not the bloud of Bullocks, nor of Lambes, nor of Goats, Incense is an abomination vnto me, my soule hateth your new Moones, and your appointed Feasts, all of them are a burthen vnto me, and I am weary to beare them. And Mich. 6.7. Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of Rams, or with ten thousand riuers of oyle? nay, the sacrifice best accepted of God, is a troubled spirit a broken and contrite heart, O God, shalt thou not despise, Psal. 51.17.

[t] Heb 9.
[u] Coloss. 2.17.
[x] Acts 4.12.
[y] 1 Iohn. 1.7.
[z] Heb 9.12.13.
[a] Esay 1.11.

2. The Priesthood of Aaron, and the kingdome of Israel, were distinct offices and incompetible; the Priest vnder the Law might not incroach vpon the royalties of the King, nor the King execute the Priests office: for when [b] Vzziah the King went into the Temple of the Lord to burne incense; the Priests of the Lord withstood him, and said vnto him, It appertaineth not vnto thee (Vzziah) to burne incense vnto the Lord, but to the Priests, the sonnes of Aaron, consecrated to this office. Go forth forth of the Sanctuarie, for thou hast transgressed: and Vzziah the King was a leper vnto the day of his death. But Christ is both a Priest, and a Prince, the Scepter and the Miter meet together in him.

[b] 2 Chro. 26.16

3. Aaron, Eleazar, and [c] euery high Priest vnder the Law, did enter into the holy place by the bloud of goats and calues, which he did offer for himselfe, and for the sinnes of the people. But Christ our Priest, entred into the most holy place by his owne bloud, and obtained eternall redemption for vs, Heb. 9. 12. He [d] gaue himselfe for our sins, that he might deliuer vs from this present euill world. It was impossible, that the bloud of buls and goats should take away sinnes, Heb. 10. 4. He therefore did [e] offer his owne body, redeeming his Church euen with his owne [f] precious bloud.

[c] Leuit. 16.

[d] Galat. 1. 4.

[e] Ephes 5. 2.
[f] 1 Pet. 1. 19.

4. Aaron was anointed with an [g] oyle made of pleasant spices and balsame: but God hath anointed Christ with oyle of gladnesse, Psal. 45. 8. The spirit of the Lord (quoth [h] he) hath anointed me, that I should preach the Gospell vnto the poore, and hath sent me, that I should heale the broken hearted, &c.

[g] Leuit 8 12. Psalm 133. 2.
[h] Luk. 4. 18. 21.

5. Aaron, and euery high Priest of the Iewes, offered vp sacrifice, [i] first for his owne sinnes, and then for the people. But Christ as being holy, blameless, vndefiled, Heb. 7. 26. who knew no sinne, 2 Cor. 5. 21. who did [k] no wickednesse, neither was any deceit in his mouth, offered vp himselfe only for our sinnes; he was wounded for our transgressions, he was broken for our iniquities, he carried our sorrows, and with his stripes are we healed.

[i] Leuit. 16. 6. Heb 7. 27.
[k] Esay 53. 9.

6. Aaron and his successors were Priests of the Iewes, & tied only to the Temple of [l] Hierusalem: but Christ is for all persons, and all places, at all times, a Priest for euer, an vniuersall Bishop of our soules, as he told the woman of [m] Samaria, the houre commeth, & is now, when ye shall neither in this mountaine, nor at Hierusalem worship the Father; but the true worshippers shall euery where worship him in spirit and truth.

[l] Deut. 12. 11. Iohn 4. 20
[m] Ioh 4. 21.

7. Aaron, and other Priests vnder the Law, were made without swearing of an oath; but Christ is made by an oath, by him that said vnto him, the Lord hath sworne, and will not repent, thou art a Priest for euer, after the order of Melchisedech, Heb. 7. 20, 21.

8. Aarons Priesthood was temporarie, but the Priesthood of Christ is for euer. Eleazer succeeded Aaron, and Phineas Eleazer, and so downward: for among the [n] Iewes many were made Priests, because they could not endure by reason of death: but Christ, because he endureth for euer, hath an euerlasting Priesthood. The Iewes haue now [o] neither Prince, nor Prophet, nor burnt offering, nor sacrifice, nor oblation, nor incense, for the Lord repented, [p] that is, changed Aarons Priesthood: but Christ (as our text hath it) is consecrated by God the Father a Priest for euer. None can succeed him, he will not giue his glory to another, Esay 42. 8. and therfore the blasphemous opinion of the [q] Papists is detestable, who make the Pope successor vnto Peter, and Peter the successor vnto Christ, in his Priesthood. So they prate, print, and paint in their [r] Catalogues of the Romane Bishops.

[n] Heb 7. 23.

[o] Song of the three Children, vers. 38.
[p] Bellarmin de cultu sanct. cap 10 §. secundo respondet
[q] See Tileman. Hesshusius in loc.
[r] In fine Chron Marian. Sect & Mart. Polan.
[s] Fox Martyr. fol 1027.

I will not dispute this point after Paul, Heb. 7. 25. concluding peremptorily that Christ, and only Christ is able perfectly to saue them that come vnto God by him, seeing he liueth euer to make intercession for them, [s] as that learned man and martyr, Iohn Lambert, in his greatest agonie, none but Christ, none but Christ. All the Peters, and Peeres, and Popes in the world, which euer haue beene, are, and shall be, cannot sacrifice so much as may satisfie God for the sins of one poore soule. Christ alone is our Priest for euer, at whose right hand, God the Father standeth assistant, to [t] performe what soeuer he hath either said or sworne to him, euen to the confusion of Kings, and all other great enemies in the day of his wrath.

[t] Genebrard. in loc.

And surely this clause, for euer, (as that holy Martyr of God [u] Iohn Bradford obserued) euidently shewes that the Popish Masse is a most iniurious enemie to Christ, in respect of his Priesthood and sacrifice. The Priesthood of Christ is an euerlasting Priesthood, and such a function as cannot goe to another: but the Masse doth vtterly put him out of place, as though he were dead for euer, and so God were a lier, who said he should liue for euer. Againe, it is a pernitious enemie to his sacrifice, for, to reiterate a thing once done for the full accomplishing of the end, wherefore it was begun, declareth imperfection of the same thing before; but the Masse-Priests reiterate the sacrifice of Christ once done, for the end wherefore it was begun, (that is, for propitiation and remission, à pœna & culpa) ergo, the Masse-Priests make Christs oblation imperfect, and denie that the vertue thereof endures for euer. See Epistle Sunday 5. in Lent.

[u] Fox Mart. pag. 1271.

I come now to the parallel of Dauid shewing the resemblance between Melchisedech & Christ. This Melchisedech, as Paul (Heb. 7.) reports out of Moses, Gē. 14 was King of Salem, & the Priest of the most high God. So Christ is described in this present Psalme, to be both a King & a Priest, the King of Salem, that is, of [x] Hierusalem aboue, Gods owne Citie, which is the mother of vs all: and the Priest of the most high God, in giuing himselfe for vs both an offering and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling sauour to God. In old time before the Law, the Kingdome & Priesthood appertained by birth-right vnto the eldest son: for so [y] Diuines haue gathered out of the words of Iacob vnto Reuben, Gen. 49 3. Reuben, thou art my first-borne, my might, and the beginning of my strength, the excellencie of dignitie, and excellencie of power, that is, primus in regno, & primus in sacerdotio. But these two functions were seuered vnder the Law, the Kingdome being conferred vpon Iuda, the Priesthood vpon Leui. So that Christ our Priest and Prince conioyning both againe in his owne person, abrogated the forme and frame of Moses Common-weale.

2. Melchisedech is by interpretation King of righteousnesse; so Christ is not only righteous in himselfe, iudging his folke righteously, Psal. 67. 4. righteous in al his wayes, and holy in all his workes, Psal. 145. 17. but also making vs iust and holy before God, [z] The Lord our righteousnesse, [a] made vnto vs wisdome, and righteousnesse and sanctification, and redemption.

3. Melchisedech is King of Salem, that is, King of peace: so Christ is the [b] Prince of peace, [c] reconciling vs vnto God, and God vnto vs, preaching peace to the Gentiles, who were strangers a farre off; and vnto the Iewes, who were citizens in the Common-wealth of Israel, and so breaking downe the stop of the partition wall, hath made of both, one. For it pleased the Father, that in him all fulnesse should dwell, and by him to reconcile all things vnto himselfe; and to set at peace, through the bloud of his Crosse, both the things in earth, and the things in heauen, Colos. 1. 19, 20. And here note, [d] that Christ is first a King of righteousnesse, and then a King of peace; for he giueth vs first righteousnesse, and then peace. So Paul expresly, Rom. 5. 1. Being iustified by faith, we haue peace toward God, through our Lord Iesus Christ.

4. Melchisedech is said to be without father, and without mother; [e] not that he was indeed so, but for that the Scripture concealeth his genealogie: so Christ [f] as man was without father, & as God without mother. Nay Christ as God was without kindred, hauing neither beginning of his dayes, neither end of life, being Alpha and Omega, the first & the last, Apoc. 1. 11. No God before him, or after him, Esay 43. 10

5. Melchisedech blessed Abraham, and receiued tithes of him, and so consequently was greater than Abraham, because without all contradiction the lesser is blessed of the better. And so Christ is greater than Abraham, as blessing him that had the promises. [g] Abraham reioyced to see my day (saith our Sauiour) and he saw it, and was glad.

6. Melchisedech refreshed Abraham and his armie, returning from the slaughter of the Kings, with [h] bread and wine: so Christ feedeth and cherisheth his souldiers, fighting vnder his banner against the world, the flesh, and the deuill, euen with his own [i] flesh and bloud, represented in his holy Supper by [k] bread and wine. Melchisedech gaue bread & wine to Abraham, he did not offer it vp vnto God, as the [l] Latine Fathers vsually read, protulit non obtulit. And therfore the [m] Papists abuse this place, when in the Masse they offer vp the bread vnto God, which is to be communicated vnto men. Christs Supper was ordained to be receiued of vs, in the memoriall of his death, for the confirmation of our faith, that his body was broken for vs, and his bloud shed for our sins; [n] but in the Masse there is no receiuing, because the [x] Galat. 4. 26.

[y] Hieron. quæst. seu tradit. Hebraic. in Gen. tom. 3 fol. 226. Dio Carthus. Em. Sa, Vatablus in Gen. 49. & Tileman in loc.

[z] Ierem. 23. 6.
[a] 1 Cor. 1. 30.
[b] Esay 9. 6.
[c] Ephes. 2. 16.

[d] Lombard. Aquin. Anselm. in Heb 7.

[e] Theophylact. Primasius in Heb 7 & Chrysost. in loc.
[f] Hieron. Agellius in loc.

[g] Iohn 8. 56.

[h] Gen 14. 18.
[i] Iohn 6 55.
[k] Matth. 26. 26
[l] Apud Chemnit. exam. Con. Trident. part. 2. pag. 171.
[m] Caluin. in loc.
[n] Bradfords letter to his mother, apud Fox, Mart. fol. 1476.

the Priest keepeth all to himselfe alone. Christ saith, Take eat: but the Priest, gape, peepe. The Masse-priests are grosse lurchers at the Lords table; for first they take away the wine from the Laity, which is contrary to Christs owne voice, Drinke ye all of this. And as for the bread, they giue it not in euery Masse to the people, but only at certaine times in the yeere, and then also not so [o] great an host or cake as themselues eat, and that without either breaking on their part, or touching of the people. So their Masses vpon the point are Massacres of Christ, a new killing and sacrificing of him againe, so much as lieth in their power.

He shall iudge among the Heathen, he shall fill the places with the dead bodies] [q] Some construe this of Christs iudgement on the last day; for we beleeue that he shall come againe to iudge the quicke and the dead, he shall in that day of his wrath fill the pits of hell with the bodies of the [q] reprobate, and smite in sunder the heads of all such as haue lifted vp their heads against him. [r] Other haue better expounded this of his present iudgement in protecting his followers, and in punishing his foes: for Christ is described here by the Prophet as a valiant conquerour ouer his enemies. He shall rule not among the Iewes onely, but among the Heathen also, [f] iudging the world with righteousnesse, and the people with his truth. He shall fill all places with the bodies of his aduersaries being dead, and smite in sunder, with his power and might, the heads, euen Kings, and other chiefe gouernours of his enemies. [t] Augustine doth interpret this in the better part, glossing it thus: Implere ruinas, est ædificare quod cecidit: & conquassare capita, humiliare superbos ad salutem per contritionem.

He shall drinke of the brooke in the way] This may haue a double construction. Either thus, he, that is, the Messias, shall drink of the brook which shal be made of the bloud of his foes: [u] as if he should haue said, There shall be so much bloud shed, that the conquerour may drink (as it were) of a riuer of bloud, in the way as he pursueth his enemies. The like phrase we finde, Numb. 23. 24. [x] Or else it is a similitude taken from puissant and mightie Captaines, who eagerly pursuing their enemies, stay not vpon dainties or pleasures, but content themselues with flouds and brookes which they finde in their passages as they follow the chase. And therfore he shall lift vp his head, as hauing a full victorie to his aduancement and exceeding glorie: for so this manner of speech is vsed, Genes. 40. 13. 20. Marcus Antonius de Dominis lib. 1. cap. 1. de Republica Ecclesiastica, doth expound it mystically thus, Exaltatus est Christus vt caput Ecclesiæ, postquam de torrente passionis bibit.

[o] A Monument hereof in the Church at Stelst, a Burg in Germanie, about 20 miles from Insprucke.
[p] Theodoret. Euthym. Turrecremat.
[q] Bellarmine.
[r] Caluin. Tileman. Tremellius.
[f] Psal 96. 13.
[t] In loc.
[u] Bucer. Mollerus. Vatablus.
[x] Caluin. Tremel.

PSALME 132.

Lord remember Dauid, and all his troubles, &c.

THis Hymne consists of two parts: a { Prayer, for the Prince, Priests, and people, with a commemoration of their zeale to Gods holy worship and seruice, from the 1. to the 11. verse. / Promise, made by God particularly to Dauid and his seed, as also generally to the whole Church, as the ground of the praier, from v. 11. to the Psalmes end.

The penner of this Psalme prayes for the [y] King first as the chiefe, Lord remember Dauid. And then afterward for his state, both [z] Ecclesiasticall & Ciuill, the Church and Common-weale. The Church, Arise, o Lord, into thy resting place, that is, thy Temple, let thy Priests be cloathed with righteousnes. The [a] Common-weale, Let thy Saints sing with ioyfulnes, &c. The which is answerable to the suffrages in our Liturgie, Indue thy Ministers with righteousnes, and make thy chosen people ioyfull. And haply the Church of England aimed at this prayers order, in the composition of the Letanie; where praying more particularly, we beseech God in the first place to blesse our most gracious King & Gouernour. In the next, to blesse the whole Clergy, [y] Bucer. Wilcox.

[z] Luther. Mollerus. Strigelius.
[a] Tileman.

Bishops, Pastors, and Ministers: and then all degrees of the Laitie, superiours, as the Counsell, Nobilitie, Magistrates: and inferiours, all the people.

[b] Iohn 8.44. Satan is called by [b] Christ, a lier, and a murtherer from the beginning, euer busily labouring to destroy both our soule with vntruths, and our bodies with murthers. [c] Against these two policies and kingdomes of the deuil, Almighty God hath erected other two kingdomes, the politike State to fight against murthers: and the Priesthood to fight against false doctrine and heresies. So that Dauid, and all other Kings in gouerning the Commonwealth, ought to performe their best endeuours; that their subiects may leade [d] quiet and a godly life. Quiet, as being free from mutinies and murthers: godly, as being free from heresies & lies. And these two kingdomes, although they be farre vnlike, are so ioyned together, that the one cannot stand without the other. For where politike peace is wanting, their pietie cannot be maintained without great danger: & where the word of God is wanting, there can be no sound and secure peace. Policie serueth the Church, and the Church preserueth policie. The Priests and Preachers are said in the 17. vers. of this Psalme, to be deckt with saluation, that is, the ministration of the word, whereby they [e] saue themselues, and those that heare them. And in this respect called [f] sauiours, Obadiah 21, as being helpers and labourers together with God, who saueth, 1 Cor. 3. 9.

[c] Luther. In loc.

[d] 2 Tim. 2. 2.

[e] 1 Tim. 4. 16.
[f] Caluin. Ribera. Vatablus in Obad.

But that part of this Hymne concerning the promise, concerneth our present Feast especially. The Lord hath made a faithfull oath vnto Dauid, &c. The Papists (in the first verse, Lord remember Dauid with all his afflictions; and in the tenth verse, for thy seruant Dauids sake, turne not away the presence of thine anointed) dreame that Salomon and the people did pray to God, that he would heare them at Dauids intercession, and for his merits; and thereupon establish inuocation of Saints, and praying to the dead. But our [g] Diuines answer, that Dauid is not here to be taken absolutely for his person only; but as hauing the couenant, and clothed (as it were) with the promises of God. For Dauid neuer intreated God to be heard for his own merits, but on the contrary crieth, [h] Enter not into iudgement with thy seruant, for in thy sight shall no man liuing be iustified. Neither did the Church here desire to be heard for Dauids sake, but for the promise made to Dauid. And their meaning is briefly this, O Lord God, we pray vnto thee for the kingdome, not counting our selues in any sort worthy that we should be heard: but (as [i] Daniel speakes) we present our supplications before thee, trusting in thy great and tender mercies, and in that thou hast promised to Dauid, to wit, that our kingdome shall endure for euer. So Moses praied, [k] Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, thy seruants, to whom thou swarest by thine owne selfe. He doth not inuocate Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob, as the Papists imagine fondly: but he doth alledge Gods holy couenant made to them, as touching their seed and posteritie. For how could God be put in minde of these promises better, than by receiuing those persons to whom God hath made them? Here then is a notable president for vs, that when we pray, we should appeare before the seat of God as wretched and miserable sinners, not trusting vpon our own merit, but cloathed (as you would say) with his mercie; not as he who bragged, [l] I fast twice in the weeke, I giue tithe of all that euer I possesse: but as he who said, Lord remember thy promises; for the promises of God are nothing else, but mercies and compassions offered fitly vnto vs in Christ.

[g] Luther. Mollerus. Caluin. Tileman. Strigelius.

[h] Psal. 143. 2.

[i] Dan. 9. 18.

[k] Exod. 32. 13. Deut 9. 27.

[l] Luk. 18. 12.

Faith is necessarily required in praier, (for [m] how shall any call on him, in whom they haue not beleeued?) and faith is grounded euer vpon the sure promises of God, who saith, [n] I am the Lord thy God, and so loued the world, that he gaue his [o] only begotten Sonne, in [p] whom he is well pleased. If then he giueth himselfe to be our own, and his Sonne to be our own, how shall he not with himselfe and his Sonne [q] giue vs all things also? Verily, verily, (saith our blessed Sauiour, that euer spake veritie) whatsoeuer ye shall aske the Father in my name, he will giue it you, Ioh. 16. 23. These things ought to be taught diligently, because Gods holy promises are the [r] chiefe part of the Scripture, the true bosome and wombe wherein the Church is carried, and all her children the faithfull.

[m] Rom. 10. 14.
[n] Exod. 20. 5.
[o] Iohn 3. 16.
[p] Matth. 3. 17.
[q] Rom. 8. 32.
[r] Luther. in loc.

Now the promise mentioned here touching the seed of Dauid, is categoricall & absolute, absolute, so farre forth as it concernes Christ, of the fruit of thy body will I set vpon thy seat for euermore. But as it concernes other of Dauids house, [f] hypotheticall and conditionall, if thy children will keepe my couenant, &c.

In that which is promised and prophecied touching Christ, obserue the - Manner of the promise, The Lord hath made a faithfull oath vnto Dauid, and he shall not shrinke from it, verse 11.
- Matter of the promise,
  1. That the Messias is to be borne of Dauids seed, of the fruit of thy body.
  2. That the Messias is to sit on Dauids seat, shall I set vpon thy seat.

The Lord hath made a faithfull oath] Men vse to sweare by him that is greater than themselues, Heb. 6. 16. that is, by God; and that for [t] three causes especially. 1. Because God is greater than themselues in credit. 2. Greater than themselues in knowledge. 3. Greater than themselues in power. Men by sin haue lost their credit, and therefore doe they pawne the credit of God, which is truth it selfe; and in cases of necessitie, for want of other sufficient proofe, God is content to pledge his truth for honest men, who meane well. All men are by nature [u] liers, and [x] only God is good and true, wherefore men vse to sweare by him, as being greater in [y] credit.

2. An oath is for the manifestation of a secret truth or intention of the heart: for to sweare in things apparant, is to take the name of God in vaine. But God alone is the searcher of the [z] heart and [a] reines; and therefore men vse to sweare by him, as greater in [b] knowledge.

3. If a man violate his oath and forsweare himselfe, the wrong is done directly vnto God, his truth is falsified, his witnesse abused, his name blasphemed, and therfore men sweare by him, as being greater in power, [c] that he may take vengeance on such wretches as dare, wrong his sacred Maiesty.

But God as hauing none greater to sweare by, sware by himself to father [d] Abraham, In thy seed al the nations of the earth shall be blessed. This oath is renued againe to Isaac, Gen. 26. 3. and repeated often vnto Dauid, 2 Sam. 7. 12, 13. and 1 Chron. 17. 12. and 2 Chron. 6. 16. and remembred also by the Prophetss, Esay 55. 3. Psal. 89. 34. It was in him exceeding rich mercy, to giue his bare word, that he would in the fulnesse of time, giue his onely begotten Sonne for the redemption of the world, saying, the seed of the woman shall breake the serpents head: but it was vndoubtedly greater mercy, for his seruants better assurance, to binde his promise with a faithfull oath, swearing by his holinesse that he will not shrinke from it. See my notes vpon Psalme 110. vers. 4.

Of the fruit of thy body] S. Peter expounds this of Christ, Act. 2. 30. for according to the flesh he was the seed and sonne of Dauid. [e] Irenæus, and [f] Augustine, and [g] other Doctors note, that it is according to the Hebrew de fructu ventris, of the fruit of thy belly: not de fructu femoris aut renum. Because thy promised seed is the seed of the woman, Gen. 3. 15. made of a woman, Gal. 4. 4. hauing the materials of his body from his mother Marie, but his formale principium, from God the Holy Ghost, agent in his admirable conception. And yet for as much as Marie was of Dauids house, it may be said, that her Sonne was the fruit of Dauids bodie. For proofe whereof, it is said, that [h] Ioseph put his hand vnder Iacobs thigh, and the seruant of [i] Abraham vnder the thigh of his Master, because (saith [k] Ambrose) Christ our blessed Sauiour was to proceed out of the loynes of Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob. For as Christians taking an oath in our time, lay their hands vpon some part of that sacred booke wherein Christ is reuealed: so the Fathers in old time put their hands vnder the thighs of those Patriarks, of whom Christ was then to come. Moreouer, sonnes are called the fruit of their fathers venter, as well as of the mothers; according to that of Dauid, 2 Sam. 16. 11. Behold my sonne which came out of mine owne bowels, seeketh my life.

Shall I set vpon thy seat] You haue heard, how Christ is the seed of Dauid; now let vs examine, how he sits on the seat of Dauid. We reade in the Gospels historie, that [f] Placidus. Luther. Mollerus. Genebrard.

[t] Caluin & Marlorat in Heb. 6. 16.

[u] Psal. 116. 10. & Psal. 62. 9.
[x] Mark. 10. 18.
[y] Primasius, Lombard, in Heb. 6.
[z] 2 Chro 6. 30.
[a] Psalm. 7. 10.
[b] See Thomas 2 2*æ quæst* 89. art. 1.
[c] 2 King. 2. 23. 2 Cor. 1. 23.
[d] Gen. 22. 16. 18.

[e] Lib. 3. cap. 27.
[f] In loc.
[g] Hugo in lo.

[h] Gen. 47 29.
[i] Gen 24 2.
[k] De Abra. Patriar. lib. 1. cap. 2.

that he [l] hid himselfe in a mountaine, when as the people would haue made him a King, and that he professed openly before Pilate, [m] my kingdome is not of this world. [n] Answer is made, that by Dauids seat, is meant Hierusalem [o] aboue, not Hierusalem here below; mysticall Hierusalem, and [p] heauenly, not materiall and earthly. So the Lord, Psalm. 2.6. I haue set my King vpon mine holy hill of Sion, that is, I haue made my begotten Sonne ruler and head ouer the whole Church, of which Hierusalem is a figure. Sion, and the seat of Dauid, are to be construed here typically, not topically. For Christs high and holy kingdome is internall and spirituall, not externall and temporall. [q] It is hîc, not hinc; in the world, but not of the world. By the preaching of his word, which is the scepter of his kingdome, he rules in the [r] middest of his enemies, and makes them all his foot-stoole, conuerting such enemies as appertaine to Gods election, and confounding such enemies, as are the sonnes of perdition; his Gospell is vnto the one, the [s] sauour of life vnto life; and to the other, the sauour of death vnto death. See my notes vpon the 110. Psalme, second and third verses.

[t] As his kingdome is not of the world; so the faithfull his voluntary subiects are not of the world, Iohn 17.16. you were of the world (saith our Sauiour to his followers) but I haue chosen you out of the world, Iohn 15.19. As his kingdome is spirituall, euen so they be [u] led by the spirit in [x] all things. And therefore when you come into Gods house, to be made partakers of his holy word and Sacraments, open the doores of your eares, and gates of your hearts, that the [y] King of glory may come in, and so dwell in you, and reigne in you for euermore. Behold, he standeth at the doore and knocketh, Apoc. 3.20. Open and obey, that he may set vp his kingdome in the parlour of thine heart. It is our daily prayer, thy kingdome come: the meaning whereof is briefly this, O heauenly father, let not Satan and sin reigne in our soules, but rule thou by thy word and spirit, and so build in vs the kingdome of grace, and hasten the kingdome of glory.

The difference betweene our heauenly King, & earthly Princes is great. 1. Their dominions are limited, and the borders of their kingdomes bounded, their people numbred, and the time of their reigne prescribed. But Christ hath [z] all power in heauen and earth, he shall sit vpon the Throne of Dauid for euer, and of his kingdome there is no end, Luk. 1.33.

2. Other Kings haue power only ouer our bodies and goods: but Christs authoritie reacheth vnto the soule. Their sword is materiall, able onely to kill the bodie: but his sword is spirituall, proceeding out of his [a] mouth, able to destroy [b] both soule and body in hell, entring thorow euen vnto the diuiding asunder of the spirit, and of the ioynts, and the marrow, a discerner of the thoughts, and intents of the heart, Heb. 4.12.

3. Other Kings deriue their authoritie from him, Prouerb. 8.15. By me Kings reigne, by me Princes rule; and stand accountable to him, he standeth in the congregation of Princes, and iudgeth among gods, Psalm. 82. 1,2. But who shall say to the Lord of Lords, Why dost thou do so?

4. Other Kings reward their fauourites and followers, only with a few titles of honour, and with a few parcels of land, which are holden of them in fee-farme, frank-almoigne, Knight-seruice, &c. They make not their vassals heires apparent to their kingdomes: but Christ our Lord maketh all his faithfull seruants no lesse than [c] Kings, and [d] heires of God, euen heires annexed with himselfe.

If thy children will keepe my couenant] Literally this may be construed of Dauids owne children according to the flesh, [e] who succeeded him in his Throne, 1072. yeeres, vntill the Messias (borne of his posteritie) constituted an euerlasting kingdome without end. [f] According to this sense, the Lord saith, Ezech. 21.26. I will take away the Diadem, and take off the Crowne, this shall be no more the same, I will ouerturne, ouerturne, ouerturne it, and it shall be no more vntill he come, whose right it is, and I will giue it him. His promise here concerning Christ, is absolute, but his promise touching other of Dauids house, conditionall: If thy children keepe my couenant, and my testimonies, that I shall learne them. [g] If thou seeke the Lord (said

Dauid

[l] Iohn 6.15.
[m] Ioh 18.36.
[n] D. Incognitus.
[o] Gal. 4.26.
[p] Apoc. 21.2.
[q] Augustin. & Theophylact in Ioan. 18 See Recognit. Bellarmin. à pag. 26 ad pag 46.
[r] Psal. 110.1.2.
[s] 2 Cor. 2.16.
[t] See August. in tract. 115. in Ioan.
[u] Rom 8.14.
[x] Ioh 2 27.
[y] Psal 24.7.
[z] Matth. 28.18
[a] Apoc. 1.16.
[b] Mat. 10.28.
[c] Apoc. 1.6.
[d] Rom. 8.17.
[e] Mollerus.
[f] Caluin.
[g] 1 Chro. 28 9

Dauid to his sonne Salomon) he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off for euer. And therefore because Dauids posteritie did not obserue his law, but follow their own inuentions; he made them (as we reade in the Bibles historie) captiues of Captaines, and gaue their kingdome to another people: first vnto the bloudie Romans, and now to the barbarous Turks; and so Hierusalem heretofore [h] great among the Nations, and Princesse among the Prouinces, is made tributarie; she dwelleth among the Heathen, and findeth no rest, among all her louers she hath none to comfort her, all her friends haue dealt vnfaithfully with her, and are made her enemies.

[h] Lament. 1. 1.

Mystically the [i] Doctors applie this vnto the children of Christ according to the spirit. I will set vpon thy seat, that is, ordaine Pastors and Teachers, who shall sit in thy chaire, [k] that is, preach thy word and doctrine, for the [l] gathering together of the Saints, and edification of the Church euermore. This was verified in the blessed Apostles, as being made Princes in all lands, Psalm. 45. 17.

[i] Arnobius. Cassiodorus. Hugo.
[k] So that kinde of speech is vsed Mat. 23. 2
[l] Ephes. 4. 11.

In one word, [m] all true beleeuers in Christ are the sonnes of God, and babes in Christ, and he hath (as [n] Paul speakes) raised vs vp together, and made vs sit together in heauenly places. His Charter is faire, Mat. 19. 28. Verily I say vnto you, that when the son of man shall sit in the Throne of his Maiesty, ye which haue followed me in the regeneration, shall also sit vpon twelue Thrones, and iudge the twelue tribes of Israel. And Apocal. 3. 21. To him that ouercommeth will I grant to sit with me in my Throne, euen as I ouercome, and sit with my Father in his Throne.

[m] Hieron
[n] Ephes. 2. 6.

The [o] wicked abuse the promises of God, applying them vnto themselues, which only belong to the true Church, the seed of Dauid, according to the spirit. So the Papists abuse Christs promise, for establishing of the Popes tyrannie, [p] the gates of hell shall not ouercome it, and [q] I will be with you alway to the worlds end. Whence they conclude, that Peters boat (though it may be sometimes in danger) shall neuer be drowned, and that the Pope (being the Churches head) cannot erre. [r] Whereas these promises concerne only that Church which is built vpon the Rocke Christ, and continueth in S. Peters faith, obseruing all things our blessed Sauiour commanded, as it is in our text, If thy children will keepe my conenant and testimonies that I shall learne them. But if the Bishop and Church of Rome dispense with Gods holy word, and despise his truth and testimony, teaching in stead of his infallible law, [s] precepts of men, and doctrines of [t] deuils: how shall this, or any like promise belong to them?

[o] Luther in loc.
[p] Matth. 16. 18
[q] Matth. 28. 20
[r] Dr Fulk in Matth. 16. 18.
[s] Matth. 15. 9.
[t] 1 Tim. 4. 1.

So the wicked in a reprobate sense, who make their belly their god, and commit all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse, abuse these sweet texts, at what time soeuer a sinner, &c. and, Come to me all yee that are weary and laden, and I will ease you, &c. For this promise concernes only such as are laden, and feele the burthen of their iniquitie, hauing both a sight and a sense thereof, acknowledging that sin is a [u] labour in accomplishing, and a load when it is accomplished. It appertaineth only to such as repent, and that of all their sinne, and that from the heart, and bottome of the heart.

[u] Euthym in Matth. 11.

So the carnall Gospellers, in comming irreuerently to the Lords Table, without any deuotion, or due respect to that holy Sacrament, abuse the words of our blessed Sauiour, This is my body. For (as the godly Martyr [x] Iohn Bradford well obserued) the clause, take, eat, is a precept; and the clause, this is my body, a promise, the bread and wine then are not vnto any the body and bloud of Christ, except they first eat and take, and none can take and eat, but by [y] faith. A worthy receiuer therfore beggeth of God both a pardon of his faults, and an increase of his faith. To conclude this point, in the law the condition is, do this and liue: in the Gospell, beleeue this and thou shalt be saued. He that neglects the precept, and yet will challenge the promise, deceiueth himselfe, he shall not rest on Gods holy hill, and sit on his happie seat for euermore.

[x] In his last exam. apud Fox, fol. 1463.
[y] Confess. Anglican. art. 28.

PSALME

Psalme 2.

Why doe the Heathen so furiously rage together, &c.

This Ode may be diuided into two parts; the

1. Describes the wickednesse, and weaknesse of such as bandie themselues against the Lord, and against his anointed.
   - Wickednesse, furiously raging. standing vp and taking counsell together.
   - Weaknesse,
     - Implyed in the word Why?
     - Expressed in the clause, Imagine a vaine thing.
2. Sets downe Gods
   - Might, for their destruction, if they wil not amend their manners, & asswage their malice, vers. 4,5,6,7,8,9.
   - Mercy, for their instruction, if they wil once be so wise, as to learne his Law, and to loue his Sonne, vers. 10,11,12.

Why doe the Heathen] By Heathen, are meant the Gentiles; by people, the Iewes; by Kings, the chiefe Monarks vpon earth; and by Rulers, their [z] priuie Counsellors of Estate. The Gentiles, as not hauing Gods Law, furiously rage together, like [a] bruit beasts without vnderstanding. The Greek word vsed by S. Luke, Act. 4. 25. doth import fiercenesse and pride, as of horses that neigh, and rush into the battell. The Iewes, albeit they had Gods holy word, imagined a vaine thing, [b] because they were cunning rather in the sound, than in the sense thereof. The Kings as men of might, stand vp, and the rulers, as men of wit and policie, take counsell together. And so men of all countries, as well the Iewes, as the Gentiles, and of all conditions, as well Princes as people, bandie themselues against the Lord, and against his anointed.

Now this may be construed [c] either of Dauid, or of the Messias: of the Lords Christ, or of the Lord Christ. Dauid is the Lords Christ, as his anointed King ouer Israel, anointed thrise. First, in the middest of his brethren, 1 Sam. 1. 16. afterward in Hebron, 2 Sam. 2. lastly, before all the tribes of Israel, 2 Sam. 5. And he may be called the sonne of God,

As a
- Man, for all of vs are the [d] generation of God, it is he who made vs, and not our selues, Psal. 100. 2.
- Great man, or King, for Princes are stiled the [e] children of the most high.
- Good man, or regenerate, for euerie one that is new borne, is [f] borne of God, and adopted his sonne, and made his heire, Rom. 8. 15. 17.

How the Heathen, that is, the Philistims, and other strange nations, furiously raged together against him: how the people, that is, the Iewes of Sauls house, imagined vainly to dethrone him: how the Captaines stood vp, and States-men tooke counsell together, that they might breake his bonds asunder, and cast away his cords from them: how the Lord that dwelleth in heauen laughed all his enemies to scorne, saying, yet haue I set my King vpon my holy hill of Sion: you may read in the second booke of Samuel, from the second to the tenth Chapter.

But the blessed Apostles haue construed this of Christ, Acts 4. 24. O Lord, thou art the God, which hast made the heauen and the earth, and the sea, and all things that are in them. Which by the mouth of thy seruant Dauid hast said, why did the Gentiles rage, and the people imagine vaine things? The Kings of the earth assembled, and the rulers came together against the Lord, and against his Christ. For doubtlesse against thine holy Sonne Iesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontus Pilate, with the Gentiles and people of Israel, gathered themselues together, to do whatsoeuer thy hand and thy counsell had determined before to be done. [g] First the Princes did plot, and afterward the people did act this insurrection. Herod the King [z] Bucer. Ro. Stephanus. Wilcox.

[a] Cassiodorus. Placidus. Tileman.
[b] Euthym.
[c] D. Incognit. Caluin. Tremel.
[d] Acts 17. 28.
[e] Psal. 82. 6.
[f] 1 Iohn 3. 9.
[g] Bellar. in loc.

King ſought to deſtroy Chriſt in his ſwadling clouts, he was troubled at the birth of Ieſus, and all Hieruſalem with him, Matth. 2. 3. And the Rulers oppoſed Chriſt in the whole courſe of his life: ſo the text plainly, [h] Doth any of the Rulers, or of the Phariſies beleeue in him? At his death all the Rulers Eccleſiaſticall and Ciuill accorded in one. The Gentiles, [i] that is, the Romane ſouldiers, by Pilats inſtigation, furiouſly raged together: and the people, that is, the Iewes, by the counſell of the chiefe Prieſts and Elders, imagined a vaine thing. Yea, but how can it be ſaid plurally, that Kings aſſembled againſt Chriſt? Anſwer is made by [k] ſome, that the plurall is vſed here for the ſingular. Or by Kings is meant Herod and Pilate, for Herod is ſtiled [l] King, and Pontius Pilate was a [m] Gouernour vnder the Romane Emperor, and theſe Viceroyes had many petite [n] Rulers alſo ſubiect to their command. Or by Kings is meant Herod ſenior, who ſtood vp againſt Chriſt at his birth, Matth. 2. and Herod Iunior, who deſpiſed and mocked Chriſt at his death, Luk. 23. 11.

[h] Iohn 7. 48.

[i] Euthym.

[k] Placidus. Incognitus. Ageſius.

[l] Matth 2. 1.

[m] Matth. 27. 2.

[n] Ioh 4. 46. Matth 9. 18.

Or, as [o] Chryſoſtome, with Herod were ioyned the Deuill, and Death, and Sinne. All which are Kings of the earth. The Deuill is a King, [p] ruling in the ayre, the [q] Prince of this world, Luk. 11. 18. If Satan be diuided againſt himſelfe, how ſhall his kingdome ſtand? And Death is a King, Rom. 5. 14. Death reigned from Adam to Moſes, &c. And Sinne is a King too, Rom. 6. 12. Let not ſinne reigne in your mortall bodies, leſt ye ſhould obey the luſt of it. All theſe Kings aſſembled and tooke counſell together againſt the Lord, and againſt his Chriſt. For as Chriſt conſidered of humane fleſh and a reaſonable ſoule: ſo likewiſe he had two ſorts of enemies, one viſible which aſſaulted his body, another inuiſible which aſſaulted his ſoule; ſpirituall wickedneſſes, Epheſ. 6. 12. Here we may behold and bewaile the blindneſſe of the Iewes in our time, who (notwithſtanding their moſt ancient [r] Rabbins applie this our text to the true Meſſias) expect him as yet to come.

[o] In loc. Idem. Euthym.

[p] Epheſ 2. 2.

[q] Ioh 12. 31.

[r] See Galatin. de Arcanis, lib. 3. cap. 7. & Bellar. in loc.

Laſtly, for as much as Chriſt ſuffers in his [s] members, and [t] all that will liue godly, that they may be made [u] like to his Image, muſt of neceſſitie ſuffer perſecution; it may be conſtrued of [x] Chriſtians as well as of Chriſt, againſt whom all the wicked angels, [y] ſtanding on the foure corners of the earth, are combined in a bloudie league. The Gentiles at this day furiouſly rage together, and the Iewes at this day ſtill imagine vaine things; at this day The Kings of the earth ſtand vp, as the Turke, the Pope, the Spaniard, and all their cruell agents. In a word, all Atheiſts, all Anti-chriſts, all Hypocrites, all Worldlings, hurtle together againſt the Lord and his anointed people. The true Church is a [z] lilie among thornes, a few harmeleſſe [a] lambes in the middeſt of many rauenous wolues, on euery ſide compaſſed about with ſuch as ſay, Let vs breake their bonds aſunder, and caſt away their cords from vs.

[s] Acts 9. 4.

[t] 2 Tim. 3. 12.

[u] Rom. 8. 29.

[x] Placidus. Bucer. Strigellius.

[y] Apocal. 7. 1.

[z] Cant. 2. 2.

[a] Luk. 10. 3.

1. We may learne from hence, [b] not to depend vpon the multitude for their number, becauſe the people mutinouſly rage together, and imagine vaine things in their conuenticles: nor vpon the mightie for their countenance, becauſe many kings of the earth ſtand vp, and Rulers take counſell together againſt the Lord & his Chriſt.

[b] Wilcox.

2. We may know from hence, [c] whether we are the Lords anointed, or no. The [d] world loueth his owne; if then it hate Chriſt in vs, it is an infallible ſigne, that we are good [e] ſouldiers of the Lord, and not ſeruants of the world. [f] The way to heauen is to ſaile by hell; if you wil embrace Chriſt in his robes, you muſt not think ſcorne of him in his rags; if you will ſit at his table in his kingdome, you muſt firſt abide with him in his tentations; if you wil drink of his cup of glorie, forſake not his cup of ignominie. Can the head corner ſtone be reiected, & the other more baſe ſtones in Gods building be ſet by? You are one of Gods liuely ſtones, and therefore be content to be hewen and ſnagged, that you may be made more meet to be ioyned to your fellowes, ſuffering the ſnatches of Satan, and wounds of the world.

[c] Bucer.

[d] Iohn 15. 19

[e] 2 Tim 2. 3.

[f] Bradford apud Fox Mart. fol. 1490.

3. From hence we may be well aſſured, that the ſincere profeſſion of the Goſpell in reformed Churches, is the moſt incorrupt and pure religion, as being moſt oppoſite to the children of this world. The Maſſe (ſaid holy [g] Bradford) doth not bite them, them, or make them to blush, as preaching. And therefore the [h] Kings of the earth are dranken with the wine of the Babyloniſh Whores abominable tornication. In [i] Rome the humour of euery worldling is fitted, and each appetite may finde what to feed on. The mother of whordomes is content to tolerate Iewes, and other vngodlie wretches of diuers and aduerſe faiths in her Countrey, but ſhe will not endure Lutherans. All things are lawfull in great Babylon, excepting this onely, to profeſſe the Goſpell after the manner of Proteſtants. It is reported by reuerend [k] Fox, that certaine Lawyers and Aduocates in Prouince, maintained openly, that in a caſe of Lutheraniſme, the Iudges are not bound to obſerue either right or reaſon, order or ordinance, for they cannot erre, whatſoeuer iudgement they do giue, ſo that it tend to the ruine and extirpation of ſuch as are ſuſpected Lutherans.

[g] In a letter to his mother.

Hitherto concerning the wickedneſſe of ſuch as oppoſe themſelues againſt the Lord, and his anointed. I am now to ſpeake of their weakneſſe, implied in the word why? [l] for by this interrogation he doth admire their folly: non enim tam interrogantis, quàm deridentis, as a learned [m] expoſitor vpon the place. [n] If they be derided as vnwiſe, who ſhoot arrowes at the Sunne, and barke at the Moone; what errant fooles are they who fight againſt God, dwelling in the heauen of heauens, aboue Sunne and Moone, [o] who made the heauen, and earth, and ſea, and all things that are therein? Alas, all fleſh is as the [p] graſſe that withereth, and God is a [q] conſuming fire ready to burne this ſtubble. [r] Man is like a thing of nought, but God is almighty, meaſuring the waters in his fiſt, and meating heauen with his ſpanne, and weighing the mountaines in skales, and the hils in a ballance, Eſay 40.12. Man is in the hands of God his maker, as the clay in the hands of the potter, Ier. 18.6. Now ſhall the thing formed (ſaith [r] S. Paul) diſpute with him who formed it? or man imagine ſo vaine a thing, as to ſtand vp, and take counſell againſt his Creator? So that the Prophet here ſpeakes as the [t] Poet, Quò moriture ruis, maioraq; viribus audes?

Quid tantum inſano iuuat indulgere labori?

Or as [u] Horace begins an Epod:

Quò quò ſceleſti ruitis, aut cur dexteris aptantur enſes conditi?

He that dwelleth in heauen ſhall laugh them to ſcorne] Note here the great ods and difference betweene God and his enemies: 1. He dwelleth in heauen, [x] but his greateſt oppoſites are Kings vpon earth, vnſetled [y] pilgrimes in [z] earthly tabernacles and houſes of [a] clay. 2. Whereas [b] man diſquieteth himſelfe in vaine, raging, running, ſtanding vp againſt the Lord and his anointed: Almightie God is ſaid here to ſit in heauen at [c] reſt and eaſe. 3. Whereas men imagine vainly to breake his bonds, and caſt away his cords: God in a moment is able to bruiſe them with a rod of iron, and breake them in peeces like a potters veſſell, Albeit they fret and fume neuer ſo much, he ſhall laugh them to ſcorne, and haue them in deriſion. As it is ſaid of the monſter [d] Leuiathan, He eſteemeth iron as ſtraw, and braſſe as rotten wood; the archer cannot make him flee, the ſtones of the ſling are turned to ſtubble before him, and he laugheth at the ſhaking of the ſpeare. Now theſe things are ſaid groſſely for our capacity, becauſe the Lord indeed can neither laugh nor crie: yet the Scripture ſpeaking after the manner of men, affirmes plainly that God is grieued at our faults, and that he laugheth at our follies, non ſecundũ affectum, (as the Schoole diſtinguiſheth aptly) ſed ſecundum effectum, in that he carrieth himſelfe toward his enemies as one that hath them in deriſion. And this he doth in [e] two reſpects eſpecially.

1. For that he can at any time when he will, as it were ſportingly pull downe ſuch as ſtand vp againſt him, he doth eaſily deſcrie their folly, ſuppreſſe their fury.

2. For that he ſuffereth his enemies in their rebelling and reuelling againſt his anointed, only to play with his bait, he hath (as he told [f] Senacherib) an hooke in their noſtrils, and a bridle in their mouthes, he can, & he will (at his good pleaſure) bring them back againe the ſame way they came. [g] He that keepeth Iſrael (howſoeuer he ſeeme for a while to neglect his Church, and kingdome of his Sonne) ſhall neither ſlumber nor ſleepe. He will (in his due time) ſpeake with all ſuch as combine themſelues

[h] Apocal. 17.2.
[i] Relation of religion, § 13.
[k] Martyr fol. 860.
[l] Steucus: Genebrard.
[m] Agellius.
[n] Chryſoſt. Placidus.
[o] Acts 4.24.
[p] Eſay 40 7.
[q] Heb. 12.29.
[r] Pſal. 144.4.
[r] Rom. 11.20
[t] Virgil. Aenead. lib. 10.
[u] Epod. 7.
[x] Caluin.
[y] 1 Pet 2.11.
[z] 2 Cor. 5.1.
[a] Iob 4.19.
[b] Pſal 39.7.
[c] Bucer.
[d] Iob 41.18.
[e] Caluin.
[f] 2 King. 19.28 Eſay 37.29.
[g] Pſal. 121.4.

themselues against his anointed; he will talke with them indeed, [h] non verbis, sed verberibus, as it is in the text, he shall speake to them in his wrath, and vex them in his sore displeasure: he shall bruise them with a rod of iron, and breake them in peeces like a potters vessell, and so shall he make them a scorne to men and Angels; he derides them, in that he sheweth all their plots and practises to be worthy [i] derision.

[h] Bellarmine.

[i] Hieron.

For first, if we construe this of Dauid, he laughed all his enemies to scorne, saying, [k] I annointed thee King ouer Israel, and deliuered thee out of the hand of Saul, and gaue thee thy Lords house, and his wiues into thy bosome, &c. and would moreouer (if that had beene too little) giue thee such and such things, &c. The which is in effect all one with our text at the fifth verse, I haue set my King vpon mine holy hill of Sion.

[k] 2. Sam. 12. 7.

If we construe this of the Church, he laughed all her enemies to scorne, saying, [l] I haue grauen thee in the palmes of mine hands, and thy walls are euer in my sight. [m] Feare thou not, for I am with thee, be not afraid thou worme Iacob, for I the Lord thy God will strengthen thee, and helpe thee, and sustaine thee with the right hand of my iustice. Behold, all they that prouoke thee, shall be confounded and ashamed, they shall be as nothing, and they that striue with thee shall perish, for [n] hell gates shall not ouercome thee.

[l] Esay 49. 16.
[m] Esay. 41. 10.
[n] Matth. 16 18

If we construe this of Christ, he that dwelleth in heauen had all his enemies in derision, he did vse these bad instruments for the effecting of his good ends: so the text, Act. 13. 27. in putting to death the Lord of life, they fulfilled all things that were written of him in the Prophets: and Acts 4. 28. they did whatsoeuer Gods holy hand and counsell had determined before to be done. All his enemies, as well spirituall as temporall, imagined vainely. The deuill, and death, and sinne furiously raged against him on the Crosse: but he did [o] openly triumph ouer them in the same Crosse. By death he did ouercome death, and open vnto vs the gate of life: for if death could not on this day keepe him fettered in the graue his prison, it is euident that his power is vanquished; and if death be conquered, it followes necessarily, that sinne, which is the sting of death, is also destroyed. If death and sinne be discomfited, then assuredly the kingdome of Satan is subdued, who had the power of death, and is author of sinne, and ruler of hell.

[o] Coloss 2 15.

As for his temporall enemies, the Gentiles madly raged against him, and the Iewes imagined a vaine thing, in [p] rolling a great stone to the doore of the sepulchre, sealing it and making it sure with a watch. For it was [q] impossible, that the Lord of life should be holden of death, his soule could not be left in graue, nor his flesh see corruption, and therefore the stone being rolled away by an Herauld of heauen, Matth. 28 2. God raised him againe from the dead, and made him a King ouer his holy hill of Sion, [r] that is, head of his Church, giuing him all the heathen for his inheritance, and the vttermost parts of the earth for his possession. And the Rulers held an idle counsell against him, in commanding the souldiers, who guarded his tombe, to say, [s] that his Disciples came by night, and stole him away while they slept: for (as [t] Augustine and [u] other of the most ancient Doctors haue well obserued) it is a very senseless lie, because the souldiers either were asleepe, or awake: if asleepe, how did they know that his Disciples had taken him away by night? if awake, why did they not guard the tombe, lapidem vt lapides seruabant, as Chrysostome vpon this Psalme. See Gospell on Easter day.

[p] Matth 27. 60.
[q] Act. 2. 24. 31.
[r] Hieron. Augustine.
[s] Matth. 28. 13.
[t] Hom 36
[u] Greg Nyssen orat 2. de resurrect. Christi. Idem annotat. inter neotericos. Caietan. in Matth. 28.

Thus, he that dwelleth in heauen, raising his anointed on this day from the dead, had all his enemies in derision. He said to Christ on Easter day, Thou art my Sonne, this day haue I begotten thee. As if he should haue said, Thou wert euer my Sonne before to day, before there was any day; [x] but yet in this day of thy resurrection, I haue most especially manifested vnto the world, that thou art my Sonne, whom I haue begotten. See this expounded more fully, Epistle on Tuesday in Easter weeke.

[x] Caluin. & Rob Stephanus in loc. See Suarez tom. 2. in 3. Thom. disput. 45. sect. 1.

Be wise therefore O yee Kings] In this admonition obserue foure points especially.

1. Who, Kings and Iudges.
2. When, Now.
3. What,
   1. To [y] know their dutie, Be wise, be learned.
   2. To doe their dutie, Serue the Lord, kisse the Sonne.
4. Why: because [z] hereby Gods
   - Heauy wrath is escaped, implied in the word therefore, hauing reference to the iudgements of God, vers. 5. 9. and expressed ver. 12. lest he be angry, and so yee perish from the right way.
   - Happy blessing is obtained, Blessed are they that put their trust in him.

[y] Basil. Bellarmine.

[z] Tremelius.

He doth exhort Kings especially, [a] because their greatnesse vsually makes them insolent and rebellious against God. [b] Or, lest haply the subiect should be punished for the Soueraignes follie, Quicquid delirant Reges, plectuntur Achiui. Or, because like Prince, like people. Ieroboam made Israel to sinne: [c] for the most part euery man emulates the manners of his Prince.

[d] Mobile mutatur semper cum principe vulgus.

Or, he speakes to Kings and Iudges more particularly, [e] for that it belongs vnto their office, to se the people well instructed, it appertaines to their charge (being Custodes vtriusq; tabulæ) that euery subiect liue toward himselfe soberly, toward his neighbour righteously, toward God religiously. For although a King may not administer the Sacraments, or preach the word, or execute the Ministers office de facto: yet (as our [f] Diuines haue determined) it belongs to the Kings cure de iure, to see that all things, concerning Gods holy seruice, should be done in the Church orderly. The Prophet therefore calleth vpon Kings and Iudges ernestly to serue the Lord as the chiefe, knowing that the great wheele mouing in deuotion, is able to carry with it all the lesser wheeles.

Here then obserue, what a great charge Princes and Prelates haue, for God saith vnto them, of euery one that is vnder their iurisdiction and cure, [g] keepe this man, if he be lost and want, thy life shall goe for his life. [h] The conuerting of the wicked, howsoeuer it be Gods cure, yet it is thy care, the Lord only giueth increase, yet Paul is to plant, and Apollos to water; and therefore [k] Iohn Longland Bishop of Lincolne, preaching before King Henry the 8. wondred at the Popes blinde folly, who makes, the whole world his Dioceese; for if a man at the dreadfull day of iudgement shall hardly answer for himselfe, how shall the Man of Sinne answer for all the world?

Now for as much as euery priuate familie is a modell of a kingdome; and euery man in his owne house, is both a Priest, and a Prince; be wise ye masters, and learned ye parents, that ye may bring vp your seruants and children in [l] instruction and information of the Lord, serue God in feare, and reioyce in him with reuerence, giue good examples of pietie toward God, of pittie toward your neighboures, of sobrietie toward your selues. As [m] Seneca diuinely, sic viue cum hominibus, quasi Deus videat: sic loquere cum Deo, quasi homines audiant: So conuerse with men, as if God did see you; so conferre with God, as if men did heare you.

Lastly, this exhortation to repentance concerneth all men, as well the lowest, as the highest: if the words ministery reach vnto the Soueraign, how shal it come short of the [n] subiect? If [o] Elias may tell Ahab, It is thou and thy fathers house which haue troubled Israel, in that ye haue forsaken the commandements of the Lord, and haue followed Baalam: If [p] Iohn the Baptist may tell Herod to his beard, It is not lawfull for thee to haue thy brothers wife: If [q] Nathan may tell Dauid the King of his murther and adulterie: then assuredly the Prophets of Almightie God may well admonish inferiours, and tell them of their vaine imaginations, raging against the Lord and his anointed. Saint Peter told Simon Magus, [r] Thou art in the gall of bitternesse. [s] S. Paul called his Galathians fooles, because they began in the spirit, and ended in the flesh.

[a] Caluin.

[b] Steuchus.

[c] Herodianus lib. 1.

[d] Claudianus.

[e] Tileman.

[f] Conf. Ang. art 37. and in the admonition to simple men annexed to Queene Elizabeths Iniunctions.

[g] 1. King. 20 39

[h] Petitur à te non curatio sed cura. Bernard.

[i] 1. Cor. 3. 6.

[k] Fox Mart. fol. 1003.

[l] Ephes. 6. 4.

[m] Epist. lib. 1. epist. 10.

[n] Euthym. Caluin.

[o] 1. Kin. 18 18

[p] Matth 14 14.

[q] 2 Sam. 12.

[r] Act. 8 23.

[s] Gal. 3. 3.

flesh. [t] S. Iames cried vnto the couetous worldings, your gold and siluer is cankered, and the rust of them is a witnesse against you. The Parson may tell his parishioners of their idlenesse, oppression, hypocrysie, drunkennesse, &c. exhorting them to learne Christ better, and to be more wise. Such as continue still irrepentant in their sinnes, are fooles, and the longer they continue, the greater fooles; if once they turne to the Lord and repent, they begin to be wise, for [u] the feare of the Lord is the beginning of wisedome. And therefore the next point is to be pressed, intelligite nunc, be wise now. Now while ye are in the [x] way, now while it is called [y] to day, now while it is time, [z] before Gods heauie iudgements ouertake you, mentioned in the fifth and ninth verse.

[t] Iames 5.3.

[u] Prou. 1.7.

[x] Matth. 5.25.
[y] Heb 3.13.
[z] Caluin. Genebrard.

Sinne is first (as it were) a Palmer-worme, hurting onely the leaues of the tree; then a Caterpiller, destroying the fruit; last of all (if it be not in due time preuented) a Canker that deuoures the bodie. Christ often compares his Spouse the Church, vnto a Doue, whose call is nunc, nunc, now, now, and the voice of the Turtle is heard in Gods holy land, Cant. 2.12. but the Crow crying [a] cras, cras, to morrow, to morrow, seemes to be Curate to the deuill, and Vicar of hell. An irrepentant sinner in his securitie sleepes betweene death and the deuill, as Peter did betweene two souldiers, bound with two chaines, Act. 12.6. He that will not vnderstand and be wise now, may perish in his follie before to morrow. Boast not thy selfe of to morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth, Prou. 27.1. O foole, this night may they fetch away thy soule from thee, Luke 12.20. Be wise therefore now, learne now to know your dutie, and to doe the dutie to the Lord, lest in his anger he bruise you with a rod of iron, and breake you in peeces as a potters vessell.

[a] Augustin. de verbis Dom. in Euang. secund. Matth. ser. 16.

Our vnderstanding must be first informed, and then our affections reformed, according to Gods holy Lawes. [b] Sapientia præcedit, religio sequitur, sapience goeth before, Religion followeth. It is our dutie, first to know God, and then to worship him; according to termes of our [c] Common Law, there must be first a scire facias, and then a fieri facias. We cannot doe the will of our heauenly Father, except we know it, and it is not sufficient to know it (as [d] Christ teacheth vs) except we do it. The feare of the Lord is the beginning of wisdome, a good vnderstanding (saith our Prophet) haue they that [e] do thereafter, Psal. 111.10. He that will commence Doctor in Israel, and be learned in Christs schoole, must agere pœnitentiam, as the Latine translation runs, Matth. 3.2. It is not enough [f] cogitare, to thinke of amendment, as they who deferre repentance from day to day, ye must euen now be wise: neither is it enough dicere to speak of repentance, like hypocrites, who disfigure their faces, and looke sowre, Mat. 6.16. Neither is it enough docere, to teach other repentance, like Iudas, who was an instrument for the sauing of other, and yet hanged him selfe. He that will not burne with the deuill, must of necessitie turne to God, and this turning is a whole, not halfe a turne. [g] Turne ye to me, saith the Lord, with all your heart, &c. We haue hetetofore plaied the fooles in abusing our soules, and bodies, and goods, vnto the dishonour of God, iniuring of our neighbours, hurt of our selues. It is now time to be wise, and to learne how to be deuout in powring out our soules vnto God; continent, in gouerning our bodie toward our selues; iust, in disposing of our goods toward other.

[b] Lactantius institut. lib. 4. cap. 4.
[c] Termes of Law. Tit. Scire facias.
[d] Luke 12.47.
[e] See notes vp on the 111. Psalme.
[f] Michael de Hungaria, ser. 5. & Stella in Luke. 15.7.

[g] Ecel. 2.12.

Now the best way to be learned, and to know our dutie, is, to be versed in Gods booke, whereof there be [h] two parts, his old Testament, and his new. The ground of the former is the Law, which sheweth our sinne, and containeth iustice: the ground of the latter is the Gospell, which sheweth our Sauiour, and containeth grace. The summe of the Law is the Decalogue, more largely dilated in the bookes of Moses interpreted and applied in the Sermons of the Prophets, and illustrated by manifold examples of good and euill, in the stories of Chronicles, and Kings. But because no man is able perfectly to keepe the whole Law, or any part thereof; it pleased God of his infinit goodnesse and wisdome, to incarnate his only Sonne in our nature, who (for the satisfaction of his iustice) might fulfill the course, and suffer the curse of the Law for vs; that since we could not be saued by doing, we might at least be saued by beleeuing. The Gospels of our foure Euangelists, historically relate the birth, life, death, resurrection, and ascension of Christ. The larger interpretation thereof is deliuered in the Apostles Canonicall Epistles; and the practise of the Primatiue Church, in their Acts; and the Renelation of Saint Iohn, is a prophecie concerning the Church vniuersall vnto the worlds end. In the foure Euangelists, he that hath eyes to see, may reade the text of the Gospell, intimating what Christ is in himselfe: in the Acts, Epistles, Apocalyps, as it were the Gospels golden glosse, vnfolding more fully what Christ is in his members. If any then haue a desire to kisse the Sonne, and to learne how to be subiect vnto the bonds and cords of his kingdome: let him exactly [i] search the Scriptures, for they witnesse of him. In the ceremonies and sacrifices of the Law, you may finde him obscurely shadowed; in the Sermons and Sacraments of the Gospell, openly declared to be the begotten Sonne of God, and anointed King, set ouer his holy hill of Sion.

[h] See Basilicon Doron, pag. 7, 8.

[i] Ioh. 5.39.

Serue the Lord] Concerning the doing of our dutie, [k] two things are required here more especially,

- Feare, serue the Lord in feare.
- Faith, reioyce vnto him, and put your trust in him.

[k] Strigellius.

Faith is opposite to desperation, and feare to securitie. [l] That we may not presume, we must serue God in feare: that we may not despaire, reioyce vnto him in faith and hope. Feare may not be without ioy, nor ioy without feare. Marke how cautionatly the Spirit speakes here, serue the Lord, but in feare: reioyce vnto the Lord, but in trembling: lest haply we should assume too much vnto our selues, and so presumptuously sinne, he doth admonish vs of one thing [m] twise. That we may not be discouraged in seruing of God, he would haue vs to reioyce, yet so that our ioy be with reuerence. The deuout woman who came to visit Christs sepulchre, were filled with feare and great ioy, Matth. 28. 8. And [n] S. Paul aduiseth euery man, who thinks he stands, to take heed lest he fall. and to [o] worke out their saluation with feare and trembling. God abhorreth hypocrites, a people that honoureth him with their lips, but their [p] heart is farre from him: [q] his perfit seruice requireth outward obeisance of the bodie, ioyned with inward obedience of the minde, as Hierome glosseth our text, the seruants of God ought to come into his courts, cum tremore corporis, & timore animæ, with awfull hearts, and trembling hands, so [r] singing to the Lord in gladnesse, that they may reioyce in the Lord with reuerence. This feare may not be seruile, but [s] filiall: as a father he loueth vs, and therefore we must as deare children honour him, obeying with a reuerent awe, whatsoeuer he would haue vs either to suffer or doe. [t] Mirè miscuit amorem cum timore, ac si diceret, timete cum amore, & amate cum timore.

[l] Hieron. Euthym.
[m] Caluin.
[n] 1. Cor. 10. 12.
[o] Philip 2. 12.
[p] Marke 7. 6.
[q] Placidus.
[r] Psal. 81. 1. & 100. 1.
[s] Lorin. Turrecremat.
[t] Bellarmine.

The last obseruable point is why, because hereby yee shall escape Gods heauie curse, that falleth vpon such as resist his Christ; and obtaine that happy blessing, which is promised vnto such as put their trust in him. [u] Vnderstand then, O yee Kings, and be no longer obstinate, ye haue heretofore stood vp against the Lord, and his anointed Sonne: but now serue the Lord and kisse his Sonne. O ye Kings and Iudges of the earth, acknowledge that Christ is the King of Kings, euen the Lord of all things, and Iudge of all men, able to make you his foote stoole, as hauing the heathen for his inheritance, and the whole world for his possession; and holding a rod of iron in his hand, to dash into peeces all such as take counsell together against him. He is also ready to destroy you, for his wrath is kindled, and [x] God is a consuming fire. [y] The more fewell, the greater flame. Your offences make you the very fewell of his anger: and therefore [z] breake off your sins by righteousnesse, embrace the bonds of his authoritie, which you meant to breake, for his [a] yoke is easie: Cast not his cords away, for his burthen is light. Euen now, while you are in the way, kicke not against the Sonne, but kisse the Sonne, [b] that is, admit of his doctrine and submit your selues to his discipline. Christ is the truth, and the way; that therefore ye may not perish from the right way, kisse him, and keepe his Commandements, as Hierome paraphraseth it pithily.

[u] Agellius.
[x] Deut. 4. 24.
[y] Placidus.
[z] Dan 4 24.
[a] Matth. 11 30.
[b] See Hieron. Steuchus. Bucer. Agellius in loc. & Bellarm. de verbo Dei, lib. 2. cap 13.

kissing

Kissing in old time was vsed in token of
- Deuotion: for Idolaters are said to kisse their Idols, Hosea, 13. 2. but Gods people refused to [c] kisse the mouth of Baal. From hence worshipping is in Latin called Adoratio.
- Obedience: so Samuel kissed Saul, 1. Sam. 10. 1. and Aaron kissed Moses, Exod. 4. 27. and it is the manner of subiects at this day, to kisse the hands of their Kings.
- Loue: so [d] Ioseph kissed his brethren: so [e] Naomi kissed her two daughters in Law: so the good old father kissed his dissolute sonne, Luk. 15. 20.

All these kindes of kisses are due to Christ: in our deuotion it is our dutie to [f] fall downe before him, and with [g] Marie Magdalen to kisse his feet, yea the feet of [h] such as bring the glad tidings of his Gospell. And in our whole conuersation, it is our dutie to giue vnto him (our King and Lord) the kisses of honour and homage, seruing him in feare, reioycing vnto him with reuerence. We must heartily kisse him in faith, and not hypocritically, like Iudas, in fashion only. Wherefore [i] some translations haue it thus, adorate purè, worship him in truth and puritie, [k] cleaue to him, and embrace his word with as [l] louing an affection, as they doe that kisse one another:

[m] Atque vni totos ipsi vos dedite, tota
Mente, animoque velut Dominum amplexamini, eiq;
Figite amicitiæ purissima basia sanctæ.

The Sonne came into the world to [n] reconcile vs vnto God his Father: he came not to kill vs, he came to kisse vs, and that (as the Church speakes in her [o] loue-song) with the kisses of his mouth. His saying, Come vnto me all ye that are wearie and laden, and I will ease you, is a [p] sweet kisse of his mouth. His saying, Iam not come to call the righteous vnto repentance, but sinners, is another sweet kisse of his mouth. His saying, God so loued the world, that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoeuer beleeueth in him, should not perish, but haue euerlasting life, is another sweet kisse of his mouth. It is [q] verè suauiolum, as being sweeter than honey, Psal. 19. 10. better than wine, Cant. 1. 1. As [r] concord is the coniunction of two soules; euen so kissing, which is a token of concord, is the coniunction of two bodies. Our blessed Sauiour daily proffers and offers to kisse vs: if we then vnmannerly despise the [s] riches of his goodnesse, and obstinately perish from the right way; he shall one day speake to vs in his wrath, and if his wrath be kindled, yea but a little, what a [t] fearefull thing will it be, to fall into the hands of the liuing God, which is a consuming fire?

If any shall aske, how shall I, which am a poore pilgrim on earth, ascend and kisse my Sauiour who dwelleth in heauen? Answer is made by Dauid in the very next clause, Blessed are all they that put their trust in him: as if he should haue said, To [u] beleeue in him, and to put our whole trust in him, is to kisse him.

In this proposition, as in all other, three points are to be considered especially, the
- Subiect, all that trust in him.
- Prædicate, blessed.
- Copula, are.

[x] Not they who trust in themselues, and their owne merits, or in Princes and their meanes, or in Saints and their mediations, or in Angels, or in any thing else, beside [y] Christ: onely such are free from the tyrannous oppression of Satan and sin, who put their trust in him. He saith not, all they that beleeue him, and assent barely to his promise: [z] but omnes qui confidunt, all they who confidently place their affiance in his mercies, and beleeue in him, according to that of [a] S. Iohn the Baptist, He that beleeueth in him shall not be condemned: but he that beleeueth not, is condemned alreadie, because he beleeueth not in the name of the only begotten Sonne of God. I finde that some Doctors among the [b] Iewes, by him, vnderstand God the Father: but [c] Christian Interpreters vsually referre this vnto God the Sonne, making the coherence thus: O kisse the Sonne, for blessed are all they that put their trust in him. Here then is a pregnant place to proue that iustification is by faith in Christ. See Melancthon, Buser, Tileman in loc.

[c] 1 King. 19. 18. See Hieron in Iob 31. 27. & in Hosea 13. 2.
[d] Gen 45. 15.
[e] Ruth 1. 9.
[f] Psal 95. 6.
[g] Matth. 28 9.
[h] Rom. 10. 15.
[i] Placidus. Steuchus.
[k] Agellius.
[l] Bellarmine.
[m] Io. Graecius. Parasinus Theologus in loc.
[n] Ephes 2. 16.
[o] Cant. 1. 1.
[p] Melanct. in loc.
[q] Strigellius in loc.
[r] Concordia duorum cordium, osculum duorum corporum coniunctio. Io. à Iesu-Maria in Cant 1.
[s] Rom. 2. 4.
[t] Heb. 10. 31.
[u] Strigellius. Tileman.
[x] Hieron.
[y] Act. 4 12.
[z] See Placidus. Melancthon. Bucer in loc.
[a] Ioh 3. 18.
[b] D Kimchi. apud Bucerum in loc.
[c] Placidus. Caluin. Genebrard. Io. Ganeius in loc. Idem. Bellarm. de verbo Dei, lib. 2. cap. 11.

There be three kinds of blessing: { Externall, as the gifts of the world. / Internall, as the gifts of grace. / Eternall, as the gifts of glory.

[d] In loc. Now, bonorum omnium cumulus & summa, saith[d] Augustine, belongeth vnto such as put their trust in the Lord. They haue the promises of the life present, and of that which is to come, 1.Tim4.8. Mercy doth embrace them on euery side, Psal.32.11. Blessed in euery kinde of blessing, as reuerend Beza paraphrastically:

—— omnibus ô modis beatos illos, qui Domino Deoq́, fidunt.

[e] Deut.28.3. 1. They be blessed in things of this world, blessed in[e] their field, and blessed in their fold, blessed in the fruit of their cattell, and increase of corne, blessed in their comming home: loe thus shall they be blessed who feare the Lord, Psal.128.5. Or [f] Rom 8.28. if God denie these blessings vnto them, it is for their[f] good, and so they be blessed in their crosse, hauing (as Paul said) nothing, and yet possessing all things, 2.Cor.6.10.

[g] Ephes.1 3. 2. Blessed in the gifts of grace, both illuminating and sauing, blessed with[g] all spirituall blessing in heauenly things in Christ, blessed in respect of Their { Vocation: [h] Blessed are the eyes which see the things that you see, and the eares which heare the things that you heare. Blessed are they which are called to the Lambes Supper, Apocal.19.9.

[h] Matth 13.16. Luke 10.23.
Iustification: Blessed are they, [i] whose wickednesse is forgiuen, and whose sinnes are couered.
[i] Psal 32.1. Rom 4.7.
Sanctification: [k] Blessed is the man that hath not walked in the counsell of the vngodly, &c. Blessed is the seruant, [l] whom his master when he commeth shall finde doing his dutie. Blessed are the poore in spirit, blessed are the meeke, blessed are the mercifull, Matth.5.
[k] Psal 1.1.
[l] Matth 24.46

[m] Matth.25.34. [n] Matth.5.3. 3. Blessed in the gifts of glory, [m] Come ye blessed, inherit ye the kingdome, &c. [n] theirs is the kingdome of heauen. It is now theirs in hope, hereafter it shall be theirs in hold. See notes vpon the Gospell on All-Saints day.

Psalme 57.

Be mercifull vnto me, O God, be mercifull vnto me, &c.

[o] Melancth. Caluin. Tileman. David in this hymne[o] prayeth, and praiseth the Lord. First, he prayeth vnto God, from the 1. verse to the 8. for deliuerance from his enemies tyrannie. Then, as conceiuing vndoubted hope thereof he prepares himselfe to praise God in the rest, O God my heart is fixed, my heart is fixed, I will sing and giue praise.

In his prayer two points are remarkable, to wit, a { Petition, Be mercifull, &c. inforced by his { Dutie, for my soule trusteth in thee, &c. / Danger, as being persecuted by { Cruell enemies, my soule is among Lions, verse 4,5. / Cunning enemies, they haue laid a net for my feet, vers.7. } [p] Tremelius. Repetition, in the 6. & 12. verses, as the[p] burthen of the song, Set vp thy selfe, O God, aboue the heauens, and thy glory aboue all the earth.

Be mercifull vnto me, O God. The title sheweth vs that Dauid made this Psalme, when he fled from Saul into the Caue. The story whereof is reported at large, 1. Sam.24. and it is in briefe this: Saul persecuting Dauid, sought him in the wildernesse of Engedi, vpon the rocks, among the wilde goats: and being there in a Caue to couer his feet, Dauid hauing him at his mercie, would not kill the Lords anointed, but only cut off the lap of his coat, to shew, that he could haue touched his skinne so well as his skirt, skirt, and that he could haue made him (as it is in the prouerbe) shorter by the head, so well as curtall his robe. Which when Saul after perceiued, his heart relented for Dauids great kindnesse, and he wept acknowledging his fault, and taking an oath of Dauid, that he should not destroy his seed: he ceased his persecuting for a time. Dauid in this distresse composed this hymne, the which is grounded vpon his faith, and his faith is grounded vpon Gods mercy and might. Gods mercy, Be mercifull vnto me, O God be mercifull, as being so willing to defend thy children, as the hen is her chickens vnder the shadow of her wings. Gods might, I will call vnto the most high God, euen vnto the God, that shall q performe the cause I haue in hand, who shall send from heauen, to wit, his hand, as Psalm 144.7. or his Angell, as Dan. 3.28. or, as it here followeth, his mercy and truth, able to saue me from the reproofe of him that would eat me vp and deuoure my soule. [r] By supernaturall and extraordinarie miracles, so well as ordinary meanes, able to deliuer his seruants as well with [f] few as with many. So Manasses in his praier, builded all his comfort vpon Gods almighty power, and vnsearchable mercifull promise. So Christ in his absolute patterne of praying, aduiseth vs to call vpon God as our Father in heauen, insinuating hereby, that God is willing to grant our requests, as being our Father; and able, because in heauen. And according to these presidents, our holy Mother the Church of England begins her publike deuotion vnto God, Almightie and most mercifull Father. Able to heare, because almightie: willing to helpe, mercifull.

For my soule thirsteth in thee] He desires to be heard in respect of his assured affiance in Gods almightie power and holy promise, [t] The Lord is nigh vnto all them that call vpon him, euen all such as call vpon him faithfully: [u] Call vpon me in the time of trouble, so will I heare thee, &c. [x] Blessed are all they that put their trust in him. And therefore Dauid here challengeth (as it were) God vpon his word, saying, Be mercifull vnto me, for my soule trusteth in thee. The [y] repetition of miserere, sheweth his earnest affection and intention in praying, and the word [z] soule, that his hope for helpe was no flying conceit of his braine, but a full assurance setled in his heart. Lord I trust in [a] nothing else but in thee alone, for vnder the shadow of thy wings shall be my refuge, vntill this tyrannie be ouerpast. Some put their trust in [b] vncertaine riches, and say to the wedge of gold, [c] thou art my confidence. But [d] riches auaile not in the day of wrath: [e] horders vp of siluer and gold are come to naught, and gone downe to hell: O foole! this night will they fetch away thy soule from thee, Luke 12.20.

Other trust in their owne worth and holinesse, as the Pharisie (Luke 18) stood and prayed thus with himselfe, O God I thanke thee that I am not as other are, extortioners, vniust, adulterers: I fast twise in the weeke, I giue tithe of all that euer I possesse. But [f] blessed is the man that feareth alway, for he that trusteth in his owne heart, is a foole.

Other trust in their publike counsell, as Achitophel, of whom it was said in those daies, that his counsell was reputed [g] as an oracle of God: but the Lord [h] catcheth the wise in their owne craftinesse, and the counsell of the wicked is made foolish.

Other boast of their strength, and put their trust (as [i] Goliah did) in their sword and shield: but [k] cursed is the man that maketh flesh his arme, withdrawing his heart from the Lord.

Other put their trust in Princes, and make the Kings Minion their mediator. But, saith our [l] Prophet, O put not your trust in Princes, nor in any childe of man; for his breath goeth forth, and he turneth againe to his earth, and then all his thoughts perish.

Other put their trust in [m] Chariots, and other in horses: but we will remember the name of the Lord our God; only blessed is he, that hath the God of Iacob for his helpe, and whose hope is in the Lord his God, Psal. 146.4. and therefore be mercifull vnto me, O God, be mercifull vnto me, for in thee haue I put all my confidence. Mine other friends and forces besides thee, what are they but miserable comforters (as [n] Iob speakes) if they be compared with thee? [o] Like as the chickens seeke to the henne for defence; so runne I to the shadow of thy wings for my refuge. Lord my soule trusteth q The like phrase Psal. 138 and Philip. 1.6.

r Mollerus. Tileman, Caluin, opposing heauen to terrene meanes.

f 1. Sam. 14.6. & 2. Chr. 24.11

t Psal. 145.18.
u Psal. 50.15.
x Psal. 2.12.

y Euthym. Agellius. Genebrard.
z Caluin.
a D. Incognit. Beza. Buchanan.
b 1. Tim 6.17.
c Iob 31.24.
d Prou. 11.4.
e Baruc. 3.17.19

f Prou. 28.1.26

g 2. Sam. 16.23.
h Iob 5.13. 1. Cor 3.9.
i 1. Sam. 17.45
k Ieremi. 17.5.

l Psal. 146.3.

m Psal. 20.7.

n Iob 16.2.
o Tileman. Bellarmine.

truſteth in thee now, ſo ſhall it euer, vntill this euill be paſſed ouer. P For by the word vntill, he meanes not, that when the ſtorme was appeaſed, he would then ceaſe to truſt in God; but that he would both then and for euer depend vpon him, as long as he hath any being, Pſal.146.1. So the word vntill is vſed, 2. Sam.6.23. Michol the daughter of Saul had no childe vntill the day of her death. And Pſalme 110. verſ.1. The Lord ſaid vnto my Lord, ſit thou on my right hand, vntill I make thine enemies thy footſtoole. Where the word vntill (as I haue ſhewed vpon the place) notes not a peece of time, but a perpetuitie. For Chriſt (after all his enemies are made his footſtoole) ſhall euer ſit at the right hand of God, as hauing a q throne which endureth euer, and a r kingdome without end.

Vnder the ſhadow of thy wings, ſhall be my refuge] s By this he doth vnderſtand Gods ſafegard, protection, and prouidence. The Metaphor is borrowed from the Hen, whoſe wings in t three things eſpecially, reſemble Gods high and holy hand ouer vs. 1. The wings of the Hen nouriſh and brood her chickens: euen ſo the Lord ſaid vnto Hieruſalem, u How often would I haue gathered thy children together, as the hen gathereth her chickens vnder her wings, and ye would not? 2. The wings of the Hen ſerue to defend her chickens from a tempeſt and ſtorme: ſo God is a x refuge againſt the tempeſt, a ſhadow againſt the heat. 3. The wings of the Hen ſerue to protect her chickens from the Kite that houereth ouer them, and would faine deuoure them: euen ſo God deliuereth his children from the y ſnare of the hunter, z that is, from the ſubtle tentations of the deuill, who walketh about ſeeking whom he may deuoure, 1. Pet. 5. 8. The Lord hideth all his vnder the ſhadow of his wings, and ſo capa-pe, they ſhall be ſafe vnder his feathers; his faithfulneſſe ſhall be their ſhield, and his truth their buckler, Pſal. 91. 4.

Vntill this tyrannie be ouer-paſt] He compareth his affliction and calamitie to a a ſtorme that commeth and goeth: as it is not alway b faire weather with vs in this life, ſo not alway foule; c Heauineſſe may continue for a night, but ioy commeth in the morning. d God is faithfull, who will not ſuffer his children to be tempted aboue their abilitie, but will euen giue the iſſue with the tentation. e Athanaſius ſaid of Iulian, furiouſly raging againſt the Lords anointed, nubecula eſt, cito tranſibit. Man is borne to f labour and g dolour, to trauell and trouble. To labour in his h actions, to dolour in his paſſions. and ſo i great are the troubles of the righteous, but the Lord deliuereth him out of all. If we put our truſt in him, and caſt all our care vpon him, he will in his good time bring it to paſſe, that all our afflictions ſhall ouerpaſſe: he will either take them from vs, or vs from them, and then we ſhall aſſuredly know that the troubles of this life preſent are not k worthy of the glory, which in the life to come ſhall be ſhewed vnto vs. For as the globe of the earth, which improperly for his ſhew of bigneſſe, we terme the world, and is, after the Mathematicians account, many thouſand miles in compaſſe, yet being compared vnto the greatneſſe of the ſtarrie skies circumference, is but a center or little pricke: ſo the trauell and affliction in this life temporall, in reſpect of the ioyes eternall in the world to come, beare not any proportion, but are to be reputed (in compariſon) a very nothing, as a darke cloud that commeth and goeth in a moment.

This (as l Melanæthon here notably) requires rather an application, than an explication or large commentarie. Bleſſed is that man, who can in all his affliction and trouble ſay with our Prophet, O God be merciſull vnto me, for my ſoule truſteth in thee, and vnder the ſhadow of thy wings ſhall be my refuge, till this tyrannie be ouer-paſt. Happy man is he, who can in the middeſt of his croſſes and loſſes affirme truly with holy m Iob. The Lord gaueth, and the Lord taketh away, bleſſed be the name of the Lord; n though he ſlay me, yet will I truſt in him; o as he maketh the wound, ſo will he binde it vp, he ſmiteth, and his hands make whole. Happy man is he, who can in the houre of tentation, hide himſelfe with the Church in the p holes of the rocke, that is, in the wounds of Chriſt, our rocke and refuge in the time of trouble.

Yea, but where dwelleth our bleſſed Sauiour, how ſhall we find him? Vnto this queſtion himſelfe anſwered, Ioh. 1. 39. Come and ſee. The Church is his q houſe, there he r dwelleth, and there you may find him alwayes at home, not in his mothers armes,

P D. Incognitus. Wilcox.

q Heb 1.18.
r Luk.1.33.
s Euthym. Bellarmine. t Bonauent. Mollerus.
u Matth.23.37.

x Eſay 25.4.

y Pſal 91.3.
z Augustine. Hieron. Arnobius.

a Genesa gloſſ. Wilcox
b Caluin.
c Pſal 30.5.
d 1.Cor.10 13
e Apud Tolet. in loc.
f Iob 5.7.
g Iob 14.1.
h Bernard.
i Pſal.34 18.

k Rom.8.18.

l Idem Strigelius in loc.

m Iob 1 21.
n Iob 13.15.
o Iob 5.18.
p Cant 2.14.
q Heb 3.6.
See Cyril. & Maldonat. in Ioan.1 39.
r Pſal 135.21.

armes, or on a woodden Crucifix; but in his holy word and Sacraments Natus est Christus de virgine, numquid semper nascitur? saith Augustine: He was once borne of the Virgin, shall he be borne still of her? He did once sucke her breasts, is he still an infant and a sucking babe? Once he did hang on the Crosse, doth he still hang on it? Hæc transierunt, these things are past and gone. But seeke him in his word, for that witnesseth of him; and in his Sacraments, for they represent liuely both his bloud and body. His word is an audible Sacrament, and his Sacraments are visible words. So long as the Church had golden Teachers, she needed no wooden Images: but when once golden Priests degenerated into woodden, then both woodden and golden Images crept in, If the Queene of [f] Sheba condemned the men of Christs age, much more the men of our time, liuing in the Church of England. She was a Queene, we subiects: she left her kingdome and countrey, we (God be praised) sit vnder his owne vines in our owne soyle: she came from the furthest part of the world, we haue Christ among vs: she was moued only with his [t] fame, we both heare Christ in his word, and see him in his Sacraments: she comming to Salomon brought presents, we comming to Christ may receiue rewards: she came to behold Salomon a meere man, we may behold Christ God and man, a greater than Salomon: greater in wisdome, for [u] neuer any man spake as he did: greater in might and mercy, for neuer any man did as he did, he did all things [x] well, [y] he made the deafe to heare, the dumbe to speake, the binde to see, the lame to goe, he cured the sicke, and raised the dead, and that is more than euer King Salomon did. Greater in maiestie, for Salomon in all his royaltie was nothing else but a type of this our King of glory. So that if we doe not come to him in our tentations and troubles, inuiting vs freely, fully, Come all ye that labour and are laden, and I will ease you: the Queene of the South assuredly shal arise in iudgement against vs, and by her example condemne vs.

When [z] Toxaris saw his countriman Anacharsis in Athens, he said vnto him, I will at once shew thee all the wonders of Greece: Viso Solone vidisti omnia; in seeing Solon, thou seest all, euen Athens it selfe, and the whole glory of the Greekes. In like manner I may tell a Christian: Hast thou faith, and assured trust in the Lord? then thou hast more than the wonders of Greece; vpon the point, all the wonderfull gifts of grace: for faith is a mother vertue from which all other spring, and without which our best actions are no better than sinne, Rom 14.23. Wherefore let vs alway labour for faith, as for life, because [a] the iust man liueth by his faith; his soule trusteth in the Lord, and vnder the shadow of his wings shall be his refuge, till all the tyrannie (both of Satan and sinne, death and hell) is ouerpast.

My soule] That is, my life, body, person, as the word soule is oft vsed elsewhere, namely, Genes. 14.21, Numb. 31.40. Ioh. 10 32. 1. Sam. 22.22

Among lions] An vnregenerate man hauing Gods image defaced in him, is but a little better than a very vermine. [b] Auaritia feruet alienarum opum violentus ereptor? similem lupo dixeris: ferox atque inquietus linguam litigys exercet? Cani comparabilis. Insidiator occultus surripuisse fraudibus gaudet? vulpeculis exæquetur. Iræ intemperans fremit? leonis animum gestare credatur. Pauidus ac fugax non metuenda formidat? ceruis similis habeatur. Segnis ac stupidus torpet? asinum viuit. Lenis ac inconstans studia permutat? nil ab anibus differt Fœdis immundisque libidinibus immergitur? porcidæ suis voluptate detinetur. Ita fit, vt qui probitate deserta homo esse desierit, cùm in diuinam conditionem transire non possit, vertatur in bestiam. To this purpose, [c] Carolus Bouillus excellently, Humana sub cute plurimæ latent feræ. The Scripture saith as much in calling a subtill dissembler fox, Goe tell that fox, said Christ of Herod, Luke 13.32. in calling a soule-murthering false Prophet, a [d] rauening wolfe: in calling a vaine man, a [e] wilde asse colt: in calling a voluptuous man, giuing ouer to worke all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse, a [f] sow wallowing in the mire: in calling a proud man in honour, that vnderstands not how to vse the good things he hath, [g] a brute that perisheth, as [h] horse and mule without vnderstanding. So Dauid here termes the children of men, which are set on fire to doe mischiefe, whelps of lions: My soule is among lions. O God be mercifull vnto me, for my soule is persecuted by such enemies as abound with a great deale of might and malice. Might, as being lions,

[t] Matth. 12.42.

[u] Iohn 7.46.
[x] Mark 7.37.
[y] Matth. 11.5.

[z] Lucianus in Scytha.

[a] Habacuc. 2.4.

[b] Boethius de consolat. Philosophiæ, lib. 4. prosa. 3.

[c] Dialog. de immortalit. animæ.

[d] Matth. 7.15.
[e] Iob 11.12.
[f] 2. Pet. 2.22.

[g] Psal 49.10.
[h] Psal. 32.10.

lions, that is, hardy and haughty, Lebaim of leb, that is, heart, courage. So lions are mentioned in holy Scripture for ſtoutneſſe: 2.Sam.17.10. He that is valiant, whoſe heart is as the heart of a lion: and for boldneſſe, Prou.28.1. The righteous are bold as a lion. And my foes haue great fury ſo well as force, being ſet on fire, raging themſelues, and [i] inflaming other alſo with anger and enuie, meere boutefeus. [k] So that if I ſhould ſcape the iawes of lions, which hurt at hand; yet I may fall into their blacke mouthes, whoſe teeth and tongue like launces and arrowes hit and wound a farre off. By [l] theſe fierie fellowes he doth vnderſtand backbiting ſlanderers and ſycophants in the Court of Saul, accuſing him of treaſon and diſloialty. For ſo himſelfe complaineth, 1 Sam.24.10. Wherefore giueſt thou an eare to mens words, who ſay, Behold, Dauid ſeeketh euill againſt thee?

[m] Salomon ſaith, A man that beares falſe witneſſe againſt his neighbour, is like an hammer and a ſword, and a ſharpe arrow. Nay, the detracting tongue hurts a great deale more than either ſword or arrow. For a ſword that makes a big wound cannot hurt farre off, and an arrow that hurteth farre off, vſually makes no big wound: but the lewd tongue cuts deeper than any ſharpe ſword, and flieth faſter and further than any ſwift arrow. The dagger at one blow, the dart at one ſhoot kils not many: but a ſlanderer in telling one tale, may murther at one time three, to wit, himſelfe, the party to whom, and the party of whom he telleth it. Vnus eſt qui loquitur, & vnum tantum verbum profert, & tamen illud vnum verbum, vno momento multitudinis audientium dum aures inficit, animas interficit. The wicked (ſaith our [o] Prophet) haue ſharpned their tongues like a ſerpent, and the tongue of a ſerpent (as [p] Plinie telleth vs) is triſulca, three edged.

They haue laid a net for my feet] As the foes of Dauid were cruell, a [q] generation whoſe teeth are ſwords, and iawes are kniues to deuoure Gods afflicted people; [r] ſo likewiſe craftie, laying ſnares for his feet, thinking to catch him in a pit-fall, as a bird, or as a beaſt in a ginne. The [s] wicked bend their bow, and make ready their arrowes vpon the ſtring, that they may ſecretly ſhoot at them which are vpright in heart; that which they cannot effect by power, they will attempt by policie. But the [u] ſnare is broken, the [x] net, which they laid priuily, caught themſelues, and they who digged the pit, are fallen into the middeſt of it themſelues. And here we may behold Gods infinite iuſtice, who neuer leaues the deedes of charity, nor the debts of cruelty vnſatisfied. As [y] Gideon ſlew ſeuenty Elders of Succoth with vnmeaſurable torments: euen ſo were his owne ſeuenty ſonnes, all but one murthered by his baſtard Abimelec. So the wicked [z] Egyptians (hauing cauſed ſome male-children of the Hebrewes to be ſlaine, and other of them to be caſt into the water and drowned) were rewarded by God in the like meaſure, deſtroying their owne [a] firſt borne by his Angell, and drowning their King and his hoaſt in the red ſea, Exod.14. So [b] Haman was hanged vpon the ſame gallowes he ſet vp for Mordecai. [c] Baiazet the firſt, who purpoſed in the pride of his heart, if he ſhould conquer Tamberlaine, to carry him in an iron cage thorow his kingdome; was himſelfe ſerued in the ſame kinde by victorious Tamberlaine. The Tyrant [d] Maxentius was ouerthrowne in the ſame bridge, which he craftily built as a ſnare for the deſtruction of Conſtantine; and ſo his [e] miſchiefe fell vpon his owne head, and his wickedneſſe vpon his owne pate. [f] Alexander the ſixt was poiſoned at ſupper with the very ſame wine, which he had prepared as a deadly draught for his familiar friend Cardinall Adrianus: It is ſaid in the ſtorie, that it happened by his ſeruants improuidence, who miſtooke the bottles; and yet doubtleſſe by Gods all-ſeeing prouidence, who caſteth his enemies into the ſame pit they digged for other.

Myſtically this Hymne may be conſtrued of [g] Chriſt, who was [h] in the dayes of his fleſh aſſaulted by the tyranny both of temporall and ſpirituall enemies. His temporall enemies, [i] Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and people of Iſrael, furiouſly raged, and tooke counſell together againſt him. The chiefe Prieſts and Princes were (ſaith [k] Hierome) like lions, and the people like the whelps of lions, all of them in a readineſſe to deuoure his ſoule. The Rulers laid a net for his feet in their [l] captious interrogatories, asking, Matth.22.17. Is it lawfull that tribute be giuen vnto

[i] Ardeliones aulici Tremel.
[k] See Bellar. & Agell. in loc.
[l] Bucer. Tileman. Rob. Stephanus.
[m] Prou.25.18.
[n] Bernard. ſerm. 24. in Cant.
[o] Pſal.140.3.
[p] Nat. hiſt. lib. 11. cap 37.
[q] Prou.30.14.
[r] Euthym. Caluin.
[s] Bellarmine. Agellius.
[t] Pſal.11.2.
[u] Pſal.124.6.
[x] Pſal.35.8.
[y] Iudges 8.
[z] Exod.1.
[a] Exod.12.
[b] Eſter 7.10.
[c] Knolles in his life.
[d] Euſeb. hiſt. lib. 9. cap.9.
[e] Pſal.7.17.
[f] Pet. Bembus hiſt. Venet. lib.6. Idem Pontanus de prudent. lib.4. cap.16.
[g] Hieron. Auguſtine. D. Incognitus. Lorinus.
[h] Heb.5.7.
[i] Act.4.27.
[k] In loc.
[l] Turrecremat. Lorinus in loc.

vnto Cæsar, or no? And Ioh. 8.5. whether the woman taken in the very act of adulterie, should be stoned to death or no? The people were set on fire, when as they raged against him, and their teeth and tongues were speares and swords, in [m] crying, Crucifie him, crucifie him. His spirituall enemies also sought how to swallow him vp, his soule was among lions all the dayes of his life, at the houre of his death especially. The deuill in tempting and troubling him, had laid a snare for his feet; and death, in digging a pit for him, had thought to deuoure him. As Dauid was in the caue, so Christ the sonne of Dauid was in the graue. But it was [n] impossible that the Lord of life should be holden of death, or that his flesh should see corruption; he therefore rose againe from the dead on this day, setting himselfe aboue the heauens, and his glorie aboue all the earth. In his anguish and agonie he did [o] offer vp prayers and supplications, with strong crying and teares vnto him that was able to saue him from death, saying: [p] O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup passe from me: neuertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt. And so Christ here called vpon his Father, O God be mercifull vnto me, &c. But he speakes as man, and in the person of men, [q] Vnus homo dicit, sed vnus pro multis. And [r] S. Augustine sweetly, Qui cum patre miseritur tui, in te clamat miserere mei. Christ, according to his [t] Theleſis and naturall will, abhorred and feared death, and therefore said, O God be mercifull vnto me: but according to his Bouleſis and rationall will, he yeelded himselfe voluntarily to his persecutors, and said, Vnder the shadow of thy wings shall be my refuge, till this euill be ouerpast. And Psalm. 16.9. (as S. Peter applieth it, Acts 2.25.) I beheld God alway before me, for he is at my right hand, that I shall not fall. Wherefore such as affirme that he suffered the pangs of desperation, and the very paines of the damned in hell, erre foully, not vnderstanding the Scriptures. He saith here vers. 5. according to the vulgar Latine, Dormiui conturbatus, he was indeed grieuously troubled in his soule; yet so that he slept, [t] tam placatus erat iste turbatus, vt quando vellet dormiret. He feared his enemies tyrannie, secundum propassionem, (as [u] Lombard acutely) non secundum passionem. Or, to speake in the words of [x] Bernard, he was turbatus, moued, but not perturbatus, remoued from his trust in God, and resolution to worke our good. And therefore he said in another Psalme, I will lay me downe in peace, and take my rest, as hauing [z] power to lay downe my life, and power to take it vp againe. For as he died when he would, euen so when he would he did arise from the dead, setting himselfe aboue the heauens, and his glorie aboue all the earth.

According to this exposition, our Church allotted this Hymne to be read on this holiday: for in Christs resurrection all his enemies tyrannie was ouer-past; in his resurrection his [a] glorie (which heretofore was obscure) did appeare aboue all the earth; in his resurrection he did awake right early, so the text, in the [b] morning early when it is [c] darke; in his resurrection, his lute and harpe did awake, that is, his flesh arose from the bed of his graue. [d] The strings of an Harpe are touched, and sound vpward especially, but the strings of a Lute from below: Christs humane nature then in working diuine miracles, which are from aboue, was like the Harpe; but in suffering our infirmities here below, like a Lute. The Harpe did sound, when he made the blinde to see, the deafe to heare, the lame to goe, &c. but the Lute did sound, when he was a thirst, hungrie, naked, whipped, when he cried, when he died, when he was bufferted, and when he was buried. After his resurrection, all the miracles he did out of his power, and all the miseries he suffered out of his infirmitie, were by the blessed Appostles, instruments of his glorie, preached first among the people, then among all nations, euery where singing, that the greatnesse of his mercie reacheth vnto the heauens, and his truth vnto the clouds.

This also may be construed of the [e] Church, and that both in respect of her spirituall enemies and temporall. As for her ghostly foes, the deuill is a roaring lion, 1. Pet. 5.8. and our sinnes are the [f] whelps of lions, readie to deuoure vs. And concerning outward enemies, the Church in this world is like Daniel in the lions den, or as the sucking childe playing vpon the hole of the Aspe, Esay 11.8. she hath here no visible power or outward helpe to flie to for succour, all her trust is in the Lord, vnder the shadow of his wings is her refuge, till this euill is ouer-past. In old time Gods people

[m] Augustine.
[n] Act. 2.24.
[o] Heb. 5 7.
[p] Matth. 26.39.
[q] Hieron.
[r] In loc.
[t] See notes vpon Gospell 10. Sund. after Trinit.
[t] August in loc. Consule Lorin. in loc.
[u] Sent. lib. 3. dist. 15.
[x] Epist. 25.
[y] Hieron in loc.
[z] Ioh. 10.18.
[a] Turrecremat.
[b] Luke 24.1.
[c] Ioh. 20 1.
[d] Augustin. Hieron. Lorinus.
[e] Mollerus. Strigelius.
[f] Nyssen. apud Lorin. in loc.

people were [g] tried by mockings and scourgings, by bonds and prisonment, they were stoned, hewen asunder, they were tempted, they were slaine with the sword, they wandred vp and downe in wildernesse, and mountaines, and caues of the earth, cloathed in sheepe-skins, and in goats-skins, being destitute, afflicted, and tormented, of whom the world was not worthy. Since Christ, it is well obserued by [h] Bernard of the Churches affliction, Amara prius in nece martyrum, amarior post in conflictu hæreticorum, amarissima nunc in moribus domesticorum: Hos non fugare non fugere potest, ita inualuerunt & multiplicati sunt super numerum. Her oppression in the beginning was great by the persecution of tyrants, afterward greater by the conflict of heretikes, but now greatest of all by the dangerous positions and practises of Antichrists in the kingdome of Poperie, whose very Masses are sometime for massacres, and their sacred sacrifices offerings of bloud. And surely (beloued) if the Church had not any other enemies, but only these monstrous Antichrists of Rome, yet she might truly complaine with our Prophet here, my soule is among lions. Eleuen Popes had that name, whereof all (excepting two or three) were roaring lions in their Buls, and rauening lions in seeking after their prey. Leo the 10. so pilled and polled the goodly nations of Germanie with impardonable Pardons and mercilesse Indulgences, as that his insupportable cruelty gaue the first occasion of the reformation of Religion in that countrey. The foes of Dauid are said here, to lay a net for his feet, and to digge a pit before him: and what are the Papists intricate distinctions of Schooles, and Machiauelismes of State, but snares and nets to catch our bodies and soules, and so greedily to swallow vs vp, as Saul here would haue done to Dauid. The Scribes and Pharisies haue so great a swallow, that they deuoure not some few widdowes houses, as the [i] Pharisies among the Iewes in old time; but also whole villages and townes, as [k] Morindoll and Cabriers in the County of Prouince, yea whole shires and countries in Netherland. yea their intent was Anno 1588. to deuoure this whole kingdome of England with an inuincible (fondly so called) Armado. The foes of Dauid had teeth as speares, and tongues as swords: and are not the tongues of Papists answerable, who terme the sincere profession of the Gospell Heresie, Turcisme, Paganisme, Diabolisme, [l] farre exceeding the setting vp of Beel, Baal, and Belzebub, and all the Deuils in hell: [m] affirming in their letters and libels, that our Church hath no faith, but fancie: no hope, but presumption: no charitie, but lust: no God, but an Idoll. The foes of Dauid were set on fire: and who greater incendiaries than the Papists? The chiefe Logicke in their conference was a fagot for the heretieke, delighting so much in fire worke, that they burned Gods people by the dozen, as at [o] Stratford the Bow neere London, and bound them in chaines by the score, as at [p] Colechester in the bloudy daies of Queene Mary. Nay, their intent was on the 5. of Nouemb. in the yeere 1605. to burne, and that at one fire, by the hundreds, and those not the meanest of the people, but the very principals of our Church & Common-wealth, euen the most meek king himself, together with his noble consort, and all their royall issue. This Powder-plot was so transcendent in villanie, that I may well vse the words of [q] Moses: Aske of the dayes of old, that haue beene before you, since the day that God created man on earth, and inquire from the one end of heauen to the other, if there came to passe such a thing as this, or whether any such like thing hath bin heard? And answer may be giuen out of the 19. chap. of Iudges, at the 30. verse, There was no such thing done or seene, since the time that the children of Israel came vp from the land of Ægypt vnto this day. The like was neuer done, nor heard of in Israel, nor throughout the world, since the beginning. To speak with [r] Habacuc; Behold a worke wrought in your daies, you will not beleeue it, when it shall be told you. Shall I call it a worke done? no beloued (as a reuerend father of our Church) it was the work of the Lord, that it was not done. The snare was broken, & we deliuered & they fell into the pit who digged it for vs. A work of so great might & mercy, that it ought to be done in perpetual remēbrance. [s] Son of man, write thee the name of the day, euen of the same day: for the King of Babel set himselfe against Hierusalem this same day. The 5. of Nou. is the day, wherin we were deliuered from the Babylonish & Romish tyranny, let vs be glad & reioyce therin, & sing as Dauid in the second part of this Hymne, O God my heart is fixed, my heard is fixed, I will sing & giue praise, &c.

[g] Heb. 11. 36.

[h] Ser. 33. super Cant.

[i] Matth 23. 14.

[k] Fox Martyr. fol. 859 See the persecutions of Angronge, apud eundem fol. 871.

[l] Sir Tho. Moore preface to his confutation of Tyndals answer among the workes of Moore, fol 340.

[m] D. Carier let. to the King, pag 47.

[o] Fox Mart. fol. 1738.

[p] Idem ibid. fol 1389.

[q] Deut. 4. 32.

[r] Habacuc 1. 5.

[s] Ezech 24. 2.

PSALME III.

I will giue thanks vnto the Lord with my whole heart, secretly among the faithfull, and in the Congregation.

THis Hymne may be parted into three portions.

1. A Protestation of King Dauid in the first verse, that he will in his owne person (hereby giuing all his subiects a good[t] example) praise the Lord, I will giue thanks; and that not [u] hypocritically with his mouth and lips only, but with my heart; and that not with a[x] deuided heart, or a peece, but with my whole heart; and that both in the secret assemblies of the faithfull, and in the publique congregation. [y] Or I will giue thanks secretly for the satisfaction of mine owne conscience, and in the congregation openly, for the further edification of my brethren.
2. An Enumeration of Gods admirable blessings, conferred vpon the whole world in generall: vpon his Church in more particular, as the [z] ground and matter of his praise, from the second verse to the tenth, The works of the Lord are great, his works of creation, and works of redemption are worthy to be praised and had in honour. His works of creation, [a] as the making of all things of nothing, and the preseruing of the same from the beginning in a more excellent beautie. His works of redemption, as Christs incarnation, passion, resurrection, ascention; all which our mercifull and gracious Lord hath so done, that they ought to be had in remembrance. Here then obserue the reason, why the Church allotted this Hymne to be read on Easter day: the redemption of Israel out of Egypt, is a plaine [b] figure of our deliuerance by Christ, out of the hands of all our spirituall enemies; and their [c] Passe-ouer and [d] Manna (which is implied here verse 5.) is a tipe of our spirituall eating and drinking at the Lords table, which is enioyned vs at Easter, aboue all other times in the yeere.
3. A conclusion at the 10 verse, concerning a
   - Rule
     - Propounded, The feare of the Lord is the beginning of wisdome.
     - [e] Expounded, A good vnderstanding haue all they that doe thereafter.
   - [f] Reason, The praise of it endureth for euer.

Concerning the two former parts, I haue written [g] heretofore much, and I shall haue iust occasion [h] hereafter also to say more. My purpose for the present is to begin at the Psalmes end, The feare of the Lord is the beginning of wisdome, &c. The which Epiphonema concludes the Prophets whole discourse, touching the praise of God: as if he should haue said, seeing the works of the Lord are so great, so worthy to be praised and had in honour, so meruellous and memorable, that they deserue the seeking out, [i] seeing his name is so reuerend and holy; doubtlesse, the feare of the Lord is the beginning of wisdome, and the praise of it endureth for euer.

[k] To feare God is to beleeue him, to loue him, to put our trust in him, to giue him thanks, and in all our actions and passions to be ruled according to his holy Lawes. In a word, to feare God (as the [l] Wiseman teacheth) is our whole dutie, concerning offices of pietie toward God, and pitie toward our neighbours. For the word beginning, signifieth here not only principium, but also [m] præcipuum: not only primum, but also primarium: not only the first in time, but also the first in honour and dignitie. For as Dauid here calleth it the beginning of wisdome: so Salomon, Ecclesiastes 12.13. the end of all. The feare of the Lord is in deed the first Alphabet of wisdome, the beginning, as it were the [n] begetting, or (as [o] Iesus the sonne of Sirach termeth it) the root of wisdome. [p] But that is not all, it is not only an introduction to wisdome, but wisdome it selfe, Iob. 28. 28. The feare of the Lord is wisdome, and

[t] Mollerus.
[u] Tileman. Caluin. Agellius.
[x] Hosea 10.2.
[y] Bellarmin.
[z] Caluin.
[a] Strigellius. Turrecremat.
[b] Bucer.
[c] 1.Cor.5.7.
[d] 1.Cor.10.3.
[e] Agellius. Bellarmin.
[f] Wilcox.
[g] See notes on 89 Psalme, and sermon on Gunpowder treason day.
[h] In Psal. 113. 118. 145.
[i] Arnobius. Mollerus.
[k] Melancthon.
[l] Eccles. 12.13.
[m] Agellius. Idem Caluin. & Genebrard.
[n] Eccles 1.24.
[o] Melancthon. Caluin. Bellarmin.

and to depart from euill is vnderstanding. It is deepe wisdome (saith our English Paraphrast in meeter) yea the perfection and fulnesse of wisdome. Ecclesiasticus 1.20. q As then in the vulgar Latine, Ecclesiasticus 11.3. honie, which is the chiefe of sweet things, is called initium dulcoris, the beginning of sweetnesse: euen so Gods feare (which vpon this point is summa summarum, as it were the summe totall of all holy knowledge) is termed initium sapientiæ, the beginning of wisdome.

q Genebrard.

This assertion, in worldly mens vnderstanding, is a grand paradox: for they repute the preaching of Christianitie r foolishnesse, and the professors of the same, fooles: 1.Cor.4.10. We are fooles for Christs sake. Loe, say the wicked of the godly, Wisdom 5.5 We thought their life madnesse, accounting them rather mad men, then sad men. But the Spirit of truth here proclaimeth on the contrary, that all worldlings are blindlings, and that none wicked are wise. To such as haue not the feare of God before their eyes, it is expresly said by s Wisdome it selfe, O ye fooliſh, how long will ye loue fooliſhneſſe, and hate knowledge?

r 1.Cor.1.18.

s Prou.1.22.

It is obiected out of S Luke, Chap.16. vers. 8. that the children of this world are wiser than the children of light. Answer is made by the t Doctors vpon the place, that Christ accounts them not wiser absolutely, but only secundum quid: they be wiser in their generation, u that is, in things appertaining to this life present, but not in the businesse of regeneration, in things belonging to that other life which is to come. For (as x one said of Sir Thomas Moore) that he was either a fooliſh wiſe man, or a wiſe fooliſh man: euen so the children of this world are wise men in foolish things, and foolish men in wise things. They be not in genere wise, but in genere suo, wise to do euill (as the y Prophet speakes) but to doe well they haue no knowledge.

t Origen. Iansenius. Maldonat.
u Theophylact. Marlorat
x Hall in his Chron. Idem Fox Martyr. fol 976.
y Ierem 4.22.

Atheists, acknowledging no God, are very fooles: Psal. 14. The foole said in his heart, there is no God. If this Ignoramus had so much braine as brow, the z bookes of the Creatures, and Conscience, would informe his vnderstanding, that the great world without him, and the little world within him, are nothing else (as it were) but God expressed.

z Vide Bellarm. de ascensione mentis in Deum per scalas creat. grad 1.2 8

The Gentiles, adoring many gods, are very fooles, before Christ (the Sonne of righteousnes) calls them out of a darknesse into maruellous light, a blinde and a fooliſh nation, Deut. 32.21. Euen the seuen wise men of Greece (saith b Lactantius) had no good vnderstanding, because none but fooles account them wise. Nay, c S. Paul giues this iudgement of all heathen Philosophers, that they were vaine in their imaginations, and that while they profeſſed themselues to be wiſe, they became fooles. In this respect d Cicero had iust cause to complaine, O me nunquam ſapientiam!

a 1.Pet.2.9.
b De vera sapientia, cap. 1.
c Rom.1.21.
d Epist. ad Octauium.

The superstitious Idolaters, and mingle manglers in Religion, who worship the true God falsly, not according to his word, but according to their own will, are very fooles. So Paul called his Galathians, who ioyned the ceremonies of Moses vnto the Gospell of Christ, as necessarie to saluation: O c fooliſh Galathians, who hath bewitched you, that ye ſhould not obey the truth? are ye ſo fooliſh, that after ye haue begun in the Spirit, you will end in the fleſh?

c Galat.3.1.3.

Carnall Gospellers and hypocrites, who professe they know God in their words, and yet denie him in their f works, are very fooles. Their prayers are ſacrifices of fooles, Ecclesiastes 4.17. Their disputations about Religion, are fooliſh queſtions, Tit. 3.9. all their generation are fooles and blinde, Matth.23.17. As for example, the slowbacke neglecting the workes of his vocation, and hauing in idlenesse, (though he heares neuer so many sermons vpon the working dayes) in the iudgement of the wisest is a very foole: Ecclesiastes 4.5. The fooliſh foldeth his hands, and eateth vp his owne fleſh. So whosoeuer is vngratefull vnto the Lord (which is the Father of mercies, and God of all grace) for his manifold blessings, is a very foole: g Doe ye ſo reward the Lord, ô ye fooliſh and vnwiſe people? the oxe knoweth his owner, and the aſſe his maſters crib: but Iſrael hath not knowne, my people hath not vnderſtood. Esay, 1.3.

f Tit 1.16.
g Deut.32.6.

So the couetous wretch (who though he boast of his faith and hope, h ſacrificeth vnto his net, and saith in his heart to the wedge of gold, i thou art my confidence, is a very foole. k Nabal is his name, and follie is with him, a blinde foole, like l Samson in the mill, he grindes for other, but eats not of the fruits of his labour himselfe,

h Habacuc 1.16.
i Iob 31.24.
k 1 Sam.25.25.
l Iudg.16.21.

himselfe, the which is termed by Salomon, an euill sickneſſe, and a vanitie, Eccleſiaſtes 6.2.

So the proud man, as well in his ambition, as in his honour, is a very foole. [m] Like horſe and mule without vnderſtanding: like the famous foole [n] Lobelinus, who being in a new coat, knew not himselfe. [o] For if in fauour, he knowes no man; if out of fauour, none know him.

So the drunkard is a very ſot, [p] mancipium corporis, a ſlaue to his owne ſeruant, a foole with a witneſſe, his fault is written in his forehead and in his face, he reeles in open ſtreet, and hath in his drunken fit a little leſſe wit than a beaſt, and but a little more ſenſe than a blocke.

So the wanton is deſtitute of vnderſtanding, Prou. 6.32. led by the fooliſh woman as a foole to the ſtocks, Prou. 7.22. For though he may paraduenture blinde the Biſhop, and [q] cope the Commiſſarie; yet Gods [r] all-ſeeing eye (when the night is darke, the doore faſt, and the curtaine cloſe) findeth out his foule follie.

To conclude this point, euery kinde of wickedneſſe is a weakeneſſe, and euery fault a follie. But on the contrarie, euery point of Religion is a part of wiſdome, as conducting to bleſſedneſſe (the end of wiſdome.) To ſerue the Lord in feare, and to caſt all our care vpon him, is wiſdome: for, [s] Bleſſed is the man that feareth the Lord, bleſſed are they that put their truſt [t] in him. To loue thy neighbour as thy ſelfe, is a part of wiſdome: for, Bleſſed is the man [u] that conſidereth the poore and needie, bleſſed are the meeke, bleſſed are the mercifull, &c. To liue ſoberly toward thy ſelfe, is a part of wiſdome: for, bleſſed are the poore in ſpirit, Matth. 5.3. Bleſſed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments, leſt he walke naked, and men ſee his filthineſſe, Apoc. 16.15.

The blindlings of the world cannot in this life ſee this, and therefore they will not ſay this: but one day, to wit, at the laſt day, they change their minds, and ſighing, acknowledge within themſelues, [x] This is he, whom we ſometime had in deriſion, and in a parable of reproch, we fooles thought his life madneſſe, and his end without honour, how is hee counted among the children of God? and his portion is among the Saints: therefore we haue erred from the way of truth, and the light of righteouſneſſe hath not ſhined vnto vs, and the Sunne of vnderſtanding roſe not vpon vs,

A good vnderſtanding haue all they that doe thereafter.] In Philoſophie wiſdome is defined by knowing, but in Diuinitie wiſdome is prized by doing. They be wiſe men in deed, [y] Non qui facienda dicunt, ſed qui decenda faciunt; heretickes reade ſo much, and hypocrites vſually cite ſo much, and the deuill himſelfe knoweth ſo much of the Goſpell as any: yet all theſe nowithſtanding haue bad vnderſtanding, [z] only ſuch haue good vnderſtanding in Gods feare that doe thereafter, [a] that is, in all their actions and paſſions altogether relie vpon his ſure promiſes, euer readie to be ruled according to his word and will: ſo Dauid expounds himſelfe in the [b] Pſalme 119. I haue more vnderſtanding than my teachers, for thy teſtimonies are my ſtudie. I am wiſer than the aged, becauſe I keepe thy Commandements. Here then is condemned as folly the [c] will-worſhip, or voluntarie religion of all hypocrites, eſpecially [d] Papiſts, honouring God not according to his feare, but according to their owne fancie.

[e] Purgatorie being a figment of idle Poets, and not the iudgement of holy Prophets, is a parcell of foolerie; wherein the Pope ſheweth himſelfe moſt vncharitable, for that [f] hauing power to fetch all ſoules out of this hell, and to purge whole Purgatorie, ſuffers notwithſtanding this fire to burne ſtill, only becauſe it warmeth his owne kitchen.

Praying to the dead, is another parcell of foolerie, the which in the Booke of Gods feare hath neither precept, nor patterne, nor promiſe; for our calling vpon God, we finde [g] precept vpon precept, and promiſe vpon promiſe. Call vpon me (ſaith the [h] Lord) in the time of trouble, ſo will I heare thee, &c. whom haue I in heauen but thee, Pſal 73.25. So Chriſt openly, Come vnto me all ye that are wearie and heauie laden, and I will eaſe you. Come vnto me, that is a precept; I will eaſe you, that is a promiſe. Come [i] not to mine, but to me; not to my Saints, or Angels, or Martyrs, or

[m] Pſal. 32.10.
[n] Mensa philoſophica fab. de ſatuo.
[o] Sir R. Barcley felicitie, lib. 5.
[p] Seneca Epiſt. 65.
[q] Viſion of Pierce Plowman paſſ. 3.
[r] Qui minimè fallitur, quia minimè claditur, Bernard. lib 5 de Conſiderat.
[s] Pſal. 112.1.
[t] Pſal 2.12.
[u] Pſal 41.1.
[x] Wiſd. 5.3.
[y] Æneas Syluius comment. in Panormit. lib 3.
[z] Chryſoſt. in loc.
[a] Melanct. Mollerus.
[b] Verſe 99. So Moſes Deut 4.6 Ierem. 8.9.
[c] Coloſſ. 2.23.
[d] Mollerus.
[e] See Reſpon. Elien. ad Apol. Bellar. pag. 207, 208. & Mort. Appeal lib. 1. cap 2 §. 13.
[f] Bulla Clemen. 6. & apud Anto. Florent. part. 3. tit 22. cap. 6.
[g] Eſay 28.10.
[h] Pſal. 50.15.
[i] See Goſpell on S. Matthias day.

mother, but to my selfe; send not other, it is my pleasure that you come: seeke not for helpe from other, I will ease you. There be likewise so many patternes of this deuotion, as there be godly prayers recorded in holy Bible; but on the contrarie neuer a leafe, neuer a line, neuer a letter in the Booke of Wisdome, that fauoreth inuocation of Saints, and therefore we may well apply that vnto the Church of Rome, which [k] Elia said vnto the messengers of Ahaziah, Is it not because there is no God in Israel, that ye goe to enquire of Baalzebub the God of Ekron? Is it not because there is no liuing God in heauen, that ye pray to stocks on earth, and seeke to [l] such sauiours, as are worthily thought to reside with Belzebub in hell? Is it not an idle thing to sue to the man, if the Master alwayes be present, and euer ready to grant thy request? and is it not a greater folly to call vpon Saints in our trouble? when our blessed Sauiour hath openly not only said, but also sworne, [m] Verily, verily, I say vnto you, whatsoeuer you aske the Father in my name, he will giue it you, &c.

[k] 2. King. 1. 3.

[l] See Sermon on Gunpowder treason day.

[m] Joh. 16 23.

Their prophaning of the blessed Sacraments is another parcell of foolerie; for is not (I pray you) their christening of [n] bels an impudent mocking of holy Baptisme; and the denying of the Cup vnto Lay-men, a notorious lurching at the Lords Table, contrarie to Christs [o] expresse word, Drinke ye all of this; in giuing the bread he said only, Take eat, indefinitly: [p] but when he tooke the Cup (as foreseeing this innouation of Papists) he did adde an vniuersall note, bibite omnes, drinke ye, drinke all ye: so they make mariage a Sacrament, and yet affirme, then holy Priest-hood is prophaned by this holy ordinance that it is [q] sacriledge forsooth, and not a Sacrament. And [r] so they honour it as the Iewes honoured Christ, in clothing him with a purple robe. What should I speake of their Masse, which is a notorious enemy to Christ, in respect of his oblation and office, the Lord hath sworne and will not repent, that Christ is a Priest for [s] euer, Psal. 110.4. offering himselfe once for all, Heb. 9. 26. 28. Are the Masse-Priests then any better than idle fooles, [t] in offering him often vnto God the Father, vnder the formes of bread and wine really and properly, for the sinnes of the quicke and the dead? It is reported of the zealous and learned Martyr [u] Ioannes Mollius, that he neuer spake of the name of Iesu, but instantly teares dropt from his eyes. And surely, the due consideration of Christs all-sufficient oblation and sacrifice for all our sinnes on the crosse, should make vs abhorre those masse-mongers; and to say with our [x] Prophet, Doe not I hate them (ô Lord) that hate thee, and am not I grieued with those that rise vp against thee? yea Lord, I hate them right sore, euen as though they were mine enemies.

[n] Durant. de ritibus Eccles. li. 1. cap. 22. num. 6. See Respon. Elizæ ad apolog. Bellarm. Fox Martyr. fol. 786. & Pet. Moulin defence of our faith against Confessua. a. t. 16.

[o] Matth. 26 27.

[p] Calu & Mar. lorat in loc Mat.

[q] Bellar orat. in schol. habit. tom. 3. controuer. in fine.

[r] Dr. Fulke in Heb. 13. 4.

[s] See Chemnit. exam. par. 2. pag 170, 171.

[t] Con. Triden. & Bellar lib. 1. de missa per totum ferè librum.

[u] Fox Mart. fol. 855.

[x] Psal 139 21.

But the maine point of their fooliſh wisdome, is the prohibiting of the Scriptures in a vulgar and knowne tongue. [y] Christ saith expresly, Search the Scriptures. Antichrist on the contrarie, [z] the reading of holy Scriptures is against the determination of the Church. As long as Lay-men are kept from the light of the Gospell, and lanterne of the Law, they cannot spiritually discerne their Priests erroneous doctrines and doings. Herein the Popish Clergie doth vse the foppish Laitie, like as the [a] Philistines handled Samson, first they put out their eyes, and then being blinde-fold, they make pastime with all degrees of them, euen with Emperours and Kings, and [b] all that is called God. I haue heard often, and read [c] also, that Cardinall Caietan comming into Paris, and seeing the blinde people verie desirous of his blessing, and therein vndoubtedly the Popes: he turned to them and said, Quandoquidem hic populus decipi vult, decipiatur in nomine diaboli: that is, seeing this people will needs be deceiued, let them be deceiued in the name of the deuill, and so gaue them the Popes blessing.

[y] Iohn 5. 39.

[z] Ex registro Io Longland. Episc. Linc. fol. 85 apud Fox Mart fol. 767.

[a] Iudg. 16. 25.

[b] 2 Thess. 2. 3.

[c] Dr. Carleton, direction to know the true Church, pag 40

In these points and many moe the Papists (albeit neuer so learned) haue bad vnderstanding, and the reason hereof is plaine, because they haue changed the rule of faith, [d] adding to the Scriptures vnwritten traditions, and honouring them with equall affection of deuotion and reuerence, and so consequently worshipping God after their owne inuentions, and not according to the prescript of his holy faith and feare.

[d] Concil. Triden. idem Bell. lib de verbo Dei non scripto, cap 3 §. contra. & cap. 4. §. nunc vt. & 12. § dico secundo

The praise of it endures for euer.] Or as other translations, his praise, referring it [e] either to God, or else to the man who feares God. [f] Some Diuines ascribe this praise praise to God alone, [g] becauſe Tehilla properly ſignifieth only that kinde of praiſe which is due to God: and ſo they make this clauſe to containe both a [h] precept, [i] and a promiſe. Precept, exhorting vs to praiſe God with all our heart, both in the ſecret aſſemblies of the faithfull, and in the publike Congregation. And ſo this Hymnes end doth anſwer the beginning, and the Text in euery point, the title. Now leſt any man in executing this office ſhould be diſcouraged, the Prophet addeth a promiſe, Gods praiſe doth endure for euer; as if he ſhould haue ſaid, The Lord is [i] King, be the people neuer ſo impatient, the Lord is [k] God, albeit the [l] Gentiles furiouſly rage together, and the Iewes imagine a vaine thing, The Kings of the earth ſtand vp, and the Rulers combine themſelues againſt him. He that dwelleth in heauen hath all his enemies in deriſion, and makes them all his foot-ſtoole; his power is for euer, and ſo conſequently his praiſe ſhall endure for euer; in the militant Church, vnto the worlds end; in the triumphant, world without end.

[e] Bucer. Azellius.

[f] Chrysost. Euthym.

Moſt Interpreters haue referred this vnto the good man who feares the Lord, yet diuerſly. [m] S. Auguſtine expoundeth it thus, his praiſe, that is, his praiſing of the Lord ſhall endure for euermore, becauſe he ſhall be one of them, of whom it is ſaid, Pſal. 84. 4. Bleſſed are they that dwell in thy houſe, they will be alwayes praiſing thee. [n] Other vnderſtand by [o] his praiſe the commendation of the good man, both in the life preſent, and in that which is to come, for his righteouſneſſe ſhall be had in an euerlaſting remembrance, Pſal. 112. 6. Concerning the preſent, howſoeuer the name of the wicked rot either in obliuion, or in ignominie: yet [p] the memoriall of the iuſt is bleſſed, it is like the compoſition of the perfume made by the skill of the Apothecarie, ſweet as honey in all mouthes, and as muſicke at a banquet of wine.

[r] Hunc ventura nepotum ſemper dicent ſecla
Beatum. Or as Beza, Hic ſapit, hic demum manſura laude fruetur,
—— parere qui Deo ſtudet.

In the world to come, the Lord will ſay to ſuch as louing his feare, haue liued thereafter; [s] It is well done, good ſeruant and faithfull, enter into thy Maſters ioy: to become the peoples Saint, and to be commended of the moſt, is not alwayes honourable, Non minus periculum ex magna fama (ſaid [t] Tacitus) quàm ex mala. That commendation is only true glorie, which (as [u] Cicero ſpeakes) is Conſentiens laus bonorum, & incorrupta vox bene Iudicantium. And therefore to be praiſed by the moſt worthy of all honour and praiſe, the Lord moſt high and moſt holy, ſurpaſſeth all the wickeds glozing, all the worlds glorie.

Now then I demand of the worldling, what is the moſt high and deepe point of wiſdome? is it to get an opulent fortune, to be ſo wiſe as fiftie thouſand pounds? behold, godlineſſe is great gaine, ſaith [x] Paul, and the Chriſtian only rich, quoth the renowned [y] Catechiſt of Alexandria. Is it to liue ioyfully, or (to vſe the Gallants praiſe) iouially? behold, [z] there is ioyfull gladneſſe for ſuch as are true-hearted. A wicked man in his mad-merrie humour for a while may be Pomponius Lætus, but a good man only is Hilarius; only he which is faithfull in [a] heart, is ioyfull in heart. Is it to get honour? the praiſe of Gods feare (ſaith our Text) endures for euer. Many Worthies of the world are moſt vnhappie, becauſe they be commended where they be not, and tormented where they be, hell rings of their paines, earth of the praiſe: but [b] bleſſed is the man that feareth the Lord, for his commendation is both here laſting, and hereafter euerlaſting; in this world renowned amongſt men, in the next rewarded amongſt Saints and Angels in the kingdome of glory.

[g] Genebr. in loc. & in Pſa. 148. 13
[h] Melanct. Mollerus.
[i] Pſal. 99. 1.
[k] King. 18. 31,
[l] Pſal. 2. 1.
[m] In loc.
[n] Arnobius. Dr. Incognitus. Bellarmin. R. Stephanus. Tileman.
[o] His, that is, their praiſe who feare the Lord and doe thereafter, the ſingular for the plurall. Bucer.
[p] Prou. 10. 7.
[q] Eccleſ. 49. 1.
[r] Buchanan.
[s] Matth. 25. 21.
[t] In vita Agric.
[u] Tuſc. quæſt. lib. 3.
[x] 1. Tim. 6. 6.
[y] Clem. pedag. lib. 3.
[z] Pſal. 97. 11.
[a] Pſal 64. 10. Prou 13. 9.
[b] Pſal. 112. 1.

PSALME 113.

Praise the Lord (ye seruants) ô praise the name of the Lord.

- Quis, Who? ye seruants.
- Quomodo, How?
  - With all praise, vers. 1. Praise the Lord, ô praise the name of the Lord.
  - At all times, vers. 2. from this time forth for euermore.
  - In all places, vers. 3. from the rising vp of the Sunne, to the going downe of the same.
- Quapropter, Why? for his
  - Infinite power, vers. 4.
  - Admirable prouidence, both in
    - Heauen
    - Earth, and that in
      - Publique weales, v. 6, 7.
      - Priuate families, vers. 8.

THis Hymne (as both text and title tell vs in the verie beginning) is an exhortation to praise the Lord: wherein three points are chiefly regardable;

The Prophet exhorts[c] all people to praise the Lord, Young men and maidens, old men and children, praise, the name of the Lord, Psalm. 148.12. More specially, Gods people which haue tasted of his goodnesse more than other, as hauing his [d] statutes, and ordinances, and couenants, and promises, and seruice, Rom, 9.4. [e] Most chiefly the Leuites and Priests, as being appointed by the Lord for leaders and guides vnto the rest, his seruants after a more speciall manner, as it were in ordinary. All men owe this dutie to God, as being the [f] workmanship of his hands; Christians aboue other men, as being the [g] sheepe of his pasture, Preachers of the word aboue other Christians, as being [h] pastors of his sheepe, and so consequently patternes in word in conuersation, in loue, in spirit, in faith, in pureness, 1. Tim. 4.12.

Yea, but how must Almighty God be praised? for as not euery one that saith vnto the worlds Sauiour, [i] Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdome of heauen: [k] so not euery one that hath in his mouth a bare (the Lord be praised) is a praiser of the Lord, but he which is euer ready to suffer and doe the will of his Master and Maker. God is to be praised in thought, and word, and deed, 1. Cor. 6.20. Glorifie God in your bodie, and in your spirit. The Lord as being high aboue all heathens, and glorious aboue all heauens, is blessed euer in himselfe; but that he may be blessed of other, let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good workes, and glorifie your father which is in heauen, Matth. 5.16. A lewd life doth occasion enemies of piety to reuile the Gospell, and to blaspheme God, Rom. 2.24. but honest behauiour (on the contrary) to praise God in the day of visitation, 1. Pet. 2.12. In one word, [l] he doth praise God most, who liueth best.

The Greeke, παῖδες and the Latine pueri, may be taken for children as well as seruants. And therefore the translation of the Psalmes in meeter aptly, Ye children which doe serue the Lord. There is betweene little children and seruants so great affinitie, that (in Greeke and Latine) seruants are called children, and children seruants, according to that of [m] Paul, The heire, as long as he is a childe, differeth nothing from a seruant. And so the translators in vsing the word pueri (though aued in Hebrew properly signifieth a seruant) [n] insinuate, that we should be like to little children in seruing of the Lord, that is, simple, meeke pure.

Praise the Lord, O praise the name of the Lord!] The doubling and tripling of this exhortation, is to whet our [o] dulnesse and coldnesse, in executing this office, [p] to shew that God is to be praised with an earnest affection and zeale. For albeit Gods praise

[c] Caluin.
[d] Psal 147.19.
[e] Wilcox.
[f] Psal 95.6.
[g] Psal 100.2.
[h] Ephes. 4.11.
[i] Matt. 7.21.
[k] Basil. Chrysost. Euthym.
[l] Tileman.
[m] Galat. 4.1.
[n] Placidus. Bellarmine. Dr. Incognitus.
[o] Caluin.
[p] Placidus.

praise be the Christians Alpha and Omega, the first and the last thing required at our hands, as well in death as life: yet such is our negligence, that we need[q] precept vpon precept, and line vnto line, to put vs in minde of our dutie.

Or this exhortation is doubled, [r] to shew that God alone is worthy all praise; the kingdome is his, and therefore the glory; from him is all power, and therefore to him is due all praise. And that not only for a little while, but from this time forth for euermore: for the seruants of the Lord are to sing his praises in this life to the worlds end; and in the next life, world without end. See before Psal. 89.

And as the Lord is to be praised at all times, so likewise in all places, from the rising of the Sunne, vnto the going downe of the same, [s] that is, in and thorow all the world, [t] for he puts the two chiefe parts of the world, for the whole world, because these two quarters (of East and West) are most inhabited.

Many Christian Interpreters, and some Doctors of the [u] Iewes, vnderstand this of our Lord Christ, whose kingdome is without either limits or end. Without limits, as hauing [x] the heathen for his inheritance, and the vttermost parts of the world for his possession; his [y] name is great among the Gentiles, and incense shall be offered vnto him in euery place. The which is all one with our text, The Lords name be praised from the rising of the Sunne, to the going downe of the same. Without end, for God the Father said vnto God the Sonne, [z] sit thou on my right hand, vntill I make thine enemies thy foot stoole. [a] His seat is like as the Sunne, he shall stand fast for euermore, like the faithfull witnesse in heauen. Yea though heauen be [b] no more, but perish and waxe old as doth a garment, yet he is[c] euer the same, and his yeares doe not faile. The which is answerable to the words of our Prophet here, Blessed be the name of the Lord, from this time forth for euermore.

The Lord is high aboue all heathen] The most high deserues to be most honoured; but the Lord is high aboue all heathen, and his glory aboue the heauen: Ergo, worthy to be praised more than all, either Princes or people. The greatest of all creatures in heauen is an Angell, and the greatest of all men on earth is an Emperour: but the Lord is greater than both, as being their maker, [d] in whom they liue, and moue, and haue their being. Higher than all Heathen, infinitely greater than Alexander the Great, Pompey the Great, Mahumet the Great. Higher than all Heauens airie, where feathered fowles are, for he [e] flieth vpon the wings of the winde, and [f] rideth vpon the clouds as vpon an horse. Higher than Heauens glorious, where blessed soules are; for the heauen of heauens is but his seat where he reigneth, [g] great King aboue all gods. Who then is like to the Lord our God, either among the clods on earth, or clouds in heauen? [h] He measures the waters in his fist, and meeteth out heauen with his span, and comprehends the dust of the earth in a measure. The which [i] Hierome out of Aquila doth interpret after this sort; he measures the waters with his little finger; the earth greater than the waters, with three fingers; the heauen greater than both, with his hand and span. He filleth all things, and nothing is able to comprehend him; according to that of [k] Salomon, Heauens, and heauens of heauens are not able to containe thee. Nay the whole world, in respect of his greatnesse, is but as a drop of the morning dew, Wisdom. 11. 19.

This may teach vs, in what soeuer estate, to [l] possesse our soules in patience, to be [m] strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might; albeit our enemies come about vs like [n] Bees, he which is higher than the highest, and greater than all men, and all deuils, is our protector, stonie rocke, tower of defence, buckler, saluation and refuge, Psal. 18. 1. And as God is most able to helpe vs in trouble, so likewise most apt and readie: for, as it followeth in the next clause, though he dwell on high, yet he doth humble himselfe to behold the things that are in heauen and earth.

[o] Some Philosophers thought it too great labour for God to gouerne the whole world, and other on the contrary too base. But [p] Diuines answer both of them in one word, Deus neque laborat in maximis, neque fastidit in minimis. Indeed the Poet said, Non vacat exiguis rebus adesse Ioui: but the [q] Scripture telleth vs otherwise, that the very haires of our head are numbred, & that not so much as a sparrow, which is sold for a farthing, can fall on the ground, without our heauenly Fathers prouidence.

[q] Esay 28. 10.
[r] Wilcox.
[s] Bonauent. Mollerus.
[t] Wilcox.
[u] Kimchi apud Genebrard. in loc.
[x] Psal. 2. 8.
[y] Malac. 1. 11.
[z] Psal 110. 1.
[a] Psal. 89. 35.
[b] Iob 14. 2.
[c] Hebr. 1. 12.
[d] Acts 17. 28.
[e] Psal. 18. 10.
[f] Psal 68 4.
[g] Psal 95. 3.
[h] Esay 40. 12.
[i] In loc. Esai. See Bellarm. de ascensione mentis in Deum per scal. creat. Grad. 2. cap. 1.
[k] 2. Chro. 6. 18
[l] Luk 21. 19.
[m] Ephes 6 10.
[n] Psal. 118. 12.
[o] Apud Ambros. de officijs lib. 1. cap. 13.
[p] Ambros. in Hexam. lib. 5. cap. 2.
[q] Matth. 10. 30.

prouidence. Disponit membra culicis & pulicis, as Augustine in Psa. 148. For besides his [c] generall prouidence, which is seene in the gouernment of the whole vniuerse, he hath a particular also, moderating enery singular action and accident. He dwelling on high, beholdeth vs as Emmots vpon the mole-hill of this earth, in him we liue, and moue, and haue our being. He supporteth all things by his mightie word, Heb. 1. 3. He reacheth from one end to another, and ordereth all things sweetly, Wisdom. 8. 1. We reade, Matth. 9. that there was a woman diseased with an issue of bloud twelue yeeres: and Ioh. 5. that a certaine man had beene sicke eight and thirtie yeeres: and Ioh. 9. that one was blinde from his birth. All which hapned not by humane chance, but by diuine choise, that [f] the workes of God might be shewed on them. [t] Omnia non permissa solùm à Deo, sed etiam immissa: The Lord doth not only suffer and see what is done here below, but also disposeth of euery particular euent, to the glory of his name, and good of his children. He beheld Dauid in his trouble, Daniel in his dungeon, Peter in his prison, and ordered their short affliction to their endlesse consolation. And this may comfort vs in all our wants and wrongs, He that dwelleth on high, humbleth himselfe to behold the things below, [u] he that keepeth Israel, neither slumbers nor sleeps. I [x] haue grauen thee (saith the Lord) vpon the palmes of my hands, and thy walles are euer in my sight. He heares the very [*] groanes of his seruants in their closets, and [y] makes all their beds in sickneſse; as [z] S. Augustine sweetly, he cares for all his children, as if all were but one; and for euery particular Christian, as if one were all.

[a] Some Diuines applie this vnto Christ: He which is [b] Lord ouer all, is high aboue all heathen; all lands are his inheritance, all people his possession, Psalm. 2. 8. He triumpheth ouer death and hell in his resurrection, and his glorie shined aboue the heauens in his ascension: A [c] cloud tooke him vp out of this world, and he did ascend farre aboue all heauens, Ephes. 4. 10. Here then obserue the reason why the Church allotted this hymne for this day, because Christ in his [d] resurrection from the dead, is declared mightily to be the Sonne of God, high aboue all heathens, and heauens. That which is here said, he humbleth himselfe to behold the things that are in heauen and earth, is all one with that, Esay 61. 1. and Luk. 4. 18. The Spirit of the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings vnto the poore, to binde vp the broken hearted, and to comfort such as mourne in Sion. [e] Almightie God cannot looke aboue himselfe, as hauing no superiours; nor about himselfe, as hauing no equals; he beholds such as are below him: and therefore the lower a man is, the neerer vnto God; he resists the proud, and giues grace to the humble, 1. Pet. 5. 5. He puls downe the mightie from their seat, and exalteth them of low degree: the most high hath a speciall eye to such as are most humble. For, as it followeth in our text, he taketh vp the simple out of the dust, and lifteth the poore out of the durt.

The Poet said, Haud facilè emergunt, quorum virtutibus obstat res angusta domi; that it is an hard thing for a man of low birth and small meanes, to be preferred vnto high places of honour. But our Prophet here, to demonstrate Gods admirable power and prouidence, sheweth how the Lord raiseth the poore man out of the mire, that he may set him with the Princes, euen with the Princes of his people.

[f] Darius was borne of a seruant, Archelaus King of Macedonia base begotten; Antigonus, Themistocles, Phocion, Epaminondas, and other noble worthies issued from ignoble parents. [g] Tangrolipix of an ordinarie Captaine became Sultan of Persia, and first erector of the high and huge Turkish Empire, Tamberlaine (as [h] some thinke the sonne of a Shepherd) was in his time the scourge of the great Turke, treading vnder his foot insolent Baiazet the first, of his violent and fierce nature surnamed [i] Gilderun or lightning. [k] Willegis Archbishop of Mentz was the sonne of a Wheele-wright, and therefore that he might alway remember how the Lord had exalted him out of the durt, to set him with Princes, he caused the walls of his priuie chamber to be hung with instruments of Carpentry, to which he ioyned this Motto Willegis, Willegis, recole vnde veneris: and from hence the Bishops of that Sea giue two wheeles in their armes. In England also many Prelates haue beene lifted out of the mire to the Miter, it is the Lords doing that hath his dwelling on high, & yet humbleth

[c] Caluin. Instit. lib. 1 cap. 16. Vide Thom. 1. part. quæst. 22. art. 2 & Caietan ibid.

[f] Ioh. 9 3.
[t] Lipsius de Constant. lib 1. cap. 14.

[a] Psal 112. 4.
[x] Esay 49 16.
[*] Psal. 38. 9. Iudges 2. 18.
[y] Psal. 41. 3.
[z] Confess lib. 3. cap. 11.

[a] See Mollerus & Strigel. in loc.
[b] Rom. 10. 12.
[c] Act. 1. 9.

[d] Rom. 1. 4.

[e] Morlorat. in Luc 1. See Magnificat, & Epist. 3 Sund. after Trinit.

[f] Ælian hist. lib 2.
[g] Knolles Turk. hist. pag. 4.
[h] Apud Knolles in the life of Baiazet 1. fol. 212.
[i] Knolles vbi sup fol. 203.
[k] Abraham Bucholcer. Ind. Chron.

bleth

bleth himselfe to behold the things in heauen and earth. Renowned [l] Sir Francis Drake, the sonne of a poore Vicar in Kent, was in our age both a terrour to proud Spaine, and the mirrour of England in the most vnknowne and vttermost parts of the world.

The Scriptures afford manifold examples in this kinde; Moses a [m] cast-away childe, was afterward a leader, and a God (as it were) to the children of Israel, Exo. 4. So Daniel of a poore captiue, Dan. 1. 6. became a chiefe ruler, Dan. 2 48. So [n] Ioseph sold for a bond-seruant (whose feet were hurt in the stocks, and the iron entred into his soule) was afterward (Gods high and holy prouidence so disposing) set free by Pharaoh the King: he made him also Lord of his house, and ruler of all his substance, that he might informe his Princes after his will, and teach his Senators wisdome. So the Lord [o] chose Dauid his seruant, and tooke him away from the sheepfold, as he was following the Ewes great with young-ones, that he might feed Iacob his people, and Israel his inheritance: the Lord did not only lift him out of the mire, but also prefer him, he set him with Princes, and [p] those not Princes of other nations, as Ioseph was exalted in Ægypt, and Daniel in Babel; but euen with the Princes of his owne people, to wit, of his owne countrey, where men of eminent parts are most [q] neglected. [r] Or, this may be referred vnto God, as if the Prophet should haue said, he taketh vp the poore man out of the mire, that he may set him in authoritie, not among the heathen only, but ouer the Church his owne people; the which is the greatest honour of all, according to that of Dauid, [s] I would chuse rather to sit at the threshold in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of vngodlinesse: and the good Emperour Theodosius (to the same purpose) desired rather to be membrum Ecclesiæ, quàm caput Imperij; that is, a member of the Church, than head ouer all vnbeleeuers. Now Dauid was aduanced according to both interpretations, in that he ruled his owne people, who were Gods people: so the text, 2. Sam. 12. Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, I anointed thee King ouer Israel, and deliuered thee out of the hand of Saul, and gaue thee thy Lords house, and thy Lords wiues into thy bosome, and gaue thee the house of Israel and Iuda, &c.

As God (in his holy prouidence) taketh vp some poore men out of the mire, to set them with Princes, euen with Princes of his people: so many times he puts downe the mightie from their seat, and brings them vnto the very dunghill, [t] he ruleth as a Iudge, he puts downe one, and sets vp another. Examples hereof in holy Scripture: [u] Haman a man exalted aboue all the Princes in Assuerus court, was (vpon the sudden) hanged on the tree that he had prepared for his enemie, Ester 7. 10. Nabuchadnezzer a proud King, was driuen from mens societie to conuerse with beasts, [x] He did eat grasse as the Oxen, and his bodie was wet with the dew of heauen, till his haires were growne as Eagles feathers, and his nailes like birds clawes, and all for this end that he might know that the most high ruleth ouer the kingdome of men, and giueth it vnto whomsoeuer he will. [y] Herod in the middest of his glory, (when the people hearing his oration in the seat of Iustice, gaue a shout saying, The voyce of God and not of man) was immediatly smitten by the Lords Angell, so that he was eaten vp of wormes, and gaue vp the ghost.

In prophane historie we finde, that [z] Darius plaied the part of the greatest Emperour, and the part of a most miserable begger, a begger begging water of an enemie to quench the great drought of death. [a] Baiazet the first, in the morning was the Grand Seignior of the Turkes, and in the same day the footstoole of Tamberlane. [b] Belisarius a most victorious Captaine (by whose valour and policie the Persians were vanquished, the Vandals subdued, and Africa recouered to the Empire) became before his death a distressed blinde begger in exile, begging his bread from doore to doore, crauing and crying, a pennie for poore Belisarius.

In our owne Chronicles we reade, that [c] Trisilian chiefe Iustice of England in the dayes of King Richard the second, was pulled from the bench aboue, to the barre below: nay, he which had often iudged other to death, in fine was damned himselfe to the gallowes. [d] Shores wife, the merry minion of Edward the fourth, in her flourishing estate was sued vnto more than all the Peeres in the land, but afterward so despoyled [l] Camden in Elizabetha pa. 301.

[m] Exod. 2.

[n] Psal. 105. 17.

[o] Psal. 78 71.

[p] Genebrard.

[q] Ioh 4. 44.

[r] Mollerus.

[s] Psal. 84. 11.

[t] Psal 75. 8.

[u] Este. 3. 1.

[x] Dan 4. 30.

[y] Act. 12. 21.

[z] See Sir Walter Raleigh preface to the worlds Hist.

[a] Knolles in his life.

[b] Procopius de bello Goth. lib. 1. & 3. Idem Simon Schardius in vita Petri de vineis epist. eiusdem præfix. vbi multa huiusmodi reperiuntur.

[c] Holinshead in the life of Rich. the 2.

[d] Holinshead in the life of Edw. the 5.

dispoyled of all her goods, and so despighted by her mercilesse foe, then vsurper of the Crowne, that none durst giue her so much as a crust of bread, or a drop of drinke. She who whilome had stretched her selfe on beds of downe, and was frolike with Princes in iuorie Palaces, ended her dayes in open street, euen in a dirtie ditch, & nomina fecit aquis, as some thinke Shoraditch is so called as it were Shores-ditch. The Seas of examples in this kinde haue no bottome, and therefore we should make no other account of this ridiculous world, [e] than to resolue, that the change of fortune on the great Theater, is but as the change of garments on the lesse: for when on the one and the other, euery man weares but his owne skinne, the players are all one. God which is on high, and humbleth himselfe to behold the things in heauen and in earth, appoints euery man his part and apparell on the worlds stage, lifting vp and pulling downe whom he list. He therefore that complaines of wants or wrongs, is either a foole, or vngratefull to God, or both; that doth not acknowledge, how meane soeuer his estate be, that the same is yet farre greater than that which God oweth him: or doth not acknowledge, how sharpe soeuer his afflictions be, that the same are yet far lesse than those which are due vnto him: how soeuer it be with him, it is the Lords doing, he giueth and taketh away, blessed be his name for euermore.

[e] Sir Walter Rauleigh, vbi sup.

[f] This also may be so well applied vnto Christ as the rest of the Psalme, for in taking our vile nature vpon him, he raised the poore out of the dust, and the begger out of the dunghill. He said to Adam, [g] Dust thou art and to dust thou shalt returne; but Christ in his resurrection and ascension hath [h] raised vs vp together, and made vs sit together in the heauenly places, euen with the Princes of his people, that is, Angels, and Apostles, and other his holy Saints reigning in his kingdome of glorie.

[f] Chrysostom. Arnobius, Iacob de Valent. Bellarmin.
[g] Gen 3 19.
[h] Ephes. 2 6.

He lifteth our soules out of the dust and durt in this life, when our [i] affections are by his grace set on things aboue, and not on things which are on earth. Our flesh is an house of [k] clay, but our [l] spirit reioyceth in God, and hath her conuersation in [m] heauen. A man is where his minde is; if then we minde heauenly things, our soules are raised out of the mire: [n] so Christ in calling Matthew (from the receit of custome) to make him an Apostle, lifted him out of the dunghill; and [o] in calling the rest of his Apostles, from their durtie courses in the world, to the preaching of his word, he raised them out of the dust, and made them (as it is in the 45. Psalme, vers. 17.) Princes in all lands: and in raising Marie Magdalen from her old vomit and filthinesse of sinne, what did he but lift her out of the dunghill? To be briefe, [p] man is like the traueller, who went from Hierusalem, to Iericho, Luk. 10. he falleth among theeues, in manifold tentations and noysome lusts; and they rob him of his rayment, of his righteousnesse and holinesse, wherewith Almightie God adorned him in his Creation; and they wounded him and departed, for sinne wounding the conscience, leaueth a man in a desperate case. But Christ is the true Samaritan, who takes compassion on man, He bindeth vp his wounds, and powreth in oyle and wine; he puts him on his owne beast, and makes prouision for him at an Inne: thus he taketh vp the distressed out of the dust, and the begger out of the dung.

[i] Coloss 3.2.
[k] Iob 4.19.
[l] Luke 1.47.
[m] Philip 3.20.
[n] Dr. Incognit.
[o] Iacobus de Valent.
[p] See Gospell Dom 13. after Trinit.

At our death he lifteth our soules out of the mire, when his glorious [q] Angels attend to conuey them out of this earthly tabernacle to his heauenly kingdome, which is immortall and cannot be shaken.

[q] Luk. 16.22.

At the last day he will also lift our bodies out of the durt and mire. Man that is borne of a woman is full of troubles, and of short continuance, such a sacke of dung, that the [r] Prophet calleth him thrice, earth, at one breath, O earth, earth, earth, heare the word of the Lord, &c. After man hath in this world [s] wearied himselfe, he goeth to bed, and sleepeth in the dust of the graue, neither shall he be raised or awake from his sleepe till heauen be no more, saith [t] Iob. But in the end, when as the [u] heauens shall passe away with a noise, and the elements shall melt with heat, and the earth with the workes that are therein shall be burnt; then our blessed Sauiour shall rouse vs out of the dust, and raise vs out of the mire, [x] changing this our vile bodie, that it may be like his glorious bodie; then this corruptible shall put on incorruption, and this mortall immortalitie; then both our soules and bodies shall haue their perfit consummation in his kingdome of glory.

[r] Ierem. 22.29.
[s] Wisdom. 5.7.
[t] Iob 14 12.
[u] 2. Pet 3.10.
[x] Philip. 3.21.

He

He maketh the barren women to keepe house.] [y] As baseneſſe in men, ſo barrenneſſe in women is accounted a great vnhappineſſe. But as God lifteth vp the begger out of the mire, to ſet him with princes: euen ſo doth he make the barren woman a ioyfull mother of children. He gouernes all things in the priuate family, ſo well as in publik weale. Children and the fruit of the wombe are a gift and heritage, that commeth of the Lord, Pſalm. 127. 4. and therefore the [y] Papiſts in praying to S. Anne for children, and the Gentiles in calling vpon Diana, Iuno, Latona, are both in error. It is God only who makes the barren woman a mother, and that a ioyfull mother. Euery mother is ioyfull at the firſt, according to that of [z] Chriſt, A woman when ſhe trauelleth hath ſorrow, becauſe her houre is come: but as ſoone as ſhe is deliuered of the childe, ſhe remembreth no more the anguiſh, for ioy that a man is borne into the world. But when babes are growne vp and come to their proofe, [a] Salomon ſaith, A fooliſh ſonne is an heauineſſe to his mother. And our Salomon in his kingly gift, I proteſt before that great God, I had rather be no Father and childleſſe, than a Father of wicked Children. Now God makes the barren wife not only fruitfull, but alſo ioyfull.

[b] Et nuper ſteriles repentè matres longa beat propagine.

He made barren old [c] Sara fruitfull in bearing of a ſonne, and ioyfull in that her ſonne was Iſaac, in whoſe ſeed all the nations of the world are bleſſed. He made [d] Manoahs wife both a mother, and a ioyfull mother, in that ſhe bare Samſon the ſtrong, who ſaued Iſrael out of the hands of the Philiſtines. He made [e] Hannah both a mother and a ioyfull mother, in that ſhe bare faithfull Samuel the Lords Prophet. He made Anne both a mother and a ioyfull mother, in bearing bleſſed Marie the [f] mother of our Lord. He made Elizabeth a mother and a ioyfull mother, in bearing Iohn the Baptiſt, a Prophet, yea more then a Prophet, for among them which are borne of women, aroſe there not a greater than Iohn Baptiſt, Matth. 11. 11.

[g] Diuines applie this alſo myſtically to Chriſt, affirming that he made the Church of the Gentiles, heretofore barren, a ioyfull mother of many children, according to that of the [h] Prophet, Reioyce (O barren) that diddeſt not beare, breake forth into ioy, and reioyce thou that diddiſt not trauell with childe; for the deſolate hath more children than the maried wife, ſaith the Lord, See Epiſtle 4. Sunday in Lent.

Or it may be conſtrued of true Chriſtians; all of vs are by nature barren of goodneſſe, conceiued and borne in ſinne, not able to thinke a good thought, 2. Cor. 3. 5. but the Father of lights and mercies makes vs fruitfull and aboundant alwayes in the worke of the Lord, 1. Cor. 15. 58. he giueth vs grace to be fathers and mothers of many good deeds, [i] which are our children, and beſt heires, eternizing our name for euer.

[y] Tileman.
[z] Ioh 16. 21.
[a] Prou. 10. 11.
[b] Beza Paraphraſ.
[c] Gen 17.
[d] Iudges 13.
[e] 1. Sam. 1.
[f] Luk. 1. 43.
[g] Chryſoſt. Hieron. Arnobius
[h] Eſay 54. 1.
[i] Ambroſ. de interpell. libr. 2. cap. 4. Idem Dr. Incognitus in loc. & in Pſal. 102. 17.

PSALME, 114.

When Iſrael came out of Ægypt, and the houſe of Iacob from among the ſtrange people, &c.

THere be two chiefe parts of this, Pſalme, the
1. A deſcription of Iſraels admirable deliuerance out of Ægypt, in the foure former verſes.
2. A dialogue betweene the Prophet and the creatures about the ſame deliuerance, in the foure latter verſes

In

In the deliuerance, note

1. The parties deliuered, Israel, and the house of Iacob, being Gods
   - Sanctuarie.
   - Seigniorie.
2. The perill, out of which they were deliuered, and [k] that was
   1. Bondage.
   2. Bondage among strangers in Ægypt.
   3. Bondage among such strangers as were cruell, a barbarous people.
3. The manner how they were deliuered, not by meanes ordinarie, but miracles extraordinarie, wrought on the - Water, vers. 3. The sea saw that and fled, Iordan was driuen backe.
   - Land, vers. 4. The Mountaines skipped like Rams, &c.

[k] Chrysost. Mollerus.

In the dialogue two points are to be considered:

1. A question, What ayleth thee, O thou Sea, &c. vers. 5, 6.
2. An [l] answer, Tremble thou earth, &c. Or as [m] other translations, The earth trembled at the presence of the Lord, &c.

[l] Vatablus. Tremellius. Bellarmine.
[m] Vulgar Latin. English Geneua.

When Israel] The [n] latter clause doth expound the former, Israel that is, the house of Iacob: for this holy Patriarke had two names, first Iacob that signifieth a supplanter, Gen. 25. 26. and then Israel, that is, one which hath power with God, Gen. 32. 28. teaching vs hereby, saith [o] Hierome (as we haue receiued grace) to supplant vice, that we may preuaile with God and see him; according to that of [p] Christ, Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God. As [q] Iacob and Esau, stroue together in their mother Rebeccaes wombe: so the [r] flesh in man lusteth against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh. If we play Iacobs part in supplanting sinne, which is a red and a rough Esau, we shall assuredly gaine the blessing of our heauenly Father.

[n] Bellarmine.
[o] In loc.
[p] Matth. 5. 8
[q] Gen 25. 22.
[r] Galat. 5. 17.

By Iacobs house then is meant his [s] posteritie the children of Israel, of whom it is reported by Moses, Deut. 10. 22. Thy fathers went downe into Ægypt with seuentie persons, and now the Lord thy God hath made thee as the starres of heauen in multitude. These people were Gods sanctification and dominion, [t] that is, witnesses of his holy Maiestie in adopting them, and of his mightie power in deliuering them; [u] or his sanctification, as hauing his holy Priests to gouerne them in the points of pietie; and dominion, as hauing godly Magistrates ordained from aboue to rule them in matters of policie: or his sanctuarie, [x] both actiuely, because sanctifying him: and passiuely, because sanctified of him. It is true, that God, as being euer the most holie so well as the most high, cannot be magnified and hallowed in respect of himselfe, but in respect of [y] other only. For God is sanctified of his seruants, as wisdome is said to be iustified of her children, Luk, 7. 35. that is, acknowledged and declared to be iust, according to that of the Lord by the mouth of his holy [z] Prophet, Thus will I be magnified and sanctified, and knowne in the eyes of many nations, and they shall know that I am the Lord. Wherefore let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorifie your Father which is in heauen. Againe, Iuda was his Sanctuarie, [a] because sanctified of him, adopted his holy heritage, chosen a peculiar and a precious people to himselfe, [b] aboue all nations in the world. I haue carried you (saith the [c] Lord) vpon Eagles wings, and haue brought you vnto me, that yee might be my chiefe treasure aboue all people, though all the earth be mine, consecrated and hallowed to my worship, as holy Temples and Sanctuaries in whom I may rule; for so the letter clause may well [d] explaine the former, Iuda was his Sanctuarie, because his Dominion, in whom he [e] reigned as a King by his lawes and spirit. And therefore when Israel asked a King of the Lord to iudge them, he said to [f] Samuel, they haue not reiected thee, but they haue reiected me, that I should not reigne ouer them

[s] Euthym. Genebrard.
[t] Geneua gloss.
[u] Melanct. in loc.
[x] Genebrardus. Iacobus de Valentia.
[y] Caluin. in loc.
[z] Ezech. 38. 23.
[a] Bucer. Agellius. Rob. Stephanus.
[b] Deut. 7. 6.
[c] Exod. 19. 4.
[d] Bellarmine.
[e] Chrysost. Euthym. Bucer.
[f] 1. Sam. 8. 7.

them. According to this expoſition, Iſrael is termed (Exod. 19.6.) a kingdome of Prieſts: or (as [g] S. Peter hath it) a royall Prieſthood; royall, as being his Seignioric; Prieſthood, as being his Sanctuarie. For the better vnderſtanding of this phraſe, remember I pray, that there be two kindes of kingdomes in holy Scripture, the kingdome of darkeneſſe, [h] which is the kingdome of the deuill; and the kingdome of heauen, which is the kingdome of God. When all had ſinned in Adam, it pleaſed the Lord out of his vnſearchable iuſtice, to lay this heauie puniſhment on all his poſteritie; that ſeeing they could not be content to be ſubiect to their Creator, they ſhould become vaſſals vnder Satans tyrannie: ſo that all men are now (by nature) the children of [i] wrath, and [k] the prince of darkeneſſe ruleth in their hearts, vntill Chriſt the [l] ſtrong man commeth, and bindeth him, and [m] caſteth him out, and ſo bringeth all his elect out of darkeneſſe into maruellous light, 1. Pet. 2. 9.

[g] 1 Pet. 2. 9.
[h] Coloſſ. 1. 13.
[i] Epheſ. 2. 3.
[k] Epheſ 6. 12.
[l] Luke 11. 22.
[m] Iohn 12. 31.

Blinde ignorant people cannot abide this doctrine, they ſpit at the very naming of the deuill, and ſay that they defie him and all his, euen with all their heart, and ſoule, and minde. Yet whereas they liue ſtill in ignorance and impietie, which are the two maine pillers of Satans kingdome, they make plaine proofe, that they be children of the [n] world, children of [o] diſobedience, children of [p] iniquitie, children of [q] death, children of the [r] deuill, children of [s] perdition, children of [t] hell. Iſrael is Gods dominion, and Iuda Gods ſanctuarie: but Egypt and Babylon, and other parts and perſons of the world, liuing in ſinne without repentance, what are they but the ſuburbes of hell, and (as it were) the deuils Empire, where he holdeth vp his Scepter, and ruleth as a Prince, Epheſ. 2. 2.

[n] Luke 16. 9.
[o] Coloſſ. 3. 6.
[p] Hoſea 10 9.
[q] 1. Sam. 26. 16.
[r] Iohn 8. 44.
[s] Iohn 17. 2.
[t] Matth. 23. 15.

Gods kingdome is taken in the Bible two wayes eſpecially.

- Generally, for that gouernment which is termed [u] Regnum patientiæ, by which he ruleth all men, and diſpoſeth of all men, euen of the deuils themſelues, according to his good will and pleaſure.
- Specially for his adminiſtration of the Church, and that is twofold,
  - Regnum gratiæ, the kingdome of grace.
  - Regnum gloriæ, the kingdome of glory.

[u] See Ro. Steph. Concord in diſtinct. regnum, & Bellarm. Catech. cap. 4.

Of that kingdome which is potentiæ Regnum, it is ſaid by [x] Dauid, Thine is the kingdome, O Lord, and thou exalteſt as head ouer all. Of that kingdome [y] Daniel ſpeaketh, His kingdome is from generation to generation, and his [z] dominion euerlaſting. Of that kingdome of Chriſt in the concluſion of his prayer, Thine is the kingdome, power, and glory. For albeit peruerſe men doe miſchiefe, and obſerue not the Lawes of God, yet he reigneth ouer them as an abſolute Lord: for that (when it pleaſeth him) he hindereth their deſignement; and when he permits them ſometime to haue their deſires, he doth afterward puniſh them according to their owne miſdeeds, and ſo [a] whatſoeuer the Lord pleaſeth, he doth in heauen, and in earth, and in the Sea, and in all deepe places.

[x] 1. Chro. 29. 11
[y] Dan. 4. 31.
[z] Dan. 6. 26.
[a] Pſal 135. 6.

By his kingdome of grace he gouernes the ſoules and hearts of good Chriſtians, giuing them his Spirit and grace to ſerue him in holineſſe and righteouſneſſe all the dayes of their life. Chriſt is the King of this kingdome, vpon whom the Father hath conferred [b] all authoritie both in heauen and earth. The ſubiects of this kingdome are ſuch as [c] offer vnto him free-will offerings with an holy worſhippe, euer ready to giue cheerefull obedience to the rod of his power. The lawes of this kingdome are the Scriptures and word of God, in this reſpect called [d] the kingdome of heauen, the [e] Goſpell, and [f] word of the kingdome; the [g] rod of Chriſts mouth, and [h] power of his arme to ſaluation. And ſo conſequently, the kingdome of grace is a preparation and entrance to the kingdome of glory, which is the bleſſed eſtate of all Gods elect in that other life, where God is to them all in all. And in this reſpect, the kingdome of grace many times is termed in the Goſpels hiſtorie, the kingdome of heauen, as being the way to the kingdome of glory, which is in the heauen of heauens.

[b] Matth 28. 18.
[c] Pſal. 110. 3.
[d] Matth. 13. 11.
[e] Matke 1. 14.
[f] Matth. 13. 19.
[g] Eſay 11. 4.
[h] Rom 1. 16.

This one verſe then expounds and exemplifies two prime petitions in the Lords prayer, hallowed be thy name, thy kingdome come: for Iuda was Gods sanctuarie, because hallowing his name; and Israel, his dominion, as desiring his kingdome to come. Let euery man examine himselfe by this patterne, whether he be truly the seruant of Iesus his Sauiour, or the vassall of Sathan the destroyer. If any submit himselfe willingly to the domineering of the deuill, and suffer sinne to [i] reigne in his mortall members, obeying the lusts thereof, and [k] working all vncleanneſſe euen with greedineſſe; assuredly, that man is yet a chapell of Sathan, and a slaue to sinne. On the contrary, whosoeuer vnfainedly desires that Gods kingdome may come, being euer ready to be ruled according to his holy word, acknowledging it a lanterne to his feet, and a guide to his paths; admitting obediently his lawes, and submitting himselfe alway to the same; what is he, but a citizen of heauen, a subiect of God, a Saint, a Sanctuarie.

[i] Rom 6 12.
[k] Ephes. 4. 19.

Two questions are moued here; the first is, what antecedent answers the relatiue his: and the second, what is meant by Iuda. The relatiue eius hath an antecedent [l] implied, howsoeuer not expressed, [m] as Psalm. 87. 1. Fundamenta eius her foundations are vpon the holy hils: and God is that antecedent, as I haue partly said, and it may likewise be fully shewed both out of the text and title. The [n] circumstances of the text lead vs to this antecedent, the Lord is the God of Iacob, vers. 7. Ergo the house of Iacob is Gods sanctuarie, the children of Israel Gods dominion. Againe, the [o] title points at this antecedent, Alleluia, praise the Lord; as if the Prophet should haue said, ye haue good and great cause to praise the Lord, because when Israel went out of Egypt, and the house of Iacob from among the strange people, then Iuda was his Sanctuarie, &c. Lastly, though it should be granted, that neither title nor text here can afford vs an antecedent, yet we need not runne (with [p] Agellius out of this Hymne) to fetch one from the last words of the next going before; He maketh the barran woman to keepe house, &c. Because his in this verse may be construed of God, catexochen, as being hic ille, the most high, He, who turned the hard rocke into a standing water, and the flint stone into a springing Well; at whose presence the mountaines skip like rammes, and the little hils like young sheepe; yea, the Sea fleeth, and the earth trembleth at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Iacob.

[l] Mollerus.
[m] Genebrard.
[n] Euthym.
[o] Bellarmine.
[p] In loc.

By Iuda [q] some vnderstand Iudea, for [r] God is knowne in Iurie, his name is great in Israel, at Salem is his tabernacle, and his dwelling in Sion. [s] Other haue construed this only of the Tribe of Iuda, for that God in Iuda would chuse a Prince, 1 Chron. 28. 4. or because the Messias of the world, which is the Lord of Lords, and King of Kings, was to be borne of [t] that Tribe. Or, because the [u] Iewes haue a tradition, that Iuda was the first Tribe that aduentured after Moses and Aaron, and entred into the red sea with vndaunted courage. So we finde in the numbring of Israels host, that the standerd of Iuda was in the first place, Numb. 10. 14. and Nahshon the sonne of Aminadab was their Captaine Numb. 1. 3. Hence it is said, Cant. 6. 11. My soule made me like the chariots of Aminadab, or my willing people.

[q] Placidus Turrecremat. Genebrard.
[r] Psal 76. 1.
[s] Dr. Incognit. Agellius.
[t] Gen 49. 10.
[u] See Placidus. Bucer. Genebrard. Dr. Incognit. in loc.

But [x] most Interpreters vnderstand by Iuda, not only that Tribe; but also the rest of the children of Israel. It is nothing but a Synecdoche, pars pro toto, the chiefe Tribe, for the whole bodie of Gods people, that went out of Egypt into the land of promise, called often in holy Scriptures Israel, of the fathers name, and Iuda of the chiefe sonnes name.

[x] Caluin. Rom. Stephanus. Tremellius. Strigellius. Bellarmine.

Bondage was the perill, out of which Israel and Iuda were deliuered, and that in the [y] Poets iudgement is worse than any danger or death, omni malo & omni exitio peior. [z] A woman of a manly spirit said as much, Honestius est mortem occumbere, quàm capita tributaria circumferre. The younger [a] Iustine vsed this apophthegme for his Motto, Libertas res inaestimabilis: and [b] Seneca to the same purpose, For a man to be his owne man, is an inualuable treasure. The resolution of our countrymen to William the Conqueror is renowned in English Historie, Kentish men must haue libertie, Kentish men will haue libertie. [c] There was neuer any bondmen or villaines in Kent. The [d] prouerbialist vttered reason as well as ryme:

Dico tibi verum, libertas optima rerum, Nunquam seruili sub nexu viuito (fili.)

[y] Plautus in Amphit.
[z] Brunuica fœm. Brittanica apud Zephilin in vita Neronis.
[a] Reuſnerus in Symbol.
[b] Epist. 76.
[c] Lambert perambulation of Kent, pag. 14
[d] Apud Holinshed Hist. of Scotland, pag. 204.

But

But Bondage is more grieuous and insupportable when it is in a forraine land, as this of Iacobs house was in Egypt. The stranger is sad in heart, though at libertie, wherefore God enioyned his own people not to grieue the stranger, considering they themselues were sometime strangers in the land of Egypt. The condition of the stranger is to be pitied, as that of the fatherlesse and widow. Ier. m. 7.6. Oppresse not the stranger, the fatherlesse, and the widow, Zach. 7.10. Oppresse not the widow, nor the fatherlesse, nor the stranger, nor the poore. And when vncharitable men vnconscionably vex them, Almightie God takes their cause into his owne hands: Psal. 146.9. The Lord careth for the strangers he defendeth the fatherlesse and widow, he will maintaine their cause, and spoile the soule of those that spoile them, Prou. 22.23. A man at home being in durance hath among his owne, some mediators, or meanes for his deliuerance; but an aliant in thraldome, for the most part is helplesse, if not hopelesse. [f] By the waters of Babylon (say Gods people) we sate downe and wept, when we remembred Sion; as for our merrie harps, we hanged them vp vpon the trees, for how should we sing the Lords song in a strange land?

We must ascend yet one step higher: Israel was oppressed not by strangers only, but also by such strangers as were [g] cruell, as [h] other translations, a barbarous people, barbarous both in their vsage and language. Concerning their tyrannous behauiour towards Gods Israel, it is reported by Moses, Exod. 1.14. that they made them wearie of their liues, by sore labour in morter and bricke, and in all worke in the field, with all manner of bondage which they laid vpon them most cruelly. Moreouer, the King of Egypt commanded the Mid-wiues of the Hebrew women, to kill euerie man-childe in the verie birth. And because the Mid-wiues fearing the Lord, which is the Father of mercie, would not execute that bloudie designe; Pharoah charged his owne people, saying, euerie male-childe that is borne, cast into the riuer. Yea, but how was Egypt a barbarous nation in language, being highly renowned in historie for knowledge? and S. Stephen, Acts 7.22. recorded it as a remarkable commendation in Moses, that he was learned in all the wisdome of the Egyptians. Answer is made by [i] some, that they were called barbarous, as sperking [k] another tongue, or a strange language which Israel vnderstood not; according to that of Paul, 1. Cor. 14.11. Except I know the meaning of the voyce, I shall be to him that speaketh a Barbarian, and he likewise that speaketh a Barbarian vnto me. But [l] other (in my iudgement better) affirme, that they were barbarous, as being a most idolatrous people, notwithstanding all their humane learning, ignorant in the knowledge concerning the worship of the true God, adoring the creatures in stead of the Creator. Barbarous, as not speaking the [m] language of Canaan, as not vnderstanding the [n] mysteries of godlinesse. So profound Plato, learned Aristotle, wittie Plutarch, eloquent Demosthenes, were Barbarians vnto the house of Iacob, as being vnacquainted with Gods feare, which is the beginning of wisdome.

This of the perill out of which Israel was deliuered: it followeth in the next place, that I shew the manner of their deliuerance, brought to passe by Gods [o] mightie hand, and outstretched arme, working a world of wonders in Egypt, and in the wilderneesse, for their safe conduct into the land of promise. All which are registred at large by Moses in the second booke of his historie, called in [p] this respect by the Grecians, Exodus, as principally treating of Israels wonderfull egresse from out of Egypt, and progresse in the wilderneesse. Two sorts of miracles are remembred in this Hymne: the first vpon the waters, The Sea saw that and fled, &c. The second vpon the land, The mountaines skipped like rams, &c.

The sea saw that and fled] [q] That is, the red sea seeing Gods people comming toward it, and desirous to passe thorow it, at the presence of the Lord runned backe all the night, and was diuided, so that the children of Israel went thorow the midst of the sea, vpon the drie land; [r] the great deepe became a greene field, and the waters were a wall vnto them on their right hand, and on their left hand. Some scoffing Atheists haue giuen out, that the sea fled not by miracle, but by a course meere naturall, affirming that Gods people watched their opportunitie, when the sea was at an ebbe, and so passed thorow the middest of it on drie foot. This impudent assertion is notably g Placidus. Genebrard. Beza Paraphras.

h Caldee. Septuagint. Hieron. Munster. Castalio. Geneua. i Agellius. Bellarmine. Genebrard. k Aquilla apud Agellium.
l Tileman.
m Esay 19.18. n 1. Tim. 3.16.
o Deut. 5.15.
p Dio. Carthus. Vatablus.
q Exod. 14.21.
r Wisd. 19.7.

confuted by iudicious [f] Scaliger, prouing it an egregious paradox, contradicting not only the principles of Diuinitie, but also the rules of reason and grounds of Philosophie. The text saith expresly, that the sea was diuided: but [t] Epiphanius, and the [u] Rabbins auow further, that it was parted into twelue paths, according to the number of the twelue tribes of Israel, euery troope hauing a seuerall (as it were) to march in. But when their enemies followed them into the middest of the sea, the waters returned, and couered the chariots and horsemen, euen all the hoast of Pharao, that entred after them into the sea, there remaining not one of them; and so the Lord saued Israel out of the hand of the Egytians, and Israel saw the Egyptians dead vpon the sea banke, Exod. 14. 28. 30.

When Israel vpon the sight of Pharaohs innumerable host were sore afraid, and cried vnto the Lord, and said vnto Moses, Hast thou brought vs to die in the wilderneſſe, becauſe there were no graues in Egypt? Moſes answered the people, Feare ye not, ſtand ſtill, and behold the ſaluation of the Lord, which he will ſhew to you this day, for the Egyptians whom yee haue ſeene this day, yee ſhall neuer ſee them againe. How then are the two seeming contrarie places in one Chapter accorded? Israel ſhall neuer ſee the Egyptians againe, yet afterward, Israel ſaw the Egyptians. Answer is made by [x] S. Augustine, ye shall neuer see them againe liuing as to day, but ye shall see them dead. Ye shall neuer see them againe fighting against you, but ye shall see them at your feet drowned in the waters, and cast vp at the sea banke. Ye shall see them againe to your comfort, but ye shall neuer see them againe to your terror.

How Iordan was driuen backe, you may reade in the third and fourth Chapter of Iosua. How the mountaines skipped like rammes and the little hils like young sheepe, Exod. 19. 18. Habacuc 3. 6 10. How the hard rocke was turned into standing water, and the flint stone to a springing well, Exod 17 6. Numb. 20. 11. Psal 78. 16. and Psal. 105. 40. The summe whereof is in briefe, that all the creatures, at the commandement of the Creator, are [y] turned vpside downe; ready to doe, or not to doe, to shew forth, or keepe in their ordinarie courses, according to his good will and pleasure. The sea flowing forward, at the word of God turned backward: the mountaines so called a non mouendo, because they doe not moue, skip like rammes, and the little hils like young sheepe: the hard rocke, the flint stone, both exceeding drie, made standing waters, and springing wells. It is the nature of [z] ramping and roaring Lions to be [a] greedy of their prey; yet the Lord [b] shut the Lions mouthes, that they could not hurt Daniel in their denne. It is the nature of water to drowne and deuoure men in the deepe, for the wicked Egyptians sank to the bottome (saith [c] Moses) as a stone: yet [d] Ionas, by Gods appointment, being throwne into the middest of the sea, and swallowed vp in a Whales belly three daies and three nights, was afterward cast out againe vpon the dry land, safe and sound, Ionas 2. 10. It is the nature of fire to burne and consume; yet Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, put into a fierie fornace made seuen times more hot than ordinarie, walked in the middest of the flame without any danger. [e] The fire had no power of their bodies, not one haire of their head scorched, neither were their coats changed, nor any smell of fire came vpon them. The blessed man and Martyr of God Saint Bilney (for so Father [f] Latymer is bold to call him) often [g] comforted himselfe and his acquaintance, with the words of our Lord, Esay 43. 1. Feare not Israel, for I haue redeemed thee, I haue called thee by thy name, thou art mine; when thou passest thorow the waters, I will be with thee, and thorow the floods, that they doe not ouer flow thee: when thou walkest thorow the very fire, thou shalt not be burnt: neither shall the flame kindle vpon thee. So [h] Iames Baynham another holy Martyr (being at the stake in the middest of furious and outragious flames) cried out, Behold ye Papists, ye looke for miracles, and here now ye may see a miracle, for in this fire I feele no more paine, than if I were in a bed of downe: yea it is to me like a bed of roses. So [i] Hierome of Prage, when the deaths-man at his burning would haue kindled the fire behind at his back, (lest it might otherwise seeme too terrible) presently called vnto him, and said, Come hither, and let me see the fire before me; for if I had feared the fire, I needed not to haue come hither In all things behold then, how good and ioyfull a thing it is to serue the Lord, to be subiect to his kingdome,

to

[f] Exercitat. 52.

[t] Hæres 64.
[u] Apud Genebrard & Iacob. de Valent. in loc. Idem Dr. Incognit in Psal 105.

[x] Quæst. 51. sup. Exod.

[y] See Wisd. 19. 18.

[z] Psal. 22. 13.
[a] Psal 17. 12.
[b] Dan 6 22.

[c] Exod. 15 5.
[d] Ionas 1 17.

[e] Dan. 3. 27.

[f] Serm 7. before King. Ed. 6.
[g] Fox Martyr. fol. 923.

[h] Fox vbi sup. fol. 939.

[i] Io. Crispin in Catalog. martyr. ex epist. Pogij Florentini quæ est ad Leonardum Aretinum.

to march vnder his colours, and to fight his battels. For God is a [k] man of warre, yea the Lord of Hosts, hauing all creatures in heauen, on earth, and vnder earth, at his absolute command, to protect such as follow him, and to fight against such as fight against him. At his word the [l] elements are changed among themselues, as one tune is changed vpon an instrument of musicke, and the melodie still remaineth. At his word the waues are calme, the fire cold, the mountaines mouing: at his word the valleyes [m] sing, and the hils dance. O [n] Lord our Gouernour, how excellent is thy name in all the world, so [o] glorious in holinesse, fearefull in praises, doing wonders, able to doe whatsoeuer thou wilt, and willing to doe whatsoeuer is best for Iuda thy sanctuarie, for Israel thy dominion.

Mystically the temporall Exodus of Israel out of Ægypts bondage, [p] prefigureth our spirituall deliuerance by Christ from the tyrannous oppression of Satan and sin. Here then, according to the method propounded, I am to treat first of the parties deliuered; secondly, of the perill and place from which all holy Christians are set free; thirdly, of the manner and meanes of our redemption.

Concerning the first, all true beleeuers (as [q] Paul teacheth) are the seed of Abraham, and the house of Iacob. And the reason hereof is very plaine, they be the sons of Abraham that doe the works of Abraham, Iohn. 8.39. but Abrahams chiefe worke was faith, as the [r] text expresly, Abraham beleeued God, and it was imputed to him for righteousnesse. Ergo they which are of faith are the children of Abraham, Galat. 3.7. Christian people (saith [s] Augustine) are not aliants from the Common-wealth of God, and strangers from the couenants of promise: Sed magis Israel, as it were, more Israel, than Israel it selfe. [t] For vnbeleeuing Iewes are the sonnes of begetting Abraham after the flesh only; but all the faithfull among the [u] Gentiles are the sons of beleeuing Abraham, after the Spirit. The Lord said to blessed Abraham, a father of many nations haue I made thee, Genes. 17.5. that is, as Saint Paul expoundeth it, Rom. 4.11. The father of them that beleeue, whether they be Iewes or Gentiles, [s] Saint Peter, Acts 10.35. In euerie nation he that feareth God and worketh righteousnesse, is an Israel, accepted of him, adopted his Sanctuarie, wherein he will be serued; and his Seigniorie, wherein he will (as a King) raigne by his holy word and Spirit.

Now for the second obseruable point of our redemption, Israels bondage in Ægypt liuely represents our miserable thraldome vnder Satan and sin. The [x] blacke darknesse in all the land of Ægypt, was no darknesse in comparison of the kingdome of darknesse, out of which our blessed Sauiour Christ Iesus hath brought vs into maruellous [y] light. The deuill is the Prince of darknesse, hell is a pit of darknesse, sinne is a worke of darknesse. But all the redeemed by Christ haue light where they dwell, his word is a Lanthorne to their [z] feet, his Commandements a light to their [a] eyes, his Spirit an Illuminator of their [b] vnderstanding, and so their works are called [c] armour of light, and themselues honestly walking as in the day, Children of light, Iohn 12.36.

The Kings of Ægypt and his people so vexed Gods Israel, that they made them wearie of their liues by sore labour in morter and in bricke, with all manner of bondage which they laid vpon them most cruelly, Exod. 1.14. So the deuill and his complices haue cast insupportable burthens vpon the sonnes of men, heauie yokes, [d] which neither our fathers, nor our selues are able to beare. But Christ our true Iosua, saith vnto Iacobs house, [e] Come vnto me all ye that are wearied, and heauie laden, and I will ease you; take my yoke vpon you, and you shall find rest vnto your soules.

[f] Diuines obserue three kindes of burthens vpon that text, namely, the burthen of { Affliction. / The Law. / Sinne.

In this Ægypt of the world, great [g] trauell and [h] trouble is created for all men, euery sonne of Adam is borne to labour and dolour; to labour in his actions, and to dolour in his passions: as Bernard pithily, as Israel went through Ægypt and the wildernesse, into the land of promise; so we must of necessitie [i] passe thorow many tribulations into the kingdome of God, which is the heauenly Canaan. If we [k] Exod 15.3.

[l] Wisd. 19. 17.
[m] Psal 65.14.
[n] Psal 8.1.
[o] Exod. 15 11.
[p] Augustine. Hieron. Arnobius. Iacob. de Valentia.
[q] Galat. 3 29.
[r] Gen. 15. 6. Rom 4.3.
[s] In loc.
[t] Luther in Galat. 3.7.
[u] Gen. 12.3. Galat. 3.8.
[x] Exod. 10.22.
[y] 1. Pet. 2.9.
[z] Psal 119.105.
[a] Psal 19.8.
[b] Ephes 1.18.
[c] Rom. 13.12.
[d] Acts 15.10.
[e] Matth. 11.28.
[f] Ianſen. Concor. cap. 47. & Pontan. ſer. in feſto Matthiæ
[g] Eccles. 40. 1.
[h] Iob. 14.1.
[i] Acts 14.22.

[k] looke vnto Iesus the founder and finisher of our faith, he will euen in this world afford vs, as he did [l] Moses vpon the top of Pisgah, a little sight of the promised Land, making it ours in hope, though as yet not in hold, bringing vs to the resolution of [m] S. Paul, I count that the afflictions of this life present, are not worthy of the glory which shall be shewed vnto vs hereafter.

As for the burthen of the Law, which is a yoke of [n] bondage, [o] grieuous and heauie to be borne, Christ easeth vs of it also, being made vnder the Law, to redeeme them vnder the Law, Galath. 4. 4. He blotted out the hand-writing of ordinances that was against vs, and tooke it out of the way, nailing it to the Crosse, Coloss. 2. 14. We cannot indeed exactly keepe any part of the Law, much lesse the whole: but (as the blessed Apostle speakes) it was in the hand, [p] that is, in the power of a Mediator, Galat. 3. 19. and he did aboundantly [q] fulfill, all righteousnesse in our person and place: [r] or in the hand of a Mediator, as hauing authoritie to cancell it, and to take the burthen away from our shoulders.

Lastly, touching sinne, He who knew no sinne, made himselfe to be sinne for vs, that we should be made the righteousnesse of God in him; 2. Cor. 5. 21. The [s] Lord saith, According to the dayes of thy comming out of the Land of Ægypt, will I shew marueilous things. Now, when Israel went out of Ægypt, and the house of Iacob from among the strange people, he did ouerturne the chariots and horsemen, and destroyed all the hoast of their enemies in the middest of the red Sea: [t] so likewise will he subdue our iniquities, which are our greatest enemies, and cast all of them into the bottome of the Sea, Mica 7. 19. that they may neuer appeare before vs againe, to confound our consciences in this world, or condemne our soules in the next. If the man be blessed [u] whose vnrighteousnesse is forgiuen, and whose sinne is couered; O well is it vnto thee, happy shalt thou be which art of the [x] houshold of faith! as hauing all thy foule faults and foes destroyed by Christs death, and buried in his graue.

The King of Ægypt commanded the Midwiues of the Hebrew women, to kill euery male-childe in the very birth, Exod. 1. 15. And semblably the [y] red Dragon standing before the woman in the wildernes, is ready to deuour her childe so soone as she brings it forth; that is, the deuill is alwayes at hand to quell euery vertuous motion arising in our minde; but the spirit of Christ (as a cunning midwife) brings forth our good intentions into good actions, working in vs both the will and the deed, Phil. 2. 13.

Concerning the meanes of our deliuerance, Christ is our Moses and Iosua, who brought vs out of Ægypt into the land of promise, for [z] among men is giuen none other name whereby we must be saued. All other (in holy Scripture) stiled Iesus, are but types of our Lord Iesus. Iesus Naue, renowned for his valour, is the type of Christ as he was a King. Iesus Sidrach, renowned for his knowledg, the type of Christ as he was a Prophet. Iesus Iosadach, renowned for his pietie, the type of Christ as he was a Priest. Our Iesus is the hard rocke, mentioned at the latter end of this hymne. That Christ is a rocke, we reade, Mat. 16. 18 and 1. Pet. 2 8 that Christ is an hard rocke; we finde also Matth. 21. 44. Whosoeuer falleth on this stone shall be broken, and on whomsoeuer it shall fall, it will grinde him to powder. That Christ is that hard rocke, turned into a standing water, S. Paul telleth vs, 1. Cor. 10. I would not that ye should be ignorant (quoth he) that all our Fathers were vnder the cloud, and all passed thorow the Sea, and did all eat the same spirituall meat, and all drinke the same spirituall drinke, for they dranke of the spirituall rocke that followed them, and the rocke was Christ.

He seemed at the first an hard rocke, [a] when his Disciples said, [b] This is an hard saying, who can heare it? but afterward pleasant waters did flow from him, vnto such as [c] hunger and thirst after righteousnesse. [d] Moses smote the rocke in the wildernesse, and water came forth of it in such abundance, that all the congregation of Israel dranke thereof and were refreshed. [e] So Moses rod, that is, the Law, smote Christ on the Crosse for our sinnes; he was made a curse for vs, Galat. 3 14. he was wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, Esay 5 : 5. and out of this hard rocke thus smitten by Moses rod, a Well of water sprang forth into euerlasting life, Iohn 4. 14.

The

[k] Hebr. 12. 12.
[l] Deut. 34. 1.
[m] Rom. 8. 18.
[n] Galat. 5. 1.
[o] Matth. 23. 4.
[p] Tho. Patmere apud Fox Martyr fol 953. Idem fere Primasius, Aquine, Lombard. in Gal 3.
[q] Matth 3 15.
[r] Anselm.
[s] Mica 7. 15.
[t] August. in loc.
[u] Psal. 32. 1.
[x] Galat. 6. 10.
[y] Apoc. 12. 4.
[z] Acts 4 12.
[a] Augustine.
[b] Iohn 6. 60.
[c] Matth. 5. 6.
[d] Exod 17 6. Numb. 20. 11.
[e] Strigellius in loc. & Mollerus in Psal. 105. v. 41.

The Sea saw that and fled] The world is called a Sea, Reuel. 4.6. The world then [f] persecuting Christ and his Apostles, is a red sea; this red sea fled at the preaching of the Gospell and gaue place. Christ rebuked the winds, and the waters, and so there was a great calme, Matth. 8.26. Iordan was driuen backe. [g] Christ himselfe was baptized in Iordan, and such as are [h] baptized into Christ, and beleeue, send not (as other[i] riuers vsually) their streames into the sea, that is, they fashion not themselues according to this world, but are renewed in their mindes, Rom. 12 2. they repent and turne backe from their old courses, aud walke in newnesse of life, Rom. 6.4.

The mountaines skipped like rammes] By mountaines [k] Arnobius doth vnderstand the Prophets, quia locuti sunt altitudines Dei, they reioyced at the fulfilling of their Propheſies, and skipped as rammes, in seeing that shephard borne, [l] who would lay downe his life for his sheepe. [m] S. Augustine makes the blessed Apostles and other Preachers of the Gospell, old sheepe, and their auditors as it were lambes and young sheepe, begotten in Christ vnto God by the disposers of the secrets of God, according to that of [n] Paul vnto his Corinthians, In Christ Iesus I haue begotten you through the Gospell.

Israels Exodus out of Egypts bondage was so great, that God himselfe in perpetuam rei memoriam, instituted the [o] Passeouer to be kept of his people for euer, and further inserted a short remembrance thereof in the prologue to his Law, I am the Lord thy God, which haue brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. This deliuerance was temporall and particular, only concerning Israel and the house of Iacob: but the redemption by Christ is spirituall and generall, appertaining to men of all conditions and countries, of all tribes, and at all times, euen from the beginning vnto the worlds end. For so God loued the world, that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoeuer beleeueth in him, should not perish, but haue euerlasting life, Iohn 3.16. and therefore the Church (vpon good grounds) ordained the feasts of Christs Incarnation, Passion, Resurrection, Ascension. And for as much as Christ is our [p] Passe-ouer, the Church of England [q] appointed this hymne fitly to be read on Easter day.

The Church of Rome [r] drunken with the bloud of Saints, and with the bloud of the martyrs of Iesus Christ, is spiritually Babilon and Egypt. And the Papists, her followers, a generation of barbarous people, barbarous in their doings, and barbarous in their doctrines. Concerning their barbarous vsage, their bloudie butchering of Gods Israel in Angrongne, their massacre in France, gunpowder treason in England, are clouds of witnesses against them vnto the worlds end.

As for their sayings; Is it not barbarous language to call that man of sinne, most holy father? and, as if that were not enough, holinesse it selfe, [s] sanctitas vestra; [t] beatitudo vestra? Is it not barbarous language, to set Anti-christ in the seat of Christ, and to terme him expresly [u] the husband of the Church? Is it not barbarous language to magnifie the Romish Pharaoh aboue all that is called God, making him a Demi-god, yea Semi-god, neither absolutely God, nor simply man, but a midling betweene both? Is it not barbarous language to say, that none may presume to tell him of his faults; though he should through his ill example, draw millions of men into hell? as their [y] owne text runneth, Innumerabiles populos caternatim secum ducit primo mancipio gehennæ, cum ipso plagis multis in æternum vapulaturus, huius culpas istic redarguere præsumit mortalium nullus.

Is it not barbarous language to say, that no minorite Frier, obseruing [z] S. Francis order and rule, can be damned? and that a certaine Frier vpon a time being carried into hell, and surueying in it euery corner, found not so much as one Franciscane Friar. That a Frier should goe to hell, is thought no great maruell, but that he should returne from thence to tell vs this tale, seemeth incredible, considering the Pope himselfe determineth, ex inferno nulla redemptio.

Is it not barbarous language to say, [a] that to be buried in a gray Friers frocke, in S. Francis cowle, should remit foure parts of penance, three parts of our sinnes.

[b] Quî sit vt moriamur in cucullo,
Cum nemo bene viuat in cucullo.

Is

[f] Dr. Incognitus.

[g] Matth. 3.16.
[h] Rom 6 3.
[i] Ecclesiast. 1.7.

[k] In loc.

[l] Ioh. 10.11.
[m] In loc.

[n] 1.Cor.4.15.

[o] Exod. 12.

[p] 1.Cor. 5.7.
[q] Melanchon. in loc. affirmes, that it was vsually sung among the Iewes at their celebration of Easter.
[r] Apoc. 17.6.
[s] Bellarm epist. dedic. Tom. 1. controuers.
[t] Idem epist. dedic. Tom. 2. Baronius epist. dedic. Tom. 2, annal. & reliqui Papistæ communiter.
[u] Cap quoniam de immunitate in 6 & Turrecremat. sum. lib. 2 cap. 17 per totum.
[x] 2.Thess 2.4.
[y] In Decreto cap. si Papa, dist. 40.
[z] Hen Sedulius apolog. lib. 2. c. 9.
[a] Fox Martyr. fol. 913. & 1011
[b] Buchanan fratres fraterrimi.

Is it not barbarous language to say, that it is an [c] honester thing for a Priest to be intangled with many concubines in secret, than openly to be ioyned in mariage with one wife? For he may not keepe one benefice with one wife, [d] but he may haue two benefices and three whores.

Is it not barbarous language to say, [e] that for repeating ouer the fifteene Ooes, euerie day once through a whole yeere, we shall apertly see our Ladie to helpe vs after our death? or, that we should haue the like benefit, for saying of her Psalter vpon the ten beads, that come from the crossed Friers; or vpon the fiue beads hallowed at the Charter-house; or for fasting the Ladies fast, as they call it, yea for fasting on the Wednesday?

Is it not barbarous language to say, that our [f] owne inherent righteousnesse is the formall cause of absolute iustification, and not the righteousnesse of Christ imputed vnto vs? This opinion is so barbarous, that S. Paul saith of it, Galath. 5. 4. Ye are abolished from Christ, and fallen from grace, whosoeuer are iustified by the Law.

Is it not barbarous language to say, that the [g] Crucifix is to be reuerenced and adored with the selfe-same kinde of worship that is due to Christ, eadem reuerentia imagini Christi exhibenda & ipsi Christo.

In respect of these barbarismes, and many moe, the blessed Martyr [h] Aymondus, being condemned by the Papists of Bourdeaux and Angeou to die, sung this hymne as he went to the stake, When Israel went out of Egypt, &c. insinuating that the kingdome of Poperie was like Egypt, an house of bondage, where the man of sinne domineering in the conscience, doth impose grieuous burthens vpon Gods Iuda, worse than any sore labour in morter and bricke. If Adam in his innocencie did not exactly keepe one precept of God; how shall Adams posteritie, compassed about with infirmitie, doe workes of supererogation? obseruing not only the commandements of God, but also the Councels of the Church, and ordinances of men, almost infinite for their number, altogether insupportable for their nature.

Almightie God hath, out of the riches of his glory, deliuered vs alone from these barbarians; and that we now continue yet free from them, is not our owne warinesse, or worthinesse, but his worke only [i] that doth all wonders. The planting of the Gospell among vs in the dayes of King Henry the eight, was a great wonder; the watering of it in the daies of King Edward the sixt, another great wonder; the flourishing of it in the dayes of our renowned Queene Elizabeth, and our gracious Soueraigne King Iames, another great wonder. Our deliuerance from the Northerne Conspiracie, from the Spanish Armado, from the Gunpowder plot, are great arguments of Gods might and mercy, manifested to his English Israel. In regard of all which, and many moe fresh in our memorie, we may well (as [k] other translations haue done before vs) adioyne the next hymne to this, and say, Not vnto vs, O Lord, not vnto vs, but vnto thy name giue the praise, for thy louing mercy, and for thy truths sake.

The dialogue betweene the Prophet and the creatures, instructeth vs how we should stand in awe of God, seeing the very dumbe creatures and insensible feare before him. Doth an [l] oxe know his owner, and an asse his masters cribbe? and shall not Israel vnderstand? Shall vnreasonable beasts of the field, and feathered fowles in the aire, praise the Lord in their kinde; and shall not man sanctius his animal, mentisq; capacius altæ, [m] sing alwayes the louing kindnes of God, and with his mouth euer shew forth his mercie from generation to generations. Shall [n] haile, snow, winde, water, and weather fulfill his word? Shall the sea flee, the earth tremble, the mountaines and hills skip at the presence of the God of Iacob? and shall not Iacob himselfe [o] serue the Lord in feare, and reioyce vnto him in trembling? Shall the hard rocke be turned into a standing water, and the flint-stone into a springing well? and shall not our hard and flintie hearts, in consideration of our owne miseries, and Gods vnspeakable mercies in deliuering vs from euill, (if not gush forth into [p] fountaines of teares) expresse so much as a little standing water in our eyes? It is an hard heart indeed, [q] quod nec compunctione scinditur, nec pietate mollitur, nec mouetur precibus, minis non cedit, flagellis duratur, &c. O Lord, touch thou the [r] mountaines and they shall smoake, touch our lips with a [s] cole from

[c] Card. Campegius, Albertus Pighius apud Iewel defence of his Apolog. part. 4. cap 1. diuis. 1.
[d] Cornelius Agrippa de vanit. scient. cap. 64.
[e] Io. Lambert. apud Fox Martyr fol. 1018.
[f] Bellarm. de Iustificat, lib. 2. cap. 2. & cap. 10.
[g] Thom. part. 3. quæst. 25. art 3.
[h] Fox Martyr fol. 821.
[i] Psal. 136. 4.
[k] Septuagint. Vulgar Latin. Augustine. Hieron.
[l] Esay 1. 3.
[m] Psal. 89. 1.
[n] Psal. 148. 8.
[o] Psal. 2. 11.
[p] Ierem. 9. 1.
[q] Bernard. lib. 1. de considerat.
[r] Psal. 144. 5.
[s] Esay 6. 6.

from thine Altar, and our [t]mouth shall shew forth thy praise. Smite Lord our flintie hearts, as hard as the [u] nether milstone, with the hammer of thy word, and mollifie them allo with the drops of thy mercies, and dew of thy Spirit, make them [x]humble [y]fleshie, [z] flexible, [a]circumcised, [b]soft, [c]obedient, [d]new, [e]cleane, broken, and then a broken and contrite heart (O God) shalt thou not despise, Psal. 51. 17. [f] Domine Deus meus, da cordi meo te desiderare, desiderando quærere, quærendo inuenire, inueniendo amare, amando mala mea non iterare. O Lord my God, giue me grace from the very bottome of mine heart to desire thee, in desiring to seeke thee, in seeking to finde, in finding to loue thee, in louing vtterly to loath my former wickednesse; that liuing in thy feare, and dying in thy fauour, when I haue passed thorow this Ægypt and wildernesse of this world, I may possesse that heauenly Canaan, and happy land of promise, prepared for all such as loue thy comming, euen for euery Christian one, which is [g] by dominion and sanctuarie.

t Psal. 51. 15.
u Iob 41. 15.
x Matth. 11. 29.
y Ezech. 11. 19.
z Iosua 24. 23.
a Deut 30. 6.
b Iob. 23. 16. c Pro 23. 12 26
d Ezech. 36. 26.
e Matth. 5 8
f August. medit. cap. 1.

Psalme, 118.

O giue thanks vnto the Lord, for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer.

This Hymne seemes to be made by Dauid, after some great trouble in the dayes of Saul, [s] before he was King; or [h] else for some notable victorie gained against his enemies, after he was established in his throne, to wit, after he had ouercome the Philistins, 2. Sam. 6. or haply when he triumphed ouer the children of Ammon, 2. Sam. 12.

g Wilcox.
h Mollerus. Caluin. Tremel.

It consists of three parts especially:
1. An exhortation to praise God, in the foure first verses.
2. A reason of this exhortation, from the 5. to 21.
3. A conclusion or application of both, from the 21. to the Psalmes end.

In the former obserue the
- Time when, now.
- Parties who,
  - Exhorting, Dauid the King.
  - Exhorted,
    - Generally, all people, vers. 1.
    - Specially, Gods Israel aboue other people, vers. 1.
    - Singularly, the house of Aaron, aboue the rest of Israel, vers. 3.

Concerning the time, now, that is, instantly without any delay; as God helpeth vs in time, so we must also praise him in season. Or now, that is, vpon this occasion: indeed we must praise God euer, because his mercie doth endure for euer; yet for especiall mercies, we must inuent speciall songs, and yeeld new thanks for new things: and therefore Dauid here being wonderfully deliuered from a great many troubles (hauing now taken his enemies [i] crowne from his head, which weighed a talent of gold with precious stones, and set it vpon his owne) calleth vpon his Priests and people to confesse now, that the Lord is gracious. All other men ought at all other times to performe this duty: but his subiects at this time principally, let Israel now, let the house of Aaron now. Or now, that is, at the solemne [k] feast appointed for the same purpose, for albeit we must alway laud the Lord, Yet ought we most chiefly so to doe, when we meet and assemble together, to render thanks for the great benefits that we haue receiued at his hands, and to set forth his most worthy praise.

i 2. Sam. 12. 30.
k Bucer. Mollerus. Genebrard.

The person exhorting is Dauid the King: Princes actions are the peoples instructions; a Courtier is a strange creature, who loseth himselfe in following other, he liueth a great deale by the bread of other, a good deale by the breath of other; oftentimes his clothes are not his owne, his haire not his owne, his complexion and very skinne not his owne; nay that which is worst of all, his soule (which as Plato said is most himselfe), is not his owne, while he liueth at the deuotion of other.

Nemo

[1] Martial. Epigram. li. 9. ep. 81.
[m] Guenara. de vita priuata.

[1] Nemo suos (hæc est aulæ natura potentis)
Sed Domini mores Cæsarianus habet.

Courtiers (as [m] one said) rise late, come late to the temple, dine late, sup late, goe to bed late, and repent last of all; if at all: and the reason hereof is plaine, because they want such examples and patternes as Dauid, to goe before them in giuing thanks vnto the Lord.

The peoples welfare doth especially consists in the Princes safety, Dauid therefore being deliuered from his enemies (who compassed him about, and kept him in on euery side, swarming in multitude like Bees) is not content to giue thankes vnto God priuately himselfe, by himselfe; but openly proclaimeth his thankfulnesse, exhorting all his people to doe the same: saying, O giue thankes vnto the Lord, let Israel, and the house of Aaron, and all that feare the Lord, confesse that his mercies endure for euer: the which is answerable to that which he hath [n] elsewhere, O praise the Lord with me, and let vs magnifie his name together.

[n] Psal. 34. 3.

The very name of peace is sweet, but the very sound of warre is terrible, for πόλεμος in Greeke signifies much bloud, and the Latine bellum is so called [o] quasi minimè bellum, or as Pother à bellúis, in respect of their beastly rage shewed in warres. As when Tamberlane had conquered Princes, he did vse them as coach horses to draw him vp and downe in triumph: and [q] Adonibezek, made seuenty Kings gather crummes of bread vnder his table. When the [r] Switzers in the yeere 1443. vanquished the Thuricenses in battell, they made great banquets in the place where they wonne the victory, vsing the dead corps of their aduersaries in stead of stooles, and tables, and moreouer opening their bodies dranke their bloud, and tare their hearts. The [s] Numantines assaulted by the Romanes, made solemne vowes among themselues, no day to breake their fast but with the flesh of a Romane, nor to drinke before they had tasted the bloud of an enemie: And when [t] Scipio tooke their towne, they killed all their old men, women, and children; and heaped vp all their riches in the market place, giuing fire to euery part of the City, leauing the conqueror neither goods to spoile; nor persons ouer whom he might insolently triumph. What need I seeke so farre? the cruell outrages betweene the Spaniard and the Hollander haue beene such, as all eyes of pitty and pietie had iust cause to lament them.

[o] Seruius.
[p] Festus, idem Godescallus præfat in Veget. de re militari.
[q] Iudges 1. 7.
[r] Lanquet. Chron. pag. 261.
[s] Guenara epist.
[t] Plutarch.

These are the fortunes of forraine warres: now concerning ciuill, or rather vnciuill dissentions among our selues. It is a conclusion agreed vpon at weeping crosse, that nothing in the world ruinateth a Common-weale more than it: example hereof Hierusalem, example Rome, both which by priuate factions, made themselues a prey to the common enemie. Example hereof infortunate France, in whose late ciuill warres (as [u] some account) there were slaine twelue hundred thousand French borne, beside other of their allies. Example hereof England in old time, before the houses of Yorke and Lancaster were vnited, in which vnhappie quarrell (as [x] Cominæus reports) besides an infinite number of the Commonalty, there were cuelly butchered fourescore Princes of the bloud royall. In bellis ciuilibus omnia sunt misera (quoth [y] Tullie) sed nihil est miserius, quàm ipsa victoria. The [z] Chronicle saith of Edward the second, ouercomming and killing his owne Barons, Tunc verè victus, quando tot vicit prudentes milites. In homebred and intestine garboiles, if the worst obtaine victory, then instantly the State becommeth a very shambels, or a sinke of sinne. If the good men conquer, albeit they be by their disposition and ingenuous education harmelesse and humane, yet necessity will often make them exceeding furious and bloudy: so that as the Poet said, Vna salus victis, nullam sperare salutem. In this extremity we must either fight, and so looke for sudden death; or else flie, and so leade a tedious life, hauing a continuall sound of feare in our eares, either the piteous outcries of fatherlesse children, of comfortlesse widowes, of hopelesse and hapelesse kinsmen; or else terrible roaring of Canons, and dreadfull alarums of mercilesse enemies.

[u] Brutum fulmen. pag 144.
[x] Hist. lib. 1. c. 7.
[y] Epist. lib. 4. epist. 51.
[z] Walsingham in Ed. 2 pag. 95.

[a] Omega nostrorum Mors est, Mars alpha malorum.

[a] Owin. Epigr.

On the contrary, peace procureth all good and ioyfull things vnto the Common-wealth. In peace the Merchant tradeth abroad, and bringeth home [b] wine to glad the [b] Psal. 104. 15.

the heart of man, and oyle to make his countenance cheerefull: in peace the Church and Vniuersitie flourish, and the messengers of peace preach vnto you the sweet tidings of the Gospell. In peace the Plough-man sowes in hope, and reapes with ioy. In peace widowes are comforted, and maidens are giuen to mariage; no leading into captiuitie, no complaining in our streets. In peace we reioyce with the [c] wife of our youth, and she is like the [d] fruitfull vine, and our children as oliue branches round about the table. Our sonnes grow vp as the young plants, and our daughters as the polished corners of the Temple. In peace our valleyes stand so thicke with corne, that they [e] laugh and sing; our garners are full and plenteous with all manner of store; our oxen are strong to labour, and our sheepe bring forth thousands and ten thousands in our streets. In one word, all honest occupations and honourable professions thriue, while brethren dwell together in vnitie. Wherefore Dauid expending on the one side the rents of the kingdome vnder Saul, and pondering on the other side the manifold blessings of a flourishing peace, being ouercharged (as it were) with ioy, breaks forth into these words, [f] Ecce quàm bonum, O behold, how good and ioyfull a thing it is, for brethren (that is, subiects of the same kingdome) to dwell together in vnitie! [h] Many things are good, which are not ioyfull. Againe, many things are ioyfull, which are not good: but amitie betweene brethren, is both a good and a ioyfull thing. If it were good and not ioyfull, it would be tedious: if ioyfull and not good, it might be vicious: but good and ioyfull together, is excellent good; omne tulit punctum, it is a double sweet, when as profit and pleasure meet: it is good, there is the profit; it is ioyfull, there is the pleasure. It is like the pretious ointment of Aaron, there is the sweet of pleasure; it is like the dew of Hermon, there is the sweet of profit. As sweet perfumes are pleasant not only to such as vse them, but also to the whole companie: so concord is not only profitable to good men, which are the peace-makers; but euen vnto all other in the same Common-wealth, of what soeuer function or faction. And therefore Dauid being now quietly seated in his kingdome, free from warres abroad, and iarres at home, calleth vpon all his people, to confesse that the Lord is gracious, and that his mercie endureth for euer.

But in more particular he calleth vpon the house of Aaron, [i] that is, the Priests and Leuites, and that for two reasons especially. First, because such as trouble Israel, hate most of all the Priests and Preachers of the word. Secondly, [k] because the Priests are the Prouosts of the people, Heb. 13 7. the salt of the earth to season other, Matth. 5.13. and therefore seeing they be Precentors in Gods Quire, it is their office to sing first, that other may sing after. In respect of danger and dutie, the house of Aaron haue good cause to praise God more than other, and to confesse that his mercies endure for euer.

Now, for as much as [m] all are not Iewes, which are Iewes outward, and all are not [n] Israel, which are of Israel: I say, for as much as there be many [o] hypocrites as well among Priests as people; therefore Dauid in the fourth verse (chiefly) calleth vpon such as truly feare the Lord, Yea let them now that feare the Lord confesse, that his mercie endureth for euer. For hereby such enioy not only a ciuill and outward peace, which is common to the whole State: but further, a religious and inward peace of conscience, which is proper to themselues. For when there is [p] peace within the walls of Hierusalem, and plenteousnesse within her palaces, euery one may goe into the house of the Lord, and stand in the gates of the beautifull Temple. Then all the Tribes ascend to giue thanks vnto the name of the Lord, to [q] worship, and fall downe, and kneele before the Lord our maker, entring into his [r] courts with praise. Then, as it is in this Psalme, they binde the sacrifice with cords, euen vnto the hornes of the altar, exercising all acts of Religion, and powing out their whole soule before the God of heauen. On the contrarie, in time of warre, the Gentiles, and other who know not God, enter into the inheritance of God, and defile his holy Temple; they doe not only crie, Downe with it, downe with it, vnto the ground, as it is in the 137 Psalme, but as we finde in the 79. Psalme, they pull it downe in deed, and make Hierusalem an heape of stones, giuing the bodies of Gods deare seruants to be meat vnto the fowles of the aire, and the flesh of his Saints vnto the beasts of the field. Ye therefore that

[c] Prou 5.18.
[d] Psal.128.3.
[e] Psal.65.14.
[f] Psal.133.
[g] Caluin. Mollerus.
[h] Placidus. B. Hermine. Agellius.
[i] Numb.18.
[k] Dr. Incognit. Mollerus.
[l] Caluin.
[m] Rom 2.28.
[n] Rom.9 6.
[o] Mollerus. Caluin.
[p] Psal.122.
[q] Psal 95.6.
[r] Psal.100.3.

that do truly profesſe, haue greateſt occaſion duly to confeſſe Gods exceeding mercy, for enioying the ſweet benefit of peace. For if once yee ſhould a little while want the comfort yee reape by publike prayers, and preaching in Gods houſe, yee would complaine grieuouſly, [f] Lord how amiable are thy dwellings! my ſoule hath a longing deſire to enter into thy courts. How bleſſed are the [t] ſparrow and ſwallow, who may come to thy altars, and ſit vpon thy Temple! For one day in thy courts is better than a thouſand: I had rather be a doore-keeper in the houſe of my God, then to command in the tents of vngodlineſſe.

The reaſons of this exhortation are manifold, expreſſed by Dauid here particularly from the 5. verſe to the 21. but they be generally theſe two:

- Gods mercies toward his children.
  - In generall, He is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer.
  - In particular to Dauid; I called vpon the Lord in trouble, and he heard me at large, &c.
- Gods iudgements vpon his enemies, in whoſe name alone they be deſtroyed, and become extinct as fire among the thornes, &c.

The mercies of the Lord are ſo rich and aboundant, that our Prophet [u] elſewhere ſaith, his mercie is ouer all his workes. And it is ſeene in two things chiefly: 1. In giuing euery thing which is good. 2. In taking away whatſoeuer is euill. Now we may the better vnderſtand the greatneſſe of his goodneſſe in both, if we will examine the breadth, and length, and deph, and height thereof, as S. Paul intimates, Epheſ. 3.18.

Firſt, for the breadth of his mercie, whatſoeuer is good is originally from God, [x] euery good and perfit gift is from aboue, deſcending from the Father of lights, euen the very minnoms and minutes are mercies, holding as it were by Franck-almoigne. And as he beſtoweth on his euery thing which is good: ſo likewiſe he takes from them euery kinde of euill. Bread taketh away hunger, and drinke taketh away thirſt, and apparell taketh away nakedneſſe, and fire taketh away coldnes, and other things deliuer vs from other miſeries in this world. But all theſe creatures are the Lords, and they cannot helpe vs except he bleſſe them. Againe, there be many miſeries vnknowne vnto the creatures, as the ſubtile tentations of the deuill, and the manifold blindneſſe of our vnderſtanding and erronious conſcience, from which only God is able to deliuer vs, as being the Phyſitian of our ſoule, ſo well as the protector of our body. Moreouer, as the creatures take not away all miſeries, but a few, ſo they take them away not from all, but from a few. God alone is able to deliuer all men from all miſeries, and though he doe not this vnto all, yet there be none but haue taſted of ſome, yea of many of his mercies; which occaſioned our Prophet to ſay, [y] the earth is full of the goodnes of the Lord; and our Church to pray, O God whoſe nature & property is euer to haue mercy and to forgiue. But ye will obiect, if the Lord can deliuer from all euill, why doth he not, as being the [z] Father of mercies? Anſwer is made, that God our Father in Heauen knowes what is beſt for vs, his children on earth; he therefore doth afflict vs, and ſcourge vs for our benefit. Saint [a] Paul deſired thrice to be deliuered from the buffeting of the fleſh, and not heard; that Gods power might be made perfit through weakeneſſe. And ſo the Lord tooke not from Lazarus his ſickneſſe and pouertie, that he might crowne him with a greater mercy, commanding his [b] Angels to carry him into the boſome of Abraham. And ſo he ſuffers his ſeruants to be tempted and tried with impriſonment, and loſſes, and croſſes for their good: in this reſpect he is termed the God of all conſolation, 2. Cor. 1.3. of all, as knowing how to comfort vs in all our tribulation, a preſent helpe in euery kinde of trouble. Nothing in the world can doe this, and therefore [c] Iob ſaid to his acquaintance, who could not vnderſtand his griefe aright, miſerable comforters are yee all. Againe, God is the God of all comfort, in that he comforts his children ſo fully, that it is a ioyfull thing for them to be ſometimes in affliction. For as the ſufferings of Chriſt abound in them, euen ſo their conſolation aboundeth through Chriſt, 2. Cor. 1.5.

Touching

[f] Pſal. 84. [t] Who make their neſts in houſes and trees neere thy Tabernacle, Hen. Mollerus in loc. Or myſtically, whether I lead an actiue life lik the ſparrow, or a contemplatiue, lik the Turtle, thy altars are the beſt neſts to reſt in. Bellarmine.

[u] Pſal. 145.9.

[x] Iames 1.17.

[y] Pſal. 33.5.

[z] 2. Cor. 1.3.

[a] 2. Cor. 12.8.

[b] Luke 16.22.

[c] Iob 16.2.

Touching the length of his mercy, Dauid saith, it endureth for euer: as his mercy compasseth vs about [d] on euery side; so likewise at euery season, it continueth vnto our end, and in the end; yea further, in that other life which is without end: his mercies are from euerlasting to euerlasting, that is, from euerlasting predestination to euerlasting glorification. His mercies in forgiuing our offences, and in couering all our sins, are exceeding long: the Lord, saith our Prophet, is [e] full of compassion & mercy, long suffering, and of great goodnesse. For though impenitent sinners prouoke him euery day, walking in their own wayes, and committing all vncleannesse euen with greedinesse: yet he neuertheless affords his good things, in [f] giuing them raine and fruitfull seasons, and filling their hearts with food and gladnesse; his mercy doth exceed their malice, being patient toward them, & desiring that none should perish, but that all should come to repentance, 2 Pet. 3, 9. He maketh as though he saw not the sins of men, because they should amend, Wisd. 11. 20. Christ aduiseth vs (Mat. 18. 22.) to forgiue one another, not only seuen times, but also seuentie times seuen times: and Luk. 6. 36. to be mercifull, as our Father in heauen is mercifull, insinuating hereby that God is infinitely mercifull, vnto sinners, euen to great sinners which owe his iustice ten thousand talents.

[d] Psal. 32. 11.

[e] Psal. 103. 8.

[f] Acts 14. 17.

Concerning the depth of his mercy, loue is seene in our { Sayings. Doings. Sufferings.

Loue superficiall is in word only; that which is operatiue, manifesting it selfe in deeds, is deepe, but the profoundest of all is in suffering for another. Now the Lord hath abundantly shewed his mercies in all these. First, in his word wri. ten & preached: written, [g] For we haue the holy Books in our hands for comfort; and whatsoeuer things are written afore time, were written for our learning, that we through patience & comfort of the Scriptures might haue hope, Rom. 15. 4. By his word preached, for the Ministers of the Gospell (as [h] Ambassadors) intreat you to be reconciled vnto him; vnto them is committed the word of reconciliation and peace, they be the [i] disposers of his mysteries, and messengers of his mercies, it is their dutie to binde vp the broken hearted. And therefore Dauid saith in the 85. Psalme, ver. 8. I will hearken what the Lord will say concerning me, for he shall speake peace to his people.

[g] 2 Macab. 12. 9.

[h] 2 Cor. 5. 20.

[i] 1 Cor. 4. 1.

Secondly, God sheweth his mercy toward vs in his doings, in [k] sauing our life from destruction, and in crowning vs with his louing kindnesse. But as loue is seene in deeds more than in words, so more in suffering than in doing; and of all suffering, death is most terrible; and of all deaths, a violent; and of all violent deaths, hanging vpon the Crosse is most hatefull and shamefull; yet God so loued the world, that he gaue his only begotten Son to die for our sins on the Crosse. Doubtlesse one will scarce die for a righteous man, but yet for a good man it may be (saith [l] Paul) that one dare die; but he setteth out his loue toward vs, seeing that while we were yet sinners, and his enemies, Christ died for vs.

[k] Psal. 103. 4.

[l] Rom. 5. 7.

Lastly, for the height of his mercy; the depth appeareth in its effect, but the height by the cause mouing to mercy, which is exalted aboue the heauens, according to that of Dauid, [m] In cœlo misericordia tua Domine. Men vse to pitie their seruants in respect of their own commoditie, the which is the lowest degree of mercy, for euery man (if he be not a foole) pitieth his very [n] beast. Other pitie men in regard of friendship and alliance, which is an higher degree of mercy. Some shew pitie to men in that they be men, not only flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bone, but also created according to Gods own likenesse and similitude, which is among vs the highest degree of mercy. Now God takes pitie on all things as being his creatures, on men especially, being created after his own Image, but on true Christians principally, being the sonnes and heires of his kingdome. If any shall aske, what cause moued him to make the world, to create man after his own likenes, to iustifie sinners, and adopt vs for his children? it is nothing else but his meere mercy, that endureth for euer. He loued vs when we would not, yea, when we could not loue him; and he continueth his goodnesse not in respect of his own benefit, for he needs not our helpe, but only for our good. The Lord is gratious, because gratious.

[m] Psal. 36. 5.

[n] Prou. 12. 10.

And therefore the blessed Angels aptly diuided their Christmas Caroll into two [o] Luk.2.14. part, [o] Glorie to God on high, and on earth peace: God hath indeed all the glorie, but we reape the good of his graciousnesse and mercie that endureth for euer.

I called vpon the Lord.] Hitherto King Dauid, concerning the graciousnesse of God in generall. He comes now to treat of his mercie toward himselfe in particular, the which is applied by Diuines vnto the [p] Church; and [q] Christ himselfe, who was in his passion heard at large, and in his resurrection he saw his desire vpon his enemies. The pith of all which is summarily comprised in the 24. verse, This is the day which the Lord hath made, let vs reioyce and be glad in it. In which obserue, [p] Augustine. Mollerus.

[q] Caluin. Placidus. Tileman. Agellius.

1. What day is meant by this day.
2. How the Lord is said to haue made this day, more than other dayes.
3. Why we should in this day so made, reioyce and be glad.

For the first, [r] literally this ought to be referred vnto the solemne day, wherein Israel and Aaron, as well Priests as people, being assembled together, gaue publike thanks vnto the Lord, for that their good King Dauid was now fully deliuered from all his enemies, and quietly setled in his princely throne. So this text is a verie fit theame for the Coronation dayes of our late blessed Queene, and present gracious King: as also for the Commemoration of our happie deliuerance from the Spanish Inuasion, anno 88. and from the bloudie Gunpowder plot, on the fifth of Nouember 1605.

[r] Bucer. Calvin. Mollerus.

[s] Augustin. Arnobius. Melanthon.
[t] Mollerus.
[u] Incognitus.

[s] But mystically this day is the time of grace, behold now is the accepted time, now the day of saluation, 2 Cor. 6. 2. and this day is termed here Catexochen, The day, [t] because the whole time wherein a man liues without Christ, is called in holy Scripture, The night and darknesse, as being full of terrors and errors, of blindnesse and ignorance. So S. Paul, Rom. 13. 12. The night is past, and the day is come. And Ephes. 5. 8. Once ye were darknesse, but now light in the Lord; your selues, [u] Children of light, and your works, [x] Armour of light.

[x] Ioh. 12. 36.
[x] Rom. 13. 12.
[y] Ben. Ar. in loc.

[y] Dominus est Dies, Christ is the day, or rather indeed the [z] light of the world, and [a] Sunne of the day [b] springing on high, to giue light to such as sit in darknes, and in the shadow of death. This day did appeare to the world in some measure [c] from the beginning. For the manifestation of Christ Iesus, the supernaturall Sunne of righteousnesse, arising with health vnder his wings, to them that feare the Lord, resembling a great deale, the rising of the naturall Sunne in our Horizon. First, the Sunne being readie to rise, sendeth forth a little glimpse of his brightnesse, whereunto we may compare the mysterie of that Aphorisme: The seed of the woman shall breake the serpents head, Gen. 3. 15. Then it doth enlarge the same brightnesse with more splendour, to which haply Noahs prophesie may be likened, Blessed be the Lord God of Sem, Gen. 9. 26. Afterward ascending higher, and approching neerer vnto vs, it putteth forth his glittering beames of clearer light, whereto we may resemble the plainer promises concerning Christ, communicated to the latter ages of Abraham, Gen. 12. 2. of Isaac, Gen. 26. 3, 4. of Iacob, Gen. 28. 14. of Dauid, 2 Sam. 7. 12. At length it discouereth it selfe and appeareth openly, whereunto Christs incarnation and liuing in the world answereth, 1 Ioh. 1. That which was from the beginning, which we haue heard, which we haue seene with our eyes, which we haue looked vpon, and our hands haue handled, &c. Last of all, it gloriously mounteth vp aboue the earth, and [d] nothing is hid from the heat thereof: and to this accordeth our Sauiours resurrection and ascension, whereby himselfe was glorified, and he drew other men vnto him, Ioh. 12. 32. and gaue them power, beleeuing in his name, to be the sonnes of God, Ioh. 1. 12. Wherefore, seeing the Messias of the world is now dead for our sins, and risen againe for our iustification, and sitteth at the right hand of God in heauen, euer making intercession for vs; and seeing the [e] sound of his Gospell is gone thorow all the earth, and the words of his Apostles vnto the ends of the world, we haue good cause to sing and say, this is the most acceptable time, the day of saluation and grace, [f] which in other ages was not opened to the sons of men, as it is now reuealed, and therefore let vs reioyce and be glad in it.

[z] Ioh 1.9.
[a] Mal 4.2.
[b] Luk 1.78.
[c] Tileman.

[d] Psal. 19. 6.

[e] Rom. 10. 18.

[f] Ephes. 3. 5.

Now, for as much as the resurrection of Christ is the [g] complement of all the

[g] Mollerus.

promises

promiſes concerning the Meſſias, and as it were, the [h] lock and key of faith, on which all other Articles depend; the Church of England, and [i] other Diuines ancient and orthodox, haue made this Hymne proper on Easter day: for on this day Chriſt ariſing from the dead, was heard at large; on this day, he ſaw his deſire vpon his enemies; on this day, he did openly triumph ouer the deuill, and death, and hell, albeit they compaſſed him round about, and kept him in on euery ſide; yet in the name of the Lord he deſtroyed them: on this day, he did not die, but liue to declare the workes of the Lord: on this day, the ſame ſtone which the builders refuſed, is become the head ſtone of the corner; it is the Lords doing, and it is marueilous in our eyes; and therefore let vs heartily ſing, This is the day which the Lord hath made, we will be glad and reioyce therein.

[h] Church Hom. for Easter day.
[i] Chryſoſt. Euthym. Melanct. Bucer.

God made the [k] morning and euening, the light and the darkneſſe are his. How then is he ſaid here, to make this day more than other dayes? The [l] Doctors vpon the place anſwer, that albeit all dayes are good in reſpect of themſelues and God; yet ſome be ioyfull, and other dolefull, in reſpect of the good and euill that happeneth in them vnto vs. For [m] the day wherein Adam fell, and in him all his poſteritie, was an euill and a blacke day, made ſo (doubtleſſe) by the deuill, and not by the Lord: but this day, wherein the ſecond Adam aroſe from the dead, and in him [n] all men are made aliue, is a good day, wherein the faithfull are ioyfull. It is the Lords doing, and therefore the Lords day. The Lords doing, that the ſame ſtone which the builders refuſed, is now become the head and corner ſtone in the building; that he who was a deſpicable man, a worme rather than a man, Pſalm. 22.6. ſhould now triumphing ouer the deuill and death, hell and the graue, become the [o] king of glory; that [p] at the name of Ieſus euery knee ſhould bow, both of things in heauen, and things in earth, and things vnder the earth. Now the Lord is ſaid to make this day more than other, as [q] honouring it aboue other, exalting it and making it [r] memorable to poſteritie. So the word making ſometime ſignifieth, as 1 Sam. 12.6. It is the Lord that made Moſes and Aaron, that is, exalted Moſes and [s] Aaron; and ſo we ſay, that a man aduanced in honour or riches, is a made man; in this ſenſe, the making of a day, is the ſanctifying and obſeruing of a day, Deut. 5.15 Exod. 34.22. How then is Easter day more magnified and hallowed, than other dayes in the yeere? To this obiection, anſwer may be, that all Chriſtians (herein imitating the patterne of the bleſſed [t] Apoſtle) in honour of Chriſts reſurrection, obſerue their Sabbath vpon the eighth day, which is the firſt day of the weeke; whereas the Iewes hallowed their Sabbath vpon the ſeuenth day, which is the laſt day of the weeke. So that Easter day is the Sabbath of Sabbaths, an high and holy day, from which euery other Sunday hath his name, being ſo called, becauſe the Sunne of righteouſneſſe aroſe from the dead vpon this day. This day is the Lords day, the day which himſelf made ſo good a day, that all his true ſeruants euer ſince haue reioyced in it, and ſanctified their Sabboth on it.

[k] Gen. 1 5.
[l] Chryſoſt. Euthym. Placidus.
[m] Melanct. Mollerus.
[n] 1 Cor. 15.22
[o] Pſalm 24.7.
[p] Philip. 2.10.
[q] Agellius.
[r] Caluin.
[s] Vatablus.
[t] Acts 20.7. 1 Cor. 16 2. Apoc. 1.10.

[u] Hæc eſt illa dies toti celebrabilis orbi,
Quem facit, & proprio ſignat honore Deus.

[u] Eoban. Heſſus.

The reaſons why we ſhould this day reioice ſo much, are manifold; but they may be reduced al vnto 2. principall heads, { A motiõ from euil. / Promotiõ in good.

Chriſt on this day riſing from the dead, ouercame the deuil, which is the author of death; and the graue, which is the priſon of death; and ſinne, which is the [x] ſting of death; and the Law, which is the ſtrength of the ſting of death; and all this he did for vs men and our ſaluation. The deuill, which is the prince of [y] darkneſſe, had no part in the Sunne of righteouſneſſe: Chriſt therefore being [z] ſtronger than he, came vpon him, and ouercame him; he tooke from him all his armour wherein he truſted, and diuided his ſpoiles, and caſt him out of his hold, that he might haue no part in vs, or power ouer vs. As [a] Bernard ſweetly, Fortitudo diaboli per redemptoris vulnera tradu&ta & redu&ta ad nihilum, in the words of S. Paul, The God of peace ſhall tread downe Sathan vnder your feet, Rom. 16.20.

So he who was aboue the law, was made [b] vnder the law, that he might redeeme

[x] 1 Cor. 15.56.
[y] Epheſ. 6.12.
[z] Luke 11.22.
[a] Ser. de quadruplici debito.
[b] Galat. 4.4.

those which are vnder the law, that he might put out the hand-writing of ordinãces that was against vs, and fasten it vpon his crosse, Coloss. 2. 14. So he who knew no sin, made himselfe to be sin for vs, that we should be made the righteousnesse of God in him, 2 Cor. 5. 21. He was wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, Esay 53. 5. If the tormentors of Christ should aske now, as they did once, Luk. 22. 64. Who is he that smote thee? we may quickly become Prophets, and answer for him, our sinnes smote him; euery one of vs might ingenuously confesse with [c] Ionas, for my sake this great tempest is vpon thee (sweet Iesus.) He triumphed ouer hell, and the graue for vs also: for as for himselfe, it was impossible that the Lord of [d] life should be holden of death, Acts 2. 24. Wherefore let vs say with S. [e] Paul, O death where is thy sting? O graue where is thy victorie? the sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the Law: but thanks be to God, which hath giuen vs victorie through our Lord Iesus Christ. And let vs heartily sing with our Prophet, Easter is the day which the Lord hath made, we will be ioyfull and glad in it.

[c] Ionas 1. 12.

[d] Acts 3. 15.

[e] 1 Cor. 15. 55.

[f] Some Diuines affirme, that the yeere wherein our blessed Sauiour arose from the dead, should (according to the Law) haue beene the yeere of Iubile, wherin liberty was proclaimed in the land to all the inhabitants thereof; euery man returned to his possession and family, debts were released, and oppressions abated. And surely the Iubilees in old time, were [h] figures of the ioyes in this acceptable time; for by the resurrection of Christ, euerie true beleeuer is set free from the hands of all his enemies, his trespasses are forgiuen, and he is restored againe to his interest in that heauenly possession and immortall inheritance, which he lost in the transgression of his great grandfather Adam. The redemption of Christ is a yeere of Iubile, the resurrection of Christ is the chiefe day in the yeere. Let vs therefore reioyce for it, and be glad in it. Dauid saith [i] elsewhere, By this (O Lord) I know thou fauoureſt me, that mine enemie doth not triumph against me. [k] Thou hast giuen vnto me the necks of my foes, that I might breake them as small as the dust of the earth, and tread them flat as the clay in the street. That which he speaketh of his temporall enemies, opposing him in obtaining of an earthly kingdome, we may well apply to the spirituall, hindering vs in our way to the kingdome of heauen. O Lord, our strength and redeemer, thou hast on this day [l] broken the serpents head, and vtterly confounded all such as hate vs. On this day thou diddest laugh them to scorne, and haue them in derision, Psal. 2. 4. and therefore we will in memoriall of this one day, sing thy mercies all the dayes of our life; sounding forth vnto the worlds end, This is the day, this is thy day, which thou (Lord) hast made, we will reioyce and be glad in it.

[f] Bonauent. in loc.

[g] Leuit. 25. 10.

[h] Dr. Incognit.

[i] Psal. 41. 11.

[k] 2 Sam. 22. 41.

[l] Gen. 3. 15.

Concerning our promotion in good, the resurrection of Christ is a proofe of our iustification, a meanes of our sanctification, a demonstration of our resurrection. First, it proueth our iustification, according to that of Paul, Rom. 4. 25. He was giuen to death for our sinnes, and is risen againe from the dead for our iustification. See the Gospell on S. Thomas day.

Secondly, the resurrection of Christ is a notable meanes to work inward sanctification, as Saint Peter teacheth in 1 Epistle chap. 1. vers. 3. God hath begotten vs againe vnto a liuely hope, by the resurrection of Iesus Christ from the dead. And Saint [m] Paul, As Christ was raised vp from the dead, by the glorie of his Father; so we should also walke in newnesse of life; for if we be grafted with him to the similitude of his death, euen so shall we be to the similitude of his resurrection. Which words import, [n] that as the graft groweth in the stocke, and is become one bodie with it: euen so the faithfull haue their liuing, and spirituall being in Christ. As he by the power of his owne Godhead, freed his manhood from death, and from the guilt of our sin; so doth he likewise free those that are knit vnto him by the bond of one Spirit, from the corruptiõ of their natures in which they are dead, that they may liue vnto God. [o] In the naturall body, the head is the fountaine of all motion and sense; for the hands & the feet moue by that power, which is by sundry nerues deriued from the head, & dispersed among the members. And so it is in (Christs mysticall body) the Church; he is the head and fountaine of life spirituall, and [p] that very power of his

[m] Rom. 6. 4. 5.

[n] Aquin. Aretius. Marlorat.

[o] Raymund. de Sabunde Theolog. natural. tit. 277.

[p] Perkins exposit. Creed, art. Christ resur.

his Godhead, whereby he raiſed vp himſelfe when he was dead, he conueyeth from himſelfe to his members, and thereby raiſeth them vp from the death of ſin, to newneſſe of life. For the better vnderſtanding of this point, let vs examine the meanes, and the meaſure of the ſpirituall life.

For the meanes, if we will haue common water, we may goe to the common Well; and if we deſire water of life, we muſt haue recourſe vnto Chriſt, who ſaith, [q] if any man thirſt, let him come vnto me and drinke, and [r] he ſhall haue a well of water ſpringing vp into euerlaſting life. Now this Well (as the woman of Samaria ſaid of Iacobs Well) is very deepe, and we haue nothing to draw with. And therefore we muſt haue pipes and conduits to conuey the ſame vnto vs; and theſe pipes are the ſincere preaching of the word, and the right adminiſtration of the Sacraments. As for the preaching of Gods holy word, Chriſt openly proclaimeth in the fifth of S. Iohns Goſpell, at the 25. verſ. The dead ſhall heare the voice of the Sonne of God, and they that heare it ſhall liue.[s] Where, by dead is meant, not the dead in the graue, but the dead in ſin. For ſo the Scripture ſpeaketh elſewhere, [t] Let the dead burie the dead: and Epheſ. 5. 14. Awake thou that ſleepeſt, and ſtand vp from the dead: and 1 Tim. 5. 6. A widow liuing in pleaſure, is dead while ſhee liueth. He that heares the word, and abideth in vnbeleefe, continueth among the dead: but (ſaith our Sauiour) [u] Verily, verily, I ſay vnto you, he that heareth my word, and beleeueth in him that ſent me, hath euerlaſting life, and ſhall not come into condemnation, but hath paſſed from death vnto life, becauſe the words that I ſpeake vnto you are ſpirit and life Ioh. 6. 63. that is, conueying vnto your dead hearts, ſpirit and life.

As Chriſt, when he raiſed vp dead men, only ſpake the word and they reuiued: and at the laſt day, when the [x] trumpet of God ſhall blow, the dead ſhall riſe againe: ſo it is in the firſt reſurrection, they which are dead in their old ſins, are raiſed againe to newneſſe of life by his powerfull voice, vttered in the Goſpels miniſterie. We reade of three that Chriſt raiſed from death, [y] Iairus daughter newly dead; the [z] widowes ſonne dead, and wound vp, and lying on the hearſe; and [a] Lazarus dead, and buried, and ſtinking in the graue. Now theſe three ſorts of Coarſes (as [b] Auguſtine notes) are three ſorts of ſinners. Iairus daughter lying dead in her fathers houſe, reſembleth thoſe that ſin by inward conſent: the widowes ſonne being carried out of the gate of the Citie, thoſe that ſin by outward act: Lazarus hauing beene dead and buried foure dayes, thoſe that ſinne by continuall habit. The firſt day (ſaith Auguſtine) he was dead by conceiuing ſinne: the ſecond, by conſenting to ſin: the third, by committing ſin: the fourth, by continuing in ſin. The young maiden lay in a bed? the young man in a coffin: Lazarus, in a graue. The firſt was dead but an houre, the ſecond but a day, the third foure dayes. After their raiſing vp, Iairus daughter inſtantly walked; becauſe for her that had ſtept aſide but by conſenting to ſin, it was eaſie to recouer, and to walke forthwith in the wayes of Gods holy commandements. The widowes ſonne ſate vp, began to ſpeake, was deliuered to his mother; becauſe for him, which had actually tranſgreſſed, it was a matter of greater difficultie to recouer, and therefore by little and little he came to it, as [c] Eraſmus obſerueth excellently. Firſt, ſitting vp, by raiſing vp himſelfe to a purpoſe of amendment: then beginning to ſpeake, by confeſſing his own miſerie, and acknowledging Gods mercy: laſtly, being deliuered to his mother, by returning to the boſome of the holy Church, and enioying the remiſſion of his ſinnes. Lazarus came forth of his graue bound hand and foot with bands, becauſe for him that had a [d] ſtone laid vpon him, and had made his heart as hard as a graue-ſtone, or as a [e] nether milſtone, by making a cuſtome, and (as it were) a trade of ſin; it was in the iudgement of man impoſſible to recouer. And yet Chriſts omnipotent voice brought him forth bound hand and foot, and brake theſe bands aſunder, and reſtored him againe to the libertie of the ſonnes of God.

The [f] Sacraments are conduit-pipes alſo, whereby God inuiſibly conueyeth his vitall or ſauing graces into the heart, if they be rightly vſed; that is, if they be receiued in vnfained repentance for al our ſins, & with a liuely faith in Chriſt for the [q] Iohn 7. 37.

[r] Iohn 4. 14.
[s] Auguſt. tract. 22. in Ioan. Idem Caluin & aly in loc.
[t] Matth 8. 22.
[u] Iohn 5. 24.
[x] 1 Theſſ. 4. 16
[y] Matth. 9. 25.
[z] Luk 7. 15.
[a] Iohn 11. 44.
[b] Serm 44. de verbis Dom. & de hac allegorica vide eundem tract 49. in Ioan.
[c] Con. de miſericord. Domini.
[d] Moles impoſita ſepulchro ipſa eſt vis dura conſuetudinis. Auguſt. ſer. 44. de verb. Dom.
[e] Iob. 41. 15.
[f] Conſeſſ. Anglican. art. 25.

pardon of the same sins. And in this respect aptly compared vnto [g] flagons of wine, which reuiue the Church being sicke, and fallen into a swound.

As for the measure of spirituall life, deriued from our head Christ, it is but small in this world, and giuen by little and little; the which is figured in the [h] vision of water that ranne out of the Temple. First, a man must wade to the ancles, then after to the knees, and so to the loines: and last of all the waters grow to a riuer, that cannot be passed ouer; euen so the Lord conueyeth his gifts and graces by little and little, till his children at the last attaine a large measure thereof, and haue full growth in Christ. The same we may likewise see liuely described in the vision of drie bones, Ezech. 37. The Prophet in a vision is carried into the middest of a field, full of dead bones, and the Lord commanded him to propheſie ouer them, and to say to them, O ye drie bones, heare the word of the Lord. At the first there was a shaking and the bones came together bone to bone, vers. 7. then the sinewes and flesh grew vpon them, and vpon the flesh a skin couered them, vers. 8. then he propheſied vnto the winde, and they liued, and stood vpon their feet; for the breath came vpon them, and they were an exceeding great armie of men, vers. 10. [i] Hereby doubtlesse is signified not only the state of the Iewes after their captiuitie, but in them the state of the whole Church, in whose heart God Almightie worketh his graces of regeneration by little and little. First, he giueth his children flesh, and then a skin to couer the flesh, and afterward he powreth vpon them further gifts of his spirit to quicken them, and to make them aliue vnto God.

3. The resurrection of Christ is a [k] demonstration of our resurrection, according to that of S. Paul, 1 Cor. 15. 12. If it be preached that Christ is risen againe from the dead, how say some among you, that there is no resurrection of the dead? Yea but ye will obiect, what promotion is that vnto the godly, seeing all men at the last day must of necessitie rise againe? Answer is made, that the wicked are raised by the power of Christ as a Iudge to condemne them: on the contrarie, the faithfull are raised by the power of Christ as a Iesus to saue them. Almightie God said vnto Adam, At what time he should eat of the forbidden fruit, he should [l] die the death. Hereby [m] meaning a double death, as the scripture speakes [n] elsewhere, the first and second death. Naturall death is the dissolution of the bodie, spirituall death is the destruction of the soule, eternall death is both of bodie and soule. Prima constat ex duabus, secunda ex omnibus tota, saith Augustine. Now Christ as a Iudge raiseth againe the reprobate from the first death, that he may inflict vpon them all the punishments of the second death, as a reward of sin: but he raiseth his elect, as their head and Redeemer, that they may be partakers of the benefit of his death, enioying both in bodie and soule the kingdome of glory, which he hath so dearely bought for them.

Wherefore seeing on this day we haue beene deliuered from so much euill, and promoted vnto so much good; let vs [o] spiritually reioyce, being [p] glad inwardly, ioyfull outwardly, [q] singing vnto the Lord with a grace in our hearts, This is the day which the Lord hath made.

---

[g] Cant. 2. 5.

[h] Ezech. 47. 3, 4, 5.

[i] These bones are the whole house of Israel, ver. 11. but the faithfull are Gods Israel.

[k] Non modo per seipsum probauit resurrectionem Sadducæus, sed in seipso omnibus. Tertull. lib. de carnis resur.

[l] Gen. 2. 17.

[m] August. de Ciuit. Dei, lib. 13. cap. 12. Aquin. Dion. Carthus. in Gen. 2.

[n] Apoc. 20. 6

[o] Chrysost. Euthym. Placidus.

[p] Dr. Incognit.

[q] Coloss. 3. 16.

ASCENSION DAY
MORNING PRAYER.

Psalme 8.

O Lord our Gouernour, how excellent is thy name in all the world, &c.

THis Hymne (beloued) is a meditation of Gods excellent goodneſſe and glory ſhining in all his creatures, in man eſpecially, whom he mindeth, and viſiteth, and crowneth as Lord and King ouer the reſt, putting all things in ſubiection vnder his feet, as all the beaſts of the field, all the fowles of the aire, all the fiſhes of the Sea, and whatſoeuer walketh through the paths of the Seas.

Gods excellencie manifeſteth it ſelfe ſo much in this vniuerſe, that there be ſo many wonders, as there be works of his hands.

I will inſiſt in fiue things only, to wit, in the creatures { Magnitude. Multitude. Varietie. Vertue. Beautie.

Concerning the firſt, I ſay with the [a] Wiſeman, Who can meaſure the bredth of the earth, and the depth? it is ſo long and ſo large, that all the corners of it are not yet knowne vnto the moſt exquiſite Coſmographers, and aduenturous Nauigators. A [b] very learned and induſtrious Antiquarie, hath in three ſeuerall Volumes accurately diſcourſed of Voyages, Traffiques, and Diſcoueries of our Engliſh Nation made by Land and Sea, to the remote quarters of the earth, at any time ſince the birth of Chriſt vnto the yeere 1600. and yet we ſtill heare newes of new found lands. Now the whole ſuperficies of the earth as well as vncouth as diſcouered, is but a little point (as Aſtrologers affirme) in compariſon of heauens ample circumference, being a great deale leſſe than the leaſt ſtarre among many thouſands in the firmament. Conſider then (O my ſoule) how great God is, how excellent his name. The water is great, but earth haply greater than the water, and heauen doubtleſſe a great deale greater than both, and yet God is infinitely greater than them all, his glory (ſaith our text) ſhineth aboue the heauens: he (quoth [c] Iſaiah) according to the tranſlation of [d] Aquila, meaſures the water with his little finger, and the earth with his three fingers, and the heauens with his ſpan: nay the whole world before him is but as a drop of the morning dew that falleth vpon the ground. Wiſd. 11. 19.

I will aſcend yet a little higher: If there ſhould be many worlds (as [e] ſome Philoſophers imagined abſurdly) yet God would fill them all, and be comprehended of none. The thrice great [f] Mercurie to this purpoſe ſaith excellently, Deus eſt circulus cuius centrum eſt vbiq;, circumferentia verò nuſquam. As God is good without qualitie, ſo great without quantitie. [g] Altior eſt cœlo, profundior inferno, latior terra, mari diffuſior, nuſquam eſt, & vbique eſt.

a Eccleſiaſticus 1 3.

b Mr Richard Haklait.

c Cap. 40. v. 12.

d Apud Hieron. in loc.

e Democritus. Empedocles.

f Apud Conradū Gumpellium in explicatione queſtionis an & quatenus de Deo notiones logicæ, ſint vſurpandæ, pag. 17.

g Bernard. ſer. de triplici cohærentia vinculorū clauorum & glutinorum.

Virgo

Virgo Dei genetrix, quem totus non capit orbis,
In tua se clausit viscera factus homo.

What then is man, or the sonne of man, that he should dare presumptuously to define the greatnesse, and limit the quantum of his Creator? O Lord the [b] heauen of heauens cannot containe thee, how then is any barren braine able to search out thy fulnes? As [i] S. Augustine sweetly, quo intellectu Deum capit homo, qui ipsum intellectum sunm quo eum vult capere nondum capit? Vaine worme leaue to write and learne here with our Prophet to wonder, O Lord our Gouernour, how excellent is thy name in all the world, thou that hast set thy glory aboue the heauens!

2. Concerning the Creatures multitude, God himselfe diuided the whole world into heauen and earth, Gen. 1.1. and the hosts of his creatures in both, are beyond all number. To marshall them in order, and to beginne à notioribus, euen with things here below, who can number the creatures vnder the earth, on the earth, about the earth? The metals and other things vnder earth, as gold, siluer, precious stones, lead, brasse, coale, tin, &c. are diuers in name, diuers in nature, but all put together infinite in number. Vpon earth it is impossible for the diligent secretaries of Nature to tell exactly the very kindes of all hearbs, of all flowers, of all plants, of all trees, of all beasts, perfect and imperfect, walking, crauling, creeping vpon a [k] thousand hils, and a million of mountaines: and if the genera be thus infinite, then individua much more: for it would passe the skill of all the cunning Arithmeticians in the world to count the particular blades of grasse that grow but in one field about the earth. I demand as Iesus the sonne of Sirach, Eccles. 1.2. who can number the sand of the Sea? nay, what man is able to number the fish of the Sea, the which are so many, that the Patriarch [l] Iacob prayed his children might increase like the fish. Beasts of the field, and birds of the ayre bring forth but one or two young ones if they be big, or if they be little some three or foure, other fiue or sixe, a few ten, none vsually aboue twenty, but fish as experience teacheth, euery day bring forth hundreds at one time: in the great and wide Sea (saith our [m] Prophet) there be things creeping innumerable, both small and great beasts.

Let vs ascend, and consider the heauens, and there we shall finde that the starres are for number infinite: [n] Looke vp into heauen (said the Lord to father Abraham) and tell the starres if thou canst. And Gen. 22.17. I will multiply thy seed as the starres of heauen, that is, exceedingly, greatly, infinitely: so the number of starres is often vsed in holy Bible for a boundlesse number, as [o] the Lord thy God hath made thee as the starres of heauen in multitude, and Nehemiah 9.23. thou didst multiply their children like the starres of heauen, and Nahum 3.16. thou hast increased thy marchants aboue the starres of heauen, and whatsoeuer Astrologers affirme to the contrary, the Text is plaine, that the starres of heauen cannot be numbred, nor the sand of the sea measured, Ierem. 33.22.

So the glorious Angels aboue the heauens are numberlesse: we read Mat. 26.53. of moe than twelue legions of Angels, and Dan. 7.10. that thousand thousands minister vnto God, and that [p] ten thousand thousands stand before him: and [q] Aquinas avoweth out of Dionysius, that the number of Angels exceedeth all the materiall things created in the world: his reason I confesse seemeth vnreasonable, the things which are more perfect, must (in the manner they may) exceed the more imperfect, to wit, either in magnitude or multitude: but this to wit (as one [r] notes) is without wit, for that as Durandus obiects, there should consequently be many Gods, which is against faith: and many Sunnes, which is against Philosophie: yea, more precious stones than other, against experience. Yet I think with [s] Hierome, that [t] Daniel, and [u] S. Iohn, when they define some determinate number of Angels, accommodate themselus to that ordinary phrase of one certaine number for some very great vnknowne number: and therfore [x] Iob saith, Is there any number in his armies? as who would say, they be innumerable, to wit, vnto vs men, not vnto God or in themselus, as [y] Gregory the great acutely, Superiorum ciuium numerus infinitus & definitus exprimitur: vt qui [z] Deo est numerabilis, esse hominibus innumerabilis demonstretur. If then a Kings dignity consist in the [a] multitude of his subiects, & a fathers honour in

the

[b] 2 Chro. 6.18.
[i] De Trinit lib. 5. cap. 1.
[k] Psal. 50.10.
[l] Gen. 48.16.
[m] Psal. 104.25.
[n] Gen. 15.5.
[o] Deut. 10.22.
[p] See Benedictus Pererius in loc.
[q] Part. 1 quæst. 50 art 3.
[r] Salkeld tract of Angels c. 4.
[s] In Dan. 7.
[t] Vbi sup.
[u] Apoc. 5.11.
[x] Iob 25.3.
[y] Moral. lib. 17 cap. 7. in verba Iob vbi supra.
[z] For he that can tell the number of the starres, and call them all by their names, Psal 147.4. is able likewise to tell the number and names of his Angels.
[a] Prou. 14.28

the multitude of his children, how wonderfull and excellent is Gods name in all the world, as hauing so many seruants and sonnes as there be beasts of the field, fowles of the aire, fish in the sea, hosts of his creatures in heauen and earth: these multitudes of creatures euidently shew the most infinite perfections of the Creator, for seeing he would be knowne of man by the works of his hands, and no one kinde of mettall or mould, plant or tree, beast or bird could aptly represent his incomprehensible greatnesse and goodnesse, it was necessary that he should multiply the creatures, imparting something of his excellency to euery thing, that as we may know the true value of a double ducket, or of some other great peece of gold, by diuers little peeces of siluer and brasse coyne: so we might see (saith [b] Paul) his eternall power & Godhead in the creation of the world, being considered in his workes. [b] Rom.1.20.

Consider then ô my soule the heauens, euen the worke of his fingers, the Moone and the starres which he hath ordained. Consider what man is, and the sonne of man, how the Lord is mindfull of him, and visiteth him, and crowneth him with glory and worship. Consider all sheepe and oxen, and the beasts of the field, fowles and fishes, and whatsoeuer walketh thorow the paths of the seas. Euery day (but on the Sabboth especially, being primarily hallowed for the [c] same purpose) consider how excellent God is in the creation of the world: and whereas the creatures are [d] stumbling blockes vnto the soules of fooles, & a snare to the feet of vnwise, make them a ladder whereby thou maist ascend to the Creator, and haue thy conuersation in heauen. If thou seest a bag of siluer, or a wedge of gold, thinke on Christs holy bloud, of [e] greater value than either gold, or siluer, or any precious stone, shed for thy sake, for thy sin, if thou forsake these things of the world & follow him. If walking abroad in thy ground thou blesse God for blessing thee with a faire lot and goodly possessions here, remember that inheritance which is [f] immortall, and [g] cannot be shaken. If thou think on the kindomes of this world, remember, if thou truly beleeue, that thine is the kingdome of heauen, as being prepared for thee by God the Father, & purchased for thee by God the Sonne, and assured to thee by God the holy Ghost.

[c] Gen 2.3. Exod.20.11.
[d] Wisd.14.10.
[e] 1 Pet.1.18.19
[f] 1 Pet.1.4.
[g] Heb.12 28.

3. The variety of the creatures is yet more wonderfull and excellent, for it is not hard with one and the same seale to make diuers like formes and impressions, or with one and the same stampe to print diuers like letters, but with one and the same mold infinitely to vary the figures impressed (as Almighty God did in the creation of all things) is a worke most absolutely diuine and admirable. For as there be diuers kinds of creatures, euen so the creatures of the same kinde are diuers, differing in fashion and outward forme so much, as that among so many thousand of pebbles vpon the sea banke it is impossible to finde two stones in all things alike, or among many heards of cattell, two goats, or two horses, or two hogges in all like, or in a whole market (though ouum ouo non est simile runne for a prouerbe) two egges in all alike, or among an innumerable host of men two so like, but that you may know them each from other, if not by complexion and stature, yet by voice, gate, gesture, look, yea by writing of one short line.

Concerning the glorious lights of heauen, [h] Paul saith expresly, that there is another glory of the Sunne, and another glory of the Moone, and another glory of the starres, and that one starre differeth from another in glory. So the blessed Angels, albeit they be moe than twelue Legions, an Army which is beyond number, yet [i] Aquinas affirmes that all of them are differing one from another non solùm in individuali numero, sed etiam specifica forma: for (saith he) there be diuers orders of Angels, and diuers degrees of the same order, primi, medij, vltimi. [h] 1 Cor.15.41. [i] Part.1.quæst. 50.art.4.

Consider then, ô my soule, Gods excellency, shining in his infinite variety throughout the whole world, say with [k] Paul, O the deepnesse of the riches of the wisdome and knowledge of God, [l] in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdome and knowledge: and sing with our Prophet, O Lord our Gouernour, how wonderfull is thy name in all the earth? and then how sweet and amiable in heauen, where thou art to thy Saints all in all things, 1 Cor.15.28. [k] Rom11.33. [l] Coloss.2.3.

4. Touching the creatures vertue, when Almighty God had viewed all the works of his hands, he gaue this censure, that they were good, yea very good, Gen.1

at

at the last verse: The Lord is wonderfull in the greatest, and no lesse wonderfull euen in the least of all his creatures, [m] Ita magnus in operibus magnis, vt minor non sit in minimis. To beginne with the sea, nature (quoth [n] Plinie) which is wonderfull in all things, is most wonderfully wonderfull in the Sea: they that goe downe to the sea in ships, and occupy their businesse in great waters, behold (saith our [o] Prophet) the workes of the Lord, and his wonders in the deepe, For at his word the stormy winde ariseth, and listeth vp the waues thereof, they be carried vp to heauen, and downe againe to the deepe, they reele to and fro staggering as a drunken man, and are at their wits end: for the flowing and ebbing of some part of the sea so farre surpasseth all humane reason and vnderstanding, that it made that great Philosopher [p] Aristotle to drowne himselfe in the waues, saying, Quoniam ego non possum capere te, tu capies me. The sea called [q] Mare Horbidum is exceeding strange; for if the stalkes of those weeds grow, they must be of an infinite length; if they doe not grow, how then haue they continued in one place so many hundred yeres? Euery sea-fish hath his vertue, the Sword-fish is a Souldier: the [r] Polypus a Politician, the little [s] Vrchin an Astrologer in foretelling tempests, & the Crab a very Conny-catcher in gaining her prey. All of them, as S. Ambrose telleth vs, are [t] Thalassometræ more strange then Geometræ, measuring out their peculiar habitations in the paths of the seas, and containing themselues alway within the same.

But among all the wonders of the deepe, giue me leaue to recommend vnto your consideration especially two, namely the great Leuiathan, and the little Remora: the Leuiathan is described by Iob in his 41. chap. The maiestie of his scales is like strong shields, and are sure sealed, one is set to another that no winde can come betweene them, his neezings make the light to shine, and his eyes are like the eye-lids of the morning, out of his mouth go lamps, and sparkes of fire leape out, smoke commeth out of his nostrils as out of a boyling pot or caldron, &c. And in conclusion he saith, in earth there is no creature like him, he beholdeth all high things, and is a King ouer all the children of pride. Now for the Remora which is but halfe a foot long [u] Plinie reports, and produceth hereof examples also, that it is able to stay the greatest ship vnder saile, when as the windes are roaring, and the waues raging, hæc tantilla (saith he) satis est contra tot impetus vt vetet ire nauigia. Let vs land, and we shall finde on earth euen the worst of all the creatures to be very good for some purposes according to their kindes, as [x] S. Ambrose pithily, alia esui, alia aly nascuntur vsui: the ground neither breeds nor beares any thing, but it is good for meat or medicine to man or beast, or both. [y] Æneas Siluius vsed to say, that there is no booke so weakly written, but that it containeth one thing or other which is profitable. The whole world is a great booke in folio, and all the creatures are characters, and out of the least of these letters it is easie to spell, as it were, Gods excellent name. Whole volumes are written of the vertues of the Load-stone, [z] How great a matter a little fire kindleth? [a] The winde bloweth where it listeth, and thou heares the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it commeth, and whither it goeth. It is so boisterous and violent, that it roots vp tall trees, and throwes downe strong towers, and (as I haue read in [b] books, and heard of [c] trauellers) able to remoue mountaines: for in the territories of Bierne, a village called Hiborne, by reason of an earth-quake about the yeere 1583. was ouerwhelmed and couered with earth so deepe, that at this day, the ground vnder which it lieth hidden, is tilled and sowen with corne, Seges est vbi Troia fuit, and this earth came from an high mountaine distant from the said village aboue an English mile, rowling ouer a valley of that breadth, and neuer stayed till it met with this obstacle, where it wrought so strange an effect.

The vertues of hearbes and flowers are so soueraigne, that the herball affoords a medicine for euery kinde of malady that infesteth our bodies, euery plant and tree hath his seuerall excellency: [d] The Oliue-tree hath his fatnesse, the Fig-tree his sweetnesse, the Cedar his talnesse, the Oake his firmnesse, and the Vine his fruitfulnesse. If I would speake of beasts & birds, I need not tell you that the least of them, and most imperfect, is excellent. The flies soule (saith [e] Augustine) doth excell the glorious Sunnes body, the teeth of the moth are so wonderfull as the tuskes of the Boare,

[m] Aug. contra Faust. Man. lib. 21. cap. 5.
[n] Proœm. lib. 32. nat. hist.
[o] Psal. 107. 23.
[p] Iustin Martyr. orat. ad Gentes. Naz. orat. 47. Cælius Rhod. lib 29. cap. 8.
[q] Pet. Martyr. de orbe nouo decad. 3. cap. 5.
[r] Ambros. Hexam. l. 5. c. 8.
[s] Ambros. vbi sup. cap. 9.
[t] Vbi sup. cap. 10.
[u] Nat. hist. lib. 32. cap. 1.
[x] Hexam. lib. 3. cap 9.
[y] Lib. de mundo vniuerso.
[z] Iam. 3. 5.
[a] Ioh. 3. 8.
[b] Bellar de ascensione mentis ad Deum per scalas creat. grad. 2. cap 4.
[c] Ex ore Isaaci Causaboni.
[d] Iudg 9. 9.
[e] Lib de duabus animabus contra Manich. cap. 4.

Boare, the thighs of the slender Gnat not inferiour in their frame to the thighs of the huge Elephant, the wings of the Butter-flie may compare, for exquisite forme, with the wings of the Grithon or Eagle. [f] Salomon telleth vs that foure small things in earth are full of wisdome, The Pismires a people not strong, yet prepare they their meat in summer: the Coneyes a people not mighty, yet make they their houses in the rocke: the Grashopper hath no King, yet go they forth all by bands: the Spider taketh hold with her hands, and is in Kings palaces. And so the diligent and witty [g] Bee proues himselfe a great Architect in building his chambers high and low so cunningly: The [h] Flea seemeth a kinde of Physitian vnto other, by letting bloud in the spring, the [i] Goats in eating ditany, the Deere in eating inie, Physitians vnto themselues: so the Mouse in forsaking a ruinous house ready to fall, seemeth a kinde of Wizard or Prophet: so the Hound in following the Hare seemeth a kinde of Logician, for when he commeth vnto a way that is parted into three paths, he doth as it were Syllogistically thus argue with himself (saith [k] Ambrose) either the game is gone this way, or that way, or else in the middle way: but neither this way, nor that, ergo doubtlesse in the middle path. [l] S. Basil to conuince the boasting of Eunomius the Heretike, who vaunted that he knew God and his Diuinitie, bids him, if he can, answer these demands concerning the poore Emmet, a contemptible beast, as being little in bodie, base in substance.

1. Whether it breatheth or no? 2. If those little corps be vpheld with bones? 3. If those small members be linked with sinewes, or chained with strings? 4. If those sinewes be fortified mith muscles? 5. Whether downe the backe nature extendeth a chaine pliable to turning or bending? 6. Whether thorow the chaine passeth a white marrow? 7. Whether the sinowie membranes impell the rest of the bodie? 8. Whether it hath a liuer or no? 9 Whether in the liuer a receptacle of choller? 10. Whether an heart? 11. Whether kidneyes? 12. Whether arteries? 13. Whether veines? 14. Whether skins? 15. Whether a trauerse or midriffe? 16. Whether is it bare or hairie? 17. Whether single or clouen footed? 18. How long liueth it? 19. After what manner is it begotten? 20. How long dwelleth it in the wombe? 21. Why do not all creepe, but some flie and some creepe? These questions are moued by Basil touching the small Emmets bodie, but ten times more (saith [m] one) might be demanded about the sensitiue soule. O Lord our Gouernour, how superexcellent is thy glory aboue the heauens, if thy name be thus excellent in the meanest of thy creatures creeping vpon earth?

Who can admire sufficiently the Sympathies & Antipathies of the creatures, [n] as the mortall hatred between the Horse and the Beare, the Swan & Eagle, the lesser birds and Owle, Mullet and Pike, Conger and Lamprey. Who can any way diuine why there should be such irreconciliable warres among the senseless creatures? as betweene the Oake and Oliue, Vine and Coleworth: againe, betweene the Coleworth and wilde Margeram; as also betweene Hemlocke and Wine, for Hemlocke is said to be poyson vnto men, and Wine poyson vnto Hemlocke: or what reason can be rendred of the mutuall agreement inter Lilium & Allium, betweene Lillies and Garlicke? or why some trees are so coupled in a kinde of mariage, that if the male be not planted in a neere place, the female will euer be barren? [o] O Lord, how manifold are thy workes, in wisdome hast thou made them all, the earth is full of thy riches.

I haue said nothing yet of man, by whose wit and industrie the most excellent Arts and noble Sciences haue beene inuented, as well Theoricall as Practicall. Arts Theoricall, are either reall or rationall: among the reals, how wonderfull are the Mathematikes? as Astronomie, Arithmetike, Geometrie: Musicke is the meanest, and yet six notes curiously varied, make an hundred kindes of heauenly sounds that rauish hardest mindes.

[p] And with diuision of a choice deuice,
The hearers soule out of his eares entice.

We reade in holy [q] Bible, that Saul afflicted with an euill spirit, was exceedingly comforted by Dauids playing on his harpe: for so the text, When the malignant spirit came vpon Saul, Dauid tooke an harpe, and played with his hand, and Saul was refreshed

f Prou. 30. 24.

g Lactantius de falsa sapient. cap 10.

h Celius Calcagninus in Encomio Pulicis.

i Ælian. de varia hist lib. 1.

k Hexam. lib. 6. cap 4.

l Epist. 168. quæ est ad Eunomiū. tom. 2 fol. 121.

m Wright passions of the minde, lib. 6. pag. 311.

n Vide Fra. Castorium & Freigium lib. de sympat. & antipat.

o Psal. 104. 24.

p Du Bartas 2. day 1. weeke.

q 1 Sam. 16. 23.

refreshed and eased, for the euill spirit departed from him. [r] Pythagoras once chanced to fall into drunkards companie, where a Musician ruled their lasciuious banquet; he presently commanded him to change his harmony, & to sing a Dorion or graue song, and so with this manner of melody brought them againe to sobriety. Saint [s] Basil reports of Timotheus, that with one kinde of harmony he made Alexander to rise from his friends in the middest of a feast, and to call in a fury for armes, and instantly changing his note, with another kinde of melody he did appease him, and restore him againe quiet vnto his guests: musicke is so powerfull in mouing passion and compassion, that the beggers in [t] Germany demand their almes with a song, according to the prouerbe in Italy:

Thus goe a begging,
The Spaniards cursing,
The French weeping,
The Germanes singing.

And in some places of England passionate women (hereby thinking to stirre vp in the passengers a great deale of pity) vse to sing at the prisons iron grates and gates. It seemeth incredible that the biting of the venemous Tarantula should easily be cured by musicke, yet [u] Alexander ab Alexandro doth affirme, that as he and others of his company trauelled through [x] Apulia in the heat of Summer, and heard Musicians playing vpon diuers instruments in euery village, they enquired the reason, and vnderstood that they were such as cured the Tarantuli; whereupon he and the rest being desirous to see this experiment, dismounted from their horses, and went into an house where one was to be cured, whom they found not only speechlesse, but also senseless in appearance; and yet neuertheless after that the sweet instruments had sounded a while, he began first to moue his hands, and then his legges, in measure, according to the stroake of the musicke, and at length rose vp and danced with a good grace, and when the Musicians ceased to play (as of purpose they did, to shew vnto the beholders the strange nature of that disease) the sicke man fell downe againe as though he had beene dead, and when they returned to their instruments and played againe, he forthwith arose and danced, as before, vntill at length all the poyson wherewith he was infected, was dissipated and dissolued, and he returned to his senses, and recouered perfect health: and the said Author further testifies, that if there be any bitten or venomed and not fully cured, he can neuer forbeare to dance whensoeuer he heareth any musicke. To conclude this point, there is such a proportionate sympathy betweene the minde and musicke, such a secret familiarity (saith [y] Augustine) that all our affections are diuersly moued according to the diuers kinds of harmony.

Among the rationall Arts, are not Logicke and Rhetoricke admirably powerfull, as being able to make quidlibet ex quolibet, euery thing of any thing, stealing away the hearts of men, as [z] Absalon did in Israel, and carrying them vp and downe the Countrey like pitchers by the eares, as [a] Socrates did Alcibiades. Among the practicall Arts, actiue doubtlesse are the best, as accurate skill in Ethickes, Oeconomicks, and the Politickes: yet the factiue sciences haue their excellencies, specially painting and nauigation, in which, Art seemeth a good deale to contend with Nature: for the curious [b] Painter putteth a kinde of life into the dead and senseless creatures, and the cunning Mariner maketh a very blocke, a wooden horse to walke with oares as vpon feet, and to flie with sailes, as vpon wings, [c] Non solum remis quasi pedibus currere, sed etiam velis quasi alis volare docuit.

Consider then O my soule how powerfull and wonderfull Almighty God is euery where: [d] who (Lord) among the gods is like to thee, so glorious in holinesse, so fearefull in praise, so puissant in doing wonders, qui solus facit mirabilia magna, saith our [e] Prophet, which only doth great wonders, as being absolute Lord of al things at all times, in all places; for whatsoeuer vertue the creatures haue, commeth all from aboue, descending from the Father of lights, of whom is euery good and perfect gift, and the creatures hold those vertues at the wil of the Creator only, who can at his bare word turne them al vpside down, making the [f] mountaines to skip like rams, and

[r] Basil hom. de legendis lib. gentilium.

[s] Vbi sup.

[t] Wright passions of the minde, lib 5. pag. 167.

[u] Genial. dierum lib 2. cap. 17.

[x] In the kingdome of Naples in Italy.

[y] Confess. lib. 10. cap. 33.

[z] 2 Sam. 15. 6.

[a] Plutarch. in vita Alcibiad.

[b] See Plin. nat. hist lib. 35 cap. 9. 10 11.

[c] Bellar. de ascen. mentis ad Deum. grad. 8. cap 5.

[d] Exod. 15. 11.

[e] Psal. 136. 4.

[f] Psa. 114. 4. 8.

and the little hils like young sheepe, conuerting the hard rocke into a standing water, and the flint stone into a springing well. Let vs then [g] first and principally seeke the kingdome of God, let vs [h] hunger and thirst after his righteousnesse, [i] like as the Hart desires the water-brookes, euen so let our soule long after him. All of vs are desirous of good things, affecting a good house, good horse, good cattle, good land, good corne. Let vs then earnestly [k] seeke the Lord while he may be found, in whom is all good, as being to such as loue his comming all in all things.

[g] Matth. 6 33.
[h] Matth. 5. 6.
[i] Psal. 42. 1.
[k] Esay 55. 6.

I am in the 5. place to treat of the creatures beauty, concerning which our Prophet saith in the 9. Psalme, verse 4. Thou Lord hast made me glad through thy workes, and I will reioyce in giuing praise for the operations of thy hands. And surely if euery good thing be beautifull, euery creature being good hath his beauty. [l] Three things are comely saith Salomon in their going, a Lion which is strong among beasts a lusty greyhound, and a goat. The beautie of a well dressed garden, of a greene medow, pleasant wood, calme Sea, serene aire, cleare fountaines, are wonderfull. The beauties of trees adorned in the Spring with blossomes, in Autume laden with fruits, are wonderfull. The beauties of the Sunne, and Moone, and Starres, are wonderfull. The beauties of men and women are wonderfull: the sonnes of God saw that the daughters of men were faire, Gen. 6. 2. so faire, that [m] many haue perished by the beautie of women, as Dauid, Salomon, Sampson, and infinite other.

[l] Prou. 30. 9.
[m] Eccles. 9. 8.

Consider then, O my soule, how wonderfull and excellent Almightie God, is in beautie, from whom all these beauties are deriued. Vaine men, ignorant of God, imagined the fire, or the winde, or the swift aire, or the course of the starres, or the raging water, or the lights of heauen, to be gouernours of the world and gods: but saith the [n] Wiseman, Though they had such pleasure in their beautie that they thought them gods, yet should they haue knowne how much more excellent he is that made them; for the first author of beautie created them all. If his name be thus excellent in the world, where we see him only but in a [o] glasse, to wit, the glasse of his creatures, and in the glasse of his Scriptures: then how superexcellent will his beautie seeme, when as we shall enioy his presence face to face, beholding him in his Angels, in his Saints; in his Sonne, in himselfe? When we shall in his kingdome sit with him at his table, we shall abundantly be [p] satisfied with the fulnesse of his house, and filled with the riuers of his pleasures. How beautifull and amiable shall our dwelling be vpon Gods holy mountaine, where the firmament we now behold adorned with Sunne, and Moone, and Starres, shining more gloriously than all the precious stones in the world, shall be nothing else but the nether side of the pauement of our palace.

[n] Wisd. 13. 3.
[o] 1. Cor. 13. 12.
[p] Psal. 36. 8.

Out of the mouth of very babes and sucklings] These words, as [q] some thinke, containe an obiection; If Gods excellent name fill the whole world, and if his glory be set aboue the heauens, how commeth it to passe that all men acknowledge it not? Answer is made, that the Lord wil not be praised by the proud, who presume too much vpon their owne strength and vertue, but by the mouth of very babes and sucklings, euen such as are become [r] little children, and as it were [s] fooles for Christs sake, the humble and meeke, according to that of Christ, Matth. 11. 25. I giue thee thanks, O Father, Lord of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise, and men of vnderstanding, and hast opened them vnto babes. And Mat. 21. 16. Haue ye neuer read, out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou hast perfited praise? Where [t] Diuines obserue, that by babes is meant such as in the worlds eie seeme base, such humble confessors as the worldly wise repute children and fooles: for by the preaching of silly Fishermen, Almightie God did still the enemie and auenger, [u] that is, [x] he confounded the wisdome of the profound Phylosophers and great disputers of the world, he set them all at a non plus, so that their vnderstanding was hid, Esay 29. 14. and while they professed themselues to be wise they became fooles, Rom. 1. 22. so simple [y] women, and vnlearned [z] striplings in the dayes of Q. Marie, did still the persecuting enemie, that is, stop his mouth in such sort, that he had nothing many times to say, but away with the heretike, a fagot for the heretike, knocking them downe with axes of condemnatorie sentences. [a] Eusebius telleth a strange storie, how an idiot, that is, a man of small wit, and lesse knowledge, disputing with a subtile Philosopher, [q] Bellarm.

[r] Matth. 18. 3.
[s] 1. Cor. 14. 10.
[t] Hilarius. Aretius. Idem Mollerus. Strigelius Tileman in loc.
[u] Bellarm.
[x] 1 Cor. 1. 19.
[y] Fox Martyr. fol. 1734. 1858. 1859.
[z] Fol. 1474. 1788.
[a] Church hom. for Whitsund. parsn.

an egregious enemie to Christ and his faith, in fine brought him to such a point, that he could not chuse, but acknowledge the power of God in his words, and to giue place to truth: a great many iudicious Bishops affected this victorie before, but none could effect it, vntill it pleased the Lord out of the mouth of a very babe to perfect his praise.

[b] Other Doctors expound the words of Christ, vrged out of this text, of babes in yeeres, and so Christ [c] elsewhere saith in the like sense, I tell you, that if these should hold their peace, the stones would crie: for when ordinarie meanes are wanting, he can by miracles extraordinarie perfect his praise. So some Diuines vnderstand this verse,

[d] Infantum, res mira, tuum sermonibus hostem
Conteris, & linguæ simplicis arte necas.

Or as Theodore Beza,

—— qui matrum ex vbere pendent,
E lingues pueri (dictu mirabile) vires
Immensas, numenq; tuum muto ore fatentur.

[e] As if the Prophet should haue said, the Lord needs not eloquent tongues of exquisite Rhetoricians to set forth his power and prouidence in gouerning the world, because the mouthes of very babes and sucklings are sufficient to make perfect his praise. For the [f] sucking of babes, [g] and speaking of infants, are both euident demonstrations of his strength and excellent name. For who taught the babe to sucke, or the dumbe to speak, but he which is the Lord our Gouernour? Beside these two pregnant instances, [h] all things in gouernment of children are full of wonder, especially their bad parents indulgent care to nourish them, and affectionate loue to humour them; for albeit their cryings are troublesome in the night, and their vncleanlinesse loathsome in the day, yet parents are content to suffer all that, and with a kinde of pleasure to serue them in the lowest office. The which occasioned our blessed Sauiour to say, Matth. 7.11. If ye which are euill, afford your children good gifts, how much more shall your father in heauen giue good things to them that aske him.?

The translation of Abenezra, initium fecisti, cannot be so good as that of Christ, Matth. 21.16. perfeciſti: for (as [i] Martin Bucer well obserues) Almightie God begins his power and prouidence towards infants in their mothers wombe, before they be striplings or sucklings in the world: He (saith our [b] Prophet elsewhere) beholds their substance yet being imperfect, and all their members are written in his booke, which day by day were fashioned, when as yet there was none of them. O Lord, my reines are thine, my bones are not hid from thee, thou hast couered me in my mothers wombe, though I be made secretly, yet fearefully, and wonderfully; maruellous are thy workes, ô Lord our Gouernour, in the curious framing of children vnborne, but when once they be brought forth into the world, and beginne to sucke and speake, thou doest [l] establish and confirme thy strong praise by their mouth, vnto the confusion of the enemie and auenger.

The deuill, in the iudgement of [m] S. Hierome, is this enemie and auenger: enemie, in enticing men to sinne; and then auenger, in playing the hangman and executioner in the punishing of sinne. [n] Other haply better expound this of Atheists, impudently denying Gods high and holy prouidence, who say that Gods excellent name gouernes not the whole world, and that the heauens are not the works of his fingers. These wretches are called enemies to God, as fighting against his power and praise, like the Giants in old time.

Qui manibus magnis rescindere cœlum
Aggressi, superisq; Iouem detrudere regnis.

And they be called auengers, [o] in that they persecute the friends of God, according to that of our [p] Prophet, thou makest vs to be a by-word among the heathen, and that the people shake their heads, my confusion is daily before me, and the shame of my face hath couered me, for the voice of the slanderer and blasphemer, for the enemie and auenger. Or termed auengers, [q] as reuenging their owne quarrell, and not leauing vengeance to the Lord, to whom alone it belongeth, Rom. 12.19. he that [b] Chrysost. Theophylact. Euthym. Maldonat. in Matth. 21.16.

[c] Luke 19.40.
[d] Eobanus Hessus.
[e] Calvin.
[f] Kimchi.
[g] Abenezra.
[h] Bucer.
[i] In loc.
[k] Psal 139 15.
[l] Vulgar. Latin. perfeciſti. Bucer, confirmasti Munster, fundasti, id est, stabilem declarasti. Rob. Stephan & Agellius.
[m] In loc. Idem Athanasius & Hesychius apud Agellium in loc. & Iacob. de Valentia in loc.
[n] Bucer. Steuchus.
[o] R. Stephan. Agellius in loc.
[p] Psal. 44.15.
[q] Bucer. Ro. Stephan. Wilcox.

that will out of reuengefull humour recompence to his neighbour euill for euill, and not giue place to wrath, is an enemie to God, as breaking into Gods office, who saith in his word, [r] vengeance is mine, and I will repay saith the Lord. Atheists and Heathens acknowledging no God, or else conceiuing if there be a God, that he cares not for the things of this world, reuenge their owne cause; but Christians (who sing, O Lord our Gouernour, how excellent is thy name in all the world) must [f] ouercome euill with goodnesse, and so much as in them is, haue peace with all men. See Epist. 3. Sund after Epiphanie.

Babes and Sucklings abundantly confound auengers, by their humblenesse and harmlesnesse: for they being iniured, take not any reuenge, but only make complaint either to their father or mother: hereby teaching other of greater yeeres not to render [t] euill for euill, or rebuke for rebuke; but that we should only make our cause knowen vnto God our Father in heauen, and the Church our mother on earth: according to this sense [u] S. Paul exhorteth vs to be like children, not in vnderstanding, but as concerning maliciousnesse like to little children, innocentia & ignoscentia, being neither enemies in doing other wrong, nor auengers in requiting wrong done to themselues. See Gospell on Michaelmas day.

For I will consider the heauens] Or as [x] other translations, according to the Hebrew, thy heauens, as hauing his [y] seat, and as manifesting himselfe to blessed soules and Angels [z] in heauen, and to vs men in glorie from heauen, especially, Psal. 19 1. 1. Thess. 4. 16. [a] or the heauens are his, as being the workes of his fingers, created and ordered by him, and in calling them his workes, and the works of his fingers, he doth insinuate [b] that they be noble, curious, and exactly wrought, and therefore [c] when I consider the heauens in order so wonderfull, in trime so beautifull, in time so durable: [d] then ô Lord I am constrained to say, what is base, sorrie, fraile man, that thou art mindfull of him, or the sonne of man, that thou visitest him? [e] it had beene sufficient for thee to shew thy glorious excellencie shining in the heauens, euen in the Moone and starres which thou hast ordained; thou needest not to come so low as man, or his posteritie, which is dust and ashes.

[f] Here then obserue two points especially:
1. The baseneſſe of man, in the clause, what is man?
2. The dignitie of man, in that the Lord is mindfull of him, and visiteth him, making him only lower than Angels, and Lord ouer all the rest of his creatures.

Concerning the former, in this sense the word Man is often vsed elsewhere, for so S. Paul, Rom. 9 20. But, ô man, what art thou, who pleadest against God? As if he should haue said (as Cyprian once to Demetrian) vt Deum cognoscere possis, teipsum ante cognosce, consider how base thy selfe art in respect of God, as clay in the hand of the potter; and then I thinke thou wilt not enter into dispute with thy Creator: so when the men of Licaonia would haue worshipped the blessed Apostles for gods, [g] Paul and Barnabas answered and said; why doe you these things? we are euen men, subiect to the like passions that ye be: So S. Peter in the like case to Cornelius, Acts 10. 26. I my selfe am a man. So Dauid in the very next Psalme at the last verse, Put them, O Lord, in feare, that the heathen may know themselues to be but men. The word as here, so there, is Enosh, [h] signifying a sorie and sillie man. According to this acception of the word Man, it is reported that Philip King of Macedon commanded his Page to put him in minde euery morning that he was a man, that is, (as [i] Epictetus the Philosopher told Hadrian the Emperour) infœlicitatis tabula, calamitatis fabula, the map of miseries, and as it were the tale of Troy. That any man is miserable, let it suffice (quoth Menander) that he is a man. And [k] Seneca to the same purpose, Quemcunq; miserum videris, hominem scias: and therefore the [l] first voice that is vttered by the new borne infant is crying, hereby prophecying that he is come into a world full of care and calamities. [m] Homo dolens quod homo sit, erubescens quod nudus sit, plorans quod natus sit, murmurans quod sit corpore fragili, mente sterili: Zoroastes only laughed at his birth, and yet he found matter enough of sorrow both at his death, and in his whole life. To speake more distinctly, man is called [r] Deut 32 35. Hebr. 10. 30.

[f] Rom. 12. 22.
[t] 1. Pet. 3. 9.
[u] 1 Cor 14. 20.
[x] Munster. Vatablus. Vulgar Latine, and our latter translation in
[y] Psal. 11. 4.
[z] Matth 18. 10.
[a] Bellarmin. Wilcox.
[b] Placidus dignora quæ propriis manibus artifex operatur & subtiliora, quæ digitorum distinctione.
[c] The aduerbe ki may be taken for quando so well as quoniam, Steuchus in loc. So our latter translation, & the Geneua, when I consider [d] Bucer. Mollerus. Caluin.
[e] Geneua glosse.
[f] Cassiodorus.
[g] Acts 14. 15.
[h] Vide Lorin. in Act. 10. Bucer. Musculus. Caluin in loc.
[i] Altercat. Hadriani & Epicteti.
[k] In Her furent.
[l] Cyprian. ser. de bono patientiæ. Idem Plato in Axiocho, & August. ser. 31. ad fratres in eremo.
[m] Bernard. de consideral. lib. 2. cap. 9.
[n] Promptuarium Ion. part. 1. pag. 12.

earth in one verse thrice, Ierem. 22, 29. O earth, earth, earth, heare the word of the Lord, that is, as *Bernard, and other haue construed it, earth by { Procreation. / Sustentation. / Corruption.

Earth by procreation, for the first man is called Adam, that is, red earth, of the dust of the ground made he man, Gen. 2. 7. and the Patriarch Abraham acknowledging the baseneſſe of his beginning, said vnto the Lord, I am but dust and ashes, Gen. 18. 27. Now God made this earth of which he made man of nothing, according to the text, In the beginning God created the heauen, and the earth, he made not this heauen and earth of another heauen and earth, but he created both, as hauing nothing but nothing, wherewith, and whereby to build this goodly frame: and so consequently proud man in respect of his materials is brought vnto nothing, as our Prophet in another place, Man is like a thing of naught. And S. Paul Galat. 6 3. If any man seeme to himselfe that he is something, when he is nothing, he deceiueth himselfe in his imagination.

Adam begat Cain and Abel, Gen. 4. Cain signifieth possession, Abel mourning, or vanitie, to teach vs, that the possessions of men are vexation and vanitie, yea vanitie of vanities, and extreme vanitie, Eccles. 1. 2. and as Adam begat sonnes like to himselfe, so his sonnes also sonnes like to themselues, of a loathsome excrement, carried in those members of the bodie which are lesse honourable, couered and made fearefully, brought forth into the world with intolerable paine, so vile, so foule, Vt puer natus occiso magis quàm nato similis videatur. I spare to speake what I haue read, and euery wife, especially midwife, knoweth; only giue me leaue to cry out with our Prophet, What is man?

2. Man is earth, in respect of sustentation, and that ratione victus & vestitus, in regard of aliment and indument, meat and apparell. It is truly said by the Philosophers, ex quibus constamus, ex iisdem nutrimur, elementa sunt alimenta, vbi incipimus accipimus. All meats for our bodies in health, all medicines for the same being sicke, are earth and earthly. We feed on the things of earth, and walke on earth, and sleepe on earth. As for apparrell and ornament, we borrow wooll of the sheepe, haire of the Cammell, silke of the worme, muske of the mountaine Cat, furres of the beasts, and feathers of the fowles, like vnto Æsops Crow, hauing some plume from euery bird, something from euery creature: flowers are richly decked, plants with an infinite varietie of coloured leaues adorned, beasts with houes, and hornes, and other goodly weapons are well armed: fishes with handsome scales are comely couered: only man, vnhappy base man is borne to nothing but beggerie and rascalitie, so that we may still exclaime with our Prophet, What is man?

3. As man in respect of his beginning and proceeding is earth, euen so dust and earth in his end; for the Lord himselfe denounced, out of it wast thou taken, thou art dust, and to dust againe thou shalt returne. And then he shall be terra à terendo, because euery one shall tread on him, a liuing Dog is better than a dead Lion, euery Therſites will insult ouer Hector, and euery scrub runne vpon Achilles, euery childe is ready to mangle the strong Oake when it is fallen, and he that durst not looke Cæsar in the face, is now bold to pull him by the beard. Our bodies are not only houses of clay, Iob 4. 19 but as they be earthly, so tabernacles, 2. Cor. 5. 1. set vp this day, and haply taken downe the next. And therefore Diuines obserue, that the yeeres of man are termed in holy Scripture, dayes, as the dayes of Noe, the dayes of Lot, the dayes of Elias, because they liued but a few dayes; as the Patriarke Iacob few and euill haue beene the dayes of my pilgrimage. And the Chronicles are termed by some Translators, verba dierum, as concerning diaries of men, who liued not many yeeres but a few dayes, for after all their glorious acts, (occubuit cum patribus, he slept with his Fathers, and was buried in their Sepulchre, is the conclusion in the storie) the end of some noble King is the end of euery Chapter almost in the Kings.

Albeit time may be diuided into past, present, and future: yet Plato the best Diuine among the Philosophers, and Augustine the best Philosopher among the Diuines • Cap. 3. meditat.

---

P Iosephus antiquit. lib. 1. c. 2.

q See Bellar de ascensione mentis ad Deum, grad. 1. cap 3.

r Psal. 144 4.

s Iosephus vbi sup. cap. 3.
t Caluin. in Gen 4. u Isidorus Hispalensis.
x Leuit. 15 24. Esay 64. 6.
y 1. Cor. 12. 23.
z Psal 139. 12. 13.
a Plutarch. com. de amore prolu.

b Their houses are so surely seeled, and as it were tiled with scales, that no wind can come between them. Iob 41. 7.

c Plutarch com. de fortuna.

d Gen 3. 19.

e Eccles. 9. 4.

f Theodorus Bibliander, lib. de ratione temporũ. See Psal. 90. 14 Gen. 5. vers 5. 8. 11. Iob 42. 17.

g Gen. 47. 9.

h In Timæo.

i Confess. lib. 11. cap. 14 15.

Diuines, are both of opinion, that there is no time belonging eſſentially to our life, but ipſum nunc, euen the very now, becauſe the time paſt is certainly gone, and the future time vncertainly to come. And therefore Chriſt inioyned vs to pray, giue vs this day our daily bread, not this age, or moneth, or weeke, but only this day, becauſe we may not care for to morrow, Matth. 6. 34. [k] Boaſt not thy ſelfe of to morrow, for thou knoweſt not what a day may bring forth. All fleſh is graſſe, (ſaith [l] Eſay) that is, aut gramen, aut ſtramen, graſſe withered, or greene: O foole, this night thy ſoule may be fetched from thee, and ſo thou ſhalt haue no need of daily bread to morrow. Ioſia was a vertuous Gouernour, 2. King. 23. and yet he had but his time, in temporibus Ioſiæ Amonis filij, Ierem. 1. 2. Noe was an vpright man in his time, Geneſ. 6. 9. and yet he had but his time, in the dayes of Noe, 1. Pet. 3. 20. Herod was a mightie man, and yet he had but his time, in the time of Herod King of Iudæa, Luk. 1. 5. And albeit [m] Daniel prophecied of one which ſhould haue a time and a time, and halfe a time; yet as it appeareth in the [n] Reuelation of S. Iohn, all is but a time, and that a ſhort time too, for although Antichriſt exalt himſelfe aboue [o] all that is called God, yet he ſhall one day periſh as a [p] man, he came from earth, and notwithſtanding his double honour, and triple Crowne, he muſt againe returne to duſt, and ſee corruption in the graue.

O earth, earth earth, heare the word of the Lord, remember what thou waſt, and what thou art, and what thou ſhalt be: thou waſt in thy beginning [q] ſperma fœtidum, a wretch, a worme conceiued and borne in ſinne: thou art now ſaccus ſtercorum, a ſacke full of durt, and thou ſhalt be cibus vermium, a bait and a banquet for the wormes. In thy beginning thou waſt nothing, and now nothing worth, and if thou repent not of thy ſinnes hereafter, in hazard to be worſe than nothing. Conceiued in originall ſinne, now full of actuall ſinne, and if thou continue ſtill in thy wickedneſſe, thou maiſt one day feele the eternall ſmart of ſinne, [r] Genitus in immunditia, viuens in miſeria, moriturus in anguſtia, begot in vncleanneſſe, liuing in vnhappineſſe, dying in anguſh and vncomfortableneſſe. Remember O man, and the ſonne of man, [s] whence thou cameſt, and bluſh; where thou art, and lament; whither thou muſt, and tremble. Brag not of thy birth, or worth, of any thing thou haſt beene, art, or may be; for in reſpect of thy baſe, weake, fraile fleſh, thou waſt a clod of earth, art a clog of earth, and in in fine ſhall become nothing but a coffin of earth vnder the ground. [t] The graue ſhall be thy houſe, and thou ſhalt make thy bed in the darke, thou ſhalt ſay to corruption, thou art my father, and to the worme, thou art my mother and ſiſter. [u] Caro reſoluitur in putredinem, putredo in vermem, vermis in puluerem, our fleſh reſolueth into filthineſſe, and filthineſſe into wormes, and wormes into duſt.

Sic redit in nihilum quod fuit ante nihil.

Let vs oppoſe now mans dignitie to his baſeneſſe as an antidote, for albeit man in reſpect of his beginning may be reduced to nothing, yet he was made by the Lord who created all things, and that after a more noble manner than other things: for 1. When Almightie God made light, he ſaid only, Let there be light, and there was light; and when he made herbes, he ſaid only, Let the ground bring forth the bud of the herbe, and the ground inſtantly brought forth the bud of the herbe, he ſpake the word and it was done, he commanded and it was created, Pſal. 33. 9. but when he made man, he breathed as it were himſelfe, as [x] Albinus notes, and as [y] Clemens Alexandrinus, and other Doctors generally, he held a councill in his heauenly Palace, ſaying to God the Sonne, and God the Holy Ghoſt, Let vs make man.

[z] Cumq́, omnia verbo
Conderet, hunc manibus quo plus genitoris haberet
Dignatur formare ſuis.

2. The dignitie of mans creation is much amplified by the circumſtance of time wherein he was created, and that was after all other things were made: now [a] ſerum conciliũm, is ſerium, and vſually the laſt workes of a cunning Artificer are moſt abſolute, and therefore [b] Saint Ambroſe doth obſerue, that God hauing framed man according to his likeneſſe, reſted himſelfe and made holiday: he made birds flying in the aire, fiſh ſwimming in the ſea, wormes creeping on the ground, and

[k] Prou. 27. 1.
[l] Cap 40 ver 6
[m] Dan. 7. 27. & 12. 7.
[n] Cap 10 v. 6.
[o] 2. Theſſ. 2. 4.
[p] Pſal. 82. 7.
[q] Bernard. medit. cap 3.
[r] Auguſt ſoliloq. cap. 2.
[s] Bernard.
[t] Iob 17. 13. 14
[u] Claudius Plexmontius in ſpec. de pœnitent. part. 2. cap. 2.
[x] Quæſt. in Gen.
[y] Padagog. lib. cap. 3. Idem. Ambroſ. de dignitat. condit. human cap. 1.
[z] Proſper. lib. de prouident. Dei, citant. Magdeburg. cent. 5. col. 244. Hoc hominis ſpeciale decus.
[a] Apuleius floridorum lib. 3 in curſu velocior, in conſilio tardior vincit. Col. Calcagninus in diſt. mural.
[b] Hexam. lib. 6. cap. vlt.

Yet he did not rest: he made flowers of the field, which are more beautifull in the spring than Salomon in all his royalty, but yet he did not rest; he made the glorious lights of heauen, as the Sunne, and Moone, and Starres, and yet he did not rest: but assoone as he had made man, he rested and hallowed a Sabbath, as hauing made him for whom all other things are made, [c] parauit inprimis domum & deinde Dominum: or he rested as hauing now framed one creature, wherein are contained all the perfections of the rest, in this respect aptly termed a little world, an abridgement of the creatures, and an Index as it were to Gods great booke in folio.

3. Whereas the likenesse of God in other creatures (as the [d] Schoole speakes) is found only per modum vestigij, the likenesse of God is in man per modum Imaginis. The which (haply lest we should doubt of it) is repeated in one verse twice, [e] thus God created the man in his Image, In the Image of God created he him. The Heauens are called in this hymne, the workes of his fingers, and other creatures the workes of his hands: but only Christ is properly his Image, and only the [f] resonable creature fashioned according to his Image.

So likewise though man in respect of his substance may be termed earth, yet hath he dominion ouer the things vpon earth, all of them are put in subiection vnder his feet, and he may vse them as well for his delight as necessity: his Hound may first hunt the Bucke, and his Hawke kill the Bird for his [g] recreation, and then he may feed on both for his sustentation. He may put on [h] apparell not only for necessity, but also for comelinesse, according to his qualitie: as he may sow his fields for prouision of ordinary bread, so may he plant Orchards of great delight, and eat the fruit of them, he may vse wine to glad his heart, and oyle to make him a cheerefull countenance, Psal. 104. 15.

Lastly, though man in respect of his mortality be called earth and ashes, yet his blessed Sauiour shall at the last day raise his [i] vile body out of the dust, and make it like his glorious body: though in this world a little while lower than Angels, at the resurrection of the dead, he shall be [k] as the Angels of heauen: Almightie God is mindfull of him, and so mindfull as that he visited him, and that not only by his Prophets and Preachers as it were his Proxies, but in his owne person he became [l] flesh and dwelt among vs, he so visited man extremely sicke to death, as that he [m] redeemed him, and deliuering him out of the hands of all his enemies, he crowned him with honour and glory.

And here let vs obserue why the Church allotted this Hymne for this high and holy Feast, God our Gouernour by Christs [n] ascending vp an high and leading captiuity captiue, set his glory aboue the heauens, for Christ is the character of his person and brightnesse of his glory, Hebr. 1. 3. Christ also doing extraordinarie workes of might and mercy, had his praise perfited by the mouth of babes and sucklings, Mat. 21. 16. and albeit in the dayes of his flesh, he [o] humbled himselfe, and [p] as hauing a mortall and passible body, was a little deale (at least at his [q] passion a little [r] while) lower then Angels; yet God was alway mindfull of him, and visited him, and crowned him with honour and glory. For when he had triumphed ouer death, hell, and the graue, God gaue him [s] all power in heauen and earth, he made him Lord ouer the workes of his hands, and put all things in subiection vnder his feet, as Saint Paul expounds this Hymne, Heb, 2. 6. 7. 8. and 1. Cor. 15. 27. what is anagogically meant by sheepe and oxen, beasts of the field, fish in the sea, See S. Augustine, Euthym, D. Incognit, Bellarmin, Iacob, de Valen. Genebrard. in loc.

Adam in his integrity was made Lord ouer the beasts of the field, fowles of the aire, fish in the sea, by right of his [t] creation; and the sonnes of Adam haue no true Title to the things of this world, but in right of their recreation. As Christ is [u] heire of all things, euen so they which are engrafted in him are before God owners of all things. He that hauing lost Gods Image [x] puts on the new man (which after God is created in righteousnesse and true holinesse) hath in Christ, and for Christ all things in subiection vnder his feet, all sheepe and oxen, all beasts and birds, and whatsoeuer walketh thorow the paths of the seas, euen all are his, and he Christs, and Christ Gods, as the blessed Apostle, sweetly, 1. Cor. 3. 22, 23.

PSAL.

[c] Albinus qua. in Gen.

[d] Aquinas par. 1. quæst. 93. art. 6.

[e] Gen 1. 27.

[f] See S. Augustine de Gen. ad lit. l. 6. cap. 12. & Lombard. 2. sent. dist. 16.

[g] Deering loc. 2. in Heb

[h] Church hom. against excesse of apparell.

[i] Phil 3. 21.

[k] Matth 22. 30.

[l] Iohn 1. 14.

[m] Luke 1. 68.

[n] Ephes. 4. 8.

[o] Phil. 2. 8.

[p] Euthym. Placidus Turrecremat.

[q] Tremellius. Genebrard.

[r] For the Hebrew word signifies a little while, Psal. 37. 6 so well as a little deale 1. Sam. 14. 29.

[s] Mat. 28. 18.

[t] Gen. 1. 26.

[u] Heb. 1. 2.

[x] Ephes. 4. 24.

PSALME 15.

Lord who shall dwell in thy Tabernacle, or who shall rest vpon thy holy hill?

THis Psalme is [y] a Psalme of doctrine, wherein our Prophet sets downe the true character of a sound Christian or Catholique, seeking God in the Church on earth, and seeing God in the kingdome of heauen:

[y] Tremellius.

It is deliuered in forme of a Dialogue betweene the Prophet and the Lord, and so consequently consisting of two parts:

- Dauids [z] question in the first verse, wherein obserue
  - 1. What is asked, Who shall dwell in thy Tabernacle? Who shall rest vpon thy holy hill?
  - 2. Of whom it is asked, and that is not any man, but God himselfe, Lord who shall, &c.
- Gods answer in the rest of the Psalme, shewing by what remarkable notes a liuely member of the Church is discerned in
  - Generall, verse. 2. Vpright in thought. Iust in deed. True in word.
  - More particular,
    - In himselfe, as being no
      - Deceiuer.
      - Slanderer.
      - Truce-breaker.
      - Vsurer.
      - Briber, or worker of other euill against his neighbour.
    - Eschewing euill
      - Hindering it so far as he can in other, entertaining no false report against his neighbour.
    - Doing good, being
      - Lowly in his owne eyes.
      - Louing toward all other in Gods house, making much of them that feare the Lord.

[z] Eusebius, Fra. Tileman.

[a] Or more briefly, the second verse containes all duties of the first table concerning pietie toward God, and the rest all duties of the second table touching charitie toward our neighbours.

[a] Melanchon. Strigelius. Tilaman.

Lord who shall] The disguising and counterfetting of [b] hypocrites in all ages, occasioned haply this quære: for as [c] S. Paul speakes, all are not Israel which are of Israel, a great many liuing in the Church are not of the Church, according to that of the Doctors vpon this place, [d] multi sunt corpore qui non sunt fide, [e] multi nomine qui non sunt nomine. Wherefore Dauid here perceiuing that sundry people were shuffled into Gods tabernacle like goats among the sheepe, and tares among the corne, being Iewes outwardly but not inwardly, deceiuing other often, and sometime themselues also with a bare profession of Religion and false opinion of true pietie; commeth vnto God (as to the searcher and trier of the hearts of men, acquainted with all secrets, and best vnderstanding [g] who are his owne) saying vnto him, O Lord, for so much as there is so much vnsoundnesse and hypocrisie reigning among those that dwell

[b] Caluin.
[c] Rom. 9. 6.
[d] Hieron.
[e] Turrecremat.
[f] Rom. 2 28.
[g] 2. Tim. 2. 19.

dwell in thy Tabernacle, professing thy word, and frequenting the places of thy worship: I beseech thee most humbly to declare to thy people some tokens and cognizances by which a true subiect of thy kingdome may be discerned from the children of this[h] world.

[h] Luke 16.8.
[i] Calvin.

Here then obserue that an externall profession of the faith, and outward communion with the Church of God is not sufficient vnto saluation, vnlesse we leade an vncorrupt life correspondent to the same, doing the thing which is right, and speaking the truth in our heart. And therefore the silly Papist is exceedingly deceiued in relying so much vpon the Churches out-side, to wit, vpon the succession of Romane Bishops, vpon the multitudes of Romane Catholiques, vpon the power and pompe of the Romane Synagogue, crying as the Iewes in old time, [k] The Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord, our Church is the Temple of the Lord. The carnall and careless Gospeller is deceiued also, placing all his religion in the formall obseruation of outward seruice, for a meere verball Christian is a reall Atheist, according to that of S. Paul, Tit. 1.16. In word they professe that they know God, but in their workes they denie him, and so many who seeme to soiourne in Gods Tabernacle for a time, shall neuer rest vpon his holy hill: and this assertion is expresly confirmed by [l] Christ himselfe, Not euery one (saith he) that saith vnto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdome of heauen, but he that doth the will of my Father which is in heauen. Many shall say vnto me in that day, Lord, Lord, haue we not propheſied in thy name, and cast out deuils in thy name, and done great wonders in thy name? and then will I professe vnto them, saying, I know you not, depart from me you workers of iniquitie. Consider this all ye which are Christians [m] in lip only, but not in life, making a [n] maske of Religion, or rather a very vizard with eyes, and mouth, and nose fairely painted and proportioned to all pretences and purposes. O thinke on this all yee that forget God, he that dwelleth on high, and beholds the things here below, suffers none to rest vpon the mountaine of his holinesse, but such as walke vprightly, doing that which is iust, and speaking that which is true.

[k] Ierem. 7.4.
[l] Mat. 7.21.22.
[m] Bradford letter to the towne of Walden.
[n] Relation of Religion, Sect. 43.

Concerning the parts of this question, I finde that some [o] Diuines expound both members of the Church militant, and that [p] other interpret both of the Church triumphant: but I subscribe to [q] their iudgement who construe the first part of the militant, and the second of the triumphant: for the Prophet alludeth vnto the materiall Tabernacle called in holy Scripture, the Tabernacle of the [r] Congregation, and to the mount Moriah where the Temple was placed, 2. Chron. 3.1. the one whereof as being a portable and mouable house, was a type of the Church militant vpon earth, and the other as being an immouable seat, was a figure of the Church triumphant in heauen. I say then (and yet not I, but Augustine, Chrysostome, Mollerus, and other learned Expositors, as well ancient as moderne) that by soiourning in the Tabernacle, is meant the short and transitorie pilgrimage of Christians vpon earth, as in a strange land: and by dwelling in the mountaine of God, is vnderstood their perpetuall and eternall rest in heauen, as in their owne Countrey. Of these two first I purpose to treat seuerally, then afterward ioyntly.

[o] Placidus. Parmen. Tileman.
[p] Steuchus. Genebrard. Bellarmin.
[q] Augustin. Chrysost. Euthym. Mollerus. Tremellius.
[r] Exod. 39.32.

[s] Basil, and [t] Euthymius by tabernacle vnderstand our flesh, called by Paul, 2. Cor. 5.1. the earthly house of our tabernacle, for our bodies are not only [u] tabernacles, but also [x] temples of God. as if our Prophet should haue said, Lord, who is he, which hauing soiourned as a stranger in this flesh of ours, shall in fine rest with thee in thine heauenly kingdome? This exposition is godly, teaching vs that those who shall enioy rest euerlasting vpon Gods holy mountaine, doe liue like pilgrims in his house of [y] clay, mortyfying their [z] earthly members, and [a] vsing the world as if they vsed it not. [b] Arnobius doth apply this vnto Christ, he dwelt among vs in this earthly tabernacle, casting out of it, all such as vsed in it vnlawfull merchandize, conuerting that which our vile nature had made [c] a den of theeues, into an house of prayer: he purged it of all abuses, and fulfilled in it [d] all righteousnesse: he led an incorrupt life, [e] which of you (said he to his greatest enemies) can rebuke me of sinne? he did the thing that is right, many good works (as he told the Iewes) I haue shewed you, for which of these doe ye stone me? he spake the truth from his heart, vsing no deceit in his tongue:

[s] In loc.
[t] In loc.
[u] 2. Pet. 1.13. 14.
[x] 2. Cor. 6.19.
[y] Iob 4.19.
[z] Coloss. 3.5.
[a] 1. Cor 7.31.
[b] In loc.
[c] Mat. 21.13.
[d] Matth. 3.15.
[e] Ioh 8.46.

tongue: for as the [f] Prophet and [g] Apostle too witnesse of him, he did no wickednesse, neither was there guile found in his mouth: he put not out his money to biting vsurie, but imployed his talent to the best vse, raising the dead, and curing the diseased without any fee, giuing his Disciples power to performe the lik, with this caueat [h] freely yee haue receiued, freely giue. Wherefore God exalted him highly, saith [i] Paul, after he had soiourned in this earthly Tabernacle more than thirtie yeeres, a [k] cloud vpon this day, tooke him vp into Gods holy hill, euen the highest heauens, and there he reigneth and resteth at the right hand of his Father, vntill the time come that all things be restored, Acts 3,21.

[f] Esay 53.9.
[g] 1.Pet.2.22.
[h] Matth.10.8.
[i] Philip.2.9.
[k] Acts 1.9.

Thus our flesh is a Tabernacle because fitting, this day set vp, and haply to morrow pulled downe: and it is Gods Tabernacle, [l] because God himselfe built it, [m] let vs make man: and because God himselfe sometime dwelt in it, In the beginning was the Word, and the Word in the [n] fulnesse of time was made flesh, and dwelt among vs, and we behold the glory thereof, as the glory of the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth, Ioh.1.14.

[l] Euthym.
[m] Gen.1.26.
[n] Gal.4.4.

Other Interpreters (as I haue said) vnderstand by Tabernacle heauen, elsewhere so called and not vnfitly, seeing the Lord stretched out the heauens as a curtaine, and spreads them out as a tent to dwell in, Psal.104.2. Esay 4.22. but as[o] Augustine notes, howsoeuer the word Tabernacle be sometimes vsed figuratiuely for heauen; yet it more properly signifieth a military mansion or tent in warre. Secondly, the word peregrinabitur (as the same father obserues acutely) doth apparently crosse his exposition and sense, for heauen is not a transitory tent to soiourne in a little while, but as the Scripture speakes, [p] an euerlasting habitation, [q] a kingdome that cannot be shaken [r] an eternall rest, an inheritance which is immortall and neuer fadeth away, 1.Pet. 1.4. Tabernacle then imports this part of the Church which is militant vpon earth, and holy mountaine that other part which is triumphant in heauen.

[o] In loc.
[p] Luke 16.9
[q] Heb.12.28.
[r] Apoc.14.13.

Now whereas the spirit termes the Church of God on earth a Tabernacle, we learne first that the life of a Christian (as[s] Iob speakes) is a warfare, and that he must as he vowed in holy Baptisme, fight vnder Christs banner against the [u] world, the flesh & the deuill. It is reported of[x] Ehud, that he slew King Eglon with a two edged dagger: euen so we must encounter such as[y] fight against our soule with a two edged weapon, holy faith, and heartie repentance. For seeing the deuill our aduersarie goeth about as a roaring Lion, seeking whom he may deuoure, 1.Pet.5.8. seeing the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, Gal.5.17. seeing the word, partly by vaine desires thereof, and partly by lewd example, carrieth vs away to serue[z] Mammon, and to [a] minde earthly things: seeing we haue [b] fightings without and terrors within: it behoueth vs to be strong in the Lord, to put on his compleat [c] armour, and to stand vpon our guard, that during the battell we may quit our selues like men, and when the fight is ended, triumph as Paul, 2.Tim.4.7. I haue fought a good fight, I haue finished my course, from henceforth is laid vp for me the crowne of righteousnesse, as if he should haue said in the words of our Prophet, I haue beene troubled and tossed in Gods tabernacle, but I am now sure that I shall euer rest vpon his holy hill.

[f] Mollerus.
[s] Iob.7.1.
[u] See Epist 1. Sund after Easter.
[x] Iudg 3.16.
[y] 1.Pet.2.11.
[z] Matth 6.24.
[a] Philip.3.19.
[b] 2.Cor 7.5.
[c] See Epist.21. Sund after Trinitie.

Secondly, in that the Church of Christ vpon earth is a tabernacle, we may note [d] that neither the Church it selfe, nor the members of it, haue any fixed or firme seat of habitation in this world: Arise, depart, for this is not your rest, Mica 2.10. Here we haue no continued citie, but we seeke one to come, Heb.13.14. Gods Tabernacle being a moueable Temple, wandred vp and downe, sometimes in the desert, sometimes in Shilo, sometimes among the Philistims, sometimes in Kiriathiarim, and neuer found any setled place, till it was translated into the[e] mountaine of God: euen so the Church of God wandereth as a stragler and a stranger in the wildernesse of this world, [f] being destitut, tormented and afflicted on euerie side, [g] persecuted from this citie to that, and neuer enioying any constant habitation of sound and sure rest, vntill it be translated into Gods holy hill. The verbe Gur (as the [h] learned in Hebrew note) signifying to dwell as a stranger, or a soiourner, imports that a Citizen of heauen is first a Pilgrim on earth. So the Patriarch [i] Iacob professeth that the dayes of his pilgrimage (meaning his life) were few and euill. And[k] S. Peter termeth all [d] Chrysost. Mollerus. Tileman.

[e] 2.Chron.5.5.
[f] Heb.11.37.
[g] Matth.10.33.
[h] Mollerus. Tremell. Bellar. Idem Augustin. Basil. Euthym.
[i] Gen 47.9.
[k] 1.Pet.1.17.

all the time of our life, the time of our pilgrimage. So [i] Dauid, I am a stranger before thee, and a soiourner as all my fathers were. So the rest of the faithfull acknowledged that they were strangers and pilgrims on earth, Hebr. 11.13. Man is often in holy Scripture called earth, as being taken from earth, and returning to dust againe, for flesh is turned to rottennesse, and rottennesse into wormes, and wormes into dust: in this only man and earth a little differ, earth is fixed and immoueable, but man (as [m] Esay termeth him) is a Grashopper, earth walking vpon earth, a skipping creature; hauing here no setled abode: now pilgrims haue [n] foure remarkable qualities. 1. They chuse the best way to their home. 2. They goe forward euery day. 3. They be very sparing in their expences, often forbearing things necessarie. 4. They will not be detained in their iourney with any vaine delights or allurements. How these may be well applied vnto soiourners in this life, See Epistle 3. Sunday after Easter.

3. In that the Church is a Tabernacle, we may see [o] that it is not a fort compassed about with any strong wals, armed with any humane forces, and yet such as keepe within her are defended from heat of Sunne, and hurt of stormes. Her strength is not here, but from aboue, for Christ her head is in all her troubles a present helpe, a refuge against the tempest, a shadow against the heat, Esay 25.4.

The Church on earth is indeed a Tabernacle, but it is Gods Tabernacle, wherein he dwelleth as in his [p] house, Lord who shall abide in thy Tabernacle? for to this end the Lord commanded the Tabernacle to be made, that [q] he might dwell among them, and againe, whereas he promised by Moses, to [r] set his tabernacle among them, the blessed Apostle construeth it of his dwelling among them, 2. Cor. 6.16. You are (saith he) the Temple of the liuing God, as God hath said, I will dwell among them, and walke there. To the same purpose God is said elsewhere to [s] dwell in Sion, and to walke in the [t] middst of the seuen golden candlestickes, that is in the middest of the seuen Churches, in the middest of his City, Psalm. 46.5. in the middest of his people, Esay 12.6.

But albeit the Lord be present in his Church after a speciall manner euery where, yet more, yea most especially in the congregation of his people met together in his name, Mat. 18.20. When two or three are gathered together in my Name, there (saith Christ) I am in the midst of them. The consideration of this one point may teach vs a twofold duty. 1. An hearty desire to frequent Gods Tabernacle diligently. 2. A reuerent behauiour in the congregation of the Saints, as in Gods presence. For the first, in old time such as were banished from the publique assemblies of the faithfull, held themselues excluded from the [u] face of God, and therefore [x] Dauid being exiled, or otherwise hindered from comming vnto the Tabernacle, saith, One thing haue I desired of the Lord, that will I require, euen that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the dayes of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to visite his Temple. For the second, if [y] S. Paul aduiseth women to couer their heads, and to carry themselues in Gods house comely, because of the Angels; how much more should women and men also behaue themselues after an humble, deuout, reuerent manner in respect of God, who walketh in the mids of Israel [z] as a consuming fire.

Who shall rest vpon thy holy hill?] As the former clause concernes the subiects of God in his kingdome of grace: so this latter appertaines to the Saints of God in his kingdome of glory: for (as [a] it is well obserued) the variety of phrase doth argue diuersity of matter; soiourning in Gods Tabernacle, being a great deale different from resting vpon his holy hill Again, the conclusion in the last words of the Psalme, which vndoubtedly doth answer the true meaning of the question fully, belongs both to this life present, and to that which is to come, he that doth these things shall neuer be remoued, that [b] is, he shall neuer finally fall away from the grace of God in this world, nor be thrust out of his glorious presence in the world to come. Let vs then examine why heauen is called a hill, and why Gods holy hill, as also what is meant by the Saints dwelling or resting vpon this holy hill.

The kingdome of heauen is called a Mountaine, à non mouendo, [c] for that is a mansion, a kingdome that cannot be shaken, Heb. 12.28. a setled seat like mount Sion that cannot be remoued, Psal. 125.1. a safe place free from all hazard of death and danger.

Or

[i] Psal 39.14.

[m] Esay 40.22.
[n] Ardens in Epist. Dom. 3. post. Pasc.

[o] Mollerus.

[p] 1 Tim. 3.15.
[q] Exod. 25.8.
[r] Leuit. 26.11.

[s] Psal. 9.11.
[t] Apoc. 2.1.

[u] Gen 4.16.
[x] Psal. 27.4. See Psalm. 42. & 84.

[y] 1. Cor. 11.10.

[z] Deut. 6.15. Heb 12.29.

[a] Dr Downame Lect vpon this Psalme, pag. 3.

[b] Wilcox.

[c] Chrysost. Mollerus.

Or a mountaine in respect of height and eminency, being elevated so farre from earth, that if we would ascend vnto the holy mountaine but in thought, as once [d] Scipio did in his dreame, we should easily contemne this world as appearing from the highest heauen but as a mote in the Sun, and the inhabitants thereof as Grashoppers, Esay 40. 22. but if withall it were possible to feele the most vnspeakable ioyes of heauen, and from thence to cast downe our eyes vnto this valley of teares, and here to behold the vanitie of vanities, and nothing but vanities in vexation of spirit, as [e] Salomon speakes: it could not be told with the tongues of men and Angels, how feruently we should desire to rest vpon Gods holy hill: as [f] Rehoboam said, my little finger shall be bigger than my fathers loynes: [g] euen so the least Saint of God in the triumphant Church is a great deale greater than the greatest seruant of God in the militant Church, according to that of Christ in the [h] Gospell, (as some Diuines expound it) among those which are begotten of women arose there not a greater than Iohn Baptist; notwithstanding he which is least in the kingdome of heauen, is greater then he.

[d] Cic. in som. Scipion.

[e] Eccl. 1. 2. 14.
[f] 1. King. 12 10.
[g] Bonauent.

[h] Matth. 11. 11.

Heauen is not a mountaine only, but also the holy hill of God, or the mountaine of his holinesse,

And that in respect of { Himselfe, as being most holy. / His Saints, as being more holy than other who dwell in the tents of vngodlinesse. [i]

That is [k] an holy place where the Lord doth openly manifest his presence: but in the highest heauen he doth especially manifest himselfe, and reueale his glory, ergo heauen is the hill of his holinesse. If mount Thabor after the transfiguration of Christ, and presence of God there manifested, is for that cause called by [l] S. Peter the holy mountaine, how much more doth the heauen of heauens, (where Christ sitteth at the right hand of his Father in maiesty) deserue to be called the mountaine of Gods holinesse?

[i] Psal 84. 11.
[k] Exod 3. 5.

[l] 2. Pet 1. 18.

2. Heauen is an holy hill in respect of those which abide there, for [m] Except a man be borne of water and of the spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdome of God. [n] Without holinesse no man can see God, nothing which is vncleane shall haue possession in the holy City, Reuel. 21. 27. This hill as Diuine [o] Plato termed it, is Campus veritatis, wherein is no deceit, or conceit of doing euill. If any desire to rest vpon this high and holy mountaine, he must as it followeth in our text, lead an vncorrupt life, doing the thing that is right, and speaking the truth from his heart.

[m] Iohn 3. 5.
[n] Heb. 12. 14.

[o] Apud Steuchum in loc.

The word dwelling imports rest and eternity: rest, all men in this Tabernacle are borne to trauell and trouble, but when once they dwell vpon that holy mountaine, they rest from their labours, Apoc. 14. 13. And for that cause the kingdome of heauen is often termed by Paul in his excellent [p] Epistle to the Hebrews, the rest of God. And our Prophet in [q] this sense saith in the 116 Psalme, vers. 7. Turne vnto thy rest O my soule, and the glorious Angels are said to conuey the soules of such as die in the Lord into the [r] bosome of Abraham, insinuating hereby, that they rest vpon Gods holy hill, as in the bosome and armes of a most indulgent Father. And this rest is a continuall Sabbath, as we confesse in our Creed an euerlasting life, where God giueth all his an [s] eternall weight, and an [t] incorruptible crowne of glory, where saith our [u] Prophet, there are pleasures and fulnesse of ioy for euermore.

[p] Cap. 4 vers. 1. 3. & 8. 9. 10. 11
[q] Basil, Euthym. Placidus in loc.
[r] Luke 26. 22.

[s] 2. Cor 4. 17.
[t] 1. Pet. 5. 4.
[u] Psal. 16. 12.

Here then obserue the great difference betweene the Church militant on earth, and the Church triumphant in heauen. This a tent of warre, that a mount of peace: this a valley of teares and trouble, that a kingdome of happinesse and glory: this our way, that our Countrey. In this we soiourne as Pilgrims, [x] absent from God; in that, being remoued from this earthly Tabernacle we dwell with God. Here is the combat, there the crowne: here the vexation of spirit, there rest vnto our soules.

[x] 2 Cor. 5. 6.

Hitherto concerning the two members of the question seuerally: now let vs in a word treat of them also ioyntly, for both parts are to be construed of the same party. He who shal one day become a dweller vpon the holy hill, is first a soiourner in Gods Tabernacle, and he which is a soiourner in Gods Tabernacle, shall also dwell vpon the holy hill. Touching the first, all men desire with [y] Balaam, to die the death of the righteous, [y] Num. 23. 10.

righteous, but few doe care to lead the life of the righteous. All men would haue glorie, but few hunger and thirst after grace. All men, with the sonnes of [z] Zebedeus, would be glad to be preferred into Christs kingdome, but few men are content to drinke of his cup. All men expect rest vpon the holy hill of God, but alas few behaue themselues as pilgrimes in his tabernacle.

[z] Mark. 10. 37.

Now the Scripture telleth vs plainly, that we cannot enter into Gods kingdome, vnlesse we contend and [a] striue for entrance, the kingdome of heauen suffereth violence and the violent take it by force, Matth. 11. 12. it is called a [b] treasure hid in the field, but we cannot obtaine this treasure, vnlesse we sell all that we haue to buy that field. It is called his [c] day penny, but none shall haue this hire, but such as haue beene labourers in this vineyard. It is called his [d] great supper, but none shall eat of his meat, or sit at his table, which embrace the present world. It is called his [e] ioy, but none shall enter into that ioy, but such as haue well employed his talents committed to their charge. It is called his [f] price, but none shall attaine to it, but such as runne to the races end for it. It is called a [g] Crowne, but none shall enioy that crowne, but such as fight and continue faithfull vnto the death, Apoc. 2. 10. [h] It is a true saying, if we be dead with Christ, we shall also liue with him. If we suffer, we shall also raigne with him: otherwise no combat, no crowne; no striuing, no masterie; no wandring in Gods Tabernacle, no resting vpon his holy hill.

[a] Luke 13. 24.
[b] Matth. 13. 44.
[c] Matth 20 2.
[d] Luk. 14. 16,
[e] Matth. 25. 21.
[f] 1. Cor. 9. 24.
[g] 2 Tim. 4. 8.
[h] 2. Tim 2. 11.

Concerning the second point, the way to heauen is by the gates of the Church, he therefore which is a sound member of the Church militant, shall in due time become a member of the Church triumphant. I know there be many hypocrites in the world, who for a time croud into Gods Tabernacle, and dwell [i] Inmates among the godly: but because they doe not facere, but fingere Iustitiam, as Melanchthon vpon the place, seruing Gods truth only to serue their owne turne, their [k] end is damnation, and their glorie is their shame: for as vpright men of an vncorrupt life vse the world, that they may the better enioy God: euen so hypocrites on the contrarie vse God that they may more freely enioy the world: and so consequently no wonder if such idle straglers in Gods Tabernacle (which harden their hearts, and hearken not to his voice) be depriued of entring into his rest. Here then a distinction is necessarie, some men are shuffling Inmates, other during their liues setled tenants in Gods house, [l] wandring stars in Gods firmament, wauering hypocrites in Gods Tabernacle, carried about with [m] euery winde of doctrine, quench the Spirit and turne the grace of God into wantonnesse, and so the blacknesse of darknesse for euer is reserued vnto them, as S. Iude speakes in his Epistle, vers. 13. but such as are faithfull and obedient subiects in the kingdome of grace to the end, shall in the end be made Saints and Inheritors in the kingdome of glorie.

[i] Calvin. Mollerus.
[k] Philip. 3. 19.
[l] Iude vers. 13.
[m] Ephes. 4. 13.

The meditation of this doctrine may teach, 1. To contemne the momentarie vanities of this present world, accounting it more than extreme madnesse, if for the temporarie [n] pleasures of sinne we should lose the [o] fulnesse of ioy that endures for euermore. 2. To [p] runne with inuincible patience the race that is set before vs, as being assured that the light [q] afflictions of this life are not worthie the [r] eternall weight of glorie that shall be reuealed.

[n] Heb. 11. 24.
[o] Psal 16. 12.
[p] Heb. 12. 1.
[q] Rom. 8. 18.
[r] 2. Cor. 4. 17.

The preaching and pressing of this one point is so necessarie, that Christ our heauenly Doctor began his first sermons (as [s] S. Matthew reports) with amend your liues, for the kingdome of heauen is at hand. And in the progresse of his teaching, most of his [t] Parables were composed of the kingdome of heauen. And in those fortie dayes after his resurrection, he spake to his Disciples of those things which appertaine to the kingdome of God, as S. Luke recordeth, Acts 1. 3. by which it doth appeare, that this argument was the beginning, middle, and end of all his preaching so long as he sojourned in Gods Tabernacle. Now the happinesse of heauen is set forth in the holy Scripture by foure names especially.

[s] Matth. 4 17.
[t] Mat. 13 vers 18, 20, 21, 22, 25.

1. Paradise, so [u] Paul said he was taken vp into Paradise, so [x] Christ on the crosse to the penitent theefe, to day thou shalt be with me in Paradise. So S. Iohn, Apoc. 2. 7. the tree of life is in the middest of the Paradise of God.

[u] 2. Cor. 12, 4.
[x] Luke 23. 43.

2, House, Iohn 14. 2. In my Fathers house are many mansions.

3. Citie,

3. Citie, Heb.12.22. Yee are come to the Citie of the liuing God, the celestiall Hierusalem.

4. Kingdome, Mat.5.3. Blessed are the poore in Spirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen.

It is called a Paradise, as abounding with vnspeakable delights, an Eden or Garden of pleasure: but least haply we should imagine that a Garden is not of sufficient capacity, the Scripture doth adde vnto it an house; where beside the Garden spot, there be chambers, and halls, and parlors, and closets, and diuers other roomes. And yet for as much as an house though exceeding spacious, is not able to receiue multitudes of inhabitants, the Scripture further addes the name of a Citie, containing many palaces and places. And because [y] S. Iohn affirmes that the number of such as rest vpon Gods holy hill is a great multitude which no man is able to number; it pleased the spirit to call heauen a kingdome, consisting of many Cities. The house standeth in the Garden, and the Garden in the Citie, and the Citie in the kingdome, the Garden is vsually greater than the house, the Citie greater than the Garden, and the kingdome greater than the Citie: wherefore heauen is commonly tearmed a kingdome, [z] not only because the gouernment thereof is truly Monarchicall, or in respect of the dominions amplitude and the subiects multitude: but for that euery Citizen of the celestiall Hierusalem is an absolute King and a Prince, hauing in token hereof a triumphant Palme in his hand, Apoc.7.9. and a golden Crowne on his head, Apoc.4.4. So Paul, 2 Tim.2.11. If we suffer with him, we shall reigne with him. So [a] S. Iohn, I Iohn your companion in tribulation and in the kingdome. So [b] S. Iames, hath not God chosen the poore of this world that they should be rich in faith, and heires of the kingdome. We haue right and title to this immortall inheritance by the words of our heauenly Father in his last will and testament, [c] Blessed are the poore in spirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heauen, there is our Sauiours faire donation or grant, [d] Come yee blessed of my Father, inherit yee the kingdome prepared for you: There is possession after his grant. [e] To him that ouercommeth will I grant to sit with me in my Throne, there is session after possession. As the blessed [f] Apostle calleth euery Christian in the Church militant enduring the crosse patiently more than a conqueror: euen so we may call euery Saint in the Church triumphant more than an Emperor: For the good things in earthly kingdomes are temporall and momentarie, but the happinesse of heauen is eternall, and neuer fading away. Moreouer Kings and Emperors enioy power intermingled with infirmity, honour intermingled with infamy, wealth intermingled with want, pleasures intermingled with anguish and vexation of spirit. A King is of so great authority, that if he bid his [g] subiects kill, they kill, if he say spare, they spare: If he bid smite, they smite: If he bid them make desolate, they make desolate: they breake downe mountaines, and walls, and towers. [h] He saith vnto one goe, and he goeth, and vnto another, come, and he commeth; and vnto a third, doe this, and he doth it. Haue not I power to crucifie thee (said Pilate vnto Christ) and power to loose thee, Iohn 19.10. but this power is intermingled with infirmity, and this honour with ignominy. For many times in a rebellion (I speake de facto, not de Iure) it comes to passe that the people [i] bind their Kings in Chaines, [k] breaking their bonds asunder, and casting away the cords of imperiall authority from them. In a mutinie the Souldiers often command their commanders, and make captiue their Captaines. In a common vprore, the greatest Emperors haue beene disgraced, and degraded, yea depriued of life by their Vassals. Examples hereof, Iulius Cæsar, Nero, Galba, Vitellius, Domitian, Heliogabalus, and infinite moe, both Heathen and Christian, and many so well of the best Emperors as the worst.

So likewise Kings vpon earth haue riches in such abundance, that they count their yeerely reuennes, not as yeomen by the scores, or as Gentlemen by the hundreds, or as Lords by the thousands, but by the millions. Yet their traines are so long, that their wings are short, the priuate Cofers of their followers are so full, that their common Exchekers are many times empty. Now that man is not so poore that hath a little, as he that desires much, and wants a great deale. Besides it is an argument of pouerty that the most high and mighty Princes haue part of [y] Apocal 7.9.

[z] Vide Bellar. de fælicit. Eternæ lib.1.cap.1. 2.3.5.

[a] Apoc.1.9.
[b] Iames 2.5.

[c] Matth 5.3.
[d] Matth.25.34

[e] Apoc.3.21.

[f] Rom.8.37.

[g] 1 Esdras 4.7.

[h] Matth.8.9.

[i] Psal.149.8.
[k] Psalm.2.3.

their maintenance from the meaneſt of the people. This I confeſſe to be their due by the lawes of nature, and rules of grace: for that is to be ſupported by the common purſe which concernes the common good. Be ſubiect (ſaith [l] Paul) not becauſe of wrath only, but alſo for conſcience ſake: for this cauſe ye pay tribute to higher powers, as being Gods Miniſters, attending alwayes vpon this verie thing. Render therefore to all their due, tribute to whom tribute is due, cuſtome to whom cuſtome, honour to whom honour, &c. and yet this euidently ſhewes that magnificent Emperours haue their wants in the middeſt of all their wealth.

[l] Rom. 13. 5.

So the pleaſures of Princes are mingled with afflictions, as well inward as outward, ſickneſſe of bodie, vexation of ſpirit, torment of conſcience. [m] Non ita corona caput circundat ſicut animam ſollicitudo, their crowne ſits not cloſer to their heads than care to their hearts. [n] Auguſtus Cæſar told his wife Liuia, that he feared both ſolitude and multitude, Metuendum eſt eſſe ſine cuſtodia, ſed multo magis cuſtodes metuendi: inimici certè moleſti ſunt, ſed amici multo magis. It is a fearefull thing for a Prince to be without his guard, and yet a guard is often a great deale more fearefull, enemies are troubleſome if they get opportunitie, yet friends are more troubleſome with their importunitie.

[m] Chryſoſt. hom. 66. ad populum Antioch.
[n] Xphilin in vita Auguſti è Dionis lib. 55.

[o] Blandus nomen honos, mala ſeruitus, exitus ager,
Quem nunc velle iuuat, mox voluiſſe piget.

[o] Paulinus apud Auguſt. epiſt. 36.

But ſuch as reſt vpon Gods holy hill, enioy good things which are purely good, honor without ignominie, riches without any want, and pleaſure without any woe: for albeit the wicked repute them in this earthly tabernacle the [p] very ſcumme of the world, yet at the laſt day, ſeeing them aſcend the holy mountaine, they ſhall [q] change their mindes and ſay, We fooles had them in deriſion, eſteeming their life madneſſe, and their end without honour: but now they receiue a glorious kingdome, and a beautifull crowne at the Lords hand. Abundance without need, for how can they want any thing when as God is vnto them all things, euen [r] all in all. Pleaſure without any croſſe, for God ſhall wipe [t] all teares from their eyes, no euill ſhall happen vnto them, or plague come nigh their dwelling, Pſalm. 91. 10. When [t] Anne Bolen that vertuous and bleſſed Ladie had receiued a meſſage from her Soueraigne Lord King Henrie the 8. that ſhe muſt according to iudgement giuen, inſtantly prepare her ſelfe for death: anſwered mildly, that ſhe gaue him humble thanks for all his gracious fauours beſtowed vpon her, as for making her of a meane woman a Marqueſſe, and of a Marqueſſe his Queene, but eſpecially (ſeeing he could not on earth aduance her vnto any greater dignitie) that he would now ſend her to reſt and reigne vpon Gods high and holy throne.

[p] 1 Cor. 15. 28.
[q] Wild. 5. 3. 16.
[r] 1 Cor. 4. 13.
[t] Apoc. 21. 4.
[t] Camden. apparat. annal. p. 6.

Thus much as concerning the parts of this high and weighty queſtion. It followeth in the next place that I ſpeake of the party to whom it is propounded, Lord who ſhall dwell? [u] he that will vndertake to teach other ſhould haue firſt a good tutor himſelfe, wherefore the Prophet conſults here not with [x] fleſh and bloud, but with Almighty God the Collector of his Church, and the giuer of all holineſſe and happineſſe. Now two reaſons may be rendred why Dauid in this queſtion appealeth vnto the Lord:

[u] Placidus.
[x] Gaiat. 1. 16.

1. That he may not be [y] deceiued himſelfe.
2. That his doctrine may be [z] receiued of other.

[y] Tileman.
[z] Mollerus. Tremel.

The iudgement of men whether they deliuer their opinion concerning themſelues or other is very deceitfull and vncertaine. Touching themſelues, how many hypocrites among the Papiſts eſpecially boaſt of the name of the Church, and in compariſon of themſelues hold all other heretickes or ſchiſmatickes: when as in very deed they be limbes of Antichriſt, and nothing leſſe than the true members of the Catholique Church of Chriſt. Their Prieſts aſſume ſo much authority, that as [a] S. Hierome ſpeakes in the like caſe, ſeu dextra doceant, ſeu ſiniſtra, nolunt diſcipulos ratione diſcutere, ſed ſe præceſſores ſequi. The people likewiſe being blindfolded are content to beleeue as the Church beleeueth, albeit they know not what the Church beleeueth: the faith of Rome was in the daies of the Primitiue Church

[a] Com. in Eſaiæ cap. 30. tom. 5. fol. 128.

Church exceedingly renowned [b] thorowout the whole world: but new Rome is so farre vnlike old Rome, that we may well exclaime with [c] Ouid.

Heu quantùm hæc Niobe, Niobe distabat ab illa.

[d] Now is the faithfull Citie become an harlot, yea the [e] mother of whoredomes and abominations vpon earth, an habitation of [f] Deuils, an hold of foule spirits, a cage of euerie vncleane and hatefull bird. It was full of iudgement and iustice lodged therein, but now they be murtherers, her Princes rebellious and companions of theeues, her siluer is become drosse, and her wine mixt with water.

Haply some will obiect, albeit hypocrites often deceiue themselues as well as other, yet the godly dwelling in Gods Tabernacle, know that they be the sonnes of the most high, and that they shall one day rest vpon his holy hill, according to that of [g] Paul, Examine your selues whether you are in the faith or no, know ye not your owne selues, how that Iesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates? Answer is made, that the spirit of man is not able to make this true certificate without the spirit of God, as the [h] same Apostle teacheth elsewhere, the Spirit certifieth, or witnesseth with our spirit, that we are the sonnes of God.

The heart of man is alwayes [i] euill, and often [k] deceitfull, and therefore boast not of thy good conscience without the witnesse of the Spirit: for Paul before his conuersion had vnfained zeale of a false religion, Gal. 1.14. and the Laodiceans had a counterfet zeale of a true religion, Apoc. 3.15. if thou be the sonne of God, thou art led by the Spirit of God: if led by the Spirit, then thou liuest after the Spirit: if thou liuest after the Spirit, then thou bringest forth the [l] fruits of the Spirit, Loue, Ioy, Peace, Long-suffering, &c. for the Spirit is holy, the Spirit of sanctitie, first he makes thee, then assures thee to be the sonne of God. If we lead an vncorrupt life, doing that which is right, and speaking that which is true from our heart, the Spirit certifieth our spirit, that we now soiourne in Gods Tabernacle, and that we shall in fine rest vpon his holy mountaine. For by these characters of a sound Christian, our [m] calling and election is made sure: but on the contrarie, such as are malicious, hauing a tongue readie to report, and an eare open to receiue slanders against a neighbour: such as are couetous, giuing out their monies to vsurie, and taking rewards against the innocent: such as make no conscience to lie, to breake oath and word, swearing to their brethren, and yet disappointing them: albeit they dreame of the Spirit, yet (while they liue thus after the flesh) he neuer lodged within their heart. The fond opinion of their iustification and election ariseth only from their owne conceit, and Satans deceit. See Epist. Sund. 8. after Trinitie.

The wicked then are deceiued, in thinking that they shall one day rest vpon Gods holy hill, and the godly cannot be sure but by the witnesse of Gods owne Spirit, so that in this question we must euer haue recourse to God, and say with our Prophet, Lord, who shall rest, &c. As the iudgement of men is deceiuable touching themselues: so most erroneous concerning other. For wicked men out of their malice censure corruptly, and godly men out of their charitie iudge vncertainly: the wicked hold the true members of the Church to be the scumme of the world, and off-scouring of all things, [n] excommunicating them, and persecuting them from citie to citie, thinking that they doe God acceptable seruice when as they martyr them. In a word, they count their life madnesse, and their end without honour, Wisd. 5.4. [o] hating them euen with a perfect hatred, as being in the world, not of the world; pilgrims in this earthly tabernacle, rather than inhabitants or setled dwellers, accolæ non habitatores terræ (quoth [p] Ambrose.) Father Abraham at Gods appointment forgat his owne kindred, and departed out of his own countrey to the promised land, Gen. 12.4. so the sonnes of Abraham, I meane the faithfull, Galat. 3.7. albeit they soiourne vpon earth, haue their conuersation in heauen, Philip. 3.20. the Church is Christs [q] daughter and darling, [r] loue and [t] doue, standing at his right hand in a vesture of gotd wrought about with diuers colours. Now that the King her husband may haue pleasure in her beautie, she forsaketh her owne people, and fathers house, Psalm. 45.11. cleauing only to Christ, as being one with him, euen flesh of his flesh, and bone of his bone, Ephes. 5.30. and therefore no wonder if

[b] Rom. 1.8.
[c] Metam. lib. 6.
[d] Esay 1.21.
[e] Apoc 17.5.
[f] Apoc. 18.2.
[g] 2 Cor. 13.5.
[h] Rom. 8.16.
[i] Gen 6.5.
[k] Eccles. 1.35.
[l] Gal. 5.22.
[m] 2 Pet. 1.10.
[n] Ioh 16.2.
[o] Ioh 17.14.
[p] De Abraham lib. 2 cap. 7.
[q] Psal 45.14.
[r] Cant. 4.1.
[t] Cant. 6.8.

Cain murther Abel, if Esau persecute Iacob, if the seed of the serpent maligne the seed of the woman, if the children of the deuill hate the sonnes of God, as being Antipodes one to the other, opposite both in condition and countrey. [t] For what concord hath Christ with Belial, and what communion hath light with darknesse, and what fellowship hath righteousnesse with vnrighteousnesse, and what agreement betweene the temple of God, and the [u] tents of vngodlinesse. As wicked men out of hatred censure good men corruptly, so good men out of charitie sentence wicked men erroneously: for the godly iudge euery baptized infant to be regenerate (as our common Catechisme teacheth vs) a member of Christ, a childe of God, and an inheritor of the kingdome of heauen. In the iudgement of charitie, they hold euery professed member of the visible Church, a member of the Church inuisible, elected, called, iustified, sanctified. In generall, they know that many be called, but few [x] chosen, and that many which are professors among vs, are not [y] of vs; and yet in particular they doe not, yea, they dare not [z] iudge, much lesse condemne this or that partie [a] before the time. The false hypocrite in doing that which is right, and in speaking that which is true may seeme iust in our eyes, and yet be most abominable before God: for he may speake the truth, and yet not from his heart; and he may do that which is right, and yet not for righteousnesse sake; being as the [b] Poet pithily, facto pius & sceleratus eodem. We behold the man, but not his minde; his worke, not his will; his fact, not his faith; his action, not his end. So that the iudgement of charitie belongs properly to men, but the iudgement of certaintie to God only, to whom all hearts are open and no secrets hid. See Gospell 4. Sunday after Trinitie. Wherefore beloued seeing we are to stand to the iudgement of God, and not of men; let vs vnceslantly labour to approue our selues, not so much vnto men, as to the Lord, who trieth our hearts, 1 Thess. 4 4.

Secondly, the Prophet in this question appealeth vnto Gods oracle, that his answer might be receiued without exception: for [c] God is not as man that he should lie, neither as the sonne of man that he should repent: he best [d] knoweth his own, writing their names in his [e] book from the beginning, and [f] separating the sheepe from the goats in the worlds end. From hence we may learne that the best answers in questions of religion, are from Gods holy word, which is a lanthorne to our feet, and a guide to our paths, a [g] perfect law, [h] profitable to teach, improue, correct, instruct, that the man of God may be furnished absolutely vnto all good workes. The Prophets vnder the Law stood vpon this proofe principally, Thus saith the Lord: and Christ in the Gospell, It is written, Haue yee not read? Yee haue heard. And the Fathers in old time, [i] Audi, non dicit, Donatus, aut Rogatus, aut Vincentius, aut Hilarius, aut Augustinus, sed dicit Dominus. So the most religious Emperor [k] Constantine admonished the most reuerend fathers of the first Nicene Councell, to consult in all their questions only with those heauenly inspired Scriptures, as instructing vs fully what to beleeue in diuine things. So [l] S. Hilarie pronounceth him an Antichrist and Anathema, who will not haue his faith to be tried and examined by the Scriptures only. So [m] Chrysostome, the sacred booke is a most exact ballance, square, rule of diuine Lawes. So some learned men among the [n] Papists, and by name [o] Gerson and Picus Mirandula, confesse that an Idiot, a woman, a childe, are better to be beleeued alledging the Scripture, than a whole Councell and the Pope himselfe determining without Scripture. So should euerie good Christian appeale from vnwritten traditions vnto the written truth, in all controuersies of religion and cases of conscience hauing recourse [p] to the Law, to the Testimonie, saying with our [q] Prophet, I will hearken what the Lord will say concerning me, Lord who shall soiourne? Lord who shall dwell?

He that leadeth an incorrupt life] Here two questions are moued. 1. Why Dauid describes a sound member of the Church, and inheritor of heauen, by works rather than by faith, seeing the kingdome of heauen is promised vnto faith, and the profession thereof also maketh one a member of the visible Church. 2. Why among all the fruits of faith almost innumerable, he makes choyce of those duties especially which concerne our neighbours.

To

* 2 Cor. 6. 15.
* Psal. 84. 11.
x Matth. 22. 14
y 1 Iohn 2. 19.
z Luke 6. 37. Matth. 7. 1.
a 1 Cor. 4. 5.
b Ouid. Metam. lib. 3.
c Num. 23. 19.
d 2 Tim. 2. 19.
e Exod. 32. 32.
f Matth. 25. 32
g Psal 19. 7.
h 2 Tim. 3. 16.
i August. ep. 48
k Theodoret. hist. lib. 1. cap. 7.
l Lib. ad Constant. August. quem ipse Constantio tradidit circa medium.
m Hom. 13. in 2 Corinth.
n See D. Morton's appeale, lib 2 cap. 25. sect 11.
o Apud Mornæum, præfat. lib. de missa.
p Esay 8. 20.
q Psal 85. 8.

To the first answer may be, that in this and in all other places of holy Scripture, where good workes are commanded or commended in any, [r] faith is euer presupposed, according to that Apostolicall axiome, [s] whatsoeuer is not of faith is sinne, without me (saith our blessed Sauiour) ye can doe nothing, Ioh. 15.5. and without faith in him it is impossible to please God, Heb. 11.6. fides est operum fomes, as [t] Paulinus wittily, Faith (as [u] our Church speakes) is the nest of good workes, albeit our birds be neuer so faire, though haply we doe that which is right, and speake that which is true; yet all these will be lost, except it be brought forth in a true beleefe. [x] Aristides was so iust in his gouernment, that he would not tread awry for any respect to friend or despight to foe. [y] Pomponius is said to be so true, that he neuer made lie himselfe, nor suffered a lie in other. [z] Curtius at Rome, Menœceus at Thebes, Codrus at Athens, exposed themselues vnto voluntarie death, for the good of their neighbours and Countrie: yet [a] because they wanted the rest of true faith in the worlds Sauiour, where to lay their young, we cannot (if we speake with our Prophet here from Gods Oracle) say that they shall euer rest vpon his holy hill.

[b] Another answer may be, that faith is an inward and hidden grace, and many deceiue themselues and other with a fained profession thereof, and therefore the holy Spirit will haue euerie mans faith to be tried and knowne by their fruits, and [c] howsoeuer eternall life be promised to faith, and eternall damnation be threatned against infidelitie; yet the [d] sentence of saluation and condemnation shall be pronounced according to works, as the clearest euidence of both. It is truly said out of Bernard, that although our good works are not causa regnandi yet they be via regni, the causeway wherein, albeit not the cause wherefore we must ascend Gods holy hill.

To the second demand, why the duties immediatly belonging to God, are not mentioned here, but only such as concerne our brother: [e] Answer is made, that this question is propounded of such as liuing in the visible Church openly professe the faith, and would seeme to be deuout, hearing the word of God, and calling vpon his name: for of such as are prophane Atheists, and doe not so much as make a semblance of holinesse, there is no question to be made, for without all doubt there can be no resting place for such in the kingdome of heauen. Now that we may discerne aright which of those that professe religion are sound, and which vnsound; the marks are not to be taken from an outward hearing of the word, or receiuing of the Sacraments, and much lesse from a formall obseruation of humane traditions in Gods tabernacle (for all these things hypocrites vsually performe) but from the duties of righteousnesse g'uing euery man his due, because the touch-stone of pietie toward God is charitie toward our brother. Herein (saith [f] S. Iohn) are the children of God knowne, and the children of the deuill, whosoeuer doth not righteousnesse is not of God, neither he that loueth not his brother. Faith is operatiue working by loue, Gal. 5 6 without which it is dead, Iam. 2.26. the true loue of God manifesteth it selfe in the loue of our neighbour, [g] for if a man shall say, that he loueth God, and hateth his brother, he is a lier. Hereby (saith [h] our Sauiour) shall all men know you to be my disciples, if you loue one another. If you loue, for all the commandements of the Law concerning our neighbours, are summarily [i] comprehended in this one saying, Loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. He that loueth his neighbour will euer doe him right, in thought, speaking the truth from his heart; in word, neither deceiuing with his tongue, nor disappointing any with his oath: in deed, performing good offices of pitie, without either vsurie or bribe. And so the like questions in other places of holy Scripture receiue the like answers, as Psal. 24.3,4. and Esay 33.14,15.

But in my iudgement both obiections are best answered by iudicious [k] Melanæthon, affirming that the second verse containes all duties of the first table, concerning pietie toward God, and the rest all duties of the second table, concerning pitie toward our neighbours, and so consequently that the Spirit here describes a sound Christian by faith and good works. By faith, in saying, he walketh vprightly, and speakes the truth in his heart. By good workes, in that hee slandereth not with his tongue, nor doth euill to his neighbour, &c. as if he should haue said in briefe, that man is a liuely member of the Church, and neuer falleth away, who calleth vpon

[r] Melanct. Apolog. confess. August. tit. de dilect. & impl. legis idem. Calvin. instit. lib. 3. cap. 17.
[s] Rom 14.23.
[t] Epist. lib. 3. Epist 4.
[u] Hom. of good works, part. 1.
[x] Plutarch. in vita Arist.
[y] Luther in Gal. 2.16.
[z] Lactan. instit. lib. 3. cap. 12.
[a] August. in Psal. 83.
[b] Calvin in loc.
[c] Dr. Downame in loc.
[d] Matth. 25.34 Rom 2.6. Reuel. 21.12.
[e] Calvin, D. Downame.
[f] 1 Epist 3.10.
[g] 1. Ioh 4.20.
[h] Iob 13.35.
[i] Rom. 13.9.
[k] In loc idem annotant Molleru, Strigelius, Tileman.

God in true faith, and manifesteth euidently this faith in workes of charitie toward his brother. This exposition is agreeable to the words here, & to the tenour of the Scriptures elsewhere. For he that truly beleeueth in God, according to his reuealed will and word, walketh vprightly before him, as our Prophet in [l] another place, Blessed are they that are vpright in the way, and walke in the Law of the Lord: that is, not defiled with abominations of Idols, and false opinions of the true God, but in their walking obserue the commandents of the Lord, the chiefe whereof is to [m] know God and his Sonne Iesus Christ. This, as Paul speakes, is to make [n] streight steps, [o] ἰθοτομεῖν to walke with a right foot in the wayes of God, neither couertly treading awry with Peter, Galat. 2. nor openly halting with the Israelites, 1. King. 18.

So to speake the truth in the heart, is to [p] confesse with the mouth, and to beleeue in the heart: and to doe the thing which is right vnto God, is to reiect all [q] doctrines of deuils, and all [r] voluntarie religions of men, and to serue him according to the prescript of his holy faith, and not after the conceits of our owne vaine fancie.

Thus a true Christian is described often elsewhere, to wit, one that is [s] iust and feares God, outwardly to the world iust, inwardly to himselfe godly. For his workes, iust in his dealing with men: for his faith, deuout in seruing of God. Or in plainer termes, a good member of the Church, is one that [t] holds the true faith, and keepes a good conscience. To these two heads all the marks mentioned in this Psalme may be referred: for walking vprightly before God, and speaking the truth in the heart, are the workes of true faith: and abstaining from all euill in generall, and in more particular from deceit, slander, breach of oath, vsurie, bribes, are the fruits of a good conscience. So likewise when our blessed Sauiour told his followers, that they might [u] know false prophets by their fruits, his meaning was vndoubtedly that they might discerne them as well by the fruits of their learning, as by the fruits of their life: by their doctrines as well as by their doings: [x] ex malis moribus & malo dogmate: by their doctrines, as preaching fables, 1. Tim. 4 4. teaching things which they ought not, for filthie lucres sake, Tit. 1. 11. by their doings, as being [y] louers of their owne selues, couetous, boasters, proud, cursed speakers, disobedient to parents, vnthankefull, vnholy, without naturall affection, truce-breakers, false accusers, intemperate, fierce, despisers of them which are good, traitors, headie, high-minded, louers of pleasure more than louers of God, hauing a shew of godlinesse, but haue denied the power thereof in their lewd life,

The descriptions of Paul answer the characters of Dauid in euerie point: an hypocrite saith, Paul, turneth his itching eares from the truth, and is giuen ouer vnto fables: but a Christian, saith Dauid, walketh vprightly, speaking the truth in his heart: an hypocrite, saith Paul, is proud, a boaster, headie high-minded: and a louer of himselfe: but a true Christian, saith Dauid, sets not by himselfe, but is lowly in his owne eyes: an hypocrite, saith Paul, is couetous: but a true Christian, saith Dauid, gines not his money vpon vsurie, nor takes a reward against the innocent: an hypocrite, saith Paul, is a Truce-breaker; but a true Christian saith Dauid, is master of his oath and word, he sweareth vnto his neighbour, and disappointeth him not, although it be to his owne hindrance: an hypocrite, saith Paul, is a cursed speaker, a false accuser, intemperate, fierce; but a true Christian, saith Dauid, will neither vent a slander himselfe, nor entertaine a reproach from another against his neighbour: an hypocrite, saith Paul, is a despiser of those which are good; but a true Christian, saith Dauid, maketh much of them that feare the Lord: an hypocrite, saith Paul, is a traitor, vnthankefull, vnholy, louing pleasure more than God; but a true Christian, saith Dauid, doth the thing which is right, giuing euerie one his due, God, his neighbour, and himselfe: so farre neglecting pleasure, that he liues [z] soberly toward himselfe; so far abhorring vngodlinesse, that he liues religiously toward God; so farre abstaining from vnthankefulnes and trecherie, that he liues righteously toward his neighbour. To conclude, an hypocrite, saith Paul, hath a shew of godlinesse without the vertue; but a true Christian, saith Dauid, doth all these things, and neuer falleth away.

In this Catalogue the speciall vertues answer the generall as branches of the same, for he which is vpright, is not partiall, but behaueth himselfe toward men, as they behaue themselues towards God, making much of those that feare the Lord, and despising

[l] Psal. 119. 1.
[m] Ioh 17. 3.
[n] Heb. 12. 13.
[o] Gal. 2. 24.
[p] Rom. 10 9.
[q] 1. Tim. 4. 1.
[r] Col. 2 23.
[s] Iob 1. 1. Luke 2. 25.
[t] 1. Tim. 1. 19.
[u] Matth 7. 16.
[x] Melanct. postil. Dom 8. post. Trinit. Idem Iansen. Concord cap. 43.
[y] 2. Tim. 3.
[z] Tit. 2 12.

despising those that contemne the Lord. He that is iust is not iniurious to his neighbour in vsuries and briberie: he that speaketh the truth in his heart, will obserue both oath and promise, though it be to his owne hinderance, detesting also slander in himselfe and other.

I doe not intend to treat of euery marke mentioned here seuerally, the two chiefe vertues here required in a Christian are vprightnesse of heart, and abstaining from couetousnesse. The Hebrew Thamim is vsually translated perfit, [a] not that it signifieth such a one as is altogether free from sinne, or is endued with a compleat righteousnesse of his owne, so this marke could agree to no man liuing, for it is said in the Psalme going before, that all men are gone out of the way, being altogether abhominable, and that there is none that doth good, no not one. [b] Who can say his heart is cleane? [c] in many things all offend. [d] If we say we haue no sinne, we deceiue our selues, and the truth is not in vs. But it doth import one which in the desires and purposes of his heart is free from hypocrisie, dissimulation and guile, whom our other translations aptly call one that walketh vprightly. So we read of King Asa, 2. Chron. 15. 17. that he had a perfit heart all his dayes, and yet in the very next Chapter foure faults of his are recorded together: 1. that he rested vpon Benhadad King of Aram, and not in the Lord: 2. that he committed the Lords Prophet to prison: 3. that he oppressed certaine of the people: 4. that in his sickenesse he trusted in the Physitians more than in God. So Noah is said, Gen. 6. 9. to haue beene iust and perfect among the men of his age, [e] that is, vpright, entire, sincere, no dissembler or hypocrite, [f] beneuolous and solicitous to doe the thing that is right. Yet we finde, Gen. 9 21. that Noah once was drunken with wine. So Iob, Dauid, Ezechias, are Chronicled for perfect, that is, vpright men, who notwithstanding had their seuerall faults and falls. The perfection signified in this word is not so much to be measured by the goodnesse of the deed or outward work, as by the vnfained will and vpright endeauour aspiring toward perfection, because the Lord (accepting the desire for the deed) [h] esteemeth of the sincere will in his children for perfect obedience, [i] insomuch that vprightnesse euery where in the old testament goeth vnder the name of perfection, and those things are said to be done with our whole heart and with a perfect heart, which are done with an vpright and entire heart. In a word, forwardnesse of heart, and frowardnesse of heart, as [k] Salomon teacheth, are opposite, they that are of a froward heart are abomination to the Lord, but they that are forward and vpright in their waies are his delight. He then is said to walke vprightly before God, whose heart is [l] right in the sight of God. Hypocrites are δίψυχοι double minded men, as [m] S. Iames aptly termes them, hauing as our [n] Prophet speakes, an heart, and an heart, going saith the [o] Wiseman two manner of wayes: but a true Christian hath a single and a sincere heart, [p] he plants not his vineyard of diuers sorts of seed, he sowes not his field with diuers kinds of corne, he plowes not with an Oxe and an Asse together, he weares no garments of [q] Linsie-woolsie, but hath vprightnesse and [r] truth in his inward parts. So Noah, Abraham, Isaac, and other are said to walke before God, in that day carried themselues as in the sight of God, admitting him as a witnesse and a Iudge of all their actions and passions. And in the song of Zacharie we are said to be redeemed from the hand of all our spirituall enemies to this end that we should serue the Lord in holinesse and righteousnesse before him, that is, not as in the sight of men who see but our outside, but as in Gods presence, who seeth and respects our heart. He that [s] hungreth and thirsteth after righteousnesse is accepted before God for righteous; he that vnfainedly desires to beleeue fully, saying, I [t] beleeue, Lord helpe my vnbeleefe, hath a true faith, and effectuall to saluation. For euen as a Palsie man is able to stretch out his hand to receiue the gift of a King as well as another which is more sound: so weake faith, if it proceed from an vpright heart, as it were with a shaking hand apprehends the sure mercies and promises of God for the pardon of sinne as truly (though not as strongly) as great faith.

In like manner he walketh vprightly before men, whose conuersation is not [u] in fleshly wisdome, but in [x] singlenesse of heart, [y] wise vnto that which is good, but simple vnto that which is euill. If any man among you (quoth [z] Paul) seeme to be wise

[a] Melanct. Mollerus.
[b] Pro. 20. 9.
[c] Iames 3. 2.
[d] 1. Ioh. 1, 8.
[e] Caluin. in Gen. 6.
[f] Aquin. post. in loc.
[g] 2. Cor. 8. 12.
[h] Caluin. vbi sup.
[i] Dr. Downame in loc.
[k] Prou. 11. 20.
[l] Acts 8. 21.
[m] Iames. 1. 8.
[n] Psal 12. 2.
[o] Eccles. 2. 13.
[p] Deut. 22. 9.
[q] Leuit. 19. 19.
[r] Psal. 51. 6.
[s] Matth. 5 6.
[t] Marke 9. 24.
[u] 2. Cor. 1. 12.
[x] Act. 2. 46. Colos. 3. 22.
[y] Rom 16. 19.
[z] 1. Cor. 3. 18.

wise in this world, let him be a foole that he may be wise, for the wisdome of this world is foolishnesse with God; he would not haue simple men to be fooles, but that wise men ought to be simple, for true wisdome is pure, without hypocrisie, tempered with the [a] simplicitie of Doues On the contrarie, the worlds wisdome consisting of dissembling and deceit, is by the iudgement of [b] S. Iames, earthly, carnall, and deuilish. In respect of this simplicitie, Christ is often termed in holy Scriptures a lambe, and his followers not wolues of foxes, but sheepe: for the most infallible character of a true Israelite is to be simplex quasi sine plica, without any doubling in his dealing, as Christ of [c] Nathaniel, A man in whom is no guile.

He walketh also vprightly toward himselfe, who suffers not sinne to [d] reigne in his mortall bodie, giuing his members as weapons of vnrighteousnesse, obeying fleshly lusts that fight against the soule; but in sinning is rather a [e] patient than an agent, a pressed souldier of sinne, than a voluntarie, saying with Paul, Rom. 7. 19. I doe not the good things which I would, but the euill which I would not, that doe I. See Gospell 15. Sunday after Trinitie.

Well then, if thou walke before God in truth and sinceritie without hypocrisie, toward thy selfe and other in simplicitie without dissembling and guile: blessed art thou, for albeit thy faith be weake, and thy life full of infirmitie, yet the pure in heart shall see God, Matth. 5. 8. as now thou dost soiourne in Gods tabernacle, so thou shalt one day dwell vpon his holy hill. On the contrarie, dost thou walke hypocritically toward God, dissemblingly toward thy neighbour, deceitfully toward thine owne selfe: then vnlesse thou repent, most fearefull is thy case, for thou hast no part in the doctrine of saluation, or in the communion of Saints, but thy portion is assigned with hypocrites, where is weeping and gnashing of teeth, Matth. 24. 51.

As vprightnesse is the prime vertue commended here, so couetousnesse the chiefe vice condemned, [f] either for that it was and is the most vsuall and familiar sinne among the Iewes, or else for that as [g] S. Paul teacheth, it is the root of all euill.

Now the Prophet giueth instances against couetousnesse in
- Bargaines,
  - Lawfull, He that sweareth vnto his neighbour and disappointeth him not.
  - Vnlawfull, He that hath not giuen his money vpon vsurie.
- Bribes, He that hath not taken reward against the innocent.

The man of God ought to flee these things, 1. Tim 6. 11. as a [h] man, but a man of God especially, whose [i] treasure, [k] minde [l] conuersation is in heauen. He that desires to dwell on high, and to rest vpon Gods holy mountaine, must in singlenesse of heart despise the gaine of oppression, and shake his hands from holding of bribes, Esay 33. 15.

Who so doth these things] In this Epiphonema concluding the whole discourse, two points are to be considered.

1. The partie to whom this priuiledge belongeth, he that doth these things.
2. What this priuiledge is, he shall neuer fall or be remoued.

The Prophet doth not say, [m] he that heares these things, or he that knowes these things, or he who can discourse of these things; but he that doth these things: [n] for as we iudge of the corporall health of the heart, not by the words of the mouth, or colour of the countenance, but by the pulse of the arme: so iudgement is made of the spirituall soundnesse and vprightnesse of the heart, not so much by words, or looks, as by the fruits of the hands. He (saith our Sauiour) shall enter into the kingdome of heauen, that doth the will of my Father which is in heauen, Matth. 7. 21. [o] Blessed are they that heare the word of God and keepe it. [p] If yee know these things, happy are ye if yee doe them. If a man had as great skill in Diuinitie, as Varro had in Philosophie, [q] who read so much, as it was admired how he could write any thing; againe wrote so much as another could hardly read: [r] though he could speake with the tongues of men and Angels, and had not loue, he were but as sounding brasse, or a tinkling cymball, a very nothing in comparison of those things here required in a true member of the Church and inheritor of heauen.

But

[a] Matth. 10. 16.
[b] Iames 3. 15.
[c] Ioh. 1. 47.
[d] Rom 6. 12.
[e] 1 Iohn 3. 9. Non facit peccatum quia patitur potius. Bernard. de nat. & dignit. diuin. amoris, cap. 6.
[f] Bellar in loc.
[g] 1. Tim 6. 10.
[h] See Epist. 3. Sund in Lent.
[i] Matth 6. 20.
[k] Coloss. 3. 2.
[l] Philip 3. 20.
[m] Caluin. Mollerus.
[n] Dr. Downame.
[o] Luke 11. 28.
[p] Iohn 13. 17.
[q] August. de Ciuit. Dei. lib. 6. cap. 2.
[r] 1. Cor. 13. 1.

But here we must obserue, that these things are not the meritorious causes of our iustification and eternall happines, but rather signes and effectes of the same, following such as shall one day rest vpon Gods holy hill: for as Doctor [f] Seton preached in the daies of King Henrie the eight, If good works bring one iot or tittle toward thy iustifying, then Christ is not a sole Sauiour, and a full iustifier: which he proued by a familiar example; put the case (saith he) that I haue two seruants, one called Iohn, and the other Robert, and I promise to send you on a day twenty pounds by Iohn my seruant, & at the day appointed I send you by Iohn nineteene pounds nineteene shillings eleuen pence halfe penny farthing, and there lacketh one farthing onely which Robert doth bring thee, and so thou haue the twenty pound euery farthing, yet will I aske if I be true of my promise or no, and you may answer no, because I promised to send thee that whole twenty by Iohn, and did not, for there lacked a farthing which Robert brought. In like manner if thy works do merit, or bring one little iot or tittle toward thy iustification, if they bring but one farthing, then is God false of his promise, who said, [t] in thy seed shall all people be blessed: he said not in thy [u] seeds, nor in the workes of thy seeds, but in thy seed, hereby meaning only Christ our [x] only mediator, [y] righteousnesse, sanctification, and redemption. [z] That wherewith a man fulfilleth the Law declareth him iustified, but that which giues him wherewith to fulfill the Law iustifieth him.

Moreouer, it is plaine that this conclusion includes the whole description, the which as I haue shewed, consisteth of faith as well as good workes, as if our Prophet should haue said, he which is grounded in Faith, and rooted in Charity, beleeuing thus, and louing thus, (as I haue declared) shall neuer be remoued.

The priuiledge it selfis, he shall neuer be remoued: the which is repeated often in the Scriptures, as Psal. 55.23. the Lord shall not suffer the righteous to fall for euer. And Psalm. 112.6. the good man shall neuer be remoued, Prouerbs 10.30. The righteous shall neuer be remoued, Prouerbs 12.3. A man cannot be established by wickednesse, but the root of the righteous shall not be moued. This priuiledge so properly belongs to the sound Christian, as that to the holy Ghost in this hymne it is all one to be a sound Christian, and to be such a one who shall neuer be remoued: For when Dauid had asked God, who shall soiourne in thy Tabernacle, and who shall rest vpon thy holy mountaine, that is, by what tokens is a true subiect of thy kingdome discerned from the children of this world; the Lord maketh answer, he that walketh vprightly, doing that which is right, &c. and when he concludes, in stead of those words (he is a soiourner in my Tabernacle, and one that shall rest vpon my holy hill) he doth vse these to the same sense, he shall neuer be remoued: insinuating hereby that euery sound and vpright Christian is such an one as shall neuer be remoued: for the conclusion is [a] answerable to the beginning, the question in the beginning is who shall soiourne, who shall rest, &c. and the conclusion of Gods answer to the question is, he that doth these things shall euer rest in my kingdome, and neuer be remoued.

The priuiledge then of a good Christian here mentioned is [b] like to that of Paul, 1 Tim. 4. 8. Godlinesse hath the promise of the life present, and of that which is to come: for the Lord said in the [c] old testament to Father Abraham, I will be thy God and the God of thy seed after thee, that is, thy protector, buckler and exceeding great reward, Gen. 15. 1. So Christ in the new Testament, I will not leaue you [d] comfortlesse, [e] whosoeuer forsaketh house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands for my sake and the Gospels; he shall receiue an hundred fold now at this present with persecutions, and in the world to come euerlasting life. [f] First seeke the kingdome of God and the righteousnesse thereof, and all things appertaining to this life shall be ministred vnto you. That which our Prophet speakes of the whole Church in the 46. Psalme, [g] may be well applied vnto euery particular man and member of the same, God is his strength, a very present helpe in trouble therefore will he not feare though the earth be moued, and though the hills be carried into the midst of the Sea, though the waters rage and swell, and though the mountaines shake at the tempests of the same, the Lord of hosts is with him, and the God of Iacob is his refuge, whatsoeuer he doth or suffereth in this life. [h] His heart is established, and will not shrinke, as being assured that [f] Fox Martyr. fol. 1100.

[t] Gen 22.18.
[u] Gal 3.16.
[x] 1 Tim.2.5.
[y] 1 Cor.1.30.
[z] Tyndale obedience of a Christian, pag. 116.

[a] Euthym Steuchus Genebrard.

[b] Tileman. Strigelius.

[c] Gen.17.7.

[d] Iohn 14. 8.
[e] Mark.10.29.

[f] Matth.6.33.

[g] Caluin in loc.

[h] Psal.112.8.

that all things worke together for the best vnto those that loue God, Rom.8.28. and [i] if he shall not be remoued in this earthly Tabernacle, much lesse in that immortall inheritance which is an euerlasting habitation and cannot be shaken, a place free from all change and chance, where shall be no more death, neither sorrow, neither crying, neither paine, Apoc.21.4.

[i] Euthym.

In the 13.chapter of S. Matthew, we read that hypocrites receiue the seed of the word into stony ground where it hath no root, and dureth but a season, for as soone as tribulation or persecution commeth because of the word, such as walke not vprightly before God and men are by and by remoued and offended. [k] It is reported of certaine people in India called Pandoræ, that they haue white hoare heads in their youth as old men, and in their elder age black haire like young men. And Antiochus said of Hermogenes, that he was in his childhood an old man, and in his old age a child. So hypocrites forget the solemne vow they made to the Lord in holy Baptisme, as also those principles of piety wherein they seemed expert vnder their Catechizers, and as they grow vpward in age, they grow downward in grace, verifying the by-word, young Saints, old Deuils. Like the she Woolfe which hath a yerely defect in procreation, for at the first time she beareth fiue young ones, the second time but foure, the third time but three, the fourth time but two, the fift time but one, and then afterward remaineth barren. A little while they seeme very zealous, doing that which is right, and speaking that which is true, but afterward, when any trouble doth arise for the Gospell, they will with [l] Demas embrace this present world, and with Himeneus and Alexander make shipwracke of a good conscience, 1 Tim 1.19.20. the sound Christian on the contrary goeth from [m] strength to strength, and groweth from grace to grace, bringing forth more fruit in his age, Ps. 92.13. like [n] Caleb strong in his old age for gouernment and war, like Ruth shewing more goodnes in the latter end than at the beginning, Ruth 3.10. he may peraduenture [o] depart from grace giuen, and fall into sin, but by Gods assistance he doth rise againe, though he sometime fall foule, yet neuer finally. The [p] seed of God remaineth in him, and howsoeuer it lieth hid for a while, yet shall it afterward breake forth, and bring forth fruit an hundred fold, or sixty fold, or thirty fold.

[k] Ia. Carpenter preparatiue to contentation. pag.229.

[l] 2 Tim.4.10.

[m] Psal.84.7.

[n] Iosua 14.11.

[o] Anglican. confess. art.16.

[p] 1 Ioh.3.9.

Let vs then I beseech you labour to make our calling and election sure, by doing that which is right, and speaking that which is true from our heart, &c. for if we doe these things we shall neuer fall.

Psalme 16.

Preserue me, ô God, for in thee haue I put my trust, &c.

THis Hymne fitly followes the two former in nature so well as in number, for whereas our Prophet had said in the fourteenth, that all men are gone out of the way, none doing good; and in the fifteenth, that Almightie God requireth vprightnesse of heart, and a perfect obedience to his lawes, of such as shall one day rest vpon his holy hill, he commeth in this sixteenth to set downe the meanes by which our sins are forgiuen, and a compleat righteousnesse is giuen vnto vs, and that is Christ our blessed Sauiour, who [q] died for our sinnes, and is risen againe for our iustification: for of his glorious resurrection and ascension, Saint Peter Acts 2. [r] and Saint Paul Acts 13. expound the chiefe parts and passages of this excellent Psalme.

[q] Rom.4.25.

[r] From verse 25 to 33.

[s] Verse 35.

The

The whole may be [u] parted into a
- Prayer, [t] consisting of a
  - Proposition, vers. 1. Preserue me, ô God, for in thee haue I put my trust.
  - Narration,
    - 1. Per thesin. in that the Lord is
      - God, vers. 2.
      - Good vnto the saints and such as excel in vertue, v. 3
    - Per Hypothesin, vers. 4, 5, 6, 7.
- Thanksgiuing for blessings in
  - Present possession, as
    - [x] Righteousnesse, vers. 8.
    - Peace, vers. 9.
    - Ioy in the Holy Ghost, vers. 14.
  - Assured expectation,
    - Resurrection of the flesh, vers. 11.
    - Euerlasting life. v. 12

The last verse then is the first in our Churches intent, and that which vpon this day concerneth vs most, as treating of Christs happy path and passage from his Crosse to his Crowne, from his graue to his glory, from his grieuous paines in this earthly tabernacle, to his ioyous pleasures at Gods right hand vpon that holy mountaine for euermore.

Wherein obserue,
1. The giuer, thou shalt shew me the path of life.
2. The gift commended, in that it is a life, and that not as this, full of trouble, but of ioy, and that ioy not one onely, but many, [y] pleasures in the plurall, and those not faint, intermingled with aduersitie, but full and free from all vnhappinesse, a fulnesse of ioy, and that not only for a little while, but for euermore.

The paines of hell (as a [z] right reuerend father of our Church obserued acutely) make a fourefold impression in the soule of men. 1. A carefull feare that declineth them. 2. A doubtfull feare that conflicteth with them. 3. A desperate feare that shrinketh vnder them. 4. A damned feare that suffereth them: of all which our blessed Sauiour had only the first kinde, to wit, a feare mouing him in his purpose, not remouing him from his purpose. For, saith our Prophet here, his heart was glad, his glory reioyced, his flesh also rested in hope, because God was alway before him at his right hand, shewing him in his greatest agonie, the path of life. God is the [a] Lord of life, giuing vs the life of nature, for [b] in him we liue, and moue, and haue our being; giuing vs the life of grace, for [c] he liueth and [d] dwelleth in our hearts by faith; giuing vs the life of glory. for in his presence is fulnesse of ioy, and at his right hand pleasures for euermore. The Lord giueth his children grace and glory, Ps. 84. 12 Grace, which is the path of life: Glory, which is the possession of eternall life. The wages of sin is death, but euerlasting life the gift of God through Iesus Christ our Lord, Rom. 6. 23. whereas the blessed Apostle said, the wages of sinne is death; if our good works had any merit, the sequell of his speech (as [e] S. Augustine notes) should haue beene, the wages of righteousnesse is eternall life: but lest iustice should lift vp it selfe of mans good merit, as mans ill merit is not doubted to be sinne, he saith not so, but eternall life is the gift of God; and lest it should be sought any other way than by the Mediator, he doth adde further, through Iesus Christ our Lord. God did not only shew Christ, [f] how he might verbally dispute of life, but he did actually raise him from the dead, he did not leaue his soule in hell, nor suffer his holy One to see corruption.

And as God raised Christ, euen so Christ in his good time shall raise vs: he which is risen from the dead, and made the [g] first fruits of those that sleepe, hath opened vnto vs the gate of life: for as in Adam all die, so in Christ all shall be made aliue, 1 Cor. 15. 22. he shall change our vile bodie, that it may be fashioned like his glorious body, according to the working, whereby he is able to subdue all things vnto himselfe. Eternall life then is the gift of God, through Christ, God shewed Christ, and Christ sheweth vs the path of life.

The

[t] Tremellius:

[u] Mollerus, Wilcox.

[x] Answerable to that of Paul, Rom. 14. 17.

[y] For so most of our translations & other also read.

[z] B Bilson ser. of Christs suffering.

[a] Acts 3. 15.
[b] Acts 17. 28.
[c] Gal. 2. 20.
[d] Ephes. 3. 17.

[e] Epist. 105.

[f] Mollerus.

[g] 1 Cor. 15. 20.

The gift is answerable to the giuer, as the Lord is great, so great his reward in heauen. It is called here first a life, and what is more sweet than life, [h] skinne for skin, and all that a man hath will he giue for his life. The damned in hell endure that which is euerlasting, but because vita non est viuere, sed valere, for as much as they be perpetually tied to torments, enforced euer to suffer that they would not, and neuer able to doe any thing they would; their being is termed in holy Scripture not a life, but a death: and as the [i] second death is infinitely worse than the first, euen so the life of glory doth excell infinitely the life of nature. For the life present is [k] eui brevis, & boni sterilis, of [l] short continuance and full of trouble: but the life which is led in Gods presence is a ioy, where pleasures are for euermore. Call you this (quoth [m] Ambrose) a life, where there is the shadow of death, Luk. 1.79. the gates of death, Psa. 9.13. the body of death, Rom. 7.24 is it a good life which is so full of labour in our actions, and of dolour in our passions, that euen in [n] laughing the heart is sorrowfull, and the end of mirth is heauinesse? No, no, Beloued, this world is rather the [o] region of the dead, than the land of the [p] liuing, where men faint as hauing no free ioy without vexation of spirit: but in that other life there shall be no more crying or dying, but a fulnesse of ioy in all things, and at all times: a fulnesse of ioy in all the faculties and powers of the soule, and in all the senses and parts of the body.

Concerning the soule, there shall be fulnesse of ioy to the vnderstanding, fulnesse of ioy to the will, and fulnesse of ioy to the memorie: eternall happinesse is called in the schoole vision, because the blessed Saints with eies of their minde see God (as [q] Paul speakes) euen face to face, beholding him (saith S. Iohn) as he is, 1 Ioh. 3.2. the which is so full of ioy, that the [r] Prophet and [s] Apostle tell vs expressly, mans eie hath not seene, mans eare hath not heard, mans heart not sufficiently conceiued it. The which is not an hyperbolicall amplification, but a simple truth, because mans eie, eare, heart, comprehend now those things only which are finite, but the vision of God is the fruition of [t] inaccessible light, and infinite good, for to behold the face of God, and to behold all that which is good, is all one, Exod. 33.18.19.

Yea, but you will obiect haply, shall euery Saint enioy Gods presence so fully, that he shall vnderstand and know so much as God knoweth of himselfe? answer is made, that the most incomprehensible Diuine essence shall appeare to the Saints vnderstanding [u] tota sed non totaliter: in this life we shall attaine to such a knowledge of God as is fit, and in the life to come we shall haue that which is full, euen so much as any created vessell is able to containe, yet none shall euer totally comprehend that incomprehensible Trinity, [x] none can, as it selfe, know it selfe: in his light shall we see light, saith our [y] Prophet: as then we cannot see the Sunne, but by the light of the Sunne: so we cannot see God, but as he doth enlighten vs, and [z] as some see more of the Sunne than other, according to the disposition of their eies: euen so the Saints enioying Gods presence see some more, some lesse, according to the gift of glory correspondent to their capacity, yet all so much as that they shall be satisfied with the plenteousnesse of his house, drinking of his pleasures as out of a riuer, Psal. 36.8.

He that brings a little pitcher to the riuer may fill it, and he that brings a greater can haue no more water than his vessell is able to hold, he cannot exhaust the riuer and carry away with him all the water: euen so the least in the kingdome of heauen hath a full sight of God, and he which is greatest in glory can haue but a fulnesse of ioy: his [a] cup can doe no more than ouerflow, he cannot as it were drie the riuer of God; his knowledge, being at the fullest, is rather an apprehending than a [b] comprehending of the most infinite maiestie.

In this world our eie sees the glorious lights of heauen, and many wonderfull creatures vpon earth, and in the deepe: but our vnderstandings eie seeth a very little or nothing, it knowes but in [c] part, it knowes not the soueraigne vertues of all hearbes, it knowes not the powerfull operations of all stars, it knowes not the flowing and ebbing of all Seas, it knowes not so much as it owne selfe, for our soule cannot exactly define what a soule is. Consider then I beseech you, what a fulnesse of ioy will it be when as we shall see God in all things, and all things in God, when as our minde seeing him who seeth all in heauen, and earth, and hell, aboue and below, shall vnderstand

h Iob 2.4.

i Apoc. 21.8.
k Paulinus Epist. lib. 1. Epist. 3.
l Iob 14.1.
m Lib. de bono mortis, cap. 12.
n Prou. 14 13.
o Ierem. 31.40.
p Psal. 27.15.

q 1 Cor. 13.12.
r Esay 64 4.
s 1 Cor. 2.9.

t 1 Tim. 6.16.

u Io. de Combis Comp. Theolog. lib. 7. cap. 26.

x See Martialis ad Burdegal. Epist. 10. & Thom. part. 1. quæst. 12. art. 8.
y Psal. 36.9.
z See Io. de Comb. vbi. sup. & Claudius Vi-exmontius institut. de pœnitentia part. 6. cap. 8.

a Psal. 23.5.
b Pet. de palude enar. Euang. in die S. Matthiæ.

c 1 Cor. 13.12.

vnderstand all the mysteries of faith, and all the secrets of nature, so far forth as may giue contentment to the soule, or adde any thing to the pleasure which endures for euermore: yea, the very torments of damned wretches in hell fire shall administer occasion of ioy to the Saints in heauen, according to that of the [d] Prophet, the righteous shall reioyce when he sees the vengeance, he shall wash his foot steps in the blood of the vngodly: the righteous reioyce not as insulting ouer their miserie, but as exalting Gods iustice, because they shall at the last day wash their feet in the blood of the vngodly, [e] that is, whereas Gods elect out of an vnfained zeale desired but (as it were) one drop of vengeance vpon their persecutors in this world, that they might feare the Lord, and [f] know themselues to be but men: In the time of their deliuerance they shall see such abundance of their enemies bloud, that they may bathe (as it were) themselues in it; [g] or their good workes shall appeare more cleane being compared in that day with the foule and filthy sinnes of the reprobate.

[d] Psal. 58. 10. Ita Melancthon, Mollerus, Strigelius exponunt de vita futura.
[e] Luther.
[f] Psal. 9. 20.
[g] Bellarm. in Psal. 57. & de felicit. aetern. lib. 4 cap. 2.

Concerning the will of the Saints enioying Gods presence, two things especially beget in it a fulnesse of ioy: the first is a most ardent loue of God and their neighbour: the second an incomparable contentation, and satietie.

Touching loue, Saint [h] Paul affirmes, that it is the greatest of the three Theologicall vertues: Now (saith he) abideth Faith, Hope, and Charitie, but the greatest of these is Charitie: [i] not the greatest in euery respect absolutely, but only greatest in latitude of vse, and continuance, for when once we shall enioy Gods presence, Faith is at an end, which apprehended Gods promise concerning eternall saluation, and Hope is at an end which expected it with inuincible patience, but Charitie shall alway continue betweene God and vs an euerlasting bond: Now Loue is like sawce to make pleasant the things loued, for he which is in loue doth esteeme the things he loues at an extraordinarie rate, ioying in their sight, and grieuing to be depriued of their vse. So Parents out of their abundant loue thinke their owne children (albeit neuer so deformed in their members, and lamed in their mindes) the wisest and the fairest among ten thousand. So many men are so bewitched (as it were) with the conuersation of their companions (albeit worthlesse and idle) that they cannot endure to liue without them, or to be long from them. A fond loue is ready to take vp this note concerning his matchlesse mate,

[h] 1 Cor. 13. 13.
[i] See Epistle Quinquagesima Sunday.

[k] Siue ad fœlices vadam post funera campos,
Seu ferar ardemes rapidi phlegetontis ad vndas,
Nec sine te fœlix ero, nec tecum miser vnquam.

[k] Mantuan.

In this world our [l] soule longeth after God, and our delight is vpon the [m] Saints, and vpon such as excell in vertue, what a fulnesse of ioy then will it be to conuerse with Almightie God vpon his holy mountaine, whom in this earthly tabernacle we loued aboue all things; and with the godly whom we loued as our selues, and that with assurance neuer to be pulled away from their sweet and euer-blessed companie: without question it is one great torment to the damned in hell fire, that they must of necessitie conuerse with Abbadon, euen the deuill himselfe, the destroyer of their soules and bodies, I say, with the deuill the first author of all their mischiefe, and with hatefull impious wretches his agents in procuring all their miseries. On the contrarie, what an vnspeakable pleasure will it be, when at Gods right hand we shall enioy the long wished for companie, not only of some speciall friends and acquaintance, whom in this life we best affected, and of all the Patriarkes, and Prophets, and Apostles, and Martyrs, and Confessors, whom we most honoured; but also the most happy presence of Christ himselfe, of God himselfe, of the whole sacred Trinitie, whom we desired euer to loue with all our heart, with all our soule, with all our minde, yea with all the strength of all our heart, with all the strength of all our soule, with all the strength of all our minde.

[l] Psal. 42. 1.
[m] Psal. 16. 3.

The second thing that begets infinite ioy to the will of the Saints, is an incomparable contentation and satietie without any labouring or loathing. In this valley of teares no man is content with his owne fortune, though his lot be faire, yet not full, albeit euery man hath a good deale more than he deserues, yet none so much as he desires. n Horace doth aske the question,

Quo fit, Mecænas, vt nemo quam sibi sor tem
Seu ratio dederit, seu sors obiecerit, illâ
Contentus vivat?

And o Salomon answereth it, that in this world the eye cannot be satisfied with seeing, nor the eare filled with hearing, nor the heart contented absolutely with vnderstanding the multitude of wisdome. p All things haue an emptinesse and extreme vanitie, purchasing vnto the possessors nothing but anguish and vexation of spirit, but in heauen euery Saint is filled with the q plenteousnesse of Gods house, when I awake (saith our Prophet) after thy likenesse I shall be satisfied with it, Psal. 17.16. in Gods Paradise the will enioyes euery thing that it wil, vpon his holy hill is rest, at his right hand such vnspeakable pleasure for euermore, that Absaloms beautie seemes there deformitie; Salomons wisdome, follie; Cresus opulent estate, beggerie; the deepe skill of Aristotle, but a dull ignorance; the strength of Sampson, but a broken staffe; the laughing humour of Democritus, but a dolefull dorion: in Gods presence there is such a fulnesse of ioyes in euery thing, as the world cannot afford in any thing.

Now for the Saints memorie, the recordation of things as well concerning themselues as other, occasioneth infinite matter of contentation and ioy. 1. The remembrance of Gods vnutterable mercies, as well priuatiue as positiue, from euerlasting to euerlasting, cannot but breed a fulnesse of ioy, when as the righteous at Gods right hand, r call to minde how the Lord hath euer preuented them, in benedictionibus dulcedinis, with the riches of his glory, and blessings of his goodnesse, spirituall, corporall, naturall, supernaturall, temporall, eternall. If the Saints in Gods presence remember not these things, how saith our Prophet elsewhere, s I will sing the mercies of the Lord for euer? The which hymne is so fit, that nothing, saith t Augustine, is more pleasant to the Citie of God, as magnifying the merits of Christs grace, by whose bloud only the Saints are saued.

Againe, the recordation of all other changes and chances in this world, how Gods high and holy prouidence u reacheth from one end to another, and ordereth all things sweetly, cannot but administer exceeding ioy to the memory. This in the conceit of x some Diuines is that violent floud of the riuer, making glad the Citie of God, Psalm. 46.4. For what is the course of things in this world violently passing away without intermission euery day, but as the speedie streames of y riuers running into the Sea. While the water floweth, and time passeth, a great many men haue strange disputes of Gods inimitable prouidence, yea the deare Saints of God while they soiourne in this house of clay haue beene troubled sometimes at the raging and swelling of this streame. My feet (quoth our z Prophet) were almost gone, my treadings had well nigh slipt, and my heart was grieued to behold the wicked in such prosperity, they come in no misfortune like other folke, neither are they plagued like other men. And this is the cause that they be so holden with pride, and ouerwhelmed with cruelty, their eyes swell with fatnesse, and they doe what they lust. Loe these are the vngodly, these prosper in the world, and these haue riches in possession, and I said, then haue I cleansed my heart in vaine, and washed my hands in innocency. So the Prophet a Ieremie, O Lord if I dispute with thee thou art righteous: yet let me talke with thee of thy iudgements: Wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper? Why are they in wealth that rebelliously transgresse? So the Prophet b Abakuk, O Lord how long shall I cry, and thou wilt not heare, euen cry out vnto thee for violence, and thou wilt not helpe? Wherefore dost thou looke vpon the transgressors, and holdest thy tongne, when the wicked deuoureth the man that is more righteous then he? But when once there shal be no c time more, when as the riuer is run into the Sea, what a fulnesse of ioy wil it be to the memory to recall at Gods right hand al things past, & to read cleerly the reasons of them all in the booke of his holy prouidence: there we shall easily read why God permitted the first Man & the first Angel to fall, & why he restored not againe Lucifer so wel as Adam: there we shall easily read why God had chosen Abrahams posterity for his d peculiar people, whom he foresaw would proue e stiffe necked, of vncircumcised n Ser. lib. 1. Satyre 1.

o Eccl. 1.8.18.
p See Gospell 1. Sun after Epiph.
q Psal. 36.8.
r Psal 21.4.
s Psal. 89.1. See notes vpon this in the former part, pag. 38.39.40 t De Ciuit Dei, lib. 22. cap. vlt.
u Wisd. 8.1.
x Bellar. de sæl. cit. æterna, lib 4. cap. 4.
y Eccles. 1.7.
z Psalm 73.
a Ier. 12.1. b Abak. 1.2.13
c Apoc. 10.6. d Deut. 7.6. Exod. 19 4.
e Acts 7.51.

vncircumciſed hearts and eares: there we ſhall eaſily read why the wicked are in ſo great proſperitie (though it be now hard to vnderſtand) namely, that God ſets them in ſlipperie places, and that their end is ſudden and fearefull, Pſalm. 73. 17. there we ſhall eaſily reade why the iuſt endured ſo much affliction in this world, namely, that they might [f] reigne with Chriſt as they did ſuffer with him, and that euery Saint in Gods preſence might ſing with our Prophet, Pſal. 94. 19. In the multitude of the ſorrowes that I had in mine heart, thy comforts haue refreſhed my ſoule.

[f] 2 Tim. 2. 11.

Hitherto concerning the fulneſſe of ioyes in the powers of the ſoule. I come now to treat of the pleaſures in the ſenſes of the bodie, beginning with ſeeing as the quickeſt and nobleſt. Our eyes then in Gods preſence ſhall haue ioy, 1. In beholding our owne vile bodie made like to Chriſts glorious bodie, Philip. 3 21. whoſe glorified bodie paſſeth euen the brightneſſe of the Sunne, Acts 26. 13. Mat. 17. 2. and the iuſt in the kingdome of heauen ſhall [g] ſhine as the Sunne in the firmament, ſo that they ſhall not any more need the light of any torch or candle, for the glory of God is the light of Gods Citie, Reuel. 21. 23.

[g] Dan 12. 3. Matth. 13. 44.

2. Our eyes in Gods preſence ſhall haue ioyes in ſeeing the bleſſed bodies of all the Saints, of the [h] Martyrs eſpecially, whoſe ſcars appeare like ſtars, whoſe wounds are not ſignes of any defect, but enſignes of victorie: ſo that we ſhall happily ſee S. Stephen adorned with as many precious ſtones, as he receiued blowes of ordinarie ſtones on his bodie. See Bellarm de felicitate aterna, lib. 4. cap. 5.

[h] See Auguſt. de Ciuit Dei, lib. 22. cap. 20.

3. Our eyes ſhall haue ioyes in ſeeing our Sauiours precious bodie, for [i] he ſaid to his followers of his bodily preſence, when he was in a mortall eſtate, happy are the eyes that haue ſeene what you ſee, for I ſay vnto you, many Prophets and Kings haue deſired to ſee thoſe things which you ſee, and could not ſee them. And the beloued Diſciple (who drunke wiſdome out of the boſome of our Lord) begins that his excellent Epiſtle (which is vpon the point wholly precepts of loue) with a mention of ſeeing Chriſt, and he repeats the ſame word againe and againe, [k] that which we haue ſeene with our eyes, which we haue looked vpon, and our hands haue handled of the word of life, for the life appeared, and we haue ſeene it, I ſay, that which we haue ſeene and heard declare we vnto you. This ſight is ſo full of ioy, that the [l] Wiſemen of the Eaſt came from farre to worſhip him in his ſwadling clouts; and [m] Nathaniel (in whom was no guile, hearing of Ieſus, earneſtly deſired to ſee him; and [n] Zacheus climed vp on a tree to looke downe vpon him who was higher than heauens; and it was the chiefeſt of S. Auguſtines three wiſhes, that he might haue ſeene Chriſt in the fleſh, and our * deuout and reuerend anceſtors haue reſorted from all climates of the Chriſtian world to the holy Citie, that although they could not ſee their Ieſus, yet they might behold and worſhip where his beautifull and bleſſed feet had trod, where he ſweat, and bled, and cried, and died, where borne, and where buried. ° It would be doubtleſſe a ſight of great delight, to behold a young man ſo comely faire as Abſalom, or ſo generally wiſe as Salomon, or ſo ſtrong as Sampſon, or ſo victorious as Iudas Machabeus, or ſuch a wonder-worker as S. Peter, whoſe very ſhadow was ſoueraigne and healed the ſicke, Acts 5. 15. but if one man endued with all theſe rare vertues and excellencies haply ſhould ariue in this our Countrey, what flocking of all people from all parts of the world would there be to ſee his moſt admirable beautie, wiſdome, valour, ſtrength, workes of wonder? And yet behold the Saints enioying Chriſts preſence, behold a greater than all theſe together, in whom are hid all the [p] treaſures of wiſdome and knowledge, the firſt author of [q] beauty. the King of [r] glory, the Lord of Hoſts, ſtrong in battell, which only doth all great wonders, Pſal. 136. 4.

[i] Luk 10 23.

[k] 1 Iohn 1. 1.

[l] Matth. 2.

[m] Iohn 1. 47.

[n] Luk. 19 4.

* Many doubtleſſe out of deuotion, albeit other out of a ſuperſtitious ignorance.

° See Dionyſius Carthuſ. de quatuor nouiſſ. part. 4. art. 3.

[p] Coloſſ. 2 3.

[q] Wiſd. 13. 3.

[r] Pſal. 24. 8.

4. Our eyes ſhall haue ioyes in beholding the glorious and goodly building of Gods Citie, the which is deſcribed by [s] S. Iohn, for want of other words, to haue a wall of pure gold, and the foundations of the wall to be garniſhed with all manner of precious ſtones, and the twelue gates to be twelue pearles, and that the ſtreets are pure gold as ſhining glaſſe. Or as [t] Tobit in his booke, The ſtreets of Hieruſalem aboue ſhall be paued with Berall, and Carbuncle, and precious ſtones of Ophir. It is reported of [x] Fulgentius in his life, that ſeeing the pompous ſplendor of the Roman Senate, he ſhould cry out, O how beautifull is the celestiall Hierusalem, if terrestriall Rome be so glittering and glorious! Consider then, ô my soule, what a fulnesse of ioy wil it be to behold with immortall eyes all these glories at once, namely, the [y] King of glory, the [z] vessels of glory, the [a] crownes of glory, the [b] thrones of glory, the [c] weight of glory, the whole [d] kingdome of glory.

[s] Apoc. 21.

[t] Cap. 13. v 17

[x] Apud Surium, tom. 1.

Concerning the Saints hearing, there shall be ioy first at their entrance, then afterward in the plenarie possession of Gods presence: at our entrance we shall haue ioyes in hearing the sweet call of our blessed Sauiour, and in hearing the gladsome welcome of our soules vnto our bodies in that day: the ioyfull and blissefull sentence to be pronounced by Christ is, [e] Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you from the foundation of the world. The first word is come, to put them in minde of his first calling, Come you to me that [f] labour and are burdened, and I will ease you: and [g] if any man will come after me, let him denie himselfe, and take vp his crosse and follow me. Now because they harkned to this vocation, he calleth them againe with such another like word, as if he should say, seeing ye came to me to beare my crosse, now come to me to weare my crowne. Seeing you were content to drinke of my cup, it is my pleasure that you sit on my throne. Come now from sojourning in my tabernacle, to dwell and rest vpon mine holy mountaine. Come from the [h] Lebanon of my Church, wherin ye were baptized with vnfained teares of repentance, come from the dens of the Lions, and inhabitations of Tygers, in whose company ye haue suffered many persecutions, come from the [i] great tribulation wherein ye haue liued, washing your robes and making them cleane in my precious bloud: the world held you cursed, esteeming your life [k] madnesse, and your end without honour: but ye are blessed, euen blessed of my father, [l] who hath blessed you with euery kinde of heauenly blessing, heretofore communicating vnto you the gifts of his grace, and now bestowing on you the gifts of his glory. Come therefore to receiue your reward, which is no lesse than a kingdome, not purchased by your owne merit, but prepared by the rich mercies of my Father from all eternitie, who loued you [m] first, euen before ye were borne, [n] when as ye could doe neither good nor euill; I say, prepared for you, not principally prepared for the glorious Angels, and for want of them for you, that ye might enter into the places of those who lost their estates and seats in this kingdome; but it is equally prepared for all the iust, as well men as Angels, euen for you, for your soules, and for your bodies: indeed my first venite, when I called you to weare my yoke, seemed bitter; but this my second venite to weare my crowne, soundeth in your eares a great deale better, come then and take possession of your immortall inheritance, where you shall haue fulnesse of ioyes and pleasure for euermore.

2. In the day of our deliuerance there will be great ioy to heare the ioyous welcomes betweene the soule and the bodie. To the damned soule that commeth vp from hell, a foule, stinking, horrid bodie shall be giuen, partly immortall, and partly passible, that it may euer suffer, and [o] neuer die. When therefore the wretched soule sees this her eternall prison, and as it were new hell, ô what maledictions will the one belch out against another in that first entrance: Cursed be thou bodie (will the soule say) for to pamper and please thee, haue I suffered a great while so many grieuous torments, & now I shall eternally suffer them in the bottomlesse pit with thee. Cursed be thou soule (will the bodie say) for because thou diddest not subdue me to the motions of Gods holy Spirit, I haue seene corruption in the graue, which is the first death, and I am now to suffer with thee horrible tortures in the [p] lake burning with fire and brimstone, which is the second death. In this sort these two miserable companions, that in this life ioyned together to seeke their delights, [q] drawing iniquitie with cords of vanitie, and sinne as it were with cart-ropes, shall in that day be ioyned and knit together like [r] thornes to pricke one another, and to become their owne tormentors and executioners. On the contrarie, to the blessed soule resting in Abrahams bosome, there shall be giuen an immortall, impassible, resplendent, perfect, and glorious bodie. O what an happy meeting will this be, what a sweet greeting betweene the soule and the bodie, the neerest and

[y] Psal. 24.7.
[z] Rom. 9.23.
[a] Apoc 4.4.
[b] Matth. 19.28.
[c] 2 Cor 4 17.
[d] 1 Thess. 2.12.
[e] Matth. 25.34
[f] Matth. 11.28
[g] Matth. 16.24.
[h] Cant. 4.8.
[i] Apoc. 7.14.
[k] Wisd. 5.4.
[l] Ephes. 1.3.
[m] 1 Iohn 4.19.
[n] Rom. 9.11.
[o] Apoc 9.6.
[p] Apoc. 21.7.
[q] Esay 5.28.
[r] Nahum 1.10.

and dearest acquaintance that euer were. What a welcome will that soule giue to her beloued bodie; blessed be thou (will she say) for thou hast aided me to the glory I haue enioyed since I parted with thee, blessed art thou that sufferedst thy selfe to be mortified, [f] giuing thy members as weapons of righteousnesse vnto God. Cheere vp thy selfe, for now the time of labour is past, and the time of rest is come: Thou wast sowen and buried in the dust of the earth with [t] ignominie, but now raised in glory; sowen in weakenesse, but raised in power: sowen a naturall bodie, but raised a spirituall bodie: sowen in corruption, but raised in incorruption. O my deare companion and familiar, we tooke sweet [u] counsell together, we two haue walked together as friends in Gods house, for when I prayed inwardly, thou diddest attend my deuotions with bowed knees and lifted vp hands outwardly. We two haue beene fellow-labourers in the workes of the Lord, we two haue suffered together, and now we two shall euer reigne together, I will enter againe into thee, and so both of vs together will enter into our masters ioy, where we shall haue pleasures at his right hand for euermore.

The Saints entred as it were into the chamber of Gods presence shall haue ioy to their eares in hearing their owne commendation and praise, well done good seruant and faithfull, Matth. 25. 21. and in hearing the diuine language of heauenly Canaan, for our bodies shall be vera & viua, perfect like Christs glorious body, who did both heare other, & speake himself after his resurrection, as it is apparent in the [x] Gospels historie: now then if the words of the wise spoken in due place be like apples of gold with pictures of siluer, Prou. 25. 11. If the mellifluous speech of Origen, the siluer trumpet of Hilarie, the golden mouth of Chrysostome, bewitched as it were their auditorie with exceeding great delight: If the gratious eloquence of heathen Orators (whose tongues were neuer touched with a cole [y] from Gods Altar) could steale away the hearts of their hearers, and carrie them vp and downe whither they would: What a fulnesse of ioy will it be to heare not only the sanctified, but also the glorified tongues of Saints and Angels in the kingdome of glory?

What should I speake of the melodious harmonie which is in Gods presence? S. Iohn in his [z] Apocalyps doth affirme, that Halleluiah is chaunted againe and againe by the whole Quire of heauen, I heard (saith he) a great voice of a great multitude, saying, Halleluiah, saluation, and glory, and honour, and power be to the Lord our God: And againe they said, Halleluiah, and the 24. Elders, and the foure beasts fell downe and worshipped God that sate on the throne, saying, Amen, Halleluiah.

[a] Bonauenture fondly reports at all aduenture, that S. Francis hearing an Angell a little while playing on an harpe, was so moued with extraordinarie delight, that he thought himselfe in another world. O what a fulnesse of ioy then will it be to heare more than twelue legions of Angels, accompanied with a number of happy Saints, which no man is able to number, all at once sing together, Halleluiah, [b] holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almightie, which was, and which is, and which is to come, [c] praise, and honour, and glory, and power be vnto him that sitteth vpon the throne, and vnto the Lambe for euermore: if the voices of mortall men, and the sound of [d] cornet, trumpet, harpe, sackbut, psalterie, dulcimer, and other well tuned instruments of musicke, passing through our dull eares in this world be so powerfull, that [e] all our affections are diuersly transported according to the diuers kinds of harmonie; then how shall we be rauished in Gods presence, when as we shall heare heauenly aires with heauenly eares!

Concerning fulnesse of ioy to the rest of the senses, I finde a very little or nothing in holy Scriptures, and therefore seeing Gods spirit will not haue a pen to write, I may not haue a tongue to speake. Diuines in generall affirme, that the smelling, and taste, and feeling shall haue ioy proportionable to their blessed estate. For this [f] corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortall immortalitie, the bodie which is sowen in weakenesse, is to be raised in power, it is sowen a naturall bodie, but it is raised a spirituall bodie, buried in dishonour, raised in glory: that is, easily capable of good, and (as being impassible) no way subiect to suffer euill, insomuch that it cannot be hurt, if it should be cast into [g] hell fire, no more than Shadrach, Mesech, and Abednego were hurt

[f] Rom 8. 13.

[t] 1 Cor. 15. 43.

[u] Psal. 55. 15.

[x] Matth. 28 9 Luk. 24. 17. Iohn 20. 15. Acts 1. 3.

[y] Esay 6. 6.

[z] Cap 19.

[a] In vita Fran. cap. 5.

[b] Apoc. 4. 8

[c] Apoc. 5. 13.

[d] Dan 3. 5.

[e] August. confes. lib 10. cap. 33.

[f] 1 Cor. 15. 53.

[g] Claud. Vixm. instit. de pœnit. part. 6. cap. vlt.

hurt in the burning ouen, Dan.3. In one word, God is not only to the soules, but also to the bodies of the Saints all in all things; a glasse to their sight, honie to their taste, musicke to their hearing, balme to their smelling. See Io. de Comb. compend. Theolog. lib. 7. cap. 27. 28. Claudius Vixmontius instit de pœnit. part. 6. cap. 8. in fine. Dionysius Carthus. in 4. sent dist. 44. art. 4. Dom. à Soto in 4. sent. dist. 49. quæst. 4. art. 5. Bellarm. de fœlicitate æterna lib. 4. cap. 7. 8.

As heauen affordeth a fulnesse of ioy in all things, euen so likewise a fulnesse of ioyes at all times, for the pleasures at Gods right hand endure not only for a day, or a weeke, or a moneth, or a yeere, or an age; but for euermore. Now saith [b] our Prophet, one day spent in the courts of the Lord is better than a thousand in the tents of vngodlinesse: it may be said of worldly pleasure, so well as of worldly paine, si longus est, leuis est, si grauis est, brevis est, if long, it is but little, if great, but short; like lightning, simul oritur & moritur: but the pleasures at Gods right hand are more, continuing also for euermore. [i] It is reported fabulously, that the ghost of S. Hierome appeared once to S. Augustine, when he was writing a Treatise concerning the fulnesse of ioy which is in Gods presence, saying, ô Augustine, Augustine, what doe you meane, can you [k] measure the waters in your fist, and mete out heauen with your span, or weigh the mountaines in scales, and the hils in a ballance? Remember the text, mans eye hath not seene, mans eare not heard, mans heart not throughly conceiued those things which Almightie God hath prepared for such as loue him. I pray continue your good courses of life, be stedfast and abundant alwayes in the work of the Lord, that you may hereafter vpon Gods holy hill enioy that to the full, which in this earthly tabernacle now you can know but in part. Hauing therefore spoken enough of this argument by way of explication, I come to the doctrines application.

[b] Psal. 84. 10.

[i] Dionys. Carthus. de quatuor nouiss. part 4. art 10. in fine.

[k] Esay 40. 12.

1. This doctrine should stirre vs vp to repentance; for, as the blessed [l] Apostle doth exhort, seeing we haue these promises, let vs cleanse our selues from all filthinesse of the flesh and spirit, and grow vp vnto full holinesse in the feare of God: without holinesse it is impossible to please God, Heb. 12. 14. for without shall be dogs, and enchanters, and whoremongers, and murtherers, and Idolaters, and whosoeuer loueth or maketh lies, Apoc. 22. 15. the works [m] of the flesh are manifest, adulterie, fornication, vncleannesse, wantonnesse, idolatrie, witchcraft, enuie, murther, drunkennesse, and such like, and they that doe such things shall not inherit the kingdome of God; not all that haue done these things once, twice, thrice, for in [n] many things al of vs offend, and euery age euen in the [o] faithfull hath his peculiar fault and follie; but only such as doe, [p] noting a present and a continuall act of doing amisse, as if the spirit should haue said, all they that doe this, and die thus in their sinne without repentance, shall not be inheritors of the kingdome of God. As the [q] Eagle then casteth off her beake, and so renueth her youth, and the [r] Snake strippeth off all her old skin, and so maketh her selfe smooth: euen so he that will enter into the ioyes of God, and rest vpon his holy mountaine, must (as the [s] Scripture speakes) put off the old man, and put on the new, which after God is created in righteousnesse and true holinesse, repenting truly, speedily, steedily.

[l] 2 Cor. 7. 1.

[m] Galat. 5 19.

[n] Iames 3. 2.
[o] Luther. in Galat.
[p] Perkins in Galat.
[q] Psal. 103. 5.
[r] Plin. hist. lib 8. cap 27.
[s] Eph. 4 22. 24.

[t] Foure things are required in true repentance, { Contrition. / Confession. / Satisfaction or amendment of life / Faith.

[t] Church hom. of repentance, part 2. Idem Tindall prolog. in Matth.

For the first, such as eat the bread of wickednesse, and drink the wine of violence, Prou. 4. 17. must haue their diet changed into that of the Prophet [u] Dauid, I haue eaten ashes as it were bread, and mingled my drinke with weeping, and then a broken and a contrite heart is an acceptable sacrifice to God, Psal. 51. 17.

[u] Psal. 102. 9.

2. We must acknowledge our sinnes to God, and man; vnto God, as being the partie most offended, against thee only (saith our Prophet) haue I sinned, and done this euill in thy sight, and therefore haue mercy vpon me, ô God, after thy great goodnesse, and according to the multitude of thy mercies, put away mine offences. And the confession of the Publican (ô God be mercifull vnto me a sinner) is highly commended by Christ, Luk. 18. 14. The Fathers vnto the same purpose say, x Tu agnosce, & Dominus ignoscet, if we confesse our sinnes, God is faithfull and iust of his promise to forgiue vs our sinnes, 1 Ioh. 1. 9. y initium salutis est sui ipsius accusatio, the first degree (saith z Cyprian) of happinesse is not to sinne, and the second to confesse our sinne.

We must acknowledge our faults also to men, as S. Iames teacheth in his Epistle chap. 5. verse 16. confesse your faults one to another, his intent is not to iustifie popish auricular confession vnto the Priests only, for (as a one well obserueth vpon the place) the word one to another, ἀλλήλοις imports plainly that the Priests are bound to confesse themselues vnto the Lay-men, as the Lay-men are bound to confesse themselues vnto the Priests; his meaning is that all men ought acknowledge their faults one to another out of charity, when as they haue trespassed one against another, and vnto some learned and discreet Pastor for comfort and aduice when as they feele their consciences afflicted with any grieuous temptation and trouble, that is the b tenet of our Church, agreeable to the confessions of other reformed Churches, as to the confession of Heluetia, cap. 14. of Bohemiah, cap. 5. of Aspurg, art. 11. of Saxony art. 16. as you may read Harm. confess. sect. 8.

3. To confession of sinne, and contrition for sinne, we must adioyne newnesse of life, making restitution in cases of oppression, and giuing our members as d weapons of righteousnesse to God: otherwise Saint c Augustine telleth vs, non agitur, sed fingitur pœnitentia.

4. To these three commonly set downe by the Schoolmen, our f Church addeth a liuely faith in the worlds Sauiour for the full and free pardon of all our sinnes, without which all the rest is Iudas-like repentance, for Iudas had contrition for his sinne, in that g he repented himselfe when he saw Iesus condemned: and he confessed his sinne in saying, I haue sinned in betraying his innocent bloud: and he made satisfaction and restitution so farre as he could in bringing againe the thirty peeces of siluer to the chiefe Priests and Elders.

As it is required in repentance that it be true, so likewise speedy, for pœnitentia sera raro vera, repentance deferred to the last houre many time is more forced and fained than sound and safe, for the Hypocrite who deceiueth other in his life, may deceiue himselfe in his death. That Carrier is a foole who being to goe a farre and a foule iourney, will lay the heauiest burthen vpon the weakest horse; and that Christian is vnwise who doth intend to lay the great load of repentance vpon his faint and feeble dotage, whereas in the chiefe strength of his youth he cannot lift it easily, but is ready to stagger vnder it. Almighty God euer required in his seruice the first h fruits, and the first i borne, the k firstlings are his darlings, the fattest lambes are the fittest for his sacrifice. If the l King of Babel would haue young men, well fauoured, without blemish, and such as had great ability to stand in his palace: shall the God of Israel, euen the King of glory, haue none to stand in his Courts but the blinde and the lame, such as the soule of Dauid, hated, 2 Sam. 5. 8. yee shall not see my face (said m Ioseph to his brethren) except you bring your younger brother with you. And how shall we behold the face of our Iesus, if we doe not n remember him in the daies of our youth, if we dedicate to the deuill our louely younger yeeres, and offer vnto him nothing else but our loathed old age.

Speedy repentance must also be steedy, for what a shame will it be to o begin in the spirit and end in the flesh? what a shame will it be to play p Demas part, who first hearkned vnto the Gospell, and afterward embraced the present world, like to q Catiline, qui bonis initys malos exitus habuit. What a shame will it be after thou hast fed on Angels bread to lust againe for the r Garlecke and Onions of Egypt, after thou hast escaped the filthinesse of the world, tasted of the good word of God, and of the ioyes to come, to reuolt from the holy commandement, and with the s dog to returne to his vomit, and with the swine to his wallowing in the mire, like the starres which at the first moue swiftly, but anon become retrograde, and moue-twise so last backward. t Bernard truly, that it is worse recidere quam incidere, but he that continues faithfull vnto death is sure to receiue the crowne of life, Reuel. 2. 10.

Secondly, the consideration of the full ioyes in that other world should teach vs not x August. serm. 88. de temp.

y Nilus in sent. sacris.
z Epist lib. 1. epist 3.
a Doctor Fulke.
b Church hom. vbi sup. and in the com book Tit Visitation of the sicke.
c See Epist 1. Sun. in Aduent
d Rom. 6. 13.
e Epist 54.
f Vbi sup.
g Matth. 27. 3
h Exod. 3. 19.
i Exod. 13. 2.
k Gen 4. 4.
l Dan. 1. 4.
m Gen 43. 3.
n Ecclesiastes 12. 1.
o Galat 3. 3.
p 2 Tim. 4. 10.
q Salustius.
r Num. 11. 5.
s Heb 6. 5.
t 2 Pet. 2. 22.
u Ser. 54. sup. Cant.

not to loue the momentanie pleasures of sinne, and empty vanities of this world, [x] Philip.3.8. but esteeme them all losse to [x] winne Christ. Heauen is large, long, high, and deepe: large, for that it containeth all the goodnesse that we can imagine, yea more than we can imagine, a fulnesse of ioy. Long, because the pleasures thereof are for euermore. High, as being the blessing of Gods right hand. Deepe, because these beatitudes are pure good in Gods presence without any mixture of euill. On the contrarie, the commodities of this life haue none of these conditions, for they be few, little, short, and mixed alway with anguish and vexation of spirit; and likewise the euils of this world in comparison are few, little, short, and tempered alway with some consolation. Whereupon we may conclude that all those haue truly lost their wits, who for loue of the commodities of this life, or for feare of present tribulations lose the happinesse, or fall into the miseries of the world to come.

3. The consideration of this heauenly doctrine should encourage vs to contend earnestly for so great a glory, for such a fulnesse of ioy, be [y] strong then, and let [y] 2 Chro. 15.7. [z] 1 Cor. 15.58 not your heart be weake, for your worke shall haue a reward: be [z] stedfast and alwaies abundant in the businesse of the Lord, for as much as you know that your labour is not in vaine in the Lord. [a] Know you not that they which runne in a race,
[a] 1 Cor. 9.24. runne all, and yet but one receiues the prize? but we may so runne the [b] way of [b] Psal 119.32. Gods holy commandements, as that all of vs may win the prize, which is not a corruptible crowne, but an incorruptible, pleasures at his right hand for euermore.

4. This may teach vs to runne with [c] patience the race that is set before vs, as [c] Heb. 12 1. being assured that the [d] present afflictions are nothing in comparison of the glory
[d] Rom. 8.18. which shall be shewed vnto vs: blessed are yee (saith our blessed [e] Sauiour) when [e] Mat. 5.11. men reuile you, and persecute you, saying all manner of euill against you for my sake falsely, reioyce and be glad, for great is your reward in Heauen.

5. This doctrine should enflame our loue to God, who gaue for vs his owne Sonne, in his kingdome of grace, that he might giue his owne selfe vnto vs in his kingdome of glory, promising that he will be to his Saints all in all, his presence being so [f] preseruatiue, that they shall haue need of none other helpe to keepe them
[f] Aretius in 1 Cor. 15. 28. from all euill: and his right hand so full of ioy, [g] that they can neither want nor wish
[g] Luther in loc. ad Corinth. vbi sup. any further good. S. Paul in expectation of this vnspeakable ioy, desired to be loosed, and to be with Christ, Phil. 1.23. and our Prophet said, as the Hart desireth the water brookes, euen so longeth mine heart after thee, ô God, Psalm. 42. 1. and the whole Church prayeth, Apoc. 22. 20. Come Lord Iesus, euen so come quickly sweet Iesu, that we may possesse the fulnesse of thy ioyes, and the pleasures at thy right hand for euermore.

Almighty Lord, which art the Father of mercies, and God of all comfort, grant vnto thy people, that they may loue the thing which thou commandest, and desire that which thou doest promise, that among the manifold changes of the world, our hearts may surely there be fixed, where full and true ioyes are to be found, through Iesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

Psalm. 24.

The earth is the Lords, and all that therein is, the compasse of the world, and they that dwell therein, &c.

THe kingdome of Christ is described in this hymne two manner of waies;
1. In respect of his subiects, from the first verse to the seuenth.
2. In respect of his entrance into his kingdome, from the seuenth to the Psalmes end.

His

His subiects are of 2. sorts: { One by nature, for the whole world is the Lords, and all that there in is, verse 1,2. / Another by grace, which ascend into the hill of the Lord, and rise vp in his holy place, the generation of such as seeke him in a liuely faith, apprehending his sure promise made to Iacob.

And the markes of these subiects are, { Cleannesse of hands. / Pureness of heart. / Truness of tongue, neither blasphemeing God, nor deceiuing their neighbour.

The earth is the Lords][h] that is, Christs, which is the Lord of Lords, Apoc.19.16.for the whole world, and all the things therein are his by a two-fold title.

First by donation of God his Father, hauing [i] all power giuen vnto him in heauen and in earth, euen whatsoeuer things the father hath are his, Ioh.16.15.and so consequently, made heire of all things, Heb.1.2.

Secondly, the earth is Christs,and all that therein is, by right of[k] creation, for he founded it, saith our Prophet, and that after a wonderfull manner, vpon the seas and flouds. The waters which as philosophie teacheth vs,are higher than the earth,and as the [l] Scripture telleth vs also, naturally would stand vpon the mountaines, are by the word of God gathered together,and thrust vnder the ground,that the drie land might appeare, and so be made habitable, Gen.1.9. Exod.20.4. and these which haply seeme a most inept and weake foundation, are firme bases, Psalm.104.5. and mighty foundations, Micha 6.2. to magnifie Gods power and prouidence,who as he [m] brought light out of darkenesse, so setleth he the solid earth on the liquid waters, yea, he hangeth the earth vpon nothing, Iob 26.7. this founding the land vpon the seas, and preparing it vpon the flouds, is so wonderfully wonderfull, that Almighty God asked his seruant Iob, whereupon are the foundations thereof set, and who laid the corner stone thereof, Iob 38.6.

[n] Xerxes commanded his souldiers to fetter the waters of Hellespontus: and so God bindeth,as it were,the flouds in fetters,as [o] S. Basil plainly, Ligatum est mare præcepto Creatoris quasi compedibus,he saith vnto the sea, [p] Hitherto shalt thou come, but no further, and here shall it stay thy proud waues. He gathereth the [q] waters of the sea together, as it were vpon an heape, and laieth vp the deepe in his treasure house, so that without his leaue,not so much as one drop can ouerflow the land.

All things then are Christs,in respect of creation, [r] by whom all things were made: in respect of sustentation, as [s] vpholding all things by his mighty word: in respect of administration, as [t] reaching from one end to another, and ordering all things sweetly: in one word, of him, and through him, and for him are all things, Rom.11.36.

1. From hence we may learne,that Christ is the King of glory, Lord of hosts, euen Almighty God. For he that made all, is [u] Lord ouer all, he that is the Creator of heauen and earth is Almighty (saith our Creed) able to doe whatsoeuer he will, and [x] more than he will too: more by his absolute power, than he will by his actuall, able to [y] raise vp children vnto Abraham out of the very stones in the street,though he doe not actually produce such a generation: his Almightinesse, euidently proues him to be God, and his founding of the world his Almightinesse, for the gods that haue not made the heauen and earth, shall perish from the earth and from vnder heauen, Ierem.10.11.

2.Seeing the compasse of the world and all they that dwell therein are the Lords, it is plaine [z] that the Church is not confined within the limits of one region, or glued (as it were) to one seat only. The [a] Donatists in old time would tie the Church only to Cartenna in Africa, the Papists in our time to Rome in Italy: but the Scriptures affirme plainly that the [b] golden candle-stickes are remoued from one place to another, and that the [c] kingdome of God is taken away from one nation, and giuen vnto another country, that brings forth the fruit thereof, in euery region he that feareth God,and worketh righteousnesse, is accepted of him, Acts 10.35.

3.Saint

[h] Turrecrema'. in loc.
[i] Mat.28.18.
[k] Mollerus. Caluin. Strigelius.
[l] Psal.104.6.
[m] Gen.1.3,4.
[n] Herodotus in Polymnia.
[o] In Hexamer. hom.4.
[p] Iob 38.11.
[q] Psal.33.7.
[r] Iohn 1.3.
[s] Heb 1.3.
[t] Wisd.8.1.
[u] Rom.10.12.
[x] Thom.part.1. quæst.25.art.5.
[y] Matth 3.9.
[z] Tileman.
[a] August. Epist.48.
[b] Apoc.2.1.
[c] Matth.21.43

3. S. Paul, 1 Cor. 10.26. from hence doth argue, that all the creatures in the world may be vsed by Christians either for food or otherwise, seeing all is the Lords, and in Christ ours, 1 Cor. 3.22. not as Anabaptists imagine fondly that all things ought to be common, and that the priuate possession of goods and lands is contrary to the rules of Christianity, for as [d] Diuines aptly distinguish, we haue ius ad rem, non in re: right to the thing, but not in the thing, vntill either by gift or guilt, by donation or emption it be made ours: as S. Paul insinuates in the cited place, whatsoeuer is sold in the shambles eat yee, making no question for conscience sake, for the earth is the Lords, and all that therein is. If meat be sold in the shambles, it is not thine till it be bought, or otherwise lawfully brought vnto thy table, thy right to these things in the Lord, is not contrary to the commandement of the Lord, saying expresly, Thou shalt not steale.

[d] Mollerus in loc.

4. Mighty Monarchs and puissant Potentates [e] hence may learne that they be not absolute masters of the world, but only the [f] Ministers of God. Superior Magistrates are his Lieutenants, and inferiour Magistrates, as it were, his Deputy-Lieutenants, vnto whom as vnto the Lord of all things, and Iudge of all men, euery Prince must one day [g] render an account of his stewardship, be [h] wise therefore yee Kings, be learned yee that are Iudges of the earth, serue the Lord in feare, reioyce before him in trembling.

[e] Tileman. Mollerus.
[f] Rom. 13.4.
[g] Luk 16.2.
[h] Psal. 2 10.

5. This may comfort poore [i] pilgrims in exile, thrust out of their houses and home, persecuted from City to City for the profession of Christs holy Gospell. If the whole world be Christs, how can they which are his, want any thing? he can, and (as it shall make most for his honour) he will also ptouide for the banished, new houses, and new lands, and new goods, and new friends, and so restore to them (as he [k] promised) an hundred fold, blessing their [l] last daies more than their first: it is pithily said, bono cuiq; patria vbiq;, he that hath his conuersation in heauen, hath euery where land enough vpon earth.

[i] Mollerus. Tileman.
[k] Marke 10. 30.
[l] Iob 42.12.

Who shall ascend] All men are the subiects of Christ at large, subiect to the kingdome of his power, but all men are not the true subiects of Christ in his kingdome of grace. For all ascend not into the hill of the Lord, and among such as ascend, all stand not in his holy place, [m] that is, all men adioine not themselues vnto the Church, and a great many which are in the Church, are not of the Church. Infidels are not so much as in the Church, hypocrites howsoeuer in the Church, are no true members of the Church, according to that of [n] Paul, all are not Israel which are of Israel: all such as come to the hill of the Lord, stand not in his holy place, for some beleeue but a [o] season, and few continue [p] faithfull vnto death: now the most infallible note and characters of such as both ascend and stand in Gods holy hill, are three; Cleannesse of hands, Pureneesse of heart, and Truth of tongue, the which are reduced by Diuines vsually to these two; true [q] faith, and a good conscience. For that is a pure heart which is purified by faith, Act. 15.9. and a liuely faith is made knowne to the world by good workes, and by good words, as our Prophet here, by cleannesse of hands and trunesse of speech, as the Scripture teacheth vs, out of our hearts abundance the hand worketh, and the tongue speaketh, Matth. 12.34.

[m] Mollerus.
[n] Rom 9.6.
[o] Mat. 13.21.
[p] Apoc. 2.10.
[q] 1 Tim 1.16.

Faith in the very act of our iustification is like [r] Iudeth, it cuts of Holofernes head alone, she commandeth all her attendants, as well great as little, to stand without her tent, and to goe forth of her presence: but when once the deed is done, when the [s] serpents head is broken, and [t] trod vnder feet, her whole troope runs to her, and stands about her: albeit faith apprehending Gods sure mercy for the full and free pardon of all our sinnes is in our iustification Sola, yet in our conuersation it is not Solitaria, but accompanied euer with a cleannesse of hands, which is ready to do that which is right, and with a graciousnesse of tongue, which is ready to speake that which is true, neither deceiuing our neighbour, nor blaspheming God, by lifting vp his soule vnto vanity, that is, taking his name in vaine, for so [u] some Diuines expound it.

[r] Iudeth 13. 3.4.
[s] Gen. 3.15.
[t] Rom 16.20.
[u] See Bucer. Mollerus. Caluin. Steuchus. Bellarmin. Genebrard. Agellius in loc.

Such as haue cleane hands and a pure heart, receiue the blessing from the Lord, and righteousnesse from the God of their salnation, hauing the promise both of the life present present and of that which is to come, 1 Tim.4.8. they are the generation of those that seeke him, euen of those that seeke thy face, O Iacob, [x] that is, these are Iacob, euen [y] true Israelites whom the Lord will acknowledge for his owne: they seeke God in this life, but they shall see him in the next [z] face to face: for as [a] Iacob when he wrestled with an Angell, saw God, and called the place Peniel, that is, Gods face or presence: so they who seeke the Lord with innocent hands and a pure heart, shall enioy his presence and pleasures at his right hand for euermore: [b] or these men are the generation that seeke God, and embrace his promise concerning the redemption of the world made to the Patriarch Iacob: or as [c] other, they shall seeke thy face, O Iacob, that is, O God of Iacob, or the face of the [d] God of Iacob, or they seeke the face of Iacob, [e] that is, Gods Elect in the celestiall Ierusalem: the which is all one with the former interpretation, because none shall euer behold the face of Iacob in Hierusalem aboue, but such as behold the face of the God of Iacob, the contemplation whereof is the sole blessednesse and fulnesse of ioy to Iacob.

Now let vs examine whether these characters of the true Church agree to the Papists, insolently boasting of the Churches notes and name more than all other Christians in the world: haue they cleane hands, which are [f] drunken with the bloud of Saints, and with the bloud of the Martyrs of Iesus Christ? haue they cleane hands, whose masses are massacres, in crucifying Christ againe for the sinnes of the quicke and dead, contrary to the Text [g] once for all? haue they cleane hands, whose pens openly maintaine the doctrine of King-killing? haue they cleane hands, [h] whose most holy fathers haue committed all vncleanesse, euen with greedinesse? are their hearts pure, not lifted vp to vanity, when as they be [i] Pompifices rather than Pontifices, in brauery [k] succeeding rather Constantine a puissant Emperor, than Peter a poore Fisher? are not their hearts lift vp vnto vanity, who pray to Saints as to Sauiours, adoring Idols and creeping to crosses? are not their hearts lift vp vnto vanitie, who contradict verity, making the traditions of men equall to the commandements of God? and is not their tongue deceiuing, who terme the true faith a faction, and the Gospell heresie? and is not their tongue deceiuing, who make lying equiuocation a liberall Art? is not their tongue deceiuing, who speake [l] friendly to their neighbours, and imagine mischiefe in their hearts, openly pretending instruction, and yet secretly procuring, so much as they may, destruction of our Church and countrey? [m] Bernard in these respects and many moe, had iust cause to cry out, O miserandam sponsam talibus creditam paranymphis.

Lift vp your heads, ô ye gates] Most of the Iewish [n] Rabbins in old time, and many [o] Christian Doctors in our time, haue construed this, as spoken in a prosopopœia to the gates of the holy temple to be builded by Salamon, into which Gods Ark should enter: and the Prophet cals them euerlasting doores, in comparison of the tabernacle that was a moueable house flitting and vnsetled, for Gods Arke was tossed vp and downe, from the wildernesse to Gilgal, and from Gilgal to Shiloh, and from Shiloh to the land of the Philistims, and from thence to Bethschemech, and to Kiriathiarim, it neuer had any sure footing vntill Almighty God had [p] chosen Mount Sion to be an habitation for himselfe, saying, this shall be my rest for euer, here will I dwell, and my people shall [q] moue no more. These doores then are termed euerlasting, not that they could or should continue for euer, but for a long season, euen vntill the [r] fulnesse of time was come, when our blessed Sauiour Christ Iesus, as being the truth of these types, entred into the Holiest of Holies, and obtained eternall redemption for vs, Heb.9.12.

Melanthon, Hen. Mollerus, and [s] many moe by these gates vnderstand Kings and Princes vpon earth, because Magistrates in these Easterne countreyes vsed to giue iudgement in the gates of the city, according to that of [t] Amos, establish iudgement in the gates: [u] or because the care of opening the gates of heauen is committed vnto them, as being the Lord-keepers of both the tables of the Law, that their subiects and people may lead vnder them a peaceable life in all godlinesse and honesty, 1 Tim.2.2. our Prophet therefore doth exhort all higher Powers and Potentates to giue free passage to the Gospel of Christ, as it were, to set open the gates of their city, that [x] Mollerus. Bucer. R. Stephanus.

[y] Ioh.1.47.
[z] 1 Cor.13.12
[a] Gen 32.
[b] Tileman.
[c] New translation in English margin. Idem annotat. Moller & alij.
[d] Septuagint. Placidus. Agellius.
[e] Bellarmin.
[f] Apoc.17.6.
[g] Heb 9.26.
[h] See Bellarm. præfat.lib.1. de Rom.Pont & Io.de Turrecre. sum.de Ecclesia lib.2.cap.103.
[i] Berengarius apud Costerum præf. de moribus heretic.
[k] Bernard. de considerat.lib. 4.cap.3.
[l] Psal.28.3.
[m] De consider. lib.3.cap.5.
[n] Apud Agellium & Genebrard in loc.
[o] Bucer. Caluin. Wilcox.
[p] Psal.132.14.
[q] 2 Sam.7.10.
[r] Gal.4.4.
[s] Strigelius. Tileman. Genebrard.
[t] Amos 5.15. Deut.21.19. 2 Sam.19.8.
[u] Placidus in loc.

that the King of glory may come in, and that his word may dwell [x] among them plenteously. [y] So this part of the Psalme doth answer the former aptly, for seeing the earth is the Lords, and all that is therein; it is fit that all higher powers should be subiect vnto the highest power, and that they should lay downe their crownes and scepters at his feet, which is the King of Kings, and Lord of hosts. Againe, seeing none can ascend the hill of the Lord, and stand in his holy place, but such as haue cleane hands and a pure heart: it is necessary that Princes should entertaine Christs Gospell, which is the [z] power of God vnto saluation, [a] able to make the man of God absolutely furnished vnto all good workes. If they will not perish from the right way, they must of necessity kisse the Sonne, Psalm. 2.12. if they will enter into the gates of the Citie of God, they must open the gates of their owne Citie to God.

[b] Other interpret this of the doores of our heart, according to that Apoc. 3.20. Behold, I stand at the doore and knocke, if any man heare my voice, and open the doore, I will come in vnto him, &c. In the Gospels history we finde that Christ had a foure-fold entertainment among men. Some receiued him into house, not into heart, as [c] Simon the Pharisie, who gaue him no kisse, nor water to his feet: some into heart, but not into house, as the faithfull [d] Centurion, esteeming himselfe vnworthy that Christ should come vnder his roofe: some neither into house nor heart, as the graceless Gergesites, Matth. 8.34. some both into house and heart, as [e] Lazarus, [f] Mary, Martha. Now that Christ may [g] dwell in our hearts by faith, and that our bodies may be [h] temples of his holy Spirit; we must as our Prophet exhorts here, lift vp our soules, that is, in the words of S. Paul, Col. 3.2. our affections must be set on things which are aboue, and not on things which are on earth, if we desire to lift vp our heart vnto Christs verity, we may not lift it vp vnto the worlds vanity, [i] that is, we must not fasten our loue too much vpon the things of this life, but on those pleasures at Gods right hand, which are euermore, that [k] as we haue borne the image of the first Adam, who was earthly, so we should beare the image of the second Adam, which is heauenly, 1 Cor. 15.49. the prophane worldling sings a Nunc dimittis vnto Christ, and saith as the Deuils, [l] Ah what haue we to do with thee, thou Iesus of Nazareth, and as [m] Iob reports his words, depart from vs, for we desire not the knowledge of thy waies. On the contrary, the religious soule enioying the possession of her Sauiour, chanteth a merry [n] Magnificat, and a pleasant Te Deum: she saith vnto Christ, as [o] Ruth vnto Naomi, Intreat me not to leaue thee, nor to depart from thee, for whither thou goest, I desire to go, the Lord doe so to me, and more also, if ought but death diuide me from thee. Nay, death it selfe shall not part vs, for when I am loosed out of my bodies prison, I hope to be [p] with my Christ; as [q] Ittai then vnto Dauid, I say to my Iesus, As the Lord liueth, and as my Lord the King liueth, in what place my Lord is, there shall thy seruant be whether it be in life or death.

O Lord, which art the God of my [r] saluation, I [s] lift my heart to thee, desirous to seeke thee, both in the right vbi, where thou maist be found, and in the right quando, [t] while thou maist be found: open my dull eares, and hard heart, that thy Sonne my Sauiour may come in and dwell with me: grant me grace that I may still heare while he calleth, open while he knocketh, and hold him also when I haue him, that I may both ascend thine hill, and stand in thine holy place, that I may not only soiourne in thy tabernacle, but also rest and dwell vpon the mountaine of thine holinesse.

[u] Iustin Martyr, [x] Euthymius, and [y] other, as well ancient as moderne Interpreters, expound this of Christs ascending into the heauen of heauens, whose gates were shut, vntill he which is the [z] first fruits of the dead opened them vnto true beleeuers: to say that the soules of the holy Fathers dying before Christ, enioyed not Gods presence, but that they were locked vp in Limbo patrum, a corner of hell, is a popish error contrary to the word of God, Ecclesiastes 12.7. Matth. 8.11. Luk. 16.23. Luk. 23.43. affirming that they returned vnto God who gaue them, and that they rested in the kingdome of heauen, in Abrahams bosome, in Paradise, where they could not suffer any paines either offense or losse, they were doubtlesse in heauen, (generally so taken) that is, in a blessed estate, because they died in the Lord: yet to say that they went [x] Col. 3.16.

[y] Mollerus.
[z] Rom 1.16.
[a] 2 Tim 3.17.
[b] Tremell. Wilcox.
[c] Luk 7.44.
[d] Matth. 8.8.
[e] Ioh. 11.11.15
[f] Luk. 10 38.
[g] Ephes 3.17.
[h] 1 Cor. 6.19.
[i] August. in loc.
[k] Arnob. in loc.
[l] Mark 1.24.
[m] Iob 21.14.
[n] See Dr. Huls Ser. Mans heart Christs home.
[o] Ruth. 1.16.
[p] Philip 1.23.
[q] 2 Sam. 15.21
[r] Psal. 18.47.
[s] Psal. 25.1.
[t] Esay 55.6.
[u] In Dialog. cum Tripbon.
[x] In loc.
[y] Basil. Stenchus. Agellius. Bellarmin. omnes patres vti Genebrard. in loc.
[z] 2 Cor. 15.20.

went not immediatly to heauen (properly so called) vntill our blessed Sauiour, the King of glory, did ascend and open those gates and euerlasting doores, is an opinion [a] haply that seemeth agreeable to the Scriptures, Heb.9.8. & 10.20. & 11.39 40. Ioh.3.13.14.3. and to the Fathers, Chrysost. in Luc.16.de diuite, & in Epist.ad Heb. cap.9.ver.9. & cap.10.vers.20. & operis imperfecti in cap.3. Matth. Basil.in Psal.48. Epiphan.hæres.46 contra Tatianos. Iustin.in Dialog. cum Tryphone. Augustin. epist. 57.ad Dardanum, & 99 ad Euodium, & de Genesi ad lit.lib.8.cap.5. Hierom.in epitaphio Nepotian. ad Heliod. tom.1.pag.21. Ambros.de fide lib.4.cap.1. Primasius in epist.ad Heb.cap.8.vers.9. & cap 10.vers.20.

[a] Melius est dubitare de occultis quàm litigare de incertis Augustin de Gen ad lit. lib 8. cap.5.

So that the Prophet here bringeth in a great many glorious Angels attending Christ in his ascension, and saying to the rest of the celestiall Hierarchy, Lift vp your heads, ô ye gates, and be ye lift vp you euerlasting doores, and the King of glory shall come in. Heauen gates are called euerlasting, because they shall endure for euer, or because they be the doores into the life which is euerlasting.

Who is the King of glory?] Christ in two respects is the King of glory. 1. For that all honour and glory belongs properly to him, [b] his is the kingdome, the power, and the glory, called in this regard the Lord of glory, 1 Cor.2.8.

[b] Matth 6.13.

Secondly, for that Christ maketh vs partakers of his glory, termed in this respect our glorious Lord Iesus, Iam.2.1. If the Lord of hosts, strong and mighty in battell, be the King of glory, then Christ (hauing conquered all his enemies, and made them his foot-stoole, triumphing ouer death, and the deuill which is the founder of death, and sinne which is the sting of death, and the graue which is the prison of death, and hell it selfe which is the proper dominion of the deuill and death) is doubtlesse in himselfe the king of glory: and for as much as he died for our sinnes, and is risen againe for our iustification, and is ascended on high to giue gifts vnto men, in this life [c] grace, in the next [d] glory, what is he lesse than a King of glory toward vs, of whom, and through whom alone we that fight his battels are deliuered from the hands of all that hate vs, and so made victors, 1 Cor.15.57. yea more than conquerours, Rom 8.37.

[c] Eph.4.8.11.
[d] Iohn 14.2.

Psalme 68.

Let God arise, and let his enemies be scattered, &c.

The Prophet in this Hymne respecting rather matter than method, doth vtter diuers things a little confusedly: yet his generall intent is to declare Gods almightie power and prouidence manifested in comforting his, and confounding their enemies; for which [e] mercy toward the one, and [f] iudgement towards the other, he calleth vpon all people, the faithfull especially, to [g] sing praise and ascribe power vnto him. In the two former verses two persons are chiefly remarkable.

[e] Vers 3,5,6,9, 10,11,12,13,14 15,16,19,20, 22,27.
[f] 1,2,6,12,21, 22,20.
[g] Vers.4,19,26 32,34.

1. God as agent destroying, in whom obserue,
   - 1. His might, easily destroying such as hate him, he doth onely arise.
   - 2. His mercy,
     - Patiendo, in his patience toward the wicked, he seemeth as it were to sleepe for a time, implied in the word exurgat.
     - Faciendo, in his actions toward the godly, standing vp in his good time, reputing all their enemies, his enemies.

2. The wicked as patient destroyed, in whom note
   - 1. Their condition, enemies and haters of God.
   - 2. Their iudgment,
     - Great, [h] a foure-fold scourge,
       - Scattering.
       - Flying.
       - Vanishing.
       - Perishing.
     - [i] Sudden, as the smoke driuen away with the winde, and like wax melting at the fire.

[h] Placidus.
[i] Gemebrard. Wilcox. Præcepi & præsens interitus. Tremell. in loc.

First, as concerning the mighty power of God,[k] he need not arme himselfe with any weapons, either offensiue or defensiue, it is enough if he doe but arise; sufficient if he moue but his little finger (as it were) yea, the very least of all the workes of his fingers: he which is the Lord of Hosts hath a great many royall armies to fight his battell, his chariots are twentie thousand, euen thousands of Angels, as it is in the 17. verse of this Psalme, he saith vnto this creature come, and it commeth; and to that goe, and it goeth; and to a third, do this, and it doth it. If he raise but an host of [l] frogs, or a swarme of flies, his enemies are scattered instantly, for it is [m] nothing with him to helpe with a great many men, or with no meanes. If he but [n] speake the word it is done, for as by his word he made the whole world, so by his word he can marre whatsoeuer is in the world: his power is called actuall, in doing whatsoeuer he will; and absolute, for that he can doe more than he will. His actuall power and reuealed will especially concerne vs in all the chances of this our life; so the Leper insinuates, Matth. 8 2. Lord, if thou wilt thou canst make me cleane, not if thou canst thou wilt: he can (as the Papists imagine) transubstantiate his flesh in the Sacrament, but we read not that he will: he can saue such as [o] despise the riches of his mercies, and abuse his grace to wantonnesse, at the last houre without any repentance, but we read not that he will[p]: it is our comfort that he will (at what time soeuer a sinner repenteth him of his sinne from the bottome of his heart) put all his wickednesse out of his remembrance: it is our comfort that he will [p] heare vs, if we call vpon him in the time of trouble, giuing vs [q] what soeuer we shall aske in his name: it is our comfort that God can arise, because he will arise; for seeing our father in heauen is able and willing, that is, able because willing to [r] lay hand vpon the shield and buckler, and to stand vp for our helpe: why should we feare what either the malitious man, which in Scriptures is called a [s] deuill, or the deuill himselfe, which is termed a [t] malitious man, is able to wish or worke against vs. If God arise, then all his enemies, that is, our enemies [u] for his sake, shall instantly vanish as smoke before the winde, and as wax before the fire.

The mercifulnes of God is seene first in his patience toward the wicked, [x] implied in the word arise, for he seemeth as it were to [y] sleepe, and not to marke what is done amisse. The Lord is [z] patient, and would haue none to perish, but would all men to come to repentance. He was longer in destroying [a] one Citie, than in building the whole world, slow to wrath, and ready to forgiue, desiring not the death of a sinner, but rather he should amend. He doth not arise to particular punishments, much lesse to the generall iudgement, but after [b] long suffering and great goodnesse. O Hierusalem, Hierusalem, how often would I (quoth our Lord) haue gathered thy children together as the hen gathereth her chickens vnder her wings, and ye would not, Matth. 23. 37.

As the mercies of God are manifested in his patience toward the wicked, so likewise in his actions toward the godly: for as it is said in the 21. verse, he shall wound the head of his enemies, and the hairie scalpe of such an one as goeth on still in his wickednesse. If obstinate haters of God and godlinesse will not desist, but continue raging and rauing against the Lords anointed, at length he will [c] awake as one out of sleepe, and as a Giant refreshed with wine, he will in his furie smite his enemies in the hinder parts, and put them to a perpetuall shame: their crying sinnes make such an alarum in his eares, as that he will awake and arise too, for the protection of such as are [d] vpright in heart. We reade Mat. 8. that the ship of the Church is tossed with the waues of affliction, & with the boisterous windes of contrary doctrines in the troublesome sea of this world, and in the meane while Christ our great master seemes to sleepe; yet when we call and cry, Master, saue vs, or else we perish, he doth awake, and rebuke the windes, and the waues, and there followeth a great calme: [e] he that keepeth Israel doth neither slumber nor sleepe: I sleepe (saith our blessed [f] Sauiour) but mine heart awaketh: our watchmen should wake in vaine, if the Lord did sleepe; the truth is, he doth arise while we rest. If the Lord himselfe had not beene on [g] our side, when our enemies rose vp against vs; had not he beene waking while we were sleeping, the furious and fierie gunpowder faction had swallowed vs vp quicke, [k] Caluin. Mollerus.

[l] Exod. 8.
[m] 2 Chron. 14. 11.
[n] Psal. 33. 9.
[o] Rom. 2. 4.
[p] Psal. 50. 15.
[q] Iohn 16. 23.
[r] Psal. 35. 2.
[s] Iohn. 6. 70.
[t] Matth. 13. 28
[u] Matth. 5. 11.
[x] Lorin in loc.
[y] Psal. 44. 23.
[z] 2 Pet 3. 9.
[a] Iericho. Iosua 6. 4.
[b] Psal. 103. 8.
[c] Psal. 78. 66.
[d] Psal 11. 2.
[e] Psal. 121. 4.
[f] Cant. 5. 2.
[g] Psal. 124.

quicke, when they were so wrathfully displeased at vs: and therfore let vs sing with our Prophet in the 19 verse of this Hymne, Praised be the Lord daily, euen the God that helpeth vs, and powreth his benefits vpon vs.

[h] Interpreters obserue generally, that these words are borrowed from Moses, Numb.10.35. Arise Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered, and let them that hate thee fly before thee. This vndoubtedly was a very good praier in Moses,[i] but Dauid here by common experience proues that to be most true, which Moses heartily desired, namely, that the Lord ariseth and fighteth against all such as are enemies to his arke, haters of his Church, and despisers of his holy couenants. And therefore whereas some make these words[k] either a prayer that Gods hatefull enemies may be destroyed, or a prophesie that they shall be destroyed; other make them a plaine proposition, and read them [l] Indicatiuely, God doth arise, Deus exurgit, or surgente Deo: The sense vpon the point is all one, for they who pray that God would arise, and they who confesse that he doth arise to scatter his enemies, ascribe both of them a commanding power to God ouer Israel: and therefore the Kings and Queenes of England vsed to stampe this sweet sentence vpon their coyne, Exurgat Deus, & dissipentur inimici: it is reported of the deuout [m] Antonius also, that he did coniure the Deuill in singing these word: and beloued, when our aduersary doth assault vs at any time, let vs haue recourse to Gods buckler and book. If he tempt thee to commit Idolatry, heare what God saith vnto thee,[n] thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serue. If he tempt thee to couetousnesse, put on Gods armour and say, [o] Couetousnesse is the root of all euill, and they that will be rich fall into snares and into many foolish and noysome lusts, which drowne men in perdition and destruction. If he tempt thee to priuate reuenge, let God arise, who saith expresly, [p] vengeance is mine. If he tempt thee to the sin of incontinence, let God arise, who commands in his Law, Thou shalt not commit adulterie, [q] know you not that your bodies are the temples of the Holy Ghost, and the members of Christ, shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? no, no, Let God arise, and so these raging lusts, and all other our enemies shall be dispersed.

In the wicked I haue noted first their condition, and then their punishment. Their condition is, that they be both enemies and haters of God. Enemies to God, [r] as being enemies to the children of God, for he that [s] hurteth his Prophets, and toucheth his anointed, is said to touch the [t] apple of his eye: this our blessed Sauiour did promise and practise: promise,[u] He that receiueth you, receiueth me, and he that [x] despiseth you, despiseth me: this he did also practise, for when [y] Saul breathed out threatnings and slaughter against the Disciples of the Lord, Christ appearing to him expresly said, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? because that which is done to the least of my brethren, I take it as done to my selfe, Matth,25.40

Yea, but how can any wicked wretch hate God which is goodnesse it selfe? all the world cals for truth, 1 Esd.4.36. and God is truth, Ioh.14.6. [z] Answer is made, that Almightie God is considered two waies; in himselfe, and in his effects: as God is considered in himselfe and in his essence, none can hate him, as being goodnesse it selfe, for the Saints enioying his presence, seeing him, [a] as he is [b] face to face, sing Hallelujah, saluation, and glory, and honour, be to the Lord our God, Apoc.19.1. but in this world God is considered [c] in his workes, and seene in his effects only. Whereof some be pleasing to the wicked, as breath and life, Act.17.25. suffering his sunne to arise, and his raine to fall on them, Matth.5.45. opening his hand and filling all things with his plenteousnesse, Psal.145.16. other effects of his are distastfull to mans inordinate will and corrupt affections, as the prohibition and punishment of sinne: and in these respects euery reprobate is an hater of God, and fighteth vnder the banner of his mortall enemie the deuill. Almighty God [d] hates nothing which he made, for all his creatures are good, yea very good, Gen 1.31. he hates onely sin in the reprobate which is a nothing, and considered as a thing that is not the worke of God, but of the deuill and darknesse. So the Lord is said to hate [e] feet that be swift in running to mischiefe, haughty eies, a lying tongue, hands that shed innocent bloud, an heart that imagines wicked enterprises, in a word, [f] he loueth righteousnesse, [h] Bucer. Mollerus, Genebrard. Lorin.

[i] Caluin.
[k] Rabbi Dauid. apud Eugubinum in loc. Idem annotat. Vatablus.
[l] Bucer. Vatablus. Tremellius.
[m] Athan. apud. Bellar. in loc.
[n] Matth 4.10
[o] 1 Tim.6.9 10
[p] Rom.12.19.
[q] 1 Cor.6.15.
[r] Mollerus. Calum.
[s] Psal.105.15.
[t] Deut 32.10. Zach 2.8.
[u] Matt.10.14.
[x] Luk.10.16.
[y] Acts 9 1.
[z] Thomas 2 2æ quæst. 34. art.1. & Lorin in loc.
[a] 1 Iohn 3 2.
[b] 1 Cor 13.12
[c] Rom 1.20.
[d] Wisd.11.21
[e] Prou.6.16.
[f] Heb.1.9.

teousnesse, and hateth iniquitie, he hath no pleasure in wickednesse, he doth abhorre bloud-thirstie men, and all such as worke vanitie, Psal.5.4. God then hates the reprobate for their sinne, and the reprobate hate God, as prohibiting and punishing their sinne, saying, [g] Depart from vs, for we desire not the knowledge of thy wayes. If our soules abhorre the [h] works of the Nicolaitans, if we despise the wicked only because they be giuing ouer to commit all iniquitie with vnsatiable greedinesse; [i] assuredly we follow God as deere children, and we may well apply the words of our Prophet, Psal.139.21. Doe not I hate them, ô Lord, that hate thee? yea Lord, I hate them right sore, euen as though they were mine enemies: and if the wicked despight and despise vs only for righteousnesse sake, reuiling vs, and persecuting vs, and speaking all manner of euil against vs in Gods cause falsly, let vs be glad and reioyce, for great is our reward in heauen, Mat.5.11,12.

[g] Iob 21.14.
[h] Apoc 2.6.
[i] Ephes.5.1

Now touching the punishments of such as hate God, the first is scattering, and woe to him that is alone, quoth [k] Salomon, a good man often wants comfort, when he wants companie, much more the wicked afflicted with outward dangers, and affrighted with inward terrors of an hellish conscience. There is a great griefe when old friends part, greater when a man and his wife part, greatest of all when the soule and the bodie part, because these haue liued long, and tooke sweet counsell together. And so doubtlesse it is an intolerable discomfort to the wicked, to be scattered one from another, who did [l] furiously rage together, and runne together against the Lord and against his annointed.

[k] Eccles.4.10.
[l] Psal 2.1.

The second punishment of the wicked is flying, as being afraid to looke God in the face. Souldiers after a retreat sometimes returne to fight, and foyle their foes: but it is not so with vngodly men in Gods holy warre, for when the Lord [m] smites his enemies in the hinder parts, he puts them to a perpetuall shame. Yea, but how can they flie from him? as our Prophet [n] elsewhere, Whether shall I goe from thy Spirit, and whether shall I goe from thy presence? if I climbe vp into heauen, thou art there; if I goe downe in hell, thou art there also, &c. Answer is made by [o] S. Augustine, Fugiunt animo non corpore, timendo scilicet non latendo, nec ab ea facie quam non vident, sed ab ea quam videre coguntur. They flie not from that face which they doe not see, for they shall see the sonne of man comming in the clouds of heauen, with power and great glory, Matth.24.30. but from his face they would not see, calling to the mountaines in that day, [p] fall vpon vs, and hide vs from the presence of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lambe. The summe of all is briefly this, being scattered they flie, flying they vanish, and vanishing they perish at the presence of God.

[m] Psal.78.67.
[n] Psal.139.6.
[o] In loc.
[p] Apoc.6.16. Esay 2.10. Hosea 10 8.

As God destroyeth his enemies soundly, so suddenly, like as the smoke vanisheth, so shalt thou drine them away, &c. The higher the smoke, the sooner dispersed by the winde, wax the neerer to the fire the sooner melted. Our God is a [q] consuming fire, and he rideth vpon the wings of the [r] winde, and therefore so soone as he doth arise, his enemies vanish as smoke, and melt as wax before his presence. While their rage and courage seemes most impetuous, suddenly their [s] hard hearts are loosed and lost, as fire melts the wax, so feare their wrath at Gods presence while they thinke to vanquish other, they vanish themselues: all their furie is but a fume, [t] pride goeth before destruction, and an high minde before the fall.

[q] Heb.12.29.
[r] Psal.18 10.
[s] Agellius.
[t] Prou 16.18.

Concerning the generalitie of this doctrine, we finde that the wicked [u] spend their dayes in mirth, and then in a moment goe suddenly downe to hell. Yet a little while (saith our [x] Prophet) and the vngodly shall be cleane gone, thou shalt looke after his place, but he shall not be found: oh how doe they consume and perish, and come to a fearefull end, euen as a dreame when one awaketh, so shalt thou make their image to vanish out of the citie, Psal.73.18, 19. their destruction shall come speedily, Prou.6.15. as a swelling in an high wall, whose breaking commeth in a moment suddenly, Esa.30.13.

[u] Iob 21.13.
[x] Psal 37.10.

To speake more particularly, [y] Babel is suddenly fallen and destroyed, and the [z] King of Babel as he was carowsing in the golden vessels of the Temple, saw the fingers of a mans hand writing a fearefull sentence against him vpon the walls of his Palace, whereupon at the same houre while he was feasting, his countenance was changed, and his thoughts so troubled, that the ioynts of his loynes were loosed, and his

[y] Ier.51.8.
[z] Dan.5.5.

his knees smote one against another. The iudgement of God vpon Corah, Dathan, and Abiram, was also sudden, for as they disputed against Moses and Aaron, impudently iustifying their conspiracie, [a] the earth opened her mouth and swallowed them vp all aliue, so that in the sight of all Gods people they went downe quicke into hell. [b] Herod in the midst of all his brauery was immediately smitten by the Angell of the Lord, so that he was eaten of wormes, and gaue vp the ghost. [c] Arrius the blasphemous heretike was vpon the sudden in the middest of his pompe and pontificality, taken away with a stinking death. [d] Pope Iohn the 12. in the very act of adultery was suddenly smitten by the deuill, and so he died in his filthinesse. Pope [e] Siluester the second (who being a coniuring Frier, gaue himselfe vnto the deuill vpon condition he might be Pope) as he was on a time singing masse at Rome, heard a great noise of deuils that came to fetch him away: whereat being terrified and tormented, and seeing no way to escape, he desired his people to rend his body in peeces after his death, and lay it vpon a chariot, and so let horses draw him whither they would. [f] In the yeere 1530. there was at Noremberg a certaine Priest who studied Art-Magicke, and being very couetous of money, the deuill (whom he serued) shewed him through a chrystall, a good deale of treasure hidden in the Citty; whereupon he went presently to that part of the Towne where he supposed it to haue lien buried, and being arriued at the place with a companion whom he brought to this pretty pastime, fell a searching and digging vp an hollow pit, vntill he perceiued a coffer in the bottome of the hole, with a great dog lying by it; whither he was no sooner entred, but the ground fell vpon him, and so smothered and crushed him in a moment to death. Concerning this argument, see Fox Martyrolog. from pag. 1902. to pag. 1916. Bellarmin. de notis Ecclesiæ, cap. 17. and Hansenmullerus hist. Iesuit. ordinis cap. 11.

The late iudgements of God vpon incorrigible sinners in our own countrey within our owne memorie haue beene very fearefull, as vpon [g] Anne Aueries a Flaxwoman of London, who forswearing her selfe for a little money that she should haue paid at a shop in Woodstreet for six pound of tow, forthwith (as being surprized by Gods arising to scatter his enemies) fell downe speechlesse, and so died a loathsome death, to the terrour of all periured and forsworne wretches. And vpon [h] C. M. a notorious Atheist, openly mocking at God and godlinesse, not in word only, but (as it is credibly reported) in writing also: this impious wretch, as he was stabbing another in an Alehouse, was euen with his owne dagger in his owne hand stabbed into his own head, in such sort, that notwithstanding all the meanes of Surgery, he shortly died, blaspheming and swearing to the last gaspe: wherein Gods iustice did appeare notably for our instruction, in that he compelled his own hand which had written those blasphemies, to be the instrument of his punishment, and that in his braine, which had impudently deuised the same. Who can ouerpasse here, how some chiefe plotters of the most execrable Gunpowder Treason being together in a chamber, were so scorched by their own powder as it was in drying, that they were driuen to confesse the heauy iudgement of God vpon them. Euery yeere we heare that some notorious drunkards are drowned euen in their drunkennesse, when as they haue neither wit nor will to say so much, as Lord haue mercie vpon vs: a punishment so proportionable to that hoggish sin, that all the world may know, God doth arise to scatter his enemies.

This I take to be literally the true meaning of this Hymne, but S. Paul hath a mysticall interpretation hereof, Ephes. 4. 8. and so most of the [i] Fathers apply this to Christs exaltation and his enemies confusion.

Now Christ hath a [k] fourefold exaltation:
1. In mount Thabor, his transfiguration, Matth. 17.
2. In Hierusalem, his resurrection, Matth. 28.
3. In mount Oliuet, his ascension, Acts 1.
4. In the clouds, his comming to iudgement, Apoc. 1. 7.

[l] Some Diuines haue construed this of his arising to iudgement, according to that Apoc. 6. 10. The soules of them that were killed for the word, cry with a loud voice, saying, how long Lord holy and true, dost thou not iudge and reuenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth? as if they should haue spoken in the words of our Prophet,

[a] Num. 16. 32.
[b] Acts 12. 23.
[c] Socrat. hist. lib. 1. cap. 25.
[d] Io. de Turrecremat sum. de Ecclesia, lib. 2. cap. 103.
[e] Naucleru. Platina.
[f] Wierus.
See Theater of Gods iudgements, written by Thom. Beard, lib. 1. cap. 21.

[g] Stow Chron.

[h] See Thomas Beard vbi sup. cap. 23.

[i] Hilarius. Augustin. Hieron. Arnobius. Euthym.
[k] Bonauent. in loc.
[l] Cyprian apud Lorin. in loc. Idem Bonauentura.

Arise Lord, and make thine enemies thy footstoole, for all things in that day shall be put vnder Christs feet, 1 Cor. 15. 27. then his enemies here and there scattered shall be [m] gathered together, and albeit they flie before him, inuocating the rockes and mountaines to fall vpon them, and to hide them from his presence, Apoc. 6. 16. yet they must all appeare before his throne, to receiue their heauy damnation and doome. [n] Hunc nulla vis humana elidet, aut acumen eludet, no humane force can preuent, or cunning circumuent this high and holy Iudge, that day shall be to the wicked [o] a day of anger, a day of trouble and heauinesse, a day of destruction and desolation, a day of darknesse and blackenesse, wherein their [p] hearts shall faile them for feare, [q] seeking death and shall not finde it: for all our weale and woe consisteth in those two words of Christ, Ite, Venite, Goe yee cursed, Come yee blessed. If he say Come, they which enioy his presence shall haue fulnesse of ioyes and pleasures at his right hand for euermore, Psal. 16. 12. they shall drinke of his pleasures as out of the riuer, Psal. 36. 8. before him as it is said here, verse 3. they shall be glad, merry, ioyfull. If he say Depart, most accursed are they which are depriued of his presence: this one word is worse than all the rest in the reprobates sentence, for as [r] Diuines obserue, pœna damni, pœnalior est quàm pœna sensus, the paine of losse is more grieuous than the paine of sense, for the torments of hell are termed in the Fathers and in the Scriptures also damnation, in respect of the losse of an [s] infinite good which is God. If [t] Esau seeing his younger brother Iacob to haue got the blessing, irrugyt clamore magno, roared out with a great cry and bitter, out of measure, saying vnto his father, hast thou not reserued a blessing also for me? how loud will the reprobate roare figured in Esau, when as they shall behold the Saints figured in Iacob, to haue got the benediction of their heauenly Father, and that no more blessing remaineth for them. O with what vnspeakable rage will they confirme their own malediction, cursing the [u] day wherein they were borne, and the night wherein it was said, a childe is conceiued, cursing the [x] wombe that bare them, and the paps that gaue them sucke, desiring rather neuer to haue beene borne, than to heare such an affrighting sentence, Goe yee cursed: this infinite losse doubtlesse is the very hell of hells, as [y] Chrysostome said, a thousand hells are nothing in comparison of it. O sweet Iesu who diddest ascend the crosse, to take vpon thee the curse of the Law, to deliuer vs from the curse of sin, saue vs with thy mercy, that vpon vs may not fall so terrible misery.

[z] Other vnderstand this of Christs incarnation, as if our Prophet should pray, Blessed Lord, deferre not thy comming any longer, arise to visit and redeeme thy people, remember thy promise, saying, [a] I will vp, and I will helpe euery one from him that swelleth against him, and I will set them at rest. Arise Lord from the seat of thy Maiesty to succour vs in our misery: thou which art [b] the consolation of Israel, and the [c] desire of all nations, arise to [d] cast out the Prince of darknesse, and to deliuer vs from our enemies and from the hands of all that hate vs.

But because Christ in his mortall estate was oppressed of his enemies, [e] in the daies of his flesh, offering vp prayers and supplications with strong crying and teares vnto him that was able to saue him from death, vpon the crosse complaining, [f] haue ye no regard all ye that passe by this way, behold and see, if there be any sorrow like to my sorrow, &c. I say, because Christ in his estate of humiliation appeared not as the Lord of hosts & King of glory, but as a worme trodden vnder the feet of such as hated him; I find that most Interpreters, as well [g] ancient, as [h] moderne, take this him as a prophecie concerning his glorious resurrection and triumphant ascension: in arising from the dead he scattered all his enemies, and in his ascension (as our Prophet here, verse 18.) he led captiuity captiue, giuing gifts vnto men, among other euen to his enemies, that the Lord God might dwell in them: as the next hymne describes Christ in his suffering, so this in his triumphing.

His enemies are { Principally and properly the [i] deuils. / Secondarily, the Iewes.

By descending into hell and arising from the dead, he triumphed ouer the deuils in their owne dung-hils and dungeon, he brake the Serpents head, and trod Sathan vnder

[m] Mat. 25. 32.
[n] Lipsius de Constanc. lib. 1. cap. 17.
[o] Zophon 1. 15
[p] Luke 21. 26.
[q] Apocal. 9. 6.
[r] Chrysostom. Prosper apud Dion. Carthus. de quatuor nouiss. part. 2. art. 11.
[s] Thom. 1 2. quæst. 87. art. 4.
[t] Gen. 27. 34.
[u] Iob 3. 3.
[x] Luke 11. 27.
[y] Vbi sup.
[z] Lorin.
[a] Psal. 12. 6.
[b] Luke 2. 25.
[c] Hag. 2. 7.
[d] Ioh. 12. 31.
[e] Heb. 5. 7.
[f] Lam. 1. 10.
[g] Athanasius apud Lorin. Augustin. Hilarius. Hieron. in loc.
[h] Mollerus. Strigelius. Steuchus. Bellarmin.
[i] Hilarius. Hieron. Euthym.

vnder his feet, and by his ascending vp on high he gaue gifts, euen the manifold graces of his holy Spirit, whereby the deuill is driuen out of his strong holds, out of the hearts of men, and so their soules and bodies are houses of God and temples of the Holy Ghost.

The Iewes are reputed enemies to Christ in denying him for their King, in reuiling him all his life, in bringing him to his death, in blaspheming him, and persecuting all his, euer since to this present day. Wherefore so soone as Christ arose, they were scattered in their thoughts, as hauing [k] imagined a vaine thing in [l] roling a great stone to the doore of the Sepulchre, sealing it & making it sure with a watch. For it was [m] impossible that the Lord of life should be holden of death, his soule could not be lost in the graue, nor his flesh see corruption, and therefore the stone being rolled away by an Harold of heauen, Mat. 28. 2. he raised himselfe from the dead, to the confusion of such as hated him. Againe, the Iewes were scattered in their estate, [n] They that did feed delicately perished in thy streets, and they that were brought vp in scarlet embraced the dung. And lastly, scattered in their habitation, as the stones of their Sanctuarie were scattered in the corners of euery street: so themselues, heretofore Gods [o] Sanctuarie, continue scattered in euery quarter of the world. [p] S. Iames in his Epistle salutes them after this sort, To the twelue Tribes which are scattered abroad; and so they liue dispersed and despised vnto this our present age, being [q] lesse than any Nation, and basely kept vnder in euery place. They who sold their Sauiour doe now buy their repentance deare, for they cannot see so much as the seat of their Temple or Citie, vnlesse they pay for this sight vnto the Garrisons of the Turkes, now Lord of the sometime holy land, [r] who repute the Iewes a great deale more vile than Christians, insomuch that if a Iew will turne Turke, he must first turne Christian before he may be Turke. Wherein we may behold Gods vnsearchable [s] bountifulnesse and seueritie: towards them in making his peculiar people no people, seueritie: but toward vs bountifulnesse in adopting vs his people, being aliants from his common-wealth, and strangers from the couenants of his promise, Ephes. 2. 12. [t] yet let vs not boast of our selues, or insult ouer their miserie, for as S. Paul admonisheth, If God spared not the naturall branches, take heed lest he spare not thee, which art but a wilde Oliue tree grafted in for them, Rom. 11. 17. 18. 21.

[k] Psal. 2. 1.
[l] Matth. 27. 66
[m] Acts 2. 24. 31
[n] Lam. 4. 5.
[o] Psal. 114. 2.
[p] Cap. 1. vers. 1
[q] Song of the three children, vers. 37.
[r] Trauels of Englishmen into far countries, pag. 37.
[s] Rom. 11. 22.
[t] August. orat. contra Iudaos, cap. 10.

Psalme 108.

O God mine heart is ready, &c.

Interpreters agree generally, that this Hymne is composed of two Psalmes going before, to wit, of Psalm. 57. from the eighth verse to the last, and of Psalm. 60. from the sixt verse to the end. The former part then especially concerning our present occasion, is expounded in my notes vpon the 57. Psalme, appointed to be read at Morning prayer vpon Easter day.

How the latter part is to be construed of Dauid and his kingdome literally, see Caluin. Agellius, Ro Stephanus, Wilcox in loc. And our [u] Churches Homilie concerning An information for them which take offence at certaine places of the holy Scripture, how to be mystically well applied vnto Christ and his victorie, Hierome, Arnobius, Bucer, Mollerus, Iacob de Valentia, Strigelius, Genebrard, and [x] other in loc. Dr. Incognit. & Bellarmin. in Psal. 59. the summe whereof is in one word, that not only the Iewes, but also the Gentiles are subdued vnto the scepter of Christ, and that they beare seuerall offices according to the seuerall orders of the Church, some seruing in an high, and others in a low place, some commanding as Law-giuers, and other obeying as washpots, vntill they be brought into the strong Citie, where they shall haue fulnesse of ioyes and pleasures at Gods right hand for euermore.

[u] Part. 1.
[x] Eusebius. Didymus. Hesychius apud Agellium in loc.

Arise Lord, and make thine enemies thy footstoole, for all things in that day shall be put vnder Christs feet, 1 Cor. 15. 27. then his enemies here and there scattered shall be [m] gathered together, and albeit they flie before him, inuocating the rockes and mountaines to fall vpon them, and to hide them from his presence, Apoc. 6. 16. yet they must all appeare before his throne, to receiue their heauy damnation and doome. [n] Hunc nulla vis humana elidet, aut acumen eludet, no humane force can preuent, or cunning circumuent this high and holy Iudge, that day shall be to the wicked [o] a day of anger, a day of trouble and heauinesse, a day of destruction and desolation, a day of darknesse and blackenesse, wherein their [p] hearts shall faile them for feare, [q] seeking death and shall not finde it: for all our weale and woe consisteth in those two words of Christ, Ite, Venite, Goe yee cursed, Come yee blessed. If he say Come, they which enioy his presence shall haue fulnesse of ioyes and pleasures at his right hand for euermore, Psal. 16. 12. they shall drinke of his pleasures as out of the riuer, Psal. 36. 8. before him as it is said here, verse 3. they shall be glad, merry, ioyfull. If he say Depart, most accursed are they which are depriued of his presence: this one word is worse than all the rest in the reprobates sentence, for as [r] Diuines obserue, pœna damni, pœnalior est quàm pœna sensus, the paine of losse is more grieuous than the paine of sense, for the torments of hell are termed in the Fathers and in the Scriptures also damnation, in respect of the losse of an [s] infinite good which is God. If [t] Esau seeing his younger brother Iacob to haue got the blessing, irrugyt clamore magno, roared out with a great cry and bitter, out of measure, saying vnto his father, hast thou not reserued a blessing also for me? how loud will the reprobate roare figured in Esau, when as they shall behold the Saints figured in Iacob, to haue got the benediction of their heauenly Father, and that no more blessing remaineth for them. O with what vnspeakable rage will they confirme their own malediction, cursing the [u] day wherein they were borne, and the night wherein it was said, a childe is conceiued, cursing the [x] wombe that bare them, and the paps that gaue them sucke, desiring rather neuer to haue beene borne, than to heare such an affrighting sentence, Goe yee cursed: this infinite losse doubtlesse is the very hell of hells, as [y] Chrysostome said, a thousand hells are nothing in comparison of it. O sweet Iesu who diddest ascend the crosse, to take vpon thee the curse of the Law, to deliuer vs from the curse of sin, saue vs with thy mercy, that vpon vs may not fall so terrible misery.

[z] Other vnderstand this of Christs incarnation, as if our Prophet should pray, Blessed Lord, deferre not thy comming any longer, arise to visit and redeeme thy people, remember thy promise, saying, [a] I will vp, and I will helpe euery one from him that swelleth against him, and I will set them at rest. Arise Lord from the seat of thy Maiesty to succour vs in our misery: thou which art [b] the consolation of Israel, and the [c] desire of all nations, arise to [d] cast out the Prince of darknesse, and to deliuer vs from our enemies and from the hands of all that hate vs.

But because Christ in his mortall estate was oppressed of his enemies, [e] in the daies of his flesh, offering vp prayers and supplications with strong crying and teares vnto him that was able to saue him from death, vpon the crosse complaining, [f] haue ye no regard all ye that passe by this way, behold and see, if there be any sorrow like to my sorrow, &c. I say, because Christ in his estate of humiliation appeared not as the Lord of hosts & King of glory, but as a worme trodden vnder the feet of such as hated him; I find that most Interpreters, as well [g] ancient, as [h] moderne, take this him as a prophecie concerning his glorious resurrection and triumphant ascension: in arising from the dead he scattered all his enemies, and in his ascension (as our Prophet here, verse 18.) he led captiuity captiue, giuing gifts vnto men, among other euen to his enemies, that the Lord God might dwell in them: as the next hymne describes Christ in his suffering, so this in his triumphing.

His enemies are { Principally and properly the [i] deuils. / Secondarily, the Iewes.

By descending into hell and arising from the dead, he triumphed ouer the deuils in their owne dung-hils and dungeon, he brake the Serpents head, and trod Sathan vnder

[m] Mat. 25. 32.
[n] Lipsius de Constant. lib. 1. cap. 17.
[o] Zophon 1. 15
[p] Luke 21. 26.
[q] Apocal. 9. 6.
[r] Chrysostom. Prosper apud Dion. Carthus. de quatuor nouiss. part. 2. art. 11.
[s] Thom. 1 2a. quæst. 87. art. 4.
[t] Gen. 27. 34.
[u] Iob 3. 3.
[x] Luke 11. 27.
[y] Vbi sup.
[z] Lorin.
[a] Psal. 12. 6.
[b] Luke 2. 25.
[c] Hag. 2. 7.
[d] Ioh. 12. 31.
[e] Heb. 5. 7.
[f] Lam. 1. 10.
[g] Athanasius apud Lorin. Augustin. Hilarius. Hieron. in loc.
[h] Mollerus. Strigelius. Steuchus. Bellarmin.
[i] Hilarius. Hieron. Euthym.

vnder his feet, and by his ascending vp on high he gaue gifts, euen the manifold graces of his holy Spirit, whereby the deuill is driuen out of his strong holds, out of the hearts of men, and so their soules and bodies are houses of God and temples of the Holy Ghost.

The Iewes are reputed enemies to Christ in denying him for their King, in reuiling him all his life, in bringing him to his death, in blaspheming him, and persecuting all his, euer since to this present day. Wherefore so soone as Christ arose, they were scattered in their thoughts, as hauing [k] imagined a vaine thing in [l] roling a great stone to the doore of the Sepulchre, sealing it & making it sure with a watch. For it was [m] impossible that the Lord of life should be holden of death, his soule could not be lost in the graue, nor his flesh see corruption, and therefore the stone being rolled away by an Harold of heauen, Mat. 28. 2. he raised himselfe from the dead, to the confusion of such as hated him. Againe, the Iewes were scattered in their estate, [n] They that did feed delicately perished in thy streets, and they that were brought vp in scarlet embraced the dung. And lastly, scattered in their habitation, as the stones of their Sanctuarie were scattered in the corners of euery street: so themselues, heretofore Gods [o] Sanctuarie, continue scattered in euery quarter of the world. [p] S. Iames in his Epistle salutes them after this sort, To the twelue Tribes which are scattered abroad; and so they liue dispersed and despised vnto this our present age, being [q] lesse than any Nation, and basely kept vnder in euery place. They who sold their Sauiour doe now buy their repentance deare, for they cannot see so much as the seat of their Temple or Citie, vnlesse they pay for this sight vnto the Garrisons of the Turkes, now Lord of the sometime holy land, [r] who repute the Iewes a great deale more vile than Christians, insomuch that if a Iew will turne Turke, he must first turne Christian before he may be Turke. Wherein we may behold Gods vnsearchable [s] bountifulnesse and seueritie: towards them in making his peculiar people no people, seueritie: but toward vs bountifulnesse in adopting vs his people, being aliants from his common-wealth, and strangers from the couenants of his promise, Ephes. 2. 12. [t] yet let vs not boast of our selues, or insult ouer their miserie, for as S. Paul admonisheth, If God spared not the naturall branches, take heed lest he spare not thee, which art but a wilde Oliue tree grafted in for them, Rom. 11. 17. 18. 21.

[k] Psal. 2. 1.
[l] Matth. 27. 60
[m] Acts 2. 24. 31
[n] Lam. 4. 5.
[o] Psal. 114. 2.
[p] Cap. 1. vers. 1
[q] Song of the three children, vers. 37.
[r] Trauels of Englishmen into far countries, pag. 37.
[s] Rom. 11. 22.
[t] August. orat. contra Iudaos, cap. 10.

Psalme 108.

O God mine heart is ready, &c.

INterpreters agree generally, that this Hymne is composed of two Psalmes going before, to wit, of Psalm. 57. from the eighth verse to the last, and of Psalm. 60. from the sixt verse to the end. The former part then especially concerning our present occasion, is expounded in my notes vpon the 57. Psalme, appointed to be read at Morning prayer vpon Easter day.

How the latter part is to be construed of Dauid and his kingdome literally, see Caluin. Agellius, Ro Stephanus, Wilcox in loc. And our [u] Churches Homilie concerning An information for them which take offence at certaine places of the holy Scripture, how to be mystically well applied vnto Christ and his victorie, Hierome, Arnobius, Bucer, Mollerus, Iacob de Valentia, Strigelius, Genebrard, and [x] other in loc. Dr. Incognit. & Bellarmin. in Psal. 59. the summe whereof is in one word, that not only the Iewes, but also the Gentiles are subdued vnto the scepter of Christ, and that they beare seuerall offices according to the seuerall orders of the Church, some seruing in an high, and others in a low place, some commanding as Law-giuers, and other obeying as washpots, vntill they be brought into the strong Citie, where they shall haue fulnesse of ioyes and pleasures at Gods right hand for euermore.

[u] Part. 1.
[x] Eusebius. Didymus. Hesychius apud Agellium in loc.

PSALME

Psalme 45.

My heart is enditing a good matter, &c.

THis Hymne is a spirituall Epithalamium, or Bridall-song composed of Christ and his beloued Spouse the Church, of which (y as it is thought) Salomons Song of song is a full and a fit interpretation: It is an oade de rege & grege, de saluatore (saith z Augustine) & saluandis. I know a some construe this of Assuerus and Ester, of Salomon and Pharaobs daughter, of Dauid and Bathsheba; but that which is said vers. 7. and 12. thy seat O God, endureth for euer, &c. he is the Lord thy God, and worship thou him, is not appliable to them and their kingdome, it appertaineth only to Christ, as S. Paul expoundeth, Heb. 1. 8. Vnto the sonne he saith, O God thy throne is for euer, the scepter of thy kingdome is a scepter of righteousnesse, thou hast loued righteousnesse, and hated iniquitie, wherefore God euen thy God hath anointed thee with oyle of gladnesse abone thy fellowes.

y Tileman in loc.
z In loc.
a Apud D. Incognit. in loc.

The whole may be diuided into three parts: a
- b Preface, My heart is enditing a good matter, vers. 1, 2.
- Corps of the Psalme, containing a description of the - Bride-groome, from the third to the tenth verse, and for this reason appointed to be read on Christmas day.
  - Bride, from the tenth to the eighteenth, and for this reason appointed to be read on Whit-Sunday.
- c Conclusion, I will remember thy name, &c. vers. vlt.

b Hiero. epist. ad principium. Idem Euthym. Placidus. Steuch. in loc.

c Tremellius. Bellarmin.

My heart is enditing] d Some take these words as spoken by God the Father, of God the Sonne, as being both his Word and good: the Word in the beginning by whom all things were made, Ioh. 1. 1. and good, as being very God of very God, for there is none good except God, Matth. 19. 17. but as e S. Basil notes, how can the next clause be well applied vnto God, I speake of the things which I haue made vnto the King, my tongue is the pen of a ready writer, and vers. 8. it is not said, vnxit te ego Deus, but vnxit te Deus: and therefore most Interpreters haue referred this poeme to the Prophet, my heart is enditing, or as other translations, boyleth or bubbleth vp; a similitude taken either from the bubling of f riuers and ponds, as Exod. 8. 3. Ebulliet fluuius ranas: g or else from the meat offering in the Law, which was dressed in a frying pan, Leuit. 7. 9. and there boyled in oyle, being made of fine flowre vnleauened mingled with oyle, and afterward presented to the Lord by the Priest, Leuit. 2, 5. 8. the matter of this Hymne then is boyled with the oyle, that is, with the grace of the Spirit, and so prepared in the Prophets heart. h Repleatur itaq; sinus cordis lectionibus sacris, meditationibus studiosis, actionibus pietatis, eaq; omnia percoquat charitas, custodiat fidelis memoria, iugis cogitatio verset, tum flagrantissimi existent affectus, atq; os ex abundantia cordis loquetur, eritque sacrificium pingue & holocaustum medullatum.

d Augustin. Hilarion.
e In loc.
f Agellius.
g Mollerus. idem innuit. Calvinus in loc. & aly.
h Claud. Aquauiua medit. in loc.

The Latines read eructauit cor, and eructation alway proceeds from a fulnesse of stomacke, i insinuating hereby that he spake not of himselfe, but ex plenitudine spiritus, as he was moued by the Holy Ghost, according to that in his last words, 2 Sam. 23. 2. The spirit of the Lord spake by me, and his word was in my tongue.

This may serue to confute the k Montanists affirming that the Prophets vttered they knew not what. Dauid here by the Spirit first endited a good matter, and afterward his tongue was the pen of a ready writer: his mouth and his minde ioyne together, l hereby shewing his vnfained desire to sing the praises of Christ: if his heart had beene forward, and his tongue backward, this hymne would haue proued an heauy, not an heauenly poeme: but as his heart was enditing, so his tongue the pen of a ready Scribe: m not the finger or hand, but the pen: it is the Holy Ghost which is the hand mouing the quill, n it is he which is the ready writer, he writes not with inke, i Euthym. Placidus. Dr Incognit. in loc. k Agellius.

l Bucer.
m Eusebius apud Agellium.
n Basil.

inke, nor in tables of ſtone, but in fleſhly tables of the heart, making vs (as [o] S. Paul ſpeakes) his Epiſtle. See Epiſtle 12. Sunday after Trinitie: he writes, and that readily, [p] for as he doth illuminate the minde ſoundly, ſo ſuddenly: the text ſaith it, Acts 2. 2. ſpeaking of the deſcending of the Holy Ghoſt vpon this day, ſuddenly there came a ſound from heauen, &c. [q] Ezra was a ready Scribe, for writing and interpreting the Law, but he was made thus apt and prompt by the Spirit: his word runnes [r] ſwiftly, being tied neither to time nor tide, [ſ] vbi Deus eſt magiſter quàm citò diſcitur quod docetur. See Goſpell appointed to be read on this day.

[o] 2. Cor. 3. 3.

[p] D. Incognit.

[q] Ezra. 7. 6.

[r] Pſal. 147. 15.

[ſ] Leo ſer. 1. de Pentecoſt.

The [t] reſemblance betweene the pen and the tongue is very great, for as writing is a kinde of ſpeaking vnto the eye: ſo ſpeaking is a kinde of writing to the eare. Now Dauid hauing his heart enlightened and his tongue enlarged by the Spirit, ſaith he will ſing a ditty, which ſhall [u] as a thing written with a pen endure long, & not inſtantly vaniſh into aire like a tale that is told: I ſpeake of the things which I haue made to the king. The writing of the learned are called their works, opera Hieronymi, the workes of Hierome, Auguſtine, Gregorie: yea the very plaies of a moderne Poet, are called in print his workes. The Grecians eſpecially terme Treatiſes in verſe, ποιήματα, ſo Symmachus and Agellius, τὰ ποιήματά μου poemata mea, which anſwereth our Engliſh here, things made: by workes then he meanes the contents of this hymne, which he calleth a good matter, or a good word, for [x] a good man out of the good treaſure of his heart brings forth good things.

[t] Agellius.

[u] Bellarmin.

[x] Matth. 12. 35.

It is a good argument in two reſpects: 1. In reſpect of the perſon of whom it treateth. 2. In reſpect of the people whom it teacheth.

Good in reſpect of the party whom it treateth of, as ſinging the praiſes of Chriſt our King, which is fairer than the ſonnes of men, only good of himſelfe, and the fountaine of goodneſſe in other. [y] Verbum bonum, quia de Dei filio qui maximè bonus. [z] Let others as they pleaſe make Panegyrickes of other Kings; I, ſo long as I haue any being, dedicate my poemes vnto that King only, who created in me both an heart to endite, and a tongue to ſing his praiſes.

[y] Placid. in loc.

[z] Claud. Aquauiua medit. in loc.

And good in reſpect of the Reader, as reporting the myſticall vnion and happy loue betwee Chriſt and his Church, a ditty ſo pleaſant, that an Angell calleth it on Chriſtmas day [a] tidings of great ioy to all people. The whole proeme of this poeme may be thus in briefe paraphraſed, My heart ſo boyleth within me, that I muſt needs burſt forth that which it hath conceiued, euen a ſweet ſong, acceptable to the King of whom, and profitable to his people for whom it was made: and that with ſuch earneſtneſſe and feruency, that no pen of an exact writer is able to ſurpaſſe the readineſſe of my tongue. Dauid telleth vs in the fourth Pſalme, that there be many that ſay, who will ſhew vs any good? and ſo doubtleſſe in our time many which hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſſe, are very deſirous (vpon ſuch high Holy dayes eſpecially) to heare ſome good ſong, or ſome good ſermon. [b] He therfore that hath an eare to heare let him heare what the ſpirit ſaith in this Hymne, for it is a good matter, I ſay what the ſpirit ſaith, as being inuented by him, albeit vented by Dauid as his penne and tongue.

[a] Luke 2. 10.

[b] Apoc. 2. 29.

Thou art fairer than the children of men] Here begins the Corps of the Pſalme, concerning Chriſt and his Church: our Bride-groome Chriſt is diſcribed,

1. By his beauty, fairer than the children of men.
2. By his eloquence, full of grace are thy lips, &c.
3. By his might, gird thee with thy ſword &c.
4. By his maieſtie, thy ſeat O God indureth for euer, &c.
5. By his iuſtice, thou haſt loued righteouſneſſe, &c.
6. By his fulneſſe of gifts, annointed with oyle of gladneſſe aboue his fellowes.
7. By his magnificence, both of apparell and houſe, thy garments ſmell of mirrhe, aloes and caſſia, out of the ivory palaces, &c.

The Prophet beginnes here with beauty, [c] becauſe comelineſſe of perſon is much if not moſt eſteemed in a bridegroome: or haply for that it proceeds from the leſſer gift to the greater: beautifulneſſe of body giues place to graciouſneſſe of ſpeech, eloquence to vertue, vertue to diuinitie. But how can he who was a worme (quoth our Prophet

[c] Bellarmin.

Prophet [d] elsewhere, rather than a worthy, despised and reiected of men, as hauing neither forme nor beauty, saith [e] Esay) be termed fairer than the sonnes of men? Answer is made by [f] S. Hierome, that the Prophets vttered that of Christ, as he was abased and abused vpon his crosse, for then he suffered of [g] all kinds of men, and in all kindes of things: of all men, as Iewes, Gentiles, Prince, Priest, people, strangers, acquaintance, men, women: in all things, as suffering in his friends who forsooke him: in his honour, when his aduersaries mocked him: in his goods, when they stripped him and cast lots vpon his garment: in his soule, when he prayed, O my father, if it be possible, let this cup passe from me, Matth. 26.39. and when he cried, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Matth. 27.46. in his body, to wit, in euery part and in euery sense: for his head was crowned with thornes, his hands and feet pierced, his side boared with a speare, his face bemired with spettle, his eares loaden with buffets, his bones out of ioynt, and his flesh so rent with rods, as that his heart in the middest of his body, was euen like melting wax, Psal. 22.14. in euery sense likewise, in his taste, for his enemies when he was thirsty, gaue him [h] vinegar to drinke mingled with [i] gall: in his hearing, when he was inforced to heare their reuiling taunts and outragious blasphemies: in his feeling, for that his whole body was tortured: in his seeing, when he saw his [k] mother and the disciple whom he loued, standing by the Crosse weeping: in his smelling, in that he was crucified in Golgotha, [l] which is by interpretation, the place of dead mens skuls. If we thus consider Christ as a [m] man of sorrowes on the Crosse, wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, he seemeth in the worlds eye without all comelinesse or beauty, for [n] Christ crucified is vnto the Iewes a stumbling blocke, and vnto the Grecians foolishnesse: but vnto true beleeuers he seemes faire, not only glorified in heauen, but also vilified on earth, euen in his cratch, in his crosse, in his griefe, in his graue. Lo [o] S. Aug. Nobis credentibus vbique sponsus pulcher occurrit, pulcher in cœlo, pulcher in terra, pulcher in vtero, pulcher in manibus parentum, pulcher in miraculis, pulcher in flagellis, pulcher in ligno, pulcher in sepulchro, &c.

Christ is fairer than the sonnes of men, as God, and as man. [p] As God, for [q] what is he among the clouds, and therfore much lesse among the clods, that may be compared vnto the Lord: he made not onely the lilies of the field more glorious in beauty than [r] Salomon in all his royaltie, but also the most admirable faire frame of the whole world, the which euen for the concinne beautifulnesse thereof is tearmed (as [s] Plinius and [t] other obserue) by the Grecians ὁ κόσμος, and by the Latines mundus. He must vndoubtedly be fairer than the sonnes of men, as creating all these faire things for the sonnes of men.

Againe, Christ as man is the fairest of all men, and that [u] both in respect of the beautifull ornaments of his minde, and comely lineaments of his body. Concerning the graces of his minde, his intellectuals are such, as that in him are hid all the treasures of wisdome and knowledge, Coloss. 2.3. and his morals also such, as that he did no sinne, 1 Pet. 2.22. yea knew no sinne, 2 Cor. 5.21. he was [x] full of grace and truth, and of his fulnesse all of vs haue receiued, euen grace for grace. The sonnes of men haue foule soules (as the [y] Prophet speakes) the whole head is sicke, and the whole heart is heauy, from the sole of the foot, to the crowne of the head, there is nothing whole, but wounds, and swelling, and sores full of corruption. But the sonne of God hath a faire soule, free from all blemishes originall and actuall, he neither sinned himselfe, nor caused other to sinne. Of this spirituall inward beauty [z] Diuines vsually vnderstand our Text, and of it his spouse said, [a] My Beloued is white and ruddy, the chiefest among ten thousand, his head is as fine gold, his lockes curled, his eies are like Doues vpon the riuers of waters, which are washed with milke, his cheekes are as a bed of spices, and as sweet flowers, and his lips like lillies dropping downe pure mirrhe, his mouth as sweet things, and himselfe wholly delectable.

Lastly, Christ is fairer than the sonnes of men in regard of his body, whether you consider it as it was in a mortall, or as it is in an immortall state. When he liued in this world his body was of absolute lineaments & feature, perfect in euery proportion and part, as [b] Lentulus and other haue described him in their histories, and this opinion

[d] Psal. 22.6.
[e] Esay 53.2.
[f] Epist. ad princip. tom. 3. fol. 106. Idem Euthym. in loc.
[g] Thom. part. 3. quæst. 46. art. 5.
[h] Psal. 69.22.
[i] Matt. 27.34.
[k] Iohn 19.26.
[l] Marke 15.22
[m] Esay 53.3.
[n] 1 Cor. 1.23.
[o] In loc.
[p] Hieron. Basil. Bellarmin.
[q] Psal. 89.6.
[r] Matth. 6.29.
[s] Nat. hist. lib. 2 cap. 4.
[t] Cic. de finibus lib. 3. Isidor. Orig. lib. 13. cap. 1.
[u] Turrecremat. Genebrard. Agellius.
[x] Ioh. 1.14 16.
[y] Esay 1.5.)
[z] Euthym. Tileman. D. Incognit. Bellarmin.
[a] Cant. 5.10. See Claud. Aquauiua medit. in loc.
[b] Epist. ad Senat. Roman. habetur apud Cassaneum in catalog. part 4. consecrat. 6.

opinion is agreeable to reason and religion, as [c] expositors haue well obserued: for all deformities of the body proceed originally from enormities of the soule, weaknesse is from wickednesse, ergo Christ as being conceiued of the Holy Ghost, and borne of the Virgin Mary, had a body fairer than the sonnes of men [d] conceiued in sinne and borne in iniquitie.

[c] Nemo è semine cretus
Audeat eximiæ contendere munere formæ.

And if his body were so beautifull in his humiliation, it is now much more, sitting at Gods right hand in heauen a [f] glorious body surpassing in brightnesse the [g] Sunne. The children of men haue vile bodies, earthly tabernacles and houses of clay, but Christs body being raised from the dead, and ascended on high, is fairer than the blessed Angels: our text indeed saith only that the Messias is fairer than men, [h] for that he tooke vpon him the nature not of Angels, but of men, [i] Ait præ filijs hominum quoniam è filijs hominum: but the Scripture sheweth [k] elsewhere, that Christ is better and fairer than Angels, as a [l] Christian Poet here paraphrastically.

O prælate alys, ô formosissime rerum.

Full of grace are thy lips] Full of grace [m] for the matter, and full of grace for the manner. For the matter, he deliuered acceptable doctrine, Iohn 1.17. the Law was giuen by Moses, but grace came by Iesus Christ: Moses had harsh and hard words in his Law, [n] Cursed is he that continueth not in all things which are written in the booke of the Law to doe them: but Christ on the contrary speakes [o] better things, the first word in his first sermon are, [p] Blessed are the poore in spirit, the kingdome of heauen is at hand, Matth. 4.17. he commeth vnto his people, cum verbo gratiæ, cum osculo gratiæ, saith [q] Augustine: his lips are full of grace, that is, powring out gracious words abundantly, [r] Come vnto me all ye which are laden, and I will ease you. [s] God so loued the world that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoeuer beleeueth in him should not perish, but haue euerlasting life. [t] The Spirit of the Lord is vpon me, that I should heale the broken hearted, &c. his lips are like lillies dropping downe mirrhe, Cant. 5.13. all that heard him wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth, Luk. 4.22.

For the manner, [u] he taught not as the Scribes, he spake so sweetly, that the very catch-poll officers astonied at his words, gaue this testimony, [x] neuer any mã spake like this man: he spake so graciously that his Apostles [y] forsooke all things and followed him: at his call [z] Andrew left his nets straightway, Iames and Iohn their father and the ship without tarying, Matthew from the receit of custome, Matth. 9.9. [a] Zacchæus from the like worldly course, came hastily to receiue him ioyfully. Nay beloued, he was so powerfull an Orator, that the very windes and waues obeyed his word, Mark. 4 39. It it reported in [b] holy writ, that all Princes and people were desirous to heare Salomons eloquence, the Queene of Sheba wondering at the same cried out, Happy are thy seruants which euer stand before thee and heare thy wisdome, 1 King. 10.8. Salomon is the type here, but Christ is the truth: and [c] this sheweth euidently that Christ is not a tyrant, but a milde Prince, perswading obedience plausibly, not compelling his people violently, his sayings are his scepter, his word his sword, his piercing exhortations are his (as it were) sharpe arrowes, by which his followers are subdued vnto him.

To conclude this argument, his faire words (as the [d] Scripture speaks) are as an hony combe, sweetnesse to the soule, and health to the bones: an hony combe, and what more toothsome? sweetnesse to the soule, and health to the bones, and what I pray more wholesome? [e] anima iusti sponsa verbi, the good mans soule is Christs owne spouse, to which he speakes a great many waies graciously: sometime correcting, and what stronger argument of loue, for whom he loueth he chasteneth, Heb. 12.6 sometime instructing, and his Gospell is able to make the man of God absolute, being hereby furnished thorowly vnto all good workes, 2 Tim. 3.17. sometime wooing in amorous termes, as in his Loue-song euery where, My welbeloued, my sister, my spouse, the fairest among women, my loue, my doue, &c. sometime promising, and that [f] both the blessings of this life present, [g] Feare not, for I am with thee, be not afraid, for

[c] Turrecremat. Agellius. Genebrard.
[d] Psal. 51.5.
[e] Buchanan.
[f] Philip. 3.21.
[g] Acts 26. 13.
[h] D. Incognit. Bellarmin.
[i] Augustin.
[k] Heb. 1.
[l] Eobanus. Hessus.
[m] Placidus. Tileman. D. Incognit.
[n] Deut. 27. 26. Galat. 3.10.
[o] Heb 12.24.
[p] Matth. 5.3.
[q] In loc.
[r] Mat. 11.28.
[s] Iohn 3.16.
[t] Luke 4.18. Esay 61.1.
[u] Matth. 7.29.
[x] Iohn 7.46.
[y] Mar. 10.28.
[z] Matth. 4 20. 22.
[a] Luk. 19.6.
[b] 1 Kin. 4.34.
[c] Caluin.
[d] Prou. 16.24.
[e] Ambr. ser. 6. in Psal. 118.
[f] 1 Tim 4 8.
[g] Esay 41.10.

for I am thy God and thy Redeemer, they that prouoke thee shall be threshed to powder, and made nothing, &c. and of that life which is to come, [h] Father, I will that they which thou hast giuen me, be with me, euen where I am, and that they may behold my glory, being one in vs, as I am in thee, and thou in me.

But Christs intercession euery day to God the Father, [i] appearing in the court of heauen, and as an [k] aduocate pleading for vs, is yet fuller of grace. For if [l] Caleb easily granted his daughters request, and bestowed on her the springs aboue, and the springs beneath: how shall Almightie God (whose [m] mercies are aboue all his works) denie the suits of such a sonne, in [n] whom he is well pleased? Assuredly, beloued, [o] whatsoeuer we shall aske the Father in his name, which is our [p] only Mediator, shall be giuen vnto vs, euen the springs beneath, and the springs aboue, that is, all things expedient for vs in this world, and in the world to come life euerlasting.

[q] Some by his lips vnderstand his Apostles who preached graciously to the whole world, in teaching, that saluation is not by the works of the Law, but by [r] grace through faith in Christ who died for our sinnes, and is risen againe for our iustification. It may be further extended to Christians of all sorts, for the people so well as the Priests in opening their lips ought to minister grace vnto the hearers, Ephes. 4, 29. and whatsoeuer grace remaineth in vs which are members, it is deriued from Christ our head: when we thinke any thing well, it is gratia infusa; when we speake any thing well, it is gratia effusa; when we doe any thing well, it is gratia diffusa.

Because God hath blessed thee for euer.] [s] Some make Gods blessing an effect, as if the Prophet should haue said, Because thou art fairer than the sonnes of men, and thy lips are full of grace, therefore hath God blessed thee for euer. The like speech is Ioh. 10.17. therefore doth my Father loue me, because I lay downe my life, and Philip. 2.8. He humbled himselfe, wherefore God hath exalted him highly: but [t] other make Gods blessing here the cause why the Messias of the world is fairer than the sonnes of men, and his lips full of grace: for he was not blessed of God, because he was fairer than the sonnes of men, or for that he powred out gracious words abundantly: but on the contrary, he was therefore both eloquent and faire, because blessed of God. So vers. 8. he loued righteousnesse, and hated iniquitie, because God had anointed him with oile of gladnesse aboue his fellowes: but not anointed because he loued righteousnesse. This benediction of God is the hypostaticall vnion, and that is the very fountaine from which all graces are deriued vnto Christs humanitie. So the Messias is not only blessed in himselfe, [u] but in him according to Gods holy [x] promise made to father Abraham, all the nations of the world are blessed. Christ is figured by Ioseph, who had the [y] blessings aboue, and the blessings of the deepe that is beneath, and the blessings of the breasts, and of the wombe. For Christ is blessed with the blessings in heauen aboue, there the Saints and Angels alway sing his mercy, saying, [z] Worthy is the Lambe that was killed, to receiue power, and riches, and wisdome, and strength, and honour, and glory, and praise: Blessed with the blessings of the deepe, for that he triumphed ouer the deuill and death in the depth of hell and the graue: blessed with the blessings of the breasts and of the wombe, for in him [a] all the kindreds of the earth are blessed: God (as Paul speakes) hath blessed vs in Christ with all spirituall blessings in heauenly things, Ephes. 1.3.

Gird thee with thy sword vpon thy thigh] The Prophet here puts the [b] signe of authority for power and authority it selfe, as S. Paul, Rom. 13.4. higher powers beare not the sword for nought. And when he saith vpon thy thigh, he doth allude to the fashion that was common among the Iewes then, and is among the Turks at this day, who hang their swords so that it lieth vpon the thigh, and hangs not as our swords on the side. Now the weapons of Christ are not carnall, and therefore this ought to be construed of the sword of the [c] spirit, the [d] rod of his mouth, and breath of his lips, euen his word which is [e] powerfull in operation, and sharper than any two-edged sword, entring thorow to the diuiding asunder of the soule and the spirit, and of the ioynts, and the marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the hearts: this weapon is mighty through God, to [f] cast downe holds, and vaine imaginations, and euery high thing which is exalted against the knowledge of God.

[h] Ioh. 17.21.24
[i] Heb. 9. 24.
[k] 1 Iohn 2. 1.
[l] Iudg. 1. 15.
[m] Psal. 145. 9.
[n] Matth. 3. 17.
[o] Iohn 16. 23.
[p] 1 Tim 2, 5.
[q] Euthym.
[r] Ephes. 2. 8.
[s] Chrysostom. Basil. Euthym.
[t] Caluin. Agellius. Bellarmin.
[u] Melanct. in loc.
[x] Gen 22. 18.
[y] Gen 49. 25.
[z] Apoc. 5. 12.
[a] Acts 3. 25.
[b] Wilcox.
[c] Mollerus. Tremellius.
[d] Esay 11. 4.
[e] Heb. 4. 12.
[f] 2 Cor. 10. 4.

God. This ſword hath a double edge, one in the Law, accuſing and condemning men of ſinne: another in the Goſpell, offering remiſſion of ſinnes and euerlaſting life to ſuch as beleeue.

g Or his ſword may be conſtrued of his diuinitie, thigh of his humanitie: for Chriſt ouercame his enemies, and made his ſubiects no leſſe than Kings after a very ſtrange manner, [h] morte, non marte, not by fighting, but by ſuffering, not by killing other, but by dying himſelfe. The deuill as ſeeing his thigh only but not his ſword, ruſhed vpon him in his cratch, in his croſſe, in the wildernesſe, in the garden, in the graue, to his owne hurt, yea the breaking of his own head, as [i] Leo ſweetly, Malitia nocendi auidus dum irruit, ruit; dum capit, captus eſt; dum perſequitur mortalem, incidit in Saluatorem. I purpoſe not vpon this text to ſay more concerning the vertues of the Bridegroome, as intending to be very large in vnfolding the commendation of the Bride deſcribed,

1. By her attendance, Kings daughters and honourable women.
2. By her ſtile, the Queene.
3. By her place, vpon the right hand.
4. By her geſture, did ſtand.
5. By her veſture, in raiment of gold, &c.
6. By her obedient conformitie to the will of her husband, Hearken ô daughter, &c.
7. By her pureneſſe of conſcience, all glorious within, &c.
8. By her fruitfulneſſe of wombe, inſtead of thy fathers thou ſhalt haue children, &c.

The Virgins attending the holy Catholike Church are [k] Chriſtian Vniuerſities, and particular congregations of the faithfull, here & there diſperſed ouer the whole world. Theſe women of the Queene are noble by birth, as being Kings daughters: and honourable by ſeruice, for ſo the text here, women of honour, and verſ. 15. and 16. fellowes and companions of the Queene in euery place, yea euen in the Kings palace.

In their birth and bloud, obſerue what an high and holy calling Chriſtians haue, for whereas other men are Children of the world, Luk. 16. 9.

Children of diſobedience, Coloſſ. 3. 6.
Children of iniquitie, Hoſea 10. 9.
Children of wrath, Epheſ. 2. 3.
Children of death, 1 Sam. 26. 16.
Children of the deuill, Ioh. 8. 44.
Children of perdition, Ioh. 17. 2.
Children of hell, Matth. 23. 15.

All true members of the Church are by the ſecond birth on the contrary,

Children of light, Ioh. 12, 36.
Children of the Prophets, Acts 3. 25.
Children of the promiſe, Rom. 9. 8.
Children of the wedding chamber, Mark. 2. 19.
Children of the kingdome, Matth. 8. 12. deſcended of the bloud royall, 1 Pet. 2. 9. ſonnes and daughters of the King of Kings, borne of God, and hauing his ſeed remaining in them, 1 Ioh. 3. 9. God is our father, Chriſt is our brother, Angels our guard, all creatures our ſeruants, the Scriptures our euidences, the Sacraments our ſeales, and the Holy Ghoſt our aſſurer, that all things are ours, and we Chriſts, and Chriſt Gods, 1 Cor. 3. 22. 23.

This may comfort vs in all our wants and wrongs: he that feeds the [l] fowles of heauen, and clothes the lillies of the field, ſhall he not much more prouide food and raiment for his own children? he pitieth vs as a [m] father, and comforteth vs as a [n] mother, yea, [o] though a mother forget her childe, and haue not compaſſion on the ſonne of her wombe, yet will I not forget thee, ſaith the Lord. Behold I haue grauen thee vpon the palmes of mine hands, and ſhall not the father of mercy reade that which he hath there written? and why ſhouldeſt thou feare mortall man in whom is no g Aquauiua medit. in loc.

h Auguſtine
i Ser. 9. de paſſione Dom. k Tileman in loc.
l Matth. 6. 26.
m Pſal. 103. 13.
n Eſay 66. 13.
o Eſay 49. 15.

strength, if the deuill himselfe could not inuade so much as a [p] Gergesites hogge, without a speciall licence from the court of heauen, how shall his vnderling agents hurt a sheepe of Christ, a sonne of God? I (saith the [q] Lord) am he that created thee, I haue redeemed thee, I haue called thee by thy name, thou art mine, when thou passest thorow the waters I will be with thee, when thou walkest thorow the fire thou shalt not be burnt, neither shall the flame kindle vpon thee; thy life is deere, thy death is precious in the sight of the Lord, there is neuer a Balaamitish Curre that barkes against thee, but would with all his heart, that his [r] latter end might be like thine, and that after this life he might (I speake it with reuerence) goe with thee but as thy page, yea but as thy spaniel into the kingdome of glory.

This also may strike a terrour into the hearts of such as persecute the godly, whether with virulent tongue, as [c] Shemi: or with violent hands, as [t] Herod: or with both, as Iulian surnamed Apostata: whether by themselues, as [u] Diotrephes: or by other, as the [x] Scribes, and Pharisies: whether closely, like [y] Iezabel; or openly, like [z] Pharaoh: as the wicked (imitating their father the deuill) according to their occasions are sometime [a] roaring lions, and sometime [b] dumbe spirits: howsoeuer it be done, that which once was spoken vnto railing Rabsaketh out-brauing Hezechia, may be well applied vnto them, Against whom hast thou blasphemed? against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted vp thine eyes on high? euen against the holy one of Israel, Esay 37.23. These honourable women attending the Church his Queene, are his daughters and his darling, he that toucheth them, is said to touch the apple of his eye, Deut. 32.10. the wrong done to them he reputes as done to himselfe, Acts 9.4. as [c] Paulinus excellently, Christus & patiens & triumphans in sanctis suis, in Abel occisus à fratre, in Noah irrisus à filio, in Ioseph venditus, in Mose fugatus, in Prophetis lapidatus, in Apostolis terra mariq; iactatus.

Concerning the seruice done to the Queene by these Maidens of honour, the particular Churches of the faithfull, especially Christian Vniuersities, are the Seminaries of religion, and as [d] Chemnitius aptly tearmed them, Ecclesiæ plantaria, where some men are ripe for the Ministerie, some drawing to their maturitie, some in their flower, and some in the bud of hope. The Iewes had [e] Schooles of the Prophets, and Christians, euen in the purest age, had [f] Vniuersities of learned men at Alexandria, Antiochia, Cæsarea, the Queene had alway some waiting women at hand, who were both an honour to her husband, and an helpe to her selfe. Our ships for East Indies (as [g] one notes) are carried forth with Christians, and brought home with Heathens: and the [h] Poet saith of a woman going into a publique bathe among lasciuious companie, Penelope venit, abit Helene: but a well ordered and a vertuous Vniuersitie contrariwise sendeth home many good which it receiued bad, herein resembling the sacred font, where the partie christned goeth into the water of holy baptisme foule, but he commeth out cleane, atque vetus vitium purgat in amne nouo, quoth [i] Lactantius.

To speake then against our two famous Academies in England, is to cast dirt in our owne eyes, and (according to the tenour of our text) it is scandalum magnatum, in that they be stiled honourable women: and for my particular, I know not how any Clergie-man or Gentleman once matriculated and sworne to maintaine the honour of his Vniuersitie, both asked and vnasked, may without touch of periurie, [k] speake against his brother, and slander his owne mothers sonne.

Hitherto concerning the Brides traine, let vs now come to her title, the Queene. It is written of Matilda the Empresse, that she was the daughter of a King, the mother of a King, and the wife of a King.

[l] Ortu magna, viro maior, sed maxima prole,
Hic iacet Henrici [m] filia, [n] nupta, [o] parens.

So Dauid intimates in this Hymne, that the Church is the daughter of a King, at the 14. verse, The Kings daughter is all glorious within; and the mother of a King, at the 17. verse, In stead of thy fathers thou shalt haue children, whom thou maist make Princes in all lands; and the wife of a King, in this verse, vpon the right hand did stand the Queene; the Queene, as being (I speake in the language of Canaan) spiritually the wedded

[p] Matth. 8. 32.
[q] Esay 43.1.
[r] Num. 23. 10.
[c] 2 Sam. 16.
[t] Acts 12.
[u] 3 Iohn 9.
[x] Matth. 26. 3.
[y] 1 Kings 21.
[z] Exod 5.
[a] 1 Pet 5 8.
[b] Luke 11.14.
[c] Epist lib. 4. epist. 1.
[d] Epist. dedic. examen. Con. Trident.
[e] Num 35. See Hospinian. de origin scholarum, pag. 92.
[f] Camerarius in vita Melanct. pag. 164.
[g] Trades increase, pag. 20.
[h] Martial epig. lib. 1 epig. 63.
[i] In carmine, Salue festa dies.
[k] Psal. 50. 20.
[l] Chytræus in delitijs Itenerum
[m] Hen. 1. Reg. Angl.
[n] Hen. 4. Imperat German.
[o] Hen. 2. Reg. Angliæ.

wedded and bedded wife to the King of glory. The wedded, I will marrie thee for euer vnto me, saith the Lord, Hosea 2.19. The King of heauen prepared a wedding for his sonne, Mat. 22.4. he made this mariage by Christs [p] incarnation, [q] for as the best way to reconcile two disagreeing families, or enemie-kingdomes, is to make some mariage betweene them; euen so the [r] word became flesh, and dwelt among vs in the world, that he might hereby make our [s] peace, reconciling God to man, and man to God. The bedded wife, so [t] Martin Luther alluding to the text, Esa. 28.20. nay the Scripture telleth vs plainly, that Christ and his Church haue kissed each other, and that they be both one flesh, as it were man and wife. Christ is said to kisse his Loue the Church, Cant. 1.1. Let him kisse me with the kisses of his mouth: his saying, Come to me all yee which are wearied and laden, and I will ease you, is a sweet kisse of his mouth, as renowned Melancton obserues in his explanation of the second Psalme; his saying, I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance, Matth. 9.13. is another sweet kisse of his mouth: his saying, God so loued the world, that he gaue his only begotten Sonne, that whosoeuer beleeueth in him should not perish, but haue euerlasting life, Iohn 3.16. is another sweet kisse of his mouth. It is [u] verè suauiolum, as being sweeter than honie, Psal. 19.10. better than wine, Cant. 1.1. Our blessed Sauiour offers daily kisses and kindnesse, and therefore we must not vnmannerly despise the [x] riches of his goodnesse, but answer him againe (y whom our soule loueth) euen with a kisse. For so Dauid expresly, Psal. 2.12. kisse the Sonne. Oh but how shall I which am a poore pilgrim on earth ascend and kisse my sweet Sauiour who dwelleth in the heauen of heauen? Answer is made by Dauid in the very same verse, Blessed are all they that put their trust in him, [z] as if he should haue said, to beleeue in him, and to put our whole trust in him, is to kisse him. If preaching of grace be kissing on his part, then assuredly receiuing of grace, by beleeuing his sure mercies and holy promises is kissing on our part.

[p] Greg. hom 38.
[q] Ardens in Euangel. Dom. 20 post. Trinit.
[r] Iohn 1. 14.
[s] Ephes 2 14.
[t] Com. in Galat. 4.3.
[u] Strigelius in Psalm 2.
[x] Rom. 2.4.
[y] Cant. 1.6.
[z] Tileman. Strigelius in Psal. 2.

And yet behold a greater mysterie, Christ and his Church, as S. Paul teacheth, Ephes. 5. are but one flesh, and as it were but one person in law. For Christ in taking our nature vpon him, is flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bone substantially, and we likewise are flesh of his flesh, and bone of his bone spiritually: Plato said, Amator mortuus est in proprio corpore, vivus in alieno: So Paul speaking of Christ and a Christian, Gal. 2.19. I through the Law am dead to the Law, and that I might liue vnto God, I am crucified with Christ, thus I liue, yet not I now, but Christ liueth in me. Faith (as Luther vpon the place) doth couple Christ and me more neere than the husband is coupled to his wife, I am become one with him, [a] I am my welbeloued's, and my welbeloued is mine; my sinnes are his sinnes, and his righteousnesse is my righteousnesse, [b] O God which art my righteousnesse.

[a] Cant 6. 2.
[b] Psal. 4 1.

This doctrine is as flagons of wine to comfort a distressed soule, for as the Philosophers say, that euery part of earth is earth, and euery peece of a bone broken is a bone: so Diuines affirme, that euery particular congregation, and euery singular true beleeuer of euery congregation is Christs owne spouse so well as the whole Church. If then our common enemie the deuill at any time summon vs to answer for our debts, in that the wife being [c] a woman couert is no sueable person in the law, but the husband; [d] we may well bid him enter his action against our husband Christ, and he will make him a sufficient answer. In [e] many things we sinne all, and sinnes are debts, as Christ teacheth in his prayer, forgiue vs our debts, and our manifold sinnes arise to the summe of ten thousand talents, Matth. 18. 24. infinite in magnitude, as being committed against God an infinite obiect; and infinite in multitude, as being more than the haires of our head, Psalm. 40.15. but Christ our husband dying for our sinnes, and rising againe for our iustification, hath abundantly satisfied all our debts, and fastned the Lawes obligation vnto his Crosse, Coloss. 2. 14.

[c] Termes of Law, tit. Couerture.
[d] Bradford apud Fox in Act. fol. 1503.
[e] Iames 3.2.

Or haply the Church is called a Queene, because (saith [f] Euthymius) the militant part here below by grace subdueth her affection vnto the spirit, and the triumphant part aboue reignes with her Christ. The Queene, for that her ioynture and dowry is no lesse than a kingdome, Luk. 12.32. and such a kingdome as is an [f] In loc See Mollerus in loc.

g 1 Pet. 1. 4. immortall inheritance that cannot be shaken, Hebr. 12. 28. as it followeth in the next clause to be considered, the Church is at the right hand of her Christ, vpon thy right hand, &c. h that is, neerest vnto thy selfe, and in the chiefe place of honour, for as i Beniamins messe was fiue times as much as his brethrens; euen so the blessings of the Church exceed infinitely the blessings of worldlings; Length of dayes is in the right hand of k Christ, and in his left hand riches and glory, Prou. 3. 16. the Church is enriched especially with the blessings of his right hand, l spirituall graces tending to that life which is euerlasting: but worldlings are endued especially with the blessings of his left hand, temporall goods in this transitorie life. Good men abound not alway with outward wealth and glory, yet (hauing the m promise both of the life present, and of that which is to come) they be blessed euen in their crosse; though haply some be poore in purse, yet rich in patience: for our heauenly Father giueth his children either meanes according to their mindes, or else mindes according to their meanes, all things working together for the best vnto them, Rom. 8. 28.

h Bellarmin.
i Gen. 43. 34.
k Melancth. in Prou. 3.
l Placidus. Bonauen. D. Incognit.
m 1 Tim 4 8.

Or the left hand of Christ is his iustice, the right hand his mercy, both are right hands vnto the godly: for as the mercies of the n wicked are full of cruelrie; so the very iudgements of God vpon his children are full of mercy: it was good for Ioseph that he was a captiue, good for Dauid that he was in trouble, good for Bartimeus that he was blinde, good for Naaman that he was full of leprosie, good for the woman of Canaan, that her deere daughter was miserably vexed with a deuill, in these and all other like these, Gods mercy and iustice meet together, righteousnesse and peace haue kissed each other, Psal. 85. 10. The cup of wrath is in his left hand, Esay 51. 17. The o fingers of this hand wrote vpon the wall of Balshazzers palace, Mene, mene, tekel, vpharsin: of this hand Iob said, withdraw thine hand from me, Iob 13. 21. and p S. Paul, It is a fearefull thing to fall into the hands of the liuing God: but his right hand is full of mercies, able to guard, open to giue: able to guard, for he saith of it, q none shall plucke my sheepe out of my hand: open to giue, for he doth r open his hand, and filleth all things liuing with plenteousnesse.

n Prou. 12. 10.
o Dan 5. 25.
p Heb. 10. 31.
q Iohn 10. 28.
r Psal. 145. 16.

Now the Queene is said here to stand at his right hand, s for that he shall at the last day place the sheepe, which are Gods elect, at his right hand; but the goats, which are the damned, at his left hand. It is a question of late, whether euery sworne woman of our gratious Queene, may precede all other gentlewomen of worth and worship: but this Queene and her traine without all question haue the most eminent place, being at the right hand of Christ here in his kingdome of grace, hereafter in his kingdome of glory, vpon thy right hand did stand the Queene, &c. stand, for that is her gesture.

s Hieron. Augustin. Basil.

t Chrysostome and Euthymius obserue, that Christ as being equall in dignitie to God, is said to sit at the right hand; but the Church, as being inferiour, to stand; a wittie, but not a weightie note, for u Paul saith in expresse termes, that God hath raised vs vp together, and made vs sit together in heauenly places; and x Christ himselfe, by the pen of his beloued Disciple, to him that ouercomes will I grant to sit with me in my throne, euen as I ouercame, and sit with my Father in his throne. y Other therfore thinke that the word stand, notes a z stable firmenesse in the Church, as if he should haue said, the Queene is so constantly ioyned in her affection and loue to the King her husband, that the gates of hell are not able to make any diuorce betweene them, Psalm. 125. 1. They that put their trust in the Lord shall be like Mount Sion, which may not be remoued, but standeth fast for euer. This kinde of speech is vsed often in English, and in a Latine too, for what is more common in Tullie, than stare for non fugere. So Plautus, Ouid, Terence, stat sententia. Schoole-boyes as well as Schoole-men vnderstand this phrase: such then as will attend the Queene, bearing her companie with ioy and gladnesse into the Kings palace, must (according to the rites of our Diuine Seruice Booke) stand to the Creed, and become Gospellers in life so well as in lip; a b wauering minded man is vnconstant in all his wayes, transported with euery c winde of doctrine, carried vp to the heauen, and downe againe to the deepe, staggering and reeling to and fro like a drunken man, as our Prophet of the t Chrysostome in loc.

u Ephes. 2. 6.
x Apoc. 3. 21.
y Agellius. Bellarmin. Idem annotat. Chrysost.
z 1 Tim. 3. 15.
a See Thesaur. Rob. Stephan. verb. Sto.
b Iames 1. 8.
c Ephes. 4. 14.

the weather-beaten Mariner, Pſal. 107. 26. but a good man is an old ſtander in Chriſts Colledge, he knowes the way to heauen is ſo ſtraight, that if he walke not vpright but halt in it, or reele from it, he may fall ouer the bridge into the pit of euerlaſting perdition.

I am come now to the Churches veſture, the which is for the ſtuffe, cloth of gold, for the trimming, embroydered with needle worke of diuers colours: the matter of the Churches apparell is gold, and that (according to the [d] Hebrew) gold of Ophir, the which is the [e] moſt glittering, precious, and pure gold: now the word of God is compared by the Holy Spirit to [f] fine gold, and ſo [g] ſome thinke the clothing of the Church is the doctrine of the Prophets and Apoſtles in the two Teſtaments, and the center of all their doctrine is Chriſt, and Chriſt (as Paul Rom. 13. 14.) is to be put on: his [h] righteouſneſſe then imputed vnto the Church is her garment of gold, appearing [i] glorious in the ſight of God, elſewhere termed [k] a long robe, [l] couering all her iniquities, all her blackneſſe and blemiſhes. [m] This expoſition is agreeable to that of S. Iohn, Apoc. 19. 8. The Lambes wife was arayed with pure fine linnen and ſhining, and this fine linnen (as himſelfe expoundeth himſelfe) is the iuſtification of Saints.

The Church is by nature [n] naked, poore, miſerable, but Chriſt doth apparell her richly, ſaying in the 16. chapter of Ezechiel, I clothed thee with broydered worke, and ſhod thee with badgers skin, and I girded thee about with fine linnen, and I couered thee with ſilke, I decked thee alſo with ornaments, and I put bracelets vpon thine hands, and a chaine on thy necke, and a frontlet vpon thy face, and eare-rings in thine eares, and a beautifull crowne vpon thine head.

The hand that puts on this goodly garment is faith, and the Sacraments confirming our faith in Chriſt, are the buttons, as it were, claſping the cloke cloſe to the ſoule. For whereas the word doth only promiſe Chriſt as in groſſe generally and indefinitely, whoſoeuer beleeueth, all that labour, &c. the Sacraments apply Chriſt to thy ſelfe particularly, when the man of God in holy baptiſme ſaith, I baptize thee in the name of the Father, &c. and in the miniſtration of the Lords Supper, The bodie of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt which was giuen for thee, and the bloud of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt which was ſhed for thee, preſerue thy bodie and ſoule into euerlaſting life.

But as touching the trimming of the Churches garment, it is ſaid here, wrought about with diuers colours. Concerning the reading and adding of which words vnto the text originall, I referre the critical and curious to [o] S. Hierome in his Epiſtle to Principia, Steuchus, Bellarmine, Agellius, in their Commentaries vpon the place. I take them as I finde them in out ordinarie Pſalter, and that for foure reaſon eſpecially.

1. The Septuagint reade ſo, whoſe tranſlation is often vſed by Chriſt and his Apoſtles in the new Teſtament.

2. S. Auguſtine, Baſil, Chryſoſtome, Arnobius, and other ancient Fathers for the moſt part interpret them ſo.

3. The clauſe (wrought about with diuers colours) is nothing elſe but a periphraſis of the Hebrew Cethem, as Auguſtinus, Steuchus, Genebrard, Agellius, Acernenſis, and other learned Doctors in the tongues obſerue.

4. Dauid expoundeth himſelfe thus at the fourteenth and fifteenth verſes, where ſpeaking of the ſame Queene, and of the ſame garment, he ſaith, her clothing is wrought about, and that with needle worke, the which is various and of diuers colours. So that we may ſpeake to the Church of England, as the Samaritans did vnto the woman in the fourth of S. Iohn, Now we beleeue not becauſe of thy ſaying, but for that we haue heard him our ſelues.

[p] S. Auguſtine by theſe needle workes of diuers colours, doth vnderſtand the diuerſities of ceremonies vſed in the Church of God: as the ſame cloth is dreſſed and decked diuerſly with ſundry laces and embroyderies; euen ſo there is in the Church one faith, and varietie of ceremonies, an vnitie for doctrine throughout the whole world, but not alwaies in rites an vniformity. So the [q] Church of England determines, It is not neceſſarie that traditions and ceremonies be in all places, one or vtterly like, for in all ages they haue beene diuers, & may be changed according to the diuerſitie

[d] See Steuchus, Bellarmin. Tremell. in loc.
[e] Iob 28. 16.
[f] Pſal. 9. 10.
[g] Placidus. Turrecremat.
[h] Chryſoſt. Hieron. Brentius. Tileman.
[i] Epheſ. 5. 25.
[k] Apoc 7. 1.
[l] Pſal 32. 1.
[m] Bellarmin.
[n] Apoc 3. 17.
[o] Tom. 3 fol. 110
[p] Epiſt. 86.
[q] Hom of faſting, part 2. and confeſſion art. 34.

of countries, times, and manners of men, so that nothing be ordained against Gods Word. Now these diuers colours in the same garment may not beget a contentious opposition in the members of one bodie, we may not diuide Christs coat without [r]seame, but so [s] worke together, as that we may keepe the [t] vnitie of the spirit in the bond of peace. [u] S. Augustine sweetly, In ista veste varietas sit, scissura non sit. The needle worke here mentioned is no blacke worke, or browne worke, or (as Seamsters vse to speake) no cut-worke. There may be no rents or patches in this vesture, no schisme, nor scissure, the scissers of diuision, and sheeres of separation are both accursed.

Iohn 19. 23.
2 Cor 6. 1.
Ephes 4. 3.
[u] In loc.

[x] Other expound diuers colours to be diuers vertues, according to that of Paul, Coloss. 3. 12. Put on tender mercy, kindnesse, humblenesse of minde, meekenesse, long-suffering, and aboue all things put on loue, which is the bond of perfectnesse, as it were the hemme, [y] end, and edge of the wedding garment.

[x] Brentius. Bellarmine. Iacob de Valent.
[y] 1 Tim. 1. 5.

[z] S. Basil, and [a] other take diuers colours in this vesture, to be diuers kindes of precepts in the Scripture. Some Morall, other Naturall, some Theoricall, other Practicall, some Legall, other Euangelicall. It is pithily said by Paulinus epist. lib. 2. epist. 4. that our soules are by nature like the porches of Bethesda, mentioned Ioh. 5. in which are lodged a great many sicke folkes, blinde, halt, withered, &c. and that the Scriptures are like the poole of Bethesda, into which whosoeuer entreth after Gods holy Spirit hath a little stirred the water, is made whole of whatsoeuer disease he hath.

[z] In loc.
[a] Ric. de Sancto Vict. apud Dr. Incognit. in loc.

[b] Other interpret diuers colours in the Churches vesture, to be contemplation and action.

[b] Bonauent.

[c] Other vnderstand it of diuers degrees and dignities of men in the Church, against the tumultuous Anabaptist, and malapert Mar-prelate. If these turbulent spirits (as some beare in hand) are cast out of the Church, or coniured downe; Let such of them as are liuing rust in their griefe, and such of them as are dead rest in their graue: for Gods sake, my brethren, let vs not raise this kinde of deuill againe.

[c] Placidus. D. Incognit. Iacob. de Valen.

But most Interpreters haue construed this of graces and embroyderies of the Spirit, mentioned 1 Cor. 12. There be diuersities of gifts, but the same spirit: diuersities of administrations, but the same Lord: diuersities of operations, but God is the same who worketh all in all. Vnto one is giuen by the spirit the word of wisdome, to another the word of knowledge by the same spirit, to another is giuen faith by the same spirit, to another the gift of healing by the same spirit, to another discerning of spirits, to another diuersitie of tongues, and to another interpretation of tongues, all these things worketh euen the selfe-same spirit, distributing to euery man seuerally as he will. And here we may learne the reason why the Church of England hath appointed this Hymne to be read on this holiday, because Christ vpon this day sent downe the various gift of the Holy Ghost vpon his Disciples, as we finde Acts 2. [d] for these clouen tongues and millefold graces of the Spirit, are the broydered border in the Churches vesture.

[d] Augustin. Euthym. Tileman.

The blessed Apostles had diuers colours in the Churches infancie; some were the sonnes of consolation, as [e] Barnabas; other the sonnes of thunder, as [f] Iames and Iohn: [g] Paul was good at planting, Apollos at watering. The holy Fathers in succeeding ages had diuers colours: [h] Origen construed the Scriptures allegorically, Hierome historically, Gregorie the Great morally, Chrysostome pathetically, Augustine dogmatically.

[e] Acts 4. 36.
[f] Mark 3. 17.
[g] 1 Cor 3. 6.
[h] Sixt. Senen. Bibliothec. lib. 3. pag 187.

Since the reformation of religion our Doctors haue likewise flourished in diuers colours, as [i] Martin Luther once wrote vpon the wals of his chamber with chalke, Res & verba Philippus, res sine verbis Lutherus, verba sine re Erasmus, &c. Some men excell in explication, other in application of holy Scriptures; one surpasseth in expounding the words, another is eloquent in deliuering the matter, a third profound in determining Schoole-doubts, a fourth happy for cases of conscience, some iudicious in informing the vnderstanding, other powerfull in reforming the will and affection.

[i] In colloquio de Erasm.

And (God be blessed) our Church of England is a Queene in a vesture of gold wrought about with diuers colours. B. Latymer a good old man and happy martyr, vsed in prison earnestly to pray that God once againe would restore the Gospell vnto this kingdome, repeating often (as reuerend [k] Fox reports in his life) these words, [k] In Martyr. fol. 1579.

Once

Once againe, once againe good Lord. The God of comfort, out of the riches of his mercy heard his prayer, and that for a long time once againe bestowed on vs his word, sending vnto vs as he did vnto the Iewes his owne people, [l] Prophets, and Wise-men, and Scribes, that is, zealous Preachers endued with the spirit of propheſie, which haue thundered in their doctrine and lightened in their conuersation, as [m] Nazianzen wrote of Basil, politike Prelates endued with the spirit of wisdome, which haue beene the [n] chariot and horse-men of Gods Israel among vs: accurate writers endued with the spirit of knowledge, whose books are like [o] the tower of Dauid, where the young men & strong men haue swords and shields to fight the Lords battell. The truth is, England wants no gift so much as true thankfulnesse to the Father of lights for all her gifts. Ingratefull England, [p] what could Almighty God haue done more for thee, that he hath not done, sending labourers into his vineyard here, both early and late, some plowing vp the fallow grounds, other binding vp the broken hearted, some powring oyle into thy wounds, other wine, some piping, other mourning: yet the best of thy Prophets are worst entreated of thee, for dissolute Diuines haue corrupt officers and roaring Gentlemen for their Patrons, factious Teachers haue swarmes of followers and abetters, if any reele to Popery, he shall vndoubtedly finde friends in a corner, if not in the court: but the true Protestant Pastor, a burning and a shining light, [r] ardens per verbum, lucens per exemplum, in single benefice deseruing double honor, is ground into powder, as it were between two contrary factions as the corne is betweene two mill-stones. It is therefore my humble sute to such as are placed in authority, to receiue none accusation against such Elders, in points of doctrine especially, [t] but vnder two or three witnesses, and those neither [t] whisperers, nor aduersaries, nor ignorant, the first dare not, the second will not, and the third cannot giue good information: and it is my sute to the people, that they would euer reuerence such Elders, as their [u] Fathers in God, and as their Mothers [x] trauelling in birth vntill Christ be formed in them, after teachers haue scattered in deed tares and cockle, but Protestant Doctors haue first of all and best of all, sowen wheat in the Lords field, euen that immortall seed, by which all of vs are new borne babes vnto God in Christ. And it is my sute to you my fellow-labourers in the Ministery, that you would continue [y] by honour and dishonour, by euill report and good report, [z] stedfast and immoueable, [a] shining as lights in the mids of a crooked generation, alwaies abundant in the worke of the Lord, neuer wearied in [b] doing good, good I say, to such as hate you, to such as hurt you, yea, to such as despise your person and place: for beleeue it beloued, If there be any way to heauen on horse-backe, this is the way, to suffer for righteousnesse sake. So the king of glory shall haue pleasure still in our Churches beauty, being all glorious within, and she shall haue many children, and they shal beare her company with ioy & gladnes into the Kings palace, decked in this world with embroyderies of grace, and couered in the next with an euerlasting robe of glory.

These notes concerning the description of the Bride, were preached at Christs Church in Canterbury, at the Lord Arch-Bishops visitation, holden Anno 1615. August 10.

[l] Matth. 23. 34

[m] Orat. funeb. in laudem Basil.

[n] 2 Kin. 2. 12.

[o] Cant. 4. 4.

[p] Esay 5. 4.

[q] Iohn 5. 35.

[r] Aquin.

[t] 1 Tim. 5. 19.

[t] Latymer apud Fox in Mart. fol. 1585.

[u] Philem. 10.

[x] Galat. 4. 19.

[y] 2 Cor. 6. 8.

[z] 1 Cor. 15. 58

[a] Philip. 2. 15.

[b] Galat. 6. 9.

PSALME 47.

O clap your hands together all ye people, O sing vnto God with the voice of melody, &c.

THe chiefe matter of this Hymne (in the [c] Fathers opinion) is Christs Ascension, and so consequently the victorious subduing of all his and our enemies: it consisteth of two parts especially:

[c] Hieron. Augustin. Chrysost. Euthym.

1. An

Fully both in respect of the { Praisers, all ye people. [d] Not the Iewes only, but the Gentiles also. / Praises, O sing praises, sing praises, &c. Often and all kinde of praise.

Faithfully, with vnderstanding [e] according to the prescript of his holy will. Other seruice done contrary to his word is not an honour, but a dishonour vnto him.

1. An inuitation to sing praises vnto Christ, and that Cheerefully, Clap your hands and sing with the voice of melodie. For [f] clapping of hands is an outward [g] signe of an inward ioy, Nahum 3 19. or as other, praise God in your workes and words: for Clapping of hands together is the [h] ioyning of one good deed vnto another: as the wicked [i] bind sinnes together; so the godly clap good works together, ioyning vertue with faith, and with vertue knowledge, and with knowledge temperance, &c. 2 Pet. 1. 5.

2. A reason of this inuitation [k] in respect of our Sauiours { Greatnesse, vers. 2. { High. / Terrible. / King ouer all the earth. } Goodnesse, in { Collecting his Church, vers. 3. 4. / Increasing his Church, vers. 5. 7. 8. / Preseruing his Church, vers. 9. }

I haue treated often of the most remarkable points in the former part. I purpose therefore now to speake concerning the second only, being the ground of our Prophets exhortation.

The first inciting motiue to praise Christ is his greatnesse, being high, terrible, King ouer all the earth, high [l] two waies,

1. Absolutely in respect of his owne selfe and owne [m] nature, sitting at the right hand of his Father in the highest heauens, and hauing also the highest [n] authority.

2. Relatiuely, in respect of our acknowledgement and inuocation, in that we his people who know that euery good and perfect gift is from aboue, beg all things of our heauenly father in [o] his name.

Christ is terrible, that is, fearefull, or meet to be feared, not of his children only for their good, but of the wicked also for their punishments: terrible to the [p] Deuill, as being [q] stronger than he, [r] casting out the Prince of darkenesse by the finger of God. And therefore so soone as an vncleane spirit saw Iesus, he cried out, Ah, what haue we to doe with thee, O Iesus of Nazareth, art thou come to destroy vs, Mark. 1. 24. or as other Deuils, Mat. 8. 29. Art thou come to torment vs before the time? for the Deuils in beleeuing [s] tremble. Terrible to [t] Hypocrite and other impious agents of the Deuill, as hauing his Fanne in his hand to make cleane his floore, and to gather his wheat into his garner, but he will burne vp the chaffe with vnquenchable fire, Matth. 3. 12. [u] or Christ is Excelsus in potentia, terribilis in iustitia, high in power, and fearefull in iustice: high in exalting the good, and terrible in humbling the bad.

And Christ is king ouer all the earth, as hauing all power giuen him in heauen and earth, Mat. 28. 18. other Princes haue but one or two countries vnder their dominion and Empire, but [x] in his hands are all the corners of the earth, and the strength of the hils is his also, that is, of puissant Potentates, in comparison of whom all other appeare but low vallies, I say the strength and height of all hils are from him and for him, according to his good will and pleasure. To shut vp all in one briefe glosse, [y] Christus est excelsus ratione diuinitatis, terribilis ratione potentiæ, Rex magnus ratione gubernationis & prouidentiæ. Christ is high in respect of his deity, being the Sonne of the most high, Luke 1. 32. to be feared in respect of his omnipotency, which nothing is able to resist, 2 Chro. 20. 6. a great King ouer all the earth in respect of his gouernment and prouidence, reaching from one end to another, and ordering all things sweetly, Wisd. 8. 1.

He

[a] Bucer. Tileman. Bellarmin.
[c] Melanthon.
[f] Placidus. Caluin.
[g] Augustin. Concordent manus & lingua: illa confiteatur, illa operentur.
[h] D. Incognit.
[i] Eccles. 7. 8.
[k] Mollerus.
[l] Strigelius.
[m] Placidus. Bellarmin.
[n] Wilcox. R. Stephan.
[o] Iob 16. 23.
[p] Strigelius. Mollerus.
[q] Luk. 11. 22.
[r] Ioh. 12. 31.
[s] Iames 2. 19.
[t] Tileman.
[u] D. Incognit.
[x] Psal. 95. 4.
[y] Bellarmin.

He shall subdue the people vnder vs.] Here the Iewes dreame of a temporall kingdome, conceiuing that the Messias at his comming shall as an earthly Prince possesse the kingdomes of the world, and bring them vnder his followers feet, And therefore the [z] mother of Zebedeus children earnestly desired Christ that her two sonnes Iames and Iohn might sit the one at his right hand, and the other at his left in his kingdome. But our [a] Diuines answer, that the word translated here, subdit, doth import a subduing, not with armes and force, but with arguments and Oratorie, not any compulsion by piercing of the sword, but a voluntarie submission by the preaching of the word.

Againe, the [b] coherence shewes plainly that our Prophet meanes not any seruile subiection or bondage, but a spirituall obedience which is a perfect freedome. Vassals vnder tyrannie vse not in signe of ioy to clap their hands, and to sing with the voyce of melody; but in signe of sorrow to wring their hands, and to complaine with outcries and lamentations. When the Lord turned againe the captiuity of Sion, our mouth was filled with laughter, and our tongue with ioy, saith our Prophet Psal. 126. 1. but by the waters of Babylon we sate downe and wept, when as we remembred Sion, as for our harpes, we hanged them vp vpon the trees, as being vnfit in our heauinesse to sing any song of melody, Psal. 137. 1. 2. 3. If all people then ought to sing praises, and to reioyce for their subiection, it must vndoubtedly be construed of such a kinde of subduing as is full of [c] ioy, tearmed by [d] S. Paul, a casting downe of our imagination exalted against the knowledge of God, and a bringing into captiuity euery thought to the obedience of Christ.

Yea but what is meant here by vs and our feet? If we take this as spoken of the blessed Apostles, it is is plaine, saith [e] Austine, for [f] their sound went out through all the earth, and their words vnto the end of the world, they subdued by their preaching all Nations vnto the Scepter of Christs kingdome, in so much as their very feet were reputed beautifull, Rom. 10. 15. and we reade Acts 4. that the multitude which beleeued being possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the price of the things that were sold, and laid it downe at the Apostles feet, according to the tenour of our text, he hath subdued the people vnder vs, and the nations vnder our feet.

If more largely we will vnderstand this of all sorts of Iewes conuerted vnto the Gospell of Christ, it is [g] agreeable to that, Esay 2. 2. The Law shall goe forth of Sion, and the word of the Lord from Hierusalem. And Psal. 110. 2. The Lord shall send the rod of thy power out of Sion. The Iewes are the naturall branches, and the Gentiles as a wilde Oliue-tree grafted in them, Rom. 11. 17. The Gospell of the kingdome was [h] first preached vnto the Iewes, and from the Iewes, as the [i] root, it was conueyed to the Gentiles as the branches. Our Prophet then in saying (he shall subdue the nations vnder our feet) doth insinuate, [k] that the Gentiles should be schollers, and the Iewes as it were schoolemasters vnto them: for to sit vnder the feet, or at the feet is vsed in holy Scripture for being a scholler, or learning: as Acts 22. 3. Paul saith of himselfe, that he was brought vp at the feet of Gamaliel. And Luke 10. 39. Mary sat at Iesus feet, and heard his preaching. And [l] S. Ambrose reports that the senior Doctors in the Synagogues of the Iewes vsed to sit in high seats or Chaires, the younger vpon benches vnder them, and the last of all, vpon mats, lowest of all.

But I take this as spoken by Dauid in the [m] person of the whole Church, consisting of Iewes and Gentiles, as if the [n] piller of truth, and [o] mother of vs all had said, the high and terrible, the great King ouer all the earth, by his holy word and spirit subdues the people, [p] that is, the Iewes, as at one Sermon about three thousand, Act. 2 41. & the nations, that is, the Gentiles, vnder vs, that is, vnder the discipline of his religion and seruice which we professe, [q] putting the person here possessing for the thing possessed: and [r] so the Iewes and the Gentiles are made but one sheepfold vnder one shepheard, Iohn 10. 16. the stop of the partition wall is broken, and he hath made of both one, Ephes. 2. 14. according to Noahs prophesie, Gen. 9. 27.

He shall chuse out an heritage for vs] [s] Some reade, he hath chosen vs an heritage to himselfe, for the Church is Christs house, Hebr. 3. 6. and heritage, Deut. 9. 26. Esay 19. 25. Iere. 10. 16. the people which as a [t] vineyard he hath enclosed to himselfe [z] Mat. 20. 20.

[a] Mollerus.
[b] Caluin. Strigelius.
[c] Rom. 14. 17.
[d] 2 Cor. 10. 5.
[e] In loc.
[f] Rom. 10. 18.
[g] Mollerus.
[h] Acts 13. 46.
[i] Rom 11. 18.
[k] Wilcox.
[l] Com. in epist. 1. ad Corin. cap. 14. vers. 31. Idem Philo apud Lorin. in Acts 22. 3.
[m] Placidus D. Incognit. Calvin.
[n] 1 Tim. 3. 15.
[o] Gal. 4. 26.
[p] Euthym. Placidus.
[q] Wilcox.
[r] Tremell.
[s] Vide Genebrard. & Bellarmin. in loc.
[t] Esay 5. 2.

selfe from the Commons of the world, and chosen for his peculiar inheritance, Psal. 33.12. Men esteeme very much of their inheritance, but Almighty God of his possession a great deale more, for that he created his people when they were not, and hath also preserued them euer since they were, redeeming them from the hands of all their enemies, and defending them as it were with a shield.

[u] Vatablus. Munster. Caluin. But [u] other according to the Hebrew read as our Church, he shall choose out an heritage for vs, [x] hereby meaning that he who knowes what is better for vs than our selues, hath chosen, that is, appointed, and that of his owne good will and mercy toward vs our inheritance, not only things meet for this life, as lands, and houses, and possessions, &c. but euen all other things concerning the hope of a better life, to wit, a [y] kingdome that cannot be shaken, an [z] euerlasting habitation, an inheritance which is immortall and vndefiled, and fadeth not away, reserued for vs in heauen, 1 Pet. 1.4. euen the worship of his beloued Iacob, or his glorie, for [a] which the true Iacob had good cause to glory, meaning the Kingdome, Temple, Priesthood, whereby Iacobs posterity did excell, Ezechiel 24.21. Amos 6.8. Nahum. 2.2. and all heauenly promises giuen to the Church in Christ, for which all the seed of Iacob, according to the Spirit (I meane the faithfull) ought to be glad and glory.

[x] Tremell. Wilcox.

[y] Heb. 12.28.

[z] Luk. 16.9.

[a] Vatablus.

God is gone vp with a merry noise] Gods Arke was a true token of his presence, wherefore Diuines according to the history construe this of Gods Arke when it went vp from Kiriathiearim to Hierusalem, [b] with shouting, and sound of cornet, and with trumpets, and with cymbals, making a sound with viols and with harps; or when it was carried by Salomon into the Temple, 2 Chron. 5. but most Interpreters according to the mysterie, take this as spoken of Christ, ascending with triumph into heauen, Luk. 24 51. he went vp with a merry noise, when as Legions of Angels attended him and sang, [c] Lift vp your heads, ô ye gates, and be lift vp ye euerlasting doores, and the King of glory shall come in. The Disciples haply heard not this merry noise, [d] that they might the better intend the mysterie, considering their owne flesh, vnto which it was said in the beginning, ([e] Dust thou art, and to dust thou shalt returne againe) to be now clothed with incorruption, and carried into the heauen of heauens. [f] It is not said here that he was assumed or carried vp, as [g] Elias into heauen by the power of another: but as God he did ascend by his owne proper power, and that in victory, [h] Leading captiuity captiue, [i] spoiling principalities, and powers, openly triumphing ouer the Deuill and Death, ouer hell and the graue, ouer sinne and the law: he brake thorow all their fetters and forces, as thorow a cobweb, saith Chrysostome, and in despight of them all ascended vp on high with a merry noise.

[b] 2 Sam 6. 15. 1 Chron. 13 8. & 15.25.

[c] Psal. 24.7.

[d] Bellarmin.

[e] Gen. 3.19.

[f] Chrysost.

[g] 2 King. 2.12.

[h] Psal. 68.18.

[i] Colos. 2.15.

Yea but how can it be truly said, that he went vp with the sound of the trumpet? Answer is made by two messengers of heauen, Acts 1.11. this Iesus which is taken vp from you into heauen shall so come, as ye haue seene him goe into heauen. Now Christ, as [k] S. Paul telleth vs expressly, shall descend from heauen with a shout, and with the voice of the Arch-angell, and with the trumpet of God. And therefore [l] S. Hierome that the two glorious Angels appearing to the Disciples in white clothing sounded as it were a trumpet, in saying as Christ ascended, Ye men of Galile, why stand ye gazing into heauen, &c.

[k] 1 Thess. 4.16

[l] In loc. Idem August. & alij.

Or as [m] other, he went vp with the sound of the trumpe, that is, at his ascension he gaue his Apostles power and faculty, to [n] teach all nations, and in their preaching, they lifted vp their voice like a trumpet, Esay 58.1. and the sound of this trumpe ringeth as yet in the world. And therefore let vs sing praises vnto Christ, as [o] our God, and againe sing praises vnto him, as being our King, and thirdly sing praises vnto him, as being the King of all the earth.

[m] Tileman.

[n] Mat. 28.19.

[o] Bellarmin.

Or let vs sing praises vnto him in our praiers, and that foure waies answerable to the foure kindes of praier, 1 Tim. 2.1. as [p] if he should haue said, O sing praises vnto him in your supplications, O sing praises vnto him in your obseruations, O sing praises vnto him in your intercessions, O sing praises vnto him in your giuing of thanks.

[p] D. Incognit. in loc. Bernard.

And as we must often and frequently praise him, euen so prudently with vnderstanding, ſtanding, [q] that is, not only with our lips, and other outward inſtruments of praiſe, but alſo with our hearts and attention, euen with all accurate [r] skill and [s] induſtry. The [t] Gentiles in adoring gods made with hands, ſing not vnderſtandingly. The [u] Iewes in dreaming of an earthly kingdome, ſing not praiſes vnto their Meſſias vnderſtandingly. The [x] Papiſts in preaching iuſtification by workes of the Law, ſing not the praiſes of Chriſt vnderſtandingly. [y] Hereticks expounding the text corruptly, ſing not praiſes vnto Chriſt vnderſtandingly. Wherefore [z] S. Paul exhorteth vs that the Word of God may dwell in vs plenteouſly with all wiſdome. See Epiſt. Sunday 5. after Epiph.

God reigneth ouer the heathen] Chriſt aſcending vp on high appointed [a] ſome to be Apoſtles, and ſome Prophets, and ſome Euangeliſts, and ſome Paſtors and Teachers, for the gathering together of the Saints, for the worke of the miniſtry, and for the edifying of his body the Church. And for this end he furniſhed his Apoſtles on this day with extraordinary gifts of eloquence & zeale, the Holy Ghoſt appearing vnto them, and ſitting on each of them in the ſhapes of [b] clouen and fiery tongues. [c] The Diſciples had infuſion of the ſpirit, haply diffuſion heretofore when Chriſt breathed on them and ſaid, [d] receiue the Holy Ghoſt: but now they had (as [e] one calleth it) effuſion of the ſpirit ſurpaſſing the former in manner and meaſure. Now their cup did ouerflow, they were ſo filled with heauenly gifts and graces, as that they [f] could not but ſpeake the things which they had heard and ſeene of Chriſt, euen [g] the wonderfull workes of God, eloquently with other tongues, and earneſtly with all boldneſſe. Now the bleſſed Apoſtles able to ſpeake euery kinde of language, taught euery nation vnder heauen, and ſo Chriſt our great King by the powerfull operation of his Goſpell in the mouthes of his Preachers, and hearts of his people, reigneth ouer the heathen, and ſitteth vpon his holy ſeat.

Two things (as [h] Ariſtotle taught) concurre to the making of an abſolute king. On the Soueraignes part authority, on the ſubiects part obedience. Chriſt in reſpect of his authority reigned ouer the heathen heretofore, for [i] the earth is the Lords and all that therein is, the compaſſe of the world, and they that dwell therein: but now he reigneth ouer them in reſpect of their obedience: they were ſubiects alway to the kingdome of his power, but now they be ſubiects vnto his kingdome of grace, they now bring vnto him a [k] free-will offering with an holy worſhip, and ſo he ſitteth vpon his holy ſeat, as it followeth in our Text.

By ſeat he meaneth [l] either heauen or the tabernacle, for both of theſe many times are called in Scripture, Gods holy throne, becauſe he that had the fulneſſe of holineſſe in himſelfe, gaue manifeſtation of himſelfe from [m] theſe two places eſpecially. Now for as much as the tabernacle was a figure of the Church, it may be conſtrued of his [n] reigning in the hearts of the faithfull vpon earth, as well as of his ſitting at the right hand of God in heauen: [o] howſoeuer it is to be taken, the Prophets purpoſe is no doubt to deſcribe Chriſt as a Iudge ready to yeeld iuſtice both to good and bad, according to their deeds.

The Princes of the people] Concerning the diuers readings of theſe words, I refer you to Mollerus, Genebrard, Agellius, Bellarmin. in loc. I will expound them as I finde them in our preſent tranſlation, and I note from hence,

1. That it is not impoſſible for great men to be good men, for the heads of a Country to be members of Chriſt, and for Princes as well as the people, to ſerue the God of Abraham: it is ſaid by the [p] Prophet, vpon my peace came great bitterneſſe, a thouſand fall on the left hand, but [q] ten thouſand at the right hand, ten periſh in their proſperity for one that falleth in aduerſity. [r] Homo victus in Paradiſo victor in ſtercore, [s] Adam in the garden of pleaſure was ouercome by the ſubtill ſerpent, whereas [t] Iob vpon the dunghill of miſery was more than a conquerour. Woodmen ſay that Deere are moſt circumſpect in fat paſture: ſo the godly feare moſt in a rich eſtate, nihil timendum video (ſaith [u] one) timeo tamen; it is a ſweet praier of our Church in the Letany, Good Lord deliuer vs in all time of our wealth, inſinuating that our mindes are not ſo wanton in want as in abundance: yet (as you ſee) ſuch is Chriſts vnſpeakable goodneſſe toward all ſorts of men, in [x] preuenting them euen with [q] Euthym. Genebrard.

[r] Bucer. Mollerus. Calain.
[s] Bellarm. vide Bernard. ſer 7. & 47. ſup. Cantica.
[t] Auguſtin.
[u] Mollerus.
[x] Melanct.
[y] Tileman.
[z] Coloſſ. 3. 16.
[a] Epheſ. 4. 11.

[b] Acts 2. 3.
[c] See Epiſtle on this day.
[d] Ioh. 20. 22.
[e] Rac. de S. Vict. ſer. de miſſione ſpiritus.
[f] Acts 4. 20.
[g] Acts 2. 11.

[h] And D. Incognit in loc.
[i] Pſal. 24. 1.

[k] Pſal. 110. 3.

[l] Caluin. Mollerus.
[m] Matt. 5. 34. Mar. 23. 21. 22.
[n] Mollerus.
[o] Wilcox.

[p] Eſa. 38. 17.
[q] Pſal. 91. 7.
[r] Auguſt. in Pſal. 34 con. 1.
[s] Gen. 2.
[t] Iob 2.
[u] Seneca Trag.
[x] Pſal. 21. 3.

with the riches of his mercy, that not only the meane people, but also the mighty Princes among the heathen, are ioyned vnto the Church of the God of Abraham.

2. From hence we may learne [y] that the calling of Princes is lawfull and vsefull, in that Almighty God hath ordained higher powers to be Protectors of his people, by which he defendeth his Church on earth, as it were with a shield. Fabius Maximus is called by [z] Plutarch, Scutum Romanorum, the target of the Romans: so good Princes are Scuta Christianorum, the bucklers of Gods people: [a] the same word is vsed, Hosea 4. 18. Her shields loue to say with shame, giue ye, that is, her Rulers loue bribes.

Constantine the great was a shield to the Church, Arcadius a shield to the Church, Theodosius a shield to the Church, Iohn Frederick Duke of Saxonie was a shield to the Church: among pious Princes, I may not forget our late Queene Elizabeth of blessed memory. The [b] Poets affirme that Aiax had a seuen-fold shield, [c] the which as a tower barred his bosome: the right side was all brasse, & seuen Oxe hides within it quilted hard, framed by Tycheus the best Currier that euer dwelt in Hyla. So that happy Prince was a seuen-fold shield to protect the people of the God of Abraham, according to the [d] seuen-fold gift of the spirit manifestly shewen in her gouernment. She was a shield not only to this our Church in England, but a shield moreouer to the Church in Scotland, a shield to the Church in Holland, a shield to the Church in France, a shield to the Church in Germany, a shield to the Church in Denmarke, a shield to the Church in Geneua. She was a true Defender of the faith, and a sure Target to the faithfull, of whatsoeuer condition or country. If Plutarch were now liuing to write liues by parallels, he would be troubled exceedingly to find a parallel for her in respect of her morall endowments among women, and in respect of her Princely vertues among men, who liued with her, and are now at rest with her.

[e] This doctrine doth instruct Princes not to pill and poll the common-weale, but to become nursing [f] fathers and nursing mothers vnto the Church: a Tyrant is Butcher to his people, but a good King is a Buckler to such as are vnder him, a Protector of his Realme, defending the bodies and goods of his subiects, as it were with a shield. [g] Alphonsus King of Naples vsed this Embleme, a Pelican feeding her young with her own bloud, the Motto, Pro rege, & pro grege. So renowned Achilles said in [h] Homer that he loued his Countrymen, as the carefull Dam-bird her vnfeathered brood, who bestowes meat on them vntill her selfe haue nothing left to eat. Cicero reports that Cæsar forgat nothing but iniuries only, which (as [i] Augustine notes) he did vtter vel magnus laudator, vel magnus adulator, either as a true commender, or as a lying flatterer; if as a commender, he knew Cæsar was so: if as a flatterer, he shewed that a great Prince should be so. [k] For though a King be neuer so puissant of power, yet breach of oath and promise solemnely made to the common-wealth, is an euill vpholder of quietnesse, feare is worse, but crueltie the worst of all. A Ruler ought not to be a ruiner, but a shelter and a shield to such as are committed to his charge.

This also should teach [l] euery soule to be subiect vnto higher powers, as being the Ministers of God for our well-fare. [m] Curse not the King, no not in thy thought, much lesse in thy word, least of all in any deed: for he that rebelleth against his Soueraigne, hacketh & heweth as it were his own buckler of defence. When one comforted a poore widow which had lately lost her husband, for that he was an vnthrift & vnkinde, she replied, although he were but a bad husband, yet he was an husband, & such an one is better than none. The commodities of gouernment are so great, that a very bad husband to the common-wealth is better than none, for whereas in a corrupt Monarchie there is one Tyrant, in an Oligarchie some few Tyrants, in a Democraty many Tyrants, in an Anarchy all are Tyrants. In [n] holy Bible we read that Dauid would not suffer his enemie Saul, though a wicked King, to be slaine when he was in his hands, for that he was the Lords anointed, he had sanctitatē vnctionis, albeit not sanctitatem vitæ, that is, an holy calling, though not an holy carriage. Wherefore Dauid said, Who can lay hands on the Lords annointed and be guiltlesse? and if [o] Heathen Emperors in the primitiue times, and vngodly Kings in all ages ought

[y] Melanchon. Mollerus. Strigellius.

[z] In vita Marcelli.

[a] Bucer. Bellarmin.

[b] Ouid. Metamor. lib. 13.

[c] Homer Iliad. lib. 7.

[d] Esay 11. 2.

[e] Melanct. Bucer. Mollerus.

[f] Esay 49. 23.

[g] Apud Strigel. in loc.

[h] Iliad. lib. 9.

[i] Epist. 5.

[k] Fox Martyr. fol. 1273.

[l] Rom. 13. 1.

[m] Eccles. 10. 20

[n] 1 Sam 26.

[o] Cæsar Baron. epist. præfix. annal tem. 11. A position contrary to Popish practise.

ought to be thus obeyed, how much more then a Christian and a vertuous Prince, such as Almightie God hath at this day placed ouer vs in this Iland.

This exposition is common and commendable, fitting the context fully, yet I rather follow their iudgement, who make God himselfe this our shield, for the Lord which is very high exalted, euen the King of all the earth, is our [p] strength, stonie rocke, defence, sauiour, refuge, buckler: [q] except hee build the house, their labour is but lost that build it, except hee keepe the Citie, the watchman wakes but in vaine. Princes and Prelates are but his [r] ministers, as it were petite shields vnder his high and holy shelter: and the Prophet calleth his protection in the plurall shields, [s] insinuating that God vseth innumerable meanes in preseruing his Church, able to saue with a few so well as with many, yea by miracles extraordinarie, so well as by meanes ordinarie. The busie brood of Spanish Ignatians are called Iesuites, but they may more fitly be called Iehusites. Iesus was so meeke as a lambe, but [t] Iehu was a man of bloud, and so be they; their eyes, as one said, are lifted vp into heauen, but their hands are on earth, and their hearts in hell, euer contriuing some mischiefe or massacre: yet the Lord high and terrible defendeth his Church against all their plots and practises, and so reigneth euen in the [u] midst of all his enemies.

Let vs therefore ioyne both ends of this Hymne together, and say with our Prophet, O clap your hands, all ye people, which are Gods people, sing with the voice of melodie, sing praises, sing praises vnto our God, O sing praises, sing praises vnto our King: for hee hath openly shewed himselfe to bee both great and good in collecting his Church, in increasing his Church, in protecting his Church, as it were with a shield.

p Psal. 18.1.
q Psal. 127.1.
r Rom. 13.4.
s Caluin. Mollerius.
t Psal. 110.1.

Psalme. 104.

Praise the Lord, O my soule, &c.

THis Hymne consists of three parts especially, the:
1. Concerning Gods power, from verse 1. to verse 10.
2. Concerning his prouidence, from verse 10. to verse 24.
3. Concerning both his power and prouidence together, from verse 24. to the Psalmes end.

Now for as much as these theames are the common arguments of other Hymnes expounded before, and vpon the point the very same which are to bee discussed in the next following; I must here craue both a pardon and a passe of course to goe from this to that in peace.

Psalme. 145.

I will magnifie thee, O God my King, and I will praise thy name for euer and euer, &c.

THis Hymne contayneth excellent matter, and is penned after a most exquisite manner. The chiefe matter is Gods holy praise, the which is the very center of all our deuotions, enioyned by Christ both in the beginning and ending of his absolute prayer; in the beginning, hallowed be thy name, in the ending, thine is kingdome, power and glory: teaching vs hereby, that it is in religion Alpha and Omega, the first thing we should aske, and the last thing also that we should act. For Almightie God out of the riches of his mercie bestoweth vpon vs all things, and requireth of vs only this one thing, to praise his name for euer and euer.

For the manner, it is written in the order of the crosse row, euery verse (excepting one) beginning with the letters as they be placed in the Hebrew Alphabet. Now the Holy Ghost enameleth and fretteth as it were this and some other places of Scripture with these characters for two reasons especially.

1. To shew the Writers [u] diligence, or haply rather the writings [x] dignitie.

2. To helpe the readers [y] memorie, for hee considereth of [z] what mould wee are made, not of iron but of dust; impressions of iron or brasse continue long, but in dust and ashes they be soone either blowne away, or washed away. The spirit therefore for the dulnesse of our vnderstanding, speakes some things grossely, quoth [a] Paul; and againe, for the weaknesse of our memorie, sets downe many things, as here, by figures and places artificially. And as the writers of sacred Scripture, who were the pens, euen so the Preachers of the blessed word, which are the tongues of the Holy Ghost, ought to teach other with order and accurate method; for God is the God of order, and as he will haue all things in the Church [b] done, so likewise all things in the Church said orderly.

The Whole may be diuided into a { Protestation to praise God, in the two former verses. / Proposition of arguments why God is to bee praised, in the rest.

In the protestation obserue the { Person { Praising, King Dauid, I will praise. / Praised, the Lord, stiled here God, King. / Practise, praising of God, and that with { Intention, implied in these words, I will, O God, and expressed [c] elsewhere, I will giue thankes to the Lord with my whole heart, praise the Lord, O my soule, and all that is within me, praise his holy name, Psal. 103. 1. / Extension, in regard of the { Thing, I will magnifie thee, praise thy name, giue thankes, talke of thy worship, tell of thy greatnesse, &c. / Time, for euer and euer

Concerning the partie praising God, I haue spoken in my notes vpon the 118. Psalme, and vpon Psalme 95. in the beginning of our Liturgie Dauid herein is a mirrour to Magistrates, and patterne to priuate people: for a King, saith [d] Augustine, serues God one way as a man, another way as a Magistrate; as a man, hee must haue care to liue deuoutly toward God, and soberly toward himselfe; but as a Magistrate he must also become a great example both of holy religion and vnspotted honestie toward other. As [e] Aurelius Claudius in his Motto, Rex viua lex. For as the law is a dead rule; so the ruler ought to carrie himselfe to his subiects as a liuing law.

For [f] as Camelions varie with their obiect,
So Princes manners doe transforme the subiect.

Princes are then only greater than themselues when as they forget their owne greatnesse to magnifie Gods name, whose greatnesse is without end. It is said of [g] Saul, that he had beene King one yeere, and that he reigned two yeares ouer Israel: [h] one yeere he reigned well, and afterward there was no account of his reigne. [i] Seneca said of an old man, who saw many good dayes, but did but a few good deeds, diu fuit, non diu vixit, according to that of the [k] Wiseman, The honourable age is not that which is of long time, neither that which is measured by the number of yeares, but an vndefiled life is the old age. The wicked liue not out halfe their dayes, Psal. 55. 25. and so Christians vse to number their dayes not à generatione, but à regeneratione, that is, from their baptisme, not from their birth.

The partie praised is the Lord, called by Dauid here, my King, either [l] for that he did acknowlege himselfe to bee King vnder God, which is the King of Kings, [m] or else for that he was to magnifie those vertues in God, which especially concerne him as King and [n] Lord of all, hauing [o] all power in heauen and earth. Most men among the very worst, acknowledge that there is a God, [p] but they doe not admit him as King and gouernour of the whole world, [q] reaching from one end to another, and ordering all things sweetly.

Dauid

u Master Estey exposit. of 119. Psalme.
x Bucer in Psal. 119. & Tremel. in Psal. 111.
y Mollerus. Calvin. in Psal. 119.
z Psal. 103. 14.
a Rom. 6. 19.
b 1. Cor. 14. 40.
c Psal. 111. 1.
d Epist. 50.
e Reusner. in Symbol.
f Du Bartas 2. day, 1. weeke.
g 1. Sam. 13. 1.
h See Vatablus in loc.
k Wisd. 4. 8.
l Mollerus Calvin
m Bellarmine.
n Rom 10. 12.
o Mat. 28. 18.
p Placidus.
q Wisd. 8. 1.

Dauid therefore calleth here r Christ a King, of whom it is said by God the Father, Psal. 2.6. I haue set my King vpon my holy hill of Sion: and f Psal. 45.7. Thy seat, O God is for euer and euer, the scepter of thy kingdome is a right scepter. And in t particular application he termeth him also my King, for it is not enough to confesse, that Christ is a Priest, a Prophet, and a King to others; vnlesse we beleeue that Christ is our Priest, our Prophet, our King, our righteousnesse, saying as u Paul, he loued me and gaue himselfe for me, sweet Iesu thou art my God, and I will thanke thee, for I am thy x seruant, my King, and I will magnifie thee, for I am thy subiect.

r Tileman.
f So Paul Heb. 1.8.
t Strigellius.
u Gal. 2. 20.
x Psal. 118.28.
y Psal. 116. 14.

Concerning Dauids practise, he saith vnto God, I will magnifie thee, giue thanks vnto thee, talke of thy worship, speake of the might of thy maruellous acts, and tell of thy greatnes: hereby shewing his readines to giue God all power and prai'e, not only for a day, but for euery day, yea, for euer and euer. And how that is to be construed, I haue noted vpon the 89. Psalme at large. The wicked may be said to dishonour Gods name for euer and euer two wayes.

1. In respect of their desires, for if they should liue for euer and euer, they would sinne for euer and euer.

2. In respect of their deserts and euill example, for as long as any man liuing is hurt by their scandall, or misled by their lewd doing, or saying, or writing, or reading, so long they dishonour God vpon earth, and accordingly their torments are made more grieuous vnto them in hell. And therefore z some Diuines thinke that the rich Epicure frying in hell fire, became solicitor for his brethren at home, that they should conuert and repent not out of any compassion or loue, but onely for that his conscience told him he had giuen them ill example while he liued among them, and that if they were damned, his torture should be further increased for it.

z Gregorius & Beda apud Maldonat. in Luc. 16. 27. and D. Fenton serm. at Mercers Chappell.

On the contrary, good men honour God and praise his name for euer and euer, in respect of their affections, as being desirous to a sing alway the louing kindnesse of the Lord, &c. and in respect of their example, for that other b seeing their good works are moued to tell of his greatnes, and talke of his glory from one generation to another. It is reported Heb. 11.4. that Abel being dead many thousand yeeres, yet speaketh, and as the bloud of Abel, euen so the good deeds of the Saints in heauen, as yet doe speake to vs on earth, Abrahams obedience, Iosephs continence, Iobs patience, Simeons pietie, Cornelius his pitie, preach still vnto vs. And Chrysostome doth affirme, that the rewards of S. Paul shall so long rise more and more, how long there shall any remaine, which either by his doctrine or life shall euery day be brought vnto God.

a Psal. 89. 1.
b Matth. 5.16.

The reasons why God is to bee praysed, are drawne from his
- Essence, verse 3. Great is the Lord, yea no end of his greatnesse.
- Effects and works, the which
  - In generall, are powerfull and wonderfull, verse 4.
  - In particular,
    - Some workes are maruellous, as being full of beautie, verse 5.
    - Others maruellous, as being full of terror, verse 6.
    - Most are maruellous, as being full of abundant kindnesse, for his mercies are ouer all his workes, verse 7,8, &c.

Touching Gods essence, Dauid saith, it is great without end, as c Iob speakes, higher than heauen, as being higher then the highest; deeper than hell, as passing all the deepe vnderstanding of men and Angels; broader then the sea, as d measuring the waters in his fist; longer than earth, as being immortall onely: for whereas the decrees of God, called eternall, haue an end but not a beginning; and the soules of men, called immortall, haue a beginning without an end: God alone is Alpha and Omega, without either beginning or end, being the beginning and end of all things.

c Iob. 11.8,9.
d Esay 40. 12.

e Or haply Dauid speakes thus of the greatnesse of God, as a King, hauing a kingdome

e Bellarmine.

kingdome great in respect of bredth, for all things are at his command, from the silly worme that is vnder our feet to the glorious Angels in the highest heauens: great in respect of length, for his Kingdome is an euerlasting Kingdome, verse 15. of this hymne; great in respect of depth, as ruling not only the bodies, but also the mindes of men, yea the very [f] hearts of other Kings are in his hand: great in respect of height, as being a great [g] King aboue all other Gods, ruling by his owu power, whereas all other haue receiued the sword from him, wherefore saith [h] Augustine, seeing his greatnesse in euery respect is without end; let our magnifying of his name continue for euer and euer world without end. To conclude with [i] Hilarius, Virtus eius opinione non clauditur, locis non continetur, nominibus non enunciatur, temporibus non subditur, arctus ad id sensus noster est, ingenium hebes est, sermo mutus est.

Concerning the workes and effects of God, they bee generally so maruellous, that one man is not able to declare their power, and to tell of their greatnesse, and [k] therefore Dauid saith, one generation shall praise them vnto another: euery seuerall age is an eye-witnesse of seuerall acts of wonder, and one day telleth another, and one night certifieth another, Psal. 19.2. [l] one generation passeth, and another commeth, and as one succeedeth another in dayes, euen so likewise in duty, speaking of the might of Gods admirable workes, and talking of his greatnesse.

More particularly, some workes of God are maruellous, as being full of beautie, vers. 5. for [m] the heauens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth his handie worke. The Sunne, Moone, starres, fire, winde, swift ayre, raging water, are so full of beautie, that ignorant vaine men imagined them to be gods and gouernours of the world, Wisd. 13.3.

Other workes of God are maruellous, as being full of terror and iustice, verse 6. which he doth execute sometime vpon certaine persons, as the fearefull opening of the ground vpon [n] Corath, Dathan and Abiram. Sometimes vpon whole cities, as the destruction of [o] Sodome and Gomorra, by raining downe fire and brimstone from heauen: sometimes vpon a whole nation, as the sending of his [p] plagues vpon Egypt thorowout all the Land: and once vpon the whole world as the generall [q] Deluge that swept away from earth euery thing in whose nostrils the spirit of life did breathe, only Noah remained and they that were with him in the Arke.

Other workes of God are maruellous, as being full of his abundant kindnesse, for saith our Prophet, his mercies are ouer all his workes: the which I finde construed two wayes.

1. His mercies are ouer all his workes, that is, greater than all other his workes.
2. His mercies are ouer all, that is, shewed in all, and toward all his workes.

Faith in man is a greater vertue then mercie, because faith vniteth vs vnto God which is higher than vs, whereas mercy supplies the defects of such as are vnder vs: [r] but in God which is the greatest, hauing all things inferiour to himselfe, and no superiour, mercy may be said to be the greatest of all his vertues, according to that of [s] S. Iames, mercy glorieth and triumpheth against iudgement. I say the greatest in effect, but not in propriety, for all the vertues and attributes of God are equall in effect and extent, for whereas Gods indignation is but vpon the [u] fourth generation of those that hate him: his mercies are vpon thousand generations of such as loue him and keepe his commandements: and among the thirteene properties of God, Exod. 34.6.7. almost all of them appertaine to his mercie: whereas but one concernes his might, and only two his iustice.

It is true that wisedome, iustice, power, are in God equall, as being his essentiall attributes: and [x] yet all these were chiefly manifested in our redemption by his mercy: for it is a greater act to redeeme the world, than in the beginning to create the world, in making it hee did onely speake the word and it was done: but in redeeming it, he spake many words, and did many wonders, yea hee did suffer many wrongs, as well as doe many workes, and loue is seene in doing more then in saying, and in suffering more than in doing: in the creation of the world God made man like himselfe; but in the redemption of the world he became flesh, and was made man; yea, [y] the scorne of men and outcast of the people: which occasioned the blessed

f Pro.21.1.
g Psal.95.3.
h In loc.
i In loc.
k Bellarmin.
l Eccles.1.4.
m Psal.19.1.
n Num.16.
o Gen. 19.
p Exod.cap.8. 9.10.
q Gen.7.
r Misereordia non est maxima nisi ille qui habet tit maximus. Thoma. 2. 2æ. quæst.30. Art.4. vide Caietan. ibid.
s Iames 2.13.
t Genebrard.in loc.
u Exod.20.5,6.
x Iacob. de Valent. in loc.
Psal. 22.6.

blessed [z] Apostle, to terme the mercies of God in Christ, exceeding riches of his grace: power and wisedome haply concerne Gods owne selfe and glory more, but his mercy concernes our good most, and is vnto vs in this respect ouer all his workes, according to that of Hilarius vpon our text, Quod potens est, naturæ suæ virtus est: quod autem misericors est, salutis nostræ profectus est.

But [a] most Interpreters approue the second exposition best, his mercies are ouer all, that is, shewed in all, and toward all his workes: [b] for this latter clause (his mercies are aboue all his works) is nothing else but a repetition of the former, the Lord is good vnto all: his goodnesse is the same with his mercy, and all is all his workes. God then is good to the whole vniuerse generally, more specially to the reasonable creatures, and among these principally to such as loue him, and feare him, and call vpon him faithfully, saith our Prophet, vers. 18.19.20. of this Hymne.

[c] There is no creature so base, but sheweth vnto another, and findeth in it selfe, verry large testimonies of Gods mercy. 1. It is a worke of his mercy that they [d] be, for in him alone they liue, and moue, and haue their being, Acts 17.28. to stones he giueth a bare being only, to plants and trees he doth adde life to being, in beasts he doth adde to life motion and sense. 2. The preseruation of all things in their being, is a worke of Gods mercie; for the eyes of all things looke vpon him, and hee giues them their meat in due season, he openeth his hand and filleth all things liuing with plenteousnesse, verse 15.16. of this hymne: he hath appointed the [e] paths of the Sea for the fish, and the water is the fishes proper element, wherein as in a sporting place they take their [f] pastime: he hath allotted the [g] field for the beasts, and there they feede vpon a thousand hills: he hath ordained the lower [h] heauen or ayre for the birds, and there these chatter and chaunt the praises of their Creator. He feeds the yong Rauens, and prouides euery day meat for the rest of the birds, and after they haue gathered it, and are filled with his goodnesse, Psal. 104.28. they sing, saith [i] Ambrose, hymnes to the Lord in their kinde after a solemne and deuout manner euery morning and euening.

But the mercies of God in men and Angels are yet far greater, as endued not only with a being common to stones, or with a life common to plants, or with actiue motion and sense common to beasts; but adorned also with vnderstanding, created according to Gods owne likenesse and image, beautified with reason and religion.

Yea, but how are the mercies of God ouer all men and Angels, when as a great many men eternally perish, and a great many collapsed [k] Angels hauing lost their first habitation in heauen, are reserued in euerlasting chaines vnder darknesse vnto the iudgement of the great day. Concerning reprobate men, answer is made, that the mercies of God are ouer them.

1. In temporall things, for he [l] suffereth his raine to fall, and his sunne to shine vpon the iust and vniust: he giues them not only [m] breath, which is the spirit of life, but also bread which is the [n] staffe, & [o] stay of life, [p] filling their bellies with hid treasure so plenteously, that our Prophet in the 37. and 73. Psalmes, complaineth of their prosperity, saying, my feet were almost gone, my treadings had well nigh slipt, and why, because the wicked prosper in the land, hauing riches in possession, and doing what they list. Euery man in right of his creation is a Lord [q] ouer all the fish in the seas, ouer all the fowles of heauen, ouer all the beasts of the field, ouer euery thing that creepeth and moueth vpon earth: and this vnto such as vnderstand and consider it, is so great a mercy, that for it alone God is worthy to be praised for euer and euer.

2. The mercies of God are ouer reprobate men in spirituall things, for the Lord is gracious, long-suffering, of great goodnes, vers. 8. of this Hymne. [r] Full of compassion and mercy, slow to wrath, and patient, [s] desiring that all men should be saued, and that [t] none should perish. He crieth in the [u] high street among the prease of people, saying, O ye foolish, how long will ye loue foolishnesse, turne at my correction, and I will vtter my words, and powre out my minde vnto you, and make you vnderstand my will. Come to me all ye which are laden with your sins, and I will ease you. [x] Why will ye die, for I desire not the death of a sinner. If thou be damned, I haue told thee by the mouth of my [y] Prophet, that thou hast destroyed thy selfe. And when Almighty God comes to [z] Eph cf. 2.7.

[a] Cryſoſt. Auguſtin. Euthym. Placidus.
[b] Agellius.

[c] Mollerus Wilcox.
[d] Quod omnibus ſecundum ſe deſideratiſſimum. D. Incognit. in loc.
[e] Pſal. 8.8.
[f] Pſal. 104.26.
[g] Pſa. 50 11.
[h] Gen. 1.20.

[i] Hexam. lib. 5. cap. 10.

[k] 2. Pet. 2.4. Iude 6.

[l] Math. 5.45.
[m] Gen. 2.7.
[n] Leuit. 26.26.
[o] Eſay 3.1.
[p] Pſal. 17.14.

[q] Gen. 1.26. Pſal. 8.6.

[r] Pſal. 103.8.
[s] 1. Tim. 2.4.
[t] 2. Pet. 3.9.
[u] Prou. 1.21.

[x] Ezech. 18.31, 32.
[y] Hoſea 14.9.

to iudgement, his mercies are still ouer all his workes, for damnation is only for sinne, and sinne is not his worke, but the worke of the Deuill and the damned, a falling away from the Creator to the creatures, [z] ab eo qui fecit ad ea quæ fecit. And therefore [a] S. Augustine tels the reprobate, that God executeth his iudgements vpon thy works, not vpon his works, in opera tua non in opera sua. For saith he, Si tollas opera tua, & non in te remaneat nisi opus eius non te demittet eius miseratio. That is, if thou forsake thy workes, and doe nothing but the businesse of the Lord, his mercy will neuer forsake thee, but be still ouer all his workes.

z Aug. in loc.
a Vbi sup. Idem D. Incognit.

3. God is mercifull vnto reprobates in things eternall, [b] for albeit their torments in hell are greiuous, yet not so great as their vnthankefullnesse and vngraciousnesse deserued in abusing so louing a God, whose mercies are ouer all his workes: and so the Lord, not in respect of any termination of paine, but in respect of some mitigation, is said to be mercifull vnto the tortured in that vnquenchable fire.

b Genebrard. in loc.

The like may be said of the Deuills in respect of their first estate, and in respect of their worst estate. Concerning the former, the mercies of God are ouer them in their very being, vpon whom alone they depend and by whom in the beginning they were created. In the dayes of S. Augustine, there were certaine heretikes, called [c] Angelici, which adored Angels as Gods, and consequently thought them without any beginning or dependance from other. And one [d] Hermanus Risiuich an Hollander, for this and other like monstrous opinions, about the existence of things by themselues without any creation or production of a superiour cause, was burned at Rome, ann. 1512. and it was one of the most horrible blasphemies of Simon Magus, (as [e] Irenæus reports) that he said he was the father of Angels and Arch-angels, and that he begat them of Selene his concubine: but it is apparent in the very first line of all the Bible, that Angels are the creatures of God, In the beginning God created heauen and earth, that is (as [f] Moses expounded himselfe) heauen and earth, and all that is therein, that is, (as [g] Paul doth explaine Moses) things visible and inuisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers, all things were created by him, and for him; and that in the beginning, to wit, in the beginning of time, not in the beginning of eternity, as [h] Ambrose, [i] Basil, [k] Augustine, and other Fathers interpret it generally. See Lombard sent. lib. 2. dist. 2. Bibliothec. S. Senensis lib. 5. annot. 5. Magdeburg. cent. 5. col. 218. 219.

c August. hæres. 31. Epiph. hæres. 70.
d Bernardus Luxemburg. cat. hæret. Idem Solkeld Tract of Angels, c. 2.
e Aduersus hæres. lib. 1. ca. 20.
f Exod. 20 11.
g Coloss. i. 16.
h Hexam. lib. 1. cap. 4.
i Hexam. ho. 1.
k De Ciuit. Dei. lib. 11. cap. 32.

The deuils then are beholding to Gods mercy for their being, especially for creating them in the beginning after his owne likenesse, and communicating vnto them, without any merit of theirs, excellent gifts of nature and grace, by reason whereof, as it was said of one, we may well affirme of all, that they were beautified with nine very [l] precious stones, that is, nine excellencies, which Lucifer and the rest receiued in their creation. 1. God made them spirits without mixture of bodie. 2. Immortall, without feare of corruption. 3. Intellectuall, with exceeding delicacie of wit. 4. Free, that nothing could force their will. 5. Wise, with fulnesse of naturall sciences. 6. Powerfull, aboue all inferiour creatures. 7, Holy, decked with admirable vertues. 8. Inhabitants of Paradise, which is the Empyriall heauen. 9. Capable of seeing God clearely, with promise of this glory, if they perseuered in his seruice.

l Ezech. 18 13.

Yea but the deuils are now depriued of their first habitation and happinesse, how then is the Lod good to them in their worst estate? Answer may be, that the mercies of God are ouer them two wayes.

1. In respect of their misery, because their hainous offence deserued not one hell onely, but a thousand hels, as being both [m] authors and actors in their owne fall, whereas other seduced Adam and Eue to sinne. Their paine (had it not beene for Gods mercy) might haue beene greater, although it cannot be longer.

m Albinus quæst. in Genes.

2. In respect of their ministerie, because the chiefe mirth of deuils is to doe mischiefe, being spiritus nocendi cupidissimi, à iustitia penitus alieni, superbia tumidi, inuidentia liuidi, fallaciâ callidi, saith [n] Augustine, and so consequently most eased and best pleased, when the Almightie God doth vse them either to try the good man, or to destroy the wicked man: or if his mercy doe not extend to them in this imployment, yet it is vndoubtedly shewed in them, as bringing light out of darknes, in vsing such n De Ciuit Dei. lib. 9. cap. 15.

such impious and bad agents for effecting of his good ends. So wee read that the Lord suffered [o] Satan to destroy the goods, and afflict the person of his seruant Iob a good man, and that he sent an [p] euill spirit to vexe Saul a wicked King. It is said in the text, that the euill spirit of the Lord came vpon Saul, the spirit of God is the good spirit, but that euill spirit is called a spirit of God, [q] as being suffered and sent by God, [r] immissus, seu permissus à Domino, [s] there was in the Deuill a will indeed to hurt, but not any power, for all power is of God, Rom. 13. 1. and therefore Satan desired the Lord to stretch out his hand, that is, to giue him power ouer Iob in his goods and body. To conclude this obseruation, Almighty God is louing to reprobate men and deuils, as they be his workes, for [t] he loueth all the things that are, but that any man is euill, or Angell a diuell, is not his worke, but their owne worke, and so mercy still is from the Lord, but mischiefe and misery from their owne selues.

o Iob 1. & 2.
p 1. Sam. 16. 14. 23.
q Aug. lib. 2. ad Simplician. quæst. 1.
r Em. Sa. not. in loc.
s Lombard sent. lib. 2. dist. 44.
t Wisd. 11. 21.

But the mercies of God are principally seene towards his elect people who loue him, and feare him, and call vpon him faithfully, for his mercies compasse them about on all sides, and at all seasons. On euery [u] side, for he maketh an hedge about them, and about their houses, and about all that they haue, Iob the 1. and the 10. they be his enclosed Vineyard, of whom he saith, Esay the 5. and the 4. What could I haue done any more to my Vineyard that I haue not done vnto it? he giueth vs the [x] promises of the life present, and of that which is to come, preuenting vs in all our doings, with the [y] blessings of his goodnesse, yea, with the [z] multitudes of his mercies, especially blessing vs with all spirituall blessings in heauenly things in Christ, Ephes. 1. 3.

u Psal. 32. 11.
x 1. Tim. 4 8.
y Psal. 21. 4.
z Psal. 51. 1.

And as the mercies of God are ouer vs on all sides, euen so likewise at all seasons, as the blessed Virgin in her Magnificat, [a] From generation to generation, as our Prophet, Psal. 103. 17. The mercifull goodnes of the Lord vpon those that feare him endureth for euer and euer, [b] that is, for euer in this world, and for euer in the next, [c] or from euerlasting to euerlasting, that is, from euerlasting predestination, to euerlasting glorification, being mercifull in electing vs, mercifull in preseruing vs, mercifull in gouerning vs, mercifull in redeeming vs, mercifull in calling vs to his grace, mercifull in iustifying vs, mercifull in sanctifying vs, mercifull in glorifying vs, making vs to drinke of his pleasures, as out of a riuer, and to possesse fulnesse of ioyes at his right hand for euermore.

a Luke 1. 50.
b Euthym.
c Bellarmin.

To speake more distinctly, the mercies of God toward vs are seene in two things especially, donando & condonando, that is, in giuing vs whatsoeuer is good for vs, and in forgiuing whatsoeuer is euill in vs. For the first, euery good and perfect gift is from aboue, descending downe from the father of lights: in eternall life we cannot haue so much as the keeping of a [d] doore; in the spirituall life, not so much as the [e] thinking of a good thought; in the naturall life, not so much as a morsell of bread, but all is from aboue, from him alone, who doth open his hand, and fill all things liuing with plenteousnesse. All our benifices are Donatiues, all our dignities are Prebendaries, all our messuages are mercies, holden as it were by Franckalmoigne from our great Lord which is good vnto all.

d Psal. 84. 11.
e 2. Cor. 3. 5.

And as the mercies of God are ouer all his workes, in filling vs with his goodnesse: so likewise ouer all our workes, in forgiuing all our sinnes, and pardoning all our offences against himselfe, against our other selfe, and against our owne selfe, great in number, and grieuous in nature: our hidden sinnes are so many, that no man is able to tell how [f] oft he doth offend, hidden I say, not vnto God who seeth all things, and is to iudge them, and vs for them: but hidden vnto vs, as hauing either forgotten them, or for that they were subtill sinnes and [g] spirituall wickednesses, as interiour prides, rash iudgements, sinister intentions, negligences, omissions: or for that we committed them with error and ignorance by the deuils illusion, thinking that we did [h] good seruice: but our knowne sinnes are a great many moe than our hidden, as we may perceiue by running thorow all our ages, and all our acts, euen euery passage in euery place where we haue liued: and if wee ioyne them all together, they will amount to such an innumerable multitude, that wee may pronounce with our [i] Prophet, they be moe then the hayres of our head, and (as King [k] Manasses) moe than the sand

f Psal. 19. 12.
g Ephes. 6. 12.
h Iohn 16. 2.
i Psal 40. 15.
k In his praier.

ſand of the ſea: the deuill and his Angels were throwen out of heauen for one ſinne, and that not acted, but only plotted: and our firſt parents Adam and Eue were caſt out of Paradiſe for conſenting but once to the ſuggeſtion of the ſubtill Serpent: but wee haue beene deluded by him often, our fleſh as Eue hath inticed vs to ſinne, and our ſpirit effeminated as Adam to pleaſe it, hath a thouſand thouſand times diſpleaſed God by breaking his commandements. How good and gracious then is the Lord towards vs in forgiuing all our vnrighteouſneſſe, and in couering all our offences, infinite for their multitude, and no leſſe infinite for their magnitude, as may well appeare,

By conſidering theſe fiue points in ſinne,
1. The baſeneſſe of the perſon offending.
2. The highneſſe of the perſon offended.
3. The weakeneſſe of the motiues.
4. The grieuouſneſſe of the puniſhment.
5. The greatneſſe of the remedy.

l Pſal 144.4.
m *Gen.*2.7.
n *Gen.*3.19.
o *Eſay.*40.6.

The perſon offending is man, and man is [l]like a thing of nought: our bodies [m] originall is durt, and our [n] end duſt, our fleſh is like a [o] flower, and our whole life but a vapour that ſoone paſſeth away, Iames 4. 14. as for our ſoule, it was created of nothing, of it ſelfe it is nothing, it can doe nothing, it merits nothing, it is worth nothing, and through ſinne it may come to be leſſe then nothing. For it is a leſſer euill not to be than to ſinne, and had it beene better for the reprobate not to haue beene, than to be damned, Matt. 26. 24. Conſider then I pray thee with thy ſelfe, If this bee that which I am, much worſe is that which I may be through my great weaknes and inclination to ſinne: for by the thred I may draw out the bottome, and by the ſecret motions I feele in my minde to ſinne in euery kinde, I may collect and gather that I am ſubiect to theſe ſinnes, and that I ſhould fall into them, if God ſhould take from me his holy hand and helpe, according to that of [p] S. Auguſtine, Nullum peccatum eſt quod vnquam fecerit homo, quod non poſſit facère alter homo, ſi Creator deſit à quo factus eſt homo.

p *Soliloq.c.*15.

Now what greater madneſſe can there be than for a worthleſſe worme ſo needy, ſo miſerable, to dare to offend his only Maker and Mediator, before whom all Nations are [q] nothing, yea the whole world but as a [r] drop of the morning dew that falleth vpon the ground, and can hardly be ſeene. What further dotage than for vile man which is nothing of his owne, to diſpleaſe God which is being it ſelfe? O how good is the Lord in regarding that which he created of nothing, drawing it from this nothing which is ſin, and ioyning it to himſelfe, that by him, and through him it may haue heere the life of grace, hereafter the bleſſed being of glory.

q Eſay 40.17.
r Wiſd. 11.19.

The partie moſt iniuried by ſinne is God, for albeit in liuing vnhoneſtly we ſinne againſt our neighbours; and in liuing riotouſly we ſinne againſt our ſelues; yet God in both is offended chiefly, [ſ] commanding vs in this preſent world to liue not onely toward God religiouſly, but alſo righteouſly toward our neighbours, and ſoberly toward our ſelues. And therefore when King Dauid had abuſed Bathſheba, tempting her to commit adultery with him, and for the couering of this act had murthered his faithfull ſeruant Uriah, and for the compaſſing of this murther, had endangered a great part of his royall army, and by binding ſo many foule ſinnes together, had exceedingly ſcandalized all his people, yet in the confeſſion of his fault to God, he ſaith, [t] againſt thee, againſt thee only haue I ſinned, and done this euill in thy ſight, [u] becauſe in all theſe things he had tranſgreſſed the lawes of God, which is the Lord of all things, and the Iudge of all men, and ſo the Prophet Nathan told him vnto his beard, [x] Wherefore haſt thou deſpiſed the commandement of the Lord in killing Uriah with the ſword, and in taking his wife for thy wife? If good works of the Law done to men are regarded and rewarded as done to God, for [y] hee that giueth vnto the poore lendeth vnto the Lord, and he that clotheth the naked, and viſiteth the ſicke, doth this vnto Chriſt, Math. 25. 40. then on the contrary, tranſgreſſions of the Law concerning men, are wrongs and iniuries to God which is Author of the Law.

ſ Tit. 2.12.
t *Pſal.*15.4.
u *Bucer in Pſal.*51.
x 2.*Sam.*12.9.
y Prou. 19.17.

Now God (according to the tenor of this Hymne) is infinite in greatneſſe, and infinite in goodneſſe, for which all other creatures highly loue him, and if another infinite infinite loue were possible doubtlesse it were due to him, and so consequently sinne being committed against one which is infinite both in maiesty and mercy, may bee termed as it were, saith [z] Aquinas, an infinite iniury. Ioseph entised by his owne Mistresse to commit folly, said he would not iniure his Lord so much of whom he had receiued so many fauours, [a] he hath committed all that he hath vnto my hands, neither hath he kept any thing in his house from me, how then shall I doe this great wickednes? and Saul though he were a cruell persecuter of Dauid, yet he grew meeke when he heard [b] Ionathan tell of the great seruices he had done him, and when he saw that Dauid spared his life when he could haue killed him, hee had compunction and said, [c] thou art iuster then I, for thou hast done me good turnes, and I haue rendred thee euill. Our louing God hath done more for thee and me then Potiphar could doe for Ioseph, or Dauid for Saul. Hee hath (as you know) kept nothing from vs in his great house of the world, but hath (as our Prophet speaks [d] elsewhere) put all things in subiection vnder our feet, of him alone we haue receiued all the good we haue, shall we then vnworthily render euill for good? the very beasts and birds (as wee read in humane history) haue beene gratefull vnto men for extraordinary kindnesses, and shall any reasonable creature, yea Christian, endued with heauenly sparkes of diuinity, proue more beastly than the beasts, in despising the riches of grace, which the father of mercies offereth dayly? O my soule, say to the God of the saluation, how much more iust art thou than I, for thou ceasest not to doe me mercies, and I cease not to doe thee mischiefes, thou hauing power to take away my life, sparest it: and I hauing no power to take away thine, yet as much as in me lieth, attempt to kill and [e] crucifie thee againe sweet Iesus.

Let vs in the third place consider the weakenesse of the motions alluring vs to sinne, for doubtlesse it doth aggrauate the greatnesse of a wrong when it is done vpon a very slight occasion or light cause: the cunning gamester will not venture his mony for a trifle, the crafty theefe will not hazard his necke for a little prey, the merchant aduenturer will not engage his person and his purse for any small prize, Si violandum est iusiurandum, regni causa violandum, if a man will play the villaine, forgetting his oath and honesty, let it be for a Kingdome, quoth Cæsar. [f] Pope Siluester the 2. gaue his sole to the deuill, but it was for a Popedome: but we beloued offend God for a small interest of wealth, for a little wantonnesse of the slew, for a punctillo of honour, for very vile things that vanish as smoke, and are as if they were not in comparison of God. Wherein (as [g] one said) we seeme to bee worse than Iudas himselfe, for he sold Christ but once, and that for [h] thirty peeces of siluer: but we sinne against him thirtie times, as it were, for one peece, for euery trifle swearing by his precious wounds, and abusing his gracious words, and so we become [i] like Pilate, crucifing our blessed Sauiour Christ Iesus, to giue life vnto Barrabas a murtherer, that is, vnto sinne that slaieth our soule. [k] The Lord said that heauen should stand affrighted, and that the gates of heauen should breake with amazement, for two euils which his people had committed, and yet we wretched sinners haue committed them infinite times, leauing God which is the fountain of liuing water, to dig in pits, euen in broken pits that can hold no water: in our workes (as [l] S. Paule said) whatsoeuer wee professe in our words, wee haue denied the liuing God and made to our selues a great many base creatures, an Idoll, and a false God, esteeming them in the weakenesse of our sinne more then the true God: as [m] Esau sold his birthright for a small dish of pottage; so we sell our birthright of heauen, for a worthlesse interest of earth, he sold it to redeeme his life, but we selling it incurre death.

The Scriptures are our euidences, and the Sacraments our seales, and the spirit our assurer that all things are ours, and we Christs, and Christ Gods, 1 Cor. 3. 22. yet many so contemne the reading of the Bible wherein are the words of life, that euen vpon the Lords day, so soone as they be gone out of the Lords house, they forsake the fountaine of liuing water to dig for knowledge in broken pits, in idle pamphlets which afford nothing but puddle, deseruing to bee burnt so well as any witches for vnchast and vnsauory lines of wanton loue bewitch as it were the senses of readers, and giue them [n] Circes cup to drinke off, and to turne men into beasts.

As

z Part. 3. quæst. 1. art. 2. ad 2.
a Gen. 39. 8. 9.
b 1. Sam. 19. 6.
c 1. Sam. 24. 18.
d Psal. 8. 6.
e Heb. 6. 6.
f Platina in eius vita.
g Speculum peccatoris & iusti, pag. 26.
h Mat. 26. 15.
i Mat. 27. 26.
k Ier. 2. 12, 13.
l Tit. 1. 16.
m Gen. 25. 34.
n Poore mans Library prelect. 2.

As for the Sacraments, a great many men, and those not of the worse note, runne out of the congregation at the baptizing of other mens children, and dangerously deferre the christening of their owne infants, vpon the procuring of some great Gossip, or some dainty dish only, tying as it were Gods ordinance to their ordinary: that other Sacrament is a little more regarded, and yet the guests inuited to the great supper, inuent strange excuses for their not comming: and so consequently neglecting the holy word and Sacraments, as much as in them is, they [o] quench the spirit, and with vnhappy [p] Lysimachus for a cup of cold water as it were, deliuer vp the keyes of their citie to their mortall enemie the Deuill.

o 1. Thess. 5. 19.
p Plutarch. com. de sera numinis vindicta.

Let vs examine now the grieuousnesse of the paine due to sinne, both in the life present, and in that which is to come. Concerning this life, sinne procureth a great many punishments of losse and sense: for losse, first sinne destroyeth opulent estates, God depriuing wicked men of them, because they much abuse them, as he spoyled the [q] Egyptians of their Iewels, and the Iebusites and Canaanites of their Countries.

q Exod. 12. 35.

2. Sinne destroyeth honour, for whosoeuer taketh (as much as lieth in him) the honour from God and his neighbour, deserues to lose his owne honour. So the high Priest Heli and his vnruly sonnes lost the Priest-hood together with life, the Lord saying vnto them, [r] I will honour those that honour me, but they that despise me shall be despised. So the kingdome was taken from [s] Nabuchodonosor, who was banished out of mens society, because, by sinne himselfe was like to beasts, according to that of [t] Bernard, Ipsis bestijs quodammodo bestialior est homo ratione vigens, & ratione non viuens.

r 1. Sam. 2. 30.
s Dan. 4. 28.
t Ser. 35. super Cant.

3. Sinne taketh away contentment of spirit and alacrity, causing a deadly sadnesse that drieth vp the bones, and giueth a life worse then death it selfe, making a sinner like to the citie that said [u] God hath filled me with bitternesse, and made me drunke with wormewood: or as the miserable king [x] Antiochus, to what tribulation, and to what waues of sorrowes am I come now, who sometime liued in prosperity, being beloued in my Kingdome.

u Lam. 3. 15.
x 1. Mac. 6. 11.

4. Sinne destroyeth health, and so bringeth vpon the sinner paines of sense, God chastizing him with infirmities and sores from [y] head to foot. For he deserues not health of bodie, who neglects the health of his soule. Now these diseases in fine procure death, for death [z] entreth into the world by sinne, and being entred endeth our dayes a thousand wayes, as by famine, by warre, by pestilence, by tempests at sea, by deluges on the land, by fire, lightning, earth-quakes, haile, stormes, and infinite moe like chastizements: for as sinne is an iniury to the Creator of all, euen so all the creatures are instruments of his vengeance.

y Esay 1. 6.
z Rom. 5. 10.

All these temporall euils are but a beginning, and as it were a preamble to the paines eternall in hell fire, kindled by the breath of the Lord, [a] like a riuer of brimstone: for these punishments are finite, but those tortures are termed in two respects infinite, to wit,

In respect of { Lasting, as being in their continuance without end.
Losse, as depriuing vs of an infinite benefit, which is the sight of God, for euer.

a Esay 30. 33.

[b] Anselme sometime Arch-bishop of Canterburie, considering these monstrous enormities, and vgly deformities of sinne, said, that if he should behold all the paines of hell deuoid of sinne on the one side, and on the other side the horror of one deadly sinne deuoid of punishment, and that I must of necessitie chuse one of these two, I (quoth he) would chuse rather to throw my selfe into hell, then to commit one foule fault only. So the renowned [c] Eleazer answered those that menaced him with exquisite torments, if he would not breake one commandement of Gods Law, that he would rather suffer himselfe first to be sent into hell and the graue, that is, that he would rather bee killed, and cut in pieces, and to sinke a thousand degrees vnder ground with infinite dolours and agonies, than to commit such a sinne.

b In similitudinibus cap. 190. inter opusc. Anselm. fol. 82.
c 2. Mac. 6. 23.

Considering these manifold mischiefes and miseries brought vpon man-kinde for sinne, it is now time to tell of the greatnesse of the remedy. [d] Behold then, I bring you tidings of great ioy, that is, that vnto you is borne a Sauiour, which is Christ the Lord.

d Luke 2. 10.

Lord. Iesus the sonne Naue, Iesus the sonne of Syrach, and Iesus Iosedech were Sauiours in figure, but Christ Iesus a Sauiour in fact. [c] They were Sauiours in respect of some particular, and that temporall deliuerance: but Christ is an vniuersall and spirituall Sauiour, euen he that saueth his people from their sinne, Math. 1. 21. it was impossible that the [f] bloud of Buls and Goats should take away sinne, it was impossible that the mediation of Angels in heauen being creatures and finite, should appease the wrath of God conceiued against sinne which is infinite, [g] Behold he found not stedfastnesse in his Angels, and the heauens are not cleane in his sight. It was impossible that any merits of any man on earth, whose [h] righteousnesse at the very best is but as filthy clowt, shall offer a sufficient sacrifice for the sinne of his soule. When as therefore nothing else could take away the sinne of the world, our good God, whose mercies are ouer all his works, [i] so loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten Sonne, that whosoeuer beleeueth in him should not perish, but haue euerlasting life: he gaue him a son and a child, to vs a sonne is borne, to vs a sonne is giuen, Esay 9. 6. that is, (as Eusebius Emissenus aptly) datus ex diuinitate, natus ex virgine: giuen as the Sonne of God, borne as the sonne of man. It was necessary that the Messias and Mediator betweene God and man, should participate both natures, that as God he might satisfie, that as man he might suffer, and that as God and man in one person he might saue. Christ therefore God-man was borne for vs, and he died for vs, he so loued vs, that he gaue [k] himselfe for vs an offering and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling sauour to God. In the Law there were two sorts of sacrifices vnto God, one gratulatory for the donation of gifts, another expiatory for the condonation of sinnes, a peace-offering, and a sinne-offering, S. Pauls [l] oblatio signifies the first kinde, and victima the second. Christ in his life was an offering for vs, in his death a sacrifice. The whole course of his life was gratulatory to God, in it he [m] fulfilled all righteousnesse, and so did for vs all that we should haue done: and in his death he gaue himselfe an expiatory sacrifice for vs, and so suffered all that wee should haue suffered. [n] Hee was wounded for our transgressions, and broken for our iniquities, and the chastisement of our peace was vpon him, and with his stripes we are healed, his head was crowned with thornes, his face spit vpon, his tongue distasted, his armes disioynted, his shoulders and backe rent with whips, his side boared with a lance, his hands and feete pierced with nayles. All which hee suffered not for himselfe, but for our sakes and our sinnes. Our heads haue beene full of [o] thorny questions, and curious [p] inuentions to contradict right and reason: his head therefore was platted with a crowne of thornes, a strange deuice, thornes to torment him, a crowne to delude him, & compungentes coronant, & illudentes adorant, saith [q] Ambrose: our eyes open to behold vanity, haue been full of adultery, 2 Peter 2. 14. his eies therefore were blind-folded, Luke 22. 64. and then his aduersaries buffeting him asked, Prophesie who smote thee, Mathew the 26. and the 68. It is reported of renowned [r] Iudeth, that her beauty tooke Holofernes minde prisoner: and so the wanton looks of men and women haue [s] kindled a fire, which is an [t] entrance to the flames of hell: his face therefore was spit vpon and smitten, Mathew the 26, and the 67. our taste hath offended in eating the forbidden fruit, Genesis the 3. and the 6. his taste therefore was afflicted in eating gall, and in drinking vineger, Psalme the 69. and the 22. our heart had imagined wicked enterprizes, our hands haue beene ready to shed innocent bloud, our feete haue beene swift in running to doe mischiefe, Prouerbs the 6. and the 18. his heart therefore was wounded with a speare, his hands and feet boared with huge nailes, so bigge they were that (as Socrates reporteth in his [u] Ecclesiasticall history) Constantine the great made of them a bridle and an helmet for his owne vse. To conclude this point, we prodigall and vile wretches haue surfetted in sinne all the dayes of our life, Christ therefore taking vpon him our person, and standing in our place to cure this extraordinary surfet (according to the rules of physicke) [x] fasted extraordinarily, then he [y] sweat extraordinarily, last of all he bled extraordinarily. Besides the punishments inflicted vpon his body, he was afflicted in his minde, he wrestled with the powers of hell, and endured in some sense the very [z] paines of hell, [a] that is, great and intolerable sorrowes in his soule, he who did no sinne, yea who knew no sinne, c Thom. part 3. quæst. 3. art. 2.

f Heb. 10. 4.
g Iob. 15. 15.
h Esa. 64. 6.
i Iohn 3. 16.
k Ephes. 5. 2.
l Zanchius in Ephes. 5. 2.
m Mat. 3. 15.
n Esay 53. 5.
o Spinæ disserendi. Cic. lib. 4. de finibus. Eccles. 7. 29.
q Lib. 10. in Luc. cap. 23.
r Iudeth 16. 9.
s Eccles. 9. 8.
t Poore mans Library, prælect. 2.
u Lib. 1 cap. 13. after the Greeke ca. 17.
x Matt. 4 2:
y Luke 22. 44.
z B. Bilson. ser. of Christs suffering.
a Great pains are called hellish paines.

sinne, made himselfe to be sinne for vs, dying for our sinnes, and rising againe for our iustification, that we should be made the righteousnesse of God in him, 2. Corinth the 5. and the 21.

These mercies are so great that Christ himselfe instituted the Sacrament of his Supper, as a commemoration and euerlasting remembrance hereof, I say Christ himselfe ordained this Sacrament by [b] word and deed: by word, saying, I am the bread of life, he that commeth vnto me shall not hunger, and that beleeueth in me shall neuer thirst, Iohn the 6. and the 35. By his deed, for [c] in the night that he was betrayed, he tooke bread, and when he had giuen thankes he brake it and said, take, eat, this is my body which is broken for you, doe this in remembrance of me: after the same manner also he tooke the cup after he had supped, saying, this cup is the new Testament in my bloud, this doe as oft as ye drinke it in remembrance of me: for as often as ye shall eat this bread, and drinke this cup, ye shew the Lords death vntill he come.

Now what reward shall I giue to the Lord, for all the benefits hee hath done vnto me? [d] Dauid doth answer, I will receiue the cup of saluation, and offer to the Lord the sacrifices of thankesgiuing: and [e] Christ the sonne of Dauid aduiseth vs to be mercifull as our Father in heauen is mercifull, Our whole dutie then is to be thankfull vnto God, and mercifull vnto men. Wherefore let vs in Gods holy faith and feare take vp the Magnificat of the blessed Virgin, My soule doth magnifie the Lord, and my spirit reioyceth in God my Sauiour, for his mercies are ouer them that feare him thorowout all generations. Let vs take vp the song of Zacharie, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people. Let vs take vp the caroll of the blessed Angels on Christmas day, Glory bee to God on high, and in earth peace, good will towards men. Let vs take vp the words of our Prophet in this Hymne, I will magnifie thee O God my King, and I will praise thy name for euer and euer, euery day will I giue thankes vnto thee, and praise thy name for euer and euer.

And for as much as our gracious God hath euidently shewed his mercy toward vs, not in sayings only, but in doings and sufferings also; let vs demonstrate the greatnesse of our faith in God, by workes of charitie toward our brethren, being mercifull as the [f] father of mercies is mercifull: mercifull in giuing, mercifull in forgiuing: mercifull in giuing omni petenti, quoth the [g] Text, but not omnia petenti, saith [h] Augustine, to all that aske, though not all they aske: to such as haue hungry bodies the bread of the butterie, to such as haue hungry soules thirsting after righteousnesse, the bread of the sanctuary, that is ghostly and godly counsell. Mercifull in forgiuing one another our trespasses, [i] Det ille veniam facile cui venia est opus: If we consider that the Lord hath out of his exceeding rich mercy forgiuen vs [k] tenne thousand talents, we may well forget and forgiue the debt to our neighbours, which is but an hundred pence: God loued [l] vs first, euen when we could not loue him, and when we would not loue him, and therefore that we may be the children of our father in heauen, let vs also loue our enemies, blessing those that curse vs, and doing good to those that hate vs, and praying for those that hurt vs, Matth. the 5. and the 44. and 45. as his mercies are ouer all our workes, so let all our workes expresse his mercies, euery day giuing thankes vnto him, and praising his name for euer and euer.

Thus at length I haue finished this my long worke, by his grace whose mercies are ouer all his workes. I conclude therefore with [m] Augustine, Videor mihi debitum ingens huius operis adiuuante Domino reddidisse: quibus parùm vel quibus nimiùm est, ignoscant mihi; quibus autem satis est, non mihi, sed Domino mecum gratias congratulantes agant.

Glorie be to God on high, and peace to men on earth.

FINIS.

b Beza in vita Caluini.
c 1. Cor. 11. 23.
d Psal 116. 12.
e Luke 6. 36.
f 2. Cor. 1. 3.
g Matth. 5. 42.
h Lib. 1. de ser. Dom. in monte.
i Seneca in Agamem.
k Matth. 18. 24. 28.
l 1. Iohn 4. 19.
m De Ciuit. Dei lib. vlt. cap. vlt.

Mutuall Support.

GALAT. 6. 2.

Beare yee one anothers burdens.

CHARITIE, which is so strictly commanded in the Law, and so highly magnified in the Gospell, is seene in doing more than in saying, and in suffering more than in doing: for our whole Christian life properly consists in bearing, and that not onely burdens of our owne, which is said in this Chapter at the fift Verse, euery man shall beare his owne burden, but also burdens of other, as our present text, beare one anothers burden.

Wherein three points are remarkable,
- 1. Who for the { Supporters, ye, that is, [a] ye which are spirituall verse 1. / Supported, one another.
- 2. When, in the present, portate, beare now.
- 3. What, a burden, beare ye one anothers burden.

I purpose to treat first and most of the last, as being the burden of our Sermon, and the maine, touching onely the rest as occasion is offered vpon the bye.

Now there be two kindes of burdens (as [b] Diuines, haue well obserued vpon the place)

Namely, the { Burden of sinne, needing a support. / Burden of pouertie, needing a supply.

Concerning our support two things are required especially,
- 1. A preuention or bearing vp of our brethren in the wayes of the Lord that they may not fall.
- 2. A subuention or bearing with our brethren after they be fallen.

Christians are [c] strangers and pilgrims in the wilderneſſe of this world, trauelling to their home, which is the [d] holy land, and the [e] heauenly Ierusalem aboue. [f] Looke then as trauellers vse by the way to cheere vp one another, and to beare part of one anothers burden, as occasion is offered: euen so Christians ought to support one another, holding vp such as are ready to fall, and raising vp such as are already fallen. It is our dutie not to lay scandals and blockes in the passage, but on the contrarie, to strengthen all such as iourney with vs in the path of Paradise, by wholsome counsell and good examples. Our words must administer [g] grace to them, and our [h] light so shine before them, as that seeing our good workes, and [i] walking after our patterne, they may [k] finish their course with happinesse, and rest in euerlasting habitations.

A Pastor ought to be (quoth [l] Paul) a patterne; but euery master in his priuate family is both a King, a Prophet and a Priest: a King to gouerne his household, a Prophet to teach his household, a Priest to pray for his household, it is his burden to beare their burdens as he who shall one day giue vp an account for them all. [m] Gregorie the

a Aretius.

b Hierom. exsit. 1. in loc. Idem. Aquin.

c 1. Pet. 2. 11.
d Psalm. 15. 1.
e Apoc. 21. 10.
f Aretius.

g Ephes. 4. 29.
h Matth. 5. 16.
i Philip. 3. 17.
k 2. Tim. 4. 7.
l 1. Tim. 4. 12.

m Apud Maldonat. in Luc. 16. 27.

Great, and other both [n] ancient and [o] moderne Diuines, haue thought that the rich Epicure frying in hell fire, became ſolicitor for his brethren at home, that they ſhould conuert and repent, not out of any compaſſion and loue, but only for that his conſcience told him he had giuen ill example while he liued among them, and that if they were damned, his torture ſhould be further increaſed for it. On the contrary, ſuch as by their good example turne many to righteouſnes, bearing vp the weake that they fall not fouly, that they fall not finally, ſhall one day ſhine as the ſtarres for euer and euer, Dan. 12. 3. [p] It is reported of Harts, being to trauell farre by heards on the land, or elſe to paſſe ouer ſome great water, that they goe behind one another, and lay their burdenſome heads one vpon another, and when the formoſt is weary, then he reſteth his heauy head vpon the hindmoſt, and ſo mutually bearing one anothers burden, they come happily to the place where they would arriue. The ſoules of holy men, as Dauid telleth vs in the 42. Pſalme, long and thirſt after God, with whom is the [q] well of life, like as the Harts deſire the water brooks. And therfore let vs as Deere ſupport the ſicke head and heauy heart of one another, among ſo many ſerpents as there be ſinners in this vncomfortable valley of teares, vntill wee reſt vpon Gods holy mountaine, where we ſhall be ſatisfied with the pleaſures of his houſe, drinking of his pleaſures as out of a riuer, Pſalm. 36.8.

As it is our dutie to beare vp a brother which is falling; ſo likewiſe to reare vp a brother which is fallen. Sinne is ſo weightie, that [r] Zecharias termeth it a talent of lead; and [ſ] Dauid, who felt the load himſelfe, cryeth out, my wickednesſes are gone ouer my head, and are like a ſore burden too heauie for me to beare. Whoſoeuer therefore groaneth vnder the burden of ſinne, needeth a Simon to helpe beare his croſſe.

The which is done two wayes: { 1. By tolerating the weakneſſe of one another with our patience. 2. In reſtoring one another againe with the ſpirit of meekeneſſe.

For the firſt, [t] if a brother in his vnaduiſed anger vſe thee roughly, rudely, beare with him, and thou beareſt his burden. If thou be too ſilent in thy conuerſation, and thy brother on the contrary, too full of prattle, beare thou with his loquacitie, that he may beare thy pertinacie, ſo ſhall yee beare one anothers burden. A lame man and a blinde meeting vpon the way, the lame man ſaid, if thou wilt be feet vnto me, then I will bee eyes vnto thee: ſo the blinde man carrying the lame, and the lame guiding the blinde, both arriued at their iourneyes end in a good houre. Chriſtians (as [u] Luther obſerues) muſt haue ſtrong ſhoulders and mightie bones, that they may beare fleſh enough, that is, the weakeneſſe of their brethren. A Magiſtrate in his Common-wealth, and a Maſter in his priuate houſe, muſt haue patience to ſee many things and not to ſee. [x] Frederic the firſt his motto, Qui neſcit diſſimulare neſcit imperare, may be digeſted eaſily with a little ſalt, for when ſmall faults are diſſembled in time and place wiſely, Soueraigne and ſubiect, maſter and man, according to the tenet of our text, beare one anothers burden.

But here we muſt (as [y] Luther notes) put a difference betweene faults in manners, and errors in doctrine. The principles of faith are like a [z] Mathematicall point which admits neither ademption nor addition. It is obſerued by [a] Bernard, Pet. Mart. and other Diuines, that Almightie God hath in old time diſpenſed with ſome precepts of the ſecond Table concerning our dutie to men, as in bidding Abraham to kill his ſonne Iſaac contrary to the ſixt commandement, and in ſuffering the fathers to haue many concubines, contrary to the ſeuenth commandement, and in aduiſing the children of Iſrael to rob the wicked Egyptians of their Iewels, contrary to the eight commandement: but he (who cannot denie himſelfe, as our Apoſtle ſpeaks, 1. Tim. 2. 13.) neuer diſpenſed with any precept of the firſt Table concerning his owne true worſhip and holines. If an Angell from heauen preach another Goſpell, it is an inſupportable burden, hold him an anathema, ſaith our Apoſtle, Galat. 1. 8. Curſed is that patience that beares in ſuch a caſe: to bee patient in ſuffering a priuate wrong onely concerning our owne perſons is commendable, yea, noble; but when once the quarrell n Beda. o Bellarm. de gemit. Columb. lib. 2. cap. 1. & Pinellus de altera vita, lib. 1. cap. 23.

p Auguſt. in Pſal. 41. Plin. lib. 8. cap. 32.
q Pſal. 36. 9.
r Zech. 5. 7.
ſ Pſalm. 38. 4. Omni plumbo ponderoſius. Chryſoſtom 32. ad pop. Ant.
t Primaſius. Anſelm. in loc. 〃 〃
u In loc.
x Reuſner. in ſymb.
y In loc.
z Luther. loc. com. tit. de zelo.
a See Mart. loc. com. part. 1. cap. 17.

quarrell is made Gods and the Churches, iniurias Dei diſſimulare nimis eſt impium, it is too great impiety, ſaith [b] Chryſoſtome, for any to beare: in ſuch a caſe the Prophet Elias called for fire from heauen vpon his enemies, 2. King. 1. in ſuch a caſe Paul in the ſight of the whole Church of Antiochia withſtood Peter to his face, Galat. 2. 11. in ſuch a caſe (God aſſiſting me, quoth [c] Luther) I am and euer will bee ſtout and ſterne, my forehead ſhall bee more hard then all mens foreheads, herein I take vpon me this title, Cedo nulli, I giue place to none. Renowned [d] Iewel ſweetly to the ſame purpoſe, I deny my learning, I deny my Biſhopricke, I deny my ſelfe, onely the faith of Chriſt and truth of God I cannot deny; with this faith, or for this faith, I truſt I ſhall end. The reuerend Fathers, and other zealous Doctors in all ages, haue riſen vp in the * gaps of the Church, and haue made vp the hedge for Gods Iſrael, euer oppoſing thoſe who did oppoſe the truth, according to that obſeruation in eccleſiaſticall hiſtorie, [e] Hereſies occaſioned true doctrines to be more diligently diſcuſſed.

Againe, we muſt here [f] diſtinguiſh betweene ſinnes of malice, and ſinnes of infirmitie, betweene being [g] ouertaken in a fault, and [h] giuing ouer of our ſelues vnto wickedneſſe to follow ſinne euen with a greedineſſe. It is ſaid in the beginning of this chapter, If a man bee ouertaken in any fault, &c. [i] that is, beguiled of the deuill and of the fleſh, and the terme man helpeth alſo to diminiſh and qualifie the matter, as if he ſhould ſay, what is ſo proper vnto man, as to fall and be deceiued, [k] humanum eſt errare, labi, fallis: ſo Moſes Leuit. 6. 3. they are wont to ſinne like men.

[l] Hierome noteth vpon the words of the Prophet Ezekiel, (the fathers haue eaten ſowre grapes, and the childrens teeth are ſet on edge) that there bee foure generations in ſinne: 1. a raſh onſet or firſt motion to ſinne. 2. deliberation, when one hath determined to be naught. 3. action, performing this determination. 4. boaſting in wickedneſſe. Now we muſt be mercifull, [m] as our father in heauen is mercifull, but God is more mercifull vnto the firſt and ſecond generation in ſinne, than to the third and fourth. For (as [n] Hierome conſtrueth allegorically the words of the Law) God doth viſit the third and fourth generation of ſinne, as the wilfull committing of it, and graceleſſe glorying in it.

The Lord ſaid to the Prophet [o] Ezechiel, Sonne of man digge now into the wall, and he digged in the wall, and behold a doore, then ſaid he to the Prophet, goe in, and behold the wicked abominations of Iſrael, and he entred in, and ſaw creeping things, and abominable beaſts, and all the Idols of the houſe of Iſrael painted vpon the wall round about, &c. [p] By the Prophet Ezechiel is figured the perſon of a Preacher, by the wall a ſinners hard heart, by digging a diligent inquiſition after ſinne, by creeping things, and beaſts, and Idols, diuers kinds of abominations, and therefore when the man of God in his [q] watch-tower beholds ſuch abominable things, eſpecially women mourning for Thamar, and men turning their backes toward the Temple of the Lord; he muſt (as [r] Eſay ſpeakes) cry aloud and ſpare not, lifting vp his voyce like a trumpet, ſhewing Gods people their tranſgreſſion, and to the houſe of Iacob their ſinnes. [ſ] Eraſmus obſerued truly, that if we had ſuch Biſhops as Ambroſe, wee ſhould haue ſuch Emperors as Theodoſius; where there be ſuch Prophets as Nathan, there be ſuch Kings as Dauid; where there be ſuch Paſtors as Paul, it is likely there will be ſuch Pariſhioners as the Theſſalonians, higly renowned not onely for their [t] effectuall faith in Chriſt, but alſo for their diligent loue toward the Saints.

Haply ſome will obiect, Are great abominations onely to be taxed, and leſſer offences in our brethren to be diſſembled, and not ſo much as touched? Anſwer is made by the [u] Poet, Parcius iſta quidem, tamen obiicienda memento.

Aaron had a breaſt-plate of iudgement vpon his heart, Exod. 28. 29. to [x] ſignifie, that a Prieſt ſhould doe all things diſcreetly with a good iudgement. All ſinnes and all men in the ſame ſinnes are not to be rebuked alike, [y] that herbe which heales one beaſt, hurteth another; a little hiſſing ſtilleth an horſe, ſtirreth a dogge; [z] milke is for babes, and meat for men of age; ſuch as obſtinately continue ſtill in their wickedneſſe, are to be taxed ſharply, but ſuch as groane vnder the burden of their weakneſs, are to be raiſed vp againe by the ſpirit of meekeneſſe, ſaith our Apoſtle.

b Hom 5. in oper. imperfect. See Tho. 2. 2e. queſt. 108. art. 3.
c in Galat. 2. 6.
d Anſwer to Mr. Hardings preface.
* Ezech. 13. 5.
e Pet. Mart.
f Loc. com. part. 3. cap. 1. Artius.
g Galat. 6. 1.
h Epheſ. 4. 19.
i Luther. Brentius.
k Terent. Cuiuſuis eſt hominis errare, nullius niſi inſipientis in errore perſeuerare. Cic. 12. Philip.
l Idem refert Martyr. loc. com. part. 2 c. 5.
m Luke 6. 36.
n Vbi ſup.
o Ezec. 8. 8.
p Greg. paſtor. part. 2. cap. 10.
q Ezec. 3. 17.
r Eſay 58. 1.
ſ Ep 10. Alaſco præfix. oper. Ambroſ.
t 1. Theſſ. 1. 3.
u Virgil.
x Greg. Paſt. part. 2. cap. 2.
y Greg. prolog. part. 3. paſt.
z 1. Cor. 3. 2. Heb. 5. 12. 13.

It is written in the [a] Law, that if a man goeth vnto the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand ſtriketh with the axe to cut downe the tree, if the head ſlip from the helue, and hit his neighbour that he die, the ſame ſhall flie to one of the Cities appointed for refuge and liue. Such as reprehend their auditors ouertaken in any fault too curſtly (ſaith Gregorie the Great, Paſtoral. part 2. cap. 10.) make the head of the axe to flie from the helue, and ſo they kill vnaduiſedly their brethren. And [b] theſe ghoſtly fathers vſe Chriſtians as the Iewes vſed Chriſt hanging on the Croſſe; when his [c] thirſty ſoule called for ſome comfortable potion, they gaue him [d] gall and vinegar to drinke. A troubled ſpirit is an acceptable ſacrifice to God, Pſal. 51. 17. It is the ſpirituall mans office therefore to [e] bind vp the broken hearted, and to comfort ſuch as mourne in Sion, admoniſhing them in the ſpirit of meekneſſe, and not in the zeale of ſeuere iuſtice. The word καταρτίζετε vſed by [f] S. Paul, ſignifies properly to put in ioynt a member which is diſlocated. Now the Surgeon (as you know) muſt haue a Lions heart and a Ladies hand: ſo the Phyſitian of our ſoule muſt haue a Lions heart in rebuking ſtoutly ſuch as are ouertaken in any fault, but yet a Ladies hand in reſtoring them againe gently to their place, leſt otherwiſe they ſhould be ſwallowed vp with ouer-much ſorrow. Paſtors are not only fathers in [g] begetting, but alſo mothers in bearing children vnto the Lord: ſo S. Paul expreſly, Galat. 4. 19. My little children, of whom I trauell in birth againe vntill Chriſt be formed in you. As then a mother is [h] content to beare withinnumerable weakneſſes of her childe: ſo the Miniſter ought to beare with a great many follies of his new borne babes vnto God in Chriſt.

S. Paul exhorteth vs here to this vertue by diuers reaſons in the verſe going before: 1. From the bond of alliance, brethren: all of vs are brethren, and one brother ought to loue another. 2. From the condition of the perſon offending, if a man, and [i] what is man, euen like a thing of nought, Pſalm. 144. 4. according to that which is ſaid in this chapter at the 3. verſe, If any man ſeeme to himſelfe to be ſomewhat, when he is nothing, hee deceiueth himſelfe in his imagination. 3. From the manner of offending (as I haue before ſhewed) ouertaken, for there is great difference betweene voluntary running after ſinne of our owne accord, and to bee drawne occaſionally to ſinne by the lewd example of other. 4. From the qualitie of the ſinne, a fault, lapſus, not ſcelus, a raſh infirmitie, not a ſetled iniquity. 5. From the vertues of thoſe which are to rebuke, yee which are ſpirituall, endued with a great many gifts of the Spirit, which is the ſpirit of meekneſſe and mercy, not of rigour and enuy. 6. From the like danger of falling in our ſelues, conſider thy ſelfe, leſt alſo thou be tempted. For there is no ſin, ſaith [k] Auguſtine, which any man hath done, but another (if God denie grace) may doe the ſame. We ſtand on ſlippery ground, and if we waxe proud and ſtand not in feare, nothing is ſo eaſie vnto vs as to fall. If any man thinke himſelfe any thing, ſaith our Apoſtle, [l] that is, any thing of himſelfe without the gift of God, or any great thing in compariſon of other ſinners, he deceiueth himſelfe in his imagination. It was therefore well ſaid of an [m] holy Father, when it was told him that one of his brethren was fallen into whoredome, He fell yeſterday (quoth he) and I may fall to day.

Now let vs if you pleaſe put all theſe weightie conſiderations together in one ballance: the burden here to be borne, is the burden of a man, and of ſuch a man as is our brother, and of ſuch a brother as is rather ouertaken then hunting after wickednes, and ouertaken in ſuch a fault, which is rather an vnhappy ſlip than a foule fault, and we which are to ſupport profeſſe our ſelues ſpirituall, able to beare with infirmities of the weake: againe we know that our ſelues are fraile creatures, alway ſubiect to the like temptations, and ſo conſequently that we need mutually the helping hand one of another, and therefore let vs beare one anothers burden. The metaphor, as Chryſoſtome vpon the place thinkes, is taken from architecture for as in a materiall houſe one ſtone lieth vpon another, and all vpon the foundation: euen ſo in the Church, which is the ſpirituall houſe, Chriſtians, aptly termed by [n] S. Peter, liuely ſtones, beare vp one another, and Chriſt as the chiefe ſtone beares all. Vnuſquiſq; & portat alterum, & portatur ab altero, quoth [o] Gregorie, the whole building is ſo compact, as that euery one beares another, and is borne of another, and a Deut. 19. 5.

b Luther in loc.

c Ioh. 19. 28.

d Pſal. 69. 21.

e Eſay 61. 1.

f Brentius. Aretius.

g Epiſt. to Philemon. verſ. 10.

h Hauing uberra ſo well as verbera.

i Pſalm. 8 4.

k Soliloq. ca. 15.

l Lombard. in loc. ex Auguſt.

m Ex lib. de vitis Patrum, vti Lutherus in loc.

n 1. Pet. 2. 5.

o Hom. 13. in Ezek.

and ſo ioyned together as it followeth here, they fulfill the law of Chriſt. The will of Chriſt is, that [p] all men ſhould be ſaued, he therefore (ſaith [q] Ambroſe) that reſtorerh a brother ouertaken in a fault, and labours to raiſe him vp againe, fulfils the will of Chriſt, or Chriſts law, [r] that is, Chriſts example, who carried our ſorrowes, Eſay 53.4. and bare our ſinnes in his body on the croſſe, 1. Pet. 2. 24. [ſ] or the law of Chriſt is the law of charitie, Iohn 13. 34. a new commandement I giue vnto you that you loue one another, as I haue loued you, for they that loue one another, beare the burden one of another. A point ſo neceſſarie, [t] that the beloued Diſciple S. Iohn in his old age being caried to the Church in the armes of his ſchollers, and there lift vp into the pulpit, and vnable to ſpeake many words, vttered onely this ſweet ſentence, filioli diligite alterutrum, little babes loue one another.

p 1. Tim. 2.4.
q In loc.
r Brentius. Marolat. ſ Primaſius. Oecumen. Luther.
t Hierom. lib. 3. com. in Galat. 1. Tom. 9. fol. 200.

The ſecond kinde of burden is pouerty needing a ſupply, ſo S. Auguſtine doth expound theſe words in [u] ſer, 22. de verbis Apoſtoli, ſaying that a prodigious wealth is a burden vnto the rich, and extreme want a burden vnto the poore, ſo that if the rich out of his abundance communicate to the neceſſities of the poore, they beare one anothers burden. Want of neceſſary things is ſo grieuous a burden that many poore ſoules haue deſpaired vnder it, I beſeech you therefore which are preſſed with this heauy load, that you would caſt all your [x] burden vpon the Lord, and he ſhall nouriſh you; that you would caſt all your care vpon him, for he careth for you, 1. Pet. 5.7. he that feedes the [y] fowles of the heauen, and cloathes the lillies of the field, ſhall he not much more prouide food and rayment for his owne children? the hearts of men are in the hands of the Lord as riuers of water, and he turnes them whitherſoeuer it pleaſeth him, Prou. 21. 1. he turned the heart of [z] Potiphar toward Ioſeph, he turned the heart of [a] Pharaohs daughter toward Moſes, hee turned the heart of [b] Nabuchadonoſor toward Shadrach, Meſech, and Abednego, he cauſed Rauens to feed his Prophet Elia, 1. Kings 17 6. and he doth enlarge the hearts of rauenous cormorants in a famine to take compaſſion and to doe good vnto the houſhold of faith, he can at his good pleaſure [c] turne the hard rocke into a ſtanding water, and the flint ſtone into a ſpringing well, able to mollifie the ſtony hearts of hard and harſh churles, and to make them open-handed, and full of pittie toward his Saints and ſeruants, in the dayes of need. Albeit thy [d] father and thy mother forſake thee, yet the Lord will ſuſtaine thee; though haply the magiſtrates and all other who ſhould be nurſing fathers and nurſing mothers vnto thee, leaue thee comfortleſſe in thy diſtreſſe, yet the Lord who pittieth vs as a father, Pſalme 103. 13. and comforteth vs as a mother, Eſay 66. 13. ſhall according to the riches of his mercy binde vp the broken hearted, and giue beauty for aſhes, and the garment of gladneſſe for the ſpirit of heauineſſe.

u Tom. 10. fol. 252.
x Pſal. 55. 23.
y Mat. 6. 26.
z Gen. 39.
a Exod. 2.
b Dan. 3.
c Pſal. 114. 8.
d Pſalm. 27. 10.

Conſider I pray deſpiſed Lazarus at Dives gate, how ſound hee was in his ſwones, rich in his pouerty, bleſſed in his miſery, Fuit (as [e] Fulgentius ſweetly) ſine Domo, ſed non ſine Domino: ſine veſte, ſed non ſine fide: ſine cibo, ſed non ſine Chriſto: he wanted an houſe, but the Lord himſelfe was the [f] portion of his inheritance, poſſeſſing the [g] whole world and all that therein is: he needed a few rags, but by faith he had [h] put on Chriſt a rich and a long robe of righteouſneſſe to couer all the ſinnes of his ſoule: hee could not haue ſo much as the crums of bread falling from Dives table, but he did eat of that true bread which came from heauen, euen of the bread of life that nouriſheth euerlaſtingly: hee was a companion of ſtinking dogs, and yet attended by glorious Angels. If then hard hearted men refuſe to beare thy burden, caſt it vpon the Lord who ſaith expreſly, Come to me y^e that are heauy laden, and I will eaſe you. [i] The Lord vpholdeth all ſuch as fall, and lifteth vp thoſe that be downe, the Lord is nigh vnto all thoſe that call vpon him faithfully, he will fulfill the deſires of thoſe that feare him, he will heare their cryes and helpe them.

e Epiſt. 2. ad Gallam de ſtatu viduali.
f Pſal. 16. 6.
g Pſal 24 1.
h Rom. 13. 14.
i Pſal. 145. 14. 18.

So likewiſe riches (howſoeuer in themſelues a bleſſing) are vnto ſuch as ſet their [k] hearts on them and put their [l] truſt in them a burden, they be good ſeruants (as Seneca ſaid of afflictions) but bad maſters; if we ſerue them, it is a labour to get them, and a load to keepe them: as it is the burden of pouerty, ſaith [m] Auguſtine, non habere, to haue too little: ſo the burden of opulencie plus quam opus eſt habere, to haue too much Example hereof in the 12. chapter of S. Luke, where the couetous

k Pſal. 62. 10.
l 1. Tim 6. 17.
m Ser. 22. de verb. Apoſt.

miſer cryeth out as well as the neceſſitous begger, what ſhall I doe? Schollers in Colledges complaine becauſe they want meat for their ſtomacke, Friers in Monaſteries heretofore, ſometime complained alſo that they did want a ſtomacke for their meat, poore men are diſcontented becauſe they haue not enough corne for their barnes, and rich men are diſcontented in plenty, becauſe they haue not enough barne for their corne, What ſhall I doe? this will I doe, I will pull downe my barnes and build greater.

n *Matt.*10.25. Thus an ouergrowne eſtate many times is a burden, ſo heauy that [n] Chriſt ſaith, it is eaſier for a camell (or as other read) for a cable to goe through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdome of God: a cable being vndone thread by thread, may goe thorow a needles eye, ſo (beloued) if the couetous rich man vntwine his wretched thoughts, and become [o] rich in good workes, he may poſſeſſe the kingdome of heauen. If thou reaſon as that auarous Epicure did in the [p] Goſpell, ſaying vnto thy ſoule, thou art Dines, and therefore Dines, thou haſt much goods for many yeeres: Or thou art Dines, and therefore be [q] Diu veſcens, eat, drinke take thy paſtime, [r] let thy money periſh with thee, for thou haſt no part nor fellowſhip in the kingdome of God, as continuing yet in the gall of bitterneſſe, and in the bond of iniquity; but if in arguing with thy ſelfe thou concludeſt (as Logicians ſpeake) in dubitis, and not in celarent: If thou lay not vp thy goods onely for thy ſelfe, but lay them out in doing good vnto all men, eſpecially to thoſe of the houſhold of faith: If thou deriue Dines à diuido, which is Chriſts owne notation in the 10. of S. Marke at the 21. verſe, divide pauperibus, giue to the poore: If thou doeſt [s] vſe the things of the world as if thou dideſt not vſe them, if thou helpe to beare the burden of thy brethren in diſtreſſe, and ſo fulfil the law of Chriſt, aſſuredly thou ſhalt enter into the kingdome of Chriſt.

o 1. Tim. 6.18.
p Luke 12.
q Iſidor. Orig. lib 10.
r Acts 8.20.
s 1. Cor 7.31.

Beſide the burden of pouertie, there be [t] burdens of ſickneſſe, and ſeruitude, there be many terrours and troubles in the world wherewith our brethren are laden, and we muſt alſo help to beare part thereof, according to that of S. Paul, Heb. 13.3. Remember them that are in bonds, as though yee were bound with them; and them that are in affliction, as if ye were alſo afflicted in body. This office is performed [u] affectu compaſſionis, effectu ſubuentionis, ſuffragio orationis, in affect by compaſſion, in effect by ſubuention, in our prayers vnto God by ſupplication. If we cannot actually communicate to the neceſſities of the Saints in another countrey, yet let vs affectionately commiſerate their diſtreſſed eſtate, let vs heartily ſend vp our good wiſhes vnto God in their behalfe; though we cannot fight for them abroad, yet let vs ſigh for them at home. For if the Lord reward a cup of [x] cold water giuen to his poore members, how much more will he reward a cup of warme water, that is, a few teares ſhed for Ioſephs affliction, I meane for the perſecution of his Church vnder the [y] red Dragon in the wilderneſſe. S. Paul would haue the whole Church weepe for one mans fornication, and ſhall not one weepe for the ſinne of a whole Church, crying as Ieremie, Oh that my head were a well of water, and mine eyes a fountaine of teares, that I might weepe day and night for the ſlaine of Gods people, Ierem. 9.1.

t Onera, id eſt moleſtias. Em. Sa. in loc.
u Caietan in loc.
x *Mat.*10.42.
y *Apoc.*12.

These duties are to be done by vs in the preſent, portate, now beare the which is anſwerable to that in this chapter at the 10. verſe, While we haue time let let vs doe good, &c. that is, while we haue [z] light, and while we haue [a] life, for the Saints in this world beare the croſſe, but in the next they weare the crowne. From hence wee may learne two leſſons.

z Ambroſ. Brentius.
a Primaſius Aquine.

1. That [b] howſoeuer heere wee may beare vp our brethren before they fall, and reare vp our brethren after they be fallen, howſoeuer heere we may vphold one another with our prayers and purſe, with our meeknes and mercy, with our affectionate compaſſion, and actuall ſubuention; yet hereafter at the laſt day before the iudgement ſeat of Almighty God, euery man ſhal beare his owne burden, he ſhall neither be condemned for the ſinne, nor yet abſolued for the vertues of another. The Saints haue not enough [c] oyle for themſelues and other too, workes of ſupererogation, are workes of ſuperarrogation, euery man ſhall liue by his owne faith, and euery man ſhall be iudged according to his owne facts, whether they be good or euill, as our Apoſtle, b Hierom. Lombard. Aquine. See Luther & Marlor. in loc.

c *Mat.*25.9.

Apoſtle, 2. Cor. 5. 10. while we are pilgrims vpon the way, we may ſupport one another in our ſtewardſhip, but at our iourneyes end, when our accounts is to bee giuen vp, euery man is to beare his owne burden.

2. That howſoeuer the dead Saints are [d] ſollicitous for the good of the liuing in generall, yet they doe not vnderſtand the wants, and ſo conſequently not beare the burden of this and that man in particular. And therefore we muſt according to Gods owne precept and promiſe, [e] call vpon him in the time of trouble, and he will heare vs. [f] Doubtles thou Lord art our father, though Abraham be ignorant of vs, and Iſrael knoweth vs not, O Lord, thou art our father, and our redeemer, thy name is for euer. Howſoeuer men on earth and Saints in heauen are not able to ſupport our weakneſſe, and ſupply our wants, yet if we caſt our load vpon the Lord, he will [g] eaſe our ſhoulder from the burden, and [h] deliuer our ſoule from the nethermoſt hell.

Chriſt is the good ſhepheard mentioned Luk. 15. who ſought the loſt ſheepe in the wilderneſſe, and when he found it, laid it on his ſhoulders, and brought it home with ioy. [i] In his life he ſought the loſt ſinner vntill he found him, in his death he laid him on his ſhoulders, in his reſurrection he reioyced for him, in his aſcenſion he did open the doores of heauen, and bring him to his owne fathers houſe and home. The braces of the Croſſe (quoth [k] Ambroſe) are the ſhoulders of Chriſt, O then let vs lay all the burden of our faults vpon them, able to beare the ſinnes of the whole world, [l] I will lay me downe in peace, and take my reſt in thy Croſſe, for it is thou Lord onely that makeſt me to dwell in ſafetie. Thus haue I for this time diſburdened my ſelfe, and burdened you; God of his infinite rich mercy grant that we may beare one anothers burden.

d Doctor Reynold de Idolat. lib 1. cap. 1.

e Pſal. 50. 15.

f Eſay 63. 16.

g Pſal. 81. 6.

h Pſal. 86. 13.

i Panygarol. hom. in euang. Dom. 3. poſt Penteceſt.

k In Luc. 15.

l Pſal. 4. 9.

The

The paines of Hell.

PSALME 86. verses 12, 13.

I will thanke thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart, and will praise thee for euermore. For great is thy mercy toward me, and thou hast deliuered my soule from the nethermost hell.

LECTVRE I.

THE Prophet professeth in this Scripture, that he will praise God vnfainedly with his whole heart, and vncessantly for euermore. The ground whereof is Gods exceeding great mercy, manifested in deliuering his soule from the greatest of all mischiefes, which is the nethermost hell.

Here then I am to begin at the Texts end; treating,
1. Of hell.
2. Of our deliuerance by Gods vnspeakable mercy from this hell.
3. Of our thankes and praise due to God for this deliuerance.

There is an hell
- On earth, which is twofold, a
  1. Temporall hell of affliction.
  2. Spirituall hell of conscience.
- Vnder earth, which is twofold,
  1. The pit of the dead, or the graue, which is vpper hell.
  2. The pit of the damned, which is the nethermost hell.

I finde this our text construed by Diuines of all these kinds of hell. Concerning the first, a Ionas, and other holy men, that were deliuered from extreme perils, and deepe dangers, are b said to be deliuered from hell, as Psalm. 18. 4. The pangs of hell came about me. Psalme 30. 3. Thou hast brought my soule out of hell. Psalme 116. 3. The snares of death compassed me round about, and the paines of hel gat hold vpon me: so here, thou hast deliuered my soule, that is, my life, my person, as it were, from the nethermost hell. For when Dauid was persecuted by Saul, there was but a step betweene Dauid and death, 1. Sam. 20. 3. As they which are buried seeme in the iudgement of man ~~past all hope of life, yet God notwithstanding~~ will one day raise them vp againe; c so when d Dauid seemed by reason of his distresse to bee past all recouerie, the Lord admirably deliuered him from death.

Dauid also was deliuered from the hell of conscience, for his crying crimes of murther, and whoredome. For after, e Nathan had said vnto him, the Lord hath put away thy sinne, after God had giuen him f a cleane heart, and a right spirit, he was restored againe to his former g peace of conscience, and ioy in the Holy Ghost. He calleth a Ionas 2. 2. b Basil. Bucer. Agellius. Genebrard. Tremellius.

c Caluin. Wilcox. Euthymius. Accipit infernum pro morte cui proximus fuit Ezechias.
e 2. Sam. 12. 13.
f Psal. 51. 10.
g Rom. 14. 17.

leth his griefe for sinne the lowest hell, [h] as being a great deale deeper than any kinde of outward danger or death. He therefore thanked God with all his heart for deliuering his soule from this hell of conscience, [i] confounding those foule fiends and vncleane spirits, which in his murther and adulterie had risen vp against him, and sought after his soule to destroy it.

Thirdly, if we take this as spoken in the person of Christ, it may bee construed of the [k] graue, for God raised Christ againe from the dead, not leauing his soule in hell, nor suffering his holy one to see corruption, Psal. 16. 11. Acts 2. 27.

But the [l] Fathers expound this of hell in hell, aptly termed the nethermost hell, as being not only lower than any graue, but also deeper than any wound in the body, or griefe in the minde.

Troubles in this world (quoth Austin) are an vpward hell, but the tortures of the damned in the next, are the lowest hell: and Hierome, sinne is a superiour hell, but the place where sinners are punished eternally, the nethermost hell.

If we will vnderstand this as vttered by the Prophet, of Christ, he descended into the nethermost hell, [m] non vt debitor, sed vt victor, not as a debtor to suffer any punishment, but as a conqueror to triumph ouer death and the diuell in their owne kingdomes: or he may sing with our Prophet, thou hast deliuered my soule, [n] that is, the soule of my people beleeuing in my name from the nethermost hell, for it is thy [o] will, that whosoeuer beleeue in me should not perish, but haue euerlasting life, Iohn 3. 16.

Or it may be thus interpreted of Dauid literally, thou Lord hast deliuered my soule from hell in pardoning all my sinnes worthily deseruing hell. For [q] as a man is said to deliuer his brother from death, not because he raised him vp againe from the dead, but onely for that he was a meanes to preserue him aliue: so God is said to deliuer vs from the nethermost hell, in preuenting and preseruing vs by his grace, from descending into the nethermost hell.

Now that we may the better amplifie the greatnesse of Gods mercy, let vs examine the greatnesse of hels misery.

The which is twofold, { 1. Pœna sensus, paines of sense. 2. Pœna damni, paines of losse.

For [r] as in sinne there is an auersion from the Creator, and a conuersion to the creatures, according to that of the [s] Prophet, They haue forsaken me the fountaine of liuing waters, and haue digged themselues pits, euen broken pits that can hold no water: so in the punishment of sinners (as [t] Diuines obserue) there is not only paine of losse, which is answerable to their auersion from their Creator; but also paine of sense, which is answerable to their conuersion vnto the creature. And therefore wee reade Ioh. 15. 6. that such vnprofitable branches as beare no fruit, are not only cast out of the vine, and the whole vineyard; but also gathered together, and are made faggots and fuell of hell fire. To begin with the lesser of these two,

The paines of sense to be suffered of the damned in hell, according to the Scriptures account, are principally seuen,

1. Darkenesse.
2. Fire.
3. The worme neuer dying.
4. Bonds.
5. Conuersing with deuils.
6. Weeping.
7. Gnashing of teeth.

The first is darkenesse, according to that of Christ, Math. 8. 12. The children of the kingdome shall bee cast out into vtter darkenesse. And Math. 22. 13. speaking of him who had not on a wedding garment, cast him into vtter darkenesse. And Math. 25. 30. cast that vnprofitable seruant into vtter darkenesse. So [u] Iob calleth hell the land of darkenesse, and the reason thereof is plaine, because the nethermost hell is a [x] bottomlesse pit in the [y] heart of the earth, farre remote from the light of Sunne, and Moone, and Starres. Haply some will obiect, if there be fire, there is assuredly light. Answer is made by [z] S. Basil, that hell fire hath onely power to burne, but not to shine: or if it afford a little sulphureous or obscure light, it shall not be for their comfort, but on the contrary, h Mollerus.

i Arnobius:
k Iacobus de Valentia
l Hierom. Augustin. in loc. Bernard. ser. 2. de assumptione. Idem Placidus Parmensis & alii.
m Genebrard.
n Turrecremat. in loc.
o Iohn 6.40.
q D. Incognitus in loc.
t Dio. Car. de quatuor nouissimis, part. 3. art. 11.
s Ierem. 2.13.
t Thomas 1.2æ. quæst 87. art 4. Io. de Combis compend. Theolog. li. 7. cap. 22.
u Iob 10.21.
x Apocal 9.1.
y Math. 12.40.
z In Psal. 33.

7 paynes in hell.
1 punish contrary to the farther confuſion of the damned, that thereby they may diſcerne their brethren, or children, or friends in the ſame puniſhment with them, or elſe that they may behold the moſt vgly faces of terrible fiends alway tormenting them.

And the darkeneſſe of hell is called vtter darkneſſe, to diſtinguiſh it from that inward darkeneſſe wherewith vngodly men are compaſſed about in this life. Worldlings haue their corporall eyes open in ſeeing vanities, and in ſeeking pleaſures of the fleſh, but they be blinde concerning internall, and eternall happineſſe, as S. Paul ſpeaketh, Their [a] heart is full of darkeneſſe, and there [b] cogitations obſcured through ignorance that is in them. Here reprobate men haue light without, and darkeneſſe within, but hereafter they ſhall haue vtter darkeneſſe, and inward light. I ſay light inwardly not to ſee God or any thing that is good to their refreſhing, but onely ſo much inward light as may ſerue to diſcouer their errors, and to make them vnderſtand their own miſery, ſaying, [c] We haue erred from the way of truth, & the light of righteouſnes hath not ſhined vnto vs, and the ſun of vnderſtanding roſe not vpon vs. Now what a terrible torture this wil be to ſuch eſpecially as haue greedily followed the luſt of the eyes, and the pride of life, let old blinde [d] Tobie witneſſe, who when the Lords Angell ſaluted him on this ſort (Ioy to thee for euermore) replied, what ioy can I haue who ſit here in the darke, and ſee not the light of heauen? How tedious is the night vnto the ſicke body, who cannot ſleepe though he ſtretch himſelfe vpon a [e] bed of yuoryie, how carefully doth hee tell the clocke, numbring houres and minutes of houres exactly, how eagerly doth he deſire the morning light, although his griefe happily reſide but in one part, as in his teeth, or head, or in one ioynt of a member as the gowt in a toe, the felon in a finger. O then how fearefull, and vncomfortable will that eternall darkeneſſe be to the damned vniuerſally tormented in all the parts of their bodies, and in all the powers of their ſoules, and that without all hope to ſee more light, and to returne againe to life: Thinke on this all ye that forget God, in whoſe minde the [f] Prince of darkeneſſe worketh vnprofitable workes of darkeneſſe, Epheſ. 5.11. leſt in a moment ye be taken from your inner darkeneſſe, and caſt into hels vtter darkeneſſe. And let all ſuch as once were darkneſſe, but now [g] light in the Lord, that is, all the faithfull and godly beleeuing that Chriſt died for their ſinnes, and roſe againe from the dead for their iuſtification, ſay with the Prophet, I will thanke thee O Lord my God with all my heart, and will praiſe thy name for euermore. For great is thy mercy toward me, and thou haſt delinered my ſoule from the nethermoſt hell.

The ſecond puniſhment in hell is fire, ſo the text ſpeaketh of the [h] tares, that is, vnregenerate ſinners they ſhall bee bound together, and caſt into a furnace of fire. And [i] euery tree that brings not forth good fruit, ſhall bee hewen downe, and caſt into the fire, And Apocal. 20.15. whoſoeuer was not found written in the booke of life, was caſt into the lake of fire, the which is materiall, and not as ſome conceiue metaphoricall only; not a falſe, but a furious fire not a phantaſticall, but a corporeall fire. So [k] Gregorie the great, ſo the [l] Scoole, ſo [m] S. Auſtine. Yea, but you will obiect, if hell fire be corporeall, how commeth it to paſſe that it conſumes not the bodies of the damned? Auguſtine de Ciuit. Dei lib. 21. cap. 10. doth anſwer in one word, that this is done mirus ſed veris modis, admirably yet actually, whereof if any doubt, let him remember only, that he who created it is omnipotent, and he who reuealed it is truth.

Againe, there be ſo ſtrange things as it euen in this preſent world: for in [n] naturall hiſtorie, we reade of a certaine ſalt in Sicilia, the which if it be put into the fire, ſwimes as in water, and being put into water, crackles as in a fire. A mong the Garamantes, a people dwell in the middle of Libia, wee read of a fountaine, the which in a cold night is ſo hot, that none can indure touch it, and in the hot day ſo cold that none can drinke it. And we read of a ſtone in Arcadia called Abeſton, the which being once made hot can neuer be cooled. And why then I pray, quoth [o] Auguſtine, may not the bodies of the damned in that vnquenchable lake be like ſalt in Sicilia, which in the fire ſwimes like water; or like the ſtone Abeſton, which once being hot cannot be cooled; or like the Well in Libia, which is hot in cold weather, and cold in hot weather?

a Rom. 1.21.
b Epheſ. 4.18.
c Wiſdom. 5.6.
d Tobit. 5.12.
e Amos. 6.4.
f Epheſ. 6.12.
g Epheſ 5.8.
h Math. 13.30. 42.
i Luke 3.9.
k Dialog. lib. 4. cap. 29.
l Lombard ſent. lib. 4. diſt 44.
m Lib. 21. de Ciuit. Dei, cap. 3. & 10. Idem 10. de Combis compend. Theolog. li. 21. ca. 12.
n See Auguſt. de Ciuit. lib. 21. cap. 5.
o Vbi ſupra.

weather? Doest thou seeke a reason of Gods high and heauie iudgements, saith? Augustine! I for my part will feare and tremble thereat; dispute thou, but I will beleeue: I see the pit, but I cannot finde the depth; & seeing the [q] Apostle saith, that the wayes of God cannot be found, thinkest thou to finde them out? To search out things inscrutable is as impossible as to see things inuisible, and to speake things ineffable.

Now (beloued) among all the mercilesse punishments inuented by the wit of man, it is granted that burning is the most horrible. Such as are put to death by men or beasts endure lesse crueltie than they which are put to death by senslesse creatures. And among all things insensible, water and fire are most vnmercifull; and of these two, fire is most raging: And therefore the barbarous Papists euer delighted in fire-workes. A [r] Pope first enacted the law de heretico comburendo; a Frier first inuented the shooting of fire: And were not I pray you Papists the parties who plotted the hellish gun-powder-treason. They be reputed worthily the most exquisite torturers, and their most execrable torments are by fire.

Hence some [s] Diuines imagine that the punishments of hell is termed fire metaphorically, because the most bitter paine knowne to man, is that of fire. But earthly fire though it be neuer so terrible for a time, yet it soone deuoureth the body, that is cast into it, and so the flame decreaseth as the fewell wasteth: whereas hell fire cannot be quenched, Mark. 9.43. It is an euerlasting fire, Matth. 25.41. where damned wretches are euer frying, and yet neuer dying.

And therefore let vs often in our meditations remember the words of [t] Esay, who among vs shal dwell with the deuouring fire? who among vs shal dwell with euerlasting burning? as if he had said to graceless, hard hearted obstinate sinners, take not a burden vpon you which is too hard for you to beare; trie first if you can abide to dwell with a deuouring fire before yee goe downe quicke into hell. It is reported of the godly martyr [u] Thomas Bilney, that he did vse before his burning to put his finger into the candle to feele how hot the fire was: and [x] Tertullian writeth of Quintus Mutius Scenola, that he did constantly burne his owne hand for striking amisse. So let the desperate sinner that imagineth lewdnesse vpon his [y] bed, and when the morning is light taketh [z] paine to commit it, [a] compassing land and sea to corrupt others, and to [b] worke all vncleannesse, euen with a greedinesse, burne but his hand, or his finger in the fire for a few minutes, and then consider how he shall endure to dwell in that vnquenchable lake with euerlasting burnings.

I will not any farther examine the condition of hell fire, seeing it is our dutie not to be curious in searching after it, but on the contrary studious that wee may neuer come to know what it is. In this life which is the [c] day of our saluation, and acceptable time, we may through faith in Christ our blessed Sauiour, who triumphed ouer the powers of hell, vtterly [d] quench all the fiery darts of the deuill; here by true repentance we may stop these flames, and by deuout teares put them out, that they neuer shall come neere vs; but hereafter it will be too late when the breath of the Lord shall as [e] a riuer of brimstone kindle it, and command it to burne without either end, or ease.

The third punishment of hell is, the worme neuer dying, mentioned by the Prophet Esay, who speaking of the wicked in his last Chapter, at the last verse, saith expressly, Their worme shall not die, neither shall their fire bee quenched: the which is repeated thrice by Christ in one Chapter, namely, Marke 9. verse 44.46.48. [f] S. Basil takes this for a material worme which is carniuorous and venomous, but [g] Augustine, and [h] others affirme that this worme neuer dying, is the sting of conscience disquieting the damned after such an horrible manner, as if a worme full of poyson should bee gnawing at the heart of a man. It is very probable that the fire neuer to be quenched, is to be referred to the body, and the worme neuer dying to the soule. So that of the Wiseman is [i] interpreted, Ecclesiasticus 7. 17. The vengeance of the wicked is fire and wormes, fire to torment his body; wormes of conscience to torture his soule. Now this Erinnis conscientiæ, this hellish hagge (as [k] Melancthon calleth it) affrights the wicked in this world so terribly, that they runne as mad men out of the field into the citie, out of the citie into their houses, out of the common roomes in their houses into their

[q] Rom. 11.33.

[r] See Bulling. de consiliis lib. 2. cap. 12.

[s] See Marlorat. in Matth. 25.41. & Caluin. in Isaie cap. 30. 33. & 66. 24.

[t] Esa. 33 14.

[u] Fox martyr. fol. 922.

[x] Lib. ad martyres.

[y] Mica. 2.1.

[z] Jerem 9.5.

[a] Matth. 23.15.

[b] Ephes. 4.19.

[c] 2. Cor. 6.2.

[d] Eph. 6.12.16.

[e] Esay 30.33.

[f] In Psal. 33.

[g] De Ciuit. Dei lib. 21. cap 9.

[h] Calvin. in Esay 66. Io. de combis compend theol. loc. li. 17. ca 22.

[i] See Augustin. vbi supra.

[k] Com. in 1. Cor. 11.

3 punishment

their chambers, out of their chambers into their ſtudies, out of their ſtudies into the ſecret cloſets of their owne hearts, and there (ſaith Auguſtine) they find themſelues greateſt enemies vnto themſelues. Examples hereof K. Ric. the 3. Franciſcus Spira, Cardinall Creſcentius, and many more deſpairing in ſinne.

But this hell in this world is mittigated ſometime by ſleeping, ſometime by reading, ſometime by the meriments of idle company, ſometime by the good counſell of honeſt and diſcreet friends: whereas in the nethermoſt hell, there can be no ſleeping vnto the damned, although it be nothing elſe but an euerlaſting night; there can bee no reading, but in that blacke booke onely, which euermore preſents in great characters vnto their view, both their innumerable ſinnes, and Chriſts ſeuere ſentence for the ſame; no commercing either with any mirthfull or faithfull acquaintance, but onely with the deuill and his angels (miſerable comforters) in the ſame condemnation.

The fourth puniſhment in hell is bonds, ſo S. Iude writes in his Epiſtle, that the curſed Angels, which kept not their firſt eſtate, but left their habitations, are reſerued in euerlaſting chaines: and [l] Chriſt ſaith of him, who had not on a wedding garment, bind him hand and foot, and caſt him into vtter darkenes. This binding doth inſinuate, that the damned in hell fire cannot moue from place to place, which haply might afford them a little eaſe, but that they be tyed to their torments, as a Martyr, or rather as a malefactor to be burnt is bound to the ſtake. Now (beloued) if a man enioying quietneſſe of minde, and perfect health of body, ſhould bee chained vpon a downe-bed a moneth or two, he would thinke it a great puniſhment; but if he ſhould be ſicke of a burning feuer, and be conſtrained but a few houres to lie ſtill, and not ſo much as to moue hand or foot, he would finde it a great torture: how wretched then are the deuils and damned in euerlaſting chaines, tormented with a worme that neuer dieth, and with a fire that neuer goeth out. Hee which is ſicke at the ſea may runne out of the ſhip into the boat, and out of the boat againe into the ſhip; and he which is ſicke in his bed, may tumble from one ſide to the other: but the damned in the nethermoſt hell, are able to moue no more than the dead in the vppermoſt hell. And in this reſpect hell is termed euerlaſting death, for as the bleſſed in heauen are ſaid to haue euerlaſting life, becauſe they worke all that they will with all their inward and outward powres, and that without our impediment: ſo the damned in hell are ſaid to haue eternall death, becauſe they be perpetually tied to their torments, inforced euer to ſuffer that they would not, and vnable to doe that they would. It was a cruell inuention of the Gentiles, to binde the bleſſed Martyr [m] Marcas Aretuſius ſtarke naked againſt the Sunne, and then anointing his body with honie, that it might be expoſed to the biting of flies, and ſtinging of waſps and bees. But the bleſſed man of God had vndoubtedly that of [n] Paul in his minde, our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for vs a farre moſt excellent and an eternall weight of glory: whereas thoſe miſerable wretches in that vnquenchable lake bound hand and foot for their ſinne, cannot expect ſo much as eaſe, much leſſe an end.

Men in this world are in the middle betweene heauen and hell, as nouices in a probation-houſe; wherefore ſuch as [o] hate reformation and knowledge, ſuch as haue [p] giuen their members as weapons of vnrighteouſneſſe vnto ſinne, ſuch as ſtudie to be naught, and take [q] paines to doe villany, proceeding from euill to worſe, Ier. 9. 3. heaping vnto themſelues wrath againſt the day of wrath, Rom. 2. 5. haue good cauſe to tremble at this hard ſaying. But on the contrary, ſuch as [r] ſeeke the kingdome of God, and [ſ] hunger and thirſt after the righteouſneſſe thereof, whoſe ſoules long after God, with whom is the [t] well of life, like as the Harts deſire the water brooks, Pſalm. 42. 1. ſuch as in their words adminiſter [u] grace to the hearers, and in their workes are a [x] light in the middeſt of a crooked generation, ſuch as according to grace giuen are [y] rich in good deeds, and [z] abundant alwayes, in the works of the Lord, ought to ſing with our Prophet, We will thanke thee, O Lord our God, and praiſe thy name for euermore; for great is thy mercy toward vs, and thou haſt deliuered our ſoules from the nethermoſt hell.

LECTVRE II.

l Matth. 22. 13.

m Greg. Nazianzen. orat. 1. in Julian.

n 2. Cor. 4. 17.

o Prou. 1. 29.
p Rom. 6. 16.
q Ierem. 9. 5.

r Matth 6. 33.
ſ Matth 5. 6.
t Pſal. 36. 9.
u Epheſ. 4. 29.
x Philip. 3. 15.
y 1. Tim. 6. 18.
z 1. Cor. 15. 58.

LECTVRE II.

THE Fist punishment in hell is the companie of the deuill and his Angels: according to that of [a] Christ, depart from me ye cursed into euerlasting fire, which is prepared for the deuill and his Angels: and Apocal. 20. 10. the deuill that deceiued them was cast into a lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false Prophet shall be tormented euen day and night for euermore. Now what a discontentment it is to conuerse with our mortall enemies, opposing God and godlinesse in this life, let Dauid witnesse, Psalm. 120.4. Woe is me that I am constrained to dwell with Mesech, and to haue my habitation among the tents of Kedar: and [b] Iob, I was a brother to the Dragons, and a companion to the Ostridges. As in heauen it will be doubtlesse an vnspeakable pleasure to enioy the long-wished for company, not onely of some speciall friends and acquaintance, whom in this life we best affected, and of the Patriarkes, and Prophets, and Apostles, and Martyrs, and Confessors, whom we most honoured: but also the most happy presence of Christ himselfe, of God himselfe, of the whole sacred Trinitie, whom we desired euer to loue with all our heart, with all our soule, with all our minde: So the damned in hell account it a great torment, [c] that they must of necessity conuerse with Abbadon, euen the deuill himselfe, the destroyer of their soules and bodies, I say, with the deuill, the first author of all their mischiefes, and with impious wretches, his agents, in procuring all their miseries: and therefore no wonder if reprobate men in hell fire weepe and gnash with their teeth, according to that of Christ, Math. 25.30. Cast that vnprofitable seruant into vtter darkenesse, there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth; the which is often repeated in the [c] Gospell, as the summe and epilogue of all hellish tortures, for weeping shewes the dolour, and gnashing of teeth the horrour arising from all the paines of losse or sense, as vncomfortable darkenesse, euerlasting chaines, worme neuer dying, fire neuer quenched, company both of the deuill and all his Angels.

God said he would shew such a iudgement vpon the house of [d] Elie, that whosoeuer heares thereof his eares should tingle. So these iudgements are so terrible, that whosoeuer heares of them, his heart cannot but tremble. For as the [e] Schoole teacheth, Euery punishment of the damned is greater then any torment of any man on earth. And as [f] Diuines obserue, pœna damni pœnalior est quam pœna sensus, the paines of losse are more grieuous than all the paines of sense, and therefore the first word in Christs sentence of condemnation is depart, as if he should say, depart from me which am your God, your first beginning and last end: depart from me which offered you pardon, but you would not accept of it; depart for euer from my friendship, from my kingdome, from my paradise, from my cleare sight, and the copious riuer of my pleasures: and for that whatsoeuer is seperated from Christ, is also separated from those that follow Christ, in saying, depart from me, he saith likewise, depart from the quire of my glorious Angels, and from the communion of my blessed Saints, Apostles, Martyrs, Confessors, and from all the sweet company resting vpon my holy hill, I say, depart from me, from all mine, to perish in euerlasting fire with the deuill and his angels. In respect of the losse of this infinite good, hell is termed in the Fathers, and in the Scriptures also, damnation. If [g] Esau seeing his younger brother Iacob to haue got the blessing, eruguit clamore magno, roared out with a great crie, and bitter without measure, saying vnto his father, hast thou not reserued a blessing also

a Matth. 25. 41.

b Iob 30.29.

c Matth. 8.12. Luke 13. 28. Matth 13.42. Matth. 22.13. Matth. 24. 51.

d 1. Sam. 3.11.

e Thom. part. 3. quæst. 46. art. 6.

f Chrysost. Prosper apud Dio. Carthus. de quatuor nouissimis, part. 2. art. 11.

g Gen 27.34.

for me? How loud will the reprobate roare, figured in [h] Esau, when as they shall behold the Saints figured in Iacob, to haue got the benediction of their heauenly Father, and that no more blessing remaineth for them! O with what vnspeakable rage will they confirme their owne malediction, cursing the [i] day wherein they were borne, and the night wherein it was said, a childe is conceiued, cursing the wombe that bare them, and the paps that gaue them sucke, desiring rather neuer to haue beene, than to heare such an affrighting sentence, goe ye cursed. If King Balshazzar at the sight of an hand-writing against him, which onely concerned the losing of his earthly kingdome, was so [k] changed in his lookes, and troubled in his thoughts, that the ioynts of his bones were loosed, and his knees smote one against another: how shall the reprobate be perplexed in their wits, and crossed in their wils, when as they shall heare that vncomfortable word, depart, separating them vtterly from an heauenly kingdome, which is [l] immortall and fades not away? This infinite losse, doubtlesse, is the very hell of hell, as [m] Chrysostome saith, a thousand hels are nothing in comparison of it.

Some things especially perfect a good feast, [n] Homines belli collecti, locus electus, tempus lectum, apparatus non neglectus: Good companie, good cheere, good place, good time. But all those good things are wanting at the blacke banquet of the deuill in the nethermost hell. As for good companie, damnation is a perpetuall banishment from heauen, and a depriuation of God and all good companie for euer. At other feasts (as it is the prouerbe) the more the merrier, but at this sorie supper the more people the greater misery, fathers howling for their children, husbands for their wiues, masters for their seruants, euery friend and fellow lamenting each other.

As for cheere, the first dish is weeping, and the second is gnashing of teeth, and can there be, quoth Father [o] Latymer, any mirth, where these two courses last all the feast.

As for the place, nethermost hell is not a lightsome, or in any respect a delightsome roome, but on the contrary, a land of darkenesse, and that which is more feare full, a pit of vtter darkenesse.

Now for the time, feasts appointed at vnseasonable houres, and continued longer than an ordinary time, seeme tedious to the guests, and therefore the lazie Frier sweating at his fat commons and large dinner, cryed out, heu quantum patimur, alas how much doe we suffer which are Friers! O then I beseech you consider, what the damned suffer at the deuils supper, where time without end is the very [p] sauce of euery dish at the table: for their darkenesse is an euerlasting night; their bonds, euerlasting chaines; their fire, euerlasting burning; their worme, neuer dying; their woe, neuer ending; their paines diuersity is great, their paines vniuersitie greater, but their paines eternitie greatest of all. It is as it were the gall and vineger that bittereth euery thing at the blacke banquet: as [q] Augustine said Mors semper viuet, & finis semper incipiet, & defectus deficere nesciet: and Prosper to the same purpose, Pœnæ gehennales torquent, non extorquent, puniunt non finiunt. [r] If at the naming of these things we tremble, what shall they doe that one day shall feele them and suffer them, and euer shall suffer them without end.

[s] Dauid wished that his enemies might goe downe quicke into hell: in another sense, wee may make the [t] same prayer, and that in charity for our selues, and our friends. For it is an holy thing, to descend into hell often by contemplation while we liue, that we may neuer goe thither by condemnation when as we are dead. Once euery yeere the Iewes did vse to visit their holy Temple, from foure yeeres to foure the Greeks did feast at their Olympiads, from ten yeeres to ten the Romanes sent presents vnto the Oracle of Apollo: but a Christian ought euery moneth, euery weeke, euery day, yea euery moment in his soule to goe downe into hell, that of the perpetuall miserie there may be a perpetuall memorie. Yea, but you will obiect, my sinnes are so great in their number, and so grieuous in their nature, that it would proue a kinde of hell once to thinke of the nethermost hell. O beloued in the Lord, [u] harden not your heart, but euen now while it is called [x] to day, [y] suffer the words of doctrine and

h Rom.9.13.

i Iob 3.3.

k Dan.5.6.

l 1.Pet.1.4.

m Apud Dio. Carthusian. vbi supra.

n Varro apud Gell. in lib.13. cap.11.

o Sermo ad Clerum, to the Conuocation house.

p Bellarmin. de gemitu Columbæ, lib.2.cap.2.

q De spiritu, & anima, cap.56.

r Church hom. concerning adulterie, part.3.

s Psal. 55.16.

t Gueuara epistle.

u Psal 95.8.

x Heb.3.13.

y Heb.13.22.

and exhortation, heare what the Lord ſaith in the firſt of Eſay for your comfort, calling his owne choſen Iſrael, a ſinfull nation, a people laden with iniquitie, whoſe head is ſicke, and heart is heauie, hauing nothing whole from the ſole of the foot to the crowne of the head, but wounds and ſwelling, and ſores full of corruption: and terming them in the 10. verſe, Princes of Sodom, and people of Gomorrah, [z] as hauing committed ſo foule ſinnes, as the men of Sodom, and Gomorrah. Now though hee [a] turned the Cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into aſhes, and ouerthrew them, and made them an example to thoſe that after ſhould liue vngodly: yet he ſaid that he would ſpare his Iſrael, if they would repent and obey his voyce. Waſh you, make you cleane, ceaſe to doe euill, learne to do well, ſeeke iudgement, deliuer the oppreſſed, iudge the fatherleſſe, defend the widow, and then albeit your ſinnes were as crimſon, they ſhall be made white as ſnow: though they were red as ſcarlet, they ſhall bee as woll. [b] Haſt thou ſinned againſt Almighty God? O then acknowledge thy fault, and repent: haſt thou ſinned a thouſand times? a thouſand times repent: haſt thou repented a thouſand times? as yet repent more; great repentance brings great peace to thy ſoule, little repentance little peace, no repentance no peace.

Let vs agree with our aduerſary quickly while we are in the way, Mat. 5. 25. God which is our friend and father, is made by ſin our aduerſary. Let vs then and that ſpeedily while we are [c] ſtrangers and pilgrims in this earthly tabernacle, make our peace, leſt he deliuer vs to the Iudge, and the Iudge deliuer vs to the Iaylour, and the Iaylour caſt vs into priſon, euen the nethermoſt hell, and ſo we ſhall euerlaſtingly periſh, and neuer reſt vpon his holy mountaine. Yea, but you will obiect that vnto me, which [d] Eli did to his ſonnes, If one man ſinne againſt another, the Iudge ſhall iudge it, but if a man ſinne againſt God, who ſhall intreat for him? Anſwer is made by S. Iohn in his firſt epiſtle, cap. 2. verſ. 2. If any man ſinne, we haue an Aduocate with the Father, Ieſus Chriſt the righteous, and he is the reconciliation for our ſinnes, and not for ours onely, but alſo for the ſinnes of the whole world. Anſwer is made by Saint Paul, Epheſ. 2. 14. Chriſt is our peace reconciling God and vs. Anſwer is made by the glorious Angell in the firſt of S. Mathew, verſe 21. 23. Ieſus is hee that ſhall ſaue his people from their ſinnes. Emanuel is his name, that is, God with vs, not God againſt vs. If we will haue pure gold, we muſt goe to Ophir; if good balme, to Gilead; if glad tidings, to the booke of God, which is [e] written for our inſtruction, that we might haue comfort, the centre whereof is this, that [f] Ieſus Chriſt came into the world to ſaue ſinners. It is our beſt and moſt conuenient courſe therefore, to behold our vgly ſinnes, not in the glaſſe of the Law, but in the glaſſe of the Goſpell, euen in Chriſt our bleſſed Sauiour, who died for our ſinnes, and is riſen againe for our iuſtification, and ſo we may ſing in triumph as [g] Paul, O death where is thy ſting, O hell where is thy victory, the ſting of death is ſinne, and the ſtrength of ſinne is the law, but thanks be to God which hath giuen vs victory through our Lord Ieſus Chriſt. If there were no law, there would be no ſinne, for ſinne is ἀνομία the [h] tranſgreſſion of the Law: but Chriſt was made [i] vnder the Law, that he might redeeme thoſe that were vnder the Law; he put our the hand-writing of ordinances that was againſt vs, and faſtened it vpon his Croſſe, Col. 2. 14. The ſting of death is ſinne, but Chriſt is the Lambe of God, that taketh away the ſinnes of the world: the priſon of death is hell vppermoſt and nethermoſt, but Chriſt in deſcending into hell, and aſcending into the heauen of heauens (as the [k] Scripture ſpeaketh) led captiuity captiue, triumphing ouer the deuill and death in their owne dungeons: vita illius inſtruxit noſtram, mors illius deſtruxit noſtram, as [l] Bernard pithily; his life was our liues inſtruction, his death our deaths deſtruction. For as it is in our text, his ſoule going downe into hell deliuered our ſoule from hell. The wicked audaciouſly ſcorning all the threatnings and plagues of God, are ſaid to haue made [m] a couenant with death, and with hell an agreement. On the contrary the godly knowing that there can bee no [n] communion betweene light and darkeneſſe, and no concord betweene Chriſt and Belial, haue no tany compact with hell and the graue, but a plaine conqueſt ouer both, as the bleſſed [o] Apoſtle ſweetly, The God of peace tread Satan vnder our feet. If the prince then of darkeneſſe haue no part in vs, or power ouer vs, aſſuredly the pit of z Caluin. in Eſa. 1. a 2. Pet. 2. 6.

b Chryſoſtom.
c 1. Pet. 2. 11.
d 1. Sam. 2. 25.
e Rom. 15. 4.
f 1. Tim. 1. 15.
g 1. Cor. 15. 55.
h 1. Iohn 3. 4.
i Gal. 4. 4.
k Pſal. 68. 18. Epheſ. 4. 8.
l Lib. de ſententijs.
m Eſay 28. 15.
n 2. Cor. 6. 14.
o Rom. 16. 20.

darkeneſſe ſhall neuer ouer-whelme vs. p There is no condemnation to thoſe that are in Chriſt Ieſus, which walke not after the fleſh, but after the ſpirit; for we haue not the ſpirit of boudage to feare any more, but the ſpirit of adoption whereby, we cry Abba Father, and the ſame ſpirit certifieth our ſpirit that we are ſonnes of God, and if ſonnes then heires, euen heires annexed with Chriſt, if ſo be that we ſuffer with him, that we may be glorified alſo together with him.

p Rom. 8.1.15.

So then if in thinking of hell, wee thinke of our ſinnes: and in thinking of our ſinnes, we thinke of Chriſt: and in thinking of Chriſt, we thinke of his merits: and in thinking of his merits, we thinke of our deliuerance; we ſhall haue cauſe to take vp here Dauids note, We will thanke thee, O Lord our God, with all our heart, and will praiſe thy name for euermore. For great is thy mercy towards vs, and thou haſt deliuered our ſoules from the nethermoſt hell.

The

The Iudges Charge.

PSALME 82. 5.

They know not, neither will they vnderstand, they walke on still in darkenesse, all the foundations of the earth are out of course.

AS the writings of S. Paul to Timotheus are termed [a] A glasse for the Ministers: so this excellent Ode may be called A Mirrour for Magistrates.

In which are liuely described { 1. The dutie of Iudges. 2. The dangers if they neglect their duties.

Euery Iudge must haue in him (as [b] Baldus acutely said) two kindes of salt: the first is sal scientiæ, that hee may know his dutie; the second is sal conscientiæ, that hee may doe his dutie. Such as faile in the first, are censured here with a nescierunt, and non intellexerunt; such as fall in the second, are branded here with an ambulant in tenebris.

The dangers vpon the neglect of these duties are two: the one concerning the whole Common-wealth, all the foundations of the earth are out of course; the other especially touching the [c] priuate persons of Iudges, at the 7. verse, yee shall die like men, and fall like one of the Princes, and [d] after death comes iudgement, vers. 8. Arise O God, and iudge thou the earth. Almighty God standeth in the congregation of Princes, and is a Iudge among gods, he sits in euery Session and Assise Chiefe Iustice, to marke what matters passe, and how they passe, ready to iudge those [e] righteously, who iudge other vniustly, giuing wrong iudgement, and accepting the persons of the wicked.

Thus I haue made the way plaine before you, God infinitely rich in mercy grant, that both I in speaking, and you in hearing, may walke therein (as the blessed [f] Apostle phraseth it) with a right foot.

They know not, neither will they vnderstand.] That is, they neither know [g] God, who made them gods; nor yet [h] vnderstand his law, which is a [i] lanterne to their feet, and a light to their paths.

Or as Placidus Parmensis vpon the place, they neither expend how they be called gods, that as commissioners and [k] ministers of God, ought to iudge other; nor yet remember how they shall be iudged themselues at the last day, when all the foundations of the world shall be moued, and God himselfe shall arise to iudge the earth.

Or they be so corrupt and abominable, that they will neither [l] learne what is their office from other, not yet vnderstand it by themselues. Or briefly, to giue that glosse (which fits best I thinke the text, I am sure the time) [m] Nescierunt quid facti, non intelexerunt quid iuris; they were both ignorant in the matter of fact, as not [n] searching out the cause; and ignorant in the matter of law fitting (as [o] Paul said of Ananias) to giue iudgement according to the law, and yet commanding that which is contrary a Hierom. epist. ad Oceanum, tom. 2. fol. 323.

b Cassaneus Catalog. glor. mundi part. 4. con. 6.

c Tremelius.
d Heb. 9. 27.

e Psal. 67. 4.

f Galat. 2. 14.

g Tileman. Genebrard.
h Babl. Euthym.
i Psal. 119. 105.
k Rom. 13. 4.

l Agellius in loc.

m Bellar. in loc.
n Iob 29. 16.
o Acts 23. 3.

contrarie to the law. The first concernes a good deale the Iurie, the second a great deale the Iudges; in both are condemned, as the nurses of all confusions in a Common-wealth, p ignorantia simplex, and q affectata; simple ignorance, when as they be so shallow that they cannot; affected ignorance, when as they bee so deepe, that they will not vnderstand what is right and reason. It is a great fault to bee Iustice Shallow. Mica.3.1. O heads of Iacob, and yee princes of the house of Israel, should yee not know iudgement? Psalme 2.10. Be wise, O ye Kings, be learned ye that are Iudges of the land: and r S. Paul accounted himselfe happy, for that he was to plead his cause before King Agrippa, who was an expert man in all the customes and questions among the Iewes. But it is a greater sinne, when Iudges are so deepe, that they bleare their owne iudgement, and put out their owne light, only wise to doe mischiefe, but to doe doe well hauing no knowdge, Ierem.4.22.

p Lombard. sen. 2. dist. 22.
q Thom. de Argentin. in Lombard. vbi sup.
r Acts 26. 2,3.

It may be minores dij, some few petie Iustices and inferiour officers in the Countrie are simply ignorant, as he who presented his Pastor for preaching that Christ was a Iew: but they bee greater ones which are taxed here chiefly for their s malicious ignorance, who directing the Court, may, but will not learne quid facti; can, but will not vnderstand quid iuris: like the Lion, which sleepes with his eyes open; or rather like the Foxe, which hunting after his prey, wakes with his eyes shut; they see not and yet see: they bee so wilfully blinde, that though all the foundations of the earth should be moued and out of course, yet would they walke on still in darkenesse.

s Wilcox in loc.

t Buchanan. para. in loc.

t Lumina cœcitas,
Errorq; mentes obsidet, vt neq;
Compaginem rerum solutam
Iustitia pereunte cernant.

Now fiue things especiallly bleare the sight of such as are called gods,
1. Pride.
2. Partialitie.
3. Petitions.
4. Wrath.
5. Bribes.

These fiue make Iudges ignorant in that they know, and nescient in that they well vnderstand.

For the first, it is Caluins obseruation vpon our text, Cœcutient in suo fulgore, their eyes are dazeled in looking vpon their owne lustre. They doe not remember their beginning, how God u raised them out of the mire to set them with the Princes of his people; nor yet their end, how they shall die like men; but onely dote vpon their present greatnesse; as one said, in imperio nil nisi imperium cogitant. Like Peacocks, alway beholding their feathers, but neuer their feet: and so being in honour, haue x no vnderstanding, but are compared to brute beasts, horse and mule, Psal. 32.10. yea worse than both (if y Esay be Iudge) for an Oxe knoweth his Owner, and an Asse his masters crib; but Princes in their pompe many times forget God their master, yea maker, by whom they z reigne, by whom they a liue, by whom they haue their being.

u Psal. 113.6.
x Psal. 49.20.
y Esay 1. 3.
z Prou. 8. 15.
a Acts 17.28.

To try whether a man be wise (saith b Anthony de Guenara) there is no other need than to put a paire of spurres on his heeles, or a pen in his hand: but in my iudgement, c Bias, and d Pittachus aduised better, that the way certainly to know, whether a man be sufficient, is to put him into some office. For many an one which is accounted a good man in a priuate life, proues not a good Magistrate, when he comes into publique gouernment. As oppression, saith e Ecclesiastes, so contrariwise sometimes, exaltation, makes a wise man mad. Honours change manners, as f Tacitus excellently censured Galba, who seemed more then a priuate man while he liued priuate, Capax imperij nisi imperasset.

b In his Epistles.
c Arist. Ethic. lib. 5. cap. 1.
d Laertius in eius vita.
e Cap. 7. vers. 9.
f Hist. lib. 1. cap. 7.

The second thing that bleares the sight of Iudges is affection and partialitie, when in examining of causes either they turne to the left hand of hatred, or to the right hand of loue; beleeuing probable reasons for a friend, before concluding arguments for an enemie; g hearing the witnesses and counsell of the rich at large, but vntimely curbing g Lessius de Iustit. & Iure li. 2. cap. 32. dubit. 1.

curbing the Lawyers, and haſtily curtalling the poore mans euidence; diſpatching an allie, but deſpighting a ſtranger, by ſpinning out his cauſe from Terme to Terme to his vtter vndoing. [h] God is no reſpecter of perſons, and therefore Magiſtrates againe and againe ſtiled in this Ode gods, as being the deputy lieutenants of God on earth, and as it were fingers of that hand which ruleth all the world, muſt haue no reſpect of perſons in iudgement; as they ſtand in Gods place, ſo they ſhould walke in Gods path, being followers of him as deare children, Epheſ. 5. 1. [i] merciſull as our Father in heauen is merciſull, and [k] holy for that he is holy: Deut. 1. 17. Ye ſhall heare the ſmall as well as the great. Leuit. 19. 15. Thou ſhalt not fauour the perſon of the poore, nor honour the perſon of the mighty, but thou ſhalt iudge thy neighbour vprightly, for it is not good to haue reſpect of any perſon in iudgement, Pro. 24. 23. As in Ieſus all men are [l] all one, ſo (beloued) it is in iuſtice, there is neither Iew nor Gentile, neither bond nor free, neither male nor female; ſo ſoone as the iudge putteth on his robes, he preſently loſeth all his kindred and acquaintance, the defendant is a ſtranger at the barre, the plaintiſe no couſin at the barre; nay the pleader himſelfe may not be reſpected and heard as a kinſman at the barre; for that of all other is a moſt incurable blindneſſe, when a Iudge ſees nothing in any cauſe, but through the ſpectacles of a fauourite.

h Acts 10. 34. Rom. 2. 11.

i Luke 6. 36.

k Leuit. 11. 44.

l Galat. 3. 28.

Thirdly, petitions and letters of great men vſually blinde the tender eyes of Iudges. Ageſilaus (as Plutarch reports) wrote theſe lines in fauour of Nicias vnto ſome Iuſtice or officer of State, Niciam ſi inſons eſt dimitte, ſi ſons, mea cauſa dimitte, vtcunq; omnino dimitte; that is, if Nicias be not guiltie, diſmiſſe him; if guilty, yet for my ſake diſmiſſe him; howſoeuer it be diſmiſſe him. I doe not now remember what ſucceſſe Ageſilaus had in his ſuit, but I haue heard that Sir Roger Manwood, a very renowned Iudge, well knowne and much honoured in this Countie, hauing receiued letters from the Lords in the behalfe of a notorious banckrupt, anſwered vnder his hand ſtoutly, non ſoluentes fugiunt ad potentes, viuat Rex, currat lex. The ſaying of the famous Emperor [m] Traian is very remarkable, who deliuering a ſword to his principall officer, ſaid, Hunc tibi trado gladium, vt pro me vtaris cum iuſta facio, contra me, vero vtaris, ſi iniuſta facio. The Kings of England when they put the ſword of Iuſtice into the Iudges hand, ſpeake the ſame words in effect, and the Iudges alſo ſolemnly proteſt and ſweare, that they will vſe the ſame ſword indifferently, betweene the King and the ſubiect: and they haue Gods expreſſe warrant for the ſame, Deut. 1. 17. Feare not the face of man, for the iudgement is Gods.

m Refert. Melanct. in Pro. 24.

A Magiſtrate is the Miniſter of God, Rom. 13. 4. He therefore that giues iudgement in fauour of great men (as Moſes plainly ſpeakes in [n] Ioſephus) makes them greater than God himſelfe. In the Goſpels hiſtory, we reade, that Pilate condemned Chriſt in whom he could finde [o] no fault at all, only to pleaſe the Prieſts, and to content the [p] people, who cryed, If thou deliuer him then art thou not Cæſars friend, Iohn 19. 12. but the Iewes in this, deceiued Pilate, and Pilate deceiued himſelfe, becauſe whoſoeuer doth adminiſter iuſtice, giues the King meaſure, quoth [q] Ageſilaus; and herein he ſhewes himſelfe a friend to God, a friend to the King, a friend to the ſubiect, a friend to his friend, a friend to his foes, a friend to his owne ſelfe, a friend of all.

n Ioſeph. antiq. lib. 4. cap. 8.

o Iohn 19. 4.

p Mark. 15. 15.

q Plutarch. in Ageſ.

Fourthly, wrath blindeth a Iudges eye, for as [r] S. Baſil ſpeakes, it is a ſhort madneſſe and phrenſie of the ſoule, by which a man is made for the time no man. [ſ] Ira, ſay Donatus, and other Grammarians, is deriued of ire, quod à ſe eat qui iraſcitur & furit, & qui iram deponit ad ſe redire dicitur. If a mad man ſteale goods, or act a murther, he is not a felon in the lawes eye, for that he did theſe things vnwittingly: but immoderate raging anger is a voluntary madneſſe, a deuill as it were coniured vp by thy ſelfe: and it is a true maxime in our Common Law, that no man in his owne plea may diſable himſelfe. It is then an inſufficient excuſe for a Iudge to plead, I did iniuſtice, but it was in my choler: if a furious man in his bed may not by the law diſpoſe of his owne eſtate, why ſhould Iudge Wroth on the bench by the law diſpoſe of other mens inheritance?

r Hom. de ira.

ſ See Step. The. in verb. ira.

A Iudge may, yea muſt (as iuſt occaſion is offered) be angry; for as anger is a whetſtone to fortitude, ſaith [t] Ariſtotle, ſo likewiſe a whetſtone to [u] Iuſtice. But here S. Pauls t Ethic. lib. 3. cap. 8.

u Alienus ab ira, Alienus à iuſtitia. Valent. vti Reuſner. in ſymb.

x Ephes.4.26.

x S. Pauls caueat ought to be remembred, be angry but sinne not; or if it so fall out that you sinne, doe not continue your sinne, let not the Sunne goe downe vpon your wrath: that is y literally, let your anger be so short, that it leaue your minde before the Sunne forsake the earth; if this z fire be raked vp in the embers at night, it will haply breake out to doe much harme in the morning.

y Caluin. Aretius in loc.
z Theop. in loc.

a Lomb. in loc.

Or mystically, let not the Sun, a that is, the light of reason and vnderstanding be darkened in your rage, the spirit of man is the Lords candle, Prou. 20.27. O then take heed that the light which is in you be not put out, and so you lose your selues in your wrath. Or let not the Sunne: that is, b Christ the sunne of righteousnesse, euen the c light of the world, hide his face from you by reason of your inordinate furie, let not your wrath eclipse his light, or the light of d faith in him; if you doe, how great will that darkenesse be, when as ye shall in walking be destitute both of the left eye of reason, and the right eye of religion?

b Aretius in loc.
c Iohn 8.12.
d Primas. in loc.

bribes

Last of all and most of all, bribes make Iudges blinde; so the text plainly, Deut. 16.19. Exod. 23.8. Thou shalt take no gift or reward, for the reward blindes the eyes of the wise, and peruerts the words of the righteous. The e Thebans vsually portraied their Prince blinde, with eares, and the Iudges assisting him in Iustice without hands: blinde, lest he should haue respect of persons: with eares, that he might heare both parties indifferently: the Iudges without hands, lest otherwise they might be corrupt with bribes. f Epaminondas refused great presents sent vnto him, albeit he was poore, saying, If the thing were good, he would doe it without any bribe, because good; If not honest, he would not doe it for all the goods in the world.

e Resner in symbolis.

f Lanquet. Chron. fol. 57.

But Magistrates in our corrupt age haue their houses seated so neere to S. Bribes, that few can say with g Iob, I put on Iustice, and it couered me, my Iudgement was a robe and a crowne: fewer with h Samuel, Whose Oxe haue I taken, or whose Asse haue I taken, or of whose hand haue I receiued a bribe to blinde mine eyes therewith, and I will restore it you. None I feare with i Nerua, who was so good a prince, that he did auow boldly, se nihil fecisse quo minus possit imperio deposito priuatus tuto viuere.

g Iob. 29.14.
h 1. Sam. 12.3.
i Ziphilin. in vita Ner.

* Quemadmodum lances in eam partem vergunt in qua plus ponderis, ita magistratus in eam in qua plus æris. A k Lawyer of eminent note, told the Kings Highnesse at his first entring into London, adulterate gold can gild a rotten post, make Balam a Bishop, and Issachar as worthy of a Iudiciall chaire as Salomon, where he may wickedly sell that iustice which he corruptly bought. Couetousnesse is the root of all euill, 1. Tim. 6.10. Let Preachers therfore said Father l Latymer, strike at the root, let them not stand ticking and toying at the branches, nor at the boughes, for there will new branches spring againe; but put the axe to the root, and then all will downe. When there was a great canuasse in the Romane Senate, whether a very poore man, or an exceeding rich man should be sent Consull into Spaine; m Scipio gaue this sentence, Neuter placet, quod alter nihil habet, alteri nihil satis. Desire of money is for the most part the root of all euill, which either a man doth, or suffereth in himselfe and his posterity: for n they that will be rich fall into temptations and snares, and into many foolish and noysome lusts, which drowne men in perdition and destruction.

k Mr. Martin in his speech to the King.
l Serm. called Vlt. vale to the Court, before King Ed. 6. m Valer. Max.
n 1. Tim. 6.9.

I who neuer had (I thanke my good God and my kinde neighbors) any quarrell in the Law before Iudge Ciuill or Ecclesiasticall, am most vnfit to taxe the faults of mercenarie wits, who o speake good of euill, and euill of good; who make leges (as p Bernard said) lites, who q sell themselues to worke mischiefe, who haue the r ballances of deceit in their hands, and the treasures of wickednesse in their houses: and the truth is I neuer heard so much as any murmuring against the reuerend Iudges and other ministers of Iustice which vsually ride this Circuit: but that which I haue spoken out of booke Cases, euidently shewes in these, that If Magistrates will not vnderstand and learne they walke on still in darkenesse, till all the foundations of the earth are out of course.

o Esay 5.20.
p Lib. 4. de Consid. ad Eug.
q 1. Kin. 21.25.
r Mica. 6.10.

If Constables in their place see sturdie Vagabonds, telluris inutile pondus, the most vnworthy burden that mother earth beares, and yet will not see them: If the Wardens and other officers of the Church, hauing taken a corporall oath to the contrary, see many scandalous abuses in their Parishes, and yet will not see them: If the Iurates of of an incorporation harbour ſchiſmatickes, a generation of vipers, and yet will not vnderſtand them. If Iuſtices in their limits heare bloudy Papiſts arguing for the trumperies of Antichriſt againſt the Goſpel of Chriſt, and yet will haue neither eare to marke them, nor tongue to rebuke them, if they ſmell the very gun-pouder, and yet will ſtop their noſes and take no notice thereof. If Iudges in their circuits who come to reforme ſuch as abuſe their authoritie, heare, know, ſee theſe things, and yet wilfully remaine neſcients and non intelligents: it is plaine, they walke on ſtill in darkeneſſe, and proceed (as [f] Ieremy ſpeakes) from euill to worſe.

[f] Ierem. 9. 3.

I need not tell you that ſinne is termed often in the Scriptures a worke of darkenes in diuers reſpects, as being committed through the [t] darkeneſſe of our vnderſtanding, and that againſt God which is [u] light, and becauſe done for the moſt part in the darke, they that ſleepe, ſleepe in the night, and they that are drunken, are drunken in the night, 1. Theſ. 5. 7. but it is called eſpecially darkeneſſe, as beginning from the deuill which is the [*] prince of darkeneſſe, and ending in hell which is the [x] pit of [y] darkeneſſe. To giue wrong iudgement, is a worke of darkeneſſe; accepting of perſons in iudgement, is a worke of darkeneſſe: If you doe not defend the fatherleſſe, it is a worke of darkeneſſe: If ye doe not ſee that ſuch as are in need haue right, it is a worke of darkeneſſe, to forſake the poore which are out-caſt, and not to ſaue them out of the hand of vngodly men, is a worke of darkeneſſe; but how great darkeneſſe is hit in a Proteſtant Iuſtice to ſupport Poperie, which is the kingdome of darkeneſſe, as being moſt oppoſite to the Goſpell, which is the kingdome of light; how great darkeneſſe is it I ſay, to countenance Popery begun in darkeneſſe, continued in darkeneſſe, ending in darkeneſſe?

[t] Epheſ. 4. 18.
[u] 1. Iohn 2. 9.
[*] Epheſ. 6. 12.
[x] Apoc. 9. 1.
[y] Math. 25. 30.

That the blinde religion of Papiſts is begun in darkeneſſe is proued not onely by Proteſtants out of the Scripture, but acknowledged alſo by themſelues in their owne writings. Wee demonſtrate that the kingdome of Popery was erected firſt ex fumo & fimo ignorantiæ, by the 9. Chapter of the Reuelation, I ſaw a ſtarre which was fallen from heauen vnto the earth, and to him was giuen the key of the bottomleſſe pit, and he opened the bottomleſſe pit, and there aroſe the ſmoake of the pit as the ſmoake of a great furnace, and the Sunne and Ayre were darkened by the ſmoake of the pit. [z] We ſay that the Pope falling from heauenly doctrine to carnall and earthly wiſedome, is that ſtarre, who being Antichriſt is that angel of abaddon and appolyon, a deſtroyer as Chriſt is a Sauiour, and as Chriſt hath in his hand the key to ſhut vp the bottomleſſe pit, Apoc. 20. 1. ſo the Roman Antichriſt hath in his authoritie the key to open the bottomleſſe pit. Now when Boniface the third, and other ſucceeding Popes had open d the pit, a ſmoke did ariſe like the ſmoke of a great furnace, and the Sunne was darkened by that ſmoake: by this ſmoake Diuines vnderſtand falſe Doctrines, and ſuperſtitious errors crept into the Church, and ſo by conſequent obſcuring the light of the Goſpell, and this Antichriſt hath eſpecially done by the darke termes, intricate phrases, idle diſtinctions, and vnprofitable queſtions of his [a] ſchoole Doctors: for the Canoniſts, Summiſts, Quodlibetaries, and Sententiaries, are the foure wheeles of the Popes Chariot, who while they thinke (as a great [b] Iudge ſaid once) by the wings of their light feathered wits to mount aboue the clouds, and the leuell of the vulgar conceit, deſperately fall into a ſea of groſſe fooleries. [c] That which aloes is to the lips, gall to the taſte, a Cocatrice to the eyes, Carion to the noſe, a naked dagger to the heart: that comfort is it to be conuerſant in the baſe barbariſmes and bald dunceries of Popiſh Schoolemen. I meane not to trouble your iudicious eares with impertinent curioſities, I will inſiſt in one point only; the Maſſe doubtles is the chiefe point of their deuotion, and the Canon of the Maſſe, is the chiefe point of the whole Maſſe; and the words of Conſecration, hoc eſt Corpus meum, are the chiefe point of the Canon, the which are tumbled and toſſed by their ſchoole ſo long till they bring all that Chriſt did and ſaid at his laſt Supper vnto nothing: for ſo wee reade in their [d] gloſſe, that hoc doth ſignifie nothing; hoc is materially taken, and ſignifies and ſhewes not any thing when it is pronounced in the Conſecration: [e] for if by this word hoc bee ſhew d the bread, the ſpeech according to their opinion is falſe, becauſe the bread is not changed into the body, till all the words of the Conſecration are vttered: If the body [z] See Fulke, Marlorat, Brightman in loc. & Balæus in vita Ioan 18.

[a] Aretius in Apoc. 19.

[b] Iudge Cooke at the arraignment of the gun-powder Traitors.

[c] Tho. Drant. ſer. at the Spittle, An. 1570.

[d] Conſecrat. diſt. 2. § timorem. Gloſſa ibid.

[e] Ant. de Adamo anat. of the Maſſe, part. 2. pag. 40.

body be ſhewed, it would follow that the body ſhould be there before the words are ſpoken, and the conſecration made: their ſmoake doth obſcure the light of Chriſts inſtitution ſo fouly, that they make that a ſacrifice which is a Sacrament, and that not without foure miracles, as ſome Scoolemen account, and as other, not without nine miracles.

But why labour I to proue that which themſelues acknowledge? for doe they not affirme that ignorance is the mother of deuotion? a paradox, contrary to the Scriptures, and contrary to the Fathers, and contrary to common experience; contrary to the Scriptures, inciting all kinds of people to knowledge. [f] S. Peter calleth all Chriſtians a royall Prieſthood, and Prieſts ought to be learned. [g] S. Iohn ſaith out of the holy Prophet, that Chriſtians are dociles Dei, the ſchollers of God. [h] S. Paul aduiſeth vs alſo not to be children in vnderſtanding. Contrary to the Fathers, [i] Origen ſaid, Dæmonibus eſt ſuper omnia genera tormentorum, it is a torment to the deuils aboue the reſt of their torments to ſee any delight in the law of the Lord, for they poſſeſſe their ſoules who liue in ignorance: the [k] ſame Father alway wiſhed that he could powre all his knowledge into all kind of men. Auguſtine in his 105. Epiſtle writeth, Ignorance in thoſe who will not vnderſtand, is without all queſtion a ſinne; and in thoſe who cannot vnderſtand, a puniſhment of ſinne. Gregory the Great proteſteth as much in his Paſtoral part. 1. cap. 1. Qui ea quæ ſunt Domini neſciunt, à Domino neſciuntur: and to proue this aſſertion, he doth alledge the words of [l] S. Paul, he that is ignorant, let him be ignorant ſtil, [m] that is, let him who doth affect ignorance, periſh in his ignorance.

Laſtly, this opinion is demonſtrated in the Papiſts owne perſons and example to be falſe; for if ignorance be the mother of deuotion, how commeth it to paſſe that they be no more deuout, being ſo great ignorants? haply knowledge may hinder deuotion in their Cardinals, and Prelates, and Ieſuits: as [n] Feſtus ſaid, much learning had made Paul madde; ſo peraduenture much learning may make them bad: and therefore let that by-word run for currant, [o] Of all the Catholikes the Prieſts are the worſt, and the lewdeſt Prieſts are preferred to bee Cardinals, and the baddeſt among the Cardinals is choſen Pope: but the common people for any light of life that they ſee, may become ſo deuout as the Friars of [p] S. Ignorance; yet they which haue ſeene the manners of Italie, complaine that the whole Countrey doth ouerflow with impudent wickedneſſe, and outragious blaſphemie, not to be named among Chriſtians.

And as the kingdome of Popery begins in darkeneſſe, ſo likewiſe is it continued and maintained by darkeneſſe, for the Pope takes from the common peoples vſe the Bible which is the way to Chriſt, and ſo conſequently Chriſt himſelfe which is the way to heauen: and becauſe the Fathers haue beene great lights of the Church, they corrupt their writings, and make them (as a iudicious [q] Prelate ſaid) their owne children, nay they geld the tracts of their owne Schoolemen, Hiſtoriographers, and Poets, in euery place, where any glimpſe of the Goſpell appeared; and which is moſt odious and baſe, they will not (as I haue heard and [r] read) ſuffer the bookes of their greateſt Clerkes, Bellarmine and Gregorius de Valentia, to be ſold in any ſhop ordinarily thorow Italy, becauſe the poſitions and allegations of Proteſtant are ſet downe by them: a ſtrange cowardlineſſe not daring to ſee their enemies ſword drawne; all their iugling is vnder the boord, he that doth euill hateth the light, neither commeth he to the light, leſt his deeds ſhould be reproued, Iohn 3. 20.

Laſtly, the kingdome of Poperie doth end in darkeneſſe, for how can a Papiſt, if he ſo die, ſee the way to life, who beleeueth he knowes not what, and prayeth hee knowes not what, & feares he knowes not what, & worſhippeth he knowes not what, whoſe whole religion is in the hands of feoffers; for is not this (I pray) the pith of all Popery, the people muſt beleeue as the Prieſt, and the Prieſt as the Pope, and the Pope as he liſt; although he for his morals be ſo wicked, as Pope [ſ] Silueſter the ſecond, who for the Popedome gaue himſelfe to the deuill; and for his intellectuals, ſuch an arrant dunce, as Pope [t] Paul the ſecond, who pronounced them heretikes, which once ſhould mention either in earneſt or in ieſt the word Academia. The Lay-man among the Papiſts is Ignoramus iunior, and the Clergie-man is Ignoramus ſenior, and

f 1. Pet. 2. 5.
g Iohn 6. 45.
h 1. Cor. 14. 20.
i Hom. 27. in Num.
k Apud Drant vbi ſup.
l 1. Cor. 14. 38.
m Aretius. Marlorat.
n Act. 26. 24.
o Relat. of Religion. ſect. 36.
p Luther in Coloq. de Monac. q B. Iewel.
r Relat. of Religion. § 35.
ſ Platina in eius vita.
t Plat. & Baleus in eius vita.

and ſo the wilfully blinde leading the wofully blinde, both if they walke on ſtill in darkeneſſe fall into the ditch.

u Procopius reports, that neere to the pole, where the nights endure many moneths long, the inhabitants in the end of ſuch a night, when the Sunne vſeth to render himſelfe to their view, get vp their higheſt mountaines, ſtriuing to haue the firſt ſight of that moſt deſired creature, and ſo no ſooner doe they eſpie it, but they decke themſelues in their beſt apparell, and with mutuall embraces and ioy congratulate, ſaying, Behold the Sunne, the Sunne appeareth. And x Pimenta writes that the Barbarians of Ciandegri in the Eaſt Indies, ſeeing the Sunne eclipſed anno 1600. did faſt and weepe all the day, crying out, O nos miſeros quoniam Draco deuorauit ſolem. My deare brethren and bowels in the Lord, The Sunne of righteouſneſſe hath appeared in our Engliſh horizon a great while, (his bleſſed name be praiſed therefore) we haue long enioyed the glorious light of his Goſpell, it is the y day which the Lord hath made, let vs in deſpight of ſpirituall Egypt and Babel reioyce and be glad in it. But there be certaine Prognoſticators in the world, who talke much of ſtrange coniunctions in heauen among the higher powers and planets, and vpon theſe coniunctions of a dangerous eclipſe, as if the z red Dragon had already deuoured our Sunne. Wherein I verily beleeue, they ſhew themſelues as great wizards, as the country lad, who watering his Aſſe when the Moone was going vnder a cloud, preſently conceiued that his beaſt had drunken vp the Moone. Whatſoeuer England feares, or Rome hopes, let euery good ſubiect and true Chriſtian in his place, while it is a day, follow the light, and in loyall obedience to ſoueraigne authoritie, ſo much as he can, oppoſe the workes of darkeneſſe, vnderſtanding and ſeeking the things appertaining to his peace, leſt otherwiſe that follow which here followeth in our text to bee conſidered, all the foundations of the earth are out of courſe.

By this clauſe ſome b Diuines vnderſtand the diſſolution and end of all things at the laſt day, when as the powers of c heauen ſhall be ſhaken, and the elements ſhall melt with heat, and the earth with the workes that are therein ſhall be burnt vp, as S. Peter 2 Epiſt. cap. 3. verſ. 10.

d Other haue conſtrued this of earth-quakes, inundations, raging fires, and of warre, famine, peſtilence, which afflict the dwellers vpon earth for iniuſtice. For if all puniſhment be for ſinne, and if all ſinne be riſe becauſe Gods lawes are not executed, it is plaine, that where Iudges will not vnderſtand, but walke on ſtill in darknes, there all the foundations of the Common-wealth are out of courſe.

e Other by foundations vnderſtand the Princes and Iudges themſelues, as bearing vp, Atlas-like, the whole frame of the kingdome, according to that in the 6 of Mica. verſe 2. Heare O ye mountaines the Lords quarrell, and ye mightie foundations of the earth: f that is, ye Rulers, vpon whoſe iudgement and wiſedome the people build their eſtates, and relie themſelues as vpon a ſure foundation. So Ioſeph a man of g vnderſtanding and wiſedome, being made h Lord of Pharaohs houſe, and ruler of all his ſubſtance, was a piller to ſupport the kingdome of Egypt: ſo i Naaman, a mightie man and valiant, was a piller to ſupport the kingdome of Syria: ſo Fabius maximus, aptly ſtiled by k Plutarch, the buckler of his countrey, was a piller to ſupport the Romane Empire. The meaning then is plaine, l they who ſhould eſtabliſh other are themſelues vnſetled.

m Other expound it thus: I will ouerthrow thoſe wicked Iudges, who will not vnderſtand, becauſe they place their foundation not as they ſhould in heauen but on earth, they build their houſe vpon n ſand, and not vpon Chriſt, which is the o rocke.

But p moſt Interpreters accord in this expoſition: All fundamentall lawes, all laudable cuſtomes, all good orders (vpon which humane ſocieties are built, as vpon certaine baſes) are violated, diſturbed, and come to ruine by corrupt iudgement and iniuſtice. Nay through vnrighteous dealing and wrongs, and riches gotten by deceit, the kingdome is tranſlated from one people to another, Eccleſ. 19. 8.

Iudges then are right, q Athenians: Si boni, optimi; ſi mali, peſſimi: like to r Ieremies figs, the good figs very good, and the naughty figs exceeding naughtie. Where they u Arch. of Spalat. ſer. on Rom. 12. 13. pag. 13.

x Ep. ad Claud. Aqua-viuam de ſtatu rei Chriſt. apud indos Orientales.

y Pſal. 118. 24.

z Apoc. 12. 3.

a Iohn 9. 4.

b Placidus Parmen. in loc.

c Luke 21. 26.

d Agel. in loc.

e Tileman in loc. Idem refert Genebrardus.

f Rupert. Ribera. Franc. à Meſ. ſana.

g Gen. 41. 39.

h Pſal. 105. 21.

i 1 King. 5. 1.

k In vita Marcelli.

l Em. Sa. in loc.

m Hierom.

n Math 7. 26.

o 1 Cor 10. 4.

p Baſil. Bucer. Genebrard. in loc.

q Plutarch.

r Jerem. 24. 3.

they be good, all the foundations of the State ſtand ſo faſt, as the [f] Mount Sion: where they be corrupt, all things come to nought and vtter ruine. Let vs pray then, I beſeech you, for [g] Kings, and for all that are in authoritie, that we may lead vnder them a quiet and a peaceable life in all godlineſſe and honeſtie. Magiſtrates are the [h] miniſters of God for our good, namely, for our temporall good, and for our ſpirituall good, and ſo by conſequent for our eternall good: Our temporall good conſiſts in a quiet and a peaceable life, our ſpirituall good in godlineſſe and honeſtie. Magiſtrates are called to be Iuſtices of the peace for our temporall good, and defenders of the faith for our ſpirituall good, and ſo they be miniſters and inſtruments of God for our eternall good. For the Goſpell is [x] the power of God vnto ſaluation, in the holy writ termed often the kingdome of heauen, as being the way to the kingdome of heauen.

Ariſe then, O God, and let vngodly Iudges know that they be but [y] men, and that they muſt one day die like men, and that [z] not after an ordinarie manner, but fall like one of the Princes, as Nebuchadnezzar fell, Eſay 14. but ariſe Lord to ſtand in the congregation of good Princes, aſſiſting them alway with thy might and mercy, that after we haue led vnder them here the ciuill life of peace, and the ſpirituall life of grace, we may liue with thee which art the King of Kings, in that eternall life of glory, where in thy preſence is fulneſſe of ioyes, and pleaſures at thy right hand for euermore. Amen.

Preached at Maydſtone Aſſiſes, Iuly 16. 1618.

[f] Pſal. 125.1.

[g] 1. Tim. 2.2.

[h] Rom. 13.4.

[x] Rom. 1.16.

[y] Pſal. 9.20.

[z] Tremel. in Ier.

The

The royall Priesthood.

I. PETER. 2. 5.

Yee are an holy Priesthood to offer vp spirituall sacrifices acceptable to God by Iesus Christ.

IN this excellent Scripture, two points are to bee discussed especially.

1. Who be Priests, Yee, that is, all yee that are new-borne babes in Christ, and desire the sincere milke of the word to grow thereby, verse 2.

2. How they bee Priests, and that is in offering spirituall sacrifice acceptable to God by Iesus Christ.

Concerning the first, all true Christians, hauing laid aside malicionsnesse, guile, dissimulation, enuy, euill-speaking, and as new-borne babes, employing themselues wholly to serue God, offring vp all their actions as an acceptable sacrifice to him, are Priests, and all are Priests [a] alike, because now there is none other sacrificing Priesthood left, but the eternall Priesthood of Christ, and the spirituall Priesthood of all his Saints. This honour of Christians is foretold by the Prophet [b] Esay, Yee shall be named the Priests of the Lord, and men shall say to you, ministers of our God. And in [c] another place, I wil take of them for Priests and Leuites, saith the Lord. [d] As if hee should say, whereas vnder the law none were Gods people but the [e] Iewes, and no Iewes Priests vnto God, but onely the sonnes of [f] Aaron, vnder Christ all men are receiued indifferently; the Gentiles heretofore reiected as vncleane, [g] not admitted once to enter into the Temple, are now not onely brought into that holy place, but also made Priests of the most high God. So S. Iohn in his [h] Reuelation expressly, Kings and Priests vnto God: not onely spirituall houses of God, or liuely stones of his temple, but a Priesthood also, and that an holy Priesthood.

1. This abundantly confutes the [i] Popes Clergie, who terme themselues onely the holy Priesthood, and all the rest of Gods people the prophane Laitie. These Popelings are not the successors of Saint Peter in his doctrine, nor yet in his doings. For as he taught here the contrary, so likewise Acts 10. hee wrought the contrarie, saying vnto Cornelius, God shewed me, that I should not call any man common or vncleane.

2. This doctrine crosseth a base conceit the world hath of the word Priest. Our blessed Sauiour himselfe was a [k] Priest, and a Priest for euer; and all that will be saued must also turne Priests, and become brethren of the Spiritualitie, for the whole number of Gods elect is nothing else but a kindome of Priests.

a Dr. Fulke in Apoc. 1. 6.
b Esay 61. 6.
c Esay 66. 21.
d Caluin. in loc.
e Deut 7. 6.
f Exod. 28. 1.
g Acts 21. 28.
h Cap. 1. 6. & 5. 10.
i Marlorat. in loc.
k Psal. 110. 4.

3. This epithite holy ioyned to Priesthood, teacheth all men in holy orders to be studious of good workes, that their holy cariage may be correspondent to their holy calling. If all Christians ought to be pious, how much more Preachers of the word, which as Pastors, ought to be patternes in pureneſſe, 1. Tim. 4. 12. About the skirts of Aarons robe there were set, and that by Gods appointment, l a bell and a pomegranet, a bell and a pomegranet, m hereby signifying mystically, that the pious deeds of a Diuine, should alwayes answer to his pure doctrine; by the bell of gold, vnderstanding the sound of his sweet preaching; by the pomegranet, the soundneſſe, and fruit of his good liuing. If gold rust, what will iron doe? If the shepherd be foule, no wonder if the sheepe bee scabbie. Let vs therefore continue that prayer in our Liturgie, Lord endue thy Ministers with righteousneſſe, and so make thy chosen people ioyfull.

l Exod. 39. 26.

4. This ouerthrowes a wicked opinion in the world, that holineſſe onely belongs to the Clergie. Marshall Biron said, that he would not die like a Priest: and so the gallants of our age say, that they will not liue like Priests. n O yee sonnes of men, how long will yee blaspheme Gods honour, taking such pleasure in vanities, and seeking after leasings? Is not your calling holy? called to bee Saints, Rom. 1. 7. and ought not your conuersation also to be holy? seeing this is the will of God, euen your sanctification, 1. Thes. 4. 3. Is not o one day spent in the courts of the Lord, better than a thousand in the tents of vngodlineſſe? better in respect of profit, because p godlineſſe is great gaine, hauing the q promise both of the life present, and of the life to come: better in respect of pleasure, because the ioyes of worldlings are bitter sweets, r euen in laughing the heart is sorrowfull, and the end of such mirth is heauineſſe. But the ioyes of good men are sound and sure ioyes of the soule, ioyes in the Holy Ghost, a continuall feast, a comfort that none can take away: better in respect of honour, for whereas earthly Princes can make their chiefe fauorite but a Duke, Christ our Lord, which is the Lord of s glory, maketh his seruants Kings and Priests vnto God, which are the two most eminent and honourable callings vpon earth.

n Psal. 4. 2.
o Psal. 84. 10.
p 1. Tim. 6. 6.
q 1. Tim. 4. 8.
r Prou. 14. 13.
s 1. Cor. 2. 8.

But how Christians are Priests, is now to bee discussed in the second place, because some Schismatickes haue factiously gathered from hence, that all Gods people may preach the word, administer the Sacraments, and pel-mel execute the Ministers office without any controll. A very scandalous and erroneous obseruation.

For t first (as the Geneua margine directs) our text is taken out of Exod. 19. 6. where Moses doth ascribe that vnto the Iewes, which S. Peter here to Christians: but among Gods people the Iewes, all were not Priests, but onely the Tribe of Leui, and so consequently not all men among Christians are Preachers, but onely such as are lawfully called vnto that holy function.

t See Bellar. li. de sacrament is in genere, cap. 24.

2. Christians are Priests as they are Kings, for Saint Peter, and Saint John ioyne both these together. But all Christians are not Kings to gouerne the ciuill affaires of the State, no more are they Priests to performe ecclesiasticall offices of the Church. u Brightman (though exceeding x factious in many glosses) obserued this one thing worthily, that the Spirit, Reuel. 1. 6. calleth vs cautelously Kings, and Priests vnto God; he said not Kings and Priests vnto the world, but vnto God only, lest otherwise we might abuse this honour, to disturbe ciuill offices, and confound ecclesiasticall orders. A good Christian is a King, because God reigneth in him, and because by Gods especiall grace, he suffers not sinne to y reigne in his members. In like manner, a good Christian is a Priest, as offering vp all his actions, and all his passions, an acceptable sacrifice to God. z But the spirituall kingdome, and priesthood of Gods children, take away neither earthly kingdomes of the world, nor ecclesiasticall eldership of the Church.

u In Apoc. 1. 6.
x See respon. Elien. ad apolog. Bellarm. cap. 9. pag. 221.
y Rom. 6. 12.
z Dr. Fulke in Apocalyp. 1. 6. Ita Pet. Mart. loc. com. part. 4. cap. 1. sec. 17.

We must therefore distinguish here necessarily: there be a sacrificing Priests, and there be preaching Priests. All Christians are sacrificing Priests, but all Christians are not preaching Priests. For 1. the word vsed by S. Peter, and S. John is ἱερεῖς, and not ἀρχιερεῖς. Now the word b ἱερεῖς, that is, sacrificers, is neuer applyed in the New Testament vnto any Clericall Order, and Ecclesiasticall Function of men.

a Dr. Fulke in loc.
b Dr. Fulke in Apoc. 1. 6. Idem Pet. Mart. loc. com. part. 4. cap. 12. sect 15.

They

They be called [c] Episcopi, [d] Ministri, [e] Præpositi, [f] Pastores, Doctores, that is, Ouerseers, Ministers, Gouernours, Teachers, and most commonly Presbyteri, that is, Elders; and a Preacher of the Gospell is termed in English a Priest, not of the word sacrificulus, or sacerdos, but (as our [g] Diuines haue well obserued) of the word Presbyter; for a [h] Presbyter, according to the proper meaning of the New Testament, is hee to whom our Sauiour Christ hath communicated the power of spirituall procreation. For what are they that embrace the Gospell but sonnes of God? And what are Churches but his families? ergo, what better title could there be giuen to the Preachers of the word (by whose ministerie men are made the children of God, and members of his Church) than the reuerend name of Presbyters, or fatherly guides?

2. S. Peter in this text thus expoundeth himselfe, Ye are an holy Priesthood, not in administring the Sacraments, or in vttering spirituall doctrine, but in offering spirituall sacrifices.

3. We say, [i] that to bee Christians is a generall calling, but to bee set apart for the preaching of the Gospell, is a particular calling: and as S. Paul said of the Iewish priesthood, No man ought to take this honour vnto himselfe, but he that is called of God, Hebr. 5. 4. that is, ordained according to Gods appointment. It is not lawfull (as [k] our Church determineth) for any man to take vpon him the office of publike preaching, or ministring the Sacraments in the congregation, vnlesse he be lawfully called or sent to execute the same. False Prophets (as [l] our Sauiour said) come vnto you, [m] that is, being neither sent of God, and orderly called of men: but they runne of their owne heads alway without commission from heauen, and sometime without ordination on earth. I haue not sent these Prophets, saith the Lord, yet they runne: I haue not spoken vnto them, and yet they propheſied, Ierem. 23. 21.

Haply some will obiect, God in old time called his Prophets and Apostles immediatly, furnishing them also with gifts extraordinarie. But how shall a man in our time know whether hee be called of God or no? To this obiection answer may be, that Christians Vniuersities, and Schooles of learning are the nurseries of the Church, [n] they bee the honourable women attending the Queene, mentioned in Psalm. 45. verse. 10. Whosoeuer then is bred in the Schooles of the Prophets, and brought vp in the nurseries of the Apostles, vntill his [o] lips preserue knowledge, and his tongue be well able to [p] minister a word in due season; albeit hee haue no calling from God extraordinarily, yet he may perswade his conscience that he is διδακτικος, apt to teach, 1. Tim. 3. 2.

Yea, but many learned men instantly turne Priests, and propheſie without any farther warrant: No, sufficiencie of good learning is one, but not the onely note of our inward calling: for the man of God, as he must be for his doctrine a Pastor; so for his conuersation an [q] example. May then euery sufficient scholler of a commendable life, clime the Pulpit and preach the word? No, for as there is an inward calling from God, so likewise an outward calling by men, as Timothie was ordered by laying on of hands, 1. Tim. 4. 14. and Saint Paul bid [r] Titus ordaine Bishops in euery Citie; and the blessed Apostles ordered Elders in euery Church, Acts 14. 23. And those wee may iudge [s] lawfully called and sent, which are chosen to this worke by such as haue publike authoritie giuen vnto them in the congregation, to call and send labourers into the Lords vineyard; as the Bishops of Ephesus ordered by men, are said expresly to bee placed in that high calling by the blessed Spirit. Acts 20. 28. Take heed to your selues, and to the whole flocke, whereof the Holy Ghost hath made you ouer-seers, As my Father sent mee, so send I you, (saith our blessed Sauiour to his Apostles) Iohn 20. 21. [t] That is to say, as the Father hath giuen mee power to send you; so I giue you power to send other, and to giue them likewise the same missiue power which I giue vnto you, and my Father hath giuen to me. Whosoeuer then intrudes himselfe into the Ministers office, without a calling according to Gods ordinance, commits [u] Uzzaes fault, and that which is worse, runnes into Cores faction, obiecting to Moses and Aaron, [x] Ye take to much vpon you, seeing all the congregation is holy, and the Lord is in them, wherefore

c Acts 2. 28.
d 1. Cor. 4. 1.
e Heb. 12. 7.
f Ephes. 4. 11.
g See Dr. Whitgift de defence of his answer to the admonition, pag. 721.
h Hooker eccles. polit. lib. 5. sect. 78. i See Perkins Treatise of Callings.
k Confess. art. 23.
l Math. 7. 15.
m Musculus in loc.
n Tilman. in Psalm. 45.
o Malac. 2. 7.
p Esay 50. 4.
q 1. Tim. 4. 12.
r Tit. 1. 5.
s Confes. Anglican. art. 23.
t Marcus Antonius de Dom. treatise of rocks of Christian shipwracke, pag. 18. u 2 Sam. 6. 6.
x Num. 16. 3.

then extoll ye your selues aboue the multitude. Let the sacrilegious schismatickes take heed, God is not mocked, euery true Christian is a sacrificing Priest, but no Christian ought to make himselfe a preaching Priest, vnlesse he be lawfully called to that high, and holy function.

Now concerning such as are sacrificing Priests, it is plaine that there bee [y] two kindes of sacrifices, to wit, a propitiatorie sacrifice, and a gratulatorie sacrifice. There be two kindes of propitiatorie sacrifices, one typicall, as all the sacrifices of the Aaronicall Priesthood: another reall, as that of Christ vpon the Crosse. The sacrifices of Aaron vnder the Law were shadowes of good things to come, Heb 10.1. and therefore now they bee ceased; and Christs offering vp of himselfe once for all is so perfect, that it needes not to bee repeated againe. For the Masse (which is either a continuation, or a reiteration of Christs oblation) is a most iniurious enemie to the Priesthood of Christ, as if he were not a Priest for [z] euer, and his sacrifice not meriting [a] eternall redemption for vs. If then Aarons sacrifices in figure haue had long since their end, and Christ offering once for all in fact vpon the altar of his Crosse, continue for euer without end, it cannot bee said properly that Christians offer any sacrifice propitiatorie to God, either for themselues or for other, but on the contrarie, that they receiue this sacrifice by faith, as the blessed Apostle directly, Wee are freely iustified and reconciled vnto God by faith in Christs bloud, Rom. 3.25

It remaines therefore, that Christians are sacrificers as offering gratulatory sacrifices onely; so they be Priests

In respect of their { Vnction and ordination, made an holy priesthood by Iesus Christ. / Function and ministration, offering vp spirituall sacrifices vnto God.

It is Christ that appointeth, and anointeth vs Priests vnto God: so S. Iohn, Apoc. 1.5. Christ Iesus who loued vs and washed vs from our sinnes, hath made vs Kings and Priests. And so S. Peter in our present text, for the clause, by Iesus Christ, hath a reference to [b] euery title which is here giuen vnto Christians, as ye are liuely stones by Iesus Christ, a spirituall house by Iesus Christ, an holy Priesthood by Iesus Christ.

It was [c] Aerius heresie, that a Bishop is not greater than a Priest; and it is a schismaticall opinion, in the iudgement of our Church, to say, that one Priest may consecrate another. [d] Ordination of Ministers is a dutie properly belonging to Bishops, as being superiour to Presbyters in iurisdiction and order: and therefore that Christians might orderly be made Priests, it pleased Christ Iesus himselfe, which is [e] high Priest, and chiefe [f] Bishop of our soules, to consecrate vs vnto Gods holy seruice. We make not one another, but he maketh vs all an holy Priesthood. If any question our orders and authoritie, we can here produce the great Lord Archbishops letters and licence recorded in his owne register.

Now (beloued) as [g] S. Paul exhorts, let euery man continue in the same calling wherein he was called, [h] let him that is called to teach, attend his teaching, and he that exhorteth attend his exhortation, and he that is called to the ministerie, wait on his ministerie, and so let him which is a Priest alway serue God at his Altar. In Priesthood (as the Schoole teacheth vs) there remaineth an indeleble character: and (as [i] other Diuines well obserue) they which haue receiued this power, may not thinke to put it off and on like a cloake, as the weather serueth, and so to take, reiect, and resume it as often as they list, but let them know which put their hands to this plow, that once consecrated to God, they are made his peculiar inheritance for euer, once Priests and for euer Priests. As [k] Oecumenius said, Our whole life should be nothing else but a continuall Sermon. And as [l] Melancthon, A perpetuall eucharist, and gratulatorie sacrifice. For that is our ministerie, to present, and offer vnto God spirituall sacrifice.

Wherein obserue three points especially.

1. What we must offer, spirituall sacrifice.

2. To y See Melanct. tom. 2. pag. 95. & tom. 4. pag. 514. & in Psal. 116.

z Psal. 110.4.

a Heb. 9.12.

b See Aquin. & Marlorat. in loc.

c Augustin. lib. de hæres. cap. 53. & Epiphanius heres. 75.

d See Whitgift defence of his answer to the admonition, pag. 196. 358, & Bellarm lib. de Clericis, cap. 14.

e Hebr. 5.10.

f 1. Pet 2.25.

g 1. Cor. 7.20.

h Rom. 12.7.

i Hooker eccles. polit. lib. 5 sect. 77.

k Apud Bellar. de sacramentis in genere, lib. 1. cap 25.

l In Psal. 116.

2. To whom, to God.
3. Through whom, by Iesus Christ.

Concerning the first, there be three kinds of gratulatorie sacrifices, according to the three sorts of goods, wherewith Almightie God hath endued vs,

To wit, of the { World. / Minde. / Bodie.

1. Wee must honour God with our [m] riches, in maintaining his Ministers, of whom he saith he that receiueth you receiueth me, Math. 10. 40. and in doing good to the rest of his members, of whom hee saith, Insomuch as yee haue done this to the least of my brethren, ye haue done it vnto me, Math. 25. 40. Our blessed Lord confesseth openly, that hee will haue [n] mercy not sacrifice, delighting in the one more than in the other; more for the duties, more for the durance, more both in respect of the thing, and in respect of the time. For whereas legall sacrifices haue now their end; spirituall sacrifices of Christians are to continue to the worlds end. Wee shall [o] alway haue the poore with vs, and so consequently wee shall haue iust occasion of exercising our Almes, and with such sacrifices God is pleased, Hebr. 13.16.

2. We must offer vnto God the goods of our minde by deuotion, and contrition: Psalm. 51. 17. The sacrifice of God is a troubled spirit, a broken and a contrite heart, O God, shalt thou not despise. The Prophet said in the words immediately going before, thou desirest no sacrifice: whereupon [p] Augustine, God will haue no sacrifice, yet he will haue sacrifice: Non vult sacrificium trucidati pecoris, sed vult sacrificium contriti pectoris; He cares not for the dead flesh of vnreasonable beasts, but he requires the quicke and liuing sacrifice of reasonable men.

3. We must offer vnto God the goods of our bodie, which is done two wayes:

1. Patiendo, by suffering for him.

2. Faciendo, by doing that which is acceptable to him. I beseech you (quoth [q] Paul) by the mercies of God, that yee giue your bodies, a liuing sacrifice, holy, pleasing vnto God, making your members not as weapons of vnrighteousnesse vnto sinne, but as the weapons of righteousnesse vnto God, Rom. 6. 13. Our bodies are the temples of God, consecrated to his honour, and therefore wee may not abuse them and prophane them, in making them either [r] dens of theeues, or [s] habitations of deuils, or cages of vncleane birds, or holds of foule spirits: as Christ gaue himselfe for vs, so wee must offer vp vnto him our selues, and soules, and bodies, all that is within vs, and without vs, and that perpetually, that we may liue to him who died for vs.

The word spirituall is emphaticall in our text, for whereas the Iewish offerings were carnall, our sacrifices of prayer and thankesgiuing are spirituall, and that respectu termini à quo, as proceeding from Gods Spirit; and respectu termini ad quem, as edifying and comforting our spirits. Or Christian oblations are called spirituall, as being the workes of the [t] spirituall and inner man: for (as [u] one well obserued) the soule of obedience which is the obedience of the soule, takes place of that body of obedience, which is performed by the bodie. We must offer sacrifice, but spirituall; and that (as now followes to be considered) vnto God.

He that giues an almes to the poore must offer it vnto God, as [x] one pithily, tanquam homo non tanquam homini, because the poore mans boxe is Christs hand. So he that offers the sacrifice of prayer and praise, must offer not vnto the world to be commended of men, but vnto God, who seeing in secret will [y] openly reward him; and he that offers the sacrifice of [z] righteousnesse, must offer vnto God, and not vnto himselfe, that hee may glorifie his Father in heauen, and renounce his owne proper inherent righteousnesse. And he that giues his body to be burnt, must offer vnto God, and not to vaine-glory: for it is not the crosse but the cause that maketh a Martyr. In a word, whatsoeuer a man either doth, or saith, or suffereth, hee must offer it vnto God, that he whogiueth all may be glorified in all.

m Prou. 3. 9.
n Matth. 9. 13.
o Iohn 12. 8.
p De Ciuit. Dei, lib. 10. cap. 5.
q Rom. 12. 1.
r Math. 21. 13.
s Apoc. 18. 2.
t Aquin. in loc.
u Purchas in his pilgrimage pag. 18.
x Gellius lib. 9. cap. 2.
y Math. 6, 6.
z Psal. 45.

Away then with oblations vnto the pictures of Christ, away with offerings vnto the shrines of Saints, away with all idolatrous adoration of images, the which as being the workes of our owne hands, and inuentions of our owne heads, are the sacrifices of [a] fooles, and in no sort become those which as new borne babes in Christ desire the sincere milke of the word to grow thereby. The seruices of the royall Priesthood are spirituall sacrifices offered only to God, not by the meanes of any Saint, but by the sole mediation of Christ Iesus, who saith in his [b] Gospell, and after a sort sweareth (as [c] Augustine is bold to speake) verily, verily, whatsoeuer yee shall aske the Father in my name hee will giue it you. With faith in him our best actions are no better than [d] sinne: but if our workes be dyed in his bloud, and our sacrifices laid vpon his Altar, then as S. Peter teacheth here, they will be pleasing and acceptable vnto God.

a Ecclesiastes 4. 17.

b Iohn 16.23.

c Tract. 41. in Ioan.

d *Rom.*14.23.

SALVE

SALVE FOR A SICKE SOVLE.

I. Tim. I. 15.

This is a true saying, and by all meanes worthy to be receiued, that Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners, of which I am chiefe.

Lectvre I.

ALL our happinesse consisteth in the knowledge of God, and God maketh himselfe especially knowne in his word, and the summarie pith of all his word is the Gospell, and the very centre of all the Gospell is this one sweet sentence, Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners. The which our Apostle doth here first amplifie, calling it a true saying and a worthy: then apply, of whom I am chiefe. So that in the whole text three points are principally remarkable.

1. A preface, This is a true saying, and by all meanes worthy to be receiued.
2. A proposition, Christ Iesus came into the world to saue sinners.
3. An assumption, or application, of whom I am chiefe.

The preface is double, commending vnto our consideration and care, first the soundnesse of this saying, it is true: secondly, the sweetnesse of this saying, it is worthy to be reiued by all meanes, or (as our new translation readeth) it is worthy of all acceptation. Nothing is deliuered more truely, nothing embraced more comfortably, in it selfe it is faithfull, vnto vs it is fruitfull, [a] Euery true saying is not acceptable, so [b] S. Paul insinuates vnto the Galatians, Am I therefore become your enemie, because I tell you the truth? but these words are not only faithfull and true, as [c] S. Iohn auowed of his Apocalips: but also good words and comfortable words, as [d] Zechariah speakes of his prophecie: [e] pleasing to the vnderstanding, as being a true saying; and pleasing to the will, as being an acceptable saying.

a Aquin. in loc.
b Galat. 4. 16.
c Apoc. 22. 6.
d Zech. 1. 13.
e Caiet. in loc.

For the first, it is assuredly true, because Truth it selfe said it, Mat. 9. 13. Mark. 2: 17. I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. This often was his word, and this alway was his worke. For as [f] Ambrose pithily, Pro me, & in me doluit, qui pro se nihil habuit quod doleret. He cryed in the cradle, not for himselfe, but for vs: he wept a great many times in his life, not for himselfe, but for vs: hee did endure many bitter words, and more bitter wounds at his death, not for himselfe, but for vs. In a word, all that he did, all that he said, all that he suffered, all his obedience both actiue and passiue, tended only [g] to seeke and to saue that which was lost: he was wounded wounded for our tranſgreſſions, and broken for our iniquities, and by his ſtripes are we healed, Eſay 53.5. If the ſacrifices of the Law be true, if the Sacraments of the Goſpell be true, if the predictions of the holy Prophets be true, if the preachings of the bleſſed Apoſtles be true, if Chriſt himſelfe, yea God himſelfe, bee true; then vndoubtedly this ſaying is true, that Ieſus Chriſt came into the world to ſaue ſinners.

f De fide ad Grat. li. 2. ca. 3.
g Luke 19. 10.

As it is a ſure ſaying in it ſelfe, ſo worthy to be receiued of vs, and that in reſpect of it owne ſelfe as [h] being truth; and in reſpect of our ſelues, as concerning that which aboue all other things concerneth vs moſt, euen the ſauing of our ſoules. It is a concluſion of antiquitie, that the death of Chriſt is in it ſelfe ſufficient to redeeme the ſinnes of the whole world, yea of as many worlds as there be men in the world: but it is not efficient vnto any, but only to ſuch as by faith apprehend it, Hee that beleeueth in him (as the [i] text telleth vs expreſly) ſhall not periſh, he that [k] commeth vnto him, in his agony groaning vnder the burden of his ſin, ſhall be refreſhed. It is true that Gods mercie is the ſalue of our miſery, but a medicine neither heales nor helpes, vntill it be well applyed. Albeit Ieſus be the God of our [l] ſaluation, our [m] righteouſneſſe, our ſanctification and redemption, 1.Cor.1.30. yet Ieſus is no Ieſus vnto vs, except faiths hand [n] put on Chriſt and his [o] garment of holineſſe to [p] couer all your vnrighouſneſſe. This ſaying then ought to be receiued, and that as Paul here, by all meanes.

Now the meanes are principally two, namely, the ſacred Word, and the bleſſed Sacraments. For the Scriptures are our euidences, and the Sacraments are the ſeales of this aſſurance. [q] Search the word diligently, for that witneſſeth of him; and come to his boord frequently, for there we may taſte and ſee what he did for vs, and that he died for vs. The powring out of the wine liuely repreſenting the ſhedding of his precious bloud, and the breaking of the bread liuely repreſenting the renting of his bodie for our ſake, for our ſinne.

This preface then (as [r] Caluin obſerues) is like the ſounding of a trumpet before the publication of ſome notable thing, to ſtirre vp the better audience, that wee may not onely here, but heed alſo what is ſaid. Well, the trumpet hath ſounded, hearken attentiuely now to that which is here proclaimed by the Spirit of God: It is a generall pardon, Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners: and a particular application of this pardon, of whom I am chiefe.

Concerning the generall pardon and propoſition, it is a demonſtration of Gods vnſpeakeable loue towards man-kinde. So the text, Ioh.3.16. God ſo loued the world. How much his ſo was, albeit I could ſpeake with the tongues of men and Angels, I were not able to report. But there be three degrees of loue in Gods ſending, and in Chriſts comming into the world.

1. It was great loue that made him come into the world, great loue that made him [ſ] breake the heauens, and ſo come from the boſome of his Father into the wombe of his mother, great loue that made him who thundred in the clouds and had heauen for his throne, to be ſwadled in clouts, and to be crowded in a cratch.

2. Greater loue that he came into the world not onely to ſee, but alſo to ſaue, to viſit and redeeme, as Zecharie ſings in his hymne.

3. Greateſt and higheſt loue that he came to ſaue, not the righteous, but ſinners, ἁμαρτωλοὺς notorious and chiefe ſinners, [t] euen ſuch as the Publicans, and the woman taken in adulterie. Doubtleſſe one will ſcarſe die for a righteous man: but yet for a good man it may be (ſaith our [u] Apoſtle) that one dare die: but God ſetteth out his loue toward vs, ſeeing that while we were yet ſinners and enemies, Chriſt died for vs. He was [x] borne for vs, he [y] liued for vs, hee [z] gaue himſelfe to death for vs, hee did [a] ariſe from the dead againe for vs, he did [b] aſcend for vs, and now ſitting at the right hand of God the Father in the heauen of heauens, hee pleads as an [c] Interceſſor and Aduocate for vs. Except Chriſt forget his name, Ieſus, Emmanuel; except he forget his nature, being fleſh of our fleſh, and ſo conſequently [d] touched with the feeling of our infirmities: except he forget his office, being our annointed King to gouerne vs, our anointed Prophet to teach vs, our anointed Prieſt who did ſuffer and offer vp himſelfe for our ſinnes: except he forget his owne ſelfe, and his owne ends for which he came into the world, he cannot but ſaue ſinners, euen thoſe which acknowledge themſelues h Arctius.

i Iob. 3.16.
k Math. 11.28.

l Pſal. 25.4.
m Ierem. 23.6.

n Rom. 13.14.
o Pſal. 45.10.
p Pſal. 32.1.

q Ioh. 5.39.

r In loc.

ſ Eſay 64.1.

t Aretius in loc.

u Rom. 5.7.8.

x Eſay. 9.6.
y Math. 11.29.
y Epheſ. 5.2.
a Rom. 4.25.
b Epheſ. 4.8.
c 1.Ioh 2.1.
d Heb. 4.15.

themſelues the firſt and the worſt of all ſinners. This one point is the conſolation of Iſrael, and the comfort of Hieruſalem at the verie heart. The materiall croſſe of Chriſt, in faſhion and figure, reſembleth a [e] key, and the Goſpell of Chriſts croſſe, like the key of Dauid mentioned Eſay 22. 22. openeth and no man ſhutteth, and againe ſhutteth and no man openeth, it locketh vp the mouth of hell from vs, and openeth heauens euerlaſting gates vnto vs. Doubt not of this Doctrine, for it is true: reiect it not, for it is worthy to be receiued.

e See Parodinus in ſymbolis heroicis, pag. 14.

In S. Pauls aſſumption, or particular application of this generall pardon, obſerue two points eſpecially:

The { Grieuouſneſſe of his fault, / Greatneſſe of his faith.

Whereas our Apoſtle ſaith of himſelfe (quorum ego primus) I[f] read of certaine heretickes, who fondly conceited that the ſoule of the firſt tranſgreſſour Adam was in Pauls bodie. But this abſurd opinion is contrary to the text, affirming plainly that euery man hath a [g] ſoule of his owne, the which in his dying houre returnes to God who gaue it, as the body returnes to duſt, Eccleſiaſtes 12. 7. [h] Expoſitors therefore by primus, vnderſtand not the firſt in order, but the worſt in diſorder, primus non temporis ordine, ſed iniquitatis magnitudine, the firſt, that is, the greateſt, or as our tranſlation expreſſeth it aptly, the chiefe. This open confeſsion of Paul is very modeſt, and yet very true. Modeſt, acknowledging not only that he was a ſinner, as the Publican: or a great ſinner, as all true penitents are ready to confeſſe: but yet further the prime ſinner of all thoſe which are to be ſaued. Speaking of his worth, he ſaith elſewhere, that he was the leaſt of all the Apoſtles, 1. Cor. 15. 9. yea the leaſt of all the Saints, Epheſ. 3. 8. but here ſpeaking of his wants, he puts himſelfe among the chiefe malefactors, as if he ſhould haue ſaid, I am among Saints a minume, but among ſinners a monſter, primus peccatorum, vltimus Apoſtolorum.

f Apud Aquin. & Marlorat. in loc.

g Mark. 8.36.

h Lombard. Aquin. Anſelm. Aretius Idem Auguſtin. Con. 1. de part. 1. Pſal. 70.

This example may teach vs not to bee too conceited of our owne merits and excellencie, but for as much as we know more follies of our ſelues then of other, wee ſhould thinke worſe of our ſelues then of other, in giuing [i] honour, going one before another.

i Rom. 12.10.

And aſſuredly whoſoeuer is humbled truly for all his offences commited againſt God and man, in thought, in word, in deed, ſhall vpon a diligent inquirie finde himſelfe the chiefe ſinner of all the creatures in heauen, in earth, in hell. The poore [k] Publican examining his owne conſcience, would not lift vp his eyes to heauen; if we will and dare, we ſhall in the lower heauen or airie, ſee [l] haile, ſnow, raine, thunder, lightning winde and ſtorme, fulfilling the word of God, and ſo conſequently that they be farre better in their kinde than our ſelues.

k Luke 18. 13.

l Pſal. 148.8.

If we looke into the ſtarrie heauen, it will appeare that the Sun reioyceth as a giant to run his courſe, Pſal. 16. 5. and that the Moone is Gods faithfull witneſſe in heauen, Pſal. 89. 36. the Sunne according to Gods ordinance rules the day, the Moone the night, Gen. 1. 16. and the leſſer ſtarres as they receiue light and vertue from their ſuperiours, ſo they communicate the ſame to their inferiours. Almightie God made the ſtarres, [m] Arcturus, Orion, and Pleyades, all of them are the workes of his fingers, Pſal. 8. 3. and who can reſtraine the ſweet influences of the Pleyades, or looſe the bands of Orion, Iob 38. 31. this heauen [n] declares the glory of God, and the firmament ſheweth his handie worke. For albeit they want vnderſtanding and are dumbe, yet they trumpet forth his worthy praiſes in ſuch ample ſort, that there is neither ſpeech nor language, but their voice is heard among them. And as they ſpeake for God as ſchollers, ſo they fight for God as ſouldiers, for the ſtarres in their courſe fought againſt Siſera, Ioſua 5. 20. and when Duke [o] Ioſua did encounter the wicked Amorites, he ſaid in the ſight of Iſrael, Sunne, ſtay thou in Gibeon, and thou Moone in the valley of Aialon, and the Sunne abode, and the Moone ſtood ſtill, vntill the people of God auenged themſelues vpon their enemies. If the Lord command the Sunne, [p] it riſeth not, he cloſeth vp the ſtarres as vnder a ſignet, he [q] turnes the ſhadow of death into the morning, and he makes the day darke as night. And therefore when wee conſider the goodly lights of heauen, euer readie to doe the will of their Creator, we ſhall haue iuſt occaſion as

m Iob 9.9.

n Pſal. 19.1.

o Ioſua. 10.12.

p Iob 9.7.

q Amos 5.8.

Dauid

r Pſal. 8.4.

r Dauid had to ſay, What is man that thou art mindfull of him, or the ſonne of man that thou viſiteſt him?

If we will aſcend yet higher, and contemplate the glorious heauen, termed in holy ſ Scripture, the heauen of heauens: we ſhall vnderſtand that the bleſſed Angels are t miniſtring Spirits vnto God, alwayes attending his preſence to performe his pleaſure, being inſtruments of his mercie toward the good, executioners of his iudgements vpon the bad. And that the holy Saints, as being now ſo free from ſinne, as they be free from ſorrow, u ceaſe neither day nor night to ſing, x Hallelniah, ſaluation, and glorie, and honor, and power be to the Lord our God. In this heauen the Martyrs vndaunted conſtancie confounds our weakeneſſe and inconſtancie, they were not wearied in ſuffering cuill, and yet wee y faint in doing good. The Confeſſours auſteritie confounds our delicacie, for they did vſe the world only for this end, that they might the better inioy God: but we many times haue vſed God, that we might the better enioy the world. The virgins puritie confounds our vncleaneſſe, for they follow the z Lambe whitherſoeuer hee goeth, but wee runne a a whoring with our owne inuentions, and haue committed b fornication with other louers. If wee looke vpon the Patriarkes, or Prophets, or Apoſtles, or vpon the reſt of the Saints at reſt vpon Gods holy mountaine, wee muſt acknowledge our ſelues to bee chiefe ſinners in compariſon of them all. How then is any man able to behold the ſacred Trinitie, God the Father who created vs, hauing by ſinne loſt his c ſuperſcription and image: God the ſonne, who redeemed vs, hauing by ſinne trampled his precious bloud d vnder our feet: God the Holy Ghoſt, who ſanctified vs, hauing by ſinne e reſiſted often his ſweet motions, and ſo much as lieth in vs vtterly quenched his purifying fire kindled in our hearts. Euerie thing then in heauen is able to confound vs, only this one thing comforteth vs, that Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners, euen ſuch as feele their heauie burden, and confeſſe that they be chiefe ſinners. For in our Chriſtian obedience two things are required eſpecially:

u Apoc. 4.8.
x Apoc. 19.1.
y Galat. 6.9.
z Apoc. 14.4.
a Pſal. 106.38.
b Exech. 16.36.
c See Ludolphus de vita Chriſti, part. 2. cap. 35. Ardens. Pontan. Ferus in Euan. Dom. 23. poſt Trin.
d Heb. 10.19.
e Acts 7.51.

To wit { Aſpiratio. / Suſpirato.

1. An aſpiring to doe the will of God in earth, as it is done by the creatures in heauen, an f hungring and a thirſting for righteouſneſſe, a ſincere ſoule h longing after God, and vnfainedly louing that which is i good.

f Math. 5.6.
h Pſal. 42.1.
i Rom. 7.19.

2. Wee muſt haue ſuſpiration, a grieuing and a groaning in our Spirit, when as we feele in our members another law rebelling againſt the law of our minde, and leading vs captiue vnto ſinne. When as wee finde that our dayly practiſes anſwer not our dayly prayers, it is our dutie to ſigh, and to ſay with our Apoſtle, Rom. 7. 24. O wretched man that I am, who ſhall deliuer me from the bodie of this death? If we haue ſuch an aſpiring, and ſuch a ſuſpiring, that is, ſuch a k willing minde to doe good, and to ſhunne euill, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that a man hath not. l Illud pro facto reputat Deus, quod homo quidem verè voluit, ſed non valuit adimplere.

k 2. Cor. 8.12.
l Bernard. epiſt. 77.

We now deſcend from the things aboue to the creatures here below. The ground being tilled m brings forth herbs and fruit meet for them by whom it is dreſſed: but we being the Lords encloſed n vineyard and pleaſant plant, bring forth in ſtead of ſweet grapes wilde grapes, hee looked for iudgement, but behold oppreſſion: for righteouſneſſe, but behold a crying. The liueleſſe o ſtones at the death of the Lord of life were clouen aſunder, and the vaile of the Temple was rent in twaine from the top to the bottome: ſolus autem homo non compatitur, pro quo ſolo Dominus patitur, only man had no compaſſion, for whom alone Chriſt endured all his paſſion. The ſenſeleſſe plants and trees aſpire to grow vpward, the deeper their root, the higher their branch: but man (as the p Philoſopher ſaid) being planta tranſuerſa, that is, a tree turned vpſide downe, though his heart by nature be framed broad aboue, narrow beneath, open at the top, cloſe below: yet by ſinne hath the greater part of his affections vſually groueling downeward, ſeeking earthly things, and the leſſer part growing vpward q ſet on heauenly things. The witleſſe beaſts and birds, r all cattle and feathered fowles, yea the fierce dragons and ſilly wormes in their kinde praiſe the Lord.

m Heb. 6.7.
n Eſay 5.7.
o Math. 27.51.
p Ariſtotle.
q Coloſſ. 3.2.
r Pſal. 148.10.

The

The [f] Storke in the aire knoweth her appointed ſeaſon, and the Crane, and the Turtle, and the Swallow obſerue the times of their comming: but my people knowes not the iudgement of the Lord. Euen the dull [t] Oxe knoweth his owner, and the fooliſh Aſſe his maſters crib, but Iſrael hath not knowne, my people (ſaith the Lord) hath not vnderſtood.

As for men, either they be ſuperiours, or equals, or inferiours, and all adminiſter ſufficient matter to confound vs in our ſinne. Superiours are the [u] Miniſters of God to take vengeance on thoſe that commit euill. [x] If they make warre, we muſt arme to fight againſt their enemies: if they bid kill, we kill: if they ſay ſpare, wee ſpare: if they bid build, we build: if they bid make deſolate, we make deſolate, breaking downe mountaines, and wals, and towers. We muſt [y] either ſuffer the Rulers will, or their power, their will to order vs, and their power to puniſh vs. And why then, I Pray, do we not [z] render vnto God the thing appertaining to God, aswell as giue to Cæſar the things of Cæſar? Faciemus iubente imperatore, & non faciemus iubente Creatore, ſaith Auguſtine: ſhall we do the commands of higher Powers, and diſobey the commandements of the higheſt power, of God himſelfe, which is the Lord of Lords, and a great King ouer all Gods?

If we conſider our equals, how many Peeres in bloud are ſuperiours in good, equal in title, but excelling in reputation among men, and in grace before God? For whereas we may gheſſe at ſome few follies in them, alaſſe we certainly know many faults in our ſelues.

As for inferiours, it is our deſire that [a] children ſhould honour their parents, and that ſeruants ſhould obey their maſters in ſingleneſſe of heart, and that euery ſoule ſhould be [b] ſubiect vnto the higher powers. Are we not then aſhamed, when as our children are dutifull [c] in all things, and when if we ſay to one ſeruant [d] goe, and he goeth: and to another come, and he commeth: and to a third doe this, and he doth it: and yet we daily neglect to doe the will of our [e] Father, and [f] Maſter in heauen, in ſo much that he complaineth of vs, [g] A ſonne honoureth his father, and a ſeruant his maſter: if then I be a Father where is my honour, and if I bee a maſter, where is my feare, ſaith the Lord of hoſts?

Let vs in our meditation looke downe to hell, and that both [h] inner and vtter, and the way to ſhun hell after death vnto condemnation, is to ſee hell often in our life by contemplation. Many poore ſinners vndoubtedly which haue not offended God ſo much as we, cary ſtill about them an inward hell, or hell of conſcience. [i] Franciſcus Spira being in a deepe deſpaire for renouncing the Goſpels doctrine, which hee did once ſincerely profeſſe, ſaid he would willingly ſuffer the moſt exquiſite tortures of hell fire, for the ſpace of ten thouſand yeeres, vpon condition he might be well aſſured to be releaſed afterward: he further added in that helliſh and horrible fit that his deere children and wife (for whoſe ſake principally, he turned away from the Goſpell, and embraced the preſent world) appeared now to him as hangmen and torturers, and in fine, that his abominable fault had deſerued non modo damnationem, ſed etiam aliquid quauis damnatione acerbius, not one hell only, but that Almighty God ſhould create new hels for his condigne puniſhment. O beloued, had we liued in the dayes of fierie triall, and bloudy perſecution, haply wee would haue ſacrificed vnto Bel, and bowed our knees vnto Baal ſo well, or rather ſo ill as he, peraduenture wee ſhould haue run from the Lords Table to the [k] cup of deuils, euen from Gods Meſſe to the Popes Maſſe. Vnhappy Spira denied his Lord but once, but wee through our daily tranſgreſſions haue not onely denyed him often, but in ſome ſort defied him alſo (as [l] one ſaid) like Pilat, crucifying our bleſſed Lord Ieſus, to giue life vnto Barrabas a murtherer, that is vnto ſinne that ſlayeth the ſoule. [m] My people (quoth the Lord) haue forſaken me which am the fountaine of liuing waters, to digge them pits, euen broken pits that can hold no water: that is, whatſoeuer they profeſſe in their words, they haue [n] denied me which am the liuing God in their workes, and haue made to themſelues a great many baſe creatures an Idol and a falſe god. Ambition is their god, Mammon is their god; nay that which is moſt vnworthy, Mamming is their god, as S. Paul in determining termes plainly, Philip. 3. 19. Whoſe god is their belly.

f Ierem. 8. 7.
t Eſay 1. 3.
u Rom. 13. 4.
x 1. Eſdr. 4. 4.
y Stephen Gardiner apud Fox Mart. fol. 1229. z Math. 22. 21.
a Epheſ. 6. 2, 5.
b Rom. 13. 1.
c Coloſſ. 3. 20.
d Math. 8. 9.
e Math. 6. 9.
f Epheſ. 6. 9.
g Malac. 1. 6.
h Dionyſ. Carth. in 3. ſen. diſtinct. 22.
i Lib. cui tit. Deſperatio Spirę Genuę cum præfat. Caluin.
k 1. Cor. 10. 21.
l In ſpeculo peccatoris & Iuſti. pag. 26.
m Ierem. 2. 13.
n Titus 1. 16.

Spira.

Now let vs deſcend with our conſideration into the loweſt and vttermoſt hell, euen the bottomleſſe pit not only of deſparation, but of deſtruction alſo; the which is full of damned ſoules, among whom a great many burne for a few ſinnes, and ſome for one notorious ſinne only: thinke then I pray thee with thy ſelfe in thy Cloſet, theſe condemned perſons were men as well as I, and many of them (as I) Chriſtians, who receiued the ſame Sacraments, and heard the ſame Sermons, and read the ſame Bible that I ſtill enioy; how then am I bound to Gods infinite mercies hauing offended him in the ſame ſinne often, and in other kindes of faults without number? If I compare their iniquitie with mine, what remaineth in the iudgement of mine owne conſcience but a greater damnation? O how iuſtly had I deſerued that death ſhould haue attached me in committing my firſt ſinne, and that God ſhould haue giuen mee no more ſpace nor grace to repent. I may therefore conſider ſeriouſly that it is no leſſe benefit of the Father of mercy to haue preſerued me hitherto from the furious flames of that vnquenchable lake, than if after I had beene deſcended he had deliuered me from them, and for this exceeding kindneſſe, I may well apply that of[o] Dauid, I will thanke thee O Lord my God with all my heart, and I wil praiſe thy name for euermore, for great is thy goodneſſe toward me, deliuering my ſoule from the nethermoſt hell.

o Pſal. 86. 12.

Laſtly, let vs examine whether in compariſon of the deuill himſelfe we may bee ſaid to be chiefe ſinners: his offence for which he was caſt out of Gods preſence, was (ſo ſome thinke) but one, and that not acted, but only plotted: Ours are many, moe than either the [p] haires of our head, or the [q] ſand of the Sea, committed actually both in our words and in our workes. Hee ſinned before the ſtipend of ſinne was knowne; but we ſinne after experience, that the [r] wages of ſinne is death. He ſinned created in innocencie; but we ſinne reſtored againe to grace. His heart is hardened againſt him who puniſheth him, ours obdurate many times againſt him that alloureth vs, and pitieth vs as a [ſ] father, and comforteth vs as a [t] mother, bleſſing vs with euery kinde of bleſſing, and compaſſing vs about with his mercies on all [u] ſides, and at all ſeaſons, often crying and calling, [x] Why will ye periſh? how often would I haue gathered thy children together, as the hen gathereth her chickens vnder her wings, and ye would not, Math. 23.37.

p Pſal 40.15.
q Manaſſes in his prayer.
r Rom. 6.23.
ſ Pſal. 103.13.
t Eſay 66. 13.
u Pſal 32.11.
x Ezech. 18.31.

Thus euery true penitent, as well as Paul, vpon a ſtrict examination of his owne conſcience, findeth himſelfe to be chiefe ſinner. Or haply S. Paul called himſelfe the firſt ſinner, as being readie with the firſt humbly to confeſſe his faults, and earneſtly to ſue for pardon at the throne of grace, primus in ordine confitentium, as Aretius vpon the place: ſo forward as the firſt in acknowledging his ſores, and ſo forward as the firſt in applying the ſalue.

LECTVRE

LECTVRE II.

AS the confeſſion of S. Paul is exceeding full and free, ʸ ſo doubtleſſe not vntrue. He did not out of his modeſtie tell a lie, for he was in his owne iudgement, and in others opinion alſo, worthy to be numbred among the chiefeſt of ſinners, as being a blaſphemer, a perſecutor, and an oppreſſor, as he reporteth of himſelfe in this chapter at the 13. verſe. Yea but it is obiected, that hee ᶻ profited in the Iewes religion aboue many of his equals, and that he was ᵃ vnrebukeable touching the righteouſneſſe which is in the Law. ᵇ Theophilact, and ᶜ otheranſwer, that a legall righteouſneſſe, in compariſon of an euangelicall righteouſneſſe, is a very nothing, and vpon the poynt a chiefe ſinne. ᵈ For euen that which was made glorious had no glory in this reſpect by reaſon of the glory that excelleth. And therefore Paul after his conuerſion, eſteemed not theſe commendations and eminencies, aduantage, but rather ᵉ loſſe for Chriſts ſake, iudging all his former religion and zeale to bee dung, that hee might win this excellent knowledge, how Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners. ᶠ Other anſwer, that hee was in the Iewes religion vnblameable before men, as hauing an outward righteouſneſſe: but not vnrebukeable before God, vntill his heart was ᵍ purifyed by faith in Chriſt. Hee liued, as Aquine pithily gloſſeth, in reſpect of the world, ſine querela, without any ſcandall or clamour, but in reſpect of God, non ſine peccato, not without infirmities and iniquities too. For hee had his conuerſation in time paſt (as himſelfe records of himſelfe ʰ elſewhere) in fulfilling the luſts of the fleſh, and of the minde, and that he was by nature the childe of wrath as well as other.

The greateſt offence, for which he ſaid, I am, ⁱ that is, I haue beene the firſt of ſinners, as he witneſſeth in this chapter, and ᵏ elſewhere, was his extreme waſting of the Church, as being both a ˡ blaſphemer of Chriſt, and a perſecutor of Chriſtianitie. For albeit he did ignorantly commit theſe faults out of an inconſiderate zeale, ᵐ yet vnbeleefe ioyned with obſtinate furie, raging againſt the Lord and againſt his anointed, is worthily numbred among the chiefe ſinnes. Peior omnibus, quia perſecutor quo non erat peior. I haue beene the greateſt offender, as being the greateſt oppreſſor, Nemo enim acrior inter perſecutores, ergo nemo peior inter peccatores. He was both an author and an actor of miſchiefe, making hauocke of the Church, drawing out of euery houſe both men and women, and dragging them into priſon, Acts 8. 3.

Yea, but you will obiect haply, Iudas the traytor, and Iulian ſurnamed Apoſtata, perſecuted the truth againſt their owne knowledge malitiouſly, whereas our Apoſtle did it ignorantly through vnbeliefe, ergo he could not be ſo great a malefactor as they. ᵒ Anſwer may bee, that thoſe wretches are the veſſels of wrath eternally damned, whereas the words of Paul are to be conſtrued with a limitation and reference to ſuch as are ſaued, Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners, of which offendors to be ſaued, I am the formoſt and chiefe. For which of them (I pray) ſinned in thought, or word, or deed, more deſperately than I: in thought, as imagining miſchiefe vpon my bed, eſteeming my perſecution of the Goſpell a ᵖ zealous action toward God: in word, breathing out ᑫ threatnings and ʳ calumniations againſt the diſciples of the Lord: in deed, hating the profeſſion of Chriſtians vnto death: I went to the high Prieſt, and deſired of him letters to Damaſcus, that if I found any who were of that way (either men or women) I might bring them bound to Hieruſalem, and deliuer them into priſon.

ʸ Caluin.

ᶻ Galat. 1. 14.
ᵃ Philip. 3. 6.
ᵇ In loc.
ᶜ Oecumen. in loc.
ᵈ 2. Cor. 3. 10.
ᵉ Philip. 3. 7.
ᶠ Lombard. Aquin. Anſelm. in Philip. 3.
ᵍ Acts 15. 9.
ʰ Epheſ. 2. 3.
ⁱ Primaſius.
ᵏ Galat. 1. 13. Acts 22. 4. Philip. 3. 6. 1. Cor. 15. 6.
ˡ Aquin. Bulling. in 1. Tim. 1. 13.
ᵐ Caluin.
ⁿ Lombard.
ᵒ Aquin. Caietan. Marlorat. in loc.
ᵖ Acts 22. 3.
ᑫ Acts 9. 1.
ʳ 1. Tim. 1. 13.

This example may comfort diſtreſſed conſciences in any grieuous temptation, at the houre of death eſpecially. Paul was a miſerable ſinner, but Chriſt a more merciſull Sauiour, he therefore receiued him into fauour making him of a bloudy perſecutor, a godly Paſtor, a choſen veſſell to beare his name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and the children of Iſrael, Acts 9. 15. Now Chriſt is alway like himſelfe, f yeſterday, and to day, and the ſame for euer: the ſame in his word, the ſame in his working, the ſame both in his power and promiſe. Pauls pardon is not ſingular and extraordinarie, but as the next verſe ſheweth, it is an example for all other who ſhall in time to come beleeue in Chriſt vnto euerlaſting life. Let not then any troubled ſpirit be diſmayed, ſeeing wee haue ſuch a full patent, Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners: and ſuch a faire patterne, of whom I am chiefe. For he confeſſed himſelfe ſuch a ſinner (ſaith t Auguſtine) that none may deſpaire, conſidering Paul obtained pardon. Againe, this example may teach vs not to iudge u before the time, Iuſtin Martyr a Gentile may turne Chriſtian, Auguſtine a Manichee may turne Catholike, Luther a Monke may turne Miniſter, perſecuting Saul may turne preaching Paul, and ſo demonſtrate that in his owne perſon which is the ſumme of all his Sermons, namely, that Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners.

f Heb. 13. 8.

t Ser. 49. de temp.

u 1. Cor. 4. 5.

Hitherto concerning the grieuouſneſſe of S. Pauls fault: I come now to the greatneſſe of his faith, aplying the generall pardon (Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners) in particular to himſelfe, of whom I am chiefe. The x Papiſts affirme, that a man is iuſtified by faith, vnderſtanding a generall or a catholique faith, by which he beleeueth all the articles of religion to be true: but we hold that a iuſtifying faith is a particular faith, apprehending and applying to our ſelues the promiſes of righteouſneſſe and euerlaſting life by Chriſt.

x See Perkins reformed Cat. tit. Iuſtificat.

For in a ſauing faith our Diuines require two things eſpecially,
1. Knowledge reuealed in the word touching the meanes of ſaluation.
2. An application of theſe things knowne vnto our ſelues.

This our aſſertion is euidently proued by the words of y S. Iohn, As many as receiued him, to them he gaue power to be the ſonnes of God, namely, to them that beleeue in his name. Where to receiue Chriſt, and to beleeue in Chriſt, import the ſame thing, becauſe the one of them is put for explanation of the other. Now receiuing is a more particular apprehending and conueying of a thing to a mans owne proper vſe. Seeing therefore to beleeue in Chriſt is to receiue Chriſt; z it followes neceſſarily, that to beleeue in Chriſt, is to lay hold of Chriſt with all his benefits, and to make vſe of him as he is offered in the promiſes of the Goſpell vnto our owne ſelues. For a true faith, according to the meaſure thereof, aſſureth infallibly, not in the generall onely by principle, but in the particular alſo by concluſion and application vnto it ſelfe.

y Iohn 1. 12.

z See D. Abbots defence of refor. Car. tit. Certainty of ſaluation, pag. 353.

For the further illuſtration of this argument, Chriſt in the 6. Chapter of S. Iohns Goſpell, ſets forth himſelfe as the bread of life, and the water of life; making his beſt hearers as eaters of his fleſh, and drinkers of his bloud: and further auowing that this eating of his fleſh, and drinking of his bloud, and beleeuing in him, are all one. Looke then a as there can bee no eating without taking and receiuing of meat: ſo no beleeuing in Chriſt without a ſpirituall appehending and receiuing of him. As the bodie hath his hand, mouth, and ſtomach, by which it taketh, receiueth, and digeſteth meat for the nouriſhment of euery part: ſo the true beleeuer by his faith, as the hand, and mouth, and ſtomacke of the ſoule, receiues and takes to him Chriſt Ieſus, with all his merits, particularly, for his ſtrength, and comfort, and nouriſhment vnto that life which is euerlaſting. To the ſame purpoſe b Tertullian excellently, Chriſt is chewed by vnderſtanding, and digeſted by faith. And c S. Auguſtine, Ut quid paras dentes & ventrem? crede, & manducaſti: why prepareſt thou teeth and belly? beleeue and thou haſt eaten. And in an d other place, How ſhall I reach mine hand into heauen, that I may hold him ſitting there? ſend vp thy faith, and thou layeſt hold on him: according to that of e S. Ambroſe, Fide tangitur Chriſtus, fide Chriſtus videtur by faith Chriſt is touched, by faith Chriſt is ſeene.

a See latter confeſſion of Heluetia, ca. 15. & Harmon. confeſſ. ſect. 9. pag. 243.

b Lib. de reſur. carnis, cap. 28. in fine.
c Tract. 25. in Ioan.
d Tract. 50. in Ioan.
e Lib. 6. in Luc. cap. 8.

The Saints in old time had this ſpeciall faith, as it is apparant in the Scripture for f Iob called Chriſt in reſpect of this particular aſſurance, my redeemer; and g Dauid, my ſtrength, my rocke my defence, my might, in whom I will truſt, my buckler, my refuge my h righteouſneſſe: and i S. Thomas, my Lord my God: and the bleſſed k Virgin, my Sauiour: and the l whole Church my beloued: and our m Apoſtle, The ſonne of God loued me, and gaue himſelfe for me: Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners, and of thoſe which are to be ſaued I am one.

Iob

It is obiected here, that S. Paul. had a ſpeciall reuelation, ergo we may not hence gather any generall obſeruation. Anſwer is made by Paul in the very next verſe, that he was herein an enſample to ſuch as in time to come ſhould beleeue in Chriſt: and he ſaith n elſewhere, Brethren, be followers of me, and looke on them that walke ſo as you haue vs for a patterne. If in the faith and doctrine of Chriſt we be to follow Paul, then are we by faith to beleeue of our ſelues, as he beleeued of himſelfe; and what he wrote in that behalfe, we are to take it as written for our inſtruction, and not as a matter particular and peculiar to himſelfe.

According to this example, the primitiue Fathers applied Chriſt and all his merits particularly to themſelues, as the formes of the moſt ancient Creeds inſinuate, I beleeue in God, &c. for when S. Thomas ſaid, Ioh. 20. 28. my God, Chriſt anſwered, thou haſt beleeued Thomas, intimating, that to beleeue in God, is to beleeue that God is our God. The firſt degree of faith is o credere Deum, to beleeue that God is: the ſecond credere Deo, to beleeue that the words and promiſes of God are true: but the third is credere in Deum, to truſt in God, as being aſſured that he will deale with vs according to his holy word. For to beleeue in him, and to put our whole truſt in him, are all one Pſalm. 78. 22. They beleeued not in God, and put not their truſt in his helpe. So p S. Auguſtine, q Euſebius Emiſenus, and r other, haue diſtinguiſhed aptly betweene beleeuing God, and beleeuing in God. Againe, the articles concerning the s remiſſion of ſinnes and euerlaſting life, teach a particular application of the generall pardon here, Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners. The deuill himſelfe beleeues that there is a God, and that this God imparts remiſſion of ſinnes and euerlaſting life to his Church in generall; and therefore that we being Gods children may goe beyond all the deuils in faith, it is required on our part, to beleeue that forgiueneſſe of ſinnes and euerlaſting life belong to vs in particular. Let the ſoule (quoth t Auguſtine) boldly ſay, thou art my God, to him that ſaith vnto our ſoule, I am thy ſaluation. It ſhall doe no wrong in ſaying ſo, nay it ſhall doe wrong in not ſaying ſo. u S. Bernard ſaith alſo, the ſoule that looketh vpon God, doth no otherwiſe looke vpon him, than as if it ſelfe only were looked vpon of God. For as x Chryſoſtome notes, it is loues qualitie to make that proper to a mans ſelfe, which is common vnto many. So the penner of the books de y viſitatione infirmorum, among the workes of S. Auguſtine, tom. 9. pag. 658. cals Chriſt my Ieſus; and z Martin Luther, O ſweet Ieſu, thou art my righteouſneſſe, and I am thy ſinne.

As ſome men in temptation apply too little, ſo many men in preſumption apply too much, affirming that they neuer doubted of their ſaluation all the dayes of their life: the which is a carnall opinion, ariſing only from their owne conceit, and Satans deceit. It is true, that our ſaluation in reſpect of God, and in it ſelfe, is moſt infallible: but in reſpect of our ſelues, and our apprehenſion and feeling, it is not alway ſo certaine. And the reaſon hereof is very plaine: Particular ſaluation (in the iudgement of all our Proteſtant Diuines) is to be beleeued by faith: as then there be diuers degrees of faith, a little faith, b great faith c full aſſurance of faith; euen ſo there be diuers degrees of our perſwaſion: a little faith, howſoeuer it beleeues not falſly, yet faintly: greater faith, beleeues more ſtedfaſtly: full aſſurance, beleeueth vnder hope euen againſt hope, Rom. 4. 18. The heart of euery beleeuer is like a veſſell with a narrow necke, which being caſt into the ſea, is not filled at the firſt eaſily, but by reaſon of the ſtrait paſſage, receiueth water drop by drop. God giueth vnto vs in Chriſt euen a ſea of mercy, but the ſame on our part is apprehended and receiued by little and little, we goe from d ſtrenhth to ſtrength, and from grace to grace, praying alwayes as the bleſſed Apoſtles, e O Lord increaſe our faith, that from weakneſſe of faith and ſlender aſſurance, we may grow to firmneſſe of faith and full aſſurance.

f Iob 19. 25.
g Pſalm. 18. 1.
h Pſalm. 4. 1.
i Iohn 20. 28.
k Luke 1. 47.
l Cant. 6. 2.
m Galat. 2. 20.
n Philip. 3. 17.
o See notes, vpon the Creed in the Liturgie.
p Ser. 181. de temp.
q Hom. 2. de ſymbol.
r Lombard. 3. ſent. diſt. 23.
s Melanct. in 1. Tim. 1. 15. & Perkins expoſit. of that art. in the Creed.
t In Pſal. 32. con. 2. u Ser. 69. in Cant.
x In Gen. hom. 34.
y Lib. 2. Cap. 2.
z Loc. com. tit. de Inſtit. chriſt. & remiſſ. peccat
a Math. 8. 26.
b Math. 15. 28.
c Rom. 4. 21.
d Pſal. 8. 4. 7.
e Luke 17. 5.

So father Abraham was aſſured of his owne ſaluation, as alſo the Prophets, and Apoſtles, and Martyrs of God in all ages, who without doubting were content to forſake their goods, and to lay downe their liues for the Goſpell of Chriſt, as expecting vpon a certaine Ground an [f] euerlaſting habitation, and an [g] immortall inheritance. So many doubtleſſe in our time by long and often experienc of Gods mercy, and by the witneſſe of the Holy Ghoſt, attaine to full aſſurance of their ſaluation. our ſpirit alone makes not a true certificate without the [h] Spirit of God crying in our hearts, Abba Father; and the holy Spirit doth aſſure none to be the children of God [i] vnleſſe firſt hee haue ſanctified them and made them children of God. [k] Martin Luther, (who did vnderſtand aſſuredly the queſtion of Iuſtification as well as any ſince the dayes of our Apoſtle) ſaid vſually, that good workes make faith fat, and theſe fruits of faith in their beginnings and imperfections (as [l] Bernard called them) are tokens of Gods ſecret election, and foretokens of future happineſſe. And S. Peter in his 2. epiſt. chap. 1. exhorteth vs to make our election ſure, by ioyning vertue with our faith; and with vertue, knowledge; and with knowledge, temperance; and with temperance, patience; and with patience, godlineſſe; and with godlineſſe, brotherly kindneſſe; and with brotherly kindneſſe, loue. For ſeeing our aſſurance of ſaluation is by faith, and faith is cheriſhed by vertuous actions of pietie toward God, of pitie toward our neighbours; it is requiſite that we ſhould be [m] fruitfull in good deeds, and [n] rich in good workes, [o] abundant alwayes in the worke of the Lord, [p] doing good vnto all men, eſpecially to thoſe which are of the houſhold of faith.

But for as much as all of vs are [q] vnprofitable ſeruants, and all our righteouſneſſe is like [r] filthy clouts; it is a moſt ſafe reſolution, in euery temptation and trouble, to put our whole truſt in Gods vnſearchable mercy, [s] who knoweth vs better than we know him, and [t] apprehendeth vs more for his owne than we can apprehend him for ours. If we but [u] hunger and [x] thirſt after grace, he will not breake the bruiſed reed, nor quench the ſmoaking flax, Eſay 42. 3. but manifeſt his power in our weakneſſe, 2. Cor. 12. 9. Alas we vile wretches are leſſe than all his mercies, as Iacob ſaid, Gen. 32. 10. if he ſhould enter into iudgement with vs, as Dauid ſpeakes, Pſal. 143. 2. none liuing ſhould be iuſtified in his ſighe. If we conſider our owne deſeruing, ſaith [y] Hierome, we muſt needs deſpaire; but God will haue the promiſe to be ſure, ſaith [z] Auguſtine, not according to our merit, but according to his mercy: he would haue vs to depend vnto his word and oath, that by two immutable things, wherein it was impoſſible that God ſhould lie, we might haue ſtrong conſolation, Heb. 6. 18. This aſſumption and particular application of Chriſt vnto the ſoule, grounded vpon the ſure mercies of God, aſſured by the holy Spirit, and ſealed in the receiuing of the bleſſed Sacraments, is not an idle conceit, or any falſe hope, but (as the [a] Fathers are bold to call it) a good and godly preſumption. O Lord increaſe our faith euermore, that our little muſtard ſeed growing till it proue a great plant, we may build our neſts in the branches thereof, alway relying vpon thy generall pardon here,

Chriſt Ieſus came into the world to ſaue ſinners, and applying it vnto our ſelues in particular, of whome I am chiefe.

f Luke 16.9.
g 1. Pet. 1.4.
h Rom. 8.16.
i See Goſpell ſund. 8. after Trinit.
k In Gen. cap. 17 & citatur à Chem. loc. comtit. de bonis operibus, quæſt. 4.
l Lib. de Grat. & libero arbit. Let no man aske another man, but returne to his owne heart, if he finde charitie there, he hath ſecurity for his paſſage from death to life. Auguſt. in epiſt. Ioan. tract. 5.
m Coloſſ. 1. 10.
n 1. Tim. 6. 18.
o 1. Cor. 15. 58.
p Galat. 6. 10.
q Luke 7. 10.
r Eſay 64. 6.
ſ Galat. 4. 9.
t Philip. 3. 12.
u Math. 5. 6.
x Iohn 7. 37.
y In Eſa. li. 17. cap. 64.
z In Pſal. 88.
a Amb. de Sacr. lib. 5. cap. 4. Aug in Pſal 85. Greg. in Ezec. hom 22.

FINIS.

THE TABLE.

A

AArons Priesthood, fol. 818. the difference betweene the Priesthood of Aaron, and the Priesthood of Christ, 819
Abrahams bosome, 372. his seed, 467
Absolution of sinne from God, 608. the Ministers absolution after a confession, 2. 305. 523. popish absolution, 253
Abstinence from meat, 77. 370. 487
Admonitions generall, 760
Adulterie, sinne in this kind more dangerous than in another, 55. an exposition of the 7. Commandement, ibid. the flesh is most prone to commit this sinne, 479. the filthinesse of this sinne, 240 256. 257. iudgements vpon it, 244. 245. wee must flye from it, 488
Aduersaries proofe without contradiction, 266
Aduersitie, 301. afflictions are profitable, 152. 165 166. 385. 493. 652. 698. 801. 827. 935. the righteous haue many, 97. 333. 334. comfort in affliction, 13. 154. 271. 316. 335. 346. 347. 371. 391. 422. 498. 523. 554. 618. 649.
Ambition, 130. 382. 740. 741. 759. 760. 763. 67. 360
Amen, 137. 159. 909
Anabaptists,
Anarchie, 936
Angels are creatures, 942. their number vnknowne to men, 872. yet euery one differs from another, 873. Angels attend Gods elect, 591. 726. 727. 728. 785. whether euery man hath a peculiar Angell for his guard, 729. degrees of Angels, 755. Michael is not head of Angels, ibid. what is meant by the foure bad Angels mentioned in the Reuelation, 769
Agent, three things required in an absolute agent, fol. 2.
Allegories, 266. Allegorie of the man descending from Hierusalem to Iericho. 476
Almes, 144. 209. 371. 377. 420. 423. 553. 737. 738
Anger, 149. 211. 410. 411
Antiquitie, 407
Apocalyps, the commendation of this booke, 349 614
Apologie for our selues in the cause of God. 265 309. 753
Apostles, 679. 680. why twelue, 284. 645. when chosen, 569. their mission and commission, worke and warrant, 304. 571. 572. 702. 703. why chosen, two and two, 570. why fishers, 571. confirmed in their calling after Christs ascension, 678. foure sorts of Apostles, 568. they be the heauens declaring the glory of God, 792. the lips of Christ, 924. old sheepe, 859
Apparell, 369, 370.
Apud, 594
Armour, the Christians armour and arming, 532 533
As, a note of qualitie, not equalitie, 252. 395. 475
Astrologers, 429. 731
Atheists are enemies to God and auengers, 878
Auditors, 93. 202. 311. 458. 464. 465. foure kindes of Auditors, 402. they should aske questions of their Pastors, 202. 541
Aue Maria martyred by the Papists, fol. 661. 662, &c.
Auengers confounded by babes and sucklings, 879

B

BAbes both in age and carriage perfit Gods praise, fol. 877. 878.
Baptisme, 250. 353. 360. 361. 406. Baptisme of children, 573. 718. one baptisme, 112. 506. threefold immersion, 294. 406. why names are giuen in baptisme, 624. 718. Popish applying of spettle in baptisme is apish, 465. why the Baptist called Iohn, 719
Beasts, mentioned Apoc. 4. cap. fol. 355
Beggers, 218. 371. 772. 773
Behold, is a very remarkable word in holy Scripture, 82. 214. 407
Benedictus expounded, 12
Belly gods, 546
Bibles summarie pith, 831. 832. diuided into three parts, 339. it is Gods epistle, 340. a statute-booke for his household, 791. 792. 892. a buckler in temptation, 915. persecuted by the Pope and popelings, 798. 844
Walking Bibles, 759
Bishops, 288. 289. 445. 446. 569. 645. 702. 742 what kind of rule forbidden them, 744. 745
Blasphemie, 49. 524. 809
Blessings of God threefold, 834
Blindnesse, 218
Bondage, 854

Booke of the creatures, a common place booke for all and a primer, 791
Borne of God, 300
Bread three sorts, 510
Brotherly fellowship, 314
Three sorts of Brethren, 410
Browniſts, 133. 179. 183. 283. 291. 311. 341 495. 640
Burden threefold, 702. 703. 649. 650. the burden of ſinne and pouertie, 949. 950. &c.

C

CAlling, God Calls at diuers times, and in diuers places, fol. 191. 192. and diuers wayes, 381. he calleth all, 649. 650
What Callings are lawfull, 126. 191
Care for the things of this life, 385
Catechiſme, the little Bible, 428
Cathari, both iniurie God and deceiue themſelues, 607
Ceremonies of the Law, 461. 588. 625. euery Ceremoniall of Moſes hath a morall, 638. 639 Ceremonies are diuers in diuers Churches, 929 difference in Ceremonies ſhould make no rent, 492. 507. 625
Children, 134. 497. 498. 851. wherein like children. 761. 762
Chriſt, the center of all the Scriptures circumference, 19. 78. 116. 672. 702. our God, Redeemer, and Biſhop of our ſoules, 14. 15. 44. 66. 81 82. 121. 252. 253. 272. 273. 307. 309. 389 390. 504. 651. his birth, 281. 591. 592. 594. his preſentation in the Temple, 640. his proper name Ieſus, appellatiue Chriſt, 19 119. 624. 732. his humanitie, 20. 114. 122 146. 154. 303. 464. 594. 618. 658. 806. his diuinitie, 20. 42. 278. 336. 421. 524. 561, 586 591. 592. 597. 640. 675. 806. 816. God-man, one perſon in two natures, 164. 234. 252. 278. 279. 465. 498. 503. 517. 561. 591. 634. 684. 689. our Mediator according to both, 121. 154 562. his obedience to the Law, 115. 626. his pouertie, 683. his Prieſthood, 272. after Melchiſedechs order, 820. 821. his paſſion 21. 215 216. 253. 275. 282. 304. 307. 362. 614. 697 922. 925. 947. how hee feared death, 444. his deſending into hell, 22. his reſurrection, 26. 217. 296. 298. 303. 586. 675. 701. his aſcenſion, 322. 679. 697. 698. 704. his comming to indgement, 22. 87. 88. 332. 514. without ſinne, 275. 323. the way, the truth, and the life, 694. the true vine, 683. his croſſe, 486, enemies of his croſſe, 546. 586. what crucifixes are lawfull, 505. Chriſts coat, 177. Chriſt the ſonne of Danid, and lord of Danid, 810. 823. he maketh all our enemies his footſtoole, 813. 838. ruling in the mids of his enemies, 813. 814. 826. his tabernacle in the Sunne, 793, as the Sunne reioycing to run his race, 794. 866. the fruits of his comming, 800. his beauty, 921. his graciouſneſſe of ſpeech, 923. his interceſſion, 928. how bleſſed of God the Father, 924. he deliuereth vs from the burden of affliction, of the law, of ſinne, 857 a lambe, 614
Chriſtians Chriſts pennie, 551. the ſonnes of God, 19. 115. 426. 555. led by the Spirit, 233. 355 new creatures, as being dead to the world, and liuing in Chriſt, 124. 294. 300. 360. 406. 485 ſouldiers and conquerors, 300. 497. how they doe not ſinne, 212. 347. 489. 515. no law againſt them, 481. wonderfully wonderfull, 346. 407 543. deſcribed by faith and goodworkes, 893 their dignitie, 925. 926. followers of Chriſt, 574. 575. Chriſtmas how to be kept, 102. 591 595. 617. Chriſtians are a royall Prieſthood, 976. 977
Church, her prerogatiues, 23. 165. 400. 501. 615 her voyce, 615. the kingdome of heauen, 530 615. 756. no Church, no Chriſt, 164. 530. one Church, 24. 165. 341. 501. Hieruſalem aboue, 269. our mother, 270. a little flocke, 482. 614 Gods houſe, 576. 836. the rocke on which it is built, 577. 733. 734. Church militant Gods tabernacle, 884. 885. triumphant Gods holy hill, 886. we paſſe from the one to the other, 887 888. Chriſts ſpouſe, 794. wedded and bedded, 926, oppoſed by cruell enemies, 813. 815. 838. hauing ſecular enemies, 812. & ſpirituall, ibid. why called a Queene, 926. 929. Chriſts heritage, 933. Characters of the true Church, agree not to the kingdome of Poperie, 911. Colours in the Churches garment, 929. Diuers dignities and degrees in the Church, 919. 930.
Circumciſion, a ſeale of the righteouſnes of faith, 623. why on the eight day, and in the generatiue part, 625. why Chriſt circumciſed, and named Ieſus at his circumciſion, 626. a threefold circumciſion, 624
Circumſpection in our walking, 525
Commendation of other, 666. when we may commend our ſelues, 198. 308
Complements, 665
Communion booke, 68. 492
Confeſſion of faith, 154. 262. 564. 614
Confeſſion of ſinne, 153. 263. 450. 453. 608. publique Confeſſion, 1. Confeſſion of ſinne to God and man. 906. auricular, 608
Confirmation after Baptiſme by Biſhops, 710
Conſcience, 161. 438. a bad conſcience, 65. 171 an erroneous conſcience, 306. foure kindes of conſcience, 170

Contemplation, 299.300
Contentation, 775
Correction, 542
Coueting, 58. 896. the couetous are poore, 366 130. 204. Idolaters, 216. 257. Couetousnesse the root of all euill, 284. 896. physicke against it, 260.490
Councell. 147. Councels may erre, 516
Court, 289. 291. 382. 536. 652. 705. 861. how far Clergie men may be Courtiers, 445
Creation of man, 805
Creatures catechize the first elements of religion, 791. 792. they be diligent, learned, and catholique Preachers, to be considered of vs euery day but on the Sabboth especially, 873. they be wonderfull in respect of their magnitude, 871. multitude, and varietie, 873. vertue and beautie, 877. the least as wonderfull as the greatest, 874 at the commandement of the Creator, turned vpside downe, 856. all of them are to be vsed of Christians, 910
Creed expounded, 17.45
Crueltie punished, 838
Curiositie, 610.699

D

DAyes, how some good and other bad, 867. one day teacheth another, 793. Christ is the day, and his twelue Apostles are the twelue houres of the day, ibid. day of iudgement, 918
Dauid the sonne God, 657
Dearth, 735
Dead raised by Christ, 868. three sorts of coarses in the Gospell are three sorts of sinners, ibid.
Death, 37.39.302.416.497. Death a sleepe, 600 diuers kinds of death, 366. 416. spirituall death in the faithfull is threefold, 417. obstinate sinners are dead and caried out to be buried, 499
Debts, 73 549. all are debtors vnto God, 543. what is to be done that our debt may be forgiuen, 544
Detractation, 57.388.838
Deuill, 182. 231. 234. 261. 262. 264. 302. 311 god of the world, 756. how resisted, 231. 235. deuils in diuers things taste of Gods mercy, 942
Diligence, 139. Diligence in preaching, 508. to be cherished, 738.750
Discretion, 228.951
Diuision, 311
Dominus vobiscum, 26
Doing of our dutie, 831
Doores of our hearts, 912
Drunkennesse, a mother of mischiefe, 526. 527 735. questions about drunkennesse, 525
Duell, 149

E

EArth is wonderfully founded vpon the waters, 909. it is the Lords and all that therein is, 908. earth and earthly things, 293
East, why we pay toward the East, 631
Easter day made more honourable than other daies 867
Elect, compassed about on all sides, and at all seasons with Gods mercy, 943
Embroyderies of the Spirit, 930
End, twofold, 332
Enuie, 211.388.717
Ephata, not vsed by Christ as a charme, 465
Epiphanie, 630
Epistles, why certaine portions of Scripture taken out of the Prophets, and Acts, are called Epistles, 339. why Paul did not subscribe his Epistle to the Hebrewes, 588. how people called Epistles of their Pastors, 458. 459. the summe of S. Pauls Epistles, 73.677
Euangelists, 281.679.792
Exodus of Israel out of Egypt, prefigures our spiritual deliuerance by Christ from the tyrannous oppression of Sathan and sinne, 851.858
Euill. 3.317

F

FAme, 229.368.730
Famine, 735.736
Familie, masters must instruct their housholds, 537 the fathers, 100
Fashions of the world, 127.128
Fasting, 226.234
Faith an euidence of things not seene, 472. 585 Faiths act; obiect, and subiect, 565. a particular application of Gods promise, 18. 28. 83. 169. 177. 583. 980. 986. 987. one faith, 177. 504 505. the power of faith, 191. 246. 247. 301. 355. 506. 522. 691. 758. faith is built vpon Gods might and mercy, 835. it is a mother vertue, 837. the nest of good works, 893. Faith and feare ioyned together in Gods seruice, 832. degrees of faith, 40. 462. 536. a little faith is sufficient at some time, 250. [illegible]. true faith is not without loue, 207. 208. [illegible]. whatsoeuer is not of faith is sinne, 99. 169. 213. 323. 622 776
Feare of God, 45. 669. the beginning of wisedome, 841.842
Feasts ordained by God, 340. appointed by the Church, ibid. 700.784
Feasting, 142. 143. 370. 511. how we may feed Christ, 753

Fiſhes, increaſe wonderfull, 872
Flatterie, 99
Fleſh of man Gods tabernacle, 884. Fleſh an home-bred enemie, 290. 301. wee may not liue after 424. how crucifie it, 481. the deeds of it manifeſt, 478. ſundry ſignifications of fleſh, 423
Forgiuing of our brethren neceſſarie, 542. 544. yet lawfull to defend our credit by complaining to God and his deputies, 149. 761
Followers of Chriſt, 165
Fornication, 246
Fortune, chance 509. 671
Freehold of Chriſtians, 777
Freewill 450. 685. 686
Friers, 190. 225. 300. 572. 774
Funerall Sermons are not for the commendation of the wicked, 372

G

GArment of Chriſt, 556
Gentiles are now Gods Iſrael, 15. 246. 249 381. 560. 619. 627. 629. 771
Genealogie of Chriſt, 122. Genealogicall fables, ib.
Generation what it ſignifieth, 87. 88
Gloria Patri, 7. 65
God of gods, 10. 354. 503. 530. 655. 847. 932. in heauen, 2. 350. one, 18. 504. incomprehenſible, 18. almightie, 155. 914. all-ſeeing, 44. 354 euerlaſting, 351. father of fathers, 493. to be worſhipped according to his word, 49. his glorie, 792. his reuealed will and actuall power concerne vs moſt, 914. his mercy, 42. 65. 247. 351 364. 379. 395. 396. 494. 706. 748. 800. 914 how we ſing the mercies of God for euer, 807. the bredth of Gods mercy, 864. the length of Gods mercy, 943. the depth of Gods mercy, 865. the height of Gods mercy, ibid. mercies of God ouer all his works, 940. his iudgements, 11. 351. diſpoſing of euill, 175. 350. no accepter of perſons 152. 566. 668. his prouidence, 191. 351. 385
Good men are the heauens declaring Gods glory, 792. their praiſe doth endure for euer, 845. they be Gods ſanctuary and dominion, 852, only wiſe, 841. 845. great men may be good men, 935 and ſhould be good men, 8
Goſpell Gods throne, 355. the word of Chriſt, 178 who wrote the Goſpell, and why, 117. 118. the commendation of Math. Goſpell, 752. why the booke of the generation of Chriſt, 118. in what reſpect the Goſpell is preferred before the Law, 457. 461. the contents and extents of it, 552 605. a new ſong, 35. 615. a myſterie, 628. the grace of God, ibid. the word of life, 714. written vnto ſuch as are Theophili, 696 hid only to thoſe which are loſt, 748. the wiſedome of God, 814 preached firſt vnto the Iewes, ibid. 933. after planted and continued among vs vnto this preſent day, 860
Grace from God, 5. 137. 180. 203. 288. 317. 318 498. 539. 543. 686. 709. to bee imployed in his ſeruice, 138. 148. 440. 682. diuers gifts in diuers meaſure by the ſame Spirit. 318. 345. the ſeuen gifts of the Spirit, 353. the difference betweene being vnder grace, and in grace, 576. falling from grace, 767. growing from grace to grace, 75. 239

H

HAnds, impoſition, 463. Gods hand, 721. 722 why the left hand among the Turkes is moſt honourable, 814
Health, a precious iewell, 554. 665
Hearing, 262
Heart, regarded of God moſt, 797. a ſtonie heart, 315
Heauen is Gods, 879. his holy hill, 886. heauens gate ſhut, till Chriſt opened it, 912. reſt in heauen, 886. not attained without contending, 888. why called a kingdome, 889. why life, 900 a great ſupper, 379. the center of all our wiſhes, 501. 692. 693. Heauen on earth, 292. 293. 546 Heauen in heauen, 373. 381. 392. 393. 427. 777. a reward of mercy, not of merit, 195. 196. 379. 393. 420. 515. 693. 765. many manſions in heauen, and degrees of glory, 692. 693. 759 in heauen, fulneſſe of ioy to the vnderſtanding, 900. fulneſſe of ioy to the will, 901. fulneſſe of ioy to the memorie, 902. fulneſſe of ioy to the ſeeing, 903. fulneſſe of ioy to the hearing, 904. fulneſſe of ioy to the reſt of the ſenſes, according to their bleſſed eſtate, 905. the ioy thereof vnutterable, 906. the vſes of this heauenly doctrine, 906. 907
Hell on earth, 170. hell in hell, 187. 373. 374. 687 degrees of puniſhment in hell, 420. diuers ſignifications of hell, 956. Hell paines make a foure-fold impreſſion in the ſoules of men, 899. the paines of loſſe more grieuous than the paines of ſenſe, 918. 961. Hell paines infinite, 946. 957 958, &c.
Hereticks are falſe Prophets, 429. their faſhions, 155. 229. 485. 572. 731. how to be puniſhed, 185. why God ſuffers them, 429
Herodians, 548
Hiſtorie, 433
Holineſſe. 241. 243
Holy dayes appointed by the Church, 784
Holy Ghoſt God, 23. 336. 440. proceeding from the Father and the Sonne, 337. 338. the Spirit, 23. 233. 337. the ſpirit of truth, ibid. our comforter, 65. 336. the ſending of the Holy Ghoſt on Whitſunday, 341. 342 how the Disciples were filled with the Holy Ghost, and how wee may know the Spirit to be within vs, 343.426. how quenched, 243

Honestie, 148.313
Hope, 552. how differing from faith, 213.566.777
Humilitie, 32. 106. 299.383.384.651.758.762 775
Humane learning cited in Sermons, 467
Hyperboles in the Bible, 613
Hypocrites, 181. 283. 326. 388. 395. 431. 432 485.619.816.883.892.894.898

I

IAcobs seed, and the true Iacobines, 15.800.857 911. Iacob and Esau resemble the flesh and the spirit, 852
Idlenesse, 487.519.520
Idolatrie, 106.237.440.447.616. Idolaters and other ignorant in the worship of the true God, are barbarous people, 855
Iesting, 56
Iesuites, 190.224.508.572.937.969
Iewes, Gods peculiar people, 13.152. their conuersion, 560.561. enemies to Christ, 919. their punishment, ibid.
Ignorance, 306. 440. it is not the mother of deuotion, 970
Images, 49
Imitation, how we may follow other, 128.381.545 how God, and man, 165.251.252.308.395
Iudulgences, 407
Infants martyred for Christ, 617.620
Infirmities in good men, 346
Ingratitude, 320.466.482
Inuocation of Saints, 328.567
Iubilation, 30
Iudas, a merchant, 282.285. his fault inexcusable, 644. there be many Iudasses, 284
Iudges, 668. 965. 966. iudging of our selues, 59 94. of other, 357.396. Iudgement of men vncertaine: concerning themselues, 890. and touching other. 891. Iudgement of God is certaine concerning both, 892. Iudgement of God vpon sinne, 11.150.603.916. 946. the generall iudgement certaine, 88. 89. at hand, 76. 332. yet vncertaine when, 90. in that day the righteous are blamelesse, 515
Iustification by faith alone apprehensiue, 326 456. 465. 476. 485.505. 513. 557. 560.622. 823. by Christs grace effectiue, 307. 352. 468 476.485.557.621. Iustification consists in two things, 307 no man ought to iustifie himselfe, 308

K

KIngs, and Common-wealths honoured by the Gospell, hated by poperie, 550. the things of Cæsar, ibid. Kings of England famous for religion, 557. stiled Gods, 810.910. The Lords annointed and sonnes of God, 826. The duties of Kings, 830.836. Their condition in the world vncertaine, 889. They may not respect the persons of men, 668. All subiect to the higher powers, 158. 159. Princes ought to be mercifull, nursing fathers, not cursing tyrants, 415. 550 yet not too popular, 723
Kingdome of God vsed in the Scripture diuersly, 853
Kingdome of Christ, 810. 812. 829. 447. 932. 933. difference betweene Christ and other kings, 824
Kisses of Christ, 833.927
Kissing of Christ, 833.927
Knees of euery thing bow to Christ, 280. 811.
Kneeling in prayer, 153.598.688
Knowledge, arts, 292. humane learning may bee cited for illustration of poynts in diuinitie, 467
Knowing of our duty precedes doing. 831

L

LAbour in our vocation, 225.401.436.569
Last things, 90
Law taken for all the Scripture, 267. exposition of the decalogue, 45. why read at the Communion, 58. the lawes gouernment; ends at the coming of Christ, 113. 114. 470. 721. the ciuill vse thereof, 469. the spirituall, 470.638.649. why the ministration of death and killing letter, 460.471. the law like Hagar, 267 271. preached with the Gospell, 46. 353. common Lawyers, 290
Laughing ascribed to God, 828.829.
Legion, 176
Lent, 221.222
Leper, leprosie, 152.154.155
Letanie composed after Dauids order, 821
Libertie, how farre Christians are free, 269.270
Liberalitie, 737
Life present full of euill, 38. 188. 295. 398. 442. 496: short, 188. 444. 714. 879. 880. 884. a warfare, 230. 531. 756. euerlasting life, 26. 398. it is the gift of God, 190. 196. 197. 393 420. how the crowne of Iustice, 765. the ioyes thereof, 901
Light, God is Light, 606
Limbus patrum, 912
Lotteries, how lawfull, 646
Loue the complement of the law, 48. 75. 204. 251 344

344. 363. 481. 517. the neerer the dearer, 151. 475. 611. yet wee must loue our enemies, 147. 156. 354. 398. 415. 495. 599. the bredth of loue, 495. loue doth exceed all other vertues in vse and continuance, 204. 213. consisting in doing more then in saying, 377. 378 yet in suffering more then in doing, 210. 949. how it couers a multitude of sinne, 333. it commeth of God, 363. how God is loue, 364. it hath two companions, 540. our neighbours to be loued as our selues, 475. how that is the second commandement, 517. how to loue God with all our hearts the first and greatest, 474. 516

Lust, why called fleshly, 230. 312. the heat thereof cooled foure wayes, 487

Luther, 192. 765

Lying, 39. 56. 489

M

MAgdalene visiting Christs sepulcher, 297 an Apostle to the Apostles, 298

Magi, whence they came, and when, and who, 631 632. their gifts, 634

Magistrates, 160. 162. 822. 936. why called gates, 911

Magnificat, 28

Man, 345. 702. his basenesse, 879. 880. his dignitie, 881

Manichees, abuse the text, he set his tabernacle in the Sunne, 793

Marriage honourable, 140. 141. 142. 616. what guests are fittest for a wedding, 142

Mary a perpetuall virgin, 21, 658. why affianced to Ioseph, 659. 660. how full of grace, 32. 668 not without sinne, 31. 663. her low estate, 32 642. pitie, 144. good huswiferie, 661. how God was with her, 665, how blessed aboue other women, 33. 666. Maries Mater nostra, 145. the Friers playing vpon the word Maria, 663

Martyrdome, 306. 493. 602. 765. 815. 856. Schismaticks and Papists are not true martyrs, 305. 492. a threefold martyrdome in Christs cause, 618. martyrdome without shedding of blood, 603

Masse, 62. 273. 819

Mecanicall trades, 128

Meditation and prayer should talke together.

Mercifulnesse, 394

The Mercies of God, 914. not passiue, but actiue, 519. how sung for euer and euer, 807. 808. 939. the bredth of Gods mercie, 864. the length of Gods mercie, 865. 943. the depth of Gods mercie, 865. the height of Gods mercie, ibid. mercies of God ouer all his workes, 940. 941. mercie and truth are met in God, 802. in man, 803. in Christ God and man, ibid. he cannot denie mercie, 247. what is meant in the Scripture by the mercies of Dauid, 806

Merit and merit-mongers, 453. 494. 707

Merits are the gift of God, 5. 198. none is iustified by the workes of the law, 197. 469. 475 yet euery man hath a Pope in his belly, 111

Midst, Christ in the midst, 584

Ministers, how called priests, 273, how pastours, 309. the worthinesse of their calling, 81. 92. 101. 107. 138. 156. 157. preach most who liue best, 14. 224. 275. 308. 359. 401. 442. 545. 570. 578. 672. 697. by whom sent, 304. their worke 97. 110. 123. 138. 151. 164. 199. 201. 203. 223. 225. 305. 315. 359. 374. 401. 403. 480. 494. 507. 513. 539. 546. 548. 567. 569. 572. 643. 660. 667. 699. 712. 763. exposed to malice and enuy, 224. 265. 369. 400. 681. 738. 743. 764. reward and reuerence due to them, 514. 574. 682. 738. 764 the terme minister is not contemptible, 689. foure kindes of ministers, 308. our Church furnished with sufficient ministers 309

Miracles, 158. Christ manifested himselfe to bee the Messias by miracles, 151. 462. 524. wee need no new miracles, 656. true miracles knowne from false, 265. miracles in Israels deliuerance from out of Egipt. 855. 856

Mirth at meales, 512

Morall duties before ceremoniall, 154

Mortification, 125. 425

Mothers loue their children more then their fathers, 741

Multitude, not to be followed for their number, 128. 611. 827

Murmurring, 388

Murther, wee may not kill other, 54. much lesse our selues, 37. 294. it is a kinde of sacriledge, 620

Musique of the Church, 180. musiques wonderfull effects, 875

Mysticall body of Christ, 137

N

NAmes giuen in Baptisme, 624. 718. Gods people did vsually name their children after the names of their ancestors, ibid. imposition of names a dutie belonging properly to parents, especially to the father. 659. 719

Necessity two-fold, 645

New-man, 78. 518. 703

The Nothing of man, is made something with God. 944

Nunc dimittis, 36

O

Oathes, by whom, and for what end to be taken, 823
Oath of God concerning the Messias, 817. 818 823
Offering of the Virgin Marie, 641
Oppression, 244
Order in all things, 510.557
Ordering of Ministers, 567.568
Originall sinne, 418

P

PAines of losse more grieuous, than paines of sense, fol.918
Papists, a barbarous people both in their doctrines and doings, 859. their preaching, 798, their religion vpstart, 184. 277. their lying and forgerie, 80.489. their Idolatry praying to the Virgin and other Saints, 36. 145. 163. 237. 249. 277. 329. 330. 567. 616. 780. 781. their cruelties, 185. 278. 338. 602. 786. 815. 840. their fooleries, 843. their treacherie, 224. 359. 786. their uncleane chastitie, 226. 616 their railing on the Gospell, and iniuring of the Scriptures, 276. 344. 432. their not communicating with vs, is in them a point rather of state, than any deuotion. 507
Poperie, the kingdome of darknesse, 69.970
Parables, 112. why Christ vsed parables, 201. parable of the lost sheepe, 388. 389
Parents to be honoured, 53. 54. 134. their dutie to their children, 131. 250. 641. why mothers are more fond of their children than fathers, 741
Partialitie, 668.960
Passions of men ascribed to God secundum effectum, not secundum affectum, 817
Patience, 149. 224. 553
Peace, 862. Preachers ought to praise God for peace more than other men, in respect both of danger and dutie, 863. Peace threefold, 38. 167 how farre peace with all men, 150. 151. seeking of peace, 399. the wicked haue no peace, 167. Christ is our peace, 585
Perfections of Christians imperfect in this life, 24 95. 494. 514. 515. 562. 579. 607. 611. 688. 715. 740
Persecutions and tribulations for the Gospell are the markes of Christ, 493 Persecutors of the Church chiefe sinners, 985 Perseuerance, 189. 483. 768. 897. 907, 928.
Peter, a Peere, not a Prince, 304. 305. 644. not the Churches Rocke, 577. 733. 734
Philosophers, 286. 292. 467. 731
Pilgrims, 312
Physicke, 154. 318
Plague, 175
Pope, an Anti-god, 46. 502. 503. the greatest Puritan, 579. a Iudas, 285. his office not named, amongst the degrees of Ministers, 680. ignorant Popes, 266. vngodly Popes, 508. Popes supremacie, 10. 277. 501. variance about the successor of Peter, 502
There was a Pope Ioane, 490
Poore may serue God as well as the rich, 136 diuers kindes of poore, 752. 773. 774. the poore in spirit, fol.775. 776
Prayer, motiues to prayer, 1. 326. 332. why God defers our sute sometime, 327. 717
Why the Lords Prayer vsed so much in our Liturgie, fol.2. an exposition of it, ib. Prayers are to be made to God onely, 9. 328. 329. 493. 567. 648 Prayer for our selues, 28. 327. 331. 597. for others, 43. 463. 523. for all men, 43. Prayers are to be built vpon Gods mercy, not vpon mans merit, 822. importunitie in prayer, 166. 219 717. comely gestures in prayer, 9. 452. 453. 493 598. Prayers to be made in a knowne tongue, 68 in faith, hope, charitie, 717. publique prayers in the Temple, 132. priuate prayers, 142. hearty prayers, 29. 181. 333. short prayer, 247. the power of prayer, 725. 726
Praise of God, 6. 181. why to be praised, and how, 81. 13. 29 35. 47. 320. 356. 496. 779. 807. 808 846. 847. 851. 862. 932. foure kindes of praises answering foure kindes of prayers, 934
Preachers, the voyce of a cryer, 107. 108. in the wildernesse, 109. the end of preaching, 110. Preachers are Prophets, 138. Preachers are helpers in diuers respects, 223. plaine preaching, 315 416
Preferment is from God, who raiseth poore men out of the mire, 848. and puls downe the mighty from their seat, 849
Pride, the first and the last sinne, 32. 454. foure kindes of proud men, 451. pride and enuie the proper sinnes of Satan, 454. a mountaine, 110 111.
Priests are the worst among Papists, 508
Princes are shields to Gods people, 936
Prisoners of Christ, 627
Prognostications and predictions, 315
Promises of God, 468. 469. Promises of God are the chiefe part of the Scripture. 822. they bee conditionall, 823. the wicked abuse them in applying them vnto their selues, 825
Pronounes, great diuinitie in pronounes, 28. 83
Prophecie fulfilled foure wayes, 79. three kindes of Prophets, 100. who bee now Prophets, 138 680.

680. how called, 430. Prophets, Euangliſts, and Apoſtles, the ſame 680. Prophets ſpake by the motion of the Spirit, 920. falſe Prophets, 428.
Proſperitie, more dangerous than aduerſitie, 301
Proteſtant paſtors are worſt vſed, 931
Prouidence, 385. 737. Gods prouidence, 847. 838
Pſalmes in Diuine Seruice, 7. 180. other Hymnes, 12. why Benedict. Magnif. and Nunc dimit. vſed ſo much, ibid. the difference betweene Pſalmes and Hymnes, 180
Publicans, 751
Purgatorie, 178. 186. 546. 687
Purifying of women, 638. 639. Maries purification, 639. 640

Q

QVeene Elizabeths commendation ful. 514. 786. 936
Queſtions captious, 549

R

RAbbins, 359
Racha, 413
Redemption of the world, a greater act than the creation, 940
Reioycing, the good man is the merry man, 30. 82. 103. 171. 652
Reioycing in the Lord, 30. 102. 696. our ioy ſhall be full in the world to come, 606
Religion, we may not be mingle-manglers in Religion, 445. Religion of the reformed Churches moſt oppoſite to the children of this world, 827
Reliques, 556
Repentance, foure things required in true repentance, 906. not to bee deferred, 124. 297. 831. 907. heartie repentance, 491. ioy in heauen for the penitent, 390. repentance conſiſteth in mortification and vinification, 405. 519. the vertues of a penitent, 155
Repetition, 242. 315
Reproofe, if diſcreet no reproach. 56. 414
Reprobate ment aſte of Gods mercy, 941
Reſidence, what kinde of Non-reſidence commendable, 310. Chriſt not alway reſident vpon one beneſice, 462
Reſtitution neceſſarie, 74
Reſurrection fol. 807. 850. the Baſis of all other articles of faith, 26. 449. 565. 646. how wee ſhall riſe againe, 547. reſurrection of Chriſt, 918. the benefits thereof, 867. 868. Chriſts reſurrection a demonſtration of ours, 586. 716. the Chriſtians comfort, 600. Chriſt roſe with his wounds, 303. 304
Reuenge forbidden, 149
Riches, 368. 490. their burden, 953
Righteouſneſſe euangelicall doth excell the Phariſaicall in foure point, 408. Chriſt is our righteouſneſſe, 562
Rogation weeke, why ſo called, 326
Rome, ſpiritually Babylon and Egypt, 859. new Rome differing from old Rome. 891

S

SAbbath, 50. 202. 583
Sacraments are ſignes and ſeales of Gods grace, 623. 655. 869. the buttons of the Churches garment 929. the cup belongs to the people, 62. Chriſt not groſly preſent, 106. 293. why the Hymne Glory to God on high, vſed at the celebration of this Sacrament, 64
Sacrilege, 285. 446. 447
Sacrifices of diuers kinds, 124. 977. the condition of Chriſtian ſacrifices, ibid. and 125. 126. 127. 976
Saints on earth are more than conquerors in heauen more than Emperors, 889. how the Saints in heauen remember their miſdeeds and miſhaps in this valley of teares, 808
Saints communion, 125. 174. the ſealing of the Saints liuing, 770. 771. the reſt and happineſſe of the dead Saints, 352. why we celebrate the memories of the bleſſed Apoſtles and other Saints, 563. 780. the Papiſts falſe Saints, 249. 780. no Saint George, 781. Saints not to be worſhipped, 661. 662. their vertues are their reliques, 780
Salutations among Gods people, 26. 665. obiections againſt ordinarie ſalutations anſwered, 413. 414
Saluations aſſurance, 987
Satisfaction of the Papiſts, contrarie to the Goſpels doctrine, 544. 607. 713
Schiſmaticks, 189. 199. 211. 239. 324. 404. 426. 453. 507. 512. 539. 540. 603. 640.
Schollers are ſaid in Scripture to ſit at the feet of their Maſters, 933
Schoolemen, 242. 303. 969
Scriptures authoritie, 84. 85. 796. ſufficiencie, 236. 612. 796, antiquitie, 84. vtilitie, 85. 612. 797. 798. the new Teſtament hidden in the old, 16. 215. 362. 667. their agreement, 79. 215. 589. 711. difference, 589. to be read in the mother tongue, 85. 216. 798. with preparation and attention diligently, 46. 178. 179. 206. 236. 387. 400. 473. the ſenſe is the ſoule of Scripture, 203. 460

460. to be construed by Scripture, 100. and by the best expositors, ibid. two edges of this sword, 163. the rule of faith and Iudge, 236. 324. 351 374. 472. 474
Sea, wonderfully wonderfull, 11. 874
Sermons haue two principall parts, 222. all Christs Sermons stood vpon faith and repentance, 401 573. repetitions in Sermons commendable. 242 315
Seruice, we cannot serue two masters, 487. Gods seruice most honourable, 37. 532. 688. 766
Sickneſſe, 553. from sin, 152. 463. 522. 537. how we should reſpect the sicke, 154. 462. we may not neglect ordinarie meanes of helpe, 464. Christ himselfe prayed in healing some diseases, ibid.
Signes, 655
Singularitie, 381
Sinne, not of God, 942. a worke of darkenes, 41. 76 a sickneſſe, 14. 483. 524. 537. 560. to be sorried for, 61. 172. 500. 691. a fiend that torments vs, 65. it seldome comes alone, 78. 560. degrees in sinne, 235. 500. sundry diuisions of sinne, 621 salue for sinne, 979. sinne a labour and a load, 650. our sinnes crucifi: Christ, 217. pleasures momentanie punishment for sinne eternall, 244 417. 444. the conuersion of a sinner, a greater worke than the creation of the world 524. impenitent sinners farre from God, and deafe, 108 penitent neere to God, 269. 488. vpon what feet they come to God, 387. 650. how sinnes are mortall and veniall, 415. 419. punished in proportion, 373
Sitting, Christ taught sitting, 401. 760
Sleepe, 287
Sobrietie, 332
Solicitousneſſe, threefold, 385
Solitarineſſe, 232. 916
Sonnes, 498
Soule immortall, 37. 321. 597. 600. neglected many wayes, 193. 522
Spirit, foure kinds of spirits, 233. what it is to be led by the Spirit 426. 481. how the Spirit assureth our spirit that we are Gods children, 343 426. helping our infirmities, 551
Starre appearing to the Magi was extraordinarie, 633. 634
Stealing, 55
Steward, all men are stewards vnto God, and one day must giue an account, 435. 438
Strangers, Christians are pilgrims on earth, 34 149 Subsidies, 163
Sursum corda, 64
Swearing, 49. 323. swearing by a greater, 816 823. God swearing by himselfe, 97. 823. hee teacheth vs how to sweare by precept and pattern, 817. why men in old time when they ware, put their hands vnder the thighes of the Patriarches, and in our time lay them vpon some part of the Bible, 823
Sword of Christ, 814. 924. Potentates of the world end their quarrels by the sword, 814
Sympathies and antipathies of the creatures, 875

T

TAbernacle. What is meant Psalm. 15. 1. by Tabernacle, 884
Tarantulæ, their biting cured by musique, 876
Te Deum, 21
Temple, appointed both for prayer, 132. 358. 451 496. and preaching, 448. Christ frequented the Temple, 445. 446. and is found in the Temple, 134. 580. Temple doores how called euerlasting, 911. why called a Sanctuarie. 783
Temptations twofold, 233. we may not thrust our selues into temptations, ibid. how farre God is a worker in temptation. 234. comfort in temptation, 255. 298. 347. 583. 690. 705. 707. 986
Text to be cited for the proofe of doctrine, 100. 1[illegible] 672. Old Testament to be receiued, 85. the kindes of Testaments, 467. the difference betweene old and new, [illegible]0. 667
Thanks to Christ for his benefits, 195. 948
Thomas incredulitie, 580. his faith, 58[illegible]. whether he touched the wounds of Christ or no. 581
Time present is the time of grace, 16. 134. 141 223. 444. 881
Tongue, good and bad, 5. resemblance betweene the pen and the tongue, 9[illegible] the tongue of men and Angels, 205, to refraine our tongue, 399
Traditions, 236. 324. 406
Traitors; 162
Tribute due debt to Cæsar, albeit he were neuer so bad, 55[illegible]. 551
Trinitie, 7, 1944. 66. 279. 302. 335. 356. 362 440. 594. 611. our knowledge in this mysterie rather apprehending than comprehending, 648. why the feast of Trinitie followeth Aduent and Christmas, 356
Truth is stronger than all, 407
Tyrants, 936

V

VBiquitaries in Arts, 569
Vertues armour of light, 76. 177. fruit of the Spirit, 480. our blessednesse consists not in the perfection of our vertues, but in the remission of our sinnes, 621. 622. Vertues and good deeds are our children and best heires. 851

Vine, the resemblance betweene Christ and a Vine, 683
Vnanimitie, 398.501
Vnderstanding is required in praysing God, 935
Vniformitie in discipline is an hedge to vnitie in doctrine, 133.557
Vniuersitie, 289. 430. 557. 750. three sorts of schollers in Christs Colledge. 408. Vniuersities are honourable women attending the Church, 926
Vnregenerate men how beasts, 837. how worse than beasts, 946
Vntill is vsed often not for a peece of time, but for a perpetuitie, 812.836
Vocation, externall, internall, eternall, 767. the causes of our heauenly vocation, 647. Parents must accommodate their children with a fit vocation, 558. blessings vpon men in their vocations, 569. to follow our vocations, 610
Vprightnesse of heart, 895

W

Warre, 289. War forraine, 862. ciuill, ibid. we haue great incouragements in our spirituall warfare, 575
Watchfulnesse, 287.290.332
Weeping for the dead, 498
Wedding of the great King, 530. wedding garment, 531
Welcome betweene the soule and the body at the resurrection, 904
Wicked, persecutors of the godly, 891.915. haters of God, ibid. their weaknesse in opposing God, 828. they dishonour God for euer and euer, 939
one against another, and God against them all, 168. all the creatures fight against them, 172 affinitie betweene the wicked and the deuill, 182 262. how we may conuerse with them, 388.511 753. combined against the godly, 516.584.723 like Samson grinding in the mill, 754. how God knowes them not, 367
Winde, and the wonderfull effects thereof, 874
Wings of the Hen resemble Gods high and holy protection of vs, 836
Wisdome, 148
Wish of S. Augustine, 473
Witches are not to be consulted, 479.801
Wiues duties, 134
Women commended, 249.250
How Christ is said to Wonder, 249
Word of twofold, 211. Christ rules by his word, whereas other Princes by the sword, 814
World Gods epistle, 19. a sea of glasse, 354 taken for the wicked of the world, 127. 323. 545 things of the world transitory, 129. not satisfactorie, 130. three dayes of the world, 141. ouercomming of the world, 301. the world is Christs, 909. a diuinitie schoole, 791. why called mundus, 922
Workes of supererogation are workes of superarrogation, 424 good works follow iustification, and are necessarie to saluation, 123. 124. 148 190. 208. 209. 240. 245. 392. 313. 325. 396. 399. 407. 432. 606. 633. 767. 892. 896. 988 the causes of good workes, 540
Writings are called workes, 921. vulgar people, 128.731

Zeale with discretion and knowledge, 156. 212 228. 388. 426. 466. 540

FINIS.